Orange Lodge in Caledon East starts its move

By Bill Rea

Work is progressing on moving the Orange Lodge in Caledon East.

Crews started work last week on dismantling the structure which has stood on the property of Caledon East United Church. The various parts are being labeled, with the plan to eventually have the building reassembled on the Caledon Town Hall site, just down the road.

The work is being carried out under the eye of heritage restoration contractor Vic Snow. Town council voted in January to retain its services for the job.

Caledon's Heritage Resource Officer Sally Drummond reported to council in January that the building is owned by the Trustees of Caledon East United Church.

She also reported the hall was built around 1856, constructed from heavy, squared timber frame.

She reported the building could not be moved to the new location in tact because there had been extensive decay in the wood sill beams, and it was concluded that had compromised its structural integrity.

Carey deGorter

The Town of Caledon has announced that Carey deGorter will be taking on the duties of Director of Administration and Town Clerk, effective May 6.

She brings 15 years of leadership experience in the municipal sector.

As Deputy City Clerk for the City of Barrie since 2007, deGorter has a solid working knowledge of municipal legislation and its regulations, and has used this knowledge to assist members of council and colleagues with procedural and strategic direction for the City. During her time in Barrie, she led successful initiatives including improving front-line customer service, fostering council-staff relations, introducing e-agendas to the City and introducing numerous innovative approaches to municipal service delivery.

She has held previous positions with the Township of Springwater, as Manager of Corporate Services/Clerk from 2006 to 2007 and Deputy Clerk from 2004 to 2006, as well as previous

In addition to labeling the various components of the building, Drummond reported detailed structural drawings of the hall, along with photographic documentation will aid in its eventual re-assembly.

Snow said the dismantling job should take a couple of weeks.

"It is an amazing building," he commented.

He said there are some who believe it was built around 1870, but he was more inclined to think it was as early as 1855.

"It's a great building," he said. "It will look spectacular when it's rebuilt."

Town announces new Clerk positions with the Town of Erin from 1998 through to 2004. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Western Ontario and is a graduate of the Municipal Administration Program (MAP). As well, she is Past-President of the Simcoe County Clerks and Treasurers Association.

DeGorter describes herself as an enthusiastic, customer service-oriented person, who is ready to engage the community with a strong, positive attitude in Caledon. She is an active, high-energy person, who loves to downhill ski and scuba dive. In addition to being mother to an 11-year-old daughter, she also is dedicated to her local community and volunteers on a regular basis. She is currently teaching Municipal Administration for AMCTO and has led internal learning sessions in her previous positions.

"Join me in welcoming Carey to the Town," said CAO Doug Barnes. "She is a high-performing individual who is going to make a great contribution to the Management of the Town."

People elected to municipal councils know their jobs are filled with positive and negative aspects.

They get to attend a lot of functions, sometimes as honoured guests. But there are also a lot of demands on their time, as well as criticism from some in the public, not to mention the media.

On the other side of the issue, the pay is not bad.

Both the Town of Caledon and Peel Region released their council remuneration reports recently. In both cases, they were received without comment by their respective councils.

When salaries from both the Town and Region are combined with benefits received and reimbursement for expenses, all five of Caledon's representatives at the Region had passed the $100,000 threshold for 2012.

Not surprisingly, Mayor Marolyn Morrison had the highest numbers. She received a salary of $63,020 for serving in the Mayor's office, and the report from the Town stated she received $11,064 in taxable benefits. On top of that, she was reimbursed for $6,107 in expenses and another $5,047 in mileage. Those numbers add up to a total of $85,238 in remuneration from the Town. On top of that, Morrison received the standard stipend of $50,416.78 as a Regional councillor, plus $8,698.04 in benefits, according to the Regional staff report, for a total of $59,114.82. In addition, she received $5,063.89 to cover conferences and other expenditures, and another $2,946.44 to attend board meetings of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario.

The figures for all the other councillors showed a base salary of $27,881 from the Town.

Councillor Richard Paterak received $6,359 in benefits, plus $2,949 to cover expenses and $4,638 for mileage, for a total from the Town of $41,827. In addition to this Regional pay, Paterak got $6,391.34 in benefits, plus $6,022.72 for conferences and other expenses.

Councillor Doug Beffort received $7,109 in benefits from the Town, according to the staff report, along with $4,367 to cover expenses and $2,857 for mileage. This came to a total of $42,214.

Added to Councillor Allan Thompson's Town salary was $7,210 in benefits, along with $4,717 for expenses and $6,687 for Town. Added to that was Thompson salary from the Region, plus $8,698.04 in benefits, $7,777.48 for conferences and other expenditures. As well, there was $510.16 in other remuneration and $141.22 to cover other expenses in connection with his work with Credit Valley Conservation.

The benefits paid to Councillor Gord McClure by the Town came to $7,109. There was also $2,281 in expenses and $6,245 in mileage, totalling $43,516.

Councillor Richard Whitehead received $4,810 in benefits from the Town, plus $4,396 to cover expenses and $4,957 for mileage, for $42,044 in total. Along with his Regional salary, Whitehead got $2,172.58 in benefits and $3,785.41 for conferences and other expenditures. As well, there was $1,819.02 in other remuneration and $1,100 in other expenses through his work with Toronto and Region Conservation.

Councillor Nick deBoer received $7,210 in benefits from the Town and $843 to cover expenses (he didn't receive anything for mileage). His total from the Town came to $35,934.

Councillor Patti Foley got $7210 in benefits from the Town, along with $3,608 to cover expenses and $1,984 for mileage for a total of $40,683. In addition to her Regional stipend, Foley received $8,698.04 in benefits and $817.57 to cover conferences and other expenditures.

The benefits paid by the Town to councillor Rob Mezzapelli amounted to $7,210. Combined with $2,315 for expenses and $2,096 for mileage, his total came to $39,502.

On schedule getting Equestrian Park ready for season and Games

By Bill Rea

The Caledon Equestrian Park at Palgrave currently looks like a big construction site, because that's basically what it is.

But that's not going to be the case for long, as the facility is less than a month away from hosting its first horse show of the season. A total of 16 are in the works for this year.

But the real work that's in progress to get the park ready to host the 2015 Pan/Parapan American Games.

The changes to the site are being conducted under the supervision of Christian Bauer, a footing specialist listed under the International Equestrian Federation (FEI).

Marc Seguin, senior project manager for the Town, said everything is on schedule. Connections for Hydro, gas and water are in, and storm water management facilities have been installed. The plan is to have the site hooked up to the Peel Region water system this week (meaning it will be off wells).

"We are on schedule," he declared. "Everything we needed to achieve by May 1 is on track."

Bauer, who has worked on projects around the world, including in Spain, Portugal and Mexico, said the footings for the competition areas requires various levels of material (including aggregates) to provide for proper drainage, as well as for a surfaces that will be safe for the horses. The materials include geotextiles, shredded to a size specified in the equine industry with fibres that create a root system in the ground, making it more stable.

"The health of the horse depends very much on this layer," he said.

Seguin said the project is being carried out in a phased approach to make sure the current operation and competition schedule can proceed.

The current phase involves a competition ring for the coming season. It's south of the main ring and pavilion, and work there will be taken care of in the second phase.

Craig Collins , of Equestrian Management Group Inc., said the ring that's currently being developed will be a 30-minute warm-up ring for the main competition area in 2015.

Despite the deadlines, Bauer said they will be able to complete the work in the available time.

"We don't have to rush and do everything unprofessionally," he remarked.

Seguins said one of the good news stories involved with the project is the use of local companies and material. The current work on the site is being carried out by Sierre Excavating Enterprises of Bolton. The aggregate material has come from James Dick Construction.

The main entrance to the site is going to be off Buckstown Trail to the north, which runs between Highway 50 and Mount Hope Road, and Collins said there will be an appealing gate feature there.

He also said a lot of thought and planning has gone into the making the facility functional for both competitors and spectators, both for the 2015 Games and beyond.

"A lot of planning went into making sure the Games are accommodated, along with a legacy venue," he remarked.

Memorial trees have been planted for some of the outstanding horses that have competed at Palgrave. Collins said there is one for Big Ben, Ian Millar's legendary mount, and one will be placed in memory of Hickstead, who Eric Lamaze rode to Olympic gold in 2008. He also pointed out these trees help beautify the area.

Planning the facility for the Games has been something of a puzzle, but Collins said they're confident they have everything worked out.

"I think we've got all the multiple pieces of the puzzle figured out.

"The Games provide us the opportunity to upgrade the facility," he said. "It's going to serve the sport and the community incredibly well for the next several generations of athletes."

There are other details that need to be finalized.

Seguin said the current plan it to have spectators attending the Games park at Albion Hills Conservation Area, and then take shuttle buses to the park. he said they are hoping to have an operational plan ready to look at in about six months.

Sierre Excavating Enterprises of Bolton have their equipment working on the show jumping ring that's going to see most of this season's action.

Spring bring new programs to PAMA

ARTIST DOES DEMONSTRATION AT FIRST FIRST FRIDAY - Artist Mark Grice, who paints out his studio at Alton Mill, was working on this acrylic creation Friday night. He was part of the first First Friday event at Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA). There will be special social events taking place at PAMA the first Friday of every month. Photo by Bill Rea

This spring, join the Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) for a fresh set of arts and culture programs for people of all ages.

Whether one is a jewelry-lover, just looking to explore their green thumb or looking for a fun activity for the whole family, PAMA's April programs are sure to inspire.

Family programs

There are drop-in family activities (for all ages) every Saturday and Sunday, from 1 to 5 p.m., free with admission. Each week families can make and take home easy projects for all ages.

This coming weekend (April 13 and 14), work on a group mural. Inspired by Mars Venus and the Landscape, participants will have the chance to create a group mural on the windows of the studio facing Main Street in Brampton. The evolving mural will take on different looks as more and more families add to it.

April 20 and 21, work on Newspaper Bags. Celebrate Earth day by making your own bag using newspaper and simple folding techniques!

April 27 and 28, the theme will be Key Prints. Experiment with patterns while printmaking with locks and keys.

Thursday night public tours

Each Thursday night, one of the staff will lead a half hour tour of the buildings and exhibitions, highlighting key points, artifacts and/or pieces. All tours start at 7 p.m. and are free with admission. Meet in the art gallery lobby.

Adult programs

There will be a Bling it On! Jewelry Making Workshop April 21 from 2 to 4 p.m. The fee is $45 and all materials are included. It's all about the bling! Inspired by PAMA's museum exhibition From Crystals to Gems, learn how to make a crystal bead necklace and bracelet. Participants may bring their own jewelry-making kit, or may opt to purchase one from the instructor ($19.50 includes tax).

The PAMA Blooms Gardening Series continues April 27 with Container Gardening: Flowers and More.

It will run from 10 a.m. to noon, and the cost is $15.

It's time to start thinking spring and getting hands dirty. Learn the tricks and tips on how to start and maintain successful composts, container and vegetable gardens.

Bolton family safe after house fire

The injuries were minor after a Bolton family of four had to get out of their house in a hurry to escape a fire Sunday evening.

Caledon Fire and Emergency Services reports they were called out at 9:44 p.m., responding to reports from a neighbour of smoke being visible and frantic activity around the house on Grapevine Road.

Caledon OPP had told responding fire-fighters that there was a working fire in the basement, with heavy smoke coming from the front door. Fire crews were on the scene within five minutes and the fire was under control after another 20 minutes.

The fire department reports smoke alarms in the house were working, and everyone was able to get out. They added the father leaned out a second-floor window to drop a seven-year-old child to the mother waiting below. The father then dropped to the ground, sustaining leg injuries in the process.

All four occupants were taken to Brampton Civic Hospital with minor burns, the leg injury and smoke inhalation. A 15-year-old boy was transported to the Hospital for Sick Children as a precaution for smoke inhalation. Damage is estimated at $200,000. The cause is still under investigation.

The fire department is reminding residents of the importance of having working smoke alarms in their homes, as well as having an escape plan in the event of fire.

Wallace said the following exercises will help families develop a plan that will allow everyone to safely escape:

- Walk through each room of the home with everyone in the family. Look at all the possible exits and discuss how each one can be used in a fire emergency. For example, windows are only a practical alternative if they can be easily opened and safely exited.
- Discuss the actions each person will take when the smoke alarm sounds. Consider who will be responsible for young children or other persons who may require assistance.
- Young children should understand that they must never hide if there is a fire. They should be told they must yell loudly so adults know where they are, or go to a parent's or caregiver's room, if it is nearby and safe to do so.
- Establish a meeting place outside the home where everyone can assemble. This will help to prevent undue concern and confusion. Once outside, stay outside. Never re-enter a burning building.

Pommies Dry Cider giving away apple trees at LCBO outlets

During April at select LCBO locations in Ontario, consumers who purchase three four-packs of Pommies Dry Cider will walk away with an apple tree to plant in their yard.

The giveaway highlights that Pommies is made from 100 per cent juice from Ontario apples and encourages the growth of apple trees in Ontario.

There will be a cider tasting and tree giveaway at the Bolton LCBO outlet April 26, from 4 to 8 p.m. The Bolton store is at 30 McEwan Dr. East.

"The next best thing to grabbing a cold Pommies from your fridge is picking an apple off your own apple tree," said Nick Sutcliffe, owner of Southern Cliff Brands of Bolton, and a cider drinker. "Lots of companies give away stuff, usually plastic, but we wanted to make sure that we offered consumers something that benefits them for years to come."

Klees looking to preserve existing communities

Newmarket-Aurora MPP Frank Klees took the first step to preserve the quality of life of existing communities and to make municipal councils responsible and accountable for decisions relating to the intensification of established neighbourhoods.

"From time to time, legislation can have unintended consequences, and when those consequences become evident, we have a responsibility to amend that legislation to ensure the public interest is protected," Klees said. "The Places to Grow Act and its companion legislation, the Growth Plan for the Greater Golden Horseshoe is a case in point."

Klees made the comments after presenting his private member's bill in the legislature where it passed first reading and is scheduled for second reading debate April 18.

"As currently written, the Places to Grow Act and the Growth Plan provide that a significant portion of new growth is to take place through intensification in existing built-up areas," Klees observed. "The result is that the quality of life and the very character of existing communities can be negatively affected, not to mention the impact on property values and the strain on the infrastructure of the community."

"The LCBO is committed to ensuring our operations are environmentally sustainable," said Leanne Rhee, category manager of beer and cider for LCBO. "It makes both environmental and good business sense to support the sales of Ontario ciders. It stimulates the Ontario economy, creates jobs and has less environmental impact as local products are shipped shorter distances."

Other cider tastings and tree giveaways will take place at Orangeville LCBO (510 Riddell Dr.) April 12, from 4 to 8 p.m.; Toronto LCBO (232 Dupont St.) April 13, from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and Ottawa LCBO (275 Rideau St.) April 20, from noon to 4 p.m.

The Gala apple treexs to be given away at each location are approximately three feet tall. The dwarf variety trees will not exceed a height of eight-feet fully grown.

"That's why I am proposing to amend the Places to Grow Act through my private member's bill to provide that where an application is made that would increase the number of housing units in an existing community or extend that intensification to lands designated as Parks and Open Space, the decision made by a municipal council will be final and can not be appealed to the Ontario Municipal Board," he added.

Klees pointed out that the amendments he is proposing would not prevent an applicant from working with a municipal council to come to reasonable terms on a proposed development, but that it would be the local council that would have the final decision, not the Ontario Municipal Board.

"The amendment I'm proposing will not only empower municipal councils to make the final decision about what their community should be, but it also makes those councillors accountable to their electorate for their decisions," Klees said. "No more hiding behind the OMB or blaming provincial policy."

"The character of our communities should be decided by the people elected to make those decisions, not by an OMB panel," he concluded.

Detailed planting and growing instructions will be provided with each tree.

A premium brand of hard cider, made entirely from Ontario heritage apples, Pommies Dry Cider is a refreshing, dry and light-bodied cider with a crisp, lasting finish. Produced in Caledon, each bottle contains a blend of five different varieties of Ontario apples. Made from 100 per cent juice, Pommies has no added artificial flavourings, colourings and is not made from concentrate.

Thatcher was a giant

No matter what one’s political leanings are, we have a hard time believing anybody could argue that the world lost a giant this week.

Margaret Thatcher, the former prime minister of the United Kingdom, died Monday. The word was announced shortly before 8 a.m. our time.

While she had been away from the centre of the political stage for some years, there can be no doubt that this remarkable woman made her mark in a number of ways.

There are some who might argue that Mrs. Thatcher’s greatest achievements were in the area of showing how far women could advance in roles of leadership. Although her contributions in that regard were both impressive and inspiring, the likes of Golda Meir and Indira Gandhi had already walked that path ahead of her.

Her greatest legacy, we believe, will be the positive impact she had on her nation, restoring a sense of greatness in a land where the glories seemed almost a thing of the past when she reached office.

She did it by promoting a conservative agenda, and doing so with iron resolve — Not for nothing was she known as “The Iron Lady.”

There are some in our time who consider conservatism to be something evil. But conservative leaders in this world have a habit of coming along when they are most needed. People like Mrs. Thatcher and Ronald Reagan had their detractors, to be sure. But history tends to pass very positive verdicts on what they accomplish.

Thus, it’s no surprise to us that so many regard Mrs. Thatcher as a giant of her time.

We have no trouble agreeing with that.

Sunshine List is a ‘public service’

The Ontario NDP government in the 1990s came up with the idea of publishing a list of those earning $100,000 or more in the public sector.

Why? To bring increased accountability and transparency to public service. Mike Harris liked the idea and he implemented it when he came to power in 1995.

In my view, it is still a good idea.

Caledon’s CAO Doug Barnes (with a salary of more than $219,000, plus benefits) was cited in your editorial as saying things aren’t as alarming as they might seem.

And the mayor and Regional councillors also earn more than $100,000. And Regional Chair Emil Kolb earned more than $181,000. Marty Hall of planning earned more than $144,000 plus benefits. Craig Campbell of public works picked up $136,000 plus benefits. Monty Laskin (not a Caledon employee, but with Caledon Community Services) picked up a paltry $133,000 plus benefits. Whew!

The other newspaper in town recently carried an important article about poverty in Peel. Certainly, the folks noted here and elsewhere don’t have to worry about poverty. However, what about public services and possible decisions paid out of Town tax revenues (residents pay approximately 81 per cent, while commercial and industrial business interests only pay about 19 per cent)? Are we getting a return that benefits the community?

Well, let’s see now.

What about the potholes and cracked pavement in Bolton subdivisions, plus broken curbs that remain to be addressed? And what about council’s apparent support for the proposed Canadian Tire depot in south Bolton, that some argue would decrease our quality of life and put many families at risk due to the possible increase of diesel fumes from the 750 to 800 trucks daily going to and from the proposed facility?

But wait. What about all the jobs that might be created there? “What jobs?” some would like to argue, since the jobs in a high-tech facility will be minimal, likely part-time with no benefits and (egad!) no union to represent the workers.

But the new full-time young workers trying to pay off their student loans — wouldn’t they benefit from such a Town-inspired project? No way.

So I think publishing the Sunshine List is a needed public service.

And those high-paid bureaucrats in the education system should contribute some of their excessive salaries (say 10 per cent) to local charities, such as the food bank, Meals on Wheels, etc. Meanwhile, some of our kids and grandkids are attending many classes in leaky, dangerous portables.

As for the current members of council, we need to continue asking them what they do to serve the community’s best interests.

Kids will be kids ‘cause they’re kids

It was an interesting news item that came across last Thursday.

It was reported that a McDonald’s outlet in Massachusetts had advertised that a post-secondary degree would be required from people seeking a position as cashier.

Well, as we all know, McDonald’s is a food outlet, and that was certainly food for thought.

It was one of the fellows in the office who casually mentioned it in the morning. Like most people who have a brain in their head, my first reaction was to think that my leg was being pulled. I don’t think I raised the issue that it was a couple of days late to qualify as an April Fool’s gag, but it probably would have been applicable.

I started writing this when I got home that night. Before getting too much into things, I decided to check into this matter a little bit more through the internet. Upon doing so, I learned that the job advertisement contained an error when it came to listing the qualifications (as of this writing, that goof was still the subject of investigation). I have lived far too long not to appreciate the notion that accidents happen. That might explain how I got my post-secondary credentials (I actually have two of them).

But no matter how much in error this story might have been, it did take on a life of its own. That’s why it qualified as the proverbial “food for thought” that I mentioned above.

A natural point to make is this sounded like a dumb idea right from the start. After all, people far wiser than me, in terms of human resources, came up with the concept of being “over-qualified” for a reason. People with degrees take a job at a place like McDonald’s for a reason; namely there’s nothing much else available and a pay cheque from McDonald’s is better than no income at all. But once something better presents itself, those with degrees take their leave.

I have been in managerial positions long enough to know that one of the least fun parts of the job is filling vacancies in the ranks. So it seems like common sense to me that if you’re looking to hire someone, look for someone who’s likely to hang around for a while.

It could also be seen as a commentary on the real value of a post-secondary certificate. Even as I was seeking my first degree (while Prince Charles was still a bachelor), I heard comments that the initials BA really stood for “bugger-all.” I think I heard that first from my father. He might have been right, considering I spent the first two years after getting my degree waiting tables.

The office discussions petered out as we all had work to do, but while I was driving about town on my rounds as the day progressed, I heard a lot of discussion on talk radio. This was before I had heard all the facts, so like so many other people, I was accepting this story at face value.

I was a little surprised at the amount of positive reaction I was hearing to this silly idea. A lot of it was based on a certain criticism of the younger generation. One fellow phoning into the station to which I was listening related a situation that occurred twice, in which he handed young employees a credit card to a particular gas outlet and sent them to get the truck’s tank filled. The kids reported they were unable to complete the task because the station they went to on their own initiative wouldn’t accept the competition’s credit card.

The employer who was making the call seemed to be giving his head a shake, wondering how kids could be so dumb. I was giving my head a shake too, wondering if this guy had ever been a kid himself.

Okay folks, welcome to Being an Adult – 101. Here’s the first lesson, and if I ever get my way, it will be required reading before one is allowed to cash their first Income Tax refund cheque: Kids sometimes do dumb things!

Are we clear on that score? All of them do stupid things on occasion. Granted, some kids do dumber things than others, and others do them more frequently. It is part of the right of passage of being a kid to do stupid things. What aggravates the hell out of me is there are so many adults who somehow forget that.

I don’t think anyone has completely figured out what the problem is. While I’m not an expert, it probably has a lot to do with hormones, lingering effects of puberty, coming of age, augmented expectations and a host of other possible explanations. The best explanation I can come up with is that is the way things are, and if we adults are really as smart as we like to think we are, then we should accept that.

But it is also part of reality that people have trouble remembering they were that way once, and we have been hearing lamentations about that since time began.

Many employers complain about the younger folks they are sometime obliged to bring on. We’ve all heard complaints that these kids want as much as they can get for as little effort as possible, and the people doing the squawking seem to think that’s something unique to this period of history.

Hog wash! Those complaints are so old as to be laughable.

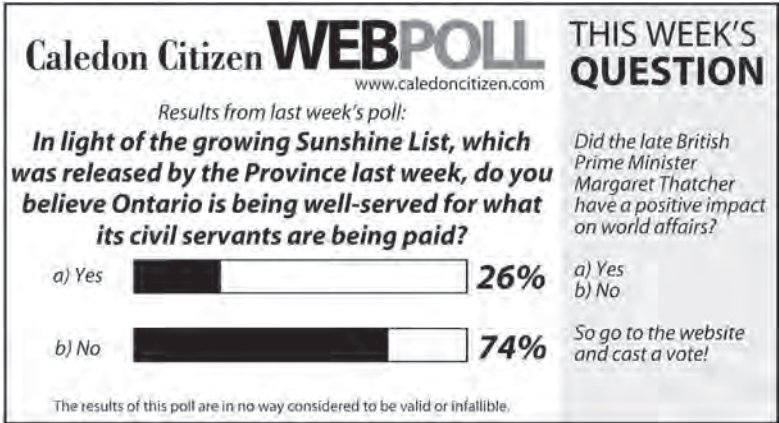

The National Film Board of Canada came out with a picture in 1964 entitled Nobody Waved Good-bye (I think most people in my age group saw that in school, for reasons I was never able to figure out). But the film had one scene in which the protagonist was being interviewed for a job, expressing his desire to make a lot of money right away. The interviewer excused the kid after listening to this garbage long enough to earn what the actor playing the role was being paid.

I have trouble believing that scene was the original idea of anybody.

Young people are always going to present their fair share of problems, but being bothersome is not confined to one particular age group. I’ve seen many instances in which kids have left me mystified. But if you’ve been to enough planning meetings, you will have seen plenty of adults who will have left you shaking your head.

These adults were kids like me. And it’s the kids we complain about who will be setting tax rates when we retire.

That’s more food for thought.

We're getting Caledon ready to deal with aging population

I recently attended an excellent presentation at the Caledon Seniors' Advisory Committee about Creating an Age-Friendly Caledon and, specifically, how important it is to plan now for the needs of a new generation of older adults.

Like all other communities, Caledon needs to prepare for the inevitable demographic shift in our population.

In 1961, one in 14 Canadians was older than 65 years of age, about seven per cent of our overall population. By 2011, the ratio had increased to 14 per cent, and by 2031 nearly one quarter (25 per cent) of Canadians will be older than 65. This is a startling certainty that we, as municipal decision-makers and managers, must thoroughly understand and plan to accommodate. The reality of an aging, retiring population is that all levels of government will face higher demands for services and a consequent increase in cost, while facing reduced tax revenues from fewer taxpayers.

Mayor's Report

By Marolyn Morrison

There are a number of approaches to evaluating a community's preparedness to meet the needs of its aging population. The Town of Caledon is examining each of them carefully and I have established an ad hoc committee to review the "age-friendliness" of Caledon within the principles espoused by the World Health Organization. We need to ask ourselves if we are planning ahead to meet the needs of all our future residents in terms of both active and passive transportation, accessible and affordable housing, social services, recreation and health care.

I will be meeting with all major developers in our community to seek their cooperation in designing homes that promote aging-in-place; I will be encouraging developers to consider Universal (or Flex) Design — a broad-spectrum solution that produces buildings, products and environments that are usable and effective for everyone, not just people with special requirements.

I look forward to Caledon being at the forefront once again as we begin, today, to evaluate the community's age-friendly status, adjust our plans and establish proper priorities to meet the future needs of all of our residents.

Disability Tax Credit is a benefit that can be claimed retroactively

If you or a family member has a disability, you already know the profound impact it can have on your quality of life and your finances.

Family support is often essential for those with disabilities. However, there are programs and organizations that can provide additional help and support.

The Disability Tax Credit (DTC) is one of these programs and this refundable income tax credit reduces annual income tax payable. Its refunds and reductions can be claimed retroactively, up to as much as 10 years. This means that those who have missed claiming it in the past have the chance to seek adjustments and reclaim those missed opportunities. The truth is that this tax relief can be significant and ongoing, but many people don't even know they qualify for DTC.

DTC can help relieve the financial burden for people living with disabilities all across Canada. Recently brought to my attention was a case involving two senior citizens, a husband and wife, who finally recognized their need for support. The husband had undergone two hip replacements and was having difficulties tending to his wife who had Alzheimer's. The couple received financial assistance and the husband was able to move his wife into respite care. A significant number of cases have also been noted for families who are living with children who qualify.

Ottawa Journal

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

In order to qualify, you must complete Canadian Revenue Agency (CRA) form T2201. A doctor must certify that you suffer from an illness that significantly impairs your daily functioning. Once approved, you may claim the disability amount on your income tax return. If all or part of the disability amount is not claimed by the taxpayer with the disability, it can be transferred to a spouse or common-law partner or another supporting taxpayer, who may also be able to claim the Caregiver Amount Tax Credit. This allows those with disabilities who have little or no income to still benefit from this tax break by transferring it to their care giver.

DTC can also be a qualifier for obtaining other tax breaks, such as claiming certain medical expenses.

The Disability Tax Credit is not the Canadian Pension Plan Disability Benefits (CPP-D) or the Ontario Disability Support Program. The fact that you are eligible for CPP-D, WSIB (Workplace Safety and Insurance Board) or another disability insurance benefit is no guarantee that you are eligible for this tax credit. I also want to caution you from using private companies when considering applying for this tax break. Many private companies charge up to 30 per cent in administration fees, which only takes substantial amounts of money out of the pockets of the people who actually need it.

Our government has put policies and programs like this together for a reason. I encourage those who feel they may qualify to apply and start taking advantage of the benefits they are entitled to receive.

Protecting new mothers internationally

The Zonta Clubs of Brampton-Caledon and Mississauga are working to assemble 1,000 birthing kits May 4.

The Mennonite Central Committee will be ship them free of charge for distribution in Haiti through their established service networks.

Safe birthing kits include a plastic sheet, a piece of soap, two gloves, gauze squares, cord ties and a razor blade in a plastic zip lock bag. They are crucial for midwives who struggle daily to deliver babies in non-sterile conditions. These few simple items, costing less than $2 apiece, can save three lives — the mother, baby and the birth attendant.

UNICEF estimates that each day about 1,000 women die worldwide because of complications related to pregnancy and childbirth. Developing countries account for 99 per cent of the deaths.

"We are really excited about our Mississauga and Brampton-Caledon Zonta Club's second safe birthing kits assembly day," commented Club President Doreen Thompson. "We assembled 1,000 in October 2010. Members of Zonta International are committed to 'advancing the status of women worldwide.'"

"We are following in the footsteps of other Zonta Clubs from around the world who have donated time and supplies to help women in developing countries to have a safe delivery," she added. "This is something we take for granted in our home community."

Donations of rubber gloves, plastic sheeting, umbilical cord, hard soap, gauze, zip lock bags or razor blades would be appreciated, as the scale of the problem is large. Those interested in donating those items are asked to contact Ellen at eblahitka@hotmail.com

The Clubs value this very worthwhile initiative. Secondary school students who are members of local Z-Club (sort of junior Zonta clubs) will be among the volunteers.

Neither justice nor its appearance

It was British Chief Justice Lord Gordon Hewart who uttered the now-famous phrase, "Not only must justice be done; it must also be seen to be done."

His 1924 ruling dealt with a notorious case involving judicial impartiality, but his words have come to stand for fairness and impartiality in all judicial matters.

Which brings me, alas, to the unfortunate case of former Durham swim coach Trent McNicol, a man whose experiences certainly don't match the standards for justice set by Justice Hewart.

McNicol was one of Canada's leading swim coaches. He had worked with more than 600 athletes over 16 years, including Jen Beckberger, who won both silver and bronze medals at the Pan American Games.

But a year ago, Durham police charged him with sexual assault and sexual exploitation following a complaint from a girl who alleged he had assaulted her when she was between 10 and 12 years old, beginning in 2005.

Last Friday, Crown prosecutor Lori Anne Turner dropped the charges against McNicol, explaining that after a thorough investigation "The Crown ... is duty-bound to withdraw charges if there is no reasonable prospect of conviction."

As for McNicol, he says, "Although it's done and over with, I get to carry this with me for the rest of my life. I wouldn't wish this on my worst enemy."

Indeed. Google his name, for example, and you'll find stories about the sexual assault charges. Nobody is going to edit those out. That's a tough thing to live with, particularly if it's not true. And there, dear hearts, is the rub.

This sort of case has bugged me for many, many years. There is no easy answer. I just know that when accusations of this type are made, the accused, guilty or not, is in an untenable situation. If he's guilty, he deserves it. If not, he doesn't.

Upon receiving the complaint, officials from the Whitby Dolphins Swim Club, where he'd worked for six years, fired him. And Swim Canada, Swim Ontario and the Coaching Association of Canada and the Canadian Swimming Coaches and Teachers Association summarily revoked his credentials.

More. Despite a perfect record, with no previous allegations of any kind, he was held for 24 hours, granted bail, and ordered not to go near places where children under 16 might be, including parks and swimming pools. He even had to leave his family behind in Whitby and move to his native Brantford under the supervision of his father.

Worse still, Durham police issued a press release containing McNicol's picture and invited other "victims" to come forward and describe what their coach had done to them. Nobody came.

Naturally, the story was carried in all the television, radio and newspaper reports across the country, and beyond.

And now, having watched his career go down the toilet, he's a "free" man again.

But is he? Really?

He's 43, married, and the father of two young children. He's been stigmatized in the worst possible way. He's lost his career and is now renovating houses for a living.

And, typically, news of the Crown dropping the charges, hasn't been as widely disseminated or displayed as prominently as the original charges against him were.

"[N]ow I have to spend the next — who knows? — six months, 20 years, rebuilding what I once had," he told the Toronto Star.

So what to do? Well, it's understandable when the charges were made that the swim club could not allow him to continue coaching until his guilt or innocence had been determined.

But did he have to be fired on the basis of an accusation which hadn't even been investigated? Did all those swim associations have to immediately revoke his credentials without so much as a how-de-do? A temporary suspension by all means, but instant punishment? I don't think so.

Whatever happened to the concept of innocent until proven guilty?

Even in announcing that charges are withdrawn, Crown spokesman Brendan Crawley refused detailed comment on the case.

Now we don't expect him to name the young girl who complained — although, if her complaint was unfounded, it would be nice to think there may be some consequences — but they could at least offer a little more than weasel words about being "duty-bound to withdraw charges..." blah, blah, blah.

Surely, given what this man suffered, the Crown — and police, who went on a public fishing expedition for "victims" — owe him more than that. So do all those swimming officials.

McNicol may have been cleared, but he certainly hasn't received either justice or the appearance of justice. He's the victim here, and everybody involved seems to be just moving on as if his 19 years of flawless work never even happened.

Shame on them.

Three-game sweep

Bantam Hawks win OMHA title over Newmarket

Written By BRIAN LOCKHART

The Caledon Hawks bantam AE team has clinched the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Bantam AE II title. This came after a final series that saw the Hawks bring out the broom for a three-game sweep of Newmarket. The final game was played March 23 in Newmarket, and ended with 3-1 win for the Hawks and the right to hoist the OMHA cup.

“We have 17 kids on the team,” said Hawks’ coach Tim Sinclair. “We ended up in the middle of the pack in the regular season, but then swept the last series in three games straight.” After ending the regular season, the bantam squad dropped down and entered the playoffs against teams from around Ontario. “We went to a round-robin style play-offs and were up against teams from Owen Sound, Dundas and Woolwich,”

HAWKS WIN THREE-GAME SWEEP - The Caledon Hawks bantam AE team captured the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Bantam AE II division championship with a three-game sweep over Newmarket in the final series. Team members include Gregory Placenza, Jake Bird, Rocco Marinaccio, Matthew Cozzi, Colin Sinclair, Morgan Pace, Nicholas McKibbin, Thomas Stellar, John Paul Lattavo, Christopher Abad, Spencer Beam, Gavin Stone, Christopher Bernardi, Marco Taglieri, Kyle Skinkle, Mark Guaragna and Jonathan Ferguson, with Coaches Tim Sinclair, Don Cardwell, Steve Clune, Tim Beam and Scott McCrimmon, Trainer Joe Pace and Manager Maryann Steller. Sinclair said. Coming out on top, the squad advanced to the next round and found themselves up against Kent/Chatham in the quarter-final. A successful outcome meant they could move on to the semifinals. This time they met up with a team from Oakville and again found themselves on the winning side of the series and earned the right to advance to the finals against Newmarket. “The final was a best-of-five, first six points wins,” Sinclair explained.

The squad held tough for the series and captured the six points (two for each win) and the three games to come out on top. Along with Sinclair on the bench were Coaches Don Cardwell, Steve Clune, Tim Beam and Scott McCrimmon, Trainer Joe Pace and Team Manager Maryann Steller. Sinclair stated that the coaches are very happy with the season’s results and the entire coaching staff congratulates the players for the win. He said it was based on the players’ “dedication and hard work” for the entire season.

Humberview skiers perform well

Congratulations to the Humberview students who competed in Nordic skiing this season, despite some challenges. Several Huskies skied in the open high school provincial invitational Nordic ski races at Highlands Nordic Centre in Dunroon Feb. 25. Nicole de St. Croix and a team of Humberview senior boys — Cam Thompson, Kyle MacIsaac, Devin Hymers, Hayden Gorman, Devin Owens and Joseph Roque — raced in a field of close to 300 high school racers from across the province and performed admirably, with the boys finishing seventh overall. They are to be commended for continuing to train and ski on their own when the school season ended early. Special acknowledgement also goes to Laura Deare, who earned a bronze medal at the Mono Nordic race earlier this month, and to de St. Croix, Thompson and Owens for their awesome completion of the Gatineau 27-kilometre Loppet in Quebec in late February. In addition, Thompson should be recognized for taking on the organizing of the team. He demonstrated exceptional dedication, determination and leadership in pursuing his passion, achieving personal goals and helping others to have positive skiing experiences this year, despite difficult circumstances. Opportunities to enjoy training and skiing were possible thanks to him. All the best to the graduating senior boys who will be missed next year.

Prep school tournament brings out elite players

By Brian Lockhart

If you're a person of around average height, you probably would have found yourself feeling rather short if you attended the Canadian Prep Championship held on the basketball court in the gym at ACTS Fitness over the weekend.

Twelve high-level teams from around Ontario and one squad from Quebec turned out for the tournament representing different prep schools including the regionally focused team from the Athlete Institute Academy on Highway 9.

In total, around 150 basketball players took part in the event.

"We have teams from around Ontario and Quebec," said Jesse Tipping, director of athletics at ACTS.

"We have a lot of local players," he said of the ACTS team. "We play by FIBA International rules."

While it is somewhat of a stereotype to assume all good basketball players must be tall, the reality is most of these guys stood at least a head taller than the average person. But just being tall doesn't mean you have talent. These players have earned the right to be on their respective teams.

Just watching the pre-game workout was a display of some natural athletic ability.

"I've been playing for this team since September," said local high school athlete Marcus Jones, who has given up collegiate level basketball to play for the ACT team. "I was at basketball camp and was scouted out. It's my main sport now that I'm here."

The 18 year old is focused on the game and appreciates the high level of competition the prep schools bring to the sport.

"It's good competition, it's a physical game," he said. "I'm hoping to be on the team to win the national championship."

The ACTS squad's first game was up against a team from Alma, Quebec.

While basketball, at least at the pro level, is a sport known for it's fair share of show-boating, this tournament didn't disappoint those fans who love to see a full-on layout and dunk completed by athletes that are tops in their sport.

The tournament was held over two days — March 23 and 24.

In the final result the Alma, Quebec team left with an 85-81 win over Bill Crothers School from Markham, to claim the championship.

The Athlete Institute Academy lost in the semi-final round to the eventual champions from Quebec.

Things get very tight heading into final games of senior hockey

Rutherford Global Logistics upset Fines Ford Lincoln 3-1 last Monday (April 1), which allowed George's Arena Sports to stay in contention for the Caledon Senior Hockey League playoff title.

If George's were to beat Bolton Chiropractic Centre in the final night of hockey for the CSHL and Fines Ford lost to Baffo's Pizza (results not known at press time), then George's took the crown. A win by Fines, though, meant the car dealers got the title.

In the other games, George's downed Baffo's 5-3 and Jiffy Lube Oilers defeated Bolton Chiropractic Centre 9-6.

Young, Speck shine
Paul Speck and Garth Young led the Rutherford troops over Fines Ford with a goal and an assist each. Bob McHardy had the other goal for the winners while Jack Gibson, Bill Moyer and Gary Faultless each had an assist.

Jim Horan scored the lone goal for Fines Ford.

George's keeps pace
Brett Smith, James Heenan and Bill Davis each recorded a goal and an assist to lead the George's troops. Sasha Fetterly and Peter Coughill had the other goals. Steve Taraso had two assists for the winners with Joe Palumbo notching a single.

Mike Foley and Jeff Boyles each had a goal and an assist for Baffo's, while Jim Moyer had the other goal and Scott Woodcock chipped in an assist.

Bolton Chiropractic, with Ted Callighen getting a goal and an assist. Howard Wight had the other BCC goal. Mike Shore and Bruno Fracassi each had two assists with singles going to Tony Calabro and Murray Hurst.

Fines was in driver's seat
Prior to last week's action, Fines was in the driver's seat.

The car dealers held a 3-0 record in the round-robin after consecutive wins the previous Monday and Tuesday. Fines walloped regular-season champion George's 9-2 Monday and then came back the next night to top Jiffy Lube 5-3.

George's bounced back Tuesday to edge Rutherford Global 7-6 and hold on to second place in the playoff race with a 2-1 record. Baffo's was third at 1-1-1, coming back Tuesday to blank Bolton Chiropractic 4-0 after losing 5-4 Monday to Jiffy Lube. In Monday's other game, Bolton Chiropractic defeated Rutherford 8-5.

Rotundo rolling
Nick Rotundo is the hottest player in the league, as he poured in five goals and two assists in Fines Ford's big win over George's and added two goals and an assist against Jiffy Lube. Jim Rogers was firing hard for Fines as well, notching two goals and an assist against George's and repeating the feat the next night against Jiffy Lube.

Also scoring for Fines Ford against George's were Horan, who also had an assist, and Pich Petrie. Clark Judge ran up four assists, as did Frank Cirone.

Randy Freitag and Steve Tarasco scored for George's, with Heenan, Palumbo, Davis and Luch Pinarello getting one assist each.

Horan also had a goal and an assist in Fines Ford's win over Jiffy Lube, with single assists going to Mike Gallop, Mike Oliver, Judge and Bernie Tisdale.

Gary Hoxey, LaBine and Sampson scored for Jiffy Lube.

George's 7, Rutherford 6
Palumbo scored three goals for George's, while Heenan and Ralph Ricardi both scored twice with Ricardi getting an assist. Tarasco and Freitag each had two assists with singles going to Sasha Fetterly, Bob Hounsone and Pinarello.

Gibson had two goals and three assists for Rutherford with Speck getting two goals and two assists. Faultless had a goal and two assists while Al Stewart added a goal. Bill Moyer chipped in with two assists and Young had one.

Baffo's 4, BCC 0
CSHL president DiFrancesco earned the shutout for Baffo's while Foley handled the scoring with three goals. Woodcock had the other goal. Single assists went to Dave Armstrong, Kevin Brown, Boyles, Steve Sanderson and Don Dupuis.

Jiffy Lube 5, Baffo's 4
Baffo's was caught with too many men on the ice in the last two minutes of the game, which meant a penalty shot was awarded rather than a minor penalty. That produced the winning goal by LaBine, his third of the night. Sampson scored twice for Jiffy.

Foley had two goals for Baffo's with Jim Moyer and Robert Masutti adding singles. Frank McKay, Dupuis, Boyles and Brown all had one assist.

BCC 8, Rutherford 5
Taccogna led the way for Bolton Chiropractic with three goals and an assist. Calabro had two goals, with singles going to Mike Gasparini, Fracassi, who also had an assist, and David Shoalts. Hurst contributed two assists with singles going to Agar, Wight and Dan Tasson.

Gibson notched a goal and three assists for Rutherford with Young scoring twice. Speck had a goal and an assist while Dave Brasier also scored. Bob Smith, Bill Moyer and Romas Krilavicius each had an assist.

Garden Foods play cops to benefit CCS

Caledon Community Services (CCS) was the beneficiary Sunday night of a charity hockey game featuring a team from Garden Foods in Bolton taking on a squad from Caledon OPP. The evening ended with the presentation of a cheque for $10,000 to CCS.

Deadline extended to comment on homelessness

Peel Region has extended its deadline for community input into its 10-Year Housing and Homelessness Plan to tomorrow (Friday).

The community is playing an important role in deciding how the Region will plan and manage housing and homelessness services in Peel. To date, the Region has hosted two well-attended open houses, and a number of community partners are hosting their own input sessions. An online survey has also generated hundreds of responses as residents, businesses and community agencies take advantage of the opportunity to ask questions, raise concerns and offer possible solutions.

“Due to the community’s enormous response, we are pleased to extend the deadline to allow more time for input to the Plan,” said Regional Commissioner of Human Services Janet Menard.

“Community input is key to ensuring that we create a plan that meets Peel’s unique needs and achieves success.”

The Housing and Homelessness Plan will consolidate efforts underway in past plans and build on the new information received from this latest effort to engage the community.

The Region is committed to sharing a draft plan with the community this summer for further input and validation.

To learn more about Peel’s Housing and Homelessness Plan or to provide input, visit peelregion.ca/housing-homelessness

Creative Writing Workshop Series back by popular demand

Have you ever felt like you wanted to write, but just didn’t know how to get started?

Have you started stories or poems that are highly creative, but you just don’t know how to finish them? Have you ever wanted to take stories from your life or your family’s and turn them into entertaining light-hearted tales?

Words are all around us. We just have to learn how to make them work for us. Learn how to craft your words into authentic creative pieces with a beginning, middle and end. Learn how to harness the spark that burns within you and make it dance to your own special song. We all have the ability to imagine and dream.

Put those dreams on paper with Dr. Win Mellor-Hay, writing and literature scholar. The Creative Writing Workshop, designed for adults, is a four-part weekly series starting tonight (Thursday) and running until May 2. All workshops run from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., and will take place at the Albion-Bolton branch of Caledon Public Library.

The cost is $99 per registrant. For more information, got to caledon.library.on.ca or call a local library branch.
