SALAMANDER FESTIVAL BRINGS CROWDS TO BELFOUNTAIN

The weather was great Saturday for the 17th annual Belfountain Salamander Festival. And what would a Salamander festival be without salamanders? Local resident Madi Trumble, 6, was making friends with this jefferson salamander at the booth run by the Ministry of Natural Resources. Turn to page 9 for more scenes of the Festival.

Brampton makes pitch for more seats at Regional council

The City of Brampton would like makes sense," she said.

Caledon Councillor Richard Patfour more votes at the Peel Regional council table, but the other local mu- erak said such a model, with just the nicipalities are going to get a chance mayor and four Regional councillors to discuss it.

The topic took up several hours of debate at last Thursday's Regional council meeting, with the Brampton contingent calling on council to pass a motion asking the Province to authorize the increase so it could be in place for the 2014 municipal elections.

Instead, councillors voted to inform Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Linda Jeffrey that discussions been deferred to allow for discussions at the local level.

Brampton Mayor Susan Fennell told Regional councillors a task force had been set up to look at ways to get all members of City council to sit at the regional level too. She said this more in line with the concept of representation by population (rep by pop).

Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion pointed out that following rep by pop would mean Caledon's representation would be cut to one at the Region (she stressed she was not recommending that).

But she also said there are problems with the set up, pointing out it was established years ago through political decisions.

"It's been screwed up ever since."

Mississauga Councillor Pat Mullin today commented there is merit in having Several councillors charged it would be premature to refer the matter to Queen's Park without more discussion at the local level. Mississauga Councillor Pat Saito said ot would be irresponsible.

Councillor Brampton have started and that the matter has Sprovieri agreed it should be done carefully, but he added the process started about three years ago at the City level. He added there have been troubles with both area and Regional councillors being expected to be at events and involved in all the issues. He said things usually work well, but move would bring Regional council there are times when the different levels are at odds.

Brampton Councillor Palleschi said there is still a long way to go before this is approved. "It's absolutely not a done deal," he commented, pointing out a triple majority would be needed (that means support of the majority at the Region, a majority of the local municipal councils and the support of the councillors representing a majority of the voters in Peel).

Mississauga Councillor Bonnie Crombie stressed the need for debate at the local councils, adding Jeffrey won't act until the councils have been consulted.

She was also concerned there would be opposition to increasing the size of council.

"I think it's a very aggressive schedule," she remarked. "I don't want to be John accused wrongly of bloating our coun-

Morrison added this has not come from out of the blue, pointing out there's been lots of talk about representation around the council table. "I always believe in fairness," she said. "I think it's only fair that Brampton have the opportunity to be one

Caledon Councillor Patti Foley said she was sympathetic to what Brampton wants, but she too pointed to the need to talk about it with constituents. "I think it's something really important that needs discussion," she said.

Foley also said she wasn't sure the timelines could work to get this in place for next year's election, especially since municipal councils will soon be dealing with their budgets. "I'm not sure the logistics are doable," she said.

Mississauga Councillor Ron Starr commented that if they were talking Caledon Mayor Marolyn Morrison about getting all this in place for the 2018 elections, he'd be the first to vote in favour. "It's all about timing," he

"We're not just checking commercial vehicles. Any vehicle that looks like it could potentially be unsafe is also being pulled over and inspected at the same time," said Caledon OPP Constable Steven Szabo last Wednesday at the site near Orangeville. Suspect vehicles coming along the bypass were waved off to the side of the road where a Ministry of Transportation officer would begin by checking documentation. This could

"We're also checking for dangerous goods," Szabo said, advising that 10 such charges were laid Wednesday, and 12 Thursday in Bolton.

In all, 40 vehicles were placed out of service Wednesday, six being so unfit for the road that their licence plates were removed and they were towed away for impounding. There were 47 vehicles yanked Thursday, and nine plates removed.

"Some are minor things that can be fixed on scene, like load security issues," he said. "It could be just adding another strap or tightening up something or removing something from a cargo area and then they can be on their way after that point."

Szabo said that for the most part if it's something minor, chances are they'll walk away with a warning.

"But if it's something that being a commercial vehicle driver/operator that they know they need to have completed to be in compliance, then by all means they'll be receiving a provincial offence notice ticket for that,"

He added that professional drivers - the ones who work to make be sure and regulations — also appreciate seeing those rules enforced.

"As much as people may not like it respect what we're doing out here, because they have family members that are driving alongside commercial vehicles and they want those vehicles to be safe," he said.

Officers on the bypass issued 38 document charges, 23 defective equipment charges, four Compulsory Automobile Insurance Act (CAIC) charges, 52 warnings, and four "other" charges.

There were 46 document charges issued in Bolton, 30 defective equipment charges, three CAIA charges, 44 warnings and 17 other charges under the highway Traffic Act.

'In Caledon we're very fortunate, we take commercial vehicle safety as one of the top priorities, so we have a lot of inspectors," the constable said. "This is one of our major blitzes here."

Officers from OPP, Peel, Halton, Consequences for each infraction Waterloo, Orangeville and Caledon, were up to individual officers, but along with representatives from the Ministries of Transportation and Environment participated in the blitz. Szabo stated that the relationship among the neighbouring police services is great. He said although they're wearing different crests on their shoulders they are all working together for the greater safety of all their communities.

'All these municipalities are more The blitz was a huge joint task force than happy to come here because these vehicles are either coming from way to their jurisdiction," he said. "By being here in this central area these are vehicles that potentially would be unsafe in their areas as well.

Bolton resident Gordon Goodfellow has been buying tickets in the annual Car Draw held by the Stayner Lions for a couple of years, and this year, things really paid off. He was the winner of this 2014 Mustang convertible in the Sept. 22 draw. He said this is the first time he's ever won anything like this, adding he learned of the good news when he received a phone call at home. "I thought it was just somebody being smart," he commented. He paid $20 for three tickets. The car was supplied by Hanna Motors of Collingwood, who also provided the jackets he and his wife Beryl are wearing here.

Community Consultation for The Village of Bolton Heritage Conservation District Study

You are invited to attend a community consultation meeting to discuss the Village of Bolton Heritage Conservation District Study on October 24, 2013.

What is a Heritage Conservation District Study?

In support of public interest in heritage issues, the Town has retained ERA Architects Inc. to undertake the Village of Bolton Heritage Conservation District Study (HCD Study). The HCD Study will assess the village's cultural heritage resources and recommend whether an area(s) within the historic village core should be considered for Heritage Conservation District designation under the Ontario Heritage Act.

This meeting is intended to introduce the project team, HCD Study and to get your feedback. Presentations by the project team will include a brief summary of initial research, an overview of comparable HCDs in Ontario, what HCD designation means for property owners, and a discussion of the benefits of heritage district designation. A community mapping exercise will also be conducted in order to facilitate dialogue of what you value about the Study Area. The formal presentation will begin at 7 p.m., however, the hall will be open from 6:30 p.m. to allow for a public review of display boards and other information.

When and where is it?

The community consultation meeting is to be held:

Date: Thursday, October 24, 2013 Time: 6:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

(presentation starts at 7:00 p.m.) Location: Albion-Bolton Community

Adult programs start tonight

New programs, activities this month at PAMA

Visit the Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) this month for a fun new fall lineup of educational arts and culture programs and activities for all ages.

There are general tours every Thursday at 7 p.m., free with admission. A PAMA staff member will lead the half-hour tour of a selected exhibition, highlighting key points, artifacts, and/or pieces. All tours meet in the Art Gallery lobby. Check the General Tour schedule online at pama. peelregion.ca

There are also drop-in family activities Saturdays and Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m, again free with admission. These activities are inspired by the exhibitions. Each week, families can make and take home easy projects for all ages.

Registered Adult Programs Learn Your "-ISMs"

This will be a four-session program, running from tonight (Oct. 3) to Oct. 24 from 7 to 9 p.m. It's for those who ever wanted to know the difference between a Matisse and a Monet, wondered what "pointillism" is or are completely mystified by modern art. This introductory class will allow participants to learn about early 20th century art, from Impressionism to Expressionism and Surrealism to Dadaism. This course provides a sampling of all the "-isms" of the time period. The fee is $60 for non-members and $54 for members.

Idea of one religion is topic at Lifetree

The idea that one religion can really have all the answers will be explored at Lifetree Café this coming Wednesday (Oct. 9).

The program, entitled Only One Way to God? Can One Religion Really Have All the Answers?, will feature the filmed story of Valerie Winn, an American whose spiritual journey led her to a Chinese village where she encountered an underground church. In the film, Winn describes her encounters with various religions and how they shaped her.

"I finally said, 'God, would you just show me if you're real?" Winn said.

The program runs from 7 until 8 p.m., and admission is free. Snacks and beverages will be available.

Lifetree Café is at 6025 Old Church Rd. in Caledon East, in the café space in St. James' Church. It is a place where people gather for conversation about life and faith in a casual coffeehouse-type setting. Questions about Lifetree may be directed to Bruce Neville at 416-579-9977 or Desiree Neville at 416-579-6748.

Interesting things to see and do at Belfountain Salamander Festival

Derek Betty of the Izaak Walton Fly Fishing Club was teaching some of the finer points of fly-tying to people like James Lynch of Cheltenham and his daughter Sydney, 9.

Marion's Country Band provided some of the music at the Salamander Festival. The members were Paul Holmes, Don Gregson, Wendy Hasson, Sam Leitch, Earl Burt and Marion Armstrong.

Belfountain was a very busy place Saturday for the 17th annual Belfountain Salamander Festival. The festival was co-sponsored by Credit Valley Conservation and Belfountain Community Organization in partnership with the Belfountain Village Church, Belfountain Public School and Town of Caledon. Credit Valley Conservation were giving people the chance to make bird feeders from pine cones. Rachel Robson, 11, of Erin was working on hers.

There was no shortage of things to eat, and some of the offerings were pretty interesting. Kira Doerwald was serving up squash soup in pumpkin bowls.

On the other hand, it's also scary.

Over the two days, police stopped to inspect almost 200 vehicles that caught their eye, and not quite half of them were found to have flaws serious enough to have them yanked off the road.

We readily grant that there are very reputable companies out there that put trucks on the road, and which do a good job of making sure their rigs are in good repair. They shouldn't worry us too much. The people who run these operations know they do themselves no favours if their equipment causes carnage.

But as police learned last week, there are a number out there who apparently couldn't

That's why we hope there will be more of these blitzes.

Members of each policing system everywhere take an oath to protect and serve.

This article is my opinion, or my thruths, that I know them to be.

The law states that abuse towards women is a criminal offence, punishable by law. All abusers should be charged and held accountable, which has not always been the case in Caledon; even with known abusers.

Abuse of any kind to which a woman can be exposed; sexual, verbal or written threats, etc. These can be nightmares. Women can be afraid to go for walks, lose the privacy of their own yards, be afraid of being alone in parking lots and even of a knock on the door. Everything coming out of fear destroys.

Discrimination against women is not always taken seriously. Years of abuse, months or even five minutes may take their toll on women, never leaving them free of fear. Abuse invades one's heart and soul, affecting her personal life and her total well-

Any and every type of fearful, destroying abuse toward women is a personal "rape" in some way. And when abusers are not held accountable and charged, it violates every word of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

From time to time, one reads articles about the police advising to be aware of your surroundings, report anything suspicious, call 9-1-1, etc. If any woman does any or all of the above and the abuse continues, then what?

My thoughts remind me constantly of the suicide of a woman who was a victim of total rape and total abuse. All the system seems to do is talk, saying that something must be done. But sadly, and frightening for all victims of rape, total abuse and bullying is death was a better companion than her life. Her name was Rehtaeh Parsons. The RCMP in Halifax failed her. Serve and protect? Too little, too late.

We all strive for the pursuit of love and happiness, but too many are denied the right to obtain this if endless abuse, along with threats, are allowed. Will we soon be a country that allows men to not just abuse and rape, but stone women to death?

Why must we live in fear? It's long overdue for all of us to reveal abuse and threats, including documentation — to come forward.

We must protect ourselves. Time for pepper spray, tasers, permission to own and carry a firearm. Why not?

To say with good faith our policing system does good work, but they do not prosecute various kinds of victimizing, such as abuse and bullying, only adds to one's fearful existence, depriving women of their human rights and dignity.

May God help us all. This beautiful young woman, Rehtaeh,

Rep by pop not only issue

Bill Rea

Peel Regional council last week spent several hours discussing the idea of increasing Brampton's representation on said council from seven to 11.

I guess it could have been called a debate, except it was a little hard to tell exactly what the sides were. There was very little in the way of comments against the idea. With the possible exception of myself, no one seemed to have much of a problem with it, and even my reservations, which I'll get to soon, were relatively minor, and even contradictory, if that makes any sense.

Most of the discussion dealt with process Brampton are anxious to get these four extra quickly. There are 338 seats in the House,

Regional council seats in place for people to run for them in the next municipal elections, which are set for a little more than a year from now.

The main issue with the timing is there was question (actually several questions) as to whether everything could be pulled together that fast, especially since the whole thing has to has to be approved at the Provincial level. And the councillors from Caledon and Mississauga wanted a reasonable chance to debate the matter among themselves, and consult also some resentment expressed that councillors would be expected to discuss such matters should be top of their minds.

For what it's worth, I appreciate and understand the indignation over the timing. The current term of council is almost three years old, so if increasing Brampton's representation has been so all-fired important, then they have had ample time to address it.

One of the high points of the discussion came when one councillor complained about the amount of time that they had frittered away. The discussion was interrupted by a lunch break and Regional Chair Émil Kolb (in keeping with what is rapidly becoming a practice at council meetings) issuing a directive for everyone in the room to take a stretch break (there were no objections to that). But the question was raised about what people taking in their first Regional council meeting would think about how things were (or were not) progressing.

Although I could think of better ways to kill a Thursday morning and early afternoon, it was really nothing too unusual. I have been attending meetings of that nature for going on 30 years, and excessive time wasting goes with the proverbial territory. I once covered a meeting in which participants spent about 90 minutes debating the motion to approve the agenda.

Besides, as tedious as it all was, it was an exercise in democracy; something that's important to me.

tion increased is to bring the alignment of council in line with the concept of representation by popula-(commonly tion > pop"). Rep by pop is a very laudable concept. According to my understanding, it reessence of democracy. It certainly sounds desirable. But is it beneficial?

Having representation based on the number of people living in a given area is certainly something that should be striven for, but it's not the only thing. And under certain circumstances, it's really not so great. For example, strict adherence to rep by pop would mean Caledon would get maybe one representative at the Region. There are some shallow-thinking people who would cheer at such an idea, but Caledon would certainly suffer if it became reality.

Besides, rep by pop is generally given a certain amount of lip service in many assemblies. The House of Commons of Canada is and the timing of the move. The folks in an example that springs to mind fairly > and the beautiful province of Prince Edward Island has approximately 0.42297 per cent of the population of this country. A bit of work with a calculator tells me that, according to rep by pop, PEI is entitled to almost one and a half MPs (I'll let others puzzle over what constitutes half an MP). Yet there are four reps for our smallest province, rep by pop evidently be damned.

So there is such a thing as regional reality that argues against rep by pop. It's even better reflected in the Canadian Senate, where the representabased mainly on region.

I think that demonstrates that while rep by pop is a legitimate consideration, there are during the period when municipal budgets other factors that belong in the mix. And that's why I'm not sure adding four more Brampton votes at the Regional table is such a hot idea. Among other things, it could reduce Caledon's clout at the table.

On the positive side, this move on the part of Brampton bucks a trend that has been adopted over recent years by short-sighted people with influence; namely the trend to reduce the number of elected positions.

I personally get enraged when I hear some high-placed official telling me that cutting the number of elected representatives is going to save me money. For one thing, the ones who are left usually expect (with considerable justification) more money because their workloads are heavier. There would also be calls for more support staff. At best, such moves are nothing more than symbolic, and usually, they are just cosmetic.

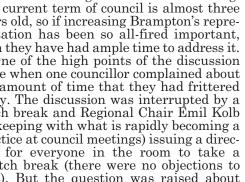

Besides, democracy was meant to be a variety of things, and dirt cheep ain't on that

The really nice part of this move, whether we like it or not, is it's being initiated at the local level. True, the Province will have to go along with it, but the bosses at Queen's Park have not stuck their noses into this and started issuing directives. The sad fact is they frequently do.

I was talking to a person a couple of weeks ago who is going to be playing a role in next year's municipal elections, and one of the issues that was raised was how to increase voter turnout. My position was the only way to get people out for municipal elections is for them to first be able to take that level of government seriously. And I don't think they will ever do that until the Province starts showing that level some respect. The fact is the people running the show at Queen's Park don't. They brought in the Megacity in Toronto, even though the voters there told them not to. They increased the length of council terms from three to four years with no consultation. The adjusted election dates from November to October. Granted, I thought the idea had some merit, but could they not have consulted the people who pay the freight?

I start to wonder if the Province would let Brampton have those additional councillors, and I'm willing to bet that one way or another, the will of the electorate won't even be on the agenda.

That also ties into why my views on the issue could be deemed contradictory. The reason Brampton officials want their

The recent death of bees in record numbers continues to concern scientists, beekeepers, farmers and regulatory bodies alike.

aybe it's just me, but wouldn't you think that a prominent doctor known as a hero for his tireless efforts during the 2003 SARS crisis would rather be remembered for saving lives than for advocating statesanctioned killing?

Apparently not. At least not in the case of Dr. Donald Low, who recently died at age 68 from a brain tumor, but not before recording a video openly advocating doctor-assisted suicide.

The Hippocratic Oath aside – you know, where doctors pledge to do what they can to save lives – he opted to take advantage of his admittedly terrible predicament and become a posthumous hero for those who believe that the state should be officially sanctioned to kill the terminally ill.

"I'm worried about how it's going to "I know it's "I know it's end," he said in the video. "I know it"s going to end, it's never going to get better. So, I'm going to die. What worries me is how I'm going to die.

'Am I going to end up being paralyzed and have to be carried from the bathroom to the bed? Am I going to have trouble swallowing? I won't be able to take in food. What the end is going to look like, that's what's bothering me the most."

He said that as a doctor he looked into ways to get himself a combination of narcotics and life-ending drugs used in countries where assisted suicide is legal (e.g. Switzerland and the Netherlands.) "It's drinking a cocktail, and you fall asleep.

'What surprised me the most," he continued, "was the objection to it, the inability to do it in Canada.

Surely it didn't surprise him at all. As a doctor, he would have been well aware of the many debates on the subject, both in Canada and around the world. He would have known that those of us who oppose state-sanctioned killing (and yes, I'm also against abortion and capital punishment) not only have strong moral qualms about the practice but fear that the power – like all state power – would be abused.

It certainly is abused in the Netherlands, despite laws – which Canadian advocates wish to emulate – supposedly guaranteeing protection against unwanted assisted suicides. Studies in the Netherlands have shown up to one-third of people killed didn't ask to

Low also would have known how worried the concept makes those with disabilities, and their loved ones, who fear – with good cause – that they wouldn't measure up to what the state decides is an acceptable level of life in order to be allowed to keep on living it. Or that the powers would be used abused – by greedy family members anxious to get their hands on Mom's assets.

Even Ontario Premier Kathleen Wynne waded into the debate by declaring that Ottawa shouldn't ignore the concerns Canadians have about end-of-life decisions.

"This is on the minds of many people across the country," she said. "It's about human beings deciding what kinds of choices they believe they should have." Ottawa isn't ignoring it. Most MPs simply don't agree with Wynne. A difference of opinion is not the same as ignoring an issue. Fact is, Parliament has dealt with the issue nine times in the past two decades – that's nine times – and, so far, it hasn't passed muster.

Just three years ago, a private member's bill from Bloc Quebecois MP Francine Lalonde, who herself had cancer, was crushed in a 228-59 vote. It called for the usual legal protections, but anybody who has gone beyond the written promises and seen how such laws work in practice understands that many of these promises aren't worth the paper they are written on.

Another telling observation: In the Saturday Star's Insight section, most of the center-fold is taken up by two stories: a column lauding Low's courage and an excerpt from the recently-published book of Star writer Barbara Turnbull.

You may remember Turnbull. Thirty years ago, as an 18-year-old woman, she was shot during a robbery. She almost died. Her spinal chord was severed and she became a high-level quadriplegic. "That means I can move only my head and shoulders and require help for everything from eating and brushing my teeth to bathing and emptying my bowels," she wrote.
"But life goes on..." And for her, it certainly has. She has been a successful journalist and strong advocate for those with disabilities. She continues unbowed, an inspiring example of raw courage in the face of overwhelming devastation.

I don't know her view of assisted-suicide, but I do know that many in her predicament would have wished for death and that state sanctions would have made it more attainable. But she wanted to live. And she has not only lived, but lived a successful and extraordinary life.

Give me Turnbull's outlook any time over those who believe that life itself, at whatever stage, isn't worth the ef-the province is reporting that more practice, advance new teaching and students than ever are gaining the learning concepts and continue to imskills they need for success in school and beyond.

Peel District School Board students came in around the provincial averages in the various categories when it came to meeting the standards set for Ontario kids, and in a lot of cases, the Peel numbers have improved over last year.

"As a board, we're pleased to see our EQAO results continue to rise, and know the tremendous effort it takes to improve by several percent-Tony Pontes commented. "We all share in the pride of this accomplishment—and the enormous benefit to our students and their families. This success is a credit to our skilled staff and their unwavering commitment to in each student.

"These results, especially our impressive gains on the writing and math assessments, are a tribute to the hard work of staff in schools and centres," Superintendent of Curriculum and Instruction Support Services Shawn Moynihan added. "To continue to raise the bar on student engagement and achievement, we will continue our organizational focus on the implementation of targeted strategies and supports to improve the literacy and numeracy skills of our students.

The Dufferin-Peel Board reported the results mark the fifth consecutive year in which the percentage of students achieving at, or above, the provincial standard (Levels 3 or 4) in Grades 3 and 6 has met or exceeded the provincial averages.

Dufferin-Peel students exceeded the provincial average by between one and four per cent in all six assessment

"The results are clear," Director of Education John Kostoff commented. "Dufferin-Peel students have outpertently over time. weekend, but they also learned a valuable lesson — never let up. The Hawks travelled to Fergus Friday night and left with a 2-1 win after going into overtime and scoring early in the extra period. Launching into the third period with a one goal deficit, the Hawks scored on a short-handed effort by Christian Bonaldi at the midway

The Caledon Junior C Golden

Hawks had some success over the mark to make it a brand new game. The teams returned for a five-minute overtime period and Caledon took the win on a goal from Patrick Savella on a power-play opportunity.

We've just got to play a full 60 minutes and not take a period off," said Hawk defenceman Cody Forgione. "That's what hurts us."

They got the two points and their third win of the season.

The return to home ice Sunday to face the Penetang Kings went sour when the Hawks allowed three unanswered Penetang goals in the second period.

The Hawks were leading 6-2 at the end of the first period — usually a recipe for a win.

But the Kings' response in the second brought the visitors within a goal and the teams came back out for the final 20 minutes with Caledon leading 6-5. After getting a two-goal lead early in the frame, the Hawks allowed two goals and the game was tied at seven.

It didn't take long for things to be over. Penetang scored the winning goal after 21 seconds of overtime.

"I think after the first, we got a little too excited about scoring," Forgione said. "We weren't worried about defence as much. We went into the room and talked. We said, don't be too excited, it's still zero-zero. We have to keep the same mentality as before the game started. I think we just started blowing the zone a little too early and getting too excited about playing offence instead of worrying about playing defence.

By the time clock ticked off to the last couple of minutes the squad figured that they would have to shut down Penetang and go into OT.

"We were trying to get it to over-time because they had the momen-tum after scoring that goal," he said. "The coach was saying 'stick to the systems, dump it in, chase, keep going and work down low.' Hopefully we could score and get another two points." The system worked to kill the final couple of minutes, but in the overtime period, the Kings took advantage of the situation and the final goal was nicely executed with a pass from behind the net and a Penetang player getting a free shot which found the back of the net.

The final was 8-7 for the Kings. The Hawks will travel to Stayner tonight (Thursday) to face the Siskins with an 8:30 p.m. start.

They will return to home ice at Caledon East arena Sunday to host the Orillia Terriers.

CARD OF THANKS

Amy, Riley and Ryan

The family of Jean Brown would like to thank all those who supported us during this difficult time. The prayers, food, cards, flowers and words of sympathy and understanding helped ease the pain of Jean's passing. The staff at Dufferin Oaks are truly amazing. Words cannot adequately express our thanks for the wonderful support and care you gave to both Jean and us. To neighbours, friends, extended family members and our church family, we would like to say thank you for all your acts of kindness. Jean's wonderful sense of humour and quick wit was central in memories shared. Thank you for Special thanks to Bert, Joyce, and everyone at Dods and McNair Funeral Home. You went beyond all expectations. Above all, we want to thank our ministers. Major Carson and Captain Teresa Decker for their unfailing ministry to Jean and throughout this past year. The funeral service was exactly what Jean wanted. Thank you to those who gave donations in memory of Jean to Dufferin Oaks and to the Orangeville Salvation Army Corps. She would be pleased to know she was remembered in such a thoughtful and lasting way.

Prevent kitchen fires during Fire Prevention Week

How often has the doorbell rang or the food you left sizzling on the stove until smoke filled the house?

Unattended cooking is the leading cause of home fires and injuries in the province.

"The best way to prevent kitchen fires is to never leave cooking unattended," observed Caledon Fire Chief kitchen fires include: Terry Irwin.

The Chief's advice comes as part of Fire Prevention Week (Oct. 6 to 12) and its theme to Prevent Kitchen

"Often when we're called to a fire sleeves when using the stove. Loose, a child interrupted you while you were that started in the kitchen, the resicooking, causing you to forget about dents tell us that they only left the kitchen for a few minutes," Irwin continued. "Sadly, that's all it takes for a dangerous fire to start. Help keep our community safe by taking responsibility to prevent fires from starting in the first place.'

Important steps in preventing

Paying attention when cooking especially if you are using oil or high temperatures. If you must leave for any reason, turn off the stove.

Wearing tight-fitting or rolled up venting kitchen fires.

dangling clothing can easily catch fire. Keeping a proper fitting lid near the stove. If a pot catches fire, slide the lid over the pot and turn off the stove.

· Never attempting to move a burning a.m.

Keeping a close eye on anyone in your household who is drinking and attempting to cook.

Chiropractors win big in senior hockey action

Bernie Tisdale had a big night last Monday (Sept. 23) with two goals and three assists to spark Fines Ford Lincoln to a 6-4 win over Baffo's Pizza in Caledon Senior Hockey League play.

In the other games, George's Arena Sports took over second place from Rutherford Global Logistics by shading them 3-2. Bolton Chiropractic Centre got their first win of the season in a big way by trouncing Jiffy Lube Oilers 9-2.

Fines Ford 6, Baffo's 4

In addition to Tisdale's hot hand, Fines Ford also had Nick Rotundo beating a path to the net.

He finished with one goal and three assists. Chris Spilar had a goal and an assist, while Jeff Boyles and Mike Gallop had the other Fines goals. Dominic Spignasi chipped in a single as-

Dave Brasier scored twice for Baffo's, while Mark Perrin had a goal and an assist and James Heenan scored once. Single assists went to Dave Smith, Mike Oliver, Rich Petrie, Gary Faultless, Bob McHardy, Scott Woodcock and John Castelucci.

George's 3, Rutherford 2

Three third-period goals carried George's to victory with Brett Smith and Greg Collins leading the way.

Smith had a goal and two assists while Collins had a goal and an assist. Bill Davis scored the winning goal while John Van Wagner added an as-

Garth Young and Jim Horan scored for Rutherford, with assists going to Don Dupuis, Don Hutcheson, Tony Calabro and Jim Dunbar.

BCC 9, Jiffy Lube 2

Mike Shore and Steve Tarasco led the charge with three goals each while Shore also had two assists.

Team rep Ian Kerr had a goal and three assists with Nick Taccogna adding a goal and two assists. Marty Madensky chipped in a goal and an assist, with Vince Varvaro and Scott Sinclair both helping out on two goals. Single assists went to Gary Stewart, Robert Masutti and Mike Gasparini.

Jim Rogers and Ron Sampson scored for Jiffy Lube with Greg MacIssac, Brian Fetterly and Maurizo Giorgio getting single assists.

A fixture around town, Mr. Olson hand for everyone. Even after his diagnosis, he continued to live his life to the fullest.

friend, 310 Running has renamed its fall cross country race the Don Olson Classic.

A popular staple of the cross-country race circuit, offering a spectacular course through Albion Hills Conservation Area, the race is scheduled for this Saturday (Oct. 5). The event will feature a 5K run for all ages and abilities, as well as a 2.5K race for athletes 14 and under. The 2.5K race is a ciation circuit, attracting some great runners from across the province.

The Don Olson Classic is sponsored by Husky Injection Molding Systems and in his personal life was a large the wheel while another male was at-
