SOUTHFIELDS SCHOOL IS OFFICIALLY OPENED

It's been operating since September, but Southfields Village Public School had its official opening last Thursday night. The point was made repeatedly that it takes a village to raise a child, so many in the village were on hand for the celebration. Taking part in the official ribbon cutting were Principal Matt McCutcheon, Peel District School Board Associate Director of Instructional Support Services Carla Kisko, Grade 8 student Tireth Gill, junior kindergarten student Nemiah Stone, Mayor Marolyn Morrison and Trustee Stan Cameron.

Town has conditions if fill goes into Cheltenham pits

By Bill Rea

Assuming Brampton Brick Limited (BBL) gets permission to fill the pits its mining in Cheltenham with dirt, the Town of Caledon has certain conditions it wants to see.

Town council Tuesday approved a list of staff recommendations, adding some modifications of their own in the process.

Brampton Brick has been mining shale material from the site on Mississauga Road, north of King Street, for more than 20 years.

The original plan was to create ponds in the three pits after the company was finished mining the material. It has been announced, however, that the company is interested in importing fill from outside the area to create forested areas and wetlands there.

One of the conditions staff had proposed was for fill to come from either Caledon or Brampton, but councillors agreed to amend that to include all of Peel Region.

This proposal will require the approval of the Niagara Escarpment Commission (NEC). The Town is just a commenting agency. Council heard from delegations representing both sides of the issue Tuesday.

Former councillor Al Frost, a director with the Cheltenham Area Residents' Association (CARA), pointed out that construction activity generates a lot of fill, with more and more of it ending up in rural areas, causing problems for local farmers, as

Dixie Road not closing

The planned closure of Dixie Road in Brampton has been cancelled.

Peel Region made the announcement in a statement issued Friday afternoon.

The closure, which was to run from May 4 to May 19 was for the stretch between Mayfield Road and Countryside Drive, and was to accommodate sanitary and watermain construction. The statement said the Region has cancelled the work to further investigate the detailed design of water and sewer mains.

It added residents will be given advanced notice of any future closures.

well as the municipalities.

The mining operation in Cheltenham consists of three pits, and the current application involves just the first one. It's estimated that it will take about 1.8 million cubic metres of material to fill it. Frost commented that much fill could create a trail one metre wide and one metre high that would stretch from Mississauga Road to Halifax. He added this is just talking about one of three pits.

Frost raised issues with some of the staff recommendations.

They were calling on BBL to retain someone qualified, at their own expense to monitor the quality of the fill going into the pit and to make sure sound environmental policies are being observed. He also pointed out that staff wants monthly fill monitoring.

"This is totally inadequate," Frost declared, pointing out it will to one test for every 5,000 trucks going onto the site, or for every 65,000 cubic metres of fill.

He also wasn't pleased with the idea of limiting things to fill from Brampton and Caledon, also raising an issue with a staff recommendation calling for the pit to be filled "in a timely fashion." He charged that was contradictory, pointing out the movement of fill will depend on such factors as the economy and pace of development in the area.

Staff also called for payment from BBL to compensate the Town for any costs its put to.

Frost wanted it treated as a levy, similar to the one imposed on gravel. Town CAO Doug Barnes told him the Town doesn't have the authority to issue a levy; only recover costs. But Mayor Marolyn Morrison said they could ask the company to make contributions. In that event, Councillor Gord McClure said he would want the money to benefit Ward 2, but Morrison reminded him his ward is part of Caledon too.

"This is not a NIMBY issue for CARA," Frost remarked, adding it impacts on communities across rural southern Ontario.

"This is our opportunity to take a step back and develop a comprehensive, holistic plan to deal with the issues of excess fill from the cradle to the grave," he commented.

Councillor Richard Paterak asked Frost if monitoring one in

CVC fights ‘nature deficit disorder’ with outdoor education programs

Children are spending less time outdoors, a trend many educators are trying to change.

To supplement the countless indoor education opportunities, educators at Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) are bringing their leading-edge environmental science to the outdoor classroom with curriculum-based programs for Grade 1 through 8 students.

“We hear from a lot of teachers looking for fun and interactive outdoor programs for their students,” said CVC Manager of Education Andrew Kett. “We’re opening the door and giving students an opportunity to get outside and learn about their local environment first-hand.”

Richard Louv, in his 2005 book Last Child in the Woods, coined the phrase “nature deficit disorder,” describing how people, especially children, spend less time outdoors. He described how this can lead to behavioural problems in children, noting that children have an instinctive love for nature but their access is increasingly limited due to parental fears over safety, less access to natural areas and the ever present lure of the screen.

“I’m always amazed to see kids completely awestruck when they’re out in nature. It’s a whole new world to them and the experience can be quite transformative,” Kett commented. “We’re excited about what our new outdoor programs will offer students.”

CVC’s programs encourage hands-on learning, linking science and technology, health and physical education, arts and language and social studies. All programs link with the Ontario curriculum. Teachers can connect their outdoor experiences with pre and post in-class lessons designed to extend the experience.

One of CVC’s programs, geared at teaching Grade 7 students about biodiversity and new technology, is called Eco Map Quest. Students learn how to use a GPS device and then take to the trails for a biodiversity scavenger hunt. Another program, Sound-scape Safari, teaches Grade 6 students how local animals use sound to communicate.

All programs take place at Terra Cotta Conservation Area, in the newly renovated Watershed Learning Centre, surrounded by 485 acres of unique natural environment on the Niagara Escarpment.

Educators are encouraged to register now for fall, winter and spring outdoor education programs. CVC is partnering with Switzer-Carty Transportation to offer educators a daily rate of $178 (dependent on location). As an introductory offer, the first 10 educators to register will receive 50 per cent off bussing costs.

To learn more about CVC’s new outdoor education programs, educators can also invite CVC staff to host a free lunch-and-learn at their school. This short, interactive presentation includes a question and answer session and is perfect for the staff room. In appreciation, participating educators receive a free family day pass to Terra Cotta Conservation Area and free teacher resources.

Educators can register by email at education@creditvalleyca.ca or by calling (905) 670-1615, ext. 221. For more detailed information on CVC’s outdoor education programs, visit the website at www.creditvalleyca.ca/education

Zonta Club members putting together birthing kits May 4

Nicholas Fernandes

The Zonta club of Brampton-Caledon will be doing their part for women’s health issues by spending this Saturday (May 4) putting together hundreds of childbirth kits to help mothers in developing countries deliver children safely.

The Toronto and GTA branches of the international women’s advancement organization are expected to be able to put together and package 1,000 kits in four hours, with help from volunteers from local schools and families.

The event will be at the Emil Kolb Centre on Derry Road East in Mississauga, starting at 9 a.m.

The local Zonta clubs have constructed more than 35,000 birthing kits over the last two years, which are distributed free of charge by the Mennonite Central Committee of Canada to countries such as India, Haiti, and various nations in Africa.

The Birthing Kit Foundation in Australia reports that more than 300,000 women die every year from infection, hemorrhaging and other complications brought on by childbirth. Often, it’s a result of the isolation of their communities that prevents them from receiving supplies or assistance.

Despite global efforts that have cut the mortality rates by a third, there is still a high chance of death throughout the world, with one in 52 women likely to succumb to complications in the least developed countries, according to UNICEF statistics. For many of these problems, simple sanitation can make the difference between life and death.

To this end, the Zonta packaged birthing kits come with several items that can help bring about a clean birth, including disposable gloves, a plastic sheet to keep the mother off unclean surfaces, and a clean razor blade to safely cut the umbilical cord. These items, along with gauze and soap, are sealed in a small plastic bag.

The kits are designed to be cheap, easily transported, and simple for local midwives to use. Each kit costs only $3 to put together and package and with the help of the Mennonite Central Committee they can be delivered to the places where they are most needed.

Each birthing kit made can help save a life, and the Zonta Clubs are expected to put out thousands with the help of Caledon and Brampton residents who volunteer their time to help advance women’s health throughout the world.

Bethell fundraising hikes planned for Inglewood and Bolton

For the first time, Bethell Hospice will be holding a fundraising hike in Bolton, as well as another in Inglewood.

This event was a real success in Inglewood last year, raising more than $63,000 in support of residence and community outreach and bereavement support programs run out of the Bethell House facility in Inglewood.

The two hikes will be during National Hospice and Palliative Care Week.

The Inglewood event will be May 5, starting at Inglewood Community Centre, 15825 McLaughlin Rd. The one in Bolton will May 11, be starting at Dick's Dam Park, 250 Glasgow Rd.

Registration for both events begins at 9 a.m., followed by a balloon release ceremony and hike at 10, and a barbecue lunch at 11. Registration is $25, with the registration fee waived with donations of $200 or more.

To celebrate the first-ever hike in Bolton, Volunteer Board Chairperson Kasia Seydegart has pledged to personally match dollar-for-dollar every donation to the hike, up to $5,000.

To register for the hike, or to donate to a hiker, go to www.bethellhospice.org

The Hike for Bethell Hospice is sponsored by BDO Chartered Accountants and Advisors, Orangeville and Caledon East offices.

Little tykes will hike for CPCC

Caledon Parent-Child Centre (CPCC) is gathering families for a morning of fitness, food and fun May 11 for its first ever Little Tyke Hike.

Families will collect pledges and come together at the Caledon Centre for Recreation and Wellness for a refreshing walk. With three walk routes to choose from, the Buggy Crawl, Toddler Stroll and Trike Trek, families can pick the route that fits them best. Families are encouraged to show team spirit and dress up in team outfits for the occasion. Participants can look forward to a reception including a barbecue, provided at a small cost, and prize ceremony after their walk.

Registration and pledge forms are available at CPCC and online. Families can register as a team ahead of time or at the event. A minimum pledge of $5 per person is required.

CPCC is extending thanks to Sensory Garden Child Development Centre, Anytime Fitness and Water Depot, the event sponsors, and the barbecue supporters, the Rotary Club of Palgrave and Maple Lodge Farms.

Proceeds will support the development of a special Preschool Area in the Centre. Last year, the Centre provided quality programs and support services for 5,170 children, parents and caregivers in Caledon and the surrounding areas.

Jones re-introduces the Helping Volunteers Give Back Act

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones recently re-introduced her private member's bill, the Helping Volunteers Give Back Act.

The bill was introduced in the previous parliamentary session, but died on the Order Paper when then Premier Dalton McGuinty prorogued the legislature.

The Helping Volunteers Give Back Act would allow volunteers to use an annual criminal record check when applying to volunteer at multiple agencies.

"Often people who volunteer with one organization are also willing to help out with other causes too," Jones said. "I think we ought to be making it easier for them to do so."

Jones highlighted the Act during her response to the Minister's statement on the province's Volunteer Service Awards.

"The Volunteer Service Awards recognize our volunteers for their hard work, and we as legislators should also be working hard to make it easier for volunteers to do what they love," Jones said.

"Volunteers often form the bedrock of our communities," Jones said. "I am proud to acknowledge their hard work, and do my part to help them give back."

CPCC is a registered charitable organization that provides an important blend of services that strengthen families and assist them in their critical role of raising young children. Services include child development opportunities, early identification of developmental concerns, referrals to specialized services and supports, and parenting education.

For detailed event information, visit www.cp-cc.org or call 905-857-0090.

Town proclaims First Responders Day

In honour of the emergency first responders who keep the community safe, Caledon council Tuesday voted to have yesterday (Wednesday) proclaimed First Responders Day.

The motion, which council passed without comment, noted the Town's support of a private member's bill from Newmarket-Aurora MPP Frank Klees to have the day designated annually.

It also pointed to Caledon reputation as "one of the safest communities in North America due to the combined efforts of our police, paramedics and fire services."

Emergency Preparedness Week runs May 5 to 11

Emergency Preparedness Week is a Canada-wide initiative to increase awareness about individual and family preparedness, and it will be marked in Caledon from May 5 to 11.

Emergencies can strike at any time. In an emergency, response agencies focus their efforts first where the need is greatest. That is why individual emergency preparedness is so important.

While most people recognize the importance of being prepared, the Town reported that surveys have shown less than half take the steps needed to be prepared.

The goal of Emergency Preparedness Week is to bridge this gap between knowing and doing. It provides an opportunity to engage with people, showing them how to prepare and explaining how doing so can reduce the risks and consequences of an emergency. The focus of Ontario's campaign this year is ensuring seniors and older adults are getting the message on being prepared.

An emergency like a blackout, a flood or a severe storm, can happen anytime, anywhere.

The Town is stressing that knowing the risks specific to the community can help people to better prepare. It's also important to practise a plan where the family would reunite if an emergency strikes. The Town also recommends preparing a home and vehicle kit to help people cope on their own for a period of time.

Visit www.getprepared.ca for more information.

Caledon Fire and Emergency Services invites the community to join them to learn more about emergency preparedness. Resources are also available at local libraries and the Town of Caledon.

There will be an open house this Saturday (May 4) at Mono Mills Fire Hall from 9 a.m. until noon. As well, there will be displays set up at Bramalea City Centre Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., and at the Walmart store in Bolton next Thursday and Friday (May 9 and 10) from 5 until 9 p.m.

Stay off train tracks

Caledon OPP are warning people not to trespass on Canadian Pacific (CP) property. In the interest of public safety, the local police are working with CP to eliminate trespassers on CP equipment.

One of the main problem areas is the rail line around Regional Road 50 in Bolton. Police report more than 33 trespassing changes have been laid this month. They warn anyone ignoring the safety rules and crossing CP property, rail lines and bridges, will be charged.

Police are also encouraging parents to speak to their children about rail safety and the potentially fatal risks involved.

POLICE ADVISORY

Watch where flood-relief money going

Ontario Provincial Police are advising people to be careful when it comes to giving money to charities helping victims of the recent flooding in central Ontario.

A number of communities have declared states of emergency as a result of the high water levels, and police report there are some individuals who may be attempting to fraudulently benefit from this.

OPP urge anyone wishing to support fundraising initiatives that may be underway or planned for the future make sure that they visit the websites of those communities that have been directly affected. These websites will assist with identifying how and where donations can be officially directed so that they make it to their intended destination and not into the wrong hands.

Fire crews responded to the call at about 2 p.m. Seven fire apparatus from Alton, Caledon village and Mono Mills were initially dispatched.

Upon arrival, crews found heavy smoke and flames coming a 50-square-metre, single-storey building. They established a water supply and commenced a defensive fire attack due to the advanced fire and smoke conditions. The blaze was brought under control at approximately 2:34 p.m.

Damage is estimated at $500,000, and the cause is still under investigation.

Belfountain residents will have input on Regional roads study

By Bill Rea

Peel Region is working on an environmental assessment study of some of the roads in and around Belfountain, and the local residents plan to be involved.

About 20 people were on hand last Wednesday for the annual general meeting of the Belfountain Community Organization (BCO), at which there was an update on what's in the works.

BCO member Steve Goyeche told the meeting the study area consists of Winston Churchill Boulevard, Olde Base Line Road, Mississauga Road and Bush Street in Belfountain. He added the key issues revolve around safety and maintenance matters, involving pedestrians, cyclists and motorists.

He added a public session is planned for May 9 at Belfountain Public School, and he expects there will be a good turn out for that.

"It should be an interesting evening," he remarked.

The session will start with an open house at 6:30 p.m., followed by presentation and discussion from 7 to 9 p.m.

"We're not trying to solve anything tonight," he remarked.

He added there's not much in the way of time pressure on this project. Goyeche said there are at least two years before any construction takes place, meaning there's plenty of opportunity for input.

He also said the environmental assessment is reaching out to a number of interests, including the Belfountain community, although there some involvement from Erin.

Goyeche also said Shaws Creek Road is not included in the study, although it's surrounded by roads that are. He said the study was originally going to cover just Bush Street and Mississauga Road, but it was expanded.

He commented that the traffic patterns coming from Erin have been changing. Mississauga Road used to get about two-thirds of it, but now the split is more even with Winston Churchill.

Councillor Doug Beffort, who was at the meeting, also observed Shaws Creek is a Town road, not Regional.

An advertisement from the Region, which appeared in last week's Citizen, stated the EA is not going to be looking at road widening or increasing the number lanes. It will be looking for solutions that meet the needs of all road users, while maintaining the rural character of the community.

Goyeche commented that the Region is aware of possible development in Belfountain, but the feeling is it won't generate a big addition in traffic.

The whole point, he said, is the roads are not in the greatest shape, or up to Peel's standards, and the aim of the project is to improved that. He also said it doesn't look like the community is being railroaded into anything. Despite that, he said the local residents should make sure they have some input.

Possible solutions could include reconstruction, and Goyeche observed if that were to be done well, the work should last for a long time. There is also the possibility of traffic circles (or roundabouts) that could make traffic movements more effi-

Proposal called 'excellent planning'

five loads would work for him. He said it would, but added it might be too onerous on BBL. Paterak countered the Ministry of Natural Resources applies such standards in places where topsoil is being imported, and it doesn't cause many problems.

Frost also told Councillor Nick deBoer one of the frustrations they have is with independent truckers who do things like speeding through school zones or break other traffic rules. He wanted some sort of monitoring system on them.

"There are so many things that I think could happen to make this a better proposal for everybody," he commented, adding BBL is part of the community too. "It's important that this works for them."

Dave Rutherford, president of the Terra Cotta Community Centre, was more supportive of the proposal.

"We see this as an exercise in excellent planning," he remarked, adding it's better than filling the pit with water. "When you cient, along with improvements to sight lines and adjustments to speed limits. He did say the community has expressed the desire to keep the rolling hills of the area.

Councillor Richard Paterak observed much of the study area is governed by the Niagara Escarpment Plan, meaning the Niagara Escarpment Commission (NEC), on which he sits, will have to approve what goes forward. He also said NEC has stated the scenic qualities of the area can't be violated.

Acting BCO president David Jobe said the residents have to eventually decide what they want the roads in the hamlet to look like.

Paterak added this is a legislated process. Major work requires an environmental assessment, meaning there is input from the residents. But it's not like an election, and the residents might not get what they want.

look at it from a common sense stand point, does it make a lot of sense?"

Rutherford pointed out stagnant water can be a breeding ground for mosquitoes, which he said could lead to cases of West Nile Virus.

He also said this would be a good place to put fill. "We thought this was good environmental planning," he said, adding Peel Regional Chair Emil Kolb has supported the idea in a letter.

Lawyer Ron Webb, representing BBL, pointed to the need to find places to put fill, pointing out there's lots of it being generated, especially in Brampton and Caledon.

BBL is a good corporate citizen, he argued, pointing out the company provides jobs and pays taxes locally, as well as supports community projects.

Webb also cited Credit Valley Conservation as stating this proposal is more in keeping with local landscaping, as opposed to spending 30 to 40 years filling the pit with water. He also cited Town staff as reporting more than a year ago that this idea was better than the current plan.

The development permit from NEC could contain conditions that satisfies the Town, Webb said, adding the negotiations could start once it's approved to make sure the Town benefits.

McClure was concerned about local farmers who get turned down by NEC when they want to import some fill.

"We don't want you to go hogging it all," he said.

"There's more than enough to go around," Webb replied.

Councillors agreed that BBL should pick up the costs of someone to monitor the fill, but they also went along with the Mayor's idea that the Town, and not the company, should retain that person.

Councillor Allan Thompson pointed out that since the fill is to come from Peel, the Region would have some responsibility for its quality.

Councillor Doug Beffort commented that NEC would turn the application down because it's not permitted in the Niagara Escarpment Plan. Paterak, who sits on NEC, said commercial fill is not permitted, but added it's possible to apply for an amendment to the Plan.

Beffort said he wanted the staff report to go to the Town's manager of regulatory services as part of a review of the fill bylaw. As well, he wanted to make sure that if this is approved, BBL will be obliged to follow the provisions of the bylaw, even if they're changed.

Councillor Richard Whitehead was the only one to vote against the recommendations, stating he wasn't pleased with the thought of Caledon hosting waste material from the rest of the Greater Toronto Area (GTA). He added this could set a dangerous precedent since about 70 per cent of his ward is taken up by either the Escarpment or Oak Ridges Moraine. With all the rolling hills and valleys, he said there could be any number of applications to have more fill brought in.

Teddy Bear Clinic Saturday

Doctors and nurses at Headwaters Health Care Centre (Headwaters) in Orangeville will be on hand to examine, diagnose and care for the community’s teddy bears at the Teddy Bear Clinic.

The Headwaters Health Care Auxiliary will be hosting the annual event May 4, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Headwaters.

“Inviting children to visit our hospital in a fun and informative atmosphere helps alleviate any potential fears if they are ever faced with coming to the hospital for treatment or to visit someone special,” said Headwaters Health Care Auxiliary President Jim Aijala.

The Teddy Bear Clinic leads kids and their cuddly friends through a typical day at the hospital. They are registered with a health card, special identification wrist bands are applied with the animal’s name, and then they sit in a waiting room before being called into an examination room where they see the doctor.

The Teddy Bear Clinic includes other fun activities, a barbeque and a raffle. Local emergency services staff will be on hand to educate kids and families on various procedures to keep them healthy and safe. Free parking is provided by the hospital during the event. Admission is $2.

For more information, call the Headwaters Health Care Auxiliary at 519-941-2410, ext. 2268 or email hhcauxiliary@headwatershealth.ca

Concert Band to perform Mother’s Day

The Caledon Concert Band invites music lovers from all walks of life to celebrate Mother’s Day with them at their Sounds of Spring Concert May 12.

It will be at Caledon Community Complex on Old Church Road in Caledon East starting at 2 p.m.

The musical program will feature songs from Broadway musicals, including Cats, Evita, Jesus Christ Superstar, Jersey Boys and Les Miserables.

Also featured are a number of musical guests performing instrumental and vocal solos and duets to complement the band’s selections. A medley of Scottish marches and a whimsical, Dixieland-inspired take on When the Saints go Marching In will round out the afternoon’s music.

This community band is composed of volunteer musicians ranging from high school students to retirees. The members come from many backgrounds, but share one important common desire: they love to perform music.

Concert bands bring together musicians playing many different instruments — flutes, clarinets, oboes, saxophones, french horns, trumpets, baritone, tubas and percussion — and play many different styles.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $8 for students and seniors. Children under 12 are admitted free to this family-friendly concert. Tickets are available in advance or at the door, and more information is available on the band’s website at www.caledonconcertband.ca or by calling Andy at 416-276-7852.

The Caledon Concert Band Association is a registered charity and has been providing music education in Caledon since 1974.

Musicians of all ages and skill levels who play a concert band instrument are welcome to come out and rehearse with the band.

Rehearsals are held most Wednesday evenings at the Complex in Caledon East.

Social Media for Beginners at Library

Caledon Public Library will be presenting another series of social media workshops.

This four-part series will cover the basics. Beginners and first-timers need only sign up.

Created and presented by Shelly Sargent of Caledon Media, this series of 90-minute hands-on classes will outline the skills involved to “get around” the social media scene.

There really is nothing to be afraid of. Social media is just a technical way of “chatting,” keeping up with friends, family and neighbours and sharing pictures. Social media simply is word-of-mouth powered by technology. The purpose of these classes is to take the fear out of Facebook, Twitter, Blogging and Instagram/Overgram.

Sargent will show how to do it all.

will be offered on four consecutive Thursdays: May 9 to May 30 at the Albion-Bolton Branch. The fee is $25 for each workshop payable to Caledon Public Library. Advance registration required in person at any branch of Caledon Public Library. Be sure to sign up for one, two or all four.

We haven’t got the final numbers yet, but when we do, we’ll let you know. All the money raised from the Celebrate! gala will go toward the Commitment to Care campaign – as we continue toward our goal of $14 million. Once again, thank you. We couldn’t do it without you, our amazing community. Be prepared for emergencies

Next week is Emergency Preparedness Week in Caledon, Peel Region and all over Canada. As is being stressed, this is a good time for people like you to make sure you and your family are prepared for when things go wrong. And they can go wrong, you know — often with little or no warning.

This coming August marks the 10th anniversary of the massive power black out that impacted many areas of North America. How much warning did we get of that?

More recently, severe flooding in parts of Ontario has created more than its fair share of problems. And there is always the looming possibility of terrorist attacks, and we in Canada learned in the last week that we're not exempt from that.

The Town is stressing the importance of individual preparedness. While surveys indicate most people understand the importance of being prepared, less than half actually have plans in place. Thus the goal of Emergency Preparedness Week is to educate and inform people of what they should be doing.

We all know what to do when things are going fine. The real test of how we handle things is when times get rough.

There are events being planned, with information and tips on how to be prepared.

There will be an open house this Saturday (May 4) at Mono Mills Fire Hall from 9 a.m. until noon. As well, there will be displays set up at Bramalea City Centre Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., and at the Walmart store in Bolton next Thursday and Friday (May 9 and 10) from 5 until 9 p.m.

There is very little to be lost by checking these events out. There also might be a lot to be gained.

Our Readers Write
Back the victims of sexual violence

An open letter to our community:

In response to recent cases of sexual violence, and the use of social media to blame and shame victim-survivors, Family Transition Place reaches out to those affected by sexual violence in the Dufferin and Caledon areas.

The stories of young women who ended their lives — Rehtaeh Parsons, Audrey Pott, Amanda Todd — are too common. Rehtaeh, Audrey and Amanda's stories are not just about bullying or the malicious use of social media: more, these young women's stories speak of the impacts of sexual violence. These young women felt ashamed. The shame should not be theirs, but that of their aggressors — both those who perpetrated sexual violence against them, and those who participated in the distribution of images.

We reach out to survivors of sexual violence, their support people, and to anyone who may find themselves as a bystander in situations of sexual violence. For example:

- It may be a friend who tells you that something happened to her.
- It might be a party you attend, where a guest is so intoxicated that she cannot say yes or no.
- It may be a picture or video that you're sent or one that is posted online.

If something has happened to you, there are people who will support you. You can talk to a trusted friend, family member or contact a sexual assault centre support line. There is support available through Family Transition Place. You can call our 24-hour Crisis Line at 519-941-8357 or 1-800-265-9178. All calls are free and confidential.

If you see something happen to someone else, there are things you can do. You can speak up, or step in. You can ask for help from others, and then step in together. You can be an ally to the person who is victimized, instead of the aggressors. Last, you can choose not to pass along questionable photos that are forwarded to you.

If you are an adult, there are things you can do too. You can talk to young people in your life about the courage it takes to intervene. You can remind them about supportive people — for example, teachers, school community officers, youth centre staff, guidance counsellors — that can help if they ever need to talk about something troubling or serious. Last, you can model to young people what it means to not tolerate sexual violence:

- Speak out against jokes about rape, sexual violence and "slut-shaming."
- Resist laughing at jokes about sexual violence
- Ask youth in your life what they think about stories of sexual violence in the news.

Spring takes getting used to

It seems to be a common joke this year that spring is taking its own sweet time arriving.

My wife and I received a bit of a lesson on that last weekend. We were up in Muskoka for a couple of days. No only was there still snow on the ground and ice on the lake (the ice actually melted while we were up there), the snow continued to fall.

So I can understand why many people seem to be asking when all this winter is going to end. I think it's pretty clear now that the change of season is at last here, just in time for the NHL playoffs. That means we have to change some of our habits.

Beth and I still have our winter coats out, and they will have to be soon put away. Actually, I think the cloak I spent most of this winter using to keep myself warm has just about had it. It's an old one that I sort of abandoned several years ago. I kept it in the event of an emergency, and that came up at the end of last winter. The coat I had been wearing sustained a bad tear, and went someplace where I was sure to never see it again. I dug out its predecessor when things started to get chilly in the fall, resolving that I would just wear it until I got around to getting myself a new coat. I have yet to get around to it, but I had better. The thing I have been wearing is falling apart on me.

So in terms of my wardrobe, spring could not come at a better time, although I do have some clothes shopping to do (what on earth else is new?)

But the coming of the nicer and warmer weather involves a lot more than just my clothes closet. The nice thing about winter is unless there's snow to shovel, there's not a lot in the way of outside chores that need doing. Such is not going to be the case in the months to come.

I know I'm going to have to cook a certain amount of dinners, staring pretty soon, as Beth presses me into barbecuing service. Not a big chore — I'm actually rather good at it, if I do say so myself.

I'm also going to have to break out the lawn mower and get it ready for another year of work. I have a bad habit of not cutting the grass as often as I should. The problem is with this job I have. Unlike most of you lucky people who have your weekends free and can make definite plans to cut your grass every Saturday (weather permitting), I never know what kind of work demands are going to be imposed on me. That means the lawn can wait two or sometimes three weeks (if not more) to get cut. And that's just the front lawn. That normally gets priority because that's what people passing our house see. The back lawn often waits until I feel motivated enough to take it on — It can be a jungle back there.

And then we have to worry about the garden.

I do not have a green thumb. I never have and I never will, and that's despite my father's best efforts to make me a gardener as a kid. Beth is only a little better in that regard, despite the fact she grew up on a farm. But we have tried in the past, although the efforts have been somewhat wanting the last couple of years. But we have talked about trying to get back into the groove this year. I'm hopeful that we'll go a bit beyond the talking stage.

Some years ago, we bought a lilac bush for our back yard. The folks who sold it to us offered the warning that it would need about five years in the ground before it came into its prime. We were mindful of that, and the first couple of years gave us lots of reason for hope. Last year was the fifth one, and the balmy March, followed by the frigid April, did to our lilacs what it did to the apple crop in this area; a lot of no good. But as this spring season comes along, I think we're both hopeful. Much of my interest in this bush is governed by nostalgia.

There were two glorious lilac bushes in our back yard when I was a kid, so I guess I'm hoping for more of the same.

As for the rest of it, for several years, Beth and I bought a whole bunch of annuals. During years when the strategy worked, we had a lot of colour. Since I admit I'm not much of a gardener, I'm reluctant to commit myself to perennials. Give me time, because I have a lot of growing-old years ahead in which to make a mess of things.

I referred above to the years in which our annual-planting strategy worked, because we've had a couple of crummy years too. The worst one was really a case of it being our own fault. That year, I guess we were a bit too anxious to get things going, so we got our plants into the ground early, and they never quite recovered from the mid-May frost. It turned out to be a summer of frustration and disappointment, from a landscaping point of view. On the other hand, I think we did learn a good lesson that year. Since then, nothing goes into the ground prior to Victoria Day.

But I think we're resolved this year to put something in, and get rid of as much grass as possible in the process. It has been some years since we've had any grass to speak of. I use my lawn mower to keep the weeds under control. It gets depressing sometimes. We have spent many a Saturday afternoon on our knees pulling weeds out of our front lawn, knowing in our guts that it was all amounting to a drop in the proverbial ocean. And our contemporary society has a problem with using chemicals on those weeds. More frustration!

I am planning — pending Beth's approval, of course — (I know my place) to create more flowerbeds this year, banking on the hope that weeds are easier to control in the midst of pansies (or whatever else we park there) than in grass. That means there will be less grass to cut, which means fewer weeds to cut (in my moments of reality).

Actually, there's a certain irony to all of this. Most of this piece was composed Saturday, as Beth was channel-hopping between the Jays losing to the Yankees and the Leafs losing to the Habs. But there was a rabbit sitting in our back yard most of the time.

If I have any luck, that bunny was munching away on the weeds. If that keeps up, we might save a pile of money on flowers we don't have to plant.

But I'm not that lucky.

Combatting graffiti

Also, at council this week, we passed the recommendations of our Graffiti Advisory Committee. Their report laid down the framework for a graffiti eradication plan for our community; a plan that is based on three important principles. The most important of these is prevention;

Aggregate Recycling Promotion Act is about sustainability and conservation

Every April 22 we celebrate Earth Day by planting trees, pitching in to clean up our communities and raising awareness about the importance of sustainability and conservation.

This year I thought Earth Day was the perfect opportunity to introduce my new private member's bill, Bill 56, the Aggregate Recycling Promotion Act, 2013. The idea behind Bill 56 is that recycled aggregate should be fairly considered for use in construction projects. If passed, this bill would bring equality to the public sector bidding process, because it would ensure that recycled aggregate can be used in construction projects that are paid for with public funds.

Currently, some publicly funded organizations specify in their tenders for construction work that only primary the anticipation, recognition and appraisal of an offense risk; and the initiation of action to reduce the likelihood that graffiti will occur. Interestingly, the committee pointed out how parents can determine whether their child is involved in graffiti. Tags (the symbolic words or initials we see sprayed on property) are often found repeated on items like binders, backpacks or other personal belongings.

The committee will be creating an educational and informational communications plan that will define and describe the social, economic and community costs of graffiti and why, but more importantly how we can reduce the incidence of graffiti throughout Caledon. Part of the new community initiative will include the development of a Graffiti Hotline, a 1-800 number that will assist in reporting and tracking incidents of graffiti. This is a great effort on behalf of a volunteer community committee whose members have the health and safety of our Town as their top priority.

Town will help with 'Looking for the Arts' in Caledon

Recently at council, we received an excellent presentation from the Caledon Arts Advisory Committee; a plan outlining how we will connect with the artistic sector of our community, our artists, our arts organizations, theatre, dance, visual arts, literary arts, each of the art disciplines in our town.

The Arts Advisory Committee was created because a vibrant Caledon's arts community is integral to the quality of life, economic sustainability and long-term creative foundation of our town. However, in the past, we have not had an up-to-date directory of "who does what" in the Caledon arts community.

One of the first initiatives of the Arts Advisory Committee is to develop an up-to-date inventory of the individuals, groups, organizations, arts/culture associations and disciplines presently operating within the town. This inventory will ultimately become a valuable resource for con-aggregate, otherwise known as virgin, can be used. The problem is that when a Request for Proposal (RFP) stipulates that only bids which use "100 per cent virgin material" will be considered, contractors bidding for the work cannot include any recycled material. In these instances, the aggregate they use must be primary aggregate.

The end result is increased demand for primary aggregate, while the stockpiles of recycled aggregate continue to grow.

According to Aggregate Recycling Ontario, there is nearly three million tonnes of recycled concrete, asphalt and aggregate that, when recycled properly, can be a viable alternative to primary aggregate in construction work.

The Aggregate Resources Act (ARA) review stopped when the Liberal government prorogued the Ontario Legislature last fall. However, during the review of the ARA, many presenters called on the government to increase the use of recycled aggregate. The Ministry of Transportation has been incorporating recycling product in their road construction and re-building for years, but I believe we can do better.

I believe the Aggregate Recycling Promotion Act will allow us the opportunity to not only discuss this important issue, but also act on a clear consensus coming out of the ARA review. Bill 56 is a practical, doable solution that could, and should, be supported by the government. If you support increased aggregate recycling in Ontario, then I would urge you to write the Premier and the Minister of Natural Resources and ask them to support Bill 56. Together, we can promote aggregate recycling in Ontario by getting the Aggregate Recycling Promotion Act passed into law.

If you'd like to read the Aggregate Recycling Promotion Act, please visit my website at www.sylviajonesmpp.ca

CVC hosts pond management workshop

Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) invites rural landowners to a natural pond management workshop.

It will be May 4 from 9 a.m. to noon at Monora Park Pavilion in Orangeville.

"Ponds provide many benefits to people and the environment," said CVC's Director of Restoration and Stewardship Mike Puddister. "They enhance the beauty of your property, and provide vital habitat for a variety of plants and animals."

Workshop attendees will learn the basics of pond ecology, learn how to naturalize their pond for improved water quality and enhanced wildlife habitat, and participate in a guided walk to the Monora Park pond.

New this summer, CVC will be adding aquatic plants to its naturalization services. Specialists will assess people with their ponds, develop planting plans based on their needs and plant the aquatic plants for them during July and August.

The cost of the workshop is $15 per person, which includes a copy of the Natural Pond Management Handbook, refreshments and an opportunity to purchase aquatic plants.

Register by May 1 at www.creditvalleyca.ca/events or by calling 1-800-668-5557 ext. 436. Workshop participants are asked to dress for the weather.

Talk about a double standard!

There is no real need to bore you with countless examples of the media piling on whenever a Conservative politician dares to say something – anything – about such controversial social issues as abortion, euthanasia and capital punishment.

It is standard fare that whenever it happens, the media – along with left-wing activists groups and the other political parties – immediately get on their collective high horse and declare that those dreaded Tories are not only extreme, they're downright dangerous.

Not only that, they have a "hidden agenda" – so hidden, apparently, that even Prime Minister Stephen Harper doesn't know what it is, since he's had several years to impose it – and in order to save the country and save democracy – and perhaps the world as we know it – we should all be aware of those extremists who occupy the Tory benches in Ottawa.

When a couple of Tory MPs, for example, posited the notion that perhaps it's not a good idea for parents to abort their unborn children because they happen to be girls and not boys – a notion supported by an overwhelming number of Canadians in public opinion polls – they are once again attacked as extremist out to impose their "hidden agenda" on the rest of us.

And it's not just them.

The media tends to extrapolate all "extreme" views expressed by any Tory anywhere to represent the entire Tory Party, whether it does or not. (And by the way, polls continue to show that about half of all Canadians, sometimes more, have no problem with a law that would put some restrictions on abortion, say after the first semester. There's no stomach for an abortion ban, but plenty of support for some kind of restrictions.)

It all gets a bit tiring and, given the results of the last few elections – and the likely results of the next one – it's not a notion that most Canadians subscribe to.

But it is fair to point out that when members of other parties say or do something that is truly extreme, the tendency in the media is to give them a free pass.

A great example of this habit arose in news stories last month citing the writings of Quebec NDP MP Alexandre Boulerice, who represents Rosemont-LaPetite Pafrie. The writings, about six years earlier in a left-wing Quebec blog, dumped on Canadians who fought in the First World War, a war he characterized as "a purely capitalist war on the backs of the workers and peasants."

For anybody who knows anything about Boulerice, this should not be a major surprise.

He is, after all, a self-admitted communist, a position which, it seems to me, makes him an extremist by definition. But you wouldn't know that if you, like me, follow the comings and goings of Parliament on a regular basis.

Those Tories who want to do something about abortion – and don't like the idea that Canada is the only democratic country in the world with absolutely no abortion law at all – are routinely dismissed as extremists.

But Boulerice, a former television journalist and (naturally) union official, who adheres to communism and insults hundreds of thousands of brave Canadians who either gave their lives or risked their lives in the fight for freedom, was essentially let off the hook when news of his earlier writings came to pass.

Some will say that since he wrote this in 2007 – where he claimed "the only ones to have refused this butchery, to have rejected the call of the 'sacred union' within each nation, were communist activists" – have claimed that it is unfair now to bring it forward.

No it's not. It's perfectly fair to find something somebody wrote as an adult and then ask if they still subscribe to that view or if there is another explanation. More to the point, whenever a Tory says something the media considers "extreme" they immediately descend upon Harper demanding an explanation or punishment or something. Yet these same guardians of truth and justice simply let NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair ignore the whole thing. Nice.

We are supposed to be satisfied that Mulcair, on the recent anniversary of Vimy Ridge – the battle that all historians agree was when Canada came of age as an independent nation – praising the "tremendous bravery..." our Canadian soldiers.

But one may wonder how sincere his thoughts are if he has in his caucus a man who, apparently with no consequences whatsoever, denigrates brave Canadians and praises radical communists for their refusal to fight a totalitarian movement.

Talk about a double standard. Wow!

Golden Hawks sign new coach

Sandy McCarthy leaves Alliston for Caledon

Written By BRIAN LOCKHART

The Caledon Golden Hawks have signed on a new head coach for the 2013-14 season.

Sandy McCarthy, who has spent the past two seasons with the Alliston Hornets was confirmed as the new head coach of the Junior C hockey club, replacing Garret Rutledge who left at the end of this season.

McCarthy lead the Hornets to two consecutive Georgian Mid-Ontario Hockey League (GMOHL) championships in his two years on the Alliston bench.

“The Caledon Golden Hawks have welcomed Sandy McCarthy to the club,” said Hawks spokesperson Mark Perry. “It was kind of a spur of the moment thing. We had to wait for the season to be over (before asking McCarthy to join).”

Rumors were already circulating in hockey circles for a few days prior to the announcement that some changes were taking place, and that McCarthy was involved.

Why a coach would chose to go from a championship winning team to a club with a 19-21 record last season raises a few questions, but Perry said everything about the move is positive.

“We were in limbo for a while when the season was over,” Perry said of replacing outgoing Rugledge. “We talked to a few other people. This move only would have worked well with Rick’s (Bartlett) blessing. It shows a lot of character. We have a good relationship with the Hornets.”

Bartlett is the current general manager of Hornets.

Perry said bringing on a new coach will help the team with the discipline it needs.

“This year was a disappointment for us,” he said. “We lacked structure and discipline. Here’s a .500 club that needs a challenge. It will be a nice challenge for Sandy. I think he’ll flourish here.”

The Hawks are also bringing in a new assistant coach on the bench.

The challenge, Perry said, is to work with the team and gain their confidence.

“To be a successful coach, you need to win them over and have some people skills,” he said. “At the end of the day, you have to win the team over to your side.”

McCarthy joined the Alliston Hornets in 2011 and immediately became popular among both players and fans.

He is a big guy (six foot three) and was known for his intimidating presence on the ice during his time as a player in the National Hockey League.

On the bench, he has remained a very level-headed coach who doesn’t easily get rattled.

McCarthy played 11 seasons in the NHL, beginning in 1993, playing his first five years with the Calgary Flames. He retired in 2004 after a year with the New York Rangers.

Having a winning coach as well as a former professional player join the club, Perry said, will boost the morale of the team before they even start to practise.

“I’ve been talking to some of the kids and they are very excited about this,” Perry said.

The Golden Hawks have been in the GMOHL for three years, having joined for the start of the 2010-11 season.

Tennis Club starts new season

Written By BRIAN LOCKHART

The wind breaks are in place and the nets are up and ready.

After being idle for the winter, the courts are back in shape to start the spring and summer season at Bolton Tennis Club.

Club volunteers turned out Saturday to get things in shape and do a general clean up for opening day, set for this coming Saturday.

Some members took advantage of the sunny weather and played a few sets to get ready for upcoming house and inter-league play.

“Today, we put up the wind screens and tidied up the garbage left over from the winter,” said club tournament director Colin Williams. “We cleaned up the club house and put up the nets.”

The Club is currently celebrating 30 years of tennis in Bolton.

“We have around 200 members, both adults and kids,” Williams said. “We have house league on Monday and Wednesday and inter-club play.”

The Club hosts or travels to other clubs in the region to go up against players from other areas, including Palgrave, Orangeville and Caledon East.

“One week they come here, then the next week we go to them,” commented Donna Marks, who coordinates house league play. “We have eight other clubs

The all-volunteer club has four courts, and all of them have been resurfaced within the past few years. And there are lights for play during the evening.

"It gets you active and it's very social," Marks said of being a member of the club.

One of the great things about tennis is that it is an all ages sport. For many players, it's a lifetime commitment of getting out to play and staying active.

For new players, it's all about learning technique and developing the skills to play the game well. Players are matched up against opponents with a similar skill set and experience.

Region looks at Active Transportation Plan after one year

Peel Region has engaged a variety of action items in the first year of implementing its Active Transportation Plan.

David Tilson honours Headwaters anniversary

The 100th anniversary of Headwaters Health Care centre was recognized recently by David Tilson.

Dufferin-Caledon's MP rose in the House of Commons to pay tribute to the occasion.

"I'm honoured to be recognizing an important milestone today," he said in the House. "Headwaters Health Care Centre, located in my riding of Dufferin-Caledon, is celebrating its 100th anniversary. During its long history in our community, the hospital has continued to provide high-quality, safe, and exceptional patient-centered care close to home."

"In 1999, it became the first fully digital diagnostics department in North America," he added. "The hospital has many other considerable achievements to celebrate in its centennial year, including the lowest Emergency Department wait times, high patient satisfaction scores, a leader in numerous best practices, and was accredited with Exemplary Standing in 2012."

Collaborating with the Town of Caledon, as well as Brampton and Mississauga, the Region added 19 kilometres of sidewalks, multi-use trails and paved shoulders on arterial roads in 2012. An estimated 22 kilometres of new active transportation facilities will be added in 2013 to further enhance the walking and cycling experience for Peel residents.

"There is a clear link between the walkability of a community and the prevalence of obesity and diabetes," said Dr. David Mowat, Peel's Medical Officer of Health. "Physically, we as individuals are not active in our daily lives because many of our neighbourhoods were designed and built for cars. It is important to design and improve our communities to make it easier to walk or bike to our destinations and give residents a realistic alternative to choosing the car every time."

"We have been collaborating with the area municipalities and receiving constant input from the community to help shape our transportation network for the future," said Director of Transportation Damian Albanese. "We are improving policies with an eye on making communities more pedestrian and cycling friendly, increasing outreach effort to change behavior, and making infrastructure improvements."

Highlights of progress and action since the Active Transportation Plan was adopted in February 2012 include:

- Completion of the 19 additional kilometres of sidewalks and multi-use trails, with 22 more kilometres anticipated for 2013.
- Conducting a Global Positioning System (GPS) Cycling Study with local cyclists from July to September 2012 to identify popular routes, destinations and hazards to help shape network designs, infrastructure development, and policies.
- Holding the Walk and Roll Peel Summit in January with more than 140 attendees to provide opportunities for stakeholders to learn about best practices and explore opportunities in working together to develop an active transportation community.

- Co-hosting a public forum with Mississauga to inform residents of active transportation programs and provide a platform for feedback (forums for Caledon and Brampton are scheduled for mid-2013).
- Adopting Peel Public Health's vision, "Changing Course: Creating Supportive Environments for Healthy Living in Peel" to drive active transportation initiatives.
- Initiating a Peel School Travel Planning (STP) pilot program to engage students in active transportation travel to and from school. The objective is to establish STP in six to eight Peel schools by 2014.

Peel's Active Transportation Plan can be found at www.walkandrollpeel.ca/projects/2010pats.htm

Baseball season starts this week

The local baseball scene will soon be in full swing as the North Dufferin Baseball League season starts Friday.

Orillia and Innisfil lead off the junior division Friday night. Creemore travels to Orillia and Innisfil plays Barrie Sunday. The Bolton Brewers Senior team will play their first game on the road in Creemore Saturday with a 2 p.m. start. Other senior division action will see Clearview heading to Nobleton and New Lowell playing Midland. Sunday play has Ivy at Creemore, Aurora at New Lowell, Mansfield at Barrie, Midland at Lisle, and Bolton Dodgers at Angus.

Recent withdrawal of both Midland Twins and New Lowell Knights from the junior division has reduced the juniors to six teams. The remaining teams will play a 20-game schedule. The senior division will play 26 games, with the regular season running to the end of July. Schedules for the junior and senior divisions are online at www.ndbl.ca
