Keep in mind the benefits of reporting crime to the police - it allows for their crime analysts to map the data and accurately record statistics and helps build an intelligence network where police can get a better picture of what's really going on in the community. If you are the victim of a crime and you don't report it, then the police are led to believe that no issue present. As the public, the police need your help to assist them in keeping communities safe and to help prevent crime. The OPP are asking that you come forward to report crime if you are the victim of it.

Remember, the public is vital to helping us solve crime - being the eyes and the ears of the community while the police are the hands and the feet, states the OPP in a news release.

The OPP is encouraging residents to join or create a neighbourhood watch group in their area. They state this can enhance awareness getting to know what's normal in the area as opposed to what's not, it can build a strong community network within the neighbourhood watch community but also between the police and community, it can help make homes and neighbourhoods safer as residents take an active role in security improvements in their home accompanied by observation and it an aid in reporting suspicious person or vehicles to the police. They encourage people call 911 for emergencies and 1-888-310-1122 for non-emergencies.

There's a neighbourhood watch group on Facebook for SouthFields Village and Anthem subdivision residents called SFV and Anthem Neighbourhood Watch.

RIDE programs in Caledon

Members from Caledon Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) would like to remind residents that officers will be out and about conducting RIDE programs in various locations throughout the Town of Caledon to ensure the roads stay safe.

While RIDE programs operate year-round, officers pay particular attention to conducting RIDE during this time of year as people are gearing up for the holidays and attending celebrations. With that being said, police ask that you please make the right decision and choose a safe and sober ride home - be it a cab, public transit or a designated driver. Avoid riding in the back of a cruiser, ambulance or worst a hearse.

Be mindful that when you're approaching a RIDE location, officer safety is paramount as officers are positioned in live lanes of traffic. When you see police lights flashing - slow down, proceed with caution, and afford officers a safe distance from your vehicle. Thinking about Conducting a U-turn to Avoid the RIDE?

As a result, a 28-year-old man of Caledon was charged criminally with driving impaired and failing to provide a breath sample. The accused is scheduled to appear at the Ontario Court of Justice in Orangeville on Nov. 8 to answer to the charges.
