Last Wednesday marked the start of the two-year countdown until the start of the 2015 Pan Am Games in the Toronto area, and numerous celebrations were held, including at Caledon Equestrian Park, which will be the site of some of the events. Caledon Town Crier Andrew Welch was involved in getting the festivities started.

Less than two years to go before Pan Am Games

By Bill Rea

It was made official last Wednesday that two years from now, this area will be in the midst of hosting the 2015 Pan Am Games.

There were numerous celebrations throughout the Toronto area, including at Caledon Equestrian Park in Palgrave.

Craig Collins, managing partner with Equestrian Management Group (EMG) extended the welcome to the crowd on hand for the festivities.

He said EMG has been operating the facility with the Town of Caledon and Toronto and Region Conservation Authority since 1986.

"We are seeing the park maintained in a most wonderful way," he declared. "We are ready to welcome the world to Caledon."

Victoria Winter, a board member with Toronto 2015 Pan American Games Corporation, as well as individual and team bronze medalist at the 1995 Pan American Games, expressed appreciation for all the cooperation that has gone into getting things ready for the Games, including between the various levels of government.

"You are all integral to the success of TO 2015," she added as she stressed the coming Games will include competitions in dressage, eventing and jumping.

She also took in the fact there have been a lot of improvements to the facility in the last little while, with more in the works in anticipation of the Games. She pointed out the first phase has been completed, with the new facilities having stood up well to last Monday's heavy rains.

"Let's get excited Caledon," she declared. "The Games are coming."

Oak Ridges — Markham MPP Dr. Helena Jaczek was on hand representing the Province, reminding the crowd there will be some 10,000 athletes and officials representing 41 countries in a host of athletic disciplines. She said there are several other facilities in the Toronto area that are seeing improvement in anticipation of the Games.

"I know the next two years will fly by," she said.

"This is just going to be phenomenal for our community," Mayor Marolyn Morrison commented, as she pointed to the area's proud equestrian history and tradition.

She also praised the cooperation between the Town, EMG and TRCA.

"We welcome the 41 countries of the Americas and Caribbean to Caledon," she declared.

Morrison read a proclamation, declaring last Wednesday as Pan Am/Parapan Am Day in town. The proclamation stated the "Games will use the power of sport to engage Ontario's diverse communities, inspire children and youth and transform our neighbourhoods through legacy facilities and programs."

The mayor also helped unveil a mural proclaiming the Games by Artist David Arrigo. Morrison a contribution to the work at last month's Caledon Day, and she pointed that out as the work was uncovered.

AS YOU LIKE IT BEING PERFORMED

Members of the Humber River Shakespeare company have started their annual series of performances throughout the area with this year's offering of As You Like It. Orlando (Spencer Robson) takes out some of his wrath on his brother Oliver (Kevin Hammond) for taking all of their late father's legacy. Turn to page 3 for more scenes from the production.

Quote of the Week

"If you're a minister, you don't go home. You're obligated not just to your riding, but the country. I'm more interested in being in the riding when I'm not in Ottawa."

Tilson pleased with look of Harper's new cabinet

By Bill Rea

There were few surprises for Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson in light of Monday's shuffling of the federal cabinet by Prime Minister Stephen Harper.

What was being billed as a major adjustment was actually rather minor in nature, with most of the cabinet heavyweights, such as Finance Minister Jim Flaherty, staying put.

But Tilson pointed out a general election is about two years away, and the Prime Minister is interested in working with people he knows are going to run again. He cited the examples of Minister of State and Chief Government Whip Gordon O'Connor and Public Safety Minister, who have both announced they will be leaving their seats.

"I think he (Harper) wants to go in with a cabinet who will be running in the next election," Tilson observed.

Environment Minister Peter Kent was dropped from Cabinet. Tilson called him "a great guy," adding he's probably in line to be a Parliamentary assistant or committee chair.

"Environment is one of the tricky portfolios," he added.

Tilson also said the heart of the government's focus these days is on the economy.

He observed Harper was also looking for some younger faces in cabinet. Tilson cited Michelle Rempel, who was named Minister of State (Western Economic Diversification), and Chris Alexander, who is now Minister of Citizenship and Immigration. He knows both well, commenting that Alexander has a cottage near his, and is "a very smart young guy."

He added both Alexander and Rempel are full of energy and "very good on their feet."

But Tilson was also impressed with the ministers who are staying in their old positions. He recently travelled to Europe with Harper and a couple of ministers who are staying on, such as Joe Oliver (Natural Resources), John Baird (Foreign Affairs), Edward Fast (International Trade) and Steven Blaney (who has moved to Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness from Veterans' Affairs), and got to know all those ministers well during the trip and was impressed with the work they've been doing. He said Fast has been working on trade agreements in Europe, and that Baird is very highly thought of on the continent.

Tilson said he didn't have any thoughts that he would get on Cabinet, adding he really didn't want an appointment.

"It's a tough life," he remarked, adding he has a teenage daughter and a wife who acts almost like a single mom when he's in Ottawa. "I'm not prepared to lead that life."

"If you're a minister, you don't go home," he added. "You're obligated not just to your riding, but the country. I'm more interested in being in the riding when I'm not in Ottawa."

Police looking for suspicious man

Caledon OPP are asking for help from the public in light of sightings of a suspicious vehicle in Bolton.

Police report the male driver appears to be approximately 40 to 50 years of age with a tanned complexion. He has been observed around school yards and community parks. He operates a white construction-style van with affixed ladders.

Police are requesting parents to speak to their children about "stranger danger" and to report anything that appears suspicious in nature. Children need to be reminded not to accept any candy, gifts or a ride from a stranger.

Anyone with information on this is asked to contact police at 1-888-310-1122 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Man recovering after going over falls

Caledon OPP reports the prognosis is good for a 43-year-old Burlington man who went over an Alton waterfall in a canoe Friday morning.

Police said they were called out, along with Caledon Fire and Emergency Services, at about 10:30 a.m.

The investigation indicates a male and female were near a 25-foot waterfall in the canoe when for unknown reasons the boat seemed to get too close to the edge. The female was able to get out without injury.

The male remained inside the canoe as it traveled over the waterfall.

He was transported to Headwaters Health Care Centre with life threatening injuries and was later transferred to a trauma centre.

Police reported Tuesday the man did not sustain spinal cord injuries, but will likely need plastic surgery to deal with some cuts.

Police are asking anyone with information in relation to this incident to contact them at 905-584-2241 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Charges laid

An altercation outside a Bolton restaurant early Saturday morning resulted in an 29-year-old Caledon man being charged.

Caledon OPP reports they were called out at about 3 a.m. Upon arriving, they saw a man attacking another. While police were breaking that up, another altercation broke out between two women. While police were getting that one under control, the suspect male walked away, but he was found nearby and arrested. The victim was taken to hospital with minor injuries.

The suspect was charged with assault.

Police caution motorists during summer vacation

School is done for the year, and summer vacation season will see many families spending quality time together as they embark on what they hope will be a summer filled with positive family memories.

The roads to cottage country, area campgrounds and to local recreational venues will become very busy and heavily travelled, and OPP want motorists to be careful when travelling along them over the next couple of months.

"We will see more children throughout the day in areas that we are not normally used to seeing them," OPP Chief Superintendent Brad Blair.

"Please reduce your speed when travelling through neighbourhoods and look for young children."

"Parents are also encouraged to set a positive example for their children and to always wear safety equipment such as bicycle helmets, personal flotation devices and their seatbelts," he added.

Any loss of life is not only tragic, police pointed out, it can be preventable, provided people exercise good judgement and make wise decisions when it comes to participating in any summer related activity.

"Many of the unfortunate tragedies seen by the OPP, especially during the summer months, are preventable," Blair said. "That being said, people need to stop and think through their actions before they act."

"Regrettably, it can be these actions that can put first responders and members of the public at risk when they come to provide assistance," he said.

OPP remains focused upon its goal of providing safe roads, safe trails and safe waterways and is asking everyone to do their part.

Excitement and enthusiasm expected to grow in anticipation of Games

"This grass is my grass," she boasted. Olympian Jessica Phoenix told the crowd about how she won a gold medal in eventing at the 2011 Pan Am Games, recalling her family was there to see it. She said it will be an "absolutely amazing feeling" for local athletes to be able to compete so close to home. She also said the improved equestrian facility will be a huge boost to the sport.

"I can hardly wait for the competition to begin," she said. Tony Eames, a member of the board of the Canadian Olympic Committee, said the Games offer a great chance for Canadians to shine among the greatest athletes in the world. "They'll be bringing with them their A game," he said. "Make no mistake. Canadians will be bringing their A game as well." "The excitement is to come, but this is a very exciting day," he added. There were also comments from representatives of various sponsors of the Games. Chevrolet is a premier sponsor. Peter Cornu, manager of sponsorship, auto shows and exhibits for GM Canada, pointed out when the Games come, there will be more than 20,000 volunteers will be hard at work to make the games a success. He said it will be an "exciting and amazing experience." Lead partner for the Games is CIBC. District Vice-President Gerry Simpson was on hand for last week's celebration too.

Olympic dressage rider Jacqueline Brooks was on D Niro for this demonstration.

Victoria Winter, a board member with Toronto 2015 Pan American Games Corporation, presented this flag to Mayor Marolyn Morrison at last week's ceremonies.

Cory Trépanier returns to the wilderness to capture TrueWild

Caledon artist, adventurer and filmmaker Cory Trépanier has explored and painted some of the wildest places on earth. Now, he is returning to Canada's most remote and spectacular National Parks in a multi-year wilderness legacy project, entitled TrueWild.

A fellow of the Royal Canadian Geographical Society and the Explorer's Club, Trépanier is building upon his life-long quest to paint the land with the launch of TrueWild, A Legacy for Canada's National Parks with the objective of creatively engaging, through fine art, online interactive content, public speaking and more, millions of people today and in the years to come with Canada's spectacular wild places.

Chapter one of TrueWild begins July 15 in the Yukon, where Trépanier may become the first artist in history to bring an easel into the vast ice fields surrounding the highest peak in Canada, Mount Logan.

Nine days in the mountains kicks off Trépanier's month-long painting expedition into Kluanne National Park, in the southwest corner of the Yukon, where he will also hike the Donjek Route, and raft down the Alsek River. With only a thin veil of nylon for covering each night, Cory will trek into these remote and challenging wilderness locations carrying his easel, canvas, oil paints, camping and filming gear.

Subsequent chapters of TrueWild will take him to other wilderness National Parks like Nahanni and the Torngat Mountains National Parks to capture the majestic vistas of Canada's wild landscapes.

Each journey will see Trépanier develop a dozen original oil paintings while on location. But he also wants to take the most compelling of these vistas, combine it with the intense, visceral wilderness experience, and create a major eight to 10-foot wide legacy painting from each journey. Each canvas, he hopes, will inspire and connect others with Canada's northland.

Trépanier will be sharing the experience online, at www.TrueWild.ca, through his TrueWild video series, blogs, photos and social media. This content will be experienced through a unique interactive Google map allowing the visitor to engage with our National Parks in a completely new and unique way

No stranger to film, Trépanier has been recognized for his outstanding achievements in both cinematography and on canvas. His last film, Into The Arctic II, was nominated for Best Performing Arts / Arts Documentary at the inaugural 2013 Canadian Screen Awards (formerly the Gemini Awards).

As he develops his first cinematic TrueWild film, Trépanier hopes this medium too will connect and inspire others to experience Canada's wilderness, stirring them to take a closer look, and perhaps visit its wealth in person.

"History is filled with artists that have impacted their culture," Trépanier observed. "To encounter them, one has only to look in museums around the world, where past civilizations are remembered through their paintings, sculptures, writings and architecture."

He cited Ansel Adams, Thomas Moran, A.Y. Jackson and Bill Mason as inspirations for his work.

"Their artistic vision reached beyond their work, inspiring generations with the wilderness they portrayed on canvas, in photographs and on film," he commented. "These artists used their art to help protect the lands they were passionate about. In some cases, their influence was instrumental in the development of new parks, for the protection and enjoyment of all."

Trépanier aspires to add, in his own way, to this rich artistic legacy as he heads into the wild for chapter one of TrueWild.

The property known municipally as 19657 Main Street in the hamlet of Alton contains a schoolhouse building erected in 1875 with subsequent changes in 1876 and between 1907 and 1929. ## PAMA wants to hear from you Calls for tattoos

Whether it was a tribute, a rite of passage, or a mistake, behind every tattoo there is a story — what's yours?

The Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) wants to hear from people with tattoos. Until Sept. 13, tattoo enthusiasts in and around the Peel community can submit a photo of their tattoo or henna and share its story at pama.peelregion.ca/tattoos

Submissions may be featured in PAMA's new photography exhibition Inked: Tattoos and the Stories They Tell, which explores the individuality of tattoos and asks the question — why do we ink?

PAMA will also have a special tent set up at the 14th annual Classic Cars and Legendary Stars event in Brampton July 19 from 5 to 9 p.m. and July 20 from noon to 6 p.m. Visitors to the PAMA tent can have their tattoo professionally photographed and share their story.

"Tattoos have a fascinating history and have been worn in every culture," said Supervisor of Museum and Archive Services Marty Brent. "They have evolved in the last few decades from a statement of rebellion to self expression, which is something that we want to explore at PAMA."

In addition to crowd sourced tattoos from the community, the exhibition will feature information on the history and culture of tattoos throughout the ages. Inked: Tattoos and the Stories They Tell runs at PAMA from Nov. 16, 2013 to March 30, 2014.

PAMA is a place to explore and learn about Peel's culture and heritage, as well as use conversation, questions and stories to help make new and fascinating connections to the surrounding community. Throughout the year, PAMA offers family-friendly activities and a variety of workshops and programs for all ages.

Operated by the Region of Peel, PAMA is at 9 Wellington St. E. in Brampton. Visit their website at pama.peelregion.ca for more information.

Toxic faith to be explored at Lifetree Café next week

Ways that religion is sometimes harmful will be explored at Lifetree Café this coming Wednesday (July 24).

The program, entitled Toxic Faith: When Religion Hurts, will feature an exclusive filmed interview with Sam Brower, the private investigator who cracked open the case that led to the arrest of Warren Jeffs, the leader of the polygamous Fundamentalist Church of Latter-day Saints.

"Recent research shows that religion and church involvement enhance well-being and health," observed Lifetree representative Craig Cable. "But sometimes religion crosses from being something positive to something sinister-something toxic."

The program will run from 7 until 8 p.m. and admission is free. Snacks and beverages will be available.

Lifetree Café is at 6025 Old Church Rd. in Caledon East, in the café space in St. James' Church.

Lifetree Café is a place where people gather for conversation about life and faith in a casual coffeehouse-type setting. Questions may be directed to Bruce Neville at 416-579-9977 or Desiree Neville at 416-579-6748.

Program for July 28 "Mental Illness: Breaking the Silence, Overcoming the Shame," explores the isolation often experienced by those with mental illness-and by their loved ones.

Lifetree Café Caledon will be closed in August and will resume Sept. 4.

Town and TRCA studying revision of Bolton Special Policy Area

By Bill Rea

Bolton's Special Policy Area (SPA), governing the flood plain in the village core is currently subject to a review and update.

About 50 people were on hand last Monday for a public presentation on the study, and the fact the meeting was going on during heavy rains, which caused considerable flooding to some places to the south, did not go unnoticed.

"You picked a pretty appropriate night for your meeting," one man in the audience observed.

The study is being conducted for the Town and Toronto and Region Conservation Authority (TRCA) by MMM Group Limited.

The study on the SPA started in April, and Marisa Williams, senior policy planner for the Town, said last week's session was the second open house that had been held on the issue. She added they were getting to the end of the first phase of the study, and that there will still be lots of chance for public input.

The SPA was established about 30 years ago as a method of making sure flood risks are being properly managed, while making sure future planning needs of the Town and the viability of the core are being considered.

An update of the SPA is deemed needed because of changing planning policies over the last 30 years, as well as the availability of updated information, including technical data and flood plain mapping.

The SPA was put in place to allow for some development in the flood plain that normally would not be allowed, owing to Provincial policy. It was aimed at allowing a limited scope of development and redevelopment to help maintain a vibrant community.

Chris Tyrrell, of MMM Group, said the possible risks have all been agreed to by the Town and TRCA, as well as the Province, which approved the SPA.

Addressing the planning context, Tyrrell commented that the Town's Official Plan has policies for the Bolton core aimed at enhancing its vitality and diversity. The focus is on retail and service commercial uses, while there is also interest in building on the historic character of the area, as well as promoting the Humber River as a public asset.

Explaining a regulatory flood plain, Tyrrell said TRCA uses computer models, as well as data from actual storms to define the limits in which flooding is likely to occur. Hurricane Hazel, which took place in 1954, is the historic flood of record, and its information is used to calculate flood plains.

He added that while TRCA has been able to revise and update its flood plain mapping, there have not been a lot of changes as a result.

The existing requirements for the SPA in Bolton state that all new structures are supposed to be protected from the elevation of a regulatory flood, but if that's not achievable, protection from the one-in-500-year flood can be used, with limits on allowed uses. In addition to municipal approvals, TRCA has to permit the development too.

Flood mitigation measures have been put in place since the early 1980s, such as berms, culverts, bridges, etc.

Tyrrell said they have been working on a flood risk assessment report. A draft has been completed.

He added the second phase of the study will include looking at individual buildings to understand the potential risk that they face.

Tyrrell also observed the Town is working on an intensification study for all of Caledon, although the SPA is part of that. The second phase of the SPA study will work on coordinating the two efforts.

Concern was raised at the meeting over the evening's flooding in Toronto.

Sameer Dhalla, manager of water resources with TRCA, said they were monitoring all of the watershed, and had determined the levels were up about a metre in the SPA.

He added any new development in the SPA would require controls to maintain flows in the river.

Tyrrell told one woman at the meeting the SPA allows for limited development, and one of the aims of the study is to define those limits.

There were concerns expressed over contradictions between the limits imposed within the SPA and the intensification study. Tyrrell said the intensification study is town-wide, while the SPA is governed by Provincial policies, allowing limited scopes of development and infill. He added the SPA is not to be used for intensification unless all alternatives have been explored.

Town, TRCA get support for eco-business park through government and FCM

The federal government and Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) have announced a Green Municipal FundTM (GMF) contribution for Toronto Region Conservation Authority (TRCA) and the Town of Caledon. The $93,335 grant will help TRCA and the Town develop sustainable development guidelines for new employment land areas

The Town will use the experience of TRCA's Pearson eco-business zone to accelerate its own learning and adoption of eco-business principles.

Chandra Sharma, watershed specialist and senior manager for climate change programs with TRCA, said the program around Pearson International Airport has been going on for about four years, and has been a "very successful project."

Funded by Peel Region and the Airport, she said it's been encouraging wastewater and energy efficiencies among some 13,000 small and medium businesses within an area of about 1,200 hectares.

She said they are looking at a model that can be replicated in other areas as a way to encourage sustainable development. In Caledon, this could be applied to new employment lands.

"It aligns well with their sustainability objectives," Sharma commented, adding they're looking to create an enabling environment to attract business.

She added they are not focusing on any one area of town, since it can apply to any employment lands in Caledon.

This will allow the Town to be home to the first greenfield eco-business zone in Ontario. Tools and best practices will be developed to minimize environmental impacts, attract companies with a sustainability focus and create jobs.

The Town will work with TRCA on the implementation of the eco-business principles.

"The Caledon Eco-Business Park project is a great example of what can be achieved through multi-stakeholder collaboration, and another important step towards more responsible urban development," said TRCA Chief Executive Officer Brian Denney.

"We are pleased to be working in partnership with TRCA," said Mayor Marolyn Morrison. "With their guidance and the funding support from FCM, Caledon will continue to be a leader in providing a sustainable environment for our private and corporate citizens."

"The Harper Government is assisting municipalities across the country in achieving their goal of a cleaner and healthier environment for Canadians through the Green Municipal Fund," said Natural Resources Minister Joe Oliver. "Today's announcement is another example of how our government — in partnership with the Federation of Canadian Municipalities — is helping TRCA and the Town of Caledon build a greener future for their citizens."

"The Green Municipal Fund offers a range of resources and services that specifically address the sustainable community development needs of municipal governments," said FCM President Claude Dauphin. "The financing and knowledge provided by the Fund supports the development of communities that are more environmentally, socially and economically sustainable."

The federal government endowed the FCM with $550 million to establish the Green Municipal Fund. It supports partnerships and leveraging of both public and private-sector funding to reach higher standards of air, water and soil quality, and climate protection.

Spot check leads to arrest

A 28-year-old woman from Binbrook (south of Hamilton) was charged after being stopped at Reduce Impaired Driving Everywhere (RIDE) spot check early in the morning of June 19.

Caledon OPP reports officers noticed the validation sticker on the blue Toyota Corolla had expired at the stop on Highway 10 shortly after 1:20 a.m. When they spoke to the driver, they noticed the smell of alcohol on her breath.

She was charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle and driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in her system. Her licence was suspended for 90 days and her car was impounded for seven.

Councillor Foley explains her vote on Canadian Tire Plans in Bolton

Over the past months, I have spoken with many local residents and business owners; both those in favour of the Canadian Tire application and those opposed.

I even spoke with the farmer who currently rents the property from the development company who owns the land. I respect the views, and the right to express them, of everyone who took the time to do so. Ultimately I had one vote to cast when the matter came before council and I would like my rationale for that vote to be understood.

Why industry? The previous council selected 620 acres on the west side of Coleraine Drive, in Ward 4, for future employment (industrial) lands Nov. 17, 2009. All councillors present voted in favour of this, including the Bolton councillors of the day. Canadian Tire is applying to build on 180 acres of that parcel. The decision, for me, was about which was the best choice for the community; Canadian Tire or the likely alternative.

What about the environment? It is conceivable that a property this size could host 30 to 80 small to medium sized industries. And considering that almost every industry utilizes trucks, it is entirely possible that accumulatively they would generate more trucks, more emissions and more compliancy issues, than one large known entity. Canadian Tire has won numerous awards for environmental practices and initiatives, has recently replaced much its fleet with newer, fuel-efficient models, and enforces an anti-idling protocol; all of which translates into fewer emissions.

Fiscally responsible? While money, as they say, isn't everything we, as councillors, are fully expected to make decisions that financially benefit our Town and taxpayers. As a single entity, the Canadian Tire site would not require an internal road network with related infrastructure and maintenance costs, and therefore represents a greater net gain. They would pay a combined $4 million in annual property taxes to the Town, the Region and our school boards. Increases in our industrial assessment such as this are key to stabilizing our future residential property taxes; important for everyone and especially for our seniors. In addition, Canadian Tire would pay a combined $20 million in development charges.

Jobs? While the majority of the employees will initially relocate from the outgrown Brampton facility, Canadian Tire has stated that they will add more than 100 new jobs when fully operational, and eventually more as employees retire, move or change jobs as they do in any company. Contrary to reports of these being "only minimum wage jobs," Canadian Tire confirms they employ a variety of skilled positions. In addition, there would be roughly 350 jobs created during the estimated three-year construction period.

Benefits for local businesses? In addition to the distribution centre this facility will include about 100,000 square feet of offices. Hundreds of employees shopping and dining locally is a big plus for our retail shops, services and restaurants, whose success impacts our community in a host of positive ways.

What about the traffic? Canadian Tire reports that the average truck movements per day will be 175 in and 175 out; higher during peak seasons of spring and Christmas. Operating extended hours means a good portion of their truck traffic will occur during non-rush hours. The majority of their truck movements will be south down Coleraine, heading to either the CP or CN intermodal facilities. The Region of Peel will widen Highway 50 to six lanes up to Mayfield Road, and widen Mayfield to four lanes. The last leg of the western Bolton Arterial Road (BAR) breaks ground this month.

Is this a sure thing now? No. Our Official Plan Amendment (OPA) 26 was appealed by a developer to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB). The hearing is now slated to get underway this October and the entire process could take many months beyond. Canadian Tire has made it clear that, since they have outgrown their 40-year old facility in Brampton, it is imperative for them to get underway quickly. To that end council has asked the Provincial government to consider issuing a Ministerial Zoning Order which would allow them to proceed. Without it, Canadian Tire has indicated they may have to consider options outside of the Town of Caledon and perhaps outside of Ontario.

Regional Councillor, Ward 5,
Town of Caledon

Canadian Summer Romance

Annual helping of The Bard

It's interesting that there are some things we hate simply because they're forced upon us. Yet once we get to avail ourselves of them because we choose to, they're not so bad.

I think Shakespeare is one of those little issues many of us were forced to deal with during our school days, yet deal with in the adult world because we want to.

That was certainly the case with me when I was going to school. It was a little strange, because a lot of the kids I hung around with were avid readers. I would eagerly read stuff about topics in which I was interested, but the rest of it was really a struggle.

Not much has changed since then, despite what I do for a living. I will pass considerable time researching topics of interest to me on the internet. But finding the time to actually sit down and read a book is a real chore. I have lots of books (my late mother was an avid reader, and she had lots of sources of books, including me, since they were a convenient fallback if I was stuck for a Christmas or birthday present, so guess what constituted a good chunk of my inheritance when she died nine years ago), and I usually check out the book displays at yard sales and bazaars I have to cover. I might find time for them all, if and when I retire.

And Shakespeare was on the list of things in schools that I would have taken it or left it, if I could. The fact is interest in my academic salvation took priority. Besides, my mother and father yelled when I got bad grades (they yelled a lot when I was in high school).

So it mattered not a thing what I would have done. What I could not do was leave Shakespeare alone. I had to take it.

The rubbish we kids had to put up with in our day.

I spent five years in high school (these were the days when there was still Grade 13), and there were four helpings of Shakespeare (for reasons I have never quite understood, we were spared The Bard in Grade 9).

Grade 12 brought us Othello, and I well remember the teacher (he was head of the school's English department) introducing this section of the course with the humourless realism for which he was well-known, observing we were about to embark on the most dreaded part of the academic year for students.

So I studied these works because I had to. The truth is I normally handled Shakespeare, compared to other works studied during the year, rather well at exam time — pretty good, considering I often had trouble figuring out what the various characters were trying to say (I never have been very good at deciphering iambic pentameter).

But I came to realize that in Western society, it's hard to escape The Bard. The classic science fiction movie Forbidden Planet is thought to be based, in part, on The Tempest. One of my favourite movies is West Side Story, a yarn inspired by Romeo and Juliet.

In 1996, there was a new movie released entitled Romeo and Juliet, starring Leonardo DiCaprio before most of us had even heard of him. I went to see that film in the company of she who at the time was my girlfriend (she has subsequently become my wife and girlfriend).

There are two very lasting memories of that evening.

The movie impacted the way I spoke for a little while afterwards, as I described to Beth how we were to "egress the theatre while our feet verily treadeth though vast quantities of corn, both popped and unpopped."

Like I stated above, I was never very good at iambic pentameter, but guys do talk stupid when they're courting, don't they?

The other lasting impression involved the reaction of the audience. The theatre, which held about 300 people (rough estimate, based on memory), was packed, and there were maybe 20 in the crowd older than 30 (Beth and I in that group). The rest were mainly kids, of high school age, and The Bard was evidently part of their curriculum. I was fully aware of the age demographics when we took our seats, and fearful that among this couple of hundred kids would be several, probably male (realism again), out to make some kind statement to impress the nearby females (I was once a kid too, you know). To be sure, there was a certain amount of rowdiness during the coming attractions, but once things got down to exploring the relationship between Juliet and her Leonardo DiCaprio, the atmosphere toned down dramatically. For the rest of the movie, you could have heard teeth (probably mine) breaking on the unpopped kernels of corn. Iambic pentameter ruled, with young men and women realizing they had exams in their near future.

I have taken in Shakespeare at Stratford a number of times. The first was 16 years ago last month, when Beth and I saw Richard III. I remember because that was the weekend I popped the question (yes, that question).

But such thoughts are in the past, as I deal with the present.

Beth and I had our annual helping of The Bard last Thursday night, catching the Humber River Shakespeare company's presentation of As You Like It. If you're not in the habit of taking in these shows, which this troupe puts on annually, I would suggest you give it a try.

The performances are easy to get to, start on time (although they had to call off last Tuesday's show in Bolton because of weather issues — you take your chances when you hold outdoor events), and are very pleasant events. This is the sixth year they have been putting on these performances throughout the Humber River Watershed, including Caledon, King Township, Vaughan and even Toronto, and Beth and I have attended every year, and seen some great performances.

There are some who might wonder about what is so great about Shakespeare. The obvious answer is the guy and his writings still have relevance, which is a little remarkable, considering we're now less than three years shy of the 500th anniversary of his death. But it is a fact that his works have never been out of print or favour, and never will be.

Yes, it can be a pain in the proverbial butt for high school kids, who have no choice when it comes to taking in Shakespeare. But I've graduated, meaning I attend the shows because I want to.

Go to www.HumberRiverShakespeare.ca for more information on other performances over the next couple of weeks.

Volunteers pitched in to restore Terra Cotta Community Centre

Recently, I had the privilege of attending the grand re-opening of the Terra Cotta Community Centre.

What made this particular event especially rewarding was that the restoration of this unique community landmark was a result of the determined efforts of a dedicated group of residents in the Terra Cotta community.

Originally built on land donated by Simon Plewes, a local mill owner, with money raised through fundraising and labour provided by the congregation, the church building had $20 owing when the first service was held in January 1863. In 1950, the United Church of Canada passed a resolution to deed the hall and lands to a Board of Trustees of Terra Cotta to be used as a Community Centre. Between 1950 and 1992 — the community maintained the hall and, the “Thursday Thimblers” raised money for its maintenance and operation by quilting and a variety of other fundraising efforts.

Fast forward to today. The land and building were deeded, fundraising and donations financed construction and the majority of the labour for the renovated Community Centre was provided by dedicated Terra Cotta residents. Volunteers, who I might add, would be very happy if only $20 was all that was still outstanding!

Mayor's Report By Marolyn Morrison

An influx of new people into the community brought fresh energy and ideas, all galvanized to support this decades long effort. An Ontario Trillium grant was obtained and many fundraising events held and hours and hours of work completed all culminating renovation of this historic building.

I have often said that Caledon is a “community of communities” and the individual character, the unique history and the architectural and natural heritage of each of our villages and hamlets are the foundation of what makes Caledon the great Town it is. The hard work of Terra Cotta’s residents in restoring this beautiful centre not only reinforces the magnificence of their community, it enhances the overall attractiveness of our Town — all too often these important community landmarks are lost to development, disrepair or destruction.

The Terra Cotta Community Centre is much more than an historic building. It’s the heart of the community, it is an important gathering place, as it always has been, and it is, once again, going to be available for many, many generations to come thanks to the hard work and commitment of an exceptional community.

The residents of Terra Cotta are to be congratulated and, more importantly in my opinion, thanked most sincerely, for preserving this important part of Terra Cotta’s history and for leading the way for others in our town.

Our government's 2013 spring sitting accomplishments in Parliament

Canada kicked off the month of June with some good news — our economy has created more than one million net new jobs since the depths of the global economic recession in July 2009.

Indeed, this is the best job creation record in the G7 and it is proof that Canada’s Economic Action Plan is working.

The past few months have been productive and our government has passed a number of bills to support Canadians and Canada’s long-term prosperity. Many of those bills received Royal Assent June 19, officially making them law.

This includes the Faster Removal of Foreign Criminals Act. This new law will make it easier for the government to remove dangerous foreign criminals from our country. It will make it harder for those who may pose a risk to Canada to enter our country in the first place. It will also help remove barriers for legitimate visitors who want to come to Canada.

Immigration is a good thing

Every country in the world, of course, has certain rules which newcomers must follow if they want to become full-fledged citizens.

No doubt people hoping for citizenship aren’t completely in accord with all the rules, but they know that there is a reason for the rules, usually based on a country’s history and traditions, and the country isn’t likely to change them just to accommodate personal likes and dislikes.

As these things go, Canada is one of the world’s most generous countries, inviting more immigrants to our shores on a per capita basis than anybody else.

To me, that’s a good thing.

All of which brings us to a challenge in Ontario Superior Court Friday by three applicants for citizenship who claim that they have legitimate religious and conscientious objections to taking the mandatory declaration of allegiance to the Queen before citizenship can be granted.

Former journalist Michael McAteer — who came to Canada from Ireland several decades ago and is one of the three applicants in the case, complained that, “The idea we’re being asked to swear allegiance to an ... offshore Queen — I just couldn’t do it,” adding that to him the Monarchy “is the antithesis of everything I see a democracy should be.”

Peter Rosenthal, the lead lawyer for the applicants, said, “New Canadians who feel that there should not be a monarchy and who feel it repugnant to take an oath of allegiance to a monarch should be allowed to become citizens anyway. These people really do want to be Canadians.”

Perhaps. But not until we change our rules to accommodate their biases.

And Simone Topey, 46, a Rastafarian who emigrated here from Jamaica in 1978, said it would “deeply violate” her religious views to take an oath to the Queen.

Fair enough. Then don’t take the oath. But don’t expect Canada to forget its own culture and history just because you don’t like the Queen.

No other country in the world would jump through hoops to cater to somebody’s personal views in this way. There is no reason Canada should either.

Like it or not, the Queen represents our shared history, something I’m sure all these people knew long before they moved here.

Ottawa Journal

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

The Increasing Offenders’ Accountability for Victims Act is also now law. Building on our priority of holding offenders accountable for their actions, the legislation doubles the victim surcharge that offenders must pay and ensures that the surcharge is applied to all offenders.

We were also pleased that the Enhancing Royal Canadian Mounted Police Accountability Act is now law. The RCMP will now have the tools it needs to restore accountability within its ranks. As Minister of Public Safety Vic Toews said, “The RCMP is recognized around the world as a symbol of who we are as Canadians . . . However, Canadians’ confidence in the RCMP has been tested . . . this legislation will ensure that the RCMP is fully accountable for its actions and is open and transparent in its service to Canadians.”

A number of other bills that are now law include new measures to combat and prevent terrorism, as well as improve the Witness Protection Program. Also, thanks to the passage of a number of private member’s bills put forward by Conservative MPs, it is now illegal to conceal one’s identity during riots and unlawful assemblies. Canada’s waters are also now better protected against bulk water removal.

According to a story in the National Post, Justice Edward Morgan — who is expected to take several weeks to make his decision — told the applicants that the Queen is not only our head of state, she is also a symbol of the political system and the state itself.

That being said, however, he added that even after you take the oath, Canadians are freely allowed to criticize the Queen if they feel that way. “You swear an oath to the monarch, but that doesn’t stop you from speaking against the monarchy the next minute,” he said.

This whole case began 20 years ago when the late activist lawyer Charles Roach — who saw racism everywhere — challenged the citizenship law in the Federal Court. He lost there, but undeterred, he went to the Ontario Superior Court in 2005, but he died in 2012 and the three current applicants picked up the case on his behalf.

No now we wait. No doubt a good many Canadians wouldn’t be unhappy if Canada cut its official ties to the Queen, although a poll last year found that 46 percent of respondents were in favor of Canada remaining a constitutional monarchy, a full 10 percentage points ahead of those who opposed it.

There was also a story on the weekend from former Liberal citizenship minister Sergio Marchi saying that he was prepared to drop the oath of allegiance and, for a time, had support from then prime minister Jean Chrétien. But when it came time to act, Marchi says, Chrétien decided the timing wasn’t right, so the idea was scrapped.

Even if there was a groundswell to drop the oath of allegiance — and there clearly is not — our complicated constitutional amending formula makes it close to impossible anyway.

I have no problem at all with people who think we should not be a constitutional monarchy, just as I have no problem with people who are unhappy with the results of the last election. That’s fair enough.

But being unhappy with something is hardly reason for everybody else to turn their backs on the history of our country.

If these applicants — and any others — don’t want to take the oath of allegiance to the Queen, the solution is quite simple — don’t take it.

But, as in all stands of true “principle,” be prepared to pay the price, i.e. forget about getting your citizenship papers.

A number of new laws from the spring sitting will specifically address the issues facing Aboriginal peoples in Canada, including giving equal rights to women and girls living on reserves, increasing financial transparency for First Nations, and creating a new framework to provide safe drinking water for First Nations reserves.

Of course, this is all on top of the passage of the Economic Action Plan 2013 Act, No. 1 in the House of Commons earlier this spring, which implements many important measures from Economic Action Plan 2013. It extends for two years the temporary accelerated capital cost allowance for new investment in machinery and equipment by Canadian manufacturers, eliminates tariffs on sports equipment and baby clothing, and delivers the new First-Time Donor’s Super Credit, among others.

Through a productive and hard-working sitting of the House of Commons, our Government has delivered real results for Canadians by helping to strengthen our economy, create jobs and support families.

Jones supports Tory plan to fight hunger with local food

The Progressive Conservative Caucus at Queen’s Park has announced it is putting forward an amendment to the Local Food Act which would add a tax credit for farmers who donate products to their local food bank.

“Ontario has stagnated with little economic growth and high unemployment across the province,” said Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones. “While the PC Caucus’s priority is to provide a path to grow our economy and create jobs, we also recognize today’s reality that many Ontarians struggle to put food on their tables and need to look to their local food bank for assistance. This amendment is a simple thing we can do that will make a big difference to those families.”

Modeled on Sarnia Lambton MPP Bob Bailey’s private members bill, Fighting Hunger with Local Food Act, the amendment would grant a non-refundable tax credit worth 25 per cent of the wholesale value to farmers who choose to donate their excess agricultural products to local food banks. The bill would also permit unused tax credits to be carried forward up to five years.

Each year, while food banks struggle to provide for those in need, Ontario farmers dispose of, or plow back into their fields, more than 25 million pounds of fresh, nutritious food. Jones stated this food is healthy, tasty and fresh, but is not chosen for sale by grocers because of cosmetic reasons such as size, shape or colour. Many farmers cannot afford the additional costs incurred to collect, process and deliver their unsold produce to local food banks, despite a clear desire in the industry to do so.

In April 2011, Peel Region passed a resolution calling for the Ontario legislature to support Bailey’s bill.

Jones pointed out that currently the Local Food Act does nothing to increase the consumption of local food outside of government buildings. The PC Caucus has already announced an amendment to increase food literacy by requiring food education as a mandatory component of instruction for pupils in every grade.

“The PC Caucus believes that Ontario deserves a comprehensive Food Act that addresses the challenges that our food system and farmers are facing,” Jones commented. “That’s why we are putting forward amendments such as this tax credit, which will help our farmers and ensure that people using Ontario’s food banks will have more access to fresh, high quality Ontario food.”

Pride Week coming in Peel

By Bill Rea

July 19 to 28 will be Pride Week in Peel Region.

Regional council passed the necessary proclamation last Thursday, after receiving a delegation from Pride Committee of Peel Chair Greg Roach.

The staff report to council stated a major event during the week will be the 10th annual Peel Pride Day, held this Saturday (July 20) at Chinguacousy Park in Brampton.

The report also stated the Pride movement continues to promote inclusive communities and less discrimination.

“The Peel community is rich with diversity of many forms — a key contributor to our strength, creativity and innovation as a region,” the report added.

Orangeville Library

'Willing Wisdom' theme of upcoming talk

By Lindsey Papp

Author Tom Deans will be coming to Orangeville Public Library's Mill Street location this coming Tuesday (July 23) as part of the 150th Series: Artists and Authors @ the Library.

Deans will be talking to attendees about transitioning family wealth, the subjects of family, money and aging that he touches on in his new book, Willing Wisdom: 7 Questions to Ask Before You Die.

"The presentation is really bringing the book to life," said Deans. "The book is really trying to start conversations in the family about the inevitable and it's really largely driven by demographic."

He stated there have never been so many aging Canadians since the first wave of baby boomers turned 65 in 2011. He said they are the greatest wealth-creating generation of all time, and this can cause a lot of problems if the issue of distribution of wealth is not properly dealt with.

"They've created wealth and they're struggling to articulate in their own mind and also to articulate with their own beneficiaries how they're going to transfer their wealth," he said. "As a consequence, we have 12.5 million aging adults without a will. It's a staggering problem with devastating consequences unless we start to do something different."

He described the book as being a bit contrary to people who view their wills as a secret document, a document that isn't discussed even if the will has been written.

This is posing a new challenge because of the way people are dying now. It's not a single health event that leads to death. With advances in health care, people who suffer an illness have a long convalescence.

He said people are just not dying the way they used to, so they're relying on family to provide late-in-life care in cases where lives and the retirement period are longer.

However, the aged are not the only focus of this book.

"Whether you are an aging parent or a young person who has assets, it is important to have these conversations when you are healthy and thinking clearly," he said. "Dying without a will can leave a legacy of chaos, anger and regret for those who matter most."

When a person dies without a will – and they do every day – the government has its own formula for dispensing and dividing assets. It's a lengthy and expensive process.

"It's awkward when children don't know if their parents have a will," Deans said. "They don't know how to start the conversation. If the kids broach the subject they look like they want something."

On the flip side of that coin is the parents who debate having the conversation, feeling that they could be starting something that could spin out of control by talking to family about who gets what when.

One of the subjects the book tackles is the fear of death. Deans mentions the superstitions around someone creating a will, thinking that they are expediting their own death by focusing on it for any period of time.

The element of real fear when people directly consider their own death is also a powerful motivator to skip over the necessary. There is a false sense of security in thinking the government can be counted on to divide what's left. Procrastination and inefficient marketing by the legal community rounds out the excuses used to delay the creation of a will.

Deans says it's important to remember that a will isn't just about the division of assets. It includes important topics like guardianship for children under 18, advanced health care directives, and explicit instructions to be left for children or family to deal with.

"When a will isn't written, all of these things go ignored and that is really where a great deal of the sadness really shows up," he said. "There is something in this book for everyone, something in this talk for everyone. Why wouldn't we share our giving decisions with our children, when will we tell them what they're going to get?"

He said there is more the legal community can be doing to remind clients of the importance of creating or updating their will. There is a call to action for them to do more. For everyone else it's a reminder that they are going to be relying on family for care. Will it be the family you keep secrets from, or the one where you're open and transparent about what you have and how it will transfer?

"It's about leaving more than just money to your children, to your friends or to your charities of choice," Deans said. "It's about leaving the ideas and the purpose behind that wealth."

The talk will start at 1 p.m. at the Library. His book is available at BookLore, on First Street in Orangeville.

Government invests in Headwaters hospital

The Province is helping Headwaters Health Care Centre make upgrades to improve health services and increase access to care for area residents.

The Priority Ambulatory Care Program project will expand and renovate the ambulatory care and surgical services at Headwaters. The expansion and renovation will support reductions in wait times, help to accommodate ambulatory care growth and work to integrate local health systems within the Central West Local Health Integration Network (LHIN).

In addition, the expansion will accommodate the chemotherapy and minor procedure suites, as well as ambulatory exam and treatment space, and renovations will focus on the surgical suite to ensure it meets current planning standards.

Ensuring access to the right care, at the right time and in the right place supports Ontario's Action Plan for Health Care and is part of the government's efforts to build a strong economy and a fair society for the benefit of all.

"Small and rural hospitals in Ontario are using this new support to improve their facilities and make it easier for patients across the province, regardless of where they live, to be able to access the care they need, when and where they need it," commented Health and Long-Term Care Minister Deb Matthews.

"To meet the growing demand in our community for outpatient care at Headwaters Health Care Centre, we need to redevelop some of our existing space and create some new space for surgery and specialist clinics, like orthopaedics and oncology," Headwaters President and CEO Liz Ruegg remarked. "I am thrilled and excited to be able to start to make the much needed improvements for our patients, staff, physicians and volunteers, thanks to the support from the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care. In conjunction with our generous community and their ongoing support, Headwaters will be able to continue to deliver high quality, efficient and safe care close to home."

"The Central West LHIN welcomes the Ministry's commitment to fund the redevelopment of the Ambulatory Care Program at Headwaters Health Care Centre, LHIN Board Chair Maria Britto added. "This is a very sound investment to support the residents in our rural communities and aligns perfectly with Ontario's Action Plan to improve health care services locally, which is also one of the priorities of the Central West LHIN."

Tour de Terra Cotta attracting record number of cyclists

More than 700 cyclists, from as far away as Hong Kong, Italy and across the U.S. and Canada, are going to be participating in this year's annual Tour de Terra Cotta cycling race Aug. 5.

The race, through the scenic hills of Caledon, has gained international attention since it began in 2005, when 54 cyclists raced across the finish line.

"We're thrilled the race is attracting more cyclists, from here, and around the world, each year," said Race Director Brad Hains. "It's a great opportunity for people to share their passion for the sport, and bring our community together. We're expecting well over 1,000 spectators."

This year, the race's founder and the most "experienced" of the cyclists participating, Ted Webb, turned 80.

"Cycling is my life long passion," he said. "My goal is to inspire others to take up the sport. I hope to stay in this race at least until I'm 90."

Webb will be leading Team Ted along the race course.

The Tour de Terra Cotta includes six cycling events for youth and adults of all levels, from the 8.68-kilometre youth road race, all the way up to the signature 104-km Tour de France style elite road race. The race features full road closures (no yellow line rule), chip timing, age group cash prizes, a Vendor Expo, barbecue and beer garden. The races run from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and start on King Street.

A portion of the race proceeds will go to Caledon's Meals on Wheels, and Terra Cotta's Community Centre restoration project. The Tour de Terra Cotta is organized entirely by volunteers, and sponsored in part by Dimpfleier.

Caledon FC drops below .500 after 3-1 loss

Written By BRIAN LOCKHART

The Caledon FC tied it at one early in the first half of last Thursday (July 11) night's Ontario Soccer League game against Mississauga Portofino at Caledon East Community Park, but the Mississauga responded with two more goals to end the game at 3-1.

The loss leaves Caledon still struggling to notch a couple of wins to get on the plus side this season.

After giving up a goal in the first half, the Caledon response was a hard drive that resulted in several chances at the Portofino end. But they couldn't find the back of the net.

The squad was still feeling a 4-1 loss against Wisla United the previous week.

"It was a bit rough," said Caledon co-captain Tristan Costa of the game against Wisla. "We kept them at par for the first half. When it came to the second half, they switched up the formation and opened up the field and kind of broke us down a bit. We got a bit frustrated when calls weren't going our way. That led to a couple of cards and a few fouls. By the end of the game, a couple of our guys were ejected."

Despite struggling for part of the season, Costa said the team is still turning out good performances.

"We have nine points," he said. "The last three games we played were three games we should have won. But we dropped points here and there. We had a day game, a hot game, in Norval against Croatia, that we lost 1-0 on a penalty. We're not being a 90-minute team, I'd say. We're playing good for the first hour of the game, and then the last 30 minutes we're breaking down. I don't know if it's

Impaired driver spotted on Airport Road

A tip to police from a citizen early Saturday morning led to a 65-year-old Brampton man being charged.

Caledon OPP reports the citizen made the call at about 1:35 a.m. regarding an erratic driver in the area of Airport Road and Healey Road. Officers were able to find the vehicle and once they stopped it and started talking to the driver they detected a strong smell of alcohol on his breath. With the assistance of the officers, the driver got out of the vehicle and they observed that he was unsteady on his feet. As a result, he was arrested and charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle, driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in his system, driving while disqualified and dangerous operation of a motor vehicle.

Peregrine falcons come home to roost at Etobicoke General Hospital

Patients, visitors and local residents have been eagerly watching the skies around Etobicoke General Hospital this summer as a family of peregrine falcons have taken up residence behind the blue "H" sign on the east side of the building at roof level.

Parent falcons Hurricane and Chessie have nested at the hospital site for many years and returned again to raise a family. This summer, they welcomed four new hatchlings to their family: two males and two females.

The peregrine falcon is an endangered species, which the Ministry of Natural Resources tracks with leg bands. In June, the Ministry was on-site at the hospital to determine the sex of each hatchling and band them for identification purposes. At that point, the hospital decided to hold a contest for staff to officially name each of the chicks.

Osler staff flexed their creative muscles and submitted more than 200 names, which was narrowed down to eight possibilities before being put to a vote. Osler staff and Twitter followers were asked to help choose the names of the four peregrine falcon chicks. The two males have been named Maverick and Apollo while the females have been given the monikers Blizzard and Aura.

"Patients and visitors of the hospital are treated to a show each summer as the parent falcons, often followed by their young, fly around the hospital building and perch on the nearby hydro wires," said William Osler Health System Vice-President of Development and Information Technology Ann Ford. "We are excited to host these falcons as they raise the newest members of their family and are pleased that our staff and on-line community could take part in naming an endangered species."

While all of the chicks had successfully fledged and were learning to fly, Apollo suffered a serious wing injury that could not be treated. He was put to sleep by a veterinarian July 4. Falcons rely heavily on their flight ability to hunt and rarely survive in the wild when it is compromised. Apollo was Osler's first falcon loss since Etobicoke General became a foster site for the birds in 2006.

a fitness issue or a mental issue, but it's something we've got to fix."

Going into last Thursday night's game, it was the first time Caledon had met Mississauga this year.

"They're two points ahead of us," Costa observed. "We don't really know too much about them. We have two games in hand over them, so if we win this game we'll shoot up to about fourth place. The season's not over yet. We still have a good chunk of the season to make up points. We dropped those points early on, but we can't make those mistakes any more. We can't always be looking at the referees to give us our calls. We just have to play our game. We have a very skilled team, we just have to play to our strengths."

The Caledon squad will travel to Orangeville to take on the Athletic tonight (Thursday), with a 9:45 p.m. start.

They return to their home pitch in Caledon next Thursday (July 25) to host the Erin Mills Eagles. Game time is 9 p.m.
