Hydrogen pilot project at Canadian Tire suspended

By Bill Rea

A story appearing in Tuesday's Toronto Star caught the attention of those involved in the Canadian Tire controversy in Bolton.

The story, written by Urban Affairs Reporter San Grewal, stated a pilot project, in which hydrogen is to be used as a green fuel source may be used at the massive development which is currently being constructed at the corner of Healey Road and Coleraine Drive.

But in response to the story, Canadian Tire announced it would be backing off the pilot project.

In a statement, the corporation's Senior Vice President Duncan Fulton stated it involves "plans to examine hydrogen fuel cells as a cleaner, safer and more efficient energy source for our lift trucks in our distribution centres."

"As of this morning we have temporarily suspended the hydrogen fuel cell pilot in Brampton and Bolton," Fulton reported. "And we will be public and transparent about any intention to restart the pilot projects after reviewing additional research and due diligence."

He also stated that engineers "have methodically planned a safe pilot at our Brampton distribution centre," adding they were exploring the possibility of expanding it to the new Bolton operation.

"I understand that the plans for the pilot have evolved over time, but any perception that we've hidden something is simply not the way we operate and doesn't reflect our culture or brand," Fulton's statement added, saying they have asked their staff to share all studies collected on the use of hydrogen fuel cells. "We will be asking for further studies and due diligence — and we have also asked to collect learnings from our competitors in North America — some of whom have been safely using hydrogen fuel cells in their distribution centres for years."

Town officials didn't think it was a big deal.

Fire Chief David Forfar said he hadn't been told about the hydrogen, although he added he would have been told about them only if Town planners had some concern.

"That's just normal procedure," he said.

Forfar added there are proper storage and dispensing standards for handling this element, and they are administered through the Technical

Peel marks October as Child Abuse Prevention Month

October is Child Abuse Prevention Month.

It is a time to come together and spread awareness that keeping children safe is everyone’s responsibility. This month and throughout the year, Peel Region encourages all individuals to play a role in making Peel a safer place for children and families.

By ensuring that parents have the knowledge, skills, and resources they need to care for their children, everyone can help promote children’s social and emotional well-being and prevent child maltreatment within the community.

“As a father and a grandfather, one of my greatest responsibilities was, and still is, making sure that my family feels safe,” said Regional Chair and CEO Emil Kolb. “Every October reminds us that there are children in the world who still live in fear and that it’s our duty as adults and responsible citizens to make sure that they are free from any harm.”

The Region is an official signatory to the Duty to Report, making a commitment to keep all children safe.

“As Regional Chair, one of the things I’ve been most proud of over the past 20 years is ensuring that we take a leadership role in confronting social issues that affect us all,” Kolb added.

“Signing the Duty to Report is just another example of our promise to address the needs of our growing and diverse community.”

As part of the Child Abuse Prevention Month activities, all Regional staff, including the Executive Management Team, wore purple Oct. 15 to raise awareness of how important it is to work together to keep children safe. Members of the community are invited to plan their own “Go Purple” events throughout the month.

“Keeping children safe is everyone’s responsibility,” said Peel Children’s Aid Society CEO Rav Bains. “October is Child Abuse Prevention Month and gives us an opportunity to raise awareness of how we can work together to keep children safe. We are thankful to our partners who are wearing purple during the month to help us share this important message. If you are concerned about the safety or well-being of a child, please call children’s aid.”

Abuse and neglect are not the only reasons to call Children’s Aid Society. People can also call if they are concerned about domestic violence, substance abuse or other issues affecting a caregiver or parents ability to care for a child.

For more information about child abuse prevention programs and activities during October, and throughout the year, visit www.peelcas.org

Members of the Human Services Leadership Team at Peel Region, who were proclaiming Child Abuse Prevention Month, are Juliet Jackson, director of Service System Management Housing and Strategic Planning, Policy and Partnerships; Janet Menard, commissioner of Human Services; Sonia Pace, director of Children’s Services Operations and Community Partnerships; Regional Chair and CEO Emil Kolb; Suzanne Finn, acting director of Integrated Business Support; Joan Kaczmarek, director of Service System Management Early Learning and Child Care and Office of System Innovation; and Stella Danos-Papaconstantinou, director of Client Relationships and Client and Community Access

Strict rules on use of hydrogen

Standards and Safety Authority (TSSA). If TSSA approves it, the Town would receive a certificate of approval.

He added use of hydrogen is nothing new.

Forfar said a lot of buses in Toronto run on hydrogen, meaning there has to be a large storage facility to service them.

“The whole thing’s a non-issue,” he said. “It’s all controlled by TSSA.”

“They’re trying to make something out of nothing,” Mayor Marolyn Morrison commented, adding hydrogen fuel cells have been used at a number of facilities around the country for about 12 years.

She said it’s considered a “huge advancement,” adding it’s seen as economical and that these cells are considered safer than lead acid batteries and propane.

Morrison also said plans to use hydrogen cells at the Bolton facility are clearly marked on the site plan, and there are requirements to show how it is to be stored and secured in order to get the building permit.

“There are very, very strict rules and regulations in place by the federal and Provincial governments,” she said.

The issue came up at a candidates’ meeting Tuesday, hosted by Your Voice for Bolton, the residents’ group that has been opposing the Canadian Tire development.

Kim Seipt of Your Voice for Bolton told the audience of the announcement that the pilot program was being suspended.

“It’s something, for sure,” she said, but also stated that public process in the development had been circumvented.

“I’m glad that it’s been exposed,” she commented after the meeting.

Seipt added the issue is not hydrogen. “The issue is the lack of transparency provided to the public through the input process, and hydrogen was never mentioned in any public meeting,” she commented.

Growth Management Workshops examined financing options

Peel Region recently hosted a series of Growth Management Workshops as part of its Official Plan review.

Representatives from the planning and development professions came together to discuss the financial risks associated with growth and possible options for sustainable financing of growth. The input and advice generated by this latest workshop will enable Regional council to make decisions on sustainable financing of growth.

The workshop focused on four key themes:

- Reviewing the initial consideration of options and implications for growth finances and debt, which will serve as the basis of the development of a growth infrastructure financing strategy.
- Regional planning policy and process tools to implement a sustainable financing of growth program.
- Additional regional growth financing approaches.
- Understanding the barriers and opportunities to ensure sustainable financing of growth.

"In order to accommodate future growth, significant investment in infrastructure and services is needed. This requires us to think about how to finance this growth because the current model of financing development will lead the Region into taking on higher debt," said Mississauga Regional Councillor Jim Tovey, chair of the Region's Growth Management Committee. "In my experience, the complex issue of addressing the Region's challenges in paying for growth requires strong partnerships and it's vitally important that we begin exploring different sustainable financing growth options. We're seeking an answer to the important question of how should Regional infrastructure be financed to support economic growth and avoid assuming unsustainable levels of debt and risk?"

Projections forecast the region's population to grow by 46 per cent, to almost two million people by 2041. How this future growth is managed will have widespread implications for the local economy, environmental sustainability, health and the overall quality of life enjoyed by residents. With an additional 500,000 residents projected in the region, the question of how to pay for this additional growth is becoming increasingly important.

Presently, at the Region, the estimated development charges for capital costs (water, sewer and roads) are projected to increase, however revenues have lagged behind the actual costs of projects. This has caused the Region to search for options to increase cash flow in order to finance the considerable infrastructure costs. Therefore, the Region requires a multi-faceted approach to ensure that a financing plan is sustainable.

Various options will be considered to finance costs associated with growth and will be presented at a future workshop.

"It is essential for the Region's financial sustainability to collect funds that represent the full costs of growth and ensure the Region does not have unsustainable debt levels," Director of Integrated Planning Arvin Prasad added. "This Growth Management Workshop allowed us to connect with key stakeholders and gain insights into answering difficult questions. The input that we received at our latest workshop will serve as the basis for a sustainable financing of growth program that the Region will develop in the near future. We value collaboration and these workshops demonstrate our commitment to working with our partners."

OPP joined Canadian policing partners for Operation Impact

The “Big Four” were contributing factors in 168 of the 216 road deaths investigated by the OPP this year (2014).
OPP stated the “Big Four” refers to the four main causal factors in traffic collision deaths: Distracted driving, speeding, impaired driving and lack of occupant restraint.

Because of all the fatalities, OPP joined policing partners across the country for Operation Impact over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend. This was a national road safety enforcement and education campaign endorsed by the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police (CACP).
Speeding and distracted driving are in the lead of the four road death causal categories in OPP-investigated collisions. As of Oct. 5, speed was a factor in 51 of the 168 deaths and distracted driving was in second place with 45 deaths. Lack of occupant restraint was in third place at 38 deaths and impaired driving in fourth position as a causal factor in 34 deaths.
“Drivers have it within their means to end road deaths that fall into these four categories because these are not ‘accidents’ that occur through no one’s wrongdoing,” said OPP Deputy Commissioner Brad Blair, Provincial commander of traffic safety and operational support. “These collisions only occur when motorists drive aggressively, while impaired, while distracted or while they or their passengers are not buckled up. Regardless of the category, the tragic result is always related to poor driving behaviour. If drivers and passengers were more mindful of the critical role they play in changing these dangerous behaviours, the OPP and its policing partners would not have to stop them through these collective enforcement and education efforts.”
Police believe that if drivers and passengers across the country collaborate with them by taking these measures on the road all year, they can greatly contribute toward Canada’s Road Safety Strategy 2015 and its vision of making Canada’s roads the safest in the world.

On a positive note, road deaths associated with impaired driving, distracted driving and lack of occupant restraint, as well as marine and trail fatalities are all down from last year (2013).

As of Oct. 5 (in OPP jurisdiction), there had been 34 impaired-related deaths (compared to 59 in 2013); 45 distraction-related deaths (68); 38 deaths related to lack of occupant restraint (49); 51 speed-related deaths (38); 14 marine deaths (20); and eight off-road vehicle deaths (15).

Jones presents Badlands petition to legislature at Queen’s Park

The fight against the proposed parking lot near the Cheltenham Badlands gained some more momentum Monday. Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones presented a petition to the Legislature at Queen’s Park, calling on the “government to fully fund the Cheltenham Badlands Management Plan, which includes but is not limited to the fencing of the geological feature; viewing platform; boardwalks; perimeter fencing(s); trail maintenance and other accessory requirements as part of a complete and approved management plan.”

Caledon Chamber of Commerce says businesses are concerned about Ontario pension plan

The Caledon Chamber of Commerce is concerned that Ontario’s proposed pension plan will negatively impact economic competitiveness and job creation in Caledon.

The Chamber is joining a coalition of more than 50 chambers of commerce and boards of trade from across the province in voicing its concern to the government of Ontario.

The government is planning to move ahead with its plans to implement a new pension scheme for the province. The Ontario Retirement Pension Plan (ORPP), which aims to supplement the Canada Pension Plan (CPP), will require employers to match employee pension contributions, increasing their cost of doing business. For example, in the case of a business that employs 10 people with an average salary of $45,000, the employer will be obligated to pay almost $8,000 per year in additional pension contributions.

According to a recent Ontario Chamber of Commerce survey, 72 per cent of businesses in the province believe that pension reform should be a priority for government. However, the same businesses have also been clear about their concern for Ontario’s broader economic picture, in which the economy is projected to grow slowly for the foreseeable future.

Local businesses, for their part, worry about the cumulative impact that government regulatory and legislative changes will have on their competitiveness.

“Our members are worried about the costs that a new mandatory pension plan would impose on them,” commented Chamber Board Chair Valerie Arnold-Judge. “Combined with increases in electricity costs, high WSIB rates, and in some employers’ cases a higher minimum wage, the new pension plan will burden businesses that are already struggling to meet the costs of doing business in Ontario.”

“Businesses in our area are wary of any increase in payroll taxes,” she added.

The proposed pension plan comes at a challenging time for Caledon and the Greater Toronto Area, where the regional unemployment rate has risen to 9.1 per cent, 0.6 percentage points higher than this time last year.

In its letter to the provincial government, the Chamber calls on Queen’s Park to provide employers with answers to a number of crucial, but unanswered questions.

“What will be the impact of a fully-implemented ORPP? What happens when a business can’t afford to meet the requirements of the ORPP? What about the self-employed?” Arnold-Judge asked. “Businesses in Caledon are seeking answers to these questions.”

“The retirement income challenge is a real one,” observed Allan O’Dette, president and CEO of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce. “But we need to ensure that any changes to the pension system are made with a full understanding of their impact on Ontario’s business climate.”

Man killed on Shaw’s Creek Road

A 62-year-old Caledon man was killed early Saturday morning after an incident on Shaw’s Creek Road.

Caledon OPP reports Kenneth Carr was apparently walking on the east side of the road when he was struck by a north-bound vehicle. Police said they were called to the scene at about 12:45 a.m., and they confirmed the victim was pronounced dead at the scene. The driver of the vehicle was uninjured.

Police are asking anyone with information on this incident to contact them at 905-584-2241.

Concerns have been expressed over the safety of people visiting the site. There is currently no designated parking area, meaning cars have to be parked at the side of the road where there are numerous steep hills. Sightlines in the area are a worry too.

Peel Regional council in May approved the construction of a parking area just east of the site that would be able to accommodate 33 cars and two buses.

There are also plans to set up a viewing area.

But the indignation of residents caused that idea to be shelved.

Caledon council voted to back the petition in September, and Regional council put the issue on hold later that month.

“Safety and preservation has become a concern as more and more people from across the province visit the beautiful landscape of the Badlands,” Jones said.

“The Liberal government must address the concerns raised by the signatories of the petition,” she added. “The government has an obligation to come to the table and help find a reasonable solution that provides both safety to the people of Ontario and preserves the beautiful landscape of the Cheltenham Badlands.”

Stonefest 2014 brought several new features to Alton Mill

By Bill Rea

Historic Alton Mill recently had some new features constructed on their site. They include a new wall at the edge of the parking area, a decorative cairn, a Storage units broken into Caledon OPP are looking for those responsible for a break-in at a business on Heritage Road Sept. 19. Police report a wooden fence was damaged with a post removed, and that's how the suspect(s) got on the property. They went to the storage units and stole a Darda Splitter and Dump Stone saw and 2 Stihl Quick Cut Saws. bench and sign post. And they are all made completely from stone, courtesy of the Dry Stone Walling Association of Canada. The event was Stonefest 2014. The festival was a gathering of professional wallers and walling enthusiasts. The Dry Stone Walling Association of Canada is a not for profit group of professional and amateur wallers who promote the art, craft and science of dry stone walling and dry stone features. They believe the aesthetic appeal and natural beauty of stone creates a positive accent to any landscape. The association is also trying to increase awareness of the advantages and possibilities of working with stone. Dozens of volunteers were hard at work, have come from various places in north American and even England, breaking individual rocks with hammers and chisels, and then fitting them into place. And the work was dry in the truest sense — no mortar was used. Jared Flynn, a board member with The Stone Trust (the American version of Dry Stone Canada), said everything is held together by gravity. He also pointed out that since mortar is not used, the structures have more flexibility in the environment. "The two basic principles involved here are gravity and friction," he added. Flynn was up from Brattleboro, Vermont, to support the Stonefest effort. In addition to the construction projects, Flynn said there was an education component too, as they were trying to enable local people to get the chance to learn something about it. "It's really about providing access to the craft," he said. "These exact same methods are being taught worldwide," he added.

Although it was mostly men out at the Mill, there were some women pitching in and placing stones. "It's the women who are better wallers, with their attention to detail," he observed. There were some people out, doing dry stone work for the first time. Mel Farrell of Guelph said he wife

Have Your Say – Protecting Energy Consumers

How well are consumers protected in Ontario's retail energy market?

That's the question the Ontario Energy Board (OEB) is looking at with its review of the Energy Consumer Protection Act. The Act deals with energy retailing to low-volume consumers in the province. Just over 300 thousand residential and small business consumers in Ontario currently have contracts with electricity retailers; 362,000 have contracts with natural gas marketers.

Please visit www.ECPAreview.ca and fill out the on-line survey to share your views on consumer protection with the OEB.

and work out what items are going to be created. He added they try and incorporate a training workshop so people can learn more about the craft.

Jeremy Grant, one of the owners of the Mill, said they were approached about four years ago to see if they would be interested in hosting the festival one year. He also pointed out Dry Stone Canada was commissioned to do work last year on the village square in Alton (across the street from the mill).

Grant pointed to a dry stone wall on the property, known as The Leaving, built from stones that were unearthed when the Mill was renovated about six years ago.

"There were tons and tons and tons of stone that came out of that," he remarked.

Grant said Upper Canada Stone of Shanty Bay provided the raw materials, namely the stone, and Drexler Construction in Rockwood supplied a front-end loader to move all the stone.

He said the new features at the Mill are going to be a benefit to the facility.

"The public can enjoy this," he said. "These things should last a lot of years."

More hay producers are looking to Bird-Friendly Certified Hay.

Bird-friendly hay shows results that are promising after first year

The results are in. Grassland birds benefit from Bird-Friendly Certified Hay.

Credit Valley Conservation's (CVC) hay certification program has been shown to significantly improve living conditions for at-risk grassland birds. This comes at the end of the first growing season for Bird-Friendly Certified Hay.

The program, now with 14 registered participants, focuses on making productive hay fields more livable for grassland birds that have taken up residence in them. The program has eight registered hay producers who grew 143 acres of Bird-Friendly Certified Hay on nine farms. Conservation authority staff observed at least 78 at-risk grassland birds such as bobolink and eastern meadowlark in the fields and confirmed five breeding pairs.

"This is such an encouraging sign," said CVC Agricultural Program Coordinator Mark Eastman.

"Bird-friendly hay is making a big difference and attracting the interest of many hay producers."

Birds like the eastern meadowlark and bobolink are declining in number and are now considered "species at risk" by the Province. Meadow and tallgrass prairie habitat once dotted the landscape across parts of headwaters region (Caledon, Dufferin, Orangeville, Erin and Halton Hills), but were lost due to urban and agricultural development, and reforestation. At present, there is not enough protected contiguous grassland and meadow habitat in the region to sustain a thriving grassland bird population.

Hay production in Southern Ontario has benefitted grassland birds by inadvertently creating habitat for them. This offsets the negative impacts of habitat loss to a limited extent. Unfortunately, typical hay harvesting practices can have devastating impacts on grassland birds and their young. Bird-Friendly Certified Hay is harvested in ways and at specific times of the year to minimize that impact and provide habitat for grassland birds to forage, nest and rest.

"The agricultural community has an important role to play in protecting these birds," said Eastman. "Hay producers that make small changes in the way hay is harvested can have large positive impacts. Grassland birds can thrive in hay fields if bird-friendly agricultural practices are used."

Geoff and Shanna Maltby own a farm near Acton and participated in the program.

"Consumers want farmers to provide healthy and delicious food products and to demonstrate they are stewards of the land," Mr. Maltby said. "Participating in the program shared our farm's commitment to environmental protection. I learned about at-risk grassland birds and I'm happy to provide space for them to nest on my land."

Students being recruited for Pan/Parapan Am Games security

Students in police foundations and security management programs are being recruited and trained for security roles at the 2015 Toronto Pan/Parapan Am Games as part of an OPP partnership with Contemporary Security Canada (CSC) and Ontario Community Colleges.

“Working security at the Toronto 2015 Pan/Parapan American Games is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and a great experience for students to start their security careers,” said CSC Project Director Derek Gagne. “Contemporary Security Canada’s goal is to provide students with exceptional training, competitive compensation, and the unique job of supporting Ontario as we welcome athletes and spectators from around the world.”

CSC was awarded the contract to provide private security at the Games in a competitive process. The recruitment campaign is seeking more than 5,000 qualified applicants to fill various roles at different Games locations next July and August.

“Providing employment opportunities for Ontario college students enrolled in police foundations and justice studies programs is a key component of the security recruitment strategy,” said OPP Staff Sergeant Rick LePage. “Many of these students will become police officers in communities throughout Ontario. Working with officers from the various partner police services will provide valuable experience and a unique insight into joint forces operations.”

“We are very pleased to participate in this initiative,” said John Tibbits, president of Conestoga College. “The opportunity for our students to contribute to Games security as part of this professional collaborative team will build on the active learning within their programs, strengthen their prospects as preferred graduates, and help prepare them for success in their future careers.”

The first recruitment session took place in September at La Cité College of Applied Arts and Technology in Ottawa and another was Monday at Conestoga College in Kitchener.

Additional recruiting sessions will take place at Niagara College in Niagara Falls Oct. 27, with two sessions at Fanshawe College in London Nov. 3 and Nov. 10.

“We see this as a great sign of trust in La Cité from the organizers of the Toronto 2015 Pan/Parapan American Games to commence their recruitment process at our college,” said Lise Bourgeois, president of La Cité. “Our students are trained and capable of offering French language or bilingual services and will put their skills into practice while having the chance to experience a unique and memorable work opportunity during the Games.”

CSC encourages students from all provincial colleges to apply for an interview on campus during recruitment drives. Students and alumni are asked to call (905) 759-1600 for more information about working with CSC.

OPP is the lead agency for the Integrated Security Unit (ISU) for the Games. ISU’s aim is to provide a secure environment while maintaining an open, accessible and authentic experience for athletes and attendees while minimizing disruptions to residents, businesses and visitors.

ISU is comprised of policing partners representing all jurisdictions where the Games events will be held. Besides OPP, Toronto Police Service, Hamilton Police Service, Durham Regional Police Service, Peel Regional Police Service, York Regional Police Service, Niagara Regional Police Service, Halton Regional Police Service, South Simcoe Police Service and Royal Canadian Mounted Police are members of the ISU.

Jones wonders why different standards for truck driver licences

By Bill Rea

A Toronto Star article last week, about the standard of training truck drivers in Ontario has a lot of people concerned, including Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones.

The Star story indicated tractor trailers on the roads might have a driver who passed the test without having to drive on a highway.

That led to calls for the government to crack down on unregulated truck driving schools and tighten lax road test requirements.

The Star reported their investigation revealed major flaws in the way would-be tractor-trailer drivers are trained and licensed. It stated students are being able to earn their licences without being required to drive on a major expressway. It added unregulated truck driving schools are using a loophole that allows them to avoid government oversight by charging less than $1,000 for a course.

“I have to be surprised that we have two different levels of training,” Jones commented, pointing out that teens getting their first licences have to know how to stop, park, etc. “Why we wouldn’t have that same level of scrutiny for trucking, I don’t understand.”

Jones also said Transportation Minister Steven Del Duca has said there will be improvements.

“He had to know there were two different levels of licensing existing,” she remarked. “Why did he have to wait for a newspaper report to come out?”

Caledon’s advanced polls have been busy

The first two advanced polls in Caledon have led to strong voter turnout. A total of 1,634, or 3.52 per cent of eligible voters, have already placed their votes. The Town reports there are 46,460 eligible voters in Caledon. The turn out at the advanced polls so far represents an increase over the 2010 election, when 2.89 per cent of voters had placed ballots, and over 2006 numbers

Hydrogen as a fuel source is safe

By Patti Foley and Rob Mezzapelli Caledon Councillors

We would like to address the topic of hydrogen fuel cells following articles this week in the Toronto Star, a local newspaper, and on a flyer circulated to some Bolton homes by a special interest group, Your Voice for Bolton, in which we were both mentioned. The flyer, which identified the group’s choices for council, included a section called “Breaking News” which spoke about the potential use of hydrogen fuel cell technology at the new Canadian Tire facility in the industrial area on Coleraine Drive. The press coverage has referred to this as a pilot project. It needs to be clear that it is not a pilot project of hydrogen fuel technology, but rather a pilot project for Canadian Tire to explore its use in their facility to cleanly power their forklifts. Hydrogen as a fuel source is a safe, proven, zero-emission technology and globally used for well over a decade. Generating fear over use of an environmentally-friendly technology, governed by regulations and strict safety standards, may have more to do with political agendas than public safety.

Setting the record straight on Caledon Day

A commentary by Allan Thompson Did Caledon spend $42,000 on Caledon Day? No. But I have heard the comments and criticism during the election about Caledon Day, and so I want to set the record straight, because the misinformation does a tremendous disservice to the hard-working volunteers who work tirelessly to make that particular event so successful. Caledon Day was started seven years ago as a small, community event and has continued to grow each year — this year attracting 11,200 people to our Town of Caledon Campus, making it the largest one-day event in Caledon. It is a testament to the spirit of the community. Like they are for so many other successful Caledon initiatives and community events, volunteers are the driving force behind it. There is a hard-working committee of 15 volunteers known as the Caledon Day Working Group, plus a dedicated crew of volunteers for the day of, working behind the scenes to make it the success it is. By any number of benchmarks, this year’s event was very successful. The volunteer committee solicits sponsorship to offset expenses and the number of sponsors increased this year, with the total funds raised also exceeding any previous year total. Many other community groups also rely on sponsorship for their own success and so the Caledon Day Working Group actively seeks sponsors from outside Cale-don. This is a win-win situation and in 2014 one-quarter of the sponsorship dollars came from out-of-town businesses hoping to attract Caledon residents. In a continuing spirit of community collaboration, revenue streams from several Caledon Day activities, such as parking and the refreshment tent, are shared with other hard-working Caledon service organizations. Yet another example of how event organizers are choosing to engage the Caledon community at every opportunity. The deficit between revenues (including sponsorship) and expenses continues to decline, which this year came in at less than $2000—again, the lowest in the event’s seven-year history. This works out to a $0.18 tax levy for each person that attended the event — an incredible value for dollars spent, a day of fun and building community spirit that is integral to Caledon.

MESSAGE to CALEDON VOTERS

A Toronto newspaper is supporting Allan Thompson as mayor of Caledon. They state:
“Councillor Allan Thompson isn’t pledging a radical break from the policies of Marolyn Morrison ...”

- Before making their decision did the paper interview the other candidates?
Did they review the web sites for each candidate to see which one presented substance?
Did they attend the different debates or review the alternative platforms?
and ... Does Caledon want another 4 years of Mayor Morrison’s policies?

For the record, Councillor Thompson ...

- supported the Canadian Tire mega-warehouse and controversial Ministerial Zoning Order.
- voted in favour of the Equestrian Management Group deal, which may cost Caledon taxpayers upwards of $4.5 million.
- sat on the Strategic Goods Movement Network Task Force, and is either oblivious to the fact that the Horseshoe Hill and Mountainview routes are “recommended” by the Task Force and are designated for heavy truck movement, or appears to be making misleading statements to the taxpayers of Caledon.ⁱ
- approved the Cheltenham Badlands parking lot plan twice - once on the Regional team, and again on the Town Council. It appears that at no time did he include ordinary citizens in the decision-making process.
- approved the Belfountain roads and sidewalks plan - with little or no involvement of affected citizens.
- at the Alton all-candidates debate, said he couldn’t answer questions about aggregate issues facing Caledon because there are “no pits in my ward”. Caledon is one of the largest producers of aggregate in Ontario. How can voters have confidence in a mayoral candidate who has admitted to being out of touch with this major industry and the issues surrounding it?
- lives directly adjacent to the frozen GTA West Corridor / Hwy413 development area. He is part of the Regional Task Force planning this project. Isn’t it a conflict of interest to have him influencing decisions on this highway corridor? Why are all our Town Councillors, and our newspapers seemingly ignoring this?
- stated in Belfountain that he “has taken no developer money, or aggregate money for his mayoral campaign”. However, Thompson’s 2010 campaign donor list shows $8,950.00 of his $14,150.00 campaign funds (over 63%) came from ‘corporations and unions’. List at: www.caledon.ca/en/townhall/resources/AllanThompson.pdf

This information is being presented by the undersigned Caledon residents because it is important for Caledon voters to be fully informed about the candidate’s record before deciding who to support.

We want to be able to TRUST our new Mayor.

Norm Calder, Doug Hunter, Dr. Eileen Dykes, Bernie Gregory, Raymond Wand, Ron Gritanni

ⁱ “First I would like to clarify the statement with regards to the two new routes for heavy truck transport in Ward 1. The Horseshoe Hill Road is ... not being considered for heavy trucks. ... Mountainview Road is not going to be a heavy truck road; it is part of the Region of Peel study examining possible options for a bypass route around Caledon East.” - Allan Thompson, October 2014 [emphasis added]

OMT's fourth Rocky Horror Show coming

By Constance Scrafield
Every year, the executive of Orangeville Music Theatre (OMT) wonder if they will do the Rocky Horror Show again. Then, they remember how much fun it is to do and perform; how much fun the audience has and how the audience members always clamour to see the show the next year. So, this will be the fourth year OMT is producing the Rocky Horror Show and they are presenting it at Hoge's Sports Bar at the west end of Orangeville in the Adler Street Recreation Centre. The format this year is simple: Tickets include the show, along with food and drink which are available for purchase by Hoge's. For those of you who have heard of the Rocky Horror Show, but cannot remember what it is all about, or have never heard of it, picture this. Brad and Janet have just been to friends' wedding. Brad, who has apparently been inspired by his friends' nuptials, brings an engagement ring and an intent to the event and, at its end, proposes to Janet who, ecstatically accepts. They decide to visit their dear friend Dr. Scott, an older man who was their high school teacher, to tell him their glad news. It is a dark and stormy night and, as they drive along, they pass an old, scary mansion, shortly after which they have a flat tire. Their only option is to walk back to the mansion to ask for help by way of the use of the telephone, but they find themselves entrenched in the strangest, most raunchy, bizarre story imaginable. Frank 'n' Furter, an alien "sweet transvestite from Transsexual, Transylvania" has built himself a creature — gorgeous, muscular, innocent Rocky. Of course, the Rocky Horror Show (for stage) and the Rocky Horror Picture Show (the movie) is a cult favourite, dating back to the 1970s and never growing old. There has never been anything quite as quirky, as sexy in such a mocking way; the show pokes fun at everything one way or another. In many cities around the world, cinemas will open Halloween for a late night showing of the Rocky Horror Picture Show and people will fill the venues, coming in costumes, singing along with the characters in the film, many of them knowing the script as well as Susan Sarandon (just imagine!) did when she co-starred in the film as Janet, lo these 40 years ago. In fact, Wikipedia tells us that the movie is still in limited release even after 40 years and, as such, is the "longest-running theatrical release in film history." The plot of the story is, as one might expect, somewhat convoluted, as Frank's penchant for any kind of satisfaction to his lust leads to a myriad of dissatisfied emotions on the part of the other characters. The whole thing depends on the ability of the actor who is Frank to overact. There is nothing subdued about the creator of the creature, Rocky. Tim Curry played the role originally, both on stage at the King's Road Theatre on the King's Road, Chelsea, London, England, and in the picture show. He set the bar rather high and anyone stepping into his high-heeled shoes had better be ready to let go his inhibitions and invite the audience to follow. In this, Adriano Bertuzzi is once again ready to rock in the role as Frank in all his nutsy sexual fervour. Two years ago, Steven Botelho took on this challenge of playing Rocky but was not able to spare the time for the show last year. He did, however, go to see it, realized how much he missed playing the part and is back again this year to perform Rocky, little gold swimming trunks and all. The Rocky Horror Show is Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, at 9 p.m. Tickets, as usual, are available at the door or online at www.orangevillemusictheatre.com

50 years of outdoor learning marked at Albion Hills Field Centre

By Bill Rea
Over the last 50 years, a lot of lives have been touched by both Albion Hills Conservation Area and the Albion Hills Field Centre. Last Thursday was a time for celebrating 50 years of outdoor education at the field centre.

Caledon Mayor Marolyn Morrison presented a plaque to TRCA Chair Gerri Lynn O'Connor in recognition of the 50 years of the Albion Hills Field Centre.

Operated by the Toronto and Region Conservation Authority (TRCA), which was formerly known as the Metropolitan Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, the centre offered the first overnight outdoor education centre operated by the authority. Field Centre was to be the first major project.

Approximately 2,000 visitors walk through the doors of the centre each year, making it one of the top outdoor education sites around.

There were a number of dignitaries on hand for the celebration, along with people with memories of their time at the facility, and students from Palgrave Public School.

Ken Higgs worked for the Conservation Authority from 1957 until 1983, and was general manager from '61 to '82.

He told those on hand that the idea for the field centre started with Catherine Scholem, a retired Physa-ed teacher, and social studies teacher Blanche Snell, both from York Memorial Collegiate. They came up with the idea of starting an outdoor, conservation education program. He said they got in touch with the Humber Valley Conservation.

Higgs said the first conservation camp school was held in Bolton, in the floodplain of the Humber River in May 1953. He said he remembered the date because the camp started two days after his wedding.

The camps carried on for about nine years, while a group of outdoor education enthusiasts started making plans for a permanent field centre.

Higgs said a conservation foundation was formed in 1961. It was initially chaired by Fred Wade, and it was he who decided construction of the Albion Hills

The sod was turned for the field centre in November, 1962, and Bill Davis, who was minister of education at the time, was on hand for the ceremony.

Former TRCA general manager Ken Higgs recalled some of the history of the field centre.

Field Centre Supervisor Moe Berthiaume called the facility's Butterfly Garden "our feature piece."

Davis was at ground breaking and opening of centre

“Nature’s beauty does much to make man think, and living so close to nature as pupils will do in this school camp in years to come, let us hope that they will gain this love for nature’s gifts and gain a sense of responsibility towards the intelligent use of natural resources,” Davis said that the time, as he expressed the hope for the prosperity of the facility. “May its influence spread so that young pupils will enjoy a love for the out of dorr, establish lasting friendships, gain new knowledge and learn through conservation to become responsible citizens and respect and love their country.”

Higgs said Davis was on hand to officially open the field centre Oct. 23, 1963, and the first class to attend was from York Memorial.

Brian Denney, CERO of TRACE, explained there had been renovations going on at the field Centre, so the decision was made to put the celebration back a year so they could be completed.

Moe Benthamite, supervisor of the Field Centre, said the renovations have been going on over the last couple of years. They have included retrofits of windows and washrooms, , and changing the heating to propane. The aim, he said, is a “carbon-neutral footprint.”

“Toronto and Region Conservation Authority is very proud of the institution of outdoor education,” commented TRCA

Chair Gerri Lynn O’Connor.

She also reviewed some of the highlights from the last 50 years, which has seen soe 200,000 students and visitors pass through the facility.

Among other items, she cited a pioneer cabin on the property that has been refurbished, allowing students to experience something of the past.

Last week’s celebration opened with a smudging ceremony performed by Mississaugas of the New Credit Elder Garry Sault.

He told the audience, including the students, that since April, the Ministry of Education has been studying treaties involving First Nations People. He said even new immigrants have a role to play, pointing out when one comes to Canada, they become part of the people who made those treaties.

“We, in our own spiritual way, are trying to reintroduce you to the role,” he said.

“This is a real honour for me,” Mayor Marolyn Morrison commented, as she praised the “absolutely phenomenal Conservation Area” and stressing that the Town of Caledon takes conservation seriously.

“In 50 years, I do hope you’re having another wonderful celebration,” she added.

“I actually was here when this facility opened up 50 years ago,” Peel Regional Chair and CEO Emil Kolb remarked.

Kolb commented on how he had sat on the Conservation Authority for 17 years, recalling Caledon’s first mayor Ivor McMullin suggested he get involved. “I had some visions of my own,” Kolb recalled, adding McMullin had told him it was his chance to put that vision into conservation. He also commented that Albion Hills used to attract a lot of visitors from Toronto. The traffic from the city, he said, reached the point that he got involved in installing his first set of traffic lights in Bolton.

In addition, Kolb remembered helping out in starting a small dairy operation at the site.

“It was a place where kids could go and have a lesson in good agriculture,” he remarked.

“It’s a great place and we’re doing great things in agriculture,” he added.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones observed that the concept of conservation started with Hazel in 1954 — “the weather, not the mayor.”

Jones added there have been a lot of changes since then in what to expect, and a lot of that is due to the work of conservation authorities.

Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson pointed to a banner on the wall, which reads, “50 years of learning and leadership in outdoor education,” commenting that message says it all.

Tilson expressed appreciation for what the centre has brought to students, as well as other groups like Scouts, Guides, etc., over the 50 years. He said the original and creative programs have a reputation of being both educational and enjoyable.

“We egerly look forward to the next 50 years,” he concluded. “Keep up the outstanding work.”

Mississaugas of the New Credit Elder Garry Sault performed a smudge ceremony at last Thursday’s celebration.

D-P board to hold information meetings for French Immersion

It's time to think about French Immersion.

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board will hold a series of public information meetings in Mississauga and Brampton for parents and guardians interested in enrolling their children in the board's French Immersion program for the 2015-2016 school year.

The sessions are intended to provide an overview of the program, the criteria for admittance, and changes that can be expected from the regular program.

The one Brampton session will be at Our Lady of Providence Elementary School at 35 Black Oak Dr. Nov. 25 at 7 p.m.

Other sessions will be Nov. 26 at St. Gertrude Elementary School at 815 Ceremonial Dr in Mississauga and Nov. 27 at St. Margaret of Scotland Elementary School at 2266 Council Ring Rd. in Mississauga. Both meetings will start at 7 p.m.

Online registration will begin following the sessions with the deadline for submissions to be announced. Should the number of applications exceed the number of spaces available, a centralized, computer-generated lottery will be held following the deadline.

The board offers French Immersion starting in Grade 1 at eight schools. Students registered in the program will spend 90 per cent of their day learning in French. All subjects and activities in the French Immersion classroom, except for religion and family life, will be delivered in French.

In Grades 2 and 3, 70 per cent of the instruction will be in French, with the proportion of English increasing to 50 per cent in later years.

Students in French Immersion usually attain a mid-range level of competency in the language. This means that after at least 3,800 hours of French instruction during his/her school career, the student should be able to read newspapers and books, with the occasional help of a dictionary, as well as watch and understand radio and television news and other programs.

The student should also be able to participate adequately in conversation, demonstrate knowledge of the culture, society, customs, economy, government, institutions of a French-speaking community and, after a few months residence, and function quite well in a French-speaking community.

Chamber of Commerce weighs in on legacy of 2015 Pan Am and Parapan American Games

A report from the Caledon Chamber of Commerce and the Ontario Chamber of Commerce identifies the crucial steps that governments and the private sector must take in order to ensure that the 2015 Toronto PanAm and Parapan Games leave a positive, lasting economic legacy in Caledon and the province.

“To leave a legacy of success for the Games, there must be a fair procurement

She received a Genie nomination for her role in I've Heard the Mermaids Singing, and won a Gemini Award for Where the Spirit Lives. "We must underscore the importance of the role the games can play in strengthening the local economy, creating local jobs and branding local business on the global sporting stage. Without this critical component, the legacy of the games is at risk of being branded a sole public expenditure, with cost over runs and an ultimate burden to our economy.”

In less than a year, the Games will come to a close. If projections are accurate, they will bring 250,000 visitors to Ontario, generate $3.7 billion in new economic activity, and result in an expected 26,000 new jobs. While the Games are likely to provide a short-term boost to the economy, the lasting impact is much less clear.

According to the report, Beyond the Finish Line, Ontario needs to follow the lead of other major sporting event hosts and market itself more prominently to potential visitors.

"The Games have the potential to attract as many as hundreds of thousands of visitors from across the Americas," commented Ontario Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Allan O'Dette. "But they won't arrive unsolicited — we need to step up our marketing game abroad."

The report also highlights the need to make sure that government's traffic reduction targets for the Games do not slow the movement of goods in the province by ensnaring transport trucks in gridlock. Congestion already costs the GTHA $6 billion in lost productivity annually. Observers anticipate that congestion in the region will worsen during the Games, partially as a result of the government's ambitious 20 per cent traffic reduction target.

The business group also urges Ontario businesses to leverage the unique opportunity presented by the Games to establish deeper relationships with their Latin American counterparts. Ontario's exports to the region account for only 2.1 per cent of Ontario's exports. The group applauds the Government of Ontario for spearheading the Toronto Pan American Economic Summit, a three day conference that will bring together 1,500 business leaders from the Americas.

"Government cannot bear sole responsibility for the success of the Games. Businesses and all Ontarians need to get excited about their potential and take advantage of the tremendous opportunities they provide," O'Dette added.

Time for winter tires

It’s not just the ice and snow on the road — your all-season tires start to lose traction when the temperatures reach 7°C (which is also when you can see your breath). Change to winter tires before snow begins to fall to help keep yourself safe... and avoid all the last-minute crowds trying to get theirs changed after the first winter storm.

Winter Tire Facts:

- ▶ Tires typically lose 1 PSI of pressure for every 5°C drop in temperature
- ▶ Driving with one tire on your vehicle under-inflated by 20% wastes about two weeks’ worth of fuel per year
- ▶ All-season tires begin to lose grip below below 7°C

DOES THIS APPEAR ON YOUR DASHBOARD?

YOU MAY HAVE A TPMS ISSUE!

What is TPMS?
Tire Pressure Monitoring System is an electric system for monitoring your vehicle’s tire pressure. TPMS provides drivers with a visual warning if a tire’s pressure is low, alerting them to take action.

Why is tire pressure important?
Your tire’s contact with the road is directly related to its air pressure. Driving on under-inflated tires can compromise;

- Stopping distance
- Fuel economy
- Tread wear and the life of your tire
- Ride handling and comfort

Bonaldi leads Hawks past Erin, continues incredible scoring pace

By Jake Courtepatte

By Jake Courtepatte

The Junior C Caledon Golden Hawks have been hot and cold this GMOHL season, and they continued their unbalanced season last week.

Coming off a tough 4-3 loss in Schomberg, the Hawks had five days to think about it before heading to Huntsville to face the Otters Friday.

The Hawks' powerplay got off on the right foot, when just 15 seconds into a cross-checking penalty, James Pitsadiotis potted his fourth goal of the year.

After the Otters tied it up just more than a minute later, the Hawks' special teams continued to shine when veteran Christian Bonaldi scored a shorthanded goal to put the Caledon team up 2-1 heading into the break.

However, the second period was all Huntsville, putting up three unanswered goals while allowing only one shot against on goaltender Connor Christianson. This led to a heated third period, where a couple of large scuffles led to 55 minutes of penalties being handed out to the two teams.

Despite a drawn-out third, the scoreboard didn't change as the Otters took the game 4-2.

The Sunday game had the Hawks hosting the Erin Shamrocks for the first time this season, after splitting a 1-1 draw on Erin's rink so far.

Just two minutes in, Ryan Mouser helped Nick Figliomeni notch his first point of the year when he tapped in a pass to put the Hawks up 1-0.

Bonaldi doubled the lead eight minutes in, giving the Hawks a 2-0 advantage heading into the first intermission.

The game seemed to be over before it even started, as just less than two minutes into the second, Steve Zeppieri scored to pick up his second point in as many games.

Despite a Shamrock goal to break goaltender Sam Procopio's shutout midway through the second, Michael Andrews and Bonaldi would each tally one to give the Golden Hawks a 5-1 win.

Bonaldi has now notched 10 points in his last five games, and shows no signs of slowing down. He currently sits third in league scoring standings, despite playing two less games than the first and second-ranked players.

There will be no Sunday home game this week, as the home game has been pushed ahead to Friday when the Hawks will welcome the Fergus Devils for the second time this season. The Hawks then head to Orillia Saturday to take on the Terrers, a team they have yet to see, but sit just four points back of Caledon in league standings.

Join top athletes at the Peel 5K Run, Walk and Roll

Peel Region will be hosting its fifth annual 5K Run, Walk and Roll this Saturday (Oct. 25) in support of the United Way.

Join Paralympian hopeful Anthony Lue and Olympian Michelle Hastick-Cowell in this community event, which will feature a seasonal costume contest, great prizes and a fully-accessible, wheelchair-friendly course. All proceeds raised benefit the United Way of Peel Region.

"We are really fortunate to have two tremendous athletes join us next weekend," said Meenu Sikand, co-chair of the Region's 2014 United Way Employee Campaign. "We welcome everyone across the region to join us this Saturday to participate in this family-friendly event. This is a great opportunity for residents, regardless of age, background or physical ability, to come together and support the United Way."

The Run, Walk and Roll 5K for the United Way is open to everyone. The event route begins and ends at 10 Peel Centre Dr. in Brampton and travels through scenic Chinguacousy Park. There will be three course options for participants to choose from:

- 5K Chip-timed — offering professional timing and great prizes for first place runners and wheelchair participants.
- 5K General — open to non-competitive runners, walkers and wheelchair participants.
- 1K Kid's Course — free registration for children under 12 with a donation to the United Way. All participants who complete the Kid's Course will be awarded an official race medal. Kids are encouraged to show off their Halloween costumes while they complete the course.

"You don't need to be an Olympic athlete to participate in this race," said Hastick-Cowell. "It's a fantastic event that encourages a healthy lifestyle by getting out there; you can walk, run or roll, all the while knowing you're making a difference in your community."

Hastick-Cowell is a former member of the Canadian Olympic team. She has represented Canada in various international track and field competitions, including the World Championship Games, the Francophone Games, the World University Games, the Commonwealth Games and the Olympics. In her athletic career, she was the first Canadian triple jumper to jump more than 14 metres and was the Canadian record holder for five consecutive years.

In addition to her athletic ventures, Michelle is active in her support for the United Way of Peel Region.

"The United Way will always hold a special place in my heart as they support 54 agencies that reach out and provide the much needed resources to help our community change from poverty to possibility," she said.

The Run, Walk and Roll is hosted by the Region of Peel's United Way Employee Campaign. All proceeds from the Run, Walk and Roll benefit the United Way of Peel Region to improve lives, strengthen neighbourhoods and make our community great for all to enjoy. Everyone is invited to come out as a participant, raise funds through pledging, or join the volunteer team. "As an athlete and daily user of a wheelchair, a five kilometre wheelchair race is something that I would naturally be drawn to," observed Lue, a former star amateur athlete, who after a workplace accident has devoted his athletic career to competing for Canada in the Paralympic Games in Rio de Janeiro in 2016 in para-cycling. "The fact I can do this for a good cause and to raise awareness makes it that much better. Hopefully we will be able to grow in numbers and maximize the participation in this amazing event in years to come."

In addition to his athletic endeavours, Lue is a motivational speaker who has spoken to organizations such as the Toronto District School Board, Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre and the Herbert H. Carnegie Future Aces Foundation.

Girls’ varsity flag football team blank Mayfield Mavericks

By Gabi Best

With Hall’s fall sports season in full swing, last week was jam-packed with exciting games.

The varsity girls’ field hockey team had a match against their Brampton rivals Turner Fenton Oct. 7. The girls came out with yet another 0-0 tie. The girls played 98 per cent of the game in Fenton’s offensive zone, but just could not find the back of the net.

The girls had a second game Oct. 10th against the Mayfield Mavericks. They played to the same result, a 0-0 tie.

Of the four games the Wolfpack have played this season, their record is three ties and one loss. Coach Devo said “if the girls want to make it on to the ROPSSAA finals, they need to learn how to put the ball in the back of the net!”

Congratulations to Amanda McFadden on earning player of the game honours verses Turner Fenton and to Shona Scott for earning the honours against Mayfield.

The junior girls’ basketball team travelled to Castlebrook’s home court to play. After a very tough loss the previous week, the girls improved tremendously, losing by only eight points, compared to the previous 46-point punishment. The girls held their own, making it a close game and losing 28-20.

The coaches are proud to report that the girls have improved a great deal and are starting to play more like a team.

“Defence is our most improved attribute since last game,” stated Coach Burgess.

This game was a huge confidence builder for the girls who now look forward to their next game where they will show their skills and come out on top.

The varsity boys’ football team travelled to the den of the Humberview Huskies Oct. 8 and came out with a hard-earned victory. The boys were hungry to beat their rivals scoring two touchdowns, two converts, and a field goal winning 17-

7. The Wolfpack went into halftime with a lead of 7-1 thanks to the defence shutting down every one of Humberview’s opportunities. Hall players wore the Huskies down, letting them score only one touchdown then the Wolfpack upped their points score by getting another touchdown, followed by a field goal.

Congrats to Aidan Kirkham for an amazing interception, earning him player of the game honours on defence, and Evan Kumer, who had a 40-yard run to set the Pack up for a touchdown and earning player of the game honours on offence.

The Wolfpack varsity girls’ flag football team also brought home a win verses the Mayfield Mavericks Oct. 8. The girls did not allow the Mavericks to enter their end zone, playing a very strong defensive game, winning 13-0.

The girls are working hard together as a team and proving that they belong in the Tier 1 flag football league. Touchdowns were tallied early by Lindsey Smith and Brittney Gout, catching the Mavericks off guard and holding the lead for the entire game. Congrats to rookie Mariya Horobets for playing a sound defensive game and earning player of the game honours. We look forward to their next home game against Holy Name of Mary, where the girls can once again demonstrate their skills.

Sadly, the varsity boys’ volleyball team are not having a great start to their season.

The boys suffered a tough loss against the Humberview Huskies, keeping it close with scores of 25-18 for Humberview in the first set, 26-24 for Hall in the second set and 25-19 for Humberview in the third set.

Coaches are proud to see improvement from last game, but would enjoy seeing wins as well. Congratulations to Brayden Davis yet again for getting player of the game honours two weeks in a row. We look forward to seeing the boys play at home verses Cardinal Ambrozic.

The previous week started off on a good note, as the Bocce team travelled to St. Marcellinas for their annual fun day tournament.

Nicole Northey and Gabi Best from the Specialist High Skills Major of Sports Program travelled with Emily and Maria, the students from the Personal Independence Program, to create an almost unbeatable team. The girls started off slowly in the morning, but got their act together, pulling through with four wins and two losses. Congratulations to the girls for working together, having a fantastic fun day and representing the Wolfpack well.

The varsity girls’ field hockey team went up against Mississauga Oct. 1, playing a gut-wrenching game. The girls played very strong defensively, shutting down almost every one of Mississauga’s attempts until the last two minutes. The girls let down their guard for just a second and Mississauga got a goal. Coach Devo said that “the girls need to improve on their offensive play so they can score some goals.”

The girls are yet to score a goal this season, but are improving their performances every game. Congratulations to Kathryn Macrol, who earned player of the game honours. We will get them next time Wolfpack.

In varsity boys’ volleyball action, the boys travelled to their season opener against Brampton Christian Academy Oct. 2. Unfortunately, the boys lost every set with scores of 25-19, 25-7 and 25-18. The boys were down on themselves going into the second set, but picked up the pace in the third, trying to even out the score. Coach Mr. Chui explained, “We did not have a senior team last year and it is the first time players have seen what senior level play is truly like . . . fast, hard and relentless.”

Blocking and spiking at every chance he got, Brayden Davis earned player of the game honours for never giving up. The

Rutherford alone at the top in men’s hockey

Jack Gibson and Dan Labine put Fines Ford Lincoln in the driver’s seat for the first time this season in Caledon Senior Hockey League action.

They both scored two goals to lead the Motor Men to their first win of the season Oct. 6 at Don Sheardown Arena in front of a less-than-sold-out crowd, a 7-3 decision over George’s Arena Sports. In the other games, Bolton Chiropractic Centre downed Yale Industrial Trucks 7-3 and Rutherford Global Logistics took over sole possession of first place with a 6-3 win over Jiffy Lube Oilers.

Fines Ford 7, George’s 3

In addition to his two goals, the handyman Gibson added two assists while Labine had one assist.

John Pitsadiotis and Ian Kerr both had one goal and an assist, while Bill Davis added the other goal. Greg Collins chipped in two assists with Santo Gazzolla and John Pallotta drawing one each.

Jim Rogers led George’s attack with a goal and an assist while Greg Farrow and George (Not The Chief) Armstrong both scored a goal. Single assists went to Maurizio Giorgio, Dave Smith and Gary Faultless.

Rutherford 6, Jiffy Lube 3

James Heenan made a triumphant re-boys need to keep learning how to work together in order to come out on top in their next game.

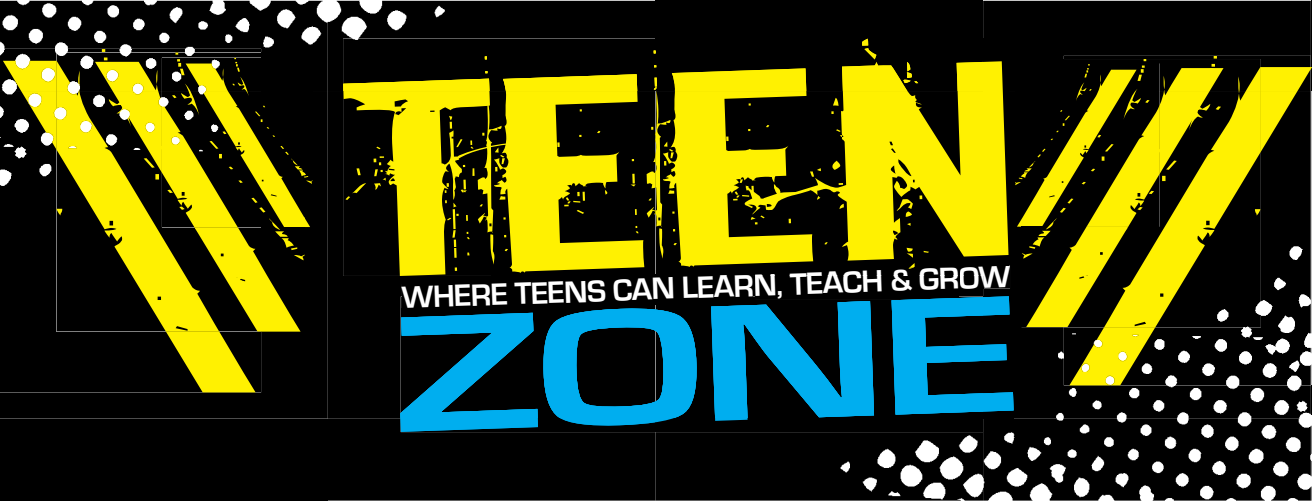

The Wolfpack varsity boys’ football team was shut down by the Mayfield Mavericks Oct. 2, losing 19-0. The squad was under-manned and eventually worn out in the end, allowing the Mavericks to move their way in. Mr. Sweeney said “it was a close game up until the end.”

Jordan Baggio earned player of the game honours for giving 100 per cent throughout the whole game. The boys are slowly but surely learning from their mistakes and we look forward to seeing the whole team out and ready to play in their next game.

In varsity girls’ flag football action, the girls travelled to play St. Michael Thunder Oct. 3, where they came short of a victory. Playing strong both defensively and offensively, the girls battled hard as a team. The girls had the lead for the majority of the game, but the rumble from the Thunder shook the girls up and caused them to lose 13-12.

Quarterback Lindsey Smith earned player of the game honours by getting the team two touchdowns. All coaches are proud of the girls for keeping the games so close and working hard out on the field.

IT’S ABOUT THE MUSIC

Even though Kristin Foulger is only 14 years of age, she has achieved an incredible amount with her musical abilities.

Kristen started singing at a very young age and has been taking vocal lessons for a year and a half and guitar lessons for three years, both at Aardvark Music and Culture in Orangeville.

She has been involved in school talent shows since she was in grade four and is now in grade nine at Orangeville District Secondary School where she takes music classes as well. She can’t get enough of it.

Music is in her family. Both her grandfather and uncle were members of bands. “My uncle and grandfather both play guitar,” she said. And like the family members before her, she also plays acoustic guitar.

Kristen cannot deny her musical roots. She has school obligations that must be met, but she makes time for her music. “I try to practice every day.”

Practicing and taking lessons are a very important part of improving musical skills, but sometimes the music is just inside and needs to come out. It seems to be inside of Kristen. She wrote her first song at the age of 13 and has written three songs to date. We can only wonder what the future might bring for her and for those who might be listening to her songs.

Involvement in music is beneficial in so many ways. It can help stimulate brain development and it has been proven that teens who play musical instruments or sing are likely to be much better at multi-tasking and are able to tune out background noise. As well, learning music is beneficial for language development and generally improves academic levels in areas of math as well as reading.

Music has been used by many to reduce stress and is often used in hospitals to stimulate patients with dementia and alzheimers. The benefits that music brings to many is vast and it seems that Kristen is aware of this for herself.

At this time, Kristen does not know where this interest in music will take her. She has no long range plans, but she knows it will always be a part of her life. She has lots of time to figure it out and enjoy every minute of it.

Commissioner questions Growth Plan's effectiveness

The Province's Environmental Commissioner is concerned that Ontario's Growth Plan for the Greater Golden Horseshoe is not on track to meet its goal of curbing urban sprawl in this rapidly growing region.

In his 2013/14 Annual Report Managing New Challenges, Gord Miller stated the 2006 Growth Plan was intended to reverse the pattern of unsustainable growth and development within the Greater Golden Horseshoe.

"Driving population growth towards urban areas helps create stronger communities and make more efficient use of infrastructure," he said. "Better managed growth also protects our agricultural lands and natural areas from the relentless sprawl of development."

Miller is troubled, however, about how the Growth Plan is being implemented. Despite the goal of intensification, the government has authorized lower density targets for nine of the 15 municipalities in the outer-ring of the Greater Golden Horseshoe beyond the Greenbelt.

"The government is allowing communities to continue the pattern of low density development that is too sparse to support even basic transit services," he said.

As well, last year the government extended the population and employment forecasts in the Growth Plan to 2041, essentially pushing out the status quo growth pattern for another 10 years.

"If the Growth Plan is not on track to curb sprawl and increase intensification, continuing on the same trajectory only aggravates existing problems, and puts pressure on municipalities to open more land for development," he said.

"Indeed, the extended forecasts continue to allow low density development to sprawl into the less urbanized outer parts of the Greater Golden Horseshoe rather than concentrate more growth in the more urbanized inner ring," Miller added. "I expect the government to address these issues when it reviews the Growth Plan in the next few years."

Canada is making its contribution to fight terrorism in Iraq

The situation in Iraq continues to grow more and more tragic.

The Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) has conducted a campaign of unspeakable atrocities — beheadings, rape, slavery — on the most innocent of people, all because they think differently from ISIL.

Canada should make no mistake that ISIL has also specifically aimed at us, urging supporters to target “disbelieving Canadians in any manner,” vowing that we should not feel secure, even in our homes.

Our government strongly condemns the actions of ISIL, especially as they threaten the lives of Canadians and innocent people around the world.

We are joining our allies — the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Australia, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates and others — in launching air strikes against ISIL.

We are also contributing one air-to-air refuelling aircraft, two Aurora surveillance aircraft, and the necessary air crews and support personnel. In addition, we are extending the deployment announced in September of up to 69 members of the Canadian Armed Forces, in a non-combat role, to continue to advise and assist security forces in Iraq.

This builds on the previous action our government has taken to respond to the humanitarian crisis in Iraq. We dispatched relief supplies for refugees including tents, blankets, and kitchen and hygiene kits with the help of the Red Cross. We also continue to work with organizations such as Save the Children Canada and Mercy Corps. In addition to providing supplies to those displaced by the violence, we are also providing medical supplies to health facilities and helping with emergency repairs to water and sanitation facilities.

If left unhindered, this terrorist threat will only grow. This is why, as our allies have recognized and responded to ISIL, we’ve joined the cause. Canada will not stand on the sidelines, we will do our part. Our government is standing up for the safety and security of Canadian families and innocent civilians around the world.

Federal government continues to be here for Canada

Our government is continuing to deliver on jobs and opportunities, just as we promised.

We’re on track to balance the budget and we are upholding and defending Canadian values on the world stage. This is a record I think all Canadians should take pride in, while recognizing that there’s more to do and that it will require hard work to stay on the right track.

Our top priority continues to be jobs and economic growth. With the support of our Economic Action Plan, the Canadian economy has created more than one million net new jobs since the depth of the global recession. This is the best record in the G7, but it does not mean that the job is done. As long as there are Canadians seeking work and as long as economic instability around the world continues to pose risks, we need to continue our efforts. Our new Small Business Job Credit, which lowers payroll taxes on small business employers by 15 per cent, is a great example of how we continue to promote job creation.

We’ve also expanded the number of countries Canada has trade agreements with from five to 43, including historic agreements with the European Union and with South Korea. In addition to expanding choice here at home, the opportunities for increased exports are expected to create thousands of additional jobs.

Our work to cut taxes and keep them low is helping job creators employ more Canadians and it’s also making it easier for hard-working Canadian families to make ends meet. In fact, the average family of four now saves $3,400 a year on their taxes. This is thanks to a record that includes cutting the GST to five per cent, cutting personal income taxes, and creating the Children’s Fitness and Arts tax credits.

At the same time, by taking steps to control spending and deliver programs more efficiently, we’re on track to return to balanced budgets in 2015. Once the budget is balanced, we will deliver even more tax relief for Canadian families.

Our government is also working to support hard-working Canadian families in other ways.

For example, we’re working to deliver on our Throne Speech commitment to require unbundling of cable TV channels. Families should be able to pay only for what they want to watch. We’re also banning the practice of “pay to pay” billing, where companies charge Canadians just for sending a paper bill. We’re also expanding access to broadband internet and addressing the geographic price discrimination that contributes to higher prices in Canada than in the U.S. for identical items.

Our government is also working to help ensure the interests of law-abiding Canadians and victims of crime come first in Canada’s criminal justice system. Our historic Canadian Victims Bill of Rights would protect the rights of victims to information, participation, protection, and restitution. We’re ensuring that public safety is the priority when dealing with dangerous individuals who have been found “not criminally responsible” for violent acts. We are also continuing to work to keep our communities safe with measures to end early parole for serious and violent crimes, speed the deportation of foreign criminals and ensure honesty in sentencing by making a life sentence truly a sentence for life.

We’re also standing up for Canadian values and Canadian interests on the world stage. In an unstable world, our critics continue to advocate going along to get along. This is not the approach of our government. Instead, we are defending Canadian values of freedom, democracy, and rule of law and standing by our friends.

We led the way in condemning Russia’s violations of Ukrainian sovereignty and in imposing economic sanctions on individuals and companies involved in that decision. We have stood by the people of Ukraine throughout the crisis.

We also stand by Israel, the only liberal democratic state in the Middle East. We defend its right and obligation to protect its citizens from indiscriminate attacks by Hamas and applaud Israel’s extraordinary efforts to minimize civilian casualties despite the use of human shields by Hamas terrorists.

We also support our allies who are confronting the threat posed by ISIL in the Middle East. The actions of this terrorist organization are vile and must be firmly opposed.

On all these matters, our policies are very different than what the other parties offer.

Our government will continue to reject these kinds of negative ideas. We’ll keep taxes low, stay on track to a balanced budget, and continue our efforts to make our communities safer.

Make sure you get out to vote in Monday’s municipal elections

The lawn signs are up, the brochures have been arriving daily in our mailboxes and at the door, and the advertising is in all the newspapers.

Candidates looking for your support in the upcoming municipal election are working hard to convince you they want your vote Oct. 27.

There is an old saying that if you don’t vote, you give up your right to complain. While technically that saying is not accurate; researching the candidates and voting is an important part of the election process.

Municipal council members and the decisions made around the council table have a direct impact on many parts of your life. Who makes those decisions for the next four years will depend on your vote and your commitment to be informed and get involved.

Before you vote, make sure you take the time to find out about the individuals who have signed up as candidates. There are as many candidates as there are reasons why they have entered the race. Take the opportunity to attend the all-candidate debates, visit their web sites and attend meetings that have been organized or contact the candidates directly to ask questions that are important to you.

Your choice Oct. 27 will make a difference in your day-to-day life. Whether it is road maintenance and repair, garbage pick-up and disposal, long-term care facilities and museums, bylaws or your property taxes, municipal councils help shape our neighbourhood and our community.

Make sure your voice is heard in the debate.

Government triggers two wind turbine studies five years too late

The government has launched two studies relating to industrial wind turbines (IWTs).

The Ministry claims that the purpose of these two studies is to provide more information on offshore IWTs to help “inform” any future decisions on allowing IWTs to be built in Ontario waterways. This is in spite of an offshore IWT moratorium put in place by the government just before the 2011 provincial election, and still in effect today. Despite launching the two studies, a spokesperson for the government has insisted that there are no plans to lift the offshore moratorium.

One of the two studies will focus on the noise impact of both offshore and land IWTs, and the other will center on studying the requirements for decommissioning IWTs. One may find this hard to believe since the Green Energy Act as been in effect since May 2009, and thousands of land-based turbines have been erected across the province. Yet, these studies were never completed for land-based turbines. Moreover, despite the government’s announced reforms, municipalities across Ontario still face significant disadvantages when confronting the large companies that build these turbines; as we all have seen first-hand in Dufferin County. Equally troubling is that the noise impact study will review current literature, but won’t include actual measurements from offshore IWTs.

The fact that the government still doesn’t know how these wind turbines should be managed at the end of their life cycle is shocking. This is work that should have been done long before the Green Energy Act was ever enacted, not more than five years after it became law, when so many turbines have already been built.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

One of the simplest tricks in making sure you get the answer you want to get with sponsored public opinion polls is simply to skew the question in your favour and rely on the fact that most people being asked are not terribly familiar with the details.

We’re constantly polling people for their voter preferences, for example, and the answers are treated with an undeserved respect by the media – despite a host of recent electoral duds by pollsters across the country – yet we often don’t even know a) how many of the respondents even know who is running for what; b) what their positions are on the various issues; and c) whether the respondents are even going to vote or not.

Many years ago, right after newly elected premier Mike Harris brought in his first austerity budget – sending the collective left into fits of madness which still exist to this day – your correspondent was called at home (being one of the shrinking number of people who actually still have land lines, which further skews poll results) and asked if a) the Harris spending cuts went too far or b) were just about right.

When I replied in all seriousness that actually, I didn’t think the cuts went far enough, the pollster said she’d put me down to the “just about right” category.

Ah no, I protested, repeating that I think they didn’t go far enough and she again muttered that they didn’t have a category for that.

And so it went. Given that Harris had just won a healthy majority on the strength of his pledge to cut government spending, it’s doubtful I was the only one who felt that way. Yet the pollsters, as they always do, had decided on the questions to ask (they often provide a list, for example, when polling people on the issues that concern them most, whether or not they really are concerned about those particular issues.) That’s how they work, which is why, as time goes on, fewer and fewer people – except for the mainstream media – pay a lot of attention to these polls.

All of which brings me to a well-publicized Ipsos Reid survey of 2,515 Canadians released last week – heralded as the largest survey of its kind in the country, as if size alone overcomes the innate problems with polling – sponsored by Dying with Dignity

Canada, a group which seems to believe that the natural act of death is incredibly undignified and should be sped along – with help from a doctor – when the process becomes inconvenient.

According to the poll, it shows that an astounding 84 percent of Canadians supported assisted suicide “IF” the patient is “competent and suffering” and repeatedly asks for assistance to die.

And there, dear hearts, is the rub.

Advocates of doctor-induced deaths continue to write that the system is already in existence in other parts of the world and works well.

What they rarely tell you is that despite the stated rules about informed consent, etc., studies have found in places such as Belgium – often heralded as the poster child for doctor-assisted killing – hundreds of people have been euthanized without asking for it, and the state has approved such killing for things such as depression in otherwise perfectly healthy people.

This is the reality of any bureaucratic system. You can set up all the rules you want but the thing becomes routine and it isn’t long before those rules are casually bypassed in the interest of convenience.

But it’s such an emotional, gut-wrenching thing, and many Canadians have watched a loved one die in a less-than-ideal situation, that you have to know many are responding to the pollster based strictly on their bad experiences rather than the ugly reality of state-sanctioned deaths.

I don’t believe that 84 percent of Canadians would say “count me in” if, instead of being asked a sanitized question, they were told in a preamble about a recent study in one part of Belgium showing that up to one-third of the patients hadn’t asked for the needle but were put to death anyway.

It’s one thing to respond to a disembodied voice over the phone, quite another thing to actually put your arm out for the needle with the doctor standing there ready to jab it.

As you may know, the Supreme Court is taking another look at the question and, given their political makeup, alas, likely will reverse an earlier Supreme decision and allow it.

Yes, there is often suffering in death, and there is in birth too. And despite great strides in palliative care we could, and should, do more.

If you really want to die, you can right now. You can legally refuse treatment.

But that’s up to you. It’s not up to society and the medical profession to absolve you of your choice and actually be complicit in your death.

Beware of election propaganda this week

We are in the final days of what has been a long municipal election campaign.

There are many who are looking forward to Monday night and the end of it all, including the voters, candidates and even we in the media. Elections campaigns, while an exciting part of living in a democracy, can be pretty grueling.

We know some of you have already voted, and hope that the rest of you are planning to get out to the polls.

But we also urge all of you to be on your guard against false or slanted information that might be distributed in the dying days of the campaign.

What you're currently reading is the last edition of the Citizen that will come out before election day. Thus we are being careful about what gets printed this week regarding the campaigns. If a candidate is unfairly attacked, there is no chance for he or she to rebut it.

There are rules governing what we can and can't print in a newspaper. There are fewer laws controlling what can be shoved in your front door, or be handed to you on the street. When people (and that includes those working on political campaigns) get nervous or even desperate, there are lots of low levels to which they can stoop.

This is something to keep in mind until the polls have closed Monday.

If you get something election related at your door, or handed to you in the street, by all means take it and read it. Most of the people seeking office in town are trying to show their honesty and integrity, as are those volunteers who are working on their campaigns. But read the material carefully, with an eye to how accurate it likely is. Remember, if the information it contains is true, then ask yourself why it didn't come out sooner. Why would the people issuing it wait for the last days of the campaign, knowing the person being attacked has no real chance to respond? In a lot of cases, that is exactly why it comes out so late — no chance to respond.

If the material contains charges against a candidate or group of candidates that makes your jaw drop, then work on the assumption that it's garbage, because it probably is, and treat it accordingly.

If it's in paper form, please make sure you recycle. And also make sure you get out to vote.

A 'SmarterTrack' proposal

The centrepiece in John Tory's campaign to become Toronto's next mayor is his "SmartTrack" idea, which he describes as a "London-style surface rail subway that moves the most people in the shortest time, across the entire city."

We don't know how a "surface rail" line can also be a "subway," but that's the least of the problems the concept faces as currently drafted.

For one thing, we doubt there's any way the projected $2.7-billion cost can or should be paid for without some increase in Torontonians' relatively low property taxes, rather than just from revenue from new assessment gained through increased density near the SmartTrack's 22 stations; nor should federal and provincial taxpayers be on the hook for a project that benefits only residents of the immediate Toronto area.

As currently proposed, the project would use existing rail corridors between Eglinton Avenue West and Unionville, connecting with Toronto's subway system at Bloor Street, Union Station and Danforth Avenue. It would be outside the current Toronto city limits only between Steeles Ave. and Unionville at one end and a short distance into Pearson Airport at the other end.

But the most serious problem, as we see it, is the proposed airport linkage, which would require the trains to leave the existing CNR tracks at some point south of Eglinton Ave. and swing west to the right-of-way of the Richview Expressway, the freeway that was never built, with its right-of-way in Etobicoke located immediately south of Eglinton.

As we see it, a far smarter idea would be to extend the light rail transit (LRT) line now being built along Eglinton west to the airport and provide a two-level station allowing quick and easy transfers between the LRT and SmartTrack.

As for SmartTrack itself, the line should continue west and north, with alternating trains going via the CN line to Brampton and the CP Rail line to Bolton.

The main cost of this vastly preferable alternative would lie in doing something that ought to have been done years ago — double-track the CP line between Weston and Bolton and build grade separations at all the busy level crossings as far north as King Street, south of the proposed GO Transit station on Humber Station Road.

Expensive as this work might be, it would surely be less costly than the kilometre or so of tunneling in Tory's current SmartTrack scheme, and the cost would presumably be shared by CP Rail, as a major beneficiary of the double-tracking past its huge intermodal facility.

Another potential problem Tory's concept faces is the projected target of completion within seven years. For that to be possible, as well as financially feasible, the scheme would have to win quick approval from both Toronto City council and the senior levels of government, and survive the inevitable environmental assessments and Municipal Board challenges.

Another challenge SmartTrack faces involves Tory's commitment to having the entire line electrified. Despite the obvious environmental benefits (as well as faster train acceleration) that, too, will be costly. We think serious consideration should be given to the alternative of hybrid propulsion, with electricity being used once available, but natural gas (rather than diesel fuel) powering the electric motors.

Of course, a "SmartestTrack" concept would go a step further, by including at least limited commuter rail service through all of Dufferin-Caledon, with trains going as far north as Orangeville and Aliston.

But whatever else might be said, the SmartTrack concept makes more sense than the alternative of building subways in suburban areas where potential ridership doesn't warrant them.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

Are you planning to vote in the Oct. 27 municipal election?

a) Yes

b) No

So go to the website and cast a vote!

Make sure you vote!

I was talking, a week or so ago, to a man who has been working on the campaign of one of the people currently running for mayor of Caledon.

He had a couple of observations to make about the campaign (some of which I agreed with), which he delivered with a certain amount of passion. Whether I agreed with him or not, I had to accept that he was convinced about the rightness of a lot of what he was saying. One of the things you learn fast in my line of work is there are a lot of decent people out there carting around views with which you disagree.

Then launched into a tirade against people I have very little use for as well, namely people who don't vote.

I have stated many times in this forum that I cannot understand people like that. I have been eligible to vote for going on 40 years, and the only time I didn't make it to a polling station was for a municipal election that was held while I was away at University in St. Catharines. My parents made sure I was registered to vote in Toronto, which was my permanent base in those days, but things got in the way and I wasn't able to make it home for election day. Besides, I was too busy studying politics to be up on the issues at home, if that makes any sense.

So with the exception of that one blot on my record, I have always made a point of getting out to vote. The fact is that when I turned 18, I couldn't wait for an election so I could start voting. I even made sure to cast a ballot in October 1992 in the referendum on the Charlottetown Accord, even though the final days of that particular canvass coincided with my father's funeral arrangements.

But this man I was talking to recently was so animated it was hard to get a word in. Thus I had trouble telling him he was really preaching to the proverbial converted.

No matter, his points in this regard were well taken.

He highlighted his argument by bringing the name Hubert Corless into the discussion.

Young Hubert was born in the family farmhouse on what was then known the 5th Sideroad (now Queensgate Boulevard in Bolton) in 1899. During the First World War, he and an older brother joined up. He was just 17 when he became a casualty at Vimy Ridge. That was a very bloody battle which historians believe marked Canada's coming of age as a country to be reckoned with.

Many of you may have heard of this young man. There is a street in Bolton named after him (not far from Allan Drive Middle School), and there's also a small parkette named in his honour, complete with a stone commemorating his sacrifices.

The man I had been talking to referred to that stone, bringing up the memory of young Hubert and the others like him, who risked, and all too often lost, their lives so people like us could have a voice in choosing our government. Like me, he couldn't understand why so many people don't avail themselves of that right for which so many brave young men and women have sweated their life blood. Think of Afghanistan for a second.

It is true I had heard of that street in Bolton, although I had never had occasion to visit the parkette. And I knew nothing about the stone until the man I was talking to mentioned it.

So I took a couple of minutes Friday to check it out for myself. That's when I took the picture that appears with this column.

I am fully aware that there are other stories like that of young Hubert. They have been told many times, and we're sure to hear more next month when Remembrance Day observances are held.

Had it not been for young people like Hubert Corless, the concept that we know as voting could be something foreign to us.

That ballot waiting for you this coming Monday is something young men died to get you!

It occurred to me that I would have a hard time thinking of a better argument to get people out to vote.

On the other hand, there's a practical side to the issue.

We human beings are a very good when it comes to complaining, but not so good when it comes to actually doing something about whatever it is we're bellyaching about.

There are lots of issues in all parts of Caledon, including Canadian Tire, Highway 413, aggregate pits that no one wants to live near, taxes that are never low enough for most people, urban sprawl, traffic congestion, facilities for seniors, recreation facilities, trust in government, etc. The issues have been discussed at some length at various candidates' meetings. There are so many of them that I can't believe all of you don't have an interest in at least one of them. The best chance you have to do anything about them is upon you now, and that involves getting out to vote.

I'm a busy guy. I work hard. Many of you see me at events in all corners of the Town of Caledon. I seldom take a day off, and there are tons of things around the house that my wife wants me to address. Yet I plan to get out and vote.

You say you don't have time to vote? Don't give me that rubbish!

If I can find the time to vote, so can you. Young Hubert deserves at least that.

She was a truly devoted wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother who put everyone first. She touched people every day with her selflessness, thoughtfulness and kindness. She demonstrated strength and an unwavering commitment to her family and friends. Deeply loved and sadly missed by her son Glenn and his wife Yvonne, daughter Dale and her husband Mark Blaire. She was the only daughter of the late William and Mabel Betteson. Cherished grandmother of Shawna and her husband Rob Sgro, Dawn Mason and Jeff Cooper, Kelly and her husband Reno Aimola, Scott Blaire and his wife Erin, Janell Mason and Ivan Choo-Ket-Loung. Loved by all her great-grandchildren. The hugs and kisses, the smiles and the laughter, are precious things we will never forget. That's why we will love her forever and always.
