Town recognizes its many volunteers

By Bill Rea

Clarence Pinkney has been contributing his talents and energies to the Caledon Agricultural Society for more than 50 years.

He may not live in town these days, but his involvement continues, and that was recognized Monday night.

Pinkney was named Caledon's 2014 Volunteer Champion at the annual Volunteer and Citizen Achievement Awards ceremony.

Pinkney said he had found out that he would be receiving the award about two weeks before.

"I was really surprised," he commented, pointing out he moved away and has been living in the Shelburne area about 10 years. He commented that people seldom get that kind of recognition after they leave.

He is still secretary of the Agricultural Society, and Monday's presentation was a sign that his contributions have not gone unnoticed.

"I was quit happy about it," he said. "I think it's an honour; quite a prestigious award."

In making the presentation, Mayor Marolyn Morrison pointed out that Pinkney has been serving the Society and Caledon Fair in various capacities for some 54 years.

"He has been an anchor, and knowledgeable resource," she commented.

Morrison pointed out he's helped with other major events of the Society, like the Strawberry Festival held every Canada Day and SnowFest. She said such events have helped put Caledon on the map.

"Clarence is there all the Pinkney told the audience at the Caledon Community Complex that he has been following a pattern in his family that has gone back generations. He said there was reference to his great-grandfather in a Bramp-ton newspaper from 1868.

He also said he started showing at the Fair in 4-H competitions as a youngster, and started getting really involved in 1961.

The evening was also devoted to recognizing the volunteer contributions of more than 40 other residents.

Caledon's Town Crier Andrew Welch observed this is National Volunteer Week, pointing out it's a time to celebrate "values than cannot be quantified."

Morrison said she was pleased to help celebrate the "extraordinary effort and achievement of some of Caledon's finest."

"We have so many volunteers in this town," the mayor declared, adding it's these people who help make it possible for others to do things they might have thought was impossible.

"Volunteers don't necessarily have the time," Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones commented. "They have the heart. Than you for having the heart."

Volunteers were recognized under different categories.

In Community and Social Services, those honoured included Melodie Belusa, Kenneth Bokor, Deanna Bootle, Carol Bromby, Yevgenia Casale, Doug Dixon, Darlene Downey, Tim Forster and Barb Shaughnessy, Nancy Gunn, Carmel Hili, Scott Jefferies, Herb Jefferson, Claire Johnston, Nick Karataglidis, Gayle Lawr, Jane Pizale, Rosa Raso, Nancy Sinclair, Monica Smith, Michele Skawski, Karen Thomas, Nicole Trefzger and Lorraine Witty.

Those being recognized for Sports and Recreation were Ken Hollis, Natalie Saarimaki and Bob Symons.

Don't forget the volunteers

It's fitting that the town of Caledon chose the Monday of National Volunteer Week to hold its annual Volunteer and Citizen Achievement Awards celebration.

It celebrates a very important component of just about any community, and especially Caledon. In addition to singling out one person for significant contributions over many years (and this year, it was the very worthy Clarence Pinkney), the event also praises the work of others. Some put in considerable time to add to the community, while others contribute a few hours here and there.

This event is put on by the Town every year, and one rather telling point is it's not a case of always seeing the same faces. It's annually a different group that gathers for the recognition. That proves what Mayor Marolyn Morrison indicated; that Caledon indeed has a very strong volunteer base.

There are people who devote much time coaching sports teams for young people, helping out with organizations like the Scouts and Guides, who take an hour or so a week delivering Meals on Wheels, or maybe spend an evening during the holidays helping party-goers safely get home through HomeJams.

While the more hours offered is better, any contribution is a big help to the community and should be remembered.

As Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones observed Monday night, it's not so much the time these people have to offer, but the heart.

How true!

Good week to thank volunteers

From April 6 to 12, Volunteer MBC is pleased to be celebrating National Volunteer Week.

It is a time to recognize, celebrate and thank Canada's 13.3 million volunteers. At Volunteer MBC, the local volunteer centre serving Peel Region, we truly believe that "volunteers grow communities."

Volunteers of all ages bring considerable value to Caledon when they give their time and talents to make a collective contribution to community service organizations, which cannot function without them. Besides delivering services that are integral to the quality of life in communities, volunteer participation also builds trust and reciprocity among people, encourages social solidarity and enhances citizens' sense that they live in a caring community.

So, please join me, our entire team at Volunteer MBC, and over 180 community service organization members, partners and supporters in saying "Thanks" to volunteers for all that they do to make our community a better place to work and live.

We encourage all residents of Caledon to join your neighbours and become a volunteer. We are here to help! Volunteer MBC offers a referral and matching service for volunteer placement within the community for all ages through one on one consultation at any one of our three convenient locations (Mississauga, Brampton and Caledon), and through our on line volunteer opportunities database. For more information and to access our on line database, visit us at www.volunteermbc.org, or call us at 905-238-2622.

A couple of comments

Bill Rea's column of April 3, "How do you miss a school bus?" Your last sentence was "... maybe the new rules aren't so bad after all."

But there is a big loophole, in that one is still allowed to use a fixed, hands-free telephone while driving.

The hands holding an object alone is not so critical. After all, we were not only taught in the '50s to use our arm outside the window to indicate intentions such as turning or stopping, it was even obligatory and part of the driving test.

Rather, it's the conversational distraction which is a big part of the problem.

How can a driver pay attention to the traffic when the boss yells at him "You're fired!" or a wife calls her husband; "I packed my suitcase — a taxi is picking me up, good-bye George."

One will be distracted by most any subject discussed on the phone.

It is still different talking to passengers in the car. While that is also a distraction, the passenger, however, also has his eyes on the road and may quiet down and even draw attention to a situation such as a traffic light.

Think of the proverbial "back-seat driver."

Phoning while driving: Bad idea, even with hands-free.

Second, MP David Tilson on the Holocaust: After mentioning the Nazi atrocities, he said "These . . . crimes against humanity must never be repeated."

But since then they already have, more than once.

Witness Cambodia which exterminated a quarter of its population, and Ruanda with a tally of nearly a million.

And the world stood by.

Third: I really appreciate and look forward to the contributions by your correspondent Claire Hoy.

With his reporting, he takes the paper beyond the local village news and provides a much wider horizon.

It happened today

There have been many books written about Titanic. As well, there have been a number of movies made on the topic. There is even a Titanic Historical Society, dedicated to maintaining the memory of a grand ocean liner that was supposed to represent humanity's final triumph over nature.

What in fact happened is Titanic had but one voyage, and it never arrived at its destination. The ship that so many considered "unsinkable" came into contact with an iceberg in the North Atlantic and went down, sending more than 1,500 people to their deaths in those frigid waters.

RMS Titanic started that fateful voyage this day, April 10, 1912.

Strategic voting doesn't work

"Democracy is the worst form of government, except for all the others."

Winston Churchill

Like Churchill, I am a great believer in democracy, although I also agree there are some flaws to it.

One of the big flaws, and one of the main reasons I enjoy this line of work that I'm in so much, is the way democracy co-exists with stupidity. Indeed, not only does the concept of democracy (in theory and especially in practice) tolerate people being silly, it seems to actively encourage it.

Democracy, especially as it's supposed to be practised in a free society (which is what this is supposed to be), means having the chance to vote at election time (although a lot of people are dumb enough not to, for reasons I have never even tried to understand). It also means having the right to stand up in public assemblies and make a fool of one's self (something I have seen a lot over the last 30 years).

A big part of the problem is too many people tend to cling to their positions, refusing to budge, no matter how sound the arguments to the contrary might be. Granted, there is sometimes political strategy at work. In other cases, people defend a position because they believe they have very large stakes, and they fear they might stand to be out a great deal if certain proposals come to reality. It's perhaps harsh to brand such people with the "silly" label. If you're trying to raise a family, keep a roof over your head or have all of your wealth wrapped up in a business that you're trying to keep afloat in tough economic times, it's only natural that you're going to be apprehensive of some things, and suspicious of whatever assurances or arguments someone on the other side might offer.

But it's true that change is part of life. Everything changes over time, and that includes opinions. We have brains, and most of us actually use them occasionally. That means we should think about our opinions and beliefs, factor in new details that we have learned over time, and make the necessary adjustments. Most of us have done that at times, with changing our opinions on things we were once passionate about.

The latest example of silliness I've come up against was in the form of a couple of media advisories I received last week.

Did you know there is an outfit called Campaign to Stop Tim Hudak, and it's apparently making the rounds of Ontario. It was to stop in North Bay Saturday, and again in Kitchener, Waterloo and Guelph this past Monday (April 7) and this week in Brampton.

The campaign is evidently the creation of the Ontario Federation of Labour (OFL), and not surprisingly, they are attacking the policies of Hudak and his Progressive Conservative colleagues at Queen's Park.

"Mr. Hudak's entire platform is centred on dismantling the labour movement to clear the way for a low-wage economy," said OFL President Sid Ryan. "He isn't fooling anyone. No matter how he tries to massage his message, Tim Hudak is still committed to the same extremist policies that would divide our workplaces, weaken workers' voices and drive down wages for everyone."

There's nothing wrong or silly about opposing Hudak or the stand that Ryan is trying to promote. I actually met Ryan a couple of times when I worked in the "big city," and while our politics would never mesh (don't even think it, Sid), I found him quite a personable fellow to have a conversation with. And indeed, I would have been astonished if any other position came from either Ryan or OFL. I also doubt Hudak is expecting an endorsement from this outfit as a possible election draws near.

But what I find bothersome is the negative

ative tone of this "campaign." If you want to oppose Hudak and his party (or any other leader and his or her party), then by all means do so, but don't call it a campaign, and don't treat it like a campaign either.

Although I admit I am not a political strategist, I wouldn't be surprised if a strategy like this backfires on Ryan and company. True, organized labour has its place, but there are many people who have serious problems with it (either legitimate or perceived). I can't think of a better way to line them all up in Hudak's corner.

OFL and regional labour councils are planning about 20 meetings to train workers to educate their colleagues, families and neighbours about what they call Hudak's hidden agenda. These meetings, according to the advisories I've seen, are closed to reporters, although media conferences are taking place.

This sounds to me like they're trying to set up what's commonly known as "strategic voting," and it's been my experience that it seldom works.

In a way, this reminds me of the often vicious opposition Mike Harris faced when he was premier, and some of the harsh things that were said to people who supported Harris and his government (I found out about that end of the deal the hard way).

I was at Queen's Park, in the media gallery overlooking the legislative chamber, the day Harris's first cabinet was sworn in, and my most powerful memory was the angry roar of the crowd outside on the lawns. These people were angry at a man who up to that point had done nothing more reprehensible than win an election. I had always assumed that was permissible in a democracy.

When I see such silly people getting too involved in the political process, I tend to side with the good guys, and such was the case with Harris for the first couple of years of his Premiership. I was working the big urban centre in those days, covering a couple of municipalities, focussing most of my attention on East York, which at the time was Canada's only borough. The mayor of East York at the time was Michael Prue, who today is a member of the NDP caucus at Queen's Park. Needless to say, my pro-Harris editorials at the time earned me some reasonably good-natured ribbing from the Mayor's Office (Prue is far too classy a guy to get vicious).

I broke with Harris over the issue of municipal amalgamation to create what is today known as Toronto. I opposed it because I believed (and still do) that most of the electorate opposed it, and since this is a democracy, their opinions are supposed to count for something.

Although I believed those opposing amalgamation were fighting the good fight, which was incidentally led by the likes of former Toronto mayor John Sewell and a woman of my acquaintance at the time named Kathleen Wynne (yes, that Kathleen Wynne), the effort soon started losing its focus and started doing stupid things. The group leading the fight called itself Citizens 4 Local Democracy (C4LD), and they ended up sticking their snoots into issues that had nothing to do with local democracy, like organizing a protest when former American president George HW Bush came to town.

I personally covered that protest, driving home at the end convinced that what I had seen had done more to promote ultraconservatism as a positive political force than Ronald Reagan ever did at his charismatic best.

And when it came time for the next election, C4LD tried to set up strategic voting in the new city. If memory serves, only one Conservative seat changed hands.

Big deal!

If outfits like OFL have to resort to those tactics, why don't they just put a Hudak sign on their lawns?

But what I find bothersome is the negative

Government continues to put housing first, despite what opponents say

Under the leadership of Prime Minister Stephen Harper, Canada has emerged as a leader in the battle against homelessness. Our political opponents would prefer you believe their misinformation, but the facts are clear.

Since launching the Homelessness Partnering Strategy (HPS) in 2007, we have helped more than 26,000 homeless, at-risk Canadians obtain education and training opportunities, helped in excess of 27,000 find work, and created over 4,800 new shelter beds. Furthermore, we've done this in accordance with solid conservative fiscal principles. For every dollar we've invested, more than $2 has been invested by partners, including other levels of government, community stakeholders, and the private and non-profit sectors.

Building on this success, April marks a new phase of the Homelessness Partnering Strategy. Despite false claims that funding has been cut, we've renewed funding under this program for the next five years. Communities will continue to receive the same amount of funding for programs to prevent and reduce homelessness, as they did previously.

What has changed is that we are moving toward a Housing First approach, in line with our commitment to deliver value for money for taxpayers and ensure our investments actually make a long-term difference for the most vulnerable in our society.

Housing First is effective in reducing chronic homelessness while alleviating pressure on shelter, health, and judicial services. Once stable housing is obtained, the focus shifts to addressing more ongoing issues, such as addictions or mental health. Evidence has shown that this is the most effective way to combat chronic homelessness. Because the ultimate goal

Tour for Humanity brings its message to Peel Region

By Bill Rea

The importance of tolerance is basic to the Tour for Humanity, which the The Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies is promoting across the country.

The tour, in the form of a museum bus, stopped in Brampton recently, as part of the meeting of Peel Regional council, and it received an enthusiastic, and sometimes emotional, welcome.

It's in the form of a self-contained, technologically-advanced Tolerance Education Center, designed to address issues of human rights and social justice. The Tour was launched in November 2013 and is now in its inaugural year, travelling to schools and communities across Ontario.

Simon Wiesenthal was a Holocaust survivor who became famous after the war for his work as a Nazi hunter.

Regional Chair and CEO Emil Kolb called it a very powerful presentation, pointing out discrimination remains a universal issue.

Avi Benlolo, president and CEO of the Centre, said the tour has already visited 60 schools, as well as Parliament Hill and Queen's Park.

The basis of the message is to never let something like the Holocaust, in which some six million Jewish people and millions of others were killed by the Nazis during the war, happen again. One of the lessons, he said, is that hate remains and that intolerance can't be allowed.

Benlolo warned of the dangers of just shrugging off people who promote hatred. He reminded councillors that in his youth, Hitler was dismissed as someone who would not amount to much.

"Of course, we know what happened," he observed. "We should take anybody who speaks of hate seriously."

"It is not for civilized society," he added, pointing out Germany was considered a civilized society too. He also commented on the need to keep track of what goes on in Canada, as he cited the words of Wiesenthal: "Freedom is not a gift. We have to fight for it each and every day."

Benlolo also related a story he had heard a couple of days before, about a teacher in Paris who was walking home wearing a Jewish head covering. He was attacked and beaten up by a gang, and one of the attackers used a marker to draw a swastika on his chest. He added incidents like that go on all over the world.

"We should all be concerned about this kind of thing," he declared.

Benlolo stressed one of the aims of the tour is to start discussion about the lessons of the Holocaust. If it can be understood how it happened, it might help prevent it from being repeated. But it also talks about issues of concern in other places around the world.

It's also aimed at telling people that they can make a difference if they try.

Lawsuit no sign of strength

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

It was former U.S. president Harry Truman who used to say that "if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen."

He also featured a sign on his desk proclaiming, "The buck stops here."

Ah, for a politician with Truman's guts and integrity.

Which brings us, as you may have guessed, to Ontario Premier Kathleen Wynne's decision to hide behind a lawsuit in an attempt to silence Tory Leader Tim Hudak and, for that matter, anybody else who has the nerve to suggest she played a role in the $1.1 billion Liberal vote-buying exercise late in the last campaign, the one where they decided to move two gas plants under construction for the sole purpose of saving a few adjacent ridings.

Short-term, of course, the ploy worked. The Liberals did win the ridings in question, and then premier Dalton McGuinty managed to hang on to a minority government which subsequently went to Wynne after McGuinty bolted in disgrace and she won the Liberal leadership race.

Wynne has always maintained that she knew absolutely nothing about the gas plant fiasco, a claim which, as NDP Leader Andrea Horwath said again last week, is "hard to believe."

It certainly is. Not only was Wynne a senior minister in McGuinty's government, and therefore privy to political strategy, she was vice-chair of the Liberal election campaign. And since this was strictly an election issue based solely on partisan considerations, it seems a stretch to take her word for it that she — like the taxpayers left picking up the tab — was an innocent bystander in this sordid affair.

Hudak, you will know, isn't buying Wynne's claims of innocence. Nor is Ottawa Tory MPP Lisa MacLeod, both of whom have openly accused Wynne of being personally involved in the coverup of the affair and both of whom have been served with libel notices for refusing to withdraw their accusations.

Politics, as anybody who has spent more than five seconds in the game knows, is a blood sport. Opponents accuse each other of terrible things as a matter of course. They obfuscate, twist, turn inside out and otherwise stretch the truth of the matter beyond recognition as a matter of course.

They all do it, some with more flair than others, so for a politician to whine about it is tantamount to an NHL player crying that a guy on the other team gave him a body cheque or a baseball player appealing to the umpire that the called third strike shouldn't count because the pitcher threw it in too fast.

Wynne, who should be able to fight her own battles in the political arena, has instead brought in the lawyers and the courts hoping to muzzle Hudak and others, at least long enough to get past the next election, an event which is widely expected in the fall, unless, alas, Horwath continues her pathetic insistence of maligning the Wynne government out of one side of her mouth and propping it up out of the other for fear of going to the voters who — let us remember — have not been given the chance yet to pass judgment either for or against on Wynne's suitability for the office.

The legal to-do stems directly from a recent police report on the question of Liberal officials allegedly wiping the computer hard drives in the premier's office. The OPP so far say there is nothing on the record to indicate any files were destroyed after Wynne was sworn in as premier on Feb. 11, 2013.

But the police report also showed that a Liberal official gained special access to those computers for a six-week period that extended well into Wynne's takeover of the office.

She swears she had no knowledge of it. Hudak doesn't believe her and has said so repeatedly, ignoring threats of a legal suit, threats which became reality last week when the libel notices were delivered.

Far be it from me to pass judgment on who did what to whom in this matter.

But it surely isn't a sign of strength for a premier — even if she is as innocent as Snow White — to use the sledge hammer of a libel suit to silence her critics.

Let her go in the Legislature and demand that Hudak show clear evidence of his charges and, if he can't, no doubt the media would be only too happy to tell the world about it.

That's what real leaders do. They fight back, face to face. They don't wave writs around and bring in the lawyers to arbitrate what is clearly a political dispute.

One more thing: just as you're paying for the gas plant boondoggle to begin with, you'll also be picking up the tab for the court case.

Neat.

Minister recognizes redevelopment progress at Etobicoke General

Health and Long-Term Care Minister Deb Matthews was in north Etobicoke recently to recognize the progress made in the renewal and expansion of Etobicoke General Hospital; including plans to construct a new four-storey wing.

Area MPPs Dr. Shafiq Qaadri and Donna Cansfield joined the Minister for a tour of the hospital's recently renovated Day Surgery Unit, and spoke to staff, physicians, volunteers and supporters about the importance of the community hospital for the residents who rely on it for care.

"Government support of our redevelopment projects has been vital to Osler, as has their commitment and recognition of the importance of renovation and expansion at Etobicoke General," said William Osler Health System Vice-Chair John Davies. "Government funding, along with investment from Osler's Foundation, serves to create fundamental stepping stones that allow us to press forward with our exciting expansion plans."

Etobicoke General, originally opened in 1972, is undergoing significant revitalization to meet the growing demands of its community. The new wing will bring more than 230,000 square feet of expanded facilities for the services that the community utilizes most, including renovations and expansion of the Emergency Department, renovations to the Critical Care (CCU) and Intensive Care (ICU) units, a new maternal newborn unit, new ambulatory procedures unit and a new outpatient oncology facility.

The expansion will also include a new main entrance, new retail and registration areas and an upgraded lobby in addition to expanded parking and more roadways to make the building more accessible.

"The renewal and expansion of Etobicoke General will play a significant role in helping provide greater access to the services that this community needs most," said Osler Health System President and CEO Matthew Anderson. "We have already made tremendous progress in our redevelopment journey, thanks to a strong partnership between Osler, the government, and our community. We look forward to announcing the next major milestone in our redevelopment project in the days ahead."

The Request for Proposals to select the Planning, Design and Compliance (PDC) team for Etobicoke General's new wing closed in January, with the contract expected to be awarded in late March/early April. Preparations for the next phase of the project are also underway to help get the facility ready for the construction of the new wing.

"It is only through collaborative and integrated approaches to planning and care that we can continue to evolve as a health care system, responsive to the needs of our communities," said Maria Britto, board

"It was the world's collective indifference that allowed it to happen," he observed.

Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion was glad to see in the inclusiveness in the Centre's message. But she did say she was bothered by the continued discrimination against women. "We have it right here at home," she remarked. "What are we doing about it right here at home?"

Brampton Councillor John Sprovieri observed this all started with Cain and Abel.

"I don't believe it's ever going to go away," he observed, commenting that people from other lands bring baggage and hate with them to Canada. The only way to deal with it, he said is to clarify that previous grudges shouldn't be passed from generation to generation.

"We live in a world of differences," Sprovieri added. "We should all be open to these differences."

Mississauga Councillor Pat Saito said she's from Northern Ireland originally, and her husband is Japanese-Canadian, parents and grandparents were interred during the war. She argued that everyone can find examples in their family histories of what hatred has done.

Saito pointed to the need to help people by trying to advise them on what they can do.

"Starting with the children is good," she said.

Staff reports out on what Caledon councillors made last year

By Bill Rea
The job requires long hours, many meetings, plenty of reading and dealing with complaints from irate constituents. But it's also true that the pay for being a municipal councillor in Caledon is not bad, especially for Regional representatives.

In most cases this fall, the voters will get the chance to ruled on how well the councillors have earned their pay.

Both Caledon and Peel Regional councils recently received without comment reports on remuneration and expenses.

When salaries, benefits and reimbursements for attending conferences and other expenses are all factored in, the amounts paid out to each of Caledon's five representatives on Regional council came to more than $100,000.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison received the most. Her salary as mayor came to $63,947.69, but the report from town staff stated she received $2,791.14 in statutory benefits (like Canada Pension Plan and Employer Health Tax), $3,861.65 were paid in pension costs through the Ontario Municipal Employees Retirement System (OMERS), $4,747.79 in other benefit costs (like health and dental, as well as insurance) $8,291.46 to cover expenses and $4,927.81 for mileage. Her total remuneration from the Town amounted to $88,567.54. But Morrison also sits on Regional council, and all members of that body (with the exception of Chair Emil Kolb) received a base stipend of $51,425.32. In addition, she received $9,276.07 in benefits and $8,620.35 from the Region to cover conferences and other expenditures.

Factoring everything from the Town and Region in, Morrison's remuneration amounted to $157,889.28.

Councillors all received a base salary from the Town of $28,293.20, and the Regional councillors got the same stipend that Morrison received.

Richard Paterak received $369.11 in benefits from the Town, along with $1,708.63 through OMERS, $4,497.43 in other benefits, $2,182.27 for expenses and $4,984.91 to cover mileage, for a total amount from the Town of $42,035.55. With the addition of his Regional salary, Paterak also got $6,893.11 in benefits and $4,835.35 for conferences and expenses. That resulted in a total of $105,189.33 for his municipal work.

Allan Thompson received $1,138.38 in benefits from the Town, as well as $1,708.63 through OMERS, $4,528.31 in other benefits, $4,902.49 in expenses and $8,794.88 for mileage. As well, Thompson received $150 as an honourarium and $34.69 in expenses as a member of the board of the Rural Ontario Municipal Association. In addition to his Regional salary, Thompson received $9,276.07 in benefits from Peel. He also got $802.78, plus $239.72 in expenses for his service on Credit Valley Conservation. Thompson's total remuneration amounted to $111,294.41.

Richard Whitehead received nothing through OMERS, but on top of his salary from the Town, he got $369.11 in benefits, $4,497.30 in other benefits, $4,848.71 to cover expenses and $3,833.39 for mileage. On top of his salary as a Peel councillor, Whitehead received $2,243.53 in benefits and $7,402.87 to cover conferences and other expenses. As well, Whitehead received $1,645.78 for sitting on Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, along with $935 to cover expenses. His total package came to $105,494.21.

Patti Foley received her salary from the Town, as well as $1,138.38 in benefits, $1,708.63 through OMERS, $4,528.70 in other benefits, $4,519.80 for expenses and $2,333.20 in mileage. She also received $9,276.07 in benefits from the Region and $1,372.21 for conferences and expenses. The total for Foley was $104,595.51.

As for the area councillors, all four were paid the base salary.

Doug Beffort got $487.53 in benefits, $1,708.63 through OMERS, $4,497.17 in other benefits, $3,948.37 for expenses and $3,274.14 for mileage for a total package of $42,209.04.

Gord McClure received $1,138.38 in benefits, $1,708.63 in OMERS, $1,918.99 in other benefits, $1,804.63 for expenses and $4,821.98 for mileage. His total came to $39,685.81.

Nick deBoer got $1,138.38 in benefits, $1,708.63 through OMERS, $4,528.31 in other benefits and $828.87 for expenses for a total of $36,497.40.

Rob Mezzapelli's benefits came to $1,138.38, and he received $1,708.63 through OMERS, $4,528.31 in other benefits, $3,357.19 for expenses and $2,490.57 for mileage.

Town's representation on Sunshine List drops from last year total

By Bill Rea
There were 31 employees of the Town of Calderon who made more than $100,000 last year.

The province last week released its annual list, sometimes known as the Sunshine List, of public-sector employees who made $100,000 or more, and that includes those who work for municipalities and school boards.

Last year's list contained 36 names of Town employees, which was a big jump from the 15 who made it the year before.

At the time last year, Town Chief Administrative Officer Douglas Barnes said 16 of the 21 new people on the list were full-time fire fighters who received back pay from a "retroactive arbitration" award, another was a public works employee who was elevated to the list after putting in a lot of overtime and four more were managers who had advanced in their salary grid to the point that they passed the $100,000 mark.

Barnes was again at the top of the list this year, with a salary of $216,075.77, plus $1,527.12 in benefits. Others making the list from the Town were Deputy Fire Chief Darryl Bailey, who made $109,932.93, plus $741.36; Manager of Parks and Landscape Architect Brian Baird, who received $107,407.10, plus $760; Public Works Area Supervisor Pierre Baulne, who got $111,847.46, plus $576.18; Senior Bylaw Officer Glenn Blakely, who earned $101,634.99, plus $710.61; Manager of Regulatory Services Leo Butko, who was paid $100,084.37, plus $710.61; Director of Public Works Craig Campbell, who collected $102,115.37, plus $727.08; Manager of Information Technology Paul K. $10,125.31.

Other top earners from the board included Superintendent Charles Blanchard, who made $173,087.93, plus $792.21; Associate Director Ralph Borrelli, who got $254,276.03, plus $671.25; Superintendent Joseph Geiser, who earned $176,442, plus $805.59; Associate Director John Hrajnik, who was paid $200,278, plus $901.01; Superintendent

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones has criticized the government’s announcement that it plans to shut down lanes on Highways 400, 401, 427, the Don Valley Parkway and the Gardiner Expressway to allow for athletes, coaches and the media to move easier from venue to venue during the Pan Am/ Parapan Am Games in 2015.

“It is ridiculous,” Jones said. “Many Dufferin-Caledon residents commute on those highways every day to and from work. They already have to sit for hours in traffic, and now the Liberal government is removing lanes from those already clogged highways, which will only make commute times longer.”

Jones was also highly critical of Tourism and Sport Minister Michael Chan, who is also responsible for the coming Games, who asserted that voluntary measures would convince drivers to use public transit during the games, and reduce traffic by 20 per cent.

“What we are seeing is just how totally out of touch this Liberal government is,” Jones said. “The idea that drivers will voluntarily reduce their car use enough to reduce traffic by 20 per cent is nonsensical. Combined, the Pan Am and Parapan Am span 28 days. This isn’t one day or even one week; this is almost a month where the government’s plan is basically to hope that people don’t drive – and these are some of the busiest highway stretches in Canada.”

Chan announced last week that a series of temporary High-Occupancy-Vehicle (HOV) lanes will be set up in the Greater Toronto Hamilton Area to shuttle athletes, coaches and the media to various venues during the games next summer.

The temporary HOV lanes will be open to other cars and trucks with passengers, but not single driver vehicles.

CVC reports from ‘front line’ in emerald ash borer fight

With its many ash trees, Mississauga’s Rattray Marsh Conservation Area will feel the full impact of the emerald ash borer (EAB) infestation.

Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) is on the front line, managing the effects to one of Mississauga’s prized natural spaces.

EAB is an invasive forest pest, not native to North America. They infest and kill 99.9 per cent of all ash trees they come in contact with. EAB larvae (young) feed just beneath the bark of ash trees and disrupt the movement of water and nutrients. This pest continues to spread north through Ontario by flying from ash tree to ash tree. Rapid spread is caused by transporting firewood, logs and trees from nurseries.

EAB are particularly interested in Rattray Marsh. Almost 80 per cent of its forest cover is made up of ash. These ash trees play an important role in the local ecosystem and provide homes for wildlife. The area is home to many beautiful, mature ash trees that line the trails and boardwalk.

“EAB are here. They’re in the surrounding neighbourhoods and in Rattray Marsh,” said Jon MacMull, marketing and communications specialist for CVC. “Our immediate concerns are the safety of conservation area visitors, protecting unaf-ected ash trees from EAB and replanting for the future.”

Trees that are infested with EAB will decline and eventually fail. CVC staff have identified declining trees that pose a risk to the public and neighbouring properties and are pursuing an ash tree management plan. This will involve inoculating healthy trees against the effects of EAB and removing trees that cannot be saved. Both methods require that CVC staff close portions of trails at the conservation area because of potential safety risks to the public.

“In the months and years following ash tree management, we’ll plant new trees to help the conservation area recover and we want the community to be part of that process,” said MacMull. “Some ash trees that are cut will be left on the forest floor to create wildlife habitat and return nutrients back into the soil.”

CVC is trying to inoculate as many ash trees as possible against the effects of EAB. Maintaining a healthy population of ash trees is important for the local environment. Only healthy, unaffected trees can be inoculated. CVC determines the best candidates based on a number of criteria. Inoculating one tree costs $200 on average. Healthy trees need to be inoculated once every two years. This works out to only 27¢ a day to save one ash tree.

“We’re calling on everyone who visits Rattray Marsh to do what they can to save our ash,” said MacMull.

CVC and the Credit Valley Conservation Foundation have launched a campaign to raise funds to help preserve the forests at Rattray Marsh Conservation Area. Donations will be used to inoculate ash trees and plant new trees for the future. Visit www.creditvalleyca.ca/eab and click the link that says save our ash.

CVC is hosting an Ash Tree Management and EAB Community Meeting for residents living near Rattray Marsh. The meeting takes place April 28 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Green Glade Senior Public School, 1550 Green Glade, Mississauga.

chair of the Central West Local Health Integration Network (LHIN). “Here in the Central West LHIN, we are fortunate to work with an engaged and highly motivated group of health service providers like William Osler Health System and together we are making healthy change happen.”

Etobicoke General’s emergency department is one of the busiest in the province. More than 2,500 babies were born at the hospital last year.

“Every day for more than 40 years, this community has believed in the future of Etobicoke General and this vision and commitment continues to provide for us today, as we save and change lives,” said Osler Health System Foundation Chair Kulvir Singh Gill. “Each one of us has a significant role to play in transforming health care for this community. It begins with supporting the infrastructure changes at Etobicoke General, and supporting its ongoing equipment needs. It continues by investing in the future through the new wing, and beyond.”

Town gives send-off to Marc Seguin

By Bill Rea

There were plenty of words of praise expressed last week, as the Town of Caledon said goodbye to Marc Seguin.

Seguin, a senior project manager with the Town, has moved on to take the post of manager of economic and community development with the Town on Innisfil.

He commented the new job will have him working closer to his home and family.

The Town’s Manager of Parks and Landscape Architect Brian Baird observed that Seguin had worked on a number of projects while at Caledon, including the Parks and Recreation Master Plan, site plan for the Johnston Sports Park and most recently helping to get things ready for Caledon hosting equestrian events at the 2015 Pan Am Games.

“You have made a difference and you will be missed,” Baird told him.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison commented on how great Seguin had been to work with.

“I think every councillor has enjoyed their association with Marc,” she said. “He gets things done and he gets them done well.”

She added she has attended a number of events with Seguin over the years, and has been impressed with the amount of respect with which he’s held in other municipalities.

“It was always a pleasure going places with him,” she said.

Seguin expressed his appreciation for the good wishes.

“Thank you to everyone here who made my job easy,” he said.

Yuk Yuk's on tour in Caledon

Ladies to laugh for a cause

Caledon Parent-Child Centre (CPCC) is bringing comedy to Caledon as they present their 10th annual Laugh Out Loud (LOL) event, a charity fundraiser, for ladies only, to be held April 25.

Yuk Yuk's is taking their show on the road and transforming The Royal Ambassador into a comedy club for an exclusive, evening of comedy. It will feature the hilarity of Yuk Yuk's headliners Scott Faulconbridge and Alex Nussbaum. The evening will also feature a lavish antipasto bar and waffle station and silent auctions with items for every pocketbook.

"Laugh Out Loud has truly become the quintessential girls' night out in Caledon," said CPCC Manager of Community Relations and Volunteers Shelly Sargent. "We are very excited because 2014 is LOL's 10th anniversary. We're thrilled to celebrate this milestone by including a retrospective look back over the years, in addition to hosting our usual upbeat comedy show."

"For a decade, women in Caledon have enjoyed attending this fantastic evening, knowing that they are also supporting infant development and parenting support programs which strengthen families and help children reach their full potential," commented CPCC Executive Director Teresa Colasanti.

Tickets for Laugh Out Loud are available in advance only at a cost of $75 and are now available at The Caledon Parent-Child Centre or Scotiabank in Bolton. Proceeds of tickets purchased at Scotiabank, Bolton will be matched for donation to the event of up to $5,000. For detailed event information, call the CPCC at 905-857-0090 or visit www.cp-cc.org

The evening is sponsored by Garden Foods, Fines Ford Lincoln Sales and Service, BMO Bank of Montreal, Bolton Branch, MEI International Academy, R. B. Somerville, Titanium Trucking Services Inc., Sensory Garden Child Development Centre and Snap Caledon.

Proceeds benefit programs that strengthen families, including infant development and parenting support. Last year, CPCC provided quality programs and support services for 5,170 children, parents and caregivers in Caledon and the surrounding area. The Centre is a registered charitable organization that provides an important blend of services that strengthen families and assist them in their critical role of raising young children. Services include child development opportunities, early identification of developmental concerns, referrals to specialized services and supports, and parenting education.

Learn how glass beads helped First Nations

The Belfountain Heritage Society will be hearing about the Spirit of the Bead this coming Tuesday (April 15) at its annual general meeting.

The Society will present native artisan and educator Naomi Smith, who will speak about how glass beads aided the survival of the First Nations during pioneer immigration

The presentation will take an alternate view of native life around, during and after the War of 1812. The discussion will focus on the different native handiwork that was created during a period of struggle for the First Nations populations in upper state New York, Ontario and eastern regions of Canada.

Smith is from Neyaashiinigmiing, Ontario. Her First Nations heritage forged an interest in Native American beadwork, adornment and textiles. She is the custodian of a collection of historical Woodlands and Northeastern beadwork. Her knowledge also encompasses the methodology and designs of the Woodlands and Northeastern material culture. She is the proprietor of Black Tulip Designs, which offers beads, supplies and classes with a First Nations flair.

The presentation will take place at Belfountain Community Hall, 17204 Main St., starting at 7:30 p.m.

The basic eligibility requirements for those interested in volunteering include:

- Passing an extensive background check and security clearance;
- Superior interpersonal and communication skills;
- Valid Ontario driver's licence;
- Able to consistently contribute a minimum of three 12-hour shifts per month;
- Attend monthly meetings and training.

Those who are interested are asked to visit the website at www.cdvs.ca to access the application form, or call 905-951-3838. Application deadline is April 16.

Beware of the dangers of flooding as the snow melts

By Inspector Tim Melanson
Detachment Commander
Caledon OPP

Environment Canada is forecasting warmer weather and showers over the next couple of days and weeks.

Stunt driving charge laid

A 31-year-old woman from Glencairn is facing charges after Caledon OPP nabbed a speeder on Horseshoe Hill Road March 29.

Police report an officer was conducting speed enforcement at about 5:15 p.m. and spotted a northbound Volkswagen clocked at 116 km-h in a posted 60 zone.

The driver was charged with racing a motor vehicle. The car was impounded for seven days.

Due to the ice storm and large amount of snowfall in the Caledon area, I wish to provide you with safety tips as flooding in certain areas is imminent.

Local streams and waterways will become dangerous, especially in the vicinity of culverts and bridges. The forecasted rainfall and warm temperatures in the next week may result in the partial melting of the snow and can result in increased stream flows.

- Remind children to keep away from all bodies of water, regardless of depth. Do not walk through moving water. As little as six inches of moving water can make you fall.
- If you are in a car, do not drive through flood waters or underpasses. The water may be deeper than it looks and your car could get stuck or swept away by fast water.
- Be aware of areas where floodwaters have receded, roads may have weakened.
- Stay away from downed power lines, and report them to the power company.
- Pay attention to local radio and keep up to date with changing weather information.
- Flash floods can occur within minutes or hours of excessive rainfall.
- Know the difference between a

FARMERS HEAR ABOUT RULES OF ROAD

A group of area farmers gathered Saturday at Bill Hewson's Shop on McLaughlin Road to get some information regarding the rules of the road, particularly as they apply to agricultural vehicles. Sergeant Hank DuVee of the enforcement section of the Ministry of Transportation, was delivering the talk, which covered a variety of topics, including farm vehicle safety, load security, distracted driving, classes of driver's licences, etc.

Grants announcement not good news for Dufferin-Peel Board

Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board Chair Mario Pascucci is not impressed with the recent announcement of school board funding for 2014-15.

He said the announcement is no good news, as far as the Board is concerned.

"The overall announced 3.1 per cent funding increase across the province is largely a smoke-and-mirrors accounting maneuver," he said. "The inclusion, this year, of full-day kindergarten funding in the Grants for Student Needs (GSN), as well as an increase to fund the Ministry/Elementary Teachers Federation of Ontario's Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) make up the bulk of this funding 'increase'."

What is particularly galling for Pascucci is a reduction in funding for several large urban boards in the administration and governance line. For Dufferin-Peel, that will be approximately a nine per cent reduction with these funds being re-allocated to other boards. He said this is a cut of $450,000 for Dufferin-Peel in 2014-15 and $1.8 million overall; a cut that will impact students, as the positions funded through this line provide direct support to the classroom. It is, however, a wash for the Province as no overall funds are being cut, but rather, is a case where some boards suffer a loss while others will prosper from this loss. The Province has indicated that it will phase in the cut over four years.

Funding for benefits continue to decline with a 0.167 per cent decrease year-over-year due to the elimination of retirement gratuities. This has a direct impact on Dufferin-Peel's financial position, as the board has not had retirement gratuities since the late '70s, yet will bear the shared funding reduction with all other boards. Pascucci wondered if that's fair.

In addition, a change in the funding to the school operations grant, based on capacity, and an accelerated ARC process, could see the consolidation and closure of schools in an unprecedented manner. This will force ARC reviews on schools operating at less than capacity.

"This will be a tough pill for parents to swallow," Pascucci observed. "We have been through ARCs and subsequent closures in the past. They end up pitting community against community and, believe me, parents have no appetite for them."

"We need to know from the Ministry what capacity threshold it is using to determine the correct size of a school," he added. "The Ministry has been silent on this important determining factor so far."

The Ministry has committed to funding the terms and conditions of the existing collective agreements and MOUs (the terms and conditions of the MOU continue until a new collective agreement is reached).

As well, significant commitments have been made for capital programs. An increase to School Condition Improvement funding of $1.25 billion has been announced over three years. $250 million of this will be allocated in 2014-15.

An introduction of a new High Needs Amount (HNA) model for Special Education was announced. However, this is only one component of the Special Education Grant (SEG), and there was no commitment to review the remaining components. This will be a four-year phase-in.

"The true impact of the announcement will be better understood once staff has had an opportunity to review the Technical Paper and can affix specific dollar amounts," Pascucci said. "In the meantime, as far as we are concerned, this is no good news story for us."

Councillor Allan Thompson signed the papers Tuesday, registering himself as a candidate for mayor, as his daughter Julia looked on. Barring a provincial election this year, she will have the chance to vote for her father in her first election.

Thompson registers to run for mayor

By Bill Rea

Following up on the announcement he made last Month, Councillor Allan Thompson has officially registered himself as a candidate for Mayor of Caledon in this fall’s municipal elections.

About 40 well-wishers and supporters were on hand when Thompson filled out the necessary papers, and then they joined him for a reception at the Royal Ambassador Event Centre.

First elected in 2003, Thompson served one term as area representative for Ward 2, followed by two terms as Regional rep.

“I know this is a big step,” he told supporters at the reception, as he added the area is important to his family. His wife Anne, along with their son James and daughter Julia, were on hand for the occasion, as he pointed out his kids are eighth generation in the area.

Thompson said the interests of the community will be best served over the coming years by leadership that is practical and action oriented.

“I have developed a proven track record of bringing together the right people, at the right time, to resolve issues through collaboration and negotiation,” he commented.

He also cited two important positions he has held at the Region; chairing the public works committee of council and serving as a provincial government liaison through the intergovernmental affairs committee. In addition, he pointed to his involvement as a board member of the Rural Ontario Municipal Association (ROMA).

Thompson told his supporters that good things can happen with the support of a good council, especially considering the challenges facing the municipality.

He pointed out that a provincial highway is likely to run through town, and ways need to be found to make that a benefit.

“We need to have everybody engaged to make that work,” he said.

He also said customer service is important to residents.

He also observed that various provincial plans, governing such areas as the Greenbelt, Niagara Escarpment, Oak Ridges Moraine, etc. are up for review. He stressed the need to find out how these plans can be improved to make sure they work for Caledon.

He also announced he will be holding a series of Thompson’s Town Halls during the campaign to hear concerns and provide answers for the voters.

“I look forward to having those discussions with you,” he said.

Make memories with the Easter Bunny at Downey’s Farm

Make Easter 2014 a family adventure with a trip to Downey’s Farm Market, south of King Street, for Easterfest.

Downey’s is thrilled to join the community in celebrating the 13th anniversary of its Easter festival, which has steadily grown in popularity over the years. This year’s Easterfest promises to be as exciting as ever, with five full days of activities and entertainment for family members of all ages, April 12 and 13, and Easter weekend (April 18 to 20) from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Festivities will include face painting, crafts, wagon rides, visits with farm animals, puppet shows and performances by magician Steve Baker of Abracadabra Magic. And once again, children will be able to take part in the Easter Egg Scramble (scrambling to find colourful plastic eggs scattered by the Easter Bunny and helpers), and exchanging their egg collection for an Easter basket of treats.

Festival-goers will also be able to buy Easter treats and baked goods, including Downey’s famous pumpkin donuts, from the Downey Bakery. Downey’s Estate Winery is open April 12, 13 and 19.

Admission is $12 per person from ages two to 92.

“Our family always looks forward to Easterfest at Downey’s Farm,” commented Jenn Barnhouse of Alton. “My daughter loves having her face painted, seeing the Easter bunny and collecting eggs in the Egg Scramble. It’s a great event for kids.”

Downey’s is at 13682 Heart Lake Rd., south of King Street. Downey’s Farm is a popular agritourism farm, growing strawberries, raspberries, sweet corn and pumpkins. The market will open daily beginning May 2.

Carbon Monoxide: How to Protect Yourself and Your Family.

The Town of Caledon Fire & Emergency Services is reminding residents of the risks of being exposed to Carbon Monoxide (CO). CO is a poisonous gas that you cannot see, smell or taste. It is often referred to as the 'silent killer'.

CO is produced by the incomplete burning of fuels such as natural gas, propane, heating oil, wood, kerosene, coal or charcoal caused by improperly installed or poorly maintained appliances.

Fuel-burning appliances, designed for outdoor use, such as Barbecues, Coleman Stoves, Propane Heaters should never be used indoors, including garages. As these appliances were not designed to exhaust carbon monoxide fumes to the exterior they are only to be used outdoors.

Exposure to CO can cause flu-like symptoms such as headaches, nausea, and dizziness. If you or anyone else in your home is experiencing the symptoms of CO poisoning or your CO alarm sounds, make sure that everyone leaves the home immediately and calls 911.

What can you do? Ensure your home is equipped with both Smoke and Carbon Monoxide Alarms. Test all alarms monthly and replace as per the manufactures recommendations, replace if alarms are more than seven years old. Have a family escape plan. To download a Home Escape Planning Grid, go to www.caledon.ca/fire or for more information contact us at 905.584.2272 x.4303.

REGIONAL WASTE PICK UP
The Region of Peel's yard waste collection services started April 1, 2014 in the Town of Caledon.

Due to last winter's ice storm, the Region anticipates that residents may have higher than normal volumes of yard waste for pick-up, which may cause collection delays. If residents' yard waste is not collected on their regularly scheduled collection day, they are asked to please leave it at the curb and it will be picked-up in priority sequence.

- Securely tie brush in bundles up to 1.2 m (4 ft.) in length and 76 cm (30 in.) in width, weighing no more than 20 kg (44 lbs.).

15 Allan Drive Shopping Plaza Entrance Closure

The Town of Caledon would like to advise you that the east entrance to the shopping plaza located at 15 Allan Drive in Bolton, Ontario will be closed for public access effective Monday, April 21, 2014.

It has been determined that a safety risk for pedestrians exists because of the poor sight lines for drivers exiting the plaza. A high percentage of these pedestrians are children traveling eastbound along the sidewalk in the vicinity of Holy Family School.

The closure will be completed using temporary barriers, but may become permanent if a solution cannot be found to address the safety concerns.

While we are aware that the closure of this driveway may be an inconvenience to some, your Regional and Area Councillors, your School Board Trustees, and the Town of Caledon Director of Public Works, firmly believe that the safety of our children is paramount.

Thank you for your patience and understanding as, together, we work with the community to improve safety in this location.

Swing into Spring in Hillsburgh with Count Basie and ‘Chicago’

Brampton’s Chinguacousy Swing Orchestra takes to the Century Church Theatre stage again this Saturday (April 12) for the seventh annual Hot Night in Hillsburgh, also known in band circles as The Hillsburgh Habenero Hustle.

A special feature this year will be a tribute to Count Basie. It was 50 years ago that Oscar Peterson released Night Train, and the band will honour that recording with its own version of the famous Count Basie tune. There will be other Basie “bests” to be heard, as well as a tribute to Glenn Miller and a selection from the 1970s horn-driven pop band, Chicago. In addition, there will be two full sets of big-band arrangements of songs that date from 1918 to the present, and the vocal stylings of Erin Wyllie and Rob Johnson. Even though Swing is their middle name, two-step, swing, pop, funk, it’s “All That Jazz” to the CSO!

A concert not to be missed, it starts at 8 p.m. Tickets are $20 and can be reserved by calling the Box Office at 519-855-4586. Century Church Theatre is at 72 Trafalgar Rd., Hillsburgh.

Elvis and Mavis: riveting drama, Newfie humour

By Constance Scrafield

What happens when a person finally comes to the end of his tether? What about when that person decides that it is worth his life to make a point?

If that person knows no one will be going with him, that order will be restored, that millions of people will only be inconvenienced — when is it time to make that stand?

The story of Elvis and Mavis begins with these questions and Elvis’ answers, as he comes into a shed in the south, with a plan to blow up Churchill Falls, dam and all. This action will flood the valley, returning the water to the environment and cut off electricity to much of Quebec and New York City. And take Elvis with it.

Elvis and Mavis runs at Theatre Orangeville until April 13.

This play was originally a one-act rant on the part of Jeff Pitcher. It is a fanciful presentation, a fable, if you will, of “What would happen if a person actually followed the dictates of his frustration?”

“Elvis and Mavis was the first play I wrote when I left Newfoundland in 1991,” Pitcher wrote in response to questions about it. “At that time, Newfoundland was in dire straits, the fishing moratorium was just announced. I was feeling deflated and a little angry . . . I . . . wrote this play, venting my personal frustrations with Newfoundland policies, etc!”

Elvis’ wife Mavis is, meanwhile, back in their home, consulting with her best friend and neighbour, Rose, as the tension builds over Elvis and his terrifying determination. That is it in a nutshell, but the play is fantastic.

The build-up of the story of how Elvis came to this point: the scenes from their marriage from first love to rocky disillusionment; the small journeys he has made to discover why his province and his own life have come to this sour time; the desperation that finally drove him to this present moment, are all presented with passion and humour.

Into it all, is Rose, sitting at the kitchen table with her anguished friend. Like any real person, Rose vacillates between loving support for Mavis and antagonism with her. A Newfoundlander herself, Maria Dinn, nails the somewhat ambivalent role of Rose, torn as she is for Mavis’ distress and Elvis’ risks.

Of a necessity, these three brilliant actors give their all to the play and the play is only possible for it. They maintain a level of tension that is pure art and entirely enthralling.

Darren Keay is a wild man and his Elvis is wild, wonderful. He grabs your attention and does not let you off the hook for a moment. Every nuance of his monologues and his exchanges with “the CBC” and Mavis are true, funny, frightening.

How do you think a wife would react to the news of her husband’s plans to destroy a massive industrial site — the Churchill Falls dam — and take himself with it, whether they were estranged or not? Even she does not know. We watch her struggle with the flood of her emotions, pushing them back and forth between herself and Rose, and Elvis.

Jane Spence gives this part everything it needs to be believable and empathetic. She is all that a woman is, reflecting all that a turbulent marriage — relationship — demands and inflicts.

Naturally, there can be no Newfoundland dialogue without humour and this play is no exception: there are laugh-out-loud moments, keeping the characters true to life — never forgetting the spontaneous wit of the Newfoundlander.

For anyone who saw the play Opening Night, the ending is somewhat different.

The set design by Sarah Scroggie is just right for the play: stark enough but interesting to look at, dividing the stage between the two situations of the shed, where Elvis is making his plans, and their home, where Mavis and Rose are dealing with those plans. Ice bergs in the background.

This is the first production outside Newfoundland of Elvis and Mavis. It is directed by David Nairn. As always, Nairn gives as much free rein to the instinct of his actors as makes sense — he is a great believer in instinct. In this case, for sure, they come up to the bar with best results.

Once again, as Artistic Director he brings another “voice” to the Theatre Orangeville stage. Do not miss this production. Bring your family; bring your friends. It is really marvellous.

DUFFERIN-PEEL - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market.

The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their homes and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their homes on the market.

As this report uncovers, most home-sellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable. In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar".

Coyotes bantam girls battle it out in championship game

The Caledon Coyotes Bantam HL finalists played their championship game at the Caledon East arena to determine the top team in the division.

The teams, sponsored by Style Auto and Stackpole International were cheered on by a good fan base who came out to support the teams.

In goal were Madeline Macrae for the Style Auto team and Alyssa Beach for Stackpole.

Stackpole forwards Lauren Bristol, Sara Early, Clair Gallagher, Jordan Mooy, Emily Pitcher and Olivia Zoratti hammered the Style Auto net and were rewarded with a go-ahead goal by center

Mia Cadieux.

The Style Auto girls fought back with the defensive wall of Caitlan Mangiapane, Katherine Macrae, Megan Maclean Bristow and Erin Evans, keeping the attackers from getting too close to the net.

The Style Auto forwards Georgia Bier, Jocelyn Coulombe, Anastasia Fokus, Ally Kufrin, Jessica Patterson, Caitlan Rodgers, Erika Suzuki Quinn and Dale Wright didn't quit and punched through Stackpole's defence (Anna Brake, Lauren De-foa, Caitlan Kolb, Kassandra Tymoshuk and Sydney McEachern) and brought the game to their net when defensive player Erin Evans took a shot from the point to even the game at one.

The Style Auto girls kept the pressure up and were rewarded again when Jocelyn Coulombe scored the go-ahead goal.

The Style Auto girls ended the game keeping the puck deep in Stackpole's zone. The Style team went on to the 2-1 victory, reflecting the energy, urgency and determination that both of the Caledon girls clubs showed throughout tournaments and the regular season.

Congratulations to both teams for their first and second place victories and an amazing season of hockey.

Bandits Junior C team hosting 2014 try-outs

By Brian Lockhart

Junior C lacrosse will be getting under way next month with the Caledon Bandits currently working on putting together their roster for the 2014 season.

This will be the Bandits' seventh season in the OJCLL.

The Junior C squad is hosting a series of try-out sessions in April with exhibition play slated for two games April 29 and 30.

The Bandits are coming off a good 2013 season. They ended the regular campaign in third place finish in the West Division of the Ontario Junior C Lacrosse League and a 9-7 record; good for 18 points. That was a six place finish over all in the 16 team OJCLL.

Going into the 2013 playoffs, the Bandits dispatched Innisfil in the first round. They ended the year with a loss to Hamilton in the second round after playing four games of a best of five series.

The 2014 season will feature two new entries in the league. Six Nations, who are well represented in other lacrosse leagues, will have the Warriors entered this season, and the Oakville Hawks will also be a new entry in OJCLL.

The only team not returning is the squad from Huntsville, who won't have a team entered for this coming season.

The Bandits will have a 16-game schedule; eight on the road and eight at-home games.

The squad is switching venues this season. The first six home games being played at the Albion-Bolton arena and the final two games being played at Mayfield arena with home games all being played Tuesday evenings.

The season and home opener will get under way in Bolton May 6, when the Bandits host Fergus.

Game time is 8 p.m.

The Caledon Coyotes bantam HL team, sponsored by Style Auto, claimed the division championship with a 2-1 win over the Stackpole International team.

CVC hosting Natural Pond Management Workshop

Ponds add beauty to properties and attract wildlife.

They can also be a challenge to look after.

For the third year in a row, Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) is hosting a Natural Pond Management Workshop for rural landowners living within the Credit River watershed. CVC's aquatic specialists will provide helpful tips on enhancing private ponds to benefit the local environment.

The workshop will be April 12, from 9 a.m. to noon at the Scott Mission Camp, 3852 The Grange Sideroad, Caledon.

This is a popular workshop and is fully booked every year.

Attendees will learn the basics of pond ecology and how to naturalize their ponds, which helps improve water quality and wildlife habitat. CVC aquatic specialists will lead a guided walk to the Scott Mission Camp pond.

Knowing what lives in a pond can help manage it.

This year's workshop will feature a guest speaker from the Toronto Zoo. Attendees will learn how to monitor a pond's wildlife using the Toronto Zoo's citizen science programs. To add more life and a little color to a pond, CVC's Private Landowner Aquatic Planting Program can help landowners select the right plants to use. CVC will even plant them.

The workshop costs $15 per person, which includes a copy of the Natural Pond Management Handbook. Refreshments will be provided.

Register by April 10 at www.creditvalleyca.ca/events or call 1-800-668-5557 ext. 436. Remember to dress for the weather.

Caledon can be the greenest most environmentally friendly community in Canada.

This means that every family must “think green”. Did you know that many household products, cleaners, even cosmetics can be hazardous? In fact, they should NEVER be put in the blue boxes, even their containers are hazardous and must be hauled to the Bolton Community Recycling Centre.
