YOUR GUIDE TO AREA REAL ESTATE

Region eyeing area of existing well for more supply

By Bill Rea

Peel Region staff have concluded a new well will be needed to meet anticipated demand in the Caledon East area.

And it seems they have come on a possible site for it near an existing well.

That was spelled out last week at public information centre (PIC) hosted at Caledon Community Complex.

There had been eight possible sites considered in the area of the village. But it was reported at the PIC that unrelated to this project, the Region identified concerns regarding groundwater discharge at Airport Spring Pond. The nearby well, known as Well CE4, was tested and it was found there was considerable potential yield from it.

"It showed some favourable results for getting additional capacity there," commented consultant Bill Andrews, of Hatch Mott MacDonald.

The Region has identified the need for additional water supply to accommodate approved growth in the Caledon East area. A broad study area was mapped out to find this additional supply, considered, including doing nothing, limiting growth in the area, implementing water conservation measures, constructing a new well supply, connecting to the existing well system in Bolton and extending the lake-based water supply. It was also report that the new well was the only option that properly addressed the needs.

There were eight possible sites for this well taken under consideration before the area around CE4. The most appealing location, after a set of criteria was applied, was in the area of Torbram Road and Boston Mills Road. The second-best one was determined to be in the area of Innis Lake Road, south of Old Church Road, followed by a site on Airport Road at Castlederg Sideroad.

With the findings from CE4, the Region reported a new test well was drilled 30 metres away, at Site CE 4A. It was drilled between March and July last year, to a depth of 57 metres. It was pumped for a week at a continuous rate of 4,245 litres per minute. It was also reported at the PIC that there should be no significant interference with domestic wells or surface water supplied in the area.

Andrews said this is part of a class environmental assessment (EA), which should be completed by the end of June. Then the matter will be brought back for more consultation.

When it comes to the actual construction timeline, he said that will be up to the Region.

Second annual

Gather Easter eggs in SouthFields Village

Caledon’s SouthFields Village is hosting its second annual SouthFields Village Egg Hunt this coming Saturday (April 19).

It will run from 9 to 11 a.m. at the neighbourhood park at Learmont and Benadir Avenues.

Event organizer Yevgenia Casale said she was blown away by the community’s response to last year’s event.

“We had over 300 people come out, many of whom brought along non-perishables for the local food bank,” she said. “The generosity was overwhelming.”

The volunteer firefighters from Caledon Fire and Emergency Services were on hand with Sparky the Fire Dog and their fire truck, and at the end they loaded up a car full of food donations. This year, Casale is once again asking her neighbours to show their generosity by bringing non-perishable food items for the food bank and unopened boxes of diapers for Peel Children’s Services.

“I’m also thrilled with the amount of help that we have this year for planning and running the event,” she added. “We have quite the number of community volunteers who are all excited and eager to make this year’s event even better than last year.”

In addition to the egg hunt, kids and their families will be invited to participate in a various games, such as the Family Hula Hoop Spin-off, the Giant Badminton Rally, the Bunny Toss and more. Of course, there will also be treats for the little ones and special guests, such as Sparky the Fire Dog and the SouthFields Easter Bunny.

“I’d also like to thank our sponsors for stepping up and funding this event,” Casale said. “These events are so important for bringing the community together, but they cost a ton of money. It wouldn’t be possible without the generous support of our wonderful community minded sponsors. As well, for the first time this year, we even reached out to the residents through crowd source funding and would like to thank the families who helped contribute to covering the costs associated with the event.”

Admission to the egg hunt is free, but you’ll need to bring your own basket.

For more information, contact Casale at info@southfieldsvillagevoice.com or call 905-846-4852.

The park at the corner of James and Victoria Streets in Bolton was renamed in honour of Bill Whitbread in the fall of 1992.

Bill Whitbread remembered

By Bill Rea

The Bolton area lost an institution Sunday.

Bill Whitbread, the long-time editorial fixture with the Caledon Enterprise (formerly Bolton Enterprise), died unexpectedly Sunday. He was 78.

Mr. Whitbread was remembered fondly at several local events over the last several days.

Isabelle Bottoms, who worked with him at the Enterprise for about five years in the 1980s, had some words of tribute at Monday’s meeting of the Albion-Bolton Historical Society.

“He could type as fast as anybody else with his two index fingers,” she remarked.

“He never forgot a name or a face,” she added. “The ever-observant Bill noticed everything he saw around town.”

“We certainly remember Bill very fondly,” she concluded. “May he rest in peace.”

Mayor Marolyn Morrison also had words of praise for Mr. Whitbread, calling him “a backbone of the Bolton area.”

Speaking at Tuesday’s meeting of Caledon council, Morrison commented that Mr. Whitbread was “always there.”

“He used to tease me all the time when I was a school board trustee,” she added. “I really liked him because he had a sense of humour and because he was adorable.”

“He was just so much fun,” Morrison concluded, as she asked the meeting to observe a moment’s silence in Mr. Whitbread’s memory. “He was a wonderful person.”

Services for Mr. Whitbread are scheduled for today (Thursday) at Holy Family Church, 60 Allan Dr. Bolton at 1 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Caledon Minor Hockey Association, care of Egan Funeral Home.

It's Easter time at Downey's

With Easter fast approaching, the folks at Downey's Farm Market are hosting their annual Easter Festival. It started last weekend and will continue over this coming weekend. The fun activities include the tricks of Steve Baker of Baker Magic Shows. He was accompanied by his rabbit Cinnamon, and Shilpa Patro of Toronto held her daughter Saahvee, 2, to make friends with Cinnamon.

Police urge all to make seat belt compliance voluntary over Easter

Occupant restraint will be OPP's main traffic focus over the Easter Long Week-end.

Officers are urging those few non-compliant drivers and passengers who continue to put themselves and others at risk to buckle up every time they drive. They are asking the motoring public to work with them to keep 2014 seat belt related deaths, currently sitting at nine in OPP jurisdiction, from rising.

Road users should expect to see much higher volumes of traffic over the week-end, making it a particularly important weekend for all drivers, passengers and young children to be properly restrained, regardless of how short a trip people are taking.

The nine victims who have died so far this year in collisions where lack of proper restraint was cited as a causal factor range from 21 to 64 years of age. The OPP recognizes that seat belt non-compliance is largely related to attitude rather than age.

"Young drivers tend to get a bad rap when it comes to seat belt compliance," commented OPP Deputy Commissioner Brad Blair, provincial commander for traffic safety and operational support. "We are seeing more young drivers than ever buckling up and taking the risks associated with lack of restraint very seriously early on in their driving years. These healthy attitudes paint a positive outlook for seat belt safety on our roads, but those few non-compliant drivers should follow their example."

"The OPP is very proud that Ontarians have a generally high compliance rate with seat belt laws, but there are still a handful of people who need to adopt the same voluntary compliance mindset as the majority of road users," remarked Chief Superintendent Don Bell, commander of the OPP Highway Safety Division. "Driving is a privilege, but is too often thought of as a right. All motorists need to be responsible and accountable for poor driving behaviours because they impact the safety of other road users."

Over the long weekend, OPP will also be looking to drivers to help them keep Ontario roads safe from other life-threatening driver behaviours that continue to kill innocent people of all ages. These include distracted driving, driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs, speeding and other forms of aggressive driving.

Drivers are also being reminded to respect and obey Ontario's Move Over law when approaching a stopped emergency vehicle. The law requires drivers to slow down, pass with caution and if the road has two or more lanes, drivers must move over into another lane if it can be done safely.

Police report that every year, about 10,000 children (from infants to 12 year-olds) are injured or killed on Canadian roads. Drivers are responsible for ensuring that passengers under the age of 16 are properly restrained and that the proper car seat is being used for young children and is installed correctly.

The fine for distracted driving has increased, as of March 18, from $155 to $280.

In 2013, OPP laid more than 290,000 speeding charges across the province.

As of April 14, OPP has investigated 53 fatal motor vehicle collisions in which 58 people lost their lives.

Traffic stop leads to arrest near Bolton

A traffic stop early March 19 in the area of Mayfield Road and Coleraine Drive has added up to a number of charges for a 20-year-old Brampton man.

Caledon OPP reports officers were on general patrol around 4:10 a.m. when they spotted a grey Toyota travelling at high speed. They pulled the car over and while the driver was searching the glove compartment for required documents, police saw a class jar containing what looked like a joint inside.

The man was arrested, and the investigation reveal he was bound by a condition to "keep the peace and be of good behaviour," as well as being under house arrest. While he was being processed by one of the officers at detachment, a fellow officer searched the back seat of the cruiser and located a quantity of drugs, believed to be cocaine, which had apparently been left behind by the driver.

The man was charged with possession of a schedule 1 substance and a schedule II substance, as well as two counts of failure to comply.

OPP calling all future community leaders

Caledon OPP will be hosting its annual Youth Leadership Camp from Aug. 5 to 8. Students will be given the opportunity to engage in a variety of community activities while interacting with OPP officers.

Those who are between Grades 9 and 12, have demonstrated leadership abilities and are team players are asked to forward a letter of interest and the application form to the attention of christina.sanghera@ontario.ca before May 1. The letter should indicate the reasons why the applicant should be chosen to participate.

Application forms are available at Caledon secondary schools.

Pick-up stolen

Caledon OPP are looking for a white 2010 Toyota Tacoma, which was stolen March 27 from a dealership on Regional Road 50 in Bolton.

Police report they were called to the scene shortly after midnight. Investigation revealed that a male walked up from Regional Road 50 onto the dealership property, entered the locked vehicle and proceeded northbound on Albion Vaughan Road. The vehicle was un-plated at the time of the theft and contained a half tank of fuel.

Police are asking anyone with information about this incident to contact them at 905-584-2241 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Calling Mr. T. Bear to the exam room: it's time for your annual checkup

On Saturday May 3, 2014, the hospital Auxiliary will host its 19th annual Teddy Bear Clinic. This clinic has helped ease the fear of hospitals and doctors for many children – and it can help your child, too. Staff will do checkups on your child's teddy bear, doll or favourite stuffed animal, and there'll also be a barbeque, a raffle, face painting, a tooth fairy and more. It's just $2 per 'patient' – and all the proceeds will go to the Foundation for the purchase of new equipment for our hospital. The clinic runs from 10 am to 1 pm, and we'll have free parking for everyone attending.

It's our 20th annual Teddy Bear Clinic.

Passionate environmentalists spark public discussion

By Mark Pavilons

Environmentalists are anything but low key.

That was evidenced last Wednesday night as a panel of experts revealed their genuine passion for environmental issues in this province.

Four remarkable individuals led a public discussion on the state of Ontario's environmental protection, during a forum hosted at the Kingbridge Centre, put on by the Concerned Citizens of King Township (CCKT).

The event was put together to inform residents about the importance of the 2015 reviews of major pieces of legislation — the Niagara Escarpment Plan, the Oak Ridges Moraine Plan and Greenbelt Plan.

Erin Shapero, coordinator of the Ontario Greenbelt Alliance, said her 80-member organization runs across the Greenbelt and they welcome all coordinated efforts and new members. They are currently working on policy recommendations for the Greenbelt, examining high-level issues.

Environmental lawyer and advocate David Donnelly, who does a great deal of pro bono work for citizens' groups, said the boundaries for those major plans are not ecological boundaries and are not doing their job. If you look at a map of the Greenbelt for instance, there are several "irrational" geometric boundaries, likely for political reasons. Geological features don't follow straight lines, so one of the priorities, as the 2015 review of these plans draw near, is to re-examine those boundaries.

He also pointed to the need to look at natural heritage planning. Very few natural heritage features — headwaters, woodlots, wetlands — are catalogued or protected. Much is lost when people blindly pave over paradise. He did point out that roughly one-third of Halton is protected, but there's little in the way of similar efforts in Simcoe or Dufferin.

A comprehensive mapping of natural heritage features is another top priority.

Aggregate operations are still permitted in many parts of Ontario, including those environmental lands. Donnelly would love to see a ban on aggregate mining in the Greenbelt and Oak Ridges Moraine.

The province is way too permissive when it comes to creating infrastructure. Big pipes (water and wastewater systems) are akin to urban sprawl.

While most people concentrate efforts at ground-level conservation, Donnelly noted there's a danger lurking — levels of carbon in the atmosphere.

The global concentration of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere — a primary driver of climate change — has reached 400 parts per million (ppm) for the first time in recorded history. Donnelly is sounding the alarm bells, noting if it hits 450 ppm we will "lose control of our planet and atmosphere" perhaps by the end of this century. He doesn't want his children to suffer the consequences of such actions, stressing the need for "carbon planning."

Caledon's Debbe Crandall, one of the founders of Save The Oak Ridges Moraine (STORM), pointed to the successful example and model of the Coalition on the Niagara Escarpment (CONE), something all environmental groups need to follow.

Bob Patrick, former CONE president, said more than 100 forest plots are being monitored by his coalition and this data will be used during the plan review process. The NE Plan is based on watersheds and years of expertise has given the Escarpment groups sound footing. Many environmental groups see them as the go-to organization.

Crandall pointed out there has been a major unintended consequence of infilling development in Toronto, namely the dumping of fill into the region. Led by STORM, the Ontario Soil Regulatory Task Force is an umbrella group looking at this very issue.

Crandall noted one of the biggest failings in the system is the government slapping down legislation and walking away. "We're trying to get us all on the page," she said.

Caledon resident Barb Shaughnessy wanted to know why individual citizens are burdened with the responsibility of defending environmental plans at the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB).

Donnelly, who's represented many citizens' groups at OMB, said tax dollars go to "expert planners" and unfortunately some decisions are overturned by councils, leading to OMB appeals, which are both costly and time-consuming. He said many municipalities are not "savvy enough" to be pro-environment.

King Township has a reputation as being the first council to stand up to developers and fight for its green space at OMB. "I'm shocked that this doesn't happen more often," Donnelly observed.

He agreed the onus should be on the province, which has a vested responsibility. The feds, too, need to ante up. The burden shouldn't fall on average residents who have to hold fundraisers just to argue their case at OMB.

Caledon resident Debbe Crandall joined environmental lawyer and advocate David Donnelly, Ontario Greenbelt Alliance Coordinator Erin Shapero and Bob Patrick, former president of the Coalition on the Niagara Escarpment, at last week's panel discussion.

Grounds Guys featured on W Network program

By Tabitha Wells

It's undeniable that a lot of great things have been coming out of Caledon and Dufferin.

From renowned cuisine that brings people up from the city, to the tourism options, equine industry, and several companies that have gone from being a small town business to making waves beyond the walls of the community.

"This is a very business-minded area and a great breeding ground for new ideas and everything needed to grow to the next level," said Peter van Stralen, CEO of The Grounds Guys, a local full-service grounds care, and snow and ice removal company. "We fly people in from all over Canada, and (the area has) great hotels, incredible restaurants and we're close enough to the airport, so it's just a great area for everything a company needs to do."

The Grounds Guys is a family-owned and operated company that focuses on lawn care, landscaping and snow and ice management for commercial and residential properties. It was started in Palgrave as a business run by the 10 brothers of the van Stralen family and was built upon a core set of values responsible for their growth.

"Our main values are CARE: Customer First, Attitude, Respect and Enjoy life in the process," explained van Stralen. "By working together as brothers, which can be tougher sometimes than hiring people, we learned by applying those principles and by working together through good times and hard times. It was those values, those principles that allowed us to expand our business."

Tonight (Thursday), The Grounds Guys will be featured on an episode of Be The Boss Canada on W Network, where two employees from a franchise will go head-to-head for a major promotion. Both candidates faced a variety of challenges over a two day period to see who was the most deserving.

The network approached van Stralen early last spring, saying they had heard about the company and thought they would be a great fit for the show. After doing some interviews, the network decided they liked that The Grounds Guys was built on clear principals and felt the company would be a good choice for an episode.

"After that, I had to submit 12 names to the network, so we submitted names from B.C. right across Canada and had strong candidates," said van Stralen. "The network sent out their casting director, who filmed the candidates and spoke with them and they decided to go with two employees from Cobourg, Ontario."

The filming took about a week during the summer, and was done locally, at the head office and on properties in the area. The two employees, a single mother of two and a gentleman from Africa who recently immigrated to Canada after marrying an RCMP officer working there, were put through two solid days of rigorous situations to see who was most deserving of the promotion.

"We were able to put them through these really tough challenges, where you might run into these scenarios once or twice in a year, but we forced all these opportunities and challenges into two days," he explained. "I was really proud of how they handled themselves and how they successfully applied our company's values under those extreme conditions."

Van Stralen added that W Network did everything they could to make sure the process was as smooth as possible for the company, including coaching himself and company President Scott Bryk on how to talk and present themselves on camera.

"It was a unique experience," said van Stralen. "I've never really done anything like that. The production company was great to work with. They were really accommodating and they didn't interrupt us that much. Hopefully the end result is great (tonight) and everyone will enjoy it. It's an entertaining show."

The episode will air at 8 p.m. eastern time.

The Grounds Guys has grown to include 40 franchise locations across Canada and 140 locations across the United States. They have also recently launched a second business, The Sprinkler Guys, which focuses on irrigation and the installation, maintenance repairs of sprinkler systems. Currently, they have seven franchises in operation.

"Anyone can really mow lawns or plow snow; it's not what we do, but how we do it," said van Stralen. "I think that has been our biggest accomplishment – being able to recruit like-minded people who really care. That's really been at the root of it. We learned that through the launch of our franchising, and learned over the years that it's all about people; all about getting the right people and getting great people, so we spend a lot of time focusing on that."

The company also currently has opportunities available for both franchising as well as positions at the head office in Mono. For more information on the company or to inquire about employment opportunities, visit www.groundsguys.ca

Notice of Public Open House & Roundtable Discussion 2015 Provincial Plan Review

The Niagara Escarpment Plan, Oak Ridges Moraine Conservation Plan, and Greenbelt Plan are all up for review by the Province in 2015. In preparation for the provincial review, the Town of Caledon is conducting its own assessment of these plans.

YOUR CHANCE TO HAVE YOUR SAY...

Planning staff would like to hear from Caledon's residents, landowners and businesses, in advance of the provincial review, on how these provincial plans have changed the way you live, work and play in Caledon. Come learn what they are, why they affect you, and how to have your say.

Tuesday, May 13, 2014 at the Caledon Community Complex in Caledon East from 7:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. (open house session 6:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.).

WHY IS THIS IMPORTANT TO CALEDON CITIZENS?

The review of these plans is important as parts of Caledon lie within the Niagara Escarpment Plan, Oak Ridges Moraine Conservation Plan, and Greenbelt Plan. The provincial review will work to address challenges, capitalize on opportunities, and ultimately seek to strengthen the effectiveness and relevance of these plans. Your insight and input is critical for us to capture a broad range of Caledon-specific perspectives on these three provincial plans.

Next Week is EARTH WEEK

Did you know?

Celebrated every year on April 22, Earth Day is the largest environmental event in the world. More than six million Canadians — including nearly every school-aged child — participate in an Earth Day activity in their communities.

5 Tips for going Green during Earth Week

1. SMART WASTE MANAGEMENT:

Unsure of how to dispose of something, or perhaps doing a little bit of spring cleaning? Check out wheredoesitgo.ca

2. DISCOVER A TRAIL:

Discover Caledon's 65+ parks and 260km of trails. www.caledon.ca/trails

3. LOWER YOUR ENERGY BILL:

Both Enbridge Gas and Hydro One have incentives to help you lower your energy bills at home, and in the office. Check out www.enbridgegas.com/homes/manage-energy and www.hydroone.com/MyBusiness/SaveEnergy/ for more information.

4. EAT LOCAL:

Often, there are a lot of greenhouse gasses emitted in transporting food from the farms to your plates. To minimize this, try to buy food that is both local and in season. Visit the new Bolton Farmers Market and other community markets this spring. For more information, visit www.caledon.ca/farmersmarket or csafarms.ca for information on Community Supported Agriculture.

5. PARTICIPATE IN LET YOUR GREEN SHOW:

A campaign run in collaboration with many partners throughout the Region of Peel aims to encourage residents to join together to help the environment. The past two phases were Grow Local/Eat Local, and Use Less Water. This year, the theme is "Give Your Car a Break". To find out how to participate visit: www.letyourgreenshow.ca

PAMA hosting annual Walk the Art exhibition this month

The Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) will serve as host to the annual Walk the Art exhibition until April 24. Celebrating its 13th anniversary, this year's exhibition will focus on the theme of power as it relates to issues of social justice in the community.

The annual exhibition brings together more than 20 participating schools from the Peel District School Board to showcase in excess of 60 works of art. The objective of the exhibition is to use visual arts as an outlet to spark dialogue among Peel students and the surrounding community. In keeping with the theme of power, art will portray issues surrounding the economic, social, environmental, political and personal distribution of power.

"Around the world, art is used as an outlet to stimulate conversation and provide commentary on social issues," said Gerrie Loveys, acting curator of the Art Gallery and education services at PAMA. "We are thrilled to welcome the Walk the Art exhibition back to PAMA to facilitate these important conversations amongst the youth in our community."

PAMA will host an evening reception April 24 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. to officially close this year's Walk the Art exhibition.

The reception will include a silent auction, providing guests the opportunity to purchase some works from the Walk the Art exhibition. Visit pama.peelregion.ca for more information.

PAMA is a place to explore and learn about Peel Region's culture and heritage, as well as use conversation, questions and stories to help make new and fascinating connections to the surrounding community. Throughout the year, PAMA offers a variety of workshops and programs for all ages, families and adults.

Operated by the Region of Peel, PAMA is at 9 Wellington St. E. in Brampton. Visit pama.peelregion.ca to learn more.

Humberview's Writing Centre will soon open for students

After almost a year of planning, the Writing Centre at Humberview Secondary School will officially open May 1 with a keynote address by noted Canadian author Noah Richler.

Of his previous time spent at the school, Richler wrote: "I still have terrific memories of your bright bunch and welcome. It was one of the early highlights of a year's touring What We Talk About When We Talk About War."

Richler, the son of Canadian literary icon Mordecai Richler, is a respected journalist, editor and producer. He has contributed to numerous publications in Canada, including The Walrus, Maisonneuve, Saturday Night, Toronto Star, and The Globe and Mail. Richler is married to House of Anansi publisher, Sarah MacLachlan.

The Writing Centre is designed to support students in critical, effective, and creative writing in all disciplines and post-secondary destinations. Open during student lunch periods, with an extensive collection of writing and reference guides to support a wide variety of writing styles, the Writing Centre is a student-centred resource. While staff may refer students for specific assistance, the Centre is designed to provide a space where students can access resources, instruction and technology to support their writing in ways that meet their unique needs and interests.

Writers in the Room is one of the noteworthy initiatives of the Writing Centre. Students will have the opportunities to learn and network with visiting authors through workshops and special events.

Humberview has been privileged to have both Lawrence Hill and Richler preview or release their works at the school. These events allowed students not only the opportunity to meet respected Canadian authors and learn about the content of their works, but also the writing process itself.

"We are creating a new space with the Writing Centre," commented Principal Rick Tredwell, "where students can further develop effective and creative communication skills, so integral to learning and working in the twenty-first century."

While common at post-secondary institutions, the Writing Centre is one of the first of its kind in the Peel District School Board. Staffing and initial funding has been provided through a Student Success - Learning to 18 allocation. Further funding has been provided by the Rotary Club of Bolton.

Concert series presents Elizabeth Schumann

Caledon Chamber Concerts will present the final concert in the 2013-14 season next Saturday (April 26) at 8 p.m.

The concert will feature pianist Elizabeth Schumann.

Schumann has a diverse career portfolio of projects, recordings and performances which have brought her all over the world as recitalist, chamber musician and concerto soloist.

The first prize winner of both the Bösendorfer International Piano Competition and the Pacific International Piano Competition, Schumann has won more than 25 prizes and awards in other major national and international competitions, including the Cleveland International Piano Competition and the Hilton Head International Piano Competition. She has performed solo recitals and chamber music concerts worldwide, in such venues as the Kennedy Center, Vienna's Bösendorfer Saal, Toronto's Koerner Hall, and Montreal's Place des Arts.

Passionate about creating public access to the arts, she founded Piano Theatre, an artist group formed to engage audiences with innovative combinations of classical music, theatre, literature, art and technology. Piano Theatre's recent tours of the U.S., Canada and Australia were acclaimed by critics and audiences alike.

At the concert April 26, Schumann will play works by Beethoven, Liszt and Vine. Caledon Chamber Concerts is grateful for funding support from the Ontario Arts Council, an agency of the government of Ontario, and from the Town of Caledon.

The concert will be held at St. James' Church, Caledon East. Tickets are $30 for adults, $15 for students 16 years and younger, and may be purchased at Book-Lore, Forster's Book Garden, and Howard the Butcher. Tickets will also be available at the door. For more information or to reserve tickets, call 905-880-2445.

Pianist Elizabeth Schumann will perform next Saturday in the Caledon Chamber Concert.

Time for residents to get involved in plan review process

By Mark Pavilons

It's time for concerned citizens to make a lot of noise and elevate the discussion on the environmental plans that protect lands in Ontario.

The lack of monitoring and any real data on environmental protection in this province is its main failing, according to Gord Miller, Ontario's Environmental Commissioner. Miller was the keynote speaker last Wednesday at a public forum hosted by Concerned Citizens for King Township (CCKT) at the Kingbridge Centre in King City. London Publishing, owner of the Citizen, was the exclusive media sponsor of the event.

A capacity crowd gathered to hear from Ontario's top environmental cheerleader, who provided an overview of shortcomings, while offering insights on what the future holds.

The event was put together by CCKT to inform residents about the importance of the 2015 reviews of major pieces of legislation — the Niagara Escarpment Plan, the Oak Ridges Moraine Plan and Greenbelt Plan.

Once the envy of the world regarding environmental policy, Ontario's focus has declined and public service cuts in the ministries that handle environmental issues have led to lackluster enforcement and no follow-through monitoring, Miller observed.

The province currently lacks the professional capacity of experts — those important “boots on the ground” — to ensure environmental plans are working. Miller stressed that it's tax dollars that fund environmental protection, so taxpayers should demand they be invested where it

Board considering its options after court ruling on religious instruction

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board is considering its options after a recent ruling by the Ontario Superior Court of Justice.

The court, in a ruling earlier this month, determined that parents have the right to have their children exempt from religious courses and programs in publicly-funded Catholic high schools.

According to a release from OneSchool-System.org, Brampton resident Oliver Erazo was successful in his efforts to have his kids exempted from the religious courses.

The release added the court decision does nothing to change the situation for youngsters in elementary school, as it pointed out that children admitted to these schools are still expected to comply with the sectarian components of their courses and programs.

“Ontario families bear a heavy cross so that Catholic Ontarians can have a segregated, sectarian school system at public expense,” observed OneSchoolsystem.org president Leonard Baak. “Hundreds of thousands of children are consigned to long commutes past their nearest publicly funded school each day to attend another one farther away. Many of these children are also denied the opportunity to attend a school in their own communities and the entire system is impoverished by the costly and unnecessary overlap and duplication.”

“Today, these burdens are a little lighter for families, Catholic or not, preferring a non-sectarian school environment for their children,” he added. “Parents of Grade 9 to 12 students living in a community where the nearest school, the least crowded school, or the best school is Catholic, can now chose that school without fear that their children will be forced to take sectarian courses and programs of little interest to them or with which they may disagree.”

The court ruling was released April 4, according to the Board's Manager of Communications and Community Relations Bruce Campbell, and it has 15 days to decide if an appeal is warranted.

“We're considering all our options,” he said. “At that point, we'll see how we want to proceed.”

counts. The once powerful Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) and Ministry of the Environment (MOE) have been “gutted” and their combined budgets today account for less than one cent out of every tax dollar. Even increasing their budgets twofold would see changes and not affect the big tax picture.

He is not adverse to tax increases if they can be directed to the environment.

Miller also told the audience to never underestimate the “noise” made by people to their elected officials. With impending provincial and municipal elections this year, it's vital to “explain it to them.”

An officer of the Legislative Assembly, Miller's role is to critically evaluate government decisions and the provincial planning system as it relates to the environment.

Broad rules have been set out in a number of key pieces of legislation — the fore-runner of them all, the Niagara Escarpment Act, along with the Oak Ridges Moraine Conservation Plan (ORMCP), Greenbelt Plan, and now the Lake Simcoe Protection Plan.

While somewhat controversial at the outset, today these plans have been embraced as guiding lights, but unfortunately have lacked performance monitoring indicators.

So, it's difficult to say whether they've been successful or not, without that on-the-ground data. With no real metrics, this has inherent problems, Miller pointed out.

Ontario's Environmental Commissioner Gord Miller spoke last week on how the public can be engaged in the review process for Ontario's environmental plans.

Regarding the Growth Plan for the Greater Golden Horseshoe, the Ministry of Infrastructure did not develop indicators and the plan has undergone two substantial amendments and changes, with no evaluation, no metrics and no real measurements.

One of the problems is government ministries tend to create plans, draft discussion papers, but never finalize anything.

The only plan that works is the Niagara Escarpment Plan, created in the 1970s with its own monitoring system.

While the ORMCP tries to ensure ecological integrity, it too lacks a monitoring network.

It's great to set high standards, Miller noted, but it all falls apart when there's no monitoring mechanism in place.

The Oak Ridges Moraine Foundation was doing it, but the province cut its funding and the foundation folded.

What's in Ontario is a “planning hodge-podge” and Miller came out swinging in a recent report to Queen's Park. He said he was “astounded” at the failure to develop monitoring and evaluation for the Greenbelt and ORMCP and it was “disconcerting” that the Growth Plan was amended “in the dark.”

The problem lies with responsibilities fragmented between ministries. The Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing is the lead ministry for land use planning and has adopted a “one window policy,” but this has proven to be ineffective. Miller explained that previously, both MOE and MNR were lead commenting agencies on all development applications in this province and they had field staff to provide

“We need to stop bake sale justice planning in Ontario,” he said.

Donnelly went as far as suggesting that developers who try to bully residents with what's known as “slap suits” have their applications frozen.

George Puccia, president of Stewards of the Moraine, pointed out his group spent a lot of time and money fighting an application for a banquet hall on the moraine. They were victorious. He wanted to know how citizens can put more teeth into the legislation and avoid frivolous applications.

Donnelly said Ontario does have the on-site expertise. Both ministries have suffered staff cuts over the years and currently “no one in government is looking at the land.”

But people's hands aren't tied as concerned citizens.

Miller said they need to take a step back, push for, and help create, a transparent monitoring and evaluation framework for all land use plans. It is the government's responsibility and there needs to be a long-term commitment to environmental monitoring. The government doesn't always get things right, so in order to make proper decisions, they need full knowledge of the situation and the consequences.

When asked about the role of the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB), Miller said it was created at a time when municipalities were ill equipped to make complicated decisions, but that's no longer the case today.

Developers aren't necessarily the villains in all of this, they are merely playing the game as the rules are laid out. If sloppy decisions are made, they take advantage of them.

“We can't allow bad decisions to be made,” he said.

Former environment minister Ruth Grier, who was at the meeting, was one of the first to propose an environmental bill of rights, is worried that the government will move to a uniform environmental protection strategy and asked about opportunities within the next year that residents can get involved.

Miller commented on the need to raise the discussion standards and have substantive talks that will see these pieces of legislation continue to have teeth.

Goodbye to a friend

By Bill Rea

As you probably know by now, Bill Whitbread died Sunday. He was a long-time fixture with the Enterprise, which is the competition to the Citizen. But more important, he was a fixture in the community.

He was also a friend of mine. It was 30 years ago Feb. 24 that I met Bill for the first time. I was a journalism student at Humber College, and that was the first day of my internship with what in those days was known as the Bolton Enterprise. He was one of a number of people I met that very busy day, but my first real memory of Bill came at the end. He and I were the last two in the office, and we were getting ready to leave when we heard fire trucks rush by (the Enterprise office was in the village core in those days).

“Should someone be following those trucks to see what that’s all about?” asked the young whippersnapper who was myself. Bill gave me his patented, world-weary grin and said, “Go ahead.”

About eight years later, I related that story to Brian McFarlane of Hockey Night in Canada fame as part of a video tribute being made about Bill.

“I got my first front-page picture and Bill got the night off,” I told him.

In time, my internship came to an end, and I landed a job with “that other paper.”

Bill became my competitor, but he was also a person I knew I could talk to. Few are the people I was more comfortable talking to than Bill Whitbread.

And it took little time for me to get a real appreciation of the regard with which he was held in the community.

I have spent my career working on community newspapers, and it’s people like Bill who helped me really grasp the meaning of the word “community.”

He was recognized in the fall of 1992, when a park in Bolton was renamed in his honour. I was at the banquet when it was announced. McFarlane was the keynote speaker and that video I referred to earlier was shown. The festivities concluded with remarks from Bill. I made a point of going up to him at the end of his address to shake hands with him.

“Well done,” I said to him. “You too,” he replied.

Bill and I generally saw each other every Friday morning (during the school year) as we made the rounds of the local high schools, taking the Athlete of the Week pictures. Such was the case this past Friday, as he and I chatted about relatively minor stuff. We were both mindful that the schools were going to be closed the following Friday (Good Friday), so it had been agreed that we’d take the Athlete pictures today (Thursday).

“See you Thursday,” I called over my shoulder as Bill and I parted Friday. Those were the last words I spoke to Bill Whitbread. If I had only known.

So long, my friend.

Our Readers Write ‘We will all miss Jim Flaherty’

Political parties sometimes portray those opposing them as “the enemy,” but in reality we are friends and neighbours who happen to have diverse points of view.

From Confederation on, Liberals and Conservatives have steered this improbable country in often different directions, but we have arrived together at this time to be the most privileged citizens, unarguably and undeniably, of the most desirable and fortunate place on earth.

It is therefore with sincerity and unambiguity that we mourn the loss of former finance minister Jim Flaherty. He served this country with integrity, dedication and with honour during, at times, difficult periods. While we often disagreed on policy, we recognize he was a decent man, a gentleman and a great Canadian. He perhaps sacrificed his health to the stress of his service and we had hoped for his return to full vigour going forward to private life. But that was not to be.

On behalf of the Dufferin-Caledon Federal Liberal Association, we express our heartfelt sympathies to his wife Christine and their sons John, Galen and Quinn. We know his early passing will leave an unfillable void in their lives. We will all miss Jim Flaherty.

“Wow, what a kind soul!” was what we said when we came in the morning of April 3.

There are some very generous people in our community and we had one stop by our very own Bolton Dairy Queen the evening of April 2.

We don’t know who you are, but we would like to extend a big thank you to you who anonymously donated a generous amount to our Children’s Miracle Network donation barrel.

The kids at Sick Kids Hospital will forever be grateful of your generosity.

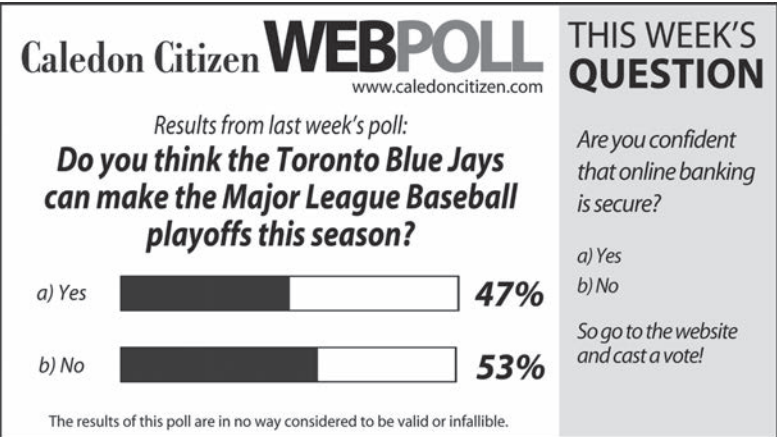

Thank you again and again. Only you know who you are!

Settling Ella down

I’ve heard it said that parenting is probably the most difficult job one can undertake, as well as the most rewarding.

I take that statement at face value, as I have never fathered a child, as I am now crossing into the chronological decline known as the late-50s, it’s unlikely that’s going to change. But I am well acquainted with the patter of little feet around the house.

As many of you know, we have a cat which my wife and I welcomed with reasonably open arms earlier this year (actually, Beth did the welcoming, and I went along with it in the interest of domestic tranquility and knowing there are a lot of cat lovers out there who would hate me had I done anything less).

Ella is a tabby, born a little more than six months ago in Beth’s brother’s barn. He suggested we take her into our home, partly because he had more barn cats than he needed, but in more of an understanding that we were dealing with a grieving process, the result of our previous cat Sidney leaving us in November.

There have been a few benefits from having Ella in our lives, not the least of which being a happier wife. Ella is also in the habit of greeting me at the door when I get home, even when I’ve been working late. Sidney never did that.

But life has not been easy with Ella either. Not surprisingly, a kitten at that age can be adventurous and aggressive. She also has four paws that are well equipped with claws, and Beth and I both have the lacerations to prove it. The spouse of at least one Caledon councillor expressed concern upon seeing the marks on my arm from Ella’s claws.

And there have been a couple of times when she has come very close to losing her happy home. About a month ago, we were setting up for a small dinner party. A tablecloth had been placed on the table, and Ella was excessively intrigued with one of the corners hanging over the edge. The result was one of the wine glasses that came from my late mother went flying. For one of the very few times in the almost 30 years I’ve known her, I actually thought Beth was going to cuss. I was mad too, largely because I had to clean up the broken glass, while trying to calm my wife down.

As well, she has a habit of trying to get into things. Open a cupboard door when she’s nearby, and you’ll soon have a pussycat to eject. Ella even tries to get into the refrigerator.

She can also be a pain when one is trying to sleep.

Ella tends to hunker down with Beth and I at night, which isn’t too bad, although her method of entry to the bed sometimes leaves a little to be desired. She has a habit of jumping just high enough to clear the mattress, not worrying about what else (like a body) she might collide with. Trust me, There are few ways of being woken up that are less enjoyable than suddenly finding yourself with a face full of hurtling pussycat. She’s also a little prone to sneezing fits, and having a cat sneeze in your face in the middle of the night is going to wake you up too.

The real problem is that while I’m an early riser (seldom sleeping beyond 7 a.m., whether I have to get up or not), Ella wakes up even earlier, like about 5. And since she’s rather sociable, she likes to have someone awake with her. So she goes to work with the claws, and that has already cost me more blood than I care to think about.

She also has a bad habit of jumping onto things, especially if she can be inconvenient about it. I often do work at home, typing on my laptop, and Ella likes to get on the table and either watch me work, or bug the hell out of me, going so far as to claw at my hands as they move, or waltz back and forth over the keyboard. It can be frustrating.

Cats never played a big part in my life, that is until I got married. There was always a dog around when I was pretending to grow up, largely because my father travelled a lot on business and insisted there be a dog in the house if he was going to be away from home so much. But cats were rather foreign to me.

It’s amazing what comes to a person when they get married, especially if they marry a cat lover. That was the case for me, as Sally was one of the items that accompanied the wedding vows, along with the bed (I supplied the TV and most of the dishes). After Sally came Sidney, and now we have Ella. So all of the cats have been female, and since it has been Beth who’s done all the picking, I’m assuming that was deliberate.

Which brings us to this past Friday. That was a big day, because we had Ella fixed (you know what I mean). Beth has assured me it’s necessary, also telling me it will likely result in a much calmer cat. I hope she’s right, because there’s only so much blood loss a man can stand.

Naturally, it was an ordeal for Ella, and Beth was having a bit of trouble hiding her concern. And I’m such an empathetic jerk that I spent most of the day feeling sorry for both of them.

But things went well, although as of this writing (Saturday afternoon), we have about a week of complications to look forward to.

Anyone who knows anything about cats know they like to keep themselves clean by constantly licking themselves. But there is also the danger that Ella could go after the area where the incision was made, which could create complications. Accordingly, Ella has been fitted with a conical devise around her neck, which restricts where she can go with her tongue and mouth.

Fortunately, it has not impacted on her ability to feed herself. Ella is still the same eating machine she’s always been.

But this device (I’ll call it a collar for want of a better term) is no load of laughs for Ella. She has been having all kinds of trouble maneuvering about the house.

I had never really noticed it before now, but cats do like to nuzzle up against things as they pass them, and a collar like that makes things rather difficult. The collar keeps bumping into things, causing Ella much consternation. It hasn’t done a lot for Beth or I either.

Stairs was something of a concern when we got her home. Ella’s litter box is in the basement, and I made a point of being near the stairs the first time it looked like she needed a trip below, ready to catch her if she tripped. Fortunately, Ella had the good sense to take things slow (she obviously takes after me), so in the end, stairs have not been a major issue. But there’s a lot of “stuff” in our basement. She’s used to getting around it, but not with the collar on. I briefly toyed with the idea of moving some of the stuff, but concluded that would not be wise. She’s going to have to wear this thing for a week, and I’m not always going to be around to move things for her. Better to let her figure out how to get around on her own.

There are a couple of things she won’t be doing for a couple of days. She likes to run up and down the main stairs in the house doing a slalom course between the rungs in the banister, but that’s been set aside for the moment.

Actually, she’s been pretty sedate so far. Beth thinks it has something to do with the medication the vet put her on. I hope things are a little more permanent.

Federal government is standing with the people of Ukraine

At the outbreak of the crisis in Ukraine, our government was one of the first voices on the international stage to offer explicit support for the Ukrainian people in their struggle to restore democracy, freedom and the rule of law.

We expressed outrage at the use of military force against civilians and mourned the dozens of Ukrainians who lost their lives at the hands of their country's military.

As the home of more than one million people of Ukrainian descent — the third largest Ukrainian population in the world — Canada continues to take a principled stand in the international community and help lead efforts to help restore stability and prosperity in the country.

Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird was in Kyiv's Independence Square in February to reaffirm Canada's solidarity with the Ukrainian people. Soon after,

Jim Flaherty recognized in Caledon

By Bill Rea

Flags at Town of Caledon facilities were lowered to half-staff last week in honour of Jim Flaherty.

Mr. Flaherty, Canada's former finance minister, and previously finance minister for Ontario, died unexpectedly last Thursday. He was 64.

The Town extended sincere condolences to Mr. Flaherty's family, friends and colleagues for this tragic loss.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison had words of tribute to Mr. Flaherty at Tuesday's meeting of Town council, praising his 20-year political career and calling him a great example to those who hold public office.

While she never actually worked with him, Morrison said she met Mr. Flaherty a few times.

"This man had the big picture," she declared. "He was ready to bite the bullet and do things that were right in the long-run."

Hear about social media tools for business

Join Caledon Small Business Enterprise Centre (SBEC) at Caledon Community Services (CCS) in Bolton April 24, from 1:30 to 3 p.m., for a special presentation from Christine Gnass, digital consultant for WSI.

Gnass will discuss the importance of having an online presence for any business, and will provide a review of the Top 10 "must-do's" to be found on Google by customers.

Gnass has been assisting businesses across Canada for more than 20 years, by understanding their goals and challenges and showing them how to use technology to grow their business. She has been using the same method with local businesses for the past five months, using digital marketing.

"Over 80 per cent of the buying process is done online," Gnass said. "89 per cent of the Google searches are to find a local business and 82 per cent of Canadians engage in social media to make a purchasing decision. Is your business online? Can you afford to miss out on those buying opportunities?"

Reserve seats for this special presentation now. Contact Small Business Enterprise Specialist Maureen Tymkow at 905-584-2300 ext. 216 or sbec@ccs4u.org to book a seat.

Caledon SBEC is funded by the Town of Caledon and is one of the initiatives operated by CCS. The main office of CCS is located at 18 King St. East in the Royal Courtyards, Bolton. For more information, visit www.ccs4u.org or call 905-584-2300.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS
Claire Hoy

Most people follow the old adage that "you should never speak ill of the dead." The reason is obvious: whatever you may or may not have thought of the deceased, you still want to show respect for those who loved him or her.

The result, of course, is that when somebody dies there is a predictable outpouring of kind words and glowing praise before life, as we know it, reverts back to its' normal course of events.

The problem is, not all deaths — or lives — should be treated with the same degree of reverence. Some people clearly deserve more praise than others for the way they lived their life.

Which brings us, as you may have guessed, to the tragic sudden death last week of long-time federal-provincial Tory politician Jim Flaherty.

In a cruel twist of fate, Flaherty, 64, having just recently announced he was scaling back after nearly two decades as an MPP and MP — including the high-stress role as Prime Minister Stephen Harper's finance minister — was denied his chance to spend some overdue time with his wife (Ontario Tory deputy leader Christine Elliott) and their triplet sons, John, Quinn and Galen.

Like most political leaders, and despite their high-profile media presence, Flaherty was known to the public not for his personal attributes, but for his political record, mainly for his fiscal prowess in leading Canada through the worst financial crisis in decades and his consistent fiscal conservatism (with the exception of his early bolstering of government spending to ride out the aforementioned crisis).

Some admired him for that. Some didn't. That's politics.

But in this case, as somebody who knew Flaherty personally, I can tell you that the all-party outpouring of grief — the widespread shedding of tears — in Ottawa and elsewhere at the tragic death of this man was not political acting by any stretch. It was real.

Flaherty was a man who, whatever your political bent might be, was impossible not to like. And admire.

He had a terrific leprechaun-like sense of humour, a constant twinkle in his eyes that, whatever your station in life might be, made anybody who came near him feel completely at ease. He was not the type of person who used — or abused — his important political status to lord it over anybody.

When the terrible news hit Parliament Hill last week, Harper, whose public persona is often akin to an ice-man, could barely blurt out the news. With his wife Lauren standing beside him, wiping tears from her eyes, Harper said, "This comes as an unexpected and terrible shock to Jim's family, to our caucus and to Lauren and me. And it with the heaviest of hearts that I offer my family's condolences and I know the condolences of the entire Parliament and the government of Canada."

NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair, clearly a political opponent of Flaherty's fiscally conservative views, said, "He's a good person. We're very, very sad for the loss of a great Canadian. Jim Flaherty was an extraordinarily dedicated public servant and he will be greatly missed by all of us."

Former Ontario premier Mike Harris — where Flaherty first began his political career — said, "He touched a lot of people very positively as a person. We are all going to miss him. I really feel for his family."

And leaders in Canada's disability community — an area of Flaherty's personal life which hasn't received much publicity (one of his three sons is disabled) — expressed their immense gratitude for Flaherty's efforts on their behalf, particularly his grants to Special Olympics Canada and the registered disability savings plan, which allows money to be set aside tax free for people with disabilities, a plan unique in the world.

And the list goes on.

There's a theme in all those comments. Politics aside, there was the appreciation from all who knew him of just what a wonderful, genuine human being he was, a man who was just as comfortable sitting in the board room with high-level bankers as he was having a coffee in his local café or playing pickup hockey with his Ottawa pals.

Jim Flaherty was the real deal. He deserved a better fate.

God bless him.

Peel Region’s spring street cleaning is set to start next week

Peel Region will begin the annual spring street cleaning the week of April 21 and finish around the end of June.

Street cleaning removes the dirt, sand and debris left over from the winter and improves road and community safety. A clean road with less dirt and sand improves traction and reduces flying debris on windy days. Street cleaning reduces the amount of unwanted materials that enter streams and rivers, as well as maintaining an efficient storm sewer system. Work in Mississauga and south Brampton is being conducted at night to minimize impact to traffic. Work in north Brampton and Caledon will be completed during daytime.

Residents and businesses should be aware of the following:

- Night time work will take place from 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. weeknights, while daytime work will take place from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., weather permitting.
- Lanes will be closed one at a time. Anticipate merging traffic.
- Drivers should stay clear of street sweepers and use extra caution at intersections where sweepers may be weaving around islands.

The first phase involves cleaning all splash pads, curbs, islands, centre medians and removing all debris from streets where large pieces are picked up by hand. Street sweepers will sweep dirt and grime into the curb side. Phase two then begins and involves street sweeper vehicles and flusher trucks to sweep and wash, removing the dirt and grime from the road. Due to the large volume of water used, work will not occur when temperatures are below freezing.

Fallen tree branches from the December ice storm are still present on the boulevards. Peel’s road maintenance staffs are clearing dangerous branches overhanging roads and sidewalks. Much of the initial branch cleanup will occur in the spring and be completed by end of May (does not include tree trimming, just removal of fallen branches on boulevards). The cleanup and assessment of damage will continue throughout 2014 as once trees bloom, further damage could result from internal stress not immediately visible.

A schedule of when specific streets will be cleaned and brush cleanup can be viewed online at peelregion.ca/roadmain-tenance

The spring street cleaning is the first step to other maintenance activities, such as repainting of traffic lines that start in spring and continue over the summer. Other post-winter activities beginning in April and early May include the removal of roadside litter, minor boulevard repairs, straightening of road signs, safety barrier repairs and grass cutting on boulevards.

Regional council updated on measles issue

By Bill Rea

The recent cases of measles reported in Ontario, including Peel Region, is a cause for concern, but not alarm.

That was the message Peel Health officials had for Regional councillors last week.

Medical Officer of Health Dr. David Mowat addressed councillors, accompanied by Associate Medical Officer of Health Dr. Eileen de Villa.

De Villa said there was notification of a measles exposure at Sky Zone Indoor Trampoline Park in Mississauga March 29 from a person not living in the region. Health department staff worked to make people who had been at the facility aware of what they could do to minimize risks. She added there was confirmation received April 4 of a Brampton infant who had recently been in a measles endemic country. There were several exposure sites in Peel and more than 600 potential contacts that required notification.

She added the department has taken a number of actions, including public notification and contacting people who might have been exposed. People who might have been exposed have also been urged to contact their doctors to check their immunization records. Staff from Peel Public Health have also been assisting with the notification process.

Mowat agreed the number of recent cases of measles has been unusual.

He said Canada has been free of endemic measles since 1998.

Despite that, he said it’s still a leading cause of death among young children globally. That is in spite of the availability of a safe and effective vaccine. Mowat observed that in 2012, 122,000 people around the world died of the disease. A lot of those were in the Third World where malnutrition would be common, but not all. Mowat said there were recently 23 deaths in the Philippines. Between 2009 and 2012, there were 27 cases of Measles reported in Canada. Mowat said most of those involved travel outside Canada and inadequate immunization.

He also said there had been 12 cases reported in Ontario up to that point this year.

“Measles is just about the most contagious disease there is,” Mowat remarked. “It’s very, very infectious indeed.”

He said it spreads through coughing and sneezing, adding people who had not had two doses of vaccine or who never had the disease before are at risk.

He also stated that measles is contagious until four days after the red rash first appears, and it could take up to 21 days after exposure for symptoms to appear.

Symptoms can include high fever, cough and runny nose, sore eyes or sensitivity to light, small spots with a white centre inside the mouth and a red rash lasting four to seven days.

“Measles is now a rare disease,” Mowat said, adding it can be hard to diagnose because there are so many other rashes out there.

De Villa said two doses of vaccine are recommended for people born after 1970 (those born before are considered immune). Vaccination of children is now part of the regular routine publicly funded schedule. The current vaccination rate for children in Peel is at about 96 per cent.

Mississauga Councillor Bonnie Crombie raised the issue of parents not getting their kids immunized.

“That has never been a big issue in the Region of Peel,” Mowat replied.

He added children in schools have to be immunized unless there is evidence of a conscientious objection or medical reason why they can’t. Those numbers, he added, are “extremely low.”

He added there are many immigrants in Peel who have seen children sick and dying in hospitals, so a lot of them understand the benefits of vaccination.

Alton Grange AGM May 1

The Alton Grange Association will be holding its annual open house and general meeting May 1.

It will start at 7 p.m. at the Alton Legion Hall, 1267 Queen St.

All are invited to hop on over and join in some free family fun with Hands on Exotics, an interactive presentation with some live creatures.

Bring cameras and learn about how these fascinating mystery guests live.

Refreshments will be served, and there will be opportunities to open or renew memberships. Guest exhibitors will be attending.

COMMUNITY RECYCLING CENTRES (CRCs)

All CRCs are closed on Friday, April 18 and Sunday, April 20.

In addition, the Bolton and Caledon CRCs will be closed on Monday, April 21.

All CRCs will operate under regular hours on all other days.

Weekly Yard Waste Collection has begun

Peel Region’s weekly yard waste collection program is well underway. Remember, if you have yard waste for pick up, follow these instructions on your regular collection day:

- individual branches must not be larger than 10 cm (4 in.) in diameter
- small bundles of yard waste and brush must not exceed 1.2 m (4 ft.) and 76 cm (30 in.) in diameter and weigh no more than 20 kg (44 lbs.)
- individual branches and tree limbs must be tied and not exceed 1.2 m (4 ft.) in length and 7.5 cm (3 in.) in diameter
- place yard waste in labelled, open, rigid and reusable containers, bushel baskets, or paper yard waste bags
- yard waste set out in plastic bags, recycling boxes or cardboard boxes, or weighing more than 20 kg (44 lbs.) will not be collected

Due to last winter’s ice-storm, there may be higher than normal volumes of yard waste for pick up, which may cause collection delays. If your yard waste is not collected on your regularly scheduled collection day, please leave it at the curb and it will be picked up in priority sequence.

Drop into PAMA this weekend and enjoy free activities with admission

Visit PAMA this weekend to explore exhibitions and create artwork to welcome spring. Drop-in family activities are free with admission all weekend long. In connection with the art gallery exhibition, The Tree, families will use oil pastels to create bright and beautiful “tree-scape” drawings, mounting their final work on colourful backgrounds.

Caledon athletes in pre-season gridiron training

Football getting ready to move outdoors for spring session

By Brian Lockhart

They're tough, they're fast, and they take a thumping and do it all over again on the next play.

With the start of summer league football just more than a month away, gridiron athletes are working through the pre-season with indoor training and plan to move outdoors in a couple of weeks.

With no established summer football organizations in Caledon, local players have the option to move to other centres with many choosing to sign on with the Orangeville Outlaws of the Ontario Minor Football League.

Many players go to other centres with experience from playing football at the high school and Caledon has a lot of talent that hone their skills in the fall session at the collegiate level.

For Mayfield Secondary School student Zach Pembry, football was a sport he was interested in playing after being a fan and watching professional teams on television.

"My Dad looked around and found out about Orangeville, so I joined up," he said of his start playing with the bantam team.

He now is a second-year Varsity Division player and slots in as a wide receiver on the squad after switching to an offensive position after starting his career on defence as a cornerback.

"I talked to the coach and said I wanted to try offence," he said, adding he likes playing both. "I like to catch the ball and follow through. I've been successful on both sides."

One thing that draws players to football is the excitement of playing a contact sport and the fact that they rely on each other to make a cohesive unit that can compete.

"I like the hitting," Zach said, "I like my teammates and there is a brotherhood about it."

Brennan Annett is another Mayfield student who plays the fall season in high school then sweats it out in the summer heat with the Orangeville team.

Brennan is now in his third season with the Outlaws and his second year with the Junior Varsity Division squad.

"My friends told me I should play," he said of how he got started in the game. "I thought it was a good sport. I like watching it."

"My friend already played here and told me it was a good league," he added, explaining why he likes the summer league. "I had a good start in high school football. It's off season, so it's a good way to stay in shape."

The Grade 10 student specializes in playing on the defensive squad rotating between cornerback and safety positions.

"I think this is going to be a really good year," he said of how his JV is looking in the pre-season. "We've got a really good team."

The Outlaws had a stellar 2013 season, sending two teams to the OMFL championships and returning with bantam title.

Dorado Stars inspired by past and present athletes

Swimmers Tess Routcliffe, Taylor McAuley, Alia Meyers, Kira Eggengoor, Emily Osborne are seen here with Olympian Keith Beavers (third from right).

The Dorado Stars swimmers had a unique opportunity recently to be inspired by a former Dorado swimmer and 2008 Olympian, Keith Beavers.

Beavers spoke to current athletes about his experiences and commitment to training, which kept him at the pool and eventually led him to the Olympics. The Stars gained insight from Beaver’s choices, actions, setbacks and sacrifices as he moved through his swim career.

In the meantime, Stars athletes are having amazing experiences in their own competitions.

Tess Routcliffe, is heading off to Can-Ams, where she will obtain an international classification. This competition follows her time at the 2014 Para Camp in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Routcliffe was approached by the Para Canadian Team to participate in the camp in preparation for the Can-Ams. She hopes the new skills, outdoor training and explosive swim sets will increase her chances of qualifying for the Pan-Pacifics.

Head Coach Courtney Desjardins noted that Routcliffe has “the combination of a dream and the right attitude to change the course of her life. Tess continues to inspire me and hopefully that transpires throughout our team.”

Five qualifying Dorado athletes made their mark in short course championships for the season as well. Joshua Maas, Jordan McAuley and Angelique Singh had four top-15 finishes at Winter Festivals.

Aran Pourawal and Ashley Riddall achieved five top-15 finishes at Age Group SC Championships. Pourawal gained a “send” time for 400-metre individual medley and finished fifth while Riddall swam personal best times in all four of her events.

The rest of the Dorado team represented the club well at the Cobra Power Meet, accomplishing 118 top-10 finishes in this across town competition.

For information about the Dorado Stars contact Team Manager Carmen Desjardins at the Stars’ office at 905-846-6213.

TNT football getting ready for season

The TNT Express football players are starting to get in shape for the 2014 season.

As the Winter Skills Camp wound down, the rest of the TNT CLUB started with their training with PRO-FIT Performance in an effort to enhance their health and fitness. PRO-FIT focuses on warm-up routines, aerobic exercises, nutrition and strength training for all TNT Express players.

Though the March 31 league deadline has come and gone, the club will be signing players up to the May 17 start of the season. Those who are interested can contact the registrar at treasurer@tntexpress-football.com

TNT Express Football is the second smallest center in the 23 clubs in the Ontario Minor Football League, and the only one to enter a team in each of the six age divisions.

Outlaws hit the field next month

The OMHL has expanded this season with 63 registered teams in six divisions that hail from 20 different centres.

The Club started their pre-season training program in the dome at ACTS Fitness more than a month ago.

Five divisions of players who will be taking part in the 2014 summer football season were going through the paces of agility training during their first outing as a club since the winter football camp.

For the first few sessions, most players didn’t even touch a football. This was more about conditioning and getting back into a football frame of mind.

After winning the championship last season, many bantam players who were on that team have now graduated to the junior varsity level, so that may be the squad to watch this year.

The Ontario Minor Football League has expanded for the second year in a row. New teams include squads from Scarborough, Oshawa, Newmarket and Clarington.

The Orangeville squad draws players from a wide area; from Mayfield Road in the south, east to Highway 50, and as far west and north as players want to come as no towns in those areas field teams.

The season is scheduled to get underway May 17.

Routliffe represents the Dorado Stars Swim Club in the U.S.

Tess Routliffe has been swimming full throttle since the swim season began in September.

The Dorado Stars swimmer qualified for Provincials in February and got her ticket for CAN-AM. This swim meet is held at the University of Minnesota, where the best Canadian and American paralympic swimmers compete to earn their spot on their respective National teams in order to participate in the World Championships this summer.

Routliffe took part in seven different races, which is the maximum allowed per athlete. She reached the finals for her races six times and won the 50-metre breaststroke.

"Tess was competing for the very first time in a long-course pool," said her coach Pierre-Étienne Lambert. "That was a brand new experience for her. Being able to travel to the meet, deal with a lot of novelties, race against some paralympic medallists and win the 50-metre breaststroke is simply fantastic."

Routliffe and the STARS will be competing in Hamilton in April and May to launch the long-course season.

Those who are interested in information about the club can contact team manager Carmen Desjardins (carmdesja@hotmail.com/905-846-6213).

-Provincial Junior C cup going to final series

By Brian Lockhart

It has been a long road, and the two Ontario Junior C hockey teams still remaining will now play for the top prize — the Schmalz Cup.

After seven months of regular season and playoffs, the Lakefield Chiefs will square off against the Essex 73s in an epic battle to claim the title of top Junior C team in the province.

At the local level, the Georgian Mid Ontario League ended the season with the Penetang Kings coming out on top after a series that went six games and ended with a win over the Alliston Hornets March 16.

The Kings went on to face the Wingham Ironmen of the Western Junior C League in the provincial playoffs, but bowed out after losing the series in six games.

The Lakefield squad, hailing from the Central Ontario League, have had a stellar season, winning their league championship before knocking out the defending Schmalz Cup champion Picton Pirates in a quarter-final series that went the full distance and ended with a 3-2 win for the Chiefs March 30.

In the semifinal round, Lakefield pulled off a huge coup de grace with a 4-0 sweep over the power-house Grimsby Peach Kings to earn the right to go to the Schmalz Cup final.

On the other side, Essex won their quarter-final round over the Dorchester Dolphins in seven games, then eliminated Wingham after five games during the semifinal round.

The final series will be the first time Essex and Lakefield have met on the ice.

The Chiefs have two Schmalz Cup wins behind them — one way back in 1987, and they were the successful provincial champions in 2000.

The Essex team has been a very strong organization for the past decade going to the Schmalz Cup final round seven times in 10 years and coming out with the title in three of those years.

The final series game dates have not yet been announced.

Price retires from rowing

Two-time Olympic medallist coxswain settles in Orangeville

By Brian Lockhart

Two-time Olympic medallist Brian Price has officially announced his retirement from rowing and is settling down in Orangeville.

Price competed with the men's eight for three Olympic games, winning gold in 2008 and silver in 2012.

On national team from 2001 to 2012, he worked with a variety of the world's best rowers to win World Championships in 2002, 2003, and 2007.

At five feet four inches and 120 pounds, Price had the perfect stature to be the coxswain in a men's eights.

Diagnosed at age seven with cancer, Price went through successful chemotherapy, but the treatment reduced his ability to grow afterward.

"Brian was hands-down the best coxswain in the world during the years that I had the privilege of rowing with him," said

Kyle Hamilton, captain of the 2008 gold-medal crew. "Brian worked tirelessly at his craft, and the men that he led respected him for it. In short, we didn't just win with Brian, we won because of Brian."

During his career, the team dominated the sport internationally in the two years leading up to the games in Athens in 2004, but the Canadian eight finished a disappointing fifth.

Four years later in Beijing, Team Canada won gold.

They added another medal to the tally with a silver in London with a team consisting of six Olympic rookies.

Now that he is retiring from the sport, Price lives in Orangeville with his family, including his wife and two young daughters.

Price is in the middle of a book project and speaks publicly about his Olympic experience.

Breakaway actor and screenwriter Vinay Virmani visits Humberview

By Michael Esedafe, Grade 10 student

Students of Humberview Secondary School experienced an amazing opportunity to watch the Canadian film, Breakaway and meet the lead actor of the movie, Vinay Virmani March 25.

The movie screening was an event sponsored by Reel Canada, a Canada-wide film festival with the purpose of raising Canadian students' awareness of Canadian films.

The movie Breakaway dug into the subject of Canadian diversity and multiculturalism. The Sikh culture was specifically highlighted in the movie as Rajvinder Singh, played by Virmani, struggles to balance his Sikh family's cultural expectations with his passion for playing hockey.

After the movie screening, students had a chance to meet Virmani and inquire about his life and inspirations. When asked if any of his own experiences had inspired the script, Virmani admitted there were times as a teen when he felt he was "living a double life, trying to impress two cultures." Therefore, a core value highlighted in the film, according to the writer, is honesty.

Virmani brought along his friend Raghav, a popular Canadian singer, who will be working with him on his newest project, Dr. Cabbie. The film portrays the adventures of an Indian doctor who, upon immigrating to Canada, finds himself unemployed and forced to drive a taxi to make ends meet. Dr. Cabbie will premier in Canada this September.

After the Q&A session, there was a vast lineup of eager students ready to take pictures, get signatures and meet Virmani personally. The students also received the chance to see the taxi cab from the movie Dr. Cabbie up close, outside their school.

Virmani's upcoming film is also holding a contest for people who post their photos of Virmani and themselves on Twitter, Instagram or Facebook with the hashtags #DRCABBIE and #REELCAN. The winners of the contest will receive a trip for two to meet Dr. Cabbie Star Kunal Nayyar in Los Angeles, California or to go to the Toronto Premier of Dr. Cabbie.

Raghav and Vinay Virmani recently addressed students at Humberview Secondary School.

DEATHSCUDNEY, Derald

Born October 16, 1937 gone to be with his Lord on Tuesday, April 15, 2014. Beloved husband of fifty-five years to Margaret Elizabeth (Nesbitt); loved father of Terry (Donna), Duane (Diane), Penny (Ray Proulx, 2012), Allison (Randy Patton), Janice (Phil Jordan); lovingly remembered by 13 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren. Derald was predeceased by his parents Orval and Mabel Cudney and he is lovingly remembered by his siblings Edward Cudney, Shirley Horner and Lieta Cudney.

Derald was a long time business owner of Cudney Glass Co. Ltd. and a recent member of the Calvary Baptist Church. Derald was an active and staunch supporter of Orangeville Kinsman Club and received the distinguished and highest honor of being bestowed the first life membership locally and the youngest nationally at the time. He was a major player on the committee to have the National Kinsman Club of Canada adopt the sponsorship of Cystic Fibrosis. Derald also proudly served as a volunteer firefighter with the Orangeville Fire Department from 1974 to 1986. His retirement years were spent at his cottage where his time was split between family boating and his garden.

The family will receive friends at the Dods & McNair Funeral Home & Chapel, 21 First St., Orangeville (519-941-1392) on Monday, April 21, 2014 from 7:00 - 9:00 p.m. Memorial Service will be held in the Chapel on Tuesday, April 22, 2014 at 11:00 a.m. As expressions of sympathy donations may be made to the Canadian Cancer Society or Calvary Baptist Church.

Writer reflects on recent mission trip to Guatemala

By Tabitha Wells

The country of Guatemala is exceedingly beautiful, with vast mountains, rolling landscapes, huge sugarcane and corn fields, and more than 20 volcanoes, of which several are still active.

The political and social disarray caused by a 36-year civil war has left the people in a state of distrust. Drug and crime lords have too much control, and the government only cares for the small portion of people that are wealthy enough to help them remain in power.

In Guatemala, there is no such thing as middle class. They are either poor or rich, and while the levels of poverty may vary, the need is great. The majority of children only make it to the third or sixth grade before they are pulled from school to help their parents in the markets, or simply because they cannot afford to go to school any longer.

I recently returned home from my second Mission Trip to Guatemala with Broadway Pentecostal Church in Orangeville. It was the fifth year our church has sent a team down to stay with PAOC Missionaries Hector and Ruth Aragon, who live in Guatemala City.

On a mission trip, the expectation is that we are there to change and impact lives, and to help people in moving forward within their own communities. What you rarely expect is the impact it will have on yourself.

Our first few days were spent at a girls' orphanage, which was really more like what we would consider a group home or halfway house.

There was one girl in particular who I connected with quickly. Her name was Paula, and much to my delight, she spoke English quite well. Within about an hour of being around each other, we connected instantly over our shared taste in music.

Paula was beautiful and kind, and seemed to have a presence of maturity that some of the other girls lacked. During our talk, I found out that she was 17, and had married at 15. It was shocking, but not something unheard of in Guatemala.

At one point, I got the courage to ask why she was there, and she shared her story. Eight years ago, her father and mother abandoned her — while her father was still in the house, he wanted nothing to do with either her or her brother. She eventually got involved with drugs and developed a drinking problem leading up to her wedding.

Shortly after she got married, she found herself in trouble with the police and was sentenced to a year in a juvenile detention centre. Six months in, she escaped and ran away, but was caught and taken back.

The orphanage was her punishment for fleeing juvi, but the length of her term was unknown. She was to return in front of a judge Feb. 24 to find out whether she will be sent to another orphanage, or allowed to return home to her husband under house arrest. She was terrified, and she told me she was completely alone, and felt unloved and unwanted.

My heart broke for her, and I wanted nothing more than to show her and remind her that she was loved. The night before our final farewells, I decided to write Paula a letter of encouragement, as well as the Bible verse that got me through my hardest times to remind her to hang on, and packaged up one of my necklaces to go with it. It was a big heart pendant — a way for her to have something to remind her she was loved.

I pulled her aside and gave her my gifts, and she began to cry. Holding the necklace in her hands, she looked up at me and said, "I look at you, and I know you love me. I haven't done anything to earn your love, but you love me anyways. Because of you, I know that's how God loves me too. No matter what, I will know at least you and God love me."

It took everything in me not to start weeping. With those few words, Paula did more for me than I believe I did for her. In that moment, she showed me why we do what we do — and she showed me something I had never seen before. Because just as I loved her unconditionally despite her flaws, she too loved me the same. And that love, reminded me of the same thing it had reminded her — that God does love me, no matter what, which is something that I had been struggling with. In that moment, she reminded me what it is to be a Christian — that we are to love, just as Christ loved us, sins, flaws and all.

Not a day has gone by since leaving that I haven't thought about Paula, and wondered how she is doing. I don't think a day will go by where I don't think about her again. She serves as a reminder to me not just about how good we really have it here, but about how many people there are out there who's biggest need is something we all have in abundance — love, and the knowledge that they are not alone in facing our struggles.

GARAGE SALE IN CALEDON EAST

In keeping with the season, there were plenty of bunnies in evidence Saturday's garage sale, held by the local chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star at the Masonic Hall in Caledon East. Worthy Matron Mary Ann Lylloff (second from left) was assisted in holding the bunnies by Lynne Egan, Winnie Robb and Jim Findlay.
