Opponents to Canadian Tire out in force for meeting

By Bill Rea

The opposition to the massive Canadian Tire proposal in Bolton's industrial area is still there and still vocal.

Town officials heard that Tuesday night as roughly 250 people were on hand for the long-awaited public information meeting on the proposal.

Canadian Tire is interested in placing a large distribution centre and office facility on about 180 acres at the northwest corner of Coleraine Drive and Healey Road in Bolton.

That proposal has sparked a lot of negative reaction from some in the community, and Town councillors and staff, along with representatives from Canadian Tire, heard that clearly. Several people spoke from the floor (some more than once), and none of them were in favour. One man asked for a show-of-hands vote late in the evening, and no one raised a hand in support of the plan.

Many of the complaints had to do with truck traffic using the facility, and the congestion it would cause on local roads, as well as pollution from the diesel emissions.

"Our town is slowly being turned into a truck depot," one man charged.

There were also a lot of complaints that questions were not being answered, especially by councillors.

It was explained several times by Nigel Bellchamber, who was moderating the session, that councillors were there simply to hear the concerns of residents, and not make statements to take positions. Accordingly, apart from opening and closing remarks by Mayor Marolyn Morrison, councillors were silent throughout the meeting.

Morrison did say, during her closing comments, that council is likely going to deal with the application at the June 25 meeting.

Rob Hughes, development manager for the Town, told the meeting the property is part of the South-Albion Bolton Employment Settlement Boundary Expansion Area, and has been for several years.

Kathleen Freeman, real estate manager for Canadian Tire Real Estate Limited, said the proposed facility will be replacing a 40-year-old one in Brampton (at Steeles Avenue and Bramalea Road). She added there was a lengthy site-selection process throughout southern Ontario, and the lands in question were deemed the preferred location. She pointed out it's land both the Town and Peel Region have designated for employment growth. As well, she said it's close to intermodal terminals for both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific, and it has the advantage of keeping jobs in Peel.

Freeman also said there have been adjustments to the proposed site plan to address concerns, such as putting in more berms along Coleraine.

In addition, Freeman pointed out there will be financial benefits to the municipality, in the form of some $4.7 million per year in taxes, $15.7 million in development charges and revenues from building permits.

Mike Lepage, project director and principal with RWDI Consulting Engineers and Scientists, reviewed the findings of his air quality tests, which he presented to Town council earlier this month.

Speaking at a council workshop, Lepage had said the proposed development wouldn't have a major impact on the local air quality.

Lepage concluded the impacts to air quality from vehicles on the property are going to make only a slight difference to what's already in place. As well, he said the impacts from this proposal would be less than what would result from various possible alternatives, including a business park, retail development and 1,200-unit residential subdivision.

Traffic consultant Chris Middlebro cited the most recent report on the matter, dated November 2012, stating it was based on truck activity during heavy seasons, spread throughout the day. He added the findings were based on Canadian Tire having a safety compliance team and being best-in-class in terms of maintenance.

Community mourns death of Deputy Chief Lippers

There was mourning throughout Caledon over the last week after the death of Deputy Chief Tony Lippers, a member of Caledon Fire and Emergency Services.

Deputy Chief Lippers, 54, died last Wednesday (May 22) with family by his side after a courageous battle with cancer.

The Town lowered the flags at all municipal facilities to half-mast in a salute to the Deputy Chief. The flags remained lowered until sunset of the day of his funeral, which was Tuesday.

Fire Chief Terry Irwin had announced that the service for Deputy Chief Lippers, which was held in Caledon East, would be a full fire service Line of Duty Death funeral.

Deputy Chief Lippers had cancer in his esophagus, and it's believed he got it as a result of his firefighting duties. Thus his death was treated as having come in the line of duty.

Deputy Chief died in the line of duty

Capt. Colin Hanna, training officer with Caledon Fire and Emergency Services, said there is presumptive legislation that lists several types of cancer as being related to the job.

He added these conditions come from a combination of synthetic materials and fabrics that came into use years ago, before modern breathing apparatus was available.

Deputy Chief Lippers served a number of community fire services before joining Caledon Fire and Emergency Services in 2006 as Deputy Chief. Prior to joining the Town, he served as Assistant Fire Chief in the Municipality of Chatham-Kent, Chief Fire Prevention Officer for the Orillia Fire Department (City of Orillia) and Senior Fire Inspector for the Ajax Fire Department (City of Ajax). He served early in his career as a volunteer firefighter in the communities of Mariposa and Ajax. He was also an accomplished design engineer.

“Tony was a dedicated Deputy Fire Chief with Caledon Fire and Emergency Services, and a contributor to a number of fire service organizations across Ontario,” Irwin said. “He will be sadly missed by many.”

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Canadian Cancer Society.

Volunteer drivers urgently needed to deliver Meals on Wheels

Caledon Meals on Wheels (CMOW) is in desperate need of volunteer drivers to deliver hot meals to clients in the Caledon and Orangeville areas.

Over the last year, the agency has been facing a volunteer shortage and as summer approaches, those numbers will decline even further.

“We’re finding it harder to recruit new volunteers; especially over the summer months,” observed CMOW Executive Director Christine Sevigny. “And our existing pool of volunteers is limited over the summer, since many take well-deserved vacations and have family commitments which restrict their ability to deliver meals for us. This is the time when we need the most help, because the need for hot meals in the Caledon and Orangeville area doesn’t go on vacation. It’s on the rise.”

Volunteering with CMOW brings great rewards for both the volunteers and clients. The commitment for becoming a volunteer driver is minimal, just one hour over the noon hour, once a week or bi-weekly, Monday to Friday, and mileage is reimbursed. For companies looking to engage their employees in local community projects, teachers and students, shift workers, stay-at-home parents, those recently unemployed or retired, becoming a volunteer driver is something worth considering. And for parents looking for life-enriching experiences to do with their children over the summer, becoming a volunteer driver, with their children, serves as a great learning opportunity.

“Volunteering is something that a lot of people are scared of committing to,” CMOW Volunteer Services Coordinator Kim Pridham commented. “They think they don’t have time in their already busy lives to contribute to another cause. What they don’t realize is that donating just one hour of their time a week will have an immense impact on the lives of others in their community and it will bring so much personal satisfaction to their daily lives.”

If driving is not something you’d like to do, CMOW is also urgently looking for Board of Directors and Friendly Visitors/TeleChat volunteers.

For details on becoming a volunteer driver or for other volunteer opportunities, contact Pridham at 905-584-2992 or via email at kim.pridham@cmow.org

Morrison opposed to regional gas tax idea of Metrolinx

By Bill Rea

It looks like Metrolinx is going to have some trouble selling the investment tools its recommending to finance its transportation plans in the Greater Toronto and Hamilton Area (GTHA).

The agency announced Monday that the funding tools it's proposing includes a one per cent increase in the HST, a regional gasoline tax of five cents per litre, a business parking levy, additional development charges and high occupancy toll lanes.

The Province has to approve the implementation of these tools.

Metrolinx is the agency created by the Province to improve the coordination and integration of all modes of transportation in the Greater Toronto and Hamilton Area (GTHA). The agency has the job of implementing a long-term transportation plan for GTHA, known as The Big Move, and it's charged with the task of coming up with an investment strategy outlining how these plans are to be implemented and financed.

The Big Move is a 25-year plan that's slated to be implemented in two waves, and it's estimated the whole thing is going to cost $50 billion.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones was concerned about the financial burden that the taxes would put on the motoring public, stating it's expected to add $477 per year per car.

"I just think it's an unrealistic burden to put on Ontarians and working individuals," she commented.

She pointed out that financing The Big Move is slated to cost about $2 billion per year, which is less than two per cent of the $116.8 billion the government is planning to collect in taxes in 2013. She couldn't understand why the government wouldn't be able to find that money in its coffers now to deal with gridlock in the GTHA.

"We've just seen too much waste and too much abuse of government money," she said. "It's not okay to tax people more. We have to find a way to do it better."

Mayor Marolyn Morrison pointed out the gas tax is just regional instead of province-wide, and that is something she has been opposing.

"They're going to kill us," she declared. They're going to kill local municipalities."

She pointed out it's very easy for some people in Caledon to travel outside the GTHA to buy their gas and beat the extra tax.

"It's going to be devastating for the business sector in our community," she said.

Morrison added that money is being used to deal with transportation issues in places like Barrie and Waterloo. Caledon is going to get nothing from this tax, but residents are still going to have to pay it.

"I'll be getting in touch with all the countryside mayors," she said. "We'll be having a chat about that."

"Congestion is getting worse every day," commented Metrolinx Board Chair Robert Prichard. "It's having an increasingly negative impact on both our quality of life and our region's economy. The $16 billion of new transit being built today will deliver real results for commuters, but we cannot stand still. We need to continue to invest in The Big Move and get the Greater Toronto and Hamilton Area (GTHA) moving again."

Region wants Metrolinx funding from all over the province

By Bill Rea

Peel Regional council does not support the use of municipal finance tools to fund Metrolinx plans.

Councillors last Thursday voted to accept the recommendations put forth by Regional staff. This came after a rather lengthy debate, during which several speakers mentioned a number of possible adjustments. But everything came to an abrupt end when Mississauga Councillor Pat Mullin asked that the vote be taken. It was.

Metrolinx is the agency created by the Province to improve the coordination and integration of all modes of transportation in the Greater Toronto and Hamilton Area (GTHA). The agency has the job of implementing a long-term transportation plan for GTHA, known as The Big Move, and Regional staff added it's charged with the task of coming up with an investment strategy outlining how these plans are to be implemented and financed.

The Big Move is a 25-year plan that's slated to be implemented in two waves, and it's estimated the whole thing is going to cost $50 billion.

Metrolinx, earlier this year, produced a list of investment tools that could be used to fund this work. The agency's consultants initially came up with 25 ideas, but that was reduced to a short list of 11. Various stakeholders, including municipalities, have been asked to offer their input. Caledon's position, arrived at earlier this month, favoured use of a fuel tax and increase to the Provincial sales tax, but there was also a stipulation that these provisions had to be province-wide, not just GTHA.

Other ideas on the short list included development charges for Metrolinx, a parking space levy, highway tolls for new 400-series highways, high-occupancy tolls, vehicle kilometres travel fees (in which motorists are charged for every kilometre they drive in certain areas), transit fare increases, property taxes and an employer payroll tax.

Regional staff reported they had looked at the use of property taxes to fund this, agreeing it has strong revenue potential and is easy to implement. But they argued that would place a greater burden on Peel residents and businesses. "Public opinion in the GTHA is currently against Metrolinx's proposed revenue tools, with strong disapproval for the use of property taxes," they added.

Staff also wasn't too taken with the idea of using development charges to fund this, pointing out it would add to the cost of housing in the region.

Caledon Councillor Richard Paterak observed the staff recommendations spelled out what the Region didn't want, but not what it wanted. He pointed out Caledon put forth its preferences and he stressed the need for Peel to state its position clearly.

"We have to speak up, or the Province is going to make decisions and we will not have said what our position is," he said.

Caledon Mayor Marolyn Morrison was adamant that the funding methods adopted for the Metrolinx plans have to see the money dedicated to them, and not dumped into the Province's coffers.

She also stressed the Town's position that if sales or gas taxes are used, they have to be province-wide. Otherwise, such taxes will have huge impacts to countryside communities in GTHA, like Caledon. She said people close to municipal boundaries will step outside the GTHA for their gas and other goods.

She also pointed out Metrolinx's plans will involve places like Barrie, Guelph and Waterloo, so they should pay too.

"It would be nice to know all the facts before we took a stand," Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion commented. "Otherwise, we're confusing the public."

McCallion complained that Metrolinx was late coming out with its list, adding the municipalities should have had to chance to study it and present it to the public.

"Let's wait for the (Metrolinx) report, and then let's do our homework," she urged. "Let's get our teeth in it in a big way, and take it to the public."

She also expressed the hope that Metrolinx would make available all its information and research.

Brampton Mayor Susan Fennell said everyone agrees the Province needs to be told that dealing with gridlock has to be a priority. She also stressed the need that tools used in this project have to be dedicated to just that, adding federal transfer payments could be a useful tool.

She also said that everyone supports maintaining the economic viability of the GTA. "It's not our role to ne a veil for a decision made at the Province," she commented.

Home James will be back on the roads in coming weeks

Home James has extended its service this year by covering special events that take place in the community.

The program offers a free and safe ride home for people who may have had too much to drink and don't want to take the risk of driving impaired.

The service will be available this Saturday (June 1) for the Bolton Lions Steak and Lobster Dinner at the Albion-Bolton Community Centre; June 7 for the Palgrave Rotary Wines of the World at the Caledon Equestrian Park in Palgrave; June 15 for Caledon Day in Caledon East; and July 12, 13 and 14 for the Bolton Rotary three-day Ribfest.

Call 905-951-9000, ext. 300 to reserve the service or just visit the Home James table or station at any of the events. Should anyone like to volunteer to help Home James at any of these events or for the fall season, visit the website at www.homejames-caledon.ca and go to volunteer tab for more information.

Unlocked vehicles entered in Strawberry Fields

Several residents in the Strawberry Fields subdivision awoke May 25 to discover that their vehicles had been entered during the night and numerous items had been stolen.

At this time, Caledon OPP is aware of seven incidents that appear to have occurred in the early morning hours and all incidents involved unlocked vehicles.

Some of the items stolen include several GPS units, one pair of sunglasses, prescription medication, laptop and phone chargers, just to name a few. These items are small and can be easily hidden in a jacket or bag by a thief.

Police are reminding residents to contact the OPP Communications Centre immediately at 1-888-310-1122 to report any suspicious activity, especially late at night or early in the morning. If possible, provide police with a description of what was seen, including a physical description, direction of travel, vehicle information and licence number if applicable.

Police believe that prevention is the key in reducing or eliminating the chances of having valuables stolen. People should keep their vehicles locked at all times and remove all valuables from plain sight, especially wallets and purses which contain valuable personal information and documents that are difficult to replace.

Police have safety tips for cyclists and motorists

With the nice weather evidently here to stay for a while, more people are out on their bikes.

Caledon OPP is reminding cyclists and motorists to share the road.

In a 2012 Ministry of Transportation Report, it was estimated that 630,000 Ontarians cycle on a daily basis and approximately 2 million Ontarians ride a bike at least once a week during the spring, summer and fall. With the summer rapidly approaching, the following tips are reminders for both cyclists and motorists.

Safety tips for cyclists

- Follow the law — it's the safest way to ride. Bicyclists have the same rights and duties as drivers and need to follow the same traffic laws.

- Be predictable — ride in a straight line, signal turns and check behind you before turning or changing lanes.
- Come to a complete stop at every stop sign and red light.
- Ride with caution around parked cars and position yourself in the field of vision of a motorist pulling out of a parking space.
- Be conspicuous — ride where drivers can see you, use lights and night and wear bright clothing.
- Be aware — anticipate the next move of drivers, pedestrians and other cyclists. Watch for debris, potholes and grates.
- If you are a beginner or a returning to bicycling, seek out clubs or advocacy organizations in the community for tips on safe riding, instruction and group rides to - improve your knowledge and confidence.

- Ride ready — tires need air, brakes must work, chains should run smoothly and quick release wheel levers must be closed.
 - Carry identification, cell phone, emergency cash and repair/emergency supplies.
 - Wear a helmet.
- Safety tips for motorists
- Respect bicyclists as legal road users with the same rights and responsibilities as motorists. Drive courteously and with tolerance.
 - Obey the posted speed limit, and don't drive too fast for conditions.
 - Come to a complete stop at every stop sign and red light.
 - Check over your shoulder and always

- check your blind spot. A bicyclist could be there.
- Maintain a safe distance between your vehicle and the bicycle in front of you.
 - Use low-beam headlights when driving in low-visibility conditions.
 - Yield to pedestrians and bicyclists in and entering crosswalks.
 - If you plan to turn right or pull into a parking space shortly ahead of a bicycle in front of you, do not pass.
 - Signal all turns and lane changes 30 meters in advance.
 - Pass bicyclists only if it is safe to do so. Exercise patience.
- For more safety tips and information on safe cycling, check out www.sharetheroad.ca and www.walkandrollpeel.ca

153rd Caledon Fair

June 7, 8 & 9th 2013

Caledon Fairgrounds, Caledon Village

Caledon, On - Thrills and spills... action and passion... magic and music are all part of the round-up for this year's 153rd Caledon Fair which celebrates our agricultural heritage.

With over 1000 competitions including dairy and beef cattle, home baking and crafts plus midway rides, a Giant Truck and Tractor Pull Friday evening and Lawn Tractor Challenge Saturday afternoon followed by "country hoe-down" barbeque, an all-breeds horse show, the Agricultural Awareness Pavilion and Heavy Horse Pull on Sunday, there is something for everyone at one of Ontario's oldest agricultural fairs.

Daily magic shows, a petting zoo, pony rides, and the Cedar Glen YMCA "Kids Games" will keep the small-fry happy, while mom bops to renowned Elvis impersonator and 2 time festival champion Glen Aitchesen and dad hits the driver's seat for the Lawn Tractor games after perusing antique tractor and equipment displays. Even the family pet has a role at this year's Fair with Sunday's "Bring Your Own Pet Show". The crowd engaging K9 Agility Dogs and two days of equestrian competition provide plenty of action for sport fans and wanna-bees.

The Caledon Fair is owned and managed by volunteers of the Caledon Agricultural Society (CAS), a registered charity which includes SnowFest (February Family Day) and Canada Strawberry Festival (July 1st). All Proceeds raised during events are dedicated to the refurbishment and maintenance of the Caledon Fairgrounds.

Art show at Caledon Town Hall

Caledon Town Hall has invited the Orangeville Art Group (OAG) to display work in their fourth-floor Gallery during May and June.

OAG has decided to feature the original work of its Caledon members, which will be on display and for sale. If you have never visited the Town Hall Gallery, stop by any time on a weekday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at 6215 Old Church Rd., in Caledon East.

The unusual, naturally-lit gallery forms two gangways, one going up and one going down, that meet at the far wall. Spectators have railings to guide them along, while half-walls in the middle allow them to view art on the other walk-way, unimpeded.

They will see the work of acrylic and oil painters, watercolourists, potters, sculptors, jewelry-makers, collage artists and more.

These artists are seasoned pros and neophytes.

Jazz guitar music Friday at Archtop Cafe

Written By NICK FERNANDES

Jazz guitarist John Pelosi will be bringing his music to the Archtop Cafe in Bolton tomorrow (Friday) between 7 and 9 p.m.

The night will raise funds for the Bethell Hospice. Pelosi has his own reasons for supporting the hospice. His father, he said, passed away under the care of the Inglewood facility, and he is playing in Bolton both in memorium and in thanks to Bethell for making the last part of his father's life comfortable.

The performance will be at Archtop on Queen Street North, with it's seamless incorporating of the 3G Studios guitar shop. Pelosi has worked with the owners of Archtop and 3G before, as part of Caledon's local music scene. He is a regular instructor at 3G and the Guitar Arts music school at Humbershed Crescent, teaching residents to become musicians themselves. His career takes him all over Ontario, playing at venues in Toronto and teaching in schools in the rest of the GTA.

A guitarist since his teenage years, Pelosi said he has taken inspiration the "past 40 years of jazz history."

He is drawn to the genre because it is what he describes as a progressive musical language that is a better route to go in terms of interaction with other musicians.

SOUNDS OF SPRING FILL THE COMPLEX - The sounds of the spring season filled the auditorium of the Caledon Community Complex Mother's Day as the Caledon Concert Band, under the direction of Rob Kinnear presented an afternoon of music geared to this time of year. The program included selections from the Jersey Boys, Les Miserables, Andrew Lloyd Webber and Irving Berlin. Photo by Bill Rea

Story of illegal immigrants at Lifetree

How to respond to illegal immigration will be discussed at the next session of Lifetree Café this coming Wednesday (June 5).

The program, entitled Kids Without a Country: An Illegal Immigrant's Story, features the filmed story of Reyna Grande, who crossed the border with her family illegally when she was nine years old.

The Lifetree program explores the challenges facing immigration reform, including issues surrounding children of illegal immigrants.

Grande, now a teacher and author, describes the border crossing and her subsequent life as an undocumented alien. She's the author of The Distance Between Us.

The program runs from 7 to 8 p.m. Admission is free. Snacks and beverages will be available. Lifetree Café is at 6025 Old Church Rd. in Caledon East, in the café space in St James' Church.

Lifetree Café is a place where people gather for conversation about life and faith in a casual coffeehouse-type setting. Questions about Lifetree may be directed to Bruce Neville at 416-579-9977 or Desiree Neville at 416-579-6748.

Orangeville Blues and Jazz Festival goes this weekend

It's almost that time of year again.

Now entering its 11th consecutive year, the Orangeville Blues and Jazz Festival has established a well-earned reputation as "the place to be in the first weekend in June," and has been recognized as one of Ontario's Top 100 Festivals by Festivals and Events Ontario for the third consecutive year.

The Festival opens tonight (Thursday) and runs until Sunday.

Over the years, the award-winning Festival has grown from its very humble beginnings to one of the most successful and highly-anticipated events in The Hills of Headwaters region — now attracting well in excess of 30,000 people from across southern Ontario and beyond.

This spectacular Festival would not be possible without the generosity of the many sponsors or the tireless efforts and countless hours logged by its army of volunteers. And this year's Festival is shaping-up to be one of the best yet.

An added bonus is that Friday and Saturday there will also be shuttle bus service connecting Orangeville's major parking areas to the Festival's location.

For more information, including the event schedule, list of performers, venues, and overnight accommodations options throughout the Hills of Headwaters Region, visit the Festival website at www.objf.org

Organizers are also urging people to bring refillable water bottles to stay hydrated.

Most of the Festival's events are outdoors and the weather can get quite hot.

Foes of Canadian Tire proposal still not satisfied with what they've heard

He said the conclusions included that this facility will generate “quite modest traffic volumes.”

Middlebro pointed out the 180-acre site will have a low employee density, and shifts will be starting and ending outside of conventional commuter times. He also said that Coleraine is currently operating at about 40 per cent capacity, adding it will only increase to about 55 per cent if this goes through. As well, he pointed to the investments the Town has made to improve Coleraine, as well as the Bolton Arterial Road (BAR), stating the site of the proposal is a good one for taking advantage of these improvements.

Petr Chocensky, of HGC Engineering, outlined findings of noise studies, determining that the worst cases of noise from the property will have impacts on the residential areas to the north well within Ministry of the Environment (MOE) standards.

Local resident Joe Grogan, who has been very vocal in his opposition to this proposal, maintained his position, warning this development will have detrimental impacts on thousands of families.

He also cited a June 2012 report from the World Health Organization (WHO) that stated diesel emissions cause cancer.

He also charged the company has changed the numbers of trucks that can be expected from about 800 per day early in the application process to about 350 now.

“That’s a very significant change,” he said.

Grogan also asked councillors if they were representing the residents, or someone else.

Lepage said he was aware of the WHO report, adding it referred to the high levels of exposures encountered by workers in underground mines. He added those studies were based on 1988 data. Diesel emissions are a lot different today, he said.

Dr. David Mowat, Peel Region’s medical officer of health, agreed the WHO findings were based on high concentrations of diesel fumes, not the levels that Peel residents are exposed to every day.

“Yesterday, today and tomorrow, my health and safety is not for sale and never will be,” declared local resident Terry Groves, who added bringing this development in “will be a complete disaster for the town.”

“We want a referendum in this town on this issue,” he demanded.

He also accused Canadian Tire of presenting “smoke and mirrors,” lashing out that the company provided no hand-outs at the meeting (the Town did hand out a package to people at the meeting, which included the slides Hughes used in his presentation).

“It’s a shame,” he declared. “Shame on council and staff for not making sure they had a hand-out for us.”

He also commented on plans for a noise wall, wondering about the people who would see that from their back yards. “They’re going to feel like they’re in Kingston Penitentiary,” he commented.

Bolton resident John Paton tried to focus on the number of trucks using the facility, seeking a figure on the maximum number that it could handle in a day. Middlebro said the maximum design capacity was based on what would be the 10th busiest day of the year, and he mentioned 740, adding the maximum would be modestly above that.

Paton was also concerned about noise levels.

“Does council want to pay for upglazing my house?” he asked.

Former councillor Annette Groves wondered about the number of trucks per day if the operation expands. She also said the noise from the facility will wake people up.

“There is going to be a huge impact,”

she declared.

She also addressed taxes, pointing out Caledon will only get about 35 per cent of the $4.7 million Freeman mentioned (the rest would go to Peel Region and the local school boards). She argued the money coming into the Town would be offset by the costs to maintain the roads with all the extra truck traffic. As well, she argued the WHO report did refer to truck traffic.

“People in Bolton deserve clean and healthy air,” she declared.

She also suggested that this is just the tip of the ice berg. Once Canadian Tire gets approved, she said other applicants will want to come in, , and that will tie into the pans for the GTA West corridor running nearby. “You will be looking at 20,000 trucks a day,” she predicted.

Gary Kocialek, a transportation planner with the Region, said the Region spends about $13 million annually to resurface roads all over Peel. He agreed trucks have a greater impact on roads than cars, but said roads carrying lots of trucks need to be resurfaced every 10 to 12 years.

Bolton resident Sherry Brioschi brought up the idea of alternative sites for the facility, mentioning the Tullamore area.

She also noted that many of the concerns are supposed to be addressed at the site plan stage of the development, but she argued the public will have not chance for input then.

Grogan also raised the issue of a possible rail link to connect the facility to the nearby Canadian Pacific line, but Freeman was quick to respond to that.

“We have no plans to add a rail spur to our application,” she declared.

The lack of comments from council was a bother to some at the meeting. One woman said she recently moved from Toronto, and commented that Mayor Rob Ford answers questions.

She also wondered about the impacts the Brampton facility has had on its area and what will be done with it once it closes.

Another man commented on the feeling of mistrust he detected at the meeting, commenting that people don’t believe they were being represented.

“My advice to council is to be more open,” he said. “Answer the questions and listen to the people.”

“I would like council to stop making Bolton the trucking capital of Canada,” he added.

Another woman commented on the jobs that this facility will bring, wondering how many of them will be set aside for Caledon residents.

School marks 10 years

It was a time for celebration last Wednesday, as St. Rita Catholic Elementary School near Valleywood marked its 10th anniversary. Principal Ursula Fromm, the school’s first principal Gerry Corrigan and Fr. Andrew Maderak were on hand for this ceremonial cake cutting with Grade 8 students Alyssa Nasello, Haylay Duff, Brooke Moretti and Alessia Ragno (who were in junior kindergarten when the school opened) and current JK students Anthony Arena and Michael Donah-ee. There was also lots of entertainment for the celebration, some of it being provided by Bubba the Clown.

Editorial Regional gas tax will never fly

We share Mayor Marolyn Morrison's indignation over the announcement this week from Metrolinx that there should be a gas tax of five cents per litre imposed in the Greater Toronto and Hamilton Area (GTHA) as one of the methods of financing a massive transit scheme for the region.

Such a tax will have limited benefits for a place like Caledon, where motorists can go and get their gas cheaper in a place like Orangeville, and will carry lots of financial consequences for the town.

On the other hand, we would submit that this tax, which along with the other tools put forth by Metrolinx has to be approved by the Province, has still got a lot of hoops to get through before it becomes reality.

No matter how much the New Democrats are supporting the latest Liberal budget at Queen's Park, the fact is we could well have a provincial election in the next 12 months. That means a tax like this is going to have to be sold in vote-rich Toronto and Hamilton, along with other places; like Caledon.

True, nobody likes gridlock, and Metrolinx is trying to come up with a way to deal with it. It's also reality that such solutions don't come cheap. But to get people in the GTHA to pay the entire tab is not realistic, and likely to be a hard sell at election time.

It's been said repeatedly that GTHA represents a major component in the financial well-being of Ontario (and the whole country, for that matter). That's something that the government at Queen's Park, regardless of party, has to keep in mind.

There are some who would ask why people in Thunder Bay should have to pick up the cheque for Toronto's traffic problems. The answer is Ontario's financial health depends on it.

A province-wide tax on gas would be a more productive way to finance Metrolinx's plans.

We also like Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones's call for the government to find money for this work from its existing revenue stream. All the necessary funds might not be there, but there should be some. And when it comes to the taxpayers' burdens, every little bit helps.

Get your eyes examined

May is Vision Health Month and according to Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB) research, Canadians are more afraid of losing their eyesight than almost anything else. Given that one in seven of us will develop a serious eye disease, it's a fear that's certainly not unfounded.

Fortunately, 75 per cent of vision loss can be prevented or treated, and there are many things we can do to prevent blindness and vision loss.

The most important step is to get regular eye exams by a doctor of optometry.

The problem is that many Canadians aren't getting their eyes checked as often as they should, because they think their eyesight and their eye health are the same thing. They're not.

The fact is 20/20 vision and eye disease are not mutually exclusive. The reality is that many eye diseases have no symptoms in their early stages, so someone may not realize they have an eye disease until it's too late to get treatment that could save their sight. That's why it's crucial to have regular, comprehensive eye exams, regardless of how old you are.

In recognition of Vision Health Month, we recommend people take action for their eyes and book an eye exam today.

Political egos are important

During my first incarnation with the Caledon Citizen, which ran from 1984 to '94, there was one man I used to see quite a lot.

I haven't seen him in some years, but there was a time he was very active in local affairs, including the political scene. He never actually stood for office himself, but I know he helped out on several campaigns.

I was among a group of men at some function one evening about 20 years ago, when I heard him make an off-the-cuff comment that I have never forgotten.

"You'd have to be either an extreme egotist or absolutely stupid to become a politician."

I think there is a lot of truth to that, especially considering what they often have to put up with.

Over the years, I have heard many people complain about the arrogance of politicians. In a lot of cases, Person A will accuse Politician B of being arrogant because Politician B vigorously pushes a political agenda that Person A can't stand. In the meantime, Person C will praise Politician B for being visionary, which helps boost the old political ego and makes my job a lot more fun.

I was talking to a local politician (who I won't name here) a week or so ago. He claimed he didn't have a political ego. I don't believe it.

If you're going to be a politician, you need an ego; a big one. People in that line of work have to endure a lot of scrutiny and criticism, and that includes what comes from nice pains in the neck like me, and not so nice pains in the neck. And it's frequently the case that the garbage these people have to put up with is undeserved, and are seldom rational.

I have some idea of what that's like because most of my work is available for public scrutiny and criticism. I accept that as part of the game.

I admit I am not a terribly good speller, although I am a lot better than when I got into this business almost 30 years ago. I do pull the occasional boner, and I sometimes get rather harshly-worded emails in response. It goes with the territory, and it's often offset by the praise I occasionally get for my work.

I also sometimes have to endure shots for the stuff I write, simply because people don't like it. On occasions, it's a simple case of shooting the messenger. Other times, I have been obliged to take editorial stands that some people don't like, and have had to field a certain amount of abuse. On the other hand, in my line of work just about any reaction is good news because it means what I have written have made people think and react. Some would call it "a job well done."

But politicians don't get the same treatment. True, they are sometimes praised publicly, but more often you'll hear people taking shots at them. And in the final analysis, the only time they really get reliable feedback is when there's an election, and they can be manipulated by a host of factors, including the efforts of well-organized groups of liars.

Politicians have seemingly been the topic of choice over the last week or so.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper has found himself in hot water over the accusations against a couple of people he appointed to the Senate (two former journalists — And I'm left to wonder if my appointment is coming soon).

I have talked to some people who think this "scandal" is really going to hurt Harper. It was well-known that I am not a great fan of Stephen Harper, but I don't think this mess he's currently in is going to cause him a lot of harm, nor should it. He's the man at the top of the heap, and since it's a big heap, there's an awful lot to be responsible for. As near as I can tell, he's owned up to his responsibilities, and time will tell what action is appropriate.

Would I like to have seen something better from him? Of course. Have they invented the perfect prime minister? Of course not. For the moment, we kind of have to take what we're given.

Provincially, of late we have been hearing a lot of negative comments about former premier Dalton McGuinty and some of the decisions he made regarding gas plants, as well as other things. And Premier Kathleen Wynne is, for want of a better term, picking up McGuinty's cheque.

There is a bit of a personal connection here. I met the Premier in my early years working in Toronto. In 1994, she ran for (and lost) one of the school trustee positions in my coverage area. A couple of years later, she was in the thick of the fight opposing the creation of the amalgamated City of Toronto that the majority of residents did not want (and there are referendum figures to prove that).

On the other hand, she had to know she was diving into a political cesspool when she decided to seek the leadership of the Ontario Liberal Party, which means she had to know she would have to answer for whatever had gone on before. That's assuming she had no knowledge of what was going on.

The interesting thing about provincial politics is despite the fact people are mad about all the shenanigans, and the accompanying money that's been wasted to pay for them, there's not much call for an election. The best way to hit a politician where it hurts is to vote him or her out. Yet few are champing at the bit for the opportunity to kick them out. I don't think it's got anything to do with people aligning with Wynne. I've got the feeling it's more a matter of indifference, with voters figuring the alternatives aren't likely to be much better.

Then we come to the problems that Toronto Mayor Rob Ford been having lately, with the allegations that there's a video out there showing him smoking crack. This has been the latest happening in a tough couple of years for the guy, although I have to believe he's the author of some of his own misfortunes. In the current situation, I think he did himself a big disservice by waiting a week before making a statement on the matter.

On the other hand, he decided to get into the line of work he's in, and he had to have some idea of what he was getting into.

Lucky for him, he's got an ego too. In the last week, I'm sure it's come in pretty handy.

Federal government taking various actions on cyberbullying

Bullying and cyberbullying are serious concerns to many Canadian families and communities.

Recent high-profile cases have highlighted the harm that cyberbullying can cause. While bullying has long been a major burden on the many children who are targeted, cyberbullying can bring it into the home. Unfortunately, it can seem like there is no escape. It's important for Canadians — parents, educators, law enforcement — to help make children and youth aware that this perception doesn't have to be reality.

Our government has delivered a range of measures, including education, awareness, prevention and enforcement, to address the issue of bullying, and has recently taken additional steps specifically focused on cyberbullying.

Our education and awareness measures include the website GetCyberSafe.gc.ca to inform Canadians about online safety. Other steps include Facebook, where posts on bullying were shared more than 6,500 times in February and seen by over 500,000 people. Canadians should also be aware of Need-HelpNow.ca, a new website offering information to youth. For young people who have made the mistake of sharing a sexual image of themselves, the website offers tips on getting content removed from major websites and strategies for addressing the issue with their peers.

We also support prevention through the National Crime Prevention Centre (NCPC). Since 2007, NCPC has funded approximately 30 projects to prevent bullying and youth violence. It has developed practical resources, including guides for parents and educators. In 2012, our government committed $10 million for new prevention programs, including the prevention of school-based bullying.

Bullying and cyberbullying often include criminal offences, which can be addressed under the Criminal Code. This includes harassment, issuing threats and child pornography. In 2011, our government passed legislation requiring internet service suppliers to report child pornography websites to the police, promoting enforcement against this very serious crime. Moreover, our government passed the landmark Safe Streets and Communities Act. Among other important measures to combat crime and stand up for victims, this legislation contains Sebastien's Law, reforming the Youth Criminal Justice Act to prioritize the protection of victims of crime and of society. Now our children can be protected from young offenders who commit serious and violent crimes, such as assault. While not all bullying consists of criminal activities, when it does, it must be treated particularly seriously.

Ottawa Journal

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

Our government continues to take action. Prime Minister Stephen Harper recently met with the parents of several victims of cyberbullying, to offer condolences and open the discussion on how to better protect our youth. Justice Minister Rob Nicholson has committed to expediting an ongoing review of the Criminal Code to identify gaps in the law that could be closed to combat and deter cyberbullying. This review is looking at the distribution of intimate images without consent from all those depicted and considering what can be done.

One of the highest priorities of any society must be the protection of our children. Whatever form bullying takes, it must be taken seriously and combated energetically. This is why our government continues to support a range of measures, including education, enforcement and potentially new legislation. In particular, given the reach and toll of cyberbullying, we are supporting initiatives like Need-HelpNow.ca while studying legislation and consulting parents and other Canadians on additional measures. We will always work to protect our young people.

Government working on combating international tax evasion

Since 2006, the Canada Revenue Agency has audited nearly 8,000 cases of suspected international tax evasion and identified approximately $4.5 billion in unpaid taxes.

Our government is dedicated to cracking down on international tax cheats, ensuring that money hidden overseas is recovered and taxed fairly and properly.

These tax cheats not only break the law, but they also make the tax burden go up for hard-working Canadians who pay their taxes in full and on time. By not paying taxes on hidden overseas funds, these tax cheats leave us with less money to spend on the important services like health care and education that Canadians rely on.

This is why, as a part of Economic Action Plan 2013, our government is investing in the Canada Revenue Agency and empowering them with the tools they need to crack down on international tax evasion and aggressive tax avoidance.

The first step in our plan is to refocus $15 million from its current budget so that it will be better able to "follow the money" and enhance the Agency's audit and compliance capacity. This includes creating a dedicated team of international tax experts that will help ensure the measures being implemented are working correctly and the information being gathered is going directly to auditors so that the money can be recovered.

Our next step is to implement measures that will give the Canada Revenue Agency the ability to stop, locate and reclaim lost tax money. As proposed in Ecoomic Action Plan 2013, our government will help ensure that large international wire transfers will be reviewed, not only for possible terrorist activity and money laundering, but also for tax purposes. This is a long-overdue common sense approach that will help stop people from hiding money overseas.

Our government has also introduced the Stop International Tax Evasion Program. This program will finally enable the Canada Revenue Agency to create a Crime Stoppers-type system which will offer financial rewards for information that leads to the successful collection of additional taxes. This type of program has been successfully implemented in other countries, such as the United Kingdom and Germany, which will help give the Canada Revenue Agency another tool to collect hidden tax money.

Finally, our government is proposing to change reporting requirements for Canadians who have more than $100,000 in foreign income or foreign property. This change will require that these Canadians provide more information that will help the Canada Revenue Agency determine if they have paid their fair share.

Cracking down on international tax cheats will help our government keep taxes low for law-abiding citizens and help ensure that the services that Canadians and their families rely on are fully funded and paid for fairly and honestly.

Surveying to be discussed at historical society

Some people wonder how the local road pattern came to be laid out, and why some roads go straight, while others take weird jogs.

Some of that will be explained at the next meeting of the Caledon East and District Historical Society, which will be June 26.

The speaker will be Gordon Good, chair of the archives committee of the Association of Ontario Land Surveyors. He's expected to discuss such issues as the difference between a concession and sideroad, what tools and methods surveyors used in the past, what a "baseline" refers to, how big a lot is, etc.

The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. at St. James' Church Hall in Caledon East. Members and students will get in free, while visitors will be charged $3.

“Customers are the heart of CCS Eco-stores”
” By Catherine Adair and Chris Coulter

In the big picture, proceeds from Chez Thrift and The ReUstore fund programs such as counselling, food support, seniors' housing and specialized transportation.

But drilled down to the stores' level, what we see every day is the trickle effect of one neighbour helping another at Chez Thrift and The ReUstore.

Every day within our stores brings the constant interactions with savvy customers who enjoy seeking treasures, both new and old. Our customers represent the heart of our eco-stores. And their shopping breathes life into our larger agency's vision to create a healthy engaged compassionate community for all.

Every day we enjoy chatting with our customers and getting to know who they are and what brings them to our two stores. We greet our regulars by name. We also notice, and miss you, when you have been away for a while.

And every day there are those who choose to donate their cherished goods to our two stores. These neighbours know that this is the other way they are able to provide their support for the valuable CCS programs within their community.

We welcome everyone who shops, new customers or the experienced treasure hunters who regularly win fantastic antiques and other valuable things in the ReUstore auction. We also ask everyone who shops at our stores to spread the word about the benefits of reuse and recycle and support Caledon services.

It's a privilege to live in our close-knit community. There's that cozy feel to our stores as well. Our customers are our neighbours and our community. Our customers are our heart.

No chance of it happening

Ignorance, as they say, is bliss. Which is no doubt what NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair is counting on as he promotes his online petition to abolish the Senate in the wake of the ongoing spending scandals by a few of inhabitants of the so-called chamber of sober second thought.

Not ignorance in the sense of rudeness, but in the traditional sense of a lack of knowledge about how the system actually works.

For the fact is, as much as you may wish to abolish the Senate – and polls show that a lot of Canadians would love to – there is absolutely no chance of that happening. None. Zippo!

Why not, you ask?

For the simple reason that because of our current constitution – the one brought to us courtesy of current Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau's father Pierre and the premiers of the day – it would take the approval of all 10 provinces, plus the House of Commons, plus the Senate, to abolish it.

That's not going to happen. Ever.

The constitution does allow some changes with the approval of at least seven provinces representing at least 50 per cent of the population, but most constitutional experts say abolishing the place would need unanimous support. But even the lesser formula isn't going to happen.

Mulcair, of course, is doing what politicians do, i.e. jumping on a current issue to make political points for himself. That's fair enough. After all, the NDP have always been highly critical of the Senate, so it's not as if he's changing his party's direction by leading a parade to nuke the place.

But just ask yourself this: do you really – I mean really – want the whole constitutional ball of wax opened up for debate at a time when there is a separatist government in Quebec? Do you really think the debate could be opened up and restricted just to the Senate? Think about it.

This isn't a serious problem for Mulcair because, let's face it, since he's been leading the NDP he's spent most of his time pushing Quebec's interests above those of the rest of Canada, so the prospect of his friends in the separatist movement having another run at our constitution obviously doesn't bother him.

It should, however, bother you.

As for Justin Trudeau, he came out on the weekend and dissed Mulcair's online petition – while arguing, correctly I believe, that the Senate, despite its current problems, actually serves a useful function in our parliamentary system.

Most Canadians have no idea what the Senate actually does. That's mainly because the media – except when there is an ongoing "scandal" – totally ignores it, so unless you're a political wonk, you likely don't know how much work the Senate does reviewing, and routinely improving, legislation before it becomes law.

Trudeau went on to say that even if the federal government wanted to get into the constitutional mess again – which, by the way, Prime Minister Stephen Harper isn't likely to – they shouldn't do it without first consulting the provinces.

Well, duh! That may sound as wise as Mulcair claiming the Senate can be abolished if enough people sign his petition. But it's just as facile. Of course the provinces have to be consulted before Ottawa can change the constitution. That's because, as mentioned previously, the amending formula involves them just as much as it involves the federal government.

And while we're on the subject, there has been an awful lot of air time and print space used up for a few weeks now over what really, by any yardstick, is a pretty minor affair.

By all means punish the few Senators who apparently are double-dipping, but for heaven's sake, let's get real here. A couple of weeks ago we learned that years ago, Mulcair, as a provincial MLA, said he was offered a bribe, yet he didn't report it to the police at the time. Why not? Surely that's a tad more serious than Mike Duffy getting $90,000 from Harper's former top aide to pay off something he shouldn't have been getting in the first place.

Earlier in this decade, actually, three Liberal MPs were caught charging for housing allowances they didn't deserve, and we barely heard a peep about it. That's because – and here's irony for you – the Commons deals with these things in private through the secretive Board of Internal Economy while the Senate, for all the flak it's taking, actually made the audits of the senators public. So when you talk about being open, point your finger at the right place.

Go ahead and sign Mulcair's petition if you wish, but be aware it's kind of like sitting in your car yelling at the driver ahead of you. He can't hear you.

And it won't change a thing he was doing. But it just might make you feel better. That's the best you can hope for.

day had many highlights, including the involvement of Sydney Olympic Triathlete Isabelle Baird, who had her own children racing.

Athletes from Windsor, Collingwood, Peterborough, Hamilton and the entire Greater Toronto Area (GTA) were in attendance.

“It’s hard to believe we have been putting the race on for 13 consecutive years, but amazingly we have hit our teenage anniversary of the race,” Barclay said.

Barclay was glowing with pride Sunday evening after three consecutive days of setting up, running the event and finally putting away the equipment.

“Our 150 volunteers are truly exceptional and without them we could not put on such a big event,” he remarked.

One of the highlights of the day was having the entire C3 High Performance Elite Professional Team in town to spend the day with the kids.

“To get international athletes like Andrew Yorke, Taylor Reid and Sean Bechtel out for a full day is remarkable, and I know how much the kids and their families enjoyed it,” Barclay observed.

Another highlight of the day was the CEO challenge with Kinetico’s Phillip Adsetts just edging out Steve Benson from Benson Steel.

“To have local sponsors not just donate money and time, but to participate as well, is very uplifting,” he said.

C3 has on-going summer programs that all families in Caledon can look into at www.c3online.ca

Brewers leading NDBL

Written By BRIAN LOCKHART

The Bolton Brewers are leading the North Dufferin Baseball League with 10 points and five wins after six games played in the 2013 season.

The Brewers are the defending champions, having won the league title the last four seasons.

This past weekend saw a break in the action when a scheduled double header between the Brewers and the Bolton Dodgers had to be rescheduled. Those games were moved to June 15, at North Hill Park in Bolton with the first game scheduled for 1 p.m., and the second match following with a 3 p.m. start.

Beginning with a pair of wins in the early going over the Creemore Braves and the Ivy Leafs, the Brewers had their first loss May 14 against the Aurora Jays, losing by a single run in a tight 7-6 battle.

They went on to win the next three over the Lisle Astros, and back-to-back games over the Angus Black Sox.

“Our pitching has been great,” said Brewers coach Mike Wallace. “I think once our pitchers get going, we’ll be okay. In the early season, the pitchers seem to have an advantage.”

The Midland Indians are in the number two spot in the league standings with 10 points.

After seven games, the Indians have two losses and five wins.

They are followed by the Orillia Majors in third place with three wins after four games, and the New Lowell Knights in fourth place with a 3-2 record so far.

The Bolton Dodgers are off to a bit of a slow start this season, losing their first two games. They left the field with a 4-2 loss to the Nobleton Cornhuskers in the season opener May 8.

Game two against the Midland Indians resulted in an 11-0 shutout for the Midland squad.

The Dodgers’ first win came May 15, when they won a home field game 8-4 over the Angus Black Sox.

That was followed by loss number three May 16, to the New Lowell Knights.

The North Dufferin League has a full slate of 14 teams in the Senior division this season with all but one of the teams returning from last year.

NDBL also has a Junior division, with six teams signed up and playing.

The Brewers have two road games on the schedule.

They will be in Midland June 8, to face the Indians, then follow up the next day with a Sunday game against the Clearview Orioles.

They return to North Hill Park in Bolton May 13, to host the Midland Indians. The first pitch is scheduled for 8:30 p.m.

The Dodgers were to return to action yesterday (Wednesday) to face the Lisle Astros in Bolton, with results coming after press time.

Returning to North Hill Park this coming Wednesday (June 5), the Dodgers will host the Ivy Leafs in a game scheduled under the lights at 8:30 p.m.

MOSQUITO BRAVES MAKE IT TO FINALS - The Bolton Braves rep mosquito team competed in the Jack Grasby Memorial Tournament in Stratford over the weekend. They won all their games on the way to the finals in the Ontario Baseball Association sanctioned event. The Braves played a close game in the final, losing 10-7 to the Royal York team. Team members Russell Agar, Nicholas Fiorucci, Alex Coles, Luke Witty, Russell Crouch, Mark Sharples, Liam Bavington Christian X., Ethan Hunt, Nicholas Porcelli, Ben Sterritt and coaches Robert Sterritt, Brad Coles and Rick Agar celebrate the accomplishment. TNT varsity team opens with a win

It was a great day for the TNT Express Football clubs as the atom, pee wee and varsity squads hit the field for their first home games of the season in Beeton.

The atoms and pee wees learned a lot in their open-game action and the varsity team did what truly great teams do; found a way to notch a win while not being at their best.

About half of the varsity squad is made up of returning players, with new players filling out the 35-man roster. That is uncommon, as they have not had more than 30 payers for the past three years.

Last Sunday (May 19), they played the new and improve Orangeville Outlaws, who were much bigger and had more than 40 players. TNT moved the ball very well their first drive, but did not score any points. It wasn’t until late in the first quarter that Andrew Tee and Colin Hall got together for a 60-yard pass and catch that ended up as a touchdown for TNT. Hall added the extra point that gave TNT a 7-0 lead. The advantage was short-lived, as Orangeville came up with 14 unanswered points and took that lead

Local swimmer Paige McLean accepts scholarship at Saint Francis

The first time Paige McLean had a swimming lesson, there was a lot of kicking and screaming, and not in a good way. That's according to her parents Cathy and Terry McLean.

They say she wasn't overjoyed with the idea of putting her face in the water. Thanks to the patience of George Jacobson at his swim school, she finally came around and the rest, as they say is history.

McLean has swum for Jacobson, also head coach of the Vaughan Aquatic Club, for the past eight years and competed at Canadian Junior Nationals, Eastern Canadian Championships and Ontario Provincials numerous times. As she completes Grade 12 and finishes her final season with Vaughan Aquatic, she leaves the club currently holding 17 records. She also recently finished competing for St. Michael Catholic Secondary School in Bolton, winning two gold medals at Region of Peel Secondary School Athletic Association (ROPSSAA), followed by two fourth-place finishes at the finals of the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations (OFSAA) championships. It's now time for her next challenge.

After countless hours of training (in excess of 12 hours per week), her commitment to her goals and dedication to the sport of swimming have paid off.

Having contact with several Division One schools south of the border, McLean chose her favourite five and began the task of touring the universities.

It was a great experience, getting to meet and stay with the swim teams, seeing the campuses and attending class. From larger schools, like Seton Hall and Youngstown State, to picturesque Saint Francis University and Marist to the exciting St Francis College in New York City.

Paige McLean and George Jacobson

Each of them offered her something different, both academically and athletically.

In the end, she accepted an athletic and academic scholarship to Saint Francis University (near Pittsburgh). The Red Flash, as they are known, are the four-time defending North East Conference (NEC) Swimming Champions.

McLean is looking forward to the challenge ahead.

"I'm going down there to get a great education and to help them continue to be way into the fourth quarter. The TNT defence did their job and kept Orangeville from scoring any more points.

With 1:06 remaining in the game, TNT had the ball on their 10 yard line with no time outs. The offence took the field and with some timely plays by Matt Biamonte and Hall, along with a with few Orangeville penalties, TNT found themselves on the Outlaws' 30 yard, line. With six seconds left in the game, Hall and Tee teamed up again for the game tying TD, sending the match into OT.

the best swim program in the Conference," she said. "My eventual goal is to compete at the NCAAAs."

McLean would like to thank her family and friends for all their support and guidance, her team and coaches at the Vaughan Aquatic Club, and the entire faculty at St. Michael Catholic Secondary School in Bolton.

"I am really looking forward to this next step in my journey and excited about the challenges ahead," she said.

Orangeville did not waste any time and answered right back with their own TD. TNT got their second possession and with a determined run from Brian Ellerby, they found themselves on the 15 yard line. On the first down, TNT went to the air and found Biamonte all by himself for the go ahead TD. Orangeville could not answer and with a desperation pass TNT defensive back Gary Valentini intercepted to give TNT the win 27-21.

This game sure did not disappoint the TNT fans, as they cheered on the team with every turn of the ball.

Plenty of June happenings at Caledon Seniors' Centre

By Margaret and Bill Cuning

Someone once said "June is the time of perfect young summer."

As spring slowly melts into summer and the wildflowers bloom along the roadside, it is as if the Creator's hand has tinted it all with a large paintbrush. When the insects hum around the blossoms and the birds warble in the trees, we realize Mother Nature is never silent, and we never tire of the sounds she creates. Enjoy this perfect time of year and join us at the Caledon Seniors' Centre for some of our outdoor activities.

One trip to enjoy with your friends is the Bruch at the Globe Restaurant, followed by the Credit Valley train ride and tour of Orangeville Carvings, scheduled for June 5 from 9:45 a.m. to 6:45 p.m. The price is $103.

Our In-House Games started May 6 and continue until June 20, with an Awards Luncheon June 27, from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. There are 20 events, and you can enter as many as you like. We offer everything from card games to table tennis, carpet bowling and golf, with lots of friendly competition. The price is $12 for games and luncheon.

June 15 is Caledon Day, which is held in Caledon East. It is on from 2 to 11 p.m.

The Caledon Seniors' Centre will have a booth with our jams and preserves, and we may also be selling ice cream. We would love you all to stop by and say "hello."

For further information on all programs and events, please check our website at www.caledonseniors.ca, contact us at 905-951-6114 or email us at caledon-seniors@rogers.com

As always, we welcome all seniors to our Centre for warmth and fellowship. The invitation to lunch Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays is warmly extended at "your home away from home."

CVC to hosts tree planting and barbecue in Caledon

Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) invites residents of the East Credit neighbourhood of Caledon to a tree planting and barbecue this Saturday (June 1) from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

It will be at Ken Whillans Resource Management Area, 16026 Hurontario St., Caledon.

This family-friendly event is open to everyone. No planting experience is needed, as CVC staff will provide demonstrations.

Students are encouraged to participate and earn their community volunteer hours.

Participants will plant native trees and shrubs to increase forest cover. Trees beautify the landscape, improve air quality and provide habitat for local wildlife.

"This is an opportunity for individuals and families to get outside, connect with nature and do their part for their local environment," said CVC Director of Restoration and Stewardship Mike Puddister. "It's a great way for families and individuals to enjoy the outdoors."

Participants should dress for the weather, and wear long pants and safety boots if possible. Shovels and gloves will be provided but extras would be helpful.

The free barbecue for participants will take place after planting.

Those interested are asked to register by calling 1-800-668-5557, ext. 221 or at www.creditvalleyca.ca/events

Two shutouts, split shins and slippery floors in ball hockey action

There are now two teams trying to get by themselves at the top of the Inglewood Ball Hockey League standings.

After the fifth week of action, AMD & Son Electric and We Are Creative share similar 4-1 records.

May 21

George's Arena Sports 6
ZeeClean 1

George's swept up with bagging lots of markers this week over ZeeClean.

Mitch Nail (a goal and an assist), Sean Elliott (two goals and an assist), Michael Brilantes (two goals), Mike Garvie (a goal and two assists), Matt Cordina (an assist), Cory Schittenhelm (three assists), Tommy Ursa (an assist) and Brandon Vandersterre (an assist) were the go to guys for George's, while Evan Emanoilidis, from Nolan Pearce, swept in one for Zee.

We Are Creative 2
Elite Building Group 1

In a match filled with penalties (35 minutes combined), We Are got the jump on Elite and were able to hold on for the win.

Anthony Fera, from Michael Spagnuolo and Dom Klosowski, and John Monti (unassisted, on the power play) got it done for the Creative crew, while Kyle Corcoran from, Jordan "Cheese" Francis, put Elite on the board.

Mr. Handyman 2

Caledon Hills Cycling 0

With the floor starting to slick up, Mr. Handyman stepped it up a notch and earned keeper Louie Marrocco a goose-egg.

Anthony Villari, from Mike Chip and Chris Della Morra, and Alex Della Morra, from Mike Volpe, hammered it home for Handymen.

AMD & Son Electric 3
Carney Plumbing 0

With the floor getting more greasy, the clock ran out on Carney as AMD charged on to victory.

Jon Desmarais, Andy Sant and Adam Bastrocci potted the ball in the cage, with Jake Lake and Matt McNally helping out.

The previous week of play saw suspensions being handed out in the midst of hot action.

May 14

Elite Building Group 3
Mr. Handyman 0

Elite's Dante Commisso earned the goose-egg for his squad.

Net nabbers were Tyler O'Conner from Lino Zanardo and Shaun Ridler, Jordan Porter (short-handed) from Michael Stenton, and Steve DeFrancesco from Kyle Corcoran and Chris Gionas.

AMD & Son Electric 5
George's Arena Sports 2

AMD electrified the crowd lighting the lamp five times to earn the victory.

The sticks of Bastrocci (two, one on the power play), Joey Lemos (two) and Desmarais (short-handed) were fully charged with help from Evan Sant, Paul Skates, Dan Wood, Bastrocci, Jason Duncan and Desmarais. George's go to guys were Nail (power play) from Tony Sousa, and Schittenhelm from Sousa and Nail.

ZeeClean 4
Carney Plumbing 2

ZeeClean cleaned up with a pair in the second to sweep to victory.

Bin bulgers for ZeeClean were Pearce from Chris Gikov and Colin Bromley, Adam Moszynski from Brandon Jones and Jonathan Batten, Harry Gaebler (unassisted) and Bromley from Chris Reid. Carney's plungers were Elliott Draga from Randy Avery, and Will Crowe (short-handed) from brother Don and keeper Eddy Gaffney.

We Are Creative 6
Caledon Hills Cycling 2

In a clean match until the end, We Are controlled the things for their share of the lead, and then things got a little too feisty and earned a suspension for a player from each squad.

We Are Creative's creators were Matt Geiser from Alex Schittenhelm and Giancarlo Mellace, Schittenhelm from Fera, Schittenhelm from Fera and Mellace, Rob Silvestri from John West-Carvalho, West-Carvalho from Silvestri, and West-Carvalho from Silvestri and Mike Tarasco. Caledon Hills peddlers were Dave Phillips (unassisted) and Bobby Raine from Kurt Snell and Albert Bettridge.

Skylark deals with art, and what goes around it

In the world of art, most people think a frame is something that goes around a creation. But there's a lot more to it than that. Dianne Olchoway ought to know. Olchoway is proprietor of Skylark Framing and Fine Art, which has been operating out of its Bolton's location since October 2004. Prior to that, she said she ran her business out of her Caledon home for about three and a half years. Most of her business involves framing. "I've taken a lot of extra courses in professional picture framing," she said, adding they dealt with such topics as needlework and the proper treatment of art on canvas and art on paper. As the business name implies, Olchoway deals with fine art. "I sell original oil paintings by artists who travel all over the world," she commented, adding she also carries creations by some local artists.

As well, Olchoway said her store provides professional digital printing including printing your favorite photos onto canvas. "It's the best quality photo printing in Bolton," she remarked. As is the case in so many fields, picture frame preferences change with times but usually peoples style preferences remain the same for quite a long time. "Currently," she said "brown frames are popular whether they are rustic or modern but golds and ornates seem like they are getting more popular again." Olchoway said she always takes customers' preferences into account when it comes to designing picture framing, bearing in mind that "you don't want the picture frame to be the first thing you see so we work with our customers to frame their art according to their style preferences. This way the art is highlighted and it fits perfectly into whatever room they want to hang it in."
