Huge crowd out for Emil Kolb's retirement

By Bill Rea

Everything has to come to an end, including Emil Kolb's time as chair of Peel Region.

Kolb, 78, will be retiring from the post he has occupied for 23 years early next month, but Friday evening saw his retirement Hootenanny, and the Pearson Convention Centre in Brampton was packed with people bringing him and his wife Beryle best wishes for the future. He has been holding these annual events for several years, with proceeds going to various children's charities.

Fred Biro, executive director of the Peel Regional Police Service Board (who was also Emcee for the evening), commented that over the years, the Hootenanny has raised more than $2 million.

Peel CAO David Szwarc reflected on the time Kolb has occupied the Chair's office.

"The world in 23 years is a radically different place," he observed, adding Kolb's presence has been "the only thing unchanged in that very changing environment."

"You have never looked at problems," Szwarc told Kolb. "Instead, you have always tried to pick out opportunities."

He also wished the Kolbs the best for the future.

"We wish you both a retirement blessed with good health and happiness," he said. "You have so much to look back on with pride."

"Anyone who knows Emil knows he holds Caledon near and dear to his heart," Biro commented as he introduced Mayor Marolyn Morrison.

She recalled her first election victory in 1988, when she became a school trustee. Morrison said Kolb was one of the first to congratulate her and invite her to his office (he was mayor of Caledon at the time).

"I was petrified," she recalled, adding she had never met him.

Morrison recalled Kolb was very down to earth as he made her feel comfortable, assuring her she could call him any time.

After becoming a Regional councillor in 1994, Morrison said she learned a lot from listening to Kolb's wisdom and the way he dealt with issues. Many of the policies Caledon

McClure easily holds on to his Ward 2 council seat

By Bill Rea

Yevgenia Casale gave it her all over the last several months, but beating an incumbent is never easy.

She learned that the hard way in last week's municipal elections, as Gord McClure held on to his seat as area representative for Ward 2 on Caledon council.

McClure ran into very little trouble winning a third term on council, taking 2,230 of the 3,070 votes cast, according to official results released earlier this week by the Town of Caledon. They gave the incumbent 72.64 per cent, to 27.36 for Casale.

Despite the margin of victory, McClure said he wasn't taking anything for granted.

“I wasn't sure, but I made it again,” he said “I'm always nervous. It's good to be nervous. You never know in an election.”

McClure has an reputation for speaking his mind, and he thanks that helped at the polls.

“I'm consistent,” he said. “I always say what I think. I think people like that.”

He also reflected on the changes to council in light of the election.

“It's going to be different,” he observed.

He was pleased that Councillor Allan Thompson was successful in his bid to be mayor.

“Allan's going to be a great mayor,” he said. “He's going to be around for a long time, I think.”

“Congratulations to the winners,” Casale said a couple of days after the election. “I wish them well.”

She also confessed she was surprised at the results, considering the amount of time she spent campaigning. She also said there seems to be a great disconnect between the amount of money people pay in taxes and their understanding of what they're paying for.

“I could not believe how many people said to me, ‘You are the first person who's knocked on my door. You've got my vote,’” she added.

“I think it's sad that people don't take the time to research,” Casale remarked, observing she got three phone calls from voters and less than 20 emails during the campaign.

Casale stressed she was not knocking the winners, or any other candidate who stepped up to serve the community. But she commented that many voters think it's up to the candidates to connect them with the issue, but a lot of them don't read the material the candidates issue, or go to meetings.

“When is the onus on the voter?” she asked. “This is your money. What are you spending it on?”

“There's an appalling lack of ownership the people take,” Casale added.

“It's a partnership between the residents and the people who step forward to serve the community,” she said. “Everybody has a role to play in the success of the community.”

McClure showed his strength at just about all the polls, including the advance poll at the Margaret Dunn Library in Valleywood. Casale's best polls was at South-Fields Village, where she lives. She collected 348 votes there, good for 44.79 per cent).

Bell looking at putting tower in Palgrave

By Bill Rea

There's likely soon to more than horses around the Caledon Equestrian Park in Palgrave.

Plans are in the works for Bell Mobility to put up a tower at the southwest corner of the property, just off of Paine Avenue.

The company recently hosted an open house session on the proposal at Palgrave Public School.

Colin Lavery, manager of site acquisitions and government relations with Bell, said the property is owned by Toronto and Region Conservation Authority (TRCA), and leased to Equine Management Group. He added the aim is to service local demand after next year's Pan Am Games.

"This was the location that was promoted and would provide the best coverage," he said.

The tower will be a 50-metre steel shrouded tripole structure with an equipment cabinet at its base. It will be surrounded by a fence and landscaping.

According to material supplied by Bell at the open house, the tower is needed to address customer complaints, as well as network deficiencies that have been identified.

The advantages to the selection of this site include the fact there's a willing landlord, and it offers local access and the ability to connect with a wider network. It's also a matter of keeping up with increasing demand.

The matter still has to go before Caledon council. Lavery said they are hoping that will happen early in December. If council is opposed to the idea, he said the matter could go before Industry Canada, "or it's back to the drawing board."

There are often concerns about harmful electromagnetic and microwave emissions from installations like this. But material supplied at the open house indicated they are much lower than what's considered safe by Health Canada.

Lavery said there had been few health concerns raised by members of the public. There seemed to be more people asking about the aesthetics of the tower.

He also said this tower will be a joint installation with Rogers. He added Wind Mobile has expressed interest too.

He also said once the approvals are in place, it will take eight to 10 weeks to get the tower up and going.

Legal Loophole Costs Local Homeseller $3,742 in the Sale of Their Home

DUFFERIN-PEEL - When you're buying or selling a home, there are many small but important legal issues that you may be unaware of that are, nevertheless, critical to understand. Residential real estate is not an uncomplicated process. When such a major investment is transferred from one party to another, there are subtle details to take care of that can turn into major problems if not handled correctly.

Police hold spot check to launch this year’s festive RIDE campaign

By Bill Rea
The holiday season is fast approaching, and that means celebrating. Caledon OPP are ready to be on the lookout for people who might have done too much festive drinking before driving. The campaign was officially launched Friday with an afternoon spot check on Airport Road, just north of Mono Road. Sgt. Marcus Sanderson of the detachment’s Community Response Unit reported four additional constables have been added for the festive season, bringing the complement to 10. The Festive Reduce Impaired Driving Everywhere (RIDE) program actually started the third week of October, and will run until the second week of January. And Sanderson said this is in addition to the usual RIDE activities that go on throughout the year. “We want to have a significant presence during the festive season,” he remarked. “It is a continuation of what we do 365 days a year.” Sanderson said they try to be brief when motorists are stopped at a spot check. Officers tell the driver why they have been stopped, and if there’s no reason to suspect impairment, they are quickly allowed to go on their way. But if an officer suspects the driver is impaired by alcohol, a breath sample can be demanded.

“We’re also using our noses,” he added.

Erin man arrested at spot check

A Reduce Impaired Driving Everywhere (RIDE) spot check on Winston Churchill Boulevard the evening of Nov. 1 resulted in at least one drinking and driving charge. Caledon OPP reports the check was set up north of East Garafraxa Town Line. Shortly before 8 p.m., officers spotted a blue Chevy R10 stop before the spot check, then enter it slowly. Officers quickly detected the smell of alcohol on the driver’s breath. He was given a roadside breath test, which he failed. The driver was arrested and a search of the vehicle revealed a quantity of drugs, believed to be marijuana, and an open container of liquor. The 49-year-old man from Erin was charged with driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in his system, possession of a schedule II substance and driving with an open container of liquor. His licence was suspended on the spot for 90 days, and his car was impounded for seven days.

Inspector Tim Melanson was among the officers manning Friday’s spot check to launch the festive RIDE campaign.

Woman charged with drinking and driving offences

The movements of a car exiting a Highway 10 driveway Nov. 1 caught the eye of a Caledon OPP officer. The result is a 64-year-old Caledon woman was charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle and driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in her system. Police report the officer was heading north on Highway 10 at about 11:45 a.m. and saw a grey Toyota Corolla exit the driveway, cross four lanes of traffic, hit a curb, causing a hubcap to fall off and roll down the road. The car continued north, travelling at an estimated 100 km-h in a posted 60 zone. The officer pulled the car over to check on the driver’s sobriety. Upon speaking with the female driver, the officer immediately detected a strong smell of alcohol on her breath and noted that she displayed many other signs of impairment by alcohol. The woman was arrested and charged. He licence was suspended on the spot, and her car was impounded for seven days.

Robbery at Bolton eatery

Police report a man went in through the south door of the business brandishing a knife and demanded money from an employee. The employee was not injured. The suspect is described as a white male, 20 to 30 years of age, five feet 10 inches in height, with a medium build, wearing a dark or black baseball hat and a black jacket. Police are asking anyone with information about this robbery to contact them at 905-584-2241 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Jones introduces bill to respect private property

The penalties for trespassing on private property could be increased, if Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones gets her way. Jones last week introduced a private member’s bill, Bill 36, the Respecting Private Property Act. It amends the current Trespass to Property Act by creating a minimum fine of $500 for trespassing and increasing the maximum compensation for damages to $25,000. Jones noted there is a growing concern across Ontario about the increase in trespassing on private property. “People who trespass on farmland for example, can end up damaging fencing, crops and livestock and other parts of the property,” she said. “This can quickly add up to thousands of dollars in damages.” “The Respecting Private Property Act will make necessary changes to the Trespass to Private Property Act,” Jones added. “It will create a minimum fine of $500 for trespassing, and it will increase the maximum compensation for damages to $25,000.” “Increasing the limit on compensation for damages allows property owners to be fairly compensated for destruction of their property, and a minimum fine will also send a message that trespassing is a serious issue and will not be taken lightly,” she said. The Ontario Federation of Agriculture (OFA) has been asking for amendments to the Trespass to Property Act, and is supportive of Bill 36. “The Ontario Federation of Agriculture is proud to support Sylvia Jones MPP’s Bill 36, the Respecting Private Property Act,” OFA Vice President Keith Currie stated. “The OFA has been working with government and policy makers to amend the Trespass to Property Act for many years. We need this act updated to reflect the severity of trespassing and the damages that result from thoughtless or reckless behaviour.”

DUFFERIN-CALEDON

SYLVIA JONES, MPP

QUEEN’S PARK REPORT

INTRODUCTION OF THE RESPECTING PRIVATE PROPERTY ACT

On November 4th, 2014 I had the honour of introducing my Private Member’s Bill, Bill 36 the Respecting Private Property Act. If passed, my bill will amend the current Trespass to Property Act by creating a minimum fine of $500 for trespassing and increasing the maximum compensation for damages to $25,000.

Currently the Trespass to Property Act has no minimum fine for those who trespass, and has a maximum limit of $1,000 on compensation for damages.

One of the problems when people trespass on private property is they end up damaging the property, including crops, livestock and fencing. Unfortunately, it is left to the property owners to repair these damages, and the costs can quickly add up to thousand’s of dollars.

My bill would make necessary changes to the Trespass to Private Property Act. These changes will allow property owners to be fairly compensated for destruction to their property, and a minimum fine will also send a message that trespassing is a serious issue and will not be taken lightly.

I would like to hear your thoughts on Bill 36 the Respecting Private Property Act and would appreciate your support. If you are interested in reading the bill or have any questions, please visit: www.sylviajonesmpp.ca.

DeBoer gets another term on council

By Bill Rea

When he declared he was going to seek a fourth term on Caledon council some months ago, Nick deBoer said there were still some things he wanted to finish.

With last Monday's election results, he's got four more years to deal with them.

DeBoer was easily re-elected to his fourth term as area rep for Wards 3 and 4 (Albion and Caledon East), taking more than two-thirds of the vote in a three-way contest.

According to official figures released by the Town of Caledon earlier this week, deBoer got 3,137 votes, good for 67.29 per cent of the total. Doug Maskell came in second with 1,086 (23.29 per cent), and Romeo Jack Barbosa trailed with 439 (9.42 per cent).

DeBoer was on hand in the council chambers at Town Hall to see the returns come in, and his was among the first races to be decided.

"I appreciate the support that the community gave me again," he commented.

He's going to have to get used to some new colleagues on council, and deBoer lamented the defeat of a couple of his long-time colleagues; namely Richard Paterak and Richard Whitehead, pointing out they've done a lot for Caledon (the defeat of Patti Foley to Annette Groves was not known at that point).

"An election is an election," deBoer observed. "Both of them need to be congratulated for what they've done for the community."

Maskell said he wasn't too surprised with the way things turned out.

"I kind of anticipated that, as a first-time candidate," he commented.

He added he thought he did well as a rookie against a "long-time, life-long incumbent."

"I certainly learned a lot through the process," Maskell observed.

He said he received a great response as he made his way through the community during the campaign, but added the voter turnout was not enough to accomplish change. It was less than 35 per cent in this race. "That's not enough to unseat an incumbent," he remarked.

Maskell plans to give it another try too.

"I'll be back in four years," he said.

"Now it's game on!"

Barbosa admitted he was disappointed with the results.

He also said he plans to run again.

"Maybe I'll try a little different way," he said, like taking his message directly to everyone.

DeBoer was quick off the mark, taking a strong lead out of the advance poll, which was held at Caledon Community Complex in Caledon East. He collected 574 votes there, or 75.53 per cent of the total cast. As far as the rest of the polls are concerned, in percentage terms, deBoer was in the high 60s or 70s, with the exception of the station at St. Nicholas Elementary School. He just got a majority of the votes there; 357 of the 707 cast. The poll was the strongest one for Maskell, as he got 194, good for 27.44 per cent. Barbosa did well there too, with 156 votes (22.07 per cent).

Paterak may seek Peel Region Chair

By Bill Rea

Caledon Councillor Richard Paterak is considering a run at being the next Chair of Peel Region, and said a decision should be made by the end of this week.

"I haven't quite decided yet, but it's getting late," he said earlier this week.

Paterak is completing his fifth term representing Ward 1 on Caledon council (the last three terms as a Regional councillor). He was defeated in last month's municipal elections by Barb Shaughnessy.

Long-time Regional Chair Emil Kolb will be stepping down next month, and his successor will be chosen by the new Regional councillors. One of the complications facing Paterak is some of the councillors have committed themselves to certain candidates.

"I am still giving it consideration," he said.

"I enjoy the work," he added. "I have a lot of things at the Region I'm very interested in."

Paterak also said he believes he has the experience and the skills to make a good Chair.

"It has a lot of appeal," he commented.

A Little Quickie earns big applause at Blackhorse Theatre

By Anne Ritchie

There's flashbacks and fast living, loving and leaving, gambling and games in Jane Milmore's and William van Zandt's A Little Quickie, and it all adds up to a riotous evening at Blackhorse Village Players.

Who would think a modestly decorated Atlantic City hotel room with an adjoining offstage suite could hold so much laughter, but thanks to a talented cast, skilled backstage crew (Catherine, Louie, and Kaitlyn Johnson) and plot filled with the funniest one liners you would ever hear, it certainly does.

Perhaps success is due to the flamboyant Roscoe Clementine (Roderick Cook) who arrives with a flourish and a wild Brooklyn accent. Whether he is sweeping a woman off her feet or quaking in his boots while envisioning his brawny wife's reaction to such doings, the audience roars with laughter.

Success may also be due to the antics of Steve and Allen, a comic duo with complicated lives, complete with career spins, romantic mix-ups, and encounters with Roscoe's brawny wife. Kevin Deland portrays the downtrodden and gangly Allen, offering a flood of quick-witted one-liners and sporting a hilarious swagger to attract the ladies — any ladies, as well as the audience's applause. He is schooled by Lex Darian, cool to the point of being cold, smooth to point of oily, transformed while managing the mishaps and manipulations that trip up his marriage and career. Darian has us wondering just how bad, or good, he can be.

And only the ladies will know for sure. There is Allen's Signourey, a beautiful model brought to life by Elizabeth Coulter. Coulter looks and plays the part to perfection, though why the perfection is centered on the bumbling Allen is often a mystery. Then there is the bubbling and voluptuous Polly (Mandi Sosnowski), Roscoe's true love. Sosnowski's spontaneity and fun-loving style have the audience loving Polly as much as Roscoe does. On the married side, Steve's wife Sara (Kaitlyn Johnson) is a study in indecision, for good cause. Bridging the friendship with awkward Allen and smooth Steve is a challenge, particularly when the tables are turned; Johnson has us guessing to the finale just how things will turn out.

Backstage, kudos go to Director Catherine Johnson and Producer Ginny Cathcart. With stage manager Mary VanDyk, they have created a memorable evening, one resounding with laughter generated by an amazing group of characters who you will not want to miss. Call 905-880-5002 to reserve a seat for A Little Quickie, playing at The Blackhorse Village Players until Nov. 15.

Lifetree Café set to reopen Dec. 3

Lifetree Café will reopen Dec. 3 with a slightly different format and a somewhat less structured program.

It will take place in the usual café setting; a place to meet a friend for food, drink and fun, where the atmosphere encourages conversation, questions and personal stories. However, it will start at a new time — 7:30 p.m. to better accommodate those who work and will go until 9 p.m. Also, the meetings will be the first and third Wednesdays of the month.

The first four sessions will focus on Other Faiths: What We Really Need to Know.

Included in these will be stories by people who hold different beliefs, from Muslims to atheists to wiccans to Mormons. There will be ample opportunity to learn about and discuss the subjects in an unhurried, relaxed atmosphere.

Admission to the event is free. Snacks and beverages are available. Lifetree Café is at 6025 Old Church Road, Caledon East in the St. James' Anglican Church building.

Kolb praised by his colleagues for his leadership style

Many of the policies Caledon is benefiting from, including the tri-nodal growth strategy, started with Kolb, she said.

“Emil looks at all things and he weighs it and he’s always fair,” Morrison said. “That’s a leader.”

She added she’s always been impressed with Kolb’s innovative and forward thinking, wondering “Why doesn’t my brain work like that?”

Peel Regional Police Chief Jennifer Evans thanked Kolb for his years chairing the Police Services Board.

She also observed there have been a lot of changes since the service was formed 40 years ago, with the Region’s population growing from 334,000 to more than 1.3 million, making it one of the fastest growing and diverse communities around.

“We are known for excellence in policing,” she declared, adding Kolb’s forward thinking has been a major contributor to that, with his determination to advance the interests of residents of the region.

Evans also observed Kolb is the longest serving Police Board member in Canada, having been appointed in 1992. He’s also the longest serving chair, having taken the position in 1996.

Evans pointed out Peel has the third largest police service in Canada.

“Thanks to Emil, we may be third in size, but we’re first in everything else,” she declared.

Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion, who is also stepping down early next month, reflected that she and Kolb are the only members left from the original Regional council that was formed 40 years ago.

“He and I started together, and we’re leaving together,” she remarked.

“If you want a job done and you want it done in a very efficient and effective way, call a farmer,” she added.

McCallion praised the leadership Kolb brought to the position. She said he would listen to debates, “then he would take charge of the issue in his very effective, slow way.”

“Emil has been the best,” she said as she thanked him for all his contributions to the community. “In my opinion, Peel Region is the best region.”

Former Premier Bill Davis was pleased to see McCallion finally agreeing with Regional government.

“I’m delighted to be here,” Davis said. “I’ve known Emil a long time and I know what he’s accomplished.”

He also thanked Kolb for the leadership he’s demonstrated. “You’ve been an excellent chairman of the Region,” he said.

Amanda Schaefer and Karen Davis spoke of some of their times with their grandfather (the Kolbs have seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren), recalling his endless supply of gummy bears, and his seemingly endless energy. They projected that any “honey-do” list waiting for him will be exhausted by spring.

Kolb looked to the future in his remarks.

“Children are our future,” he observed, pointing to the importance in Canada of making sure all young people get the best possible education, stressing that the funds raised from his Hootenanny has always gone to children’s charities.

“I know that 50 years is a long time,” he said, adding he has met a lot of special people over the years.

“It is true when I started my political career in 1965 I had no intention of ever being a politician,” she said.

Kolb also reflected on his time at the helm of Regional council.

“I believe I have done what I committed to when I ran for regional Chair,” he remarked, adding the Region paid off its debts and has since built reserves, to the tune of about $1.9 billion. “That will take us a long way into the future.”

Kolb also praised the work of staff, both at the Region and in the police service.

“I’ve been able to accomplish a lot in my career,” he commented, adding the advice, “Always stand tall, tell the truth and always take the heat when it’s necessary to take it.”

“Public service really matters,” Kolb declared, adding he went to work every day believing he could make a difference, and that no problem couldn’t be overcome.

“My family has always been my source of strength,” he said, crediting his wife for what he has achieved. “She cleared the path ahead of me.”

Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion presented Kolb with a copy of her book Hurricane Hazel, along with a scroll from the City of Mississauga.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison said she’s always been impressed with Kolb’s innovative and forward thinking.

Crowds out to mark Remembrance Day

The memory of those who served and died for Canada was honoured over the last several days with Remembrance Day services held around Caledon. There were services Sunday at the Cenotaphs in Alton and Bolton, and another at 11 a.m. Tuesday (Nov. 11) outside Town Hall in Caledon East. Cadets led this large parade in Bolton Sunday. After a brief service held at the Fire hall on Ann Street, participants marched to the Cenotaph at Laurel Hill Cemetery.

Jones questions Minister on ice storm funding rejection

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones is wondering why some municipalities in her riding were turned down for relief funding in light of the winter ice storm.

She took on Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Ted McMeekin during Question Period in the legislature recently, asking why he rejected the applications from Shelburne and Melancthon to receive disaster relief funding.

"Many municipalities stepped up to assist stranded motorists who were unable to get home as a result of closed roads," Jones said in her question. "In my own riding, Shelburne and Melancthon applied for $51,000 and $50,000 each to the Disaster Relief Assistance Program, only to be denied."

She asked if it was fair for these municipalities "to foot the total bill when they were sheltering stranded motorists from across Ontario."

McMeekin responded priority was given to get money to the communities in the most need "as quickly as possible."

"Those that have the financial wherewithal to handle the concerns will understand that those that are in greater need should get the assistance that they require," he added, according to Hansard. "We can't respond to every request out there. The ice storm was a one-off issue as well."

"My question to the minister is, how bad does it have to be?" Jones countered.

"It doesn't seem fair these municipalities have to foot the bill when they were taking care of Ontarians from across the province," she added. "Melancthon has a population of 2,800 people who will now have to shoulder this cost."

"Unfortunately the Minister does not realize that the cost of damages in Melancthon would have a serious impact on creating the Township's next budget," she said. "The Mayor-elect of Melancthon Darren White stated that the cost of $50,000 is equivalent to a four per cent tax hike."

"We have a process in place," McMeekin replied "Before the ice storm, there was no funding allocated specifically to respond to ice storm issues. This government found a way to provide $190 million to those most stressed. I think that should be celebrated."

"The Minister should re-assess the requests from Shelburne and Melancthon in light of the significant burden these costs will mean to their municipal budgets," Jones concluded.

Much ado about relatively little?

According to Justin Trudeau, the two members the federal Liberal leader has suspended from his small caucus have been accused of “serious personal misconduct,” which others have since identified as some form of sexual harassment.

The U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) has come up with a definition for sexual harassment in the workplace: “Unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature constitute sexual harassment when this conduct explicitly or implicitly affects an individual’s employment, unreasonably interferes with an individual’s work performance, or creates an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment.”

Normally, the relevant scenario sees the perpetrator as a male boss or relatively senior employee in the particular workplace and the victim as a young female. But in this case the workplace is on Parliament Hill and the alleged perpetrators and victims have different employers, the two complainants being members of the New Democratic Party who would normally have few, if any, contacts with MPs from the other parties.

Thus far, the two suspended MPs have both proclaimed their innocence, and both Scott Andrews and Massimo Pacetti are married with children.

Meanwhile, NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair has accused Trudeau of re-victimizing the two complainants, asserting that while one of the two had approached the Liberal leader Oct. 28, she had not expected him to go public with the matter.

Interestingly, Mulcair stopped short of suggesting what his rival party leader ought to have done, and Claire Hoy says Trudeau should have simply taken the matter to Commons Speaker Andrew Scheer.

But while the Speaker can discipline MPs who get out of line, this normally is while the House is in session and thus is done publicly. The Speaker’s website says this concerning his role: “To ensure the orderly flow of business, the House of Commons observes parliamentary rules and traditions, both written and unwritten. It is the Speaker’s duty to interpret these rules impartially, to maintain order, and to defend the rights and privileges of Members, including the right to freedom of speech.”

The problem here is that there is no precedent for such complaints nor any set procedure for handling them, and had Trudeau done so privately he might have been accused of engaging in a coverup.

In the circumstances, it was appropriate for Globe and Mail writer Tom Flanagan to suggest that the three party leaders “need to come together quickly to establish a regular procedure for handling such matters,” one “that can establish the truth or falsity of allegations without destroying reputations on the basis of secret allegations and undisclosed evidence.”

As we see it, in the absence of such a procedure, either the complainants or Mulcair (or perhaps all three) ought to have gone to the Speaker and request a meeting attended by the four MPs, who could give their versions of what had transpired, and leave it to the Speaker to decide what action, if any, should be taken.

We say this because we strongly suspect that what happened was at least partly the result of a misunderstanding — that the two NDP members see as forms of harassment some remarks or gestures that the male MPs see, rightly or wrongly, as neither inappropriate or offensive.

Or, as so often is the case, everything depends on “the eye of the beholder.”

Our Readers Write Remember My Name

By Justin Long

A life in this uniform, boots so black and a weapon to shine,
I stand for all that is right and I'll call this country mine
No war like before, orders are given and I will fight
Everything and anything I'll do to make this right.

Blood, sweat and tears, give it all and forge my path
For I am a soldier, and they will feel my wrath
My brother, my country, the passion in my veins
I promise in the end, we will be all that remains.

Obedient, through gunfire and this risk of dying
Only forward, for my country I will die trying Slow motion recoil, through the sight I am
I have one life to win for this is no war game.

I was born for war, an ultimate killing machine
No other life I've known for this is how it's been
Some criticize this way of life, taking lives is wrong
But I do this mission so you can stay where you belong.

You can hate this way of being, but I am here for you
So there will be a fear free world you can live through...
The enemy threatens our existence, I will make them fall
Behind this flag, I will be brave, stand proud and tall.

The training is repetitive, so everything about me is pristine
I'm like everyone else, I want this all to end when I dream
This picture in my hand, her beauty, I hold back the tears
Thinking of her is all that keeps away the fears.

She is my savior, the one the keeps me moving and calm
Anything is possible, for a soldier I am strong
When all is said and done, your life stays the same
All I ask if I die is that you please remember my name.

It happened today

About six months before, she played a key role in the Royal Navy’s sinking of the feared German battleship Bismarck.

She was also regarded as one of the first generation of war-ships known as aircraft carriers.

During the Second World War, there were numerous claims that the Germans had sunk her. That finally happened, as HMS Ark Royal sank the day after it was torpedoed.

That torpedo hit occurred this day, Nov. 13, 1941.

Good time at the Royal

“Burn down your cities and leave our farms, and your cities will spring up again as if by magic; but destroy our farms and the grass will grow in the streets of every city in the country.”

William Jennings Bryan

I have never been a farmer, and at this stage of my life, I am not anxious for a career change, if for no other reason than I’m having lots of fun doing what I’m doing.

There is a bit of agriculture in my family tree. I have relatives in Ireland (actually, Caledon in Northern Ireland) who are dairy farmers. And the only picture I have ever seen of one of my great-grandfathers (my paternal grandmother’s father) was of him posed with a Holstein. So I do understand the importance of farming. Since I practise my craft in an agricultural community, I had better grasp it.

As a kid, I read a lot about the life of farmers. But having been raised in the big city of Toronto, it was always something of an abstract to me.

And then I fell in love with a farm girl and married into a farm family. And that was the start of my real education into the agricultural way of life.

Incidentally, I am fully aware that I still have a lot to learn on that score. I consider it a work in progress.

That’s why I appreciate days like the Saturday we all just got finished with.

It saw my annual trek south for the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair in Toronto. Beth went with me.

True, the trip was work related, and inspired by my job (and I have the picture I took to prove it). And it presented its fair share of complications. Beth was very quick to admonish me to remove my shoes the instant we got home (no prizes for guessing why). Good thing my father wasn’t around — the message would have been the same, but the language would have been a lot stronger.

It is a fact that people raised in urban areas might have a bit of trouble understanding what goes in to producing the food they eat. True, some of the details are taught in schools (at least they were in the Toronto system in the days when the local professional hockey team were in contention for the championship), but kids don’t always remember what they hear in the classroom. Those of you who question that conclusion will kindly relate the implications of the Pythagorean theorem (you all should have learned it before you had advanced very far in high school).

I like to think I’m an imaginative man, meaning I’ve always been able to grasp where my food comes from. I have been on farms, I have been in food-processing facilities. I even once had a tour of an abattoir (interesting, but not a lot of fun).

The point being, I get it, even if a lot of other people don’t. And I got it a long time before I made any firm decisions about my partner in life.

While I had spent a number of years going with this farm lass named Beth, it took a while before I actually popped the question (you know what I mean). During that time, it was her brother Paul who was running the what at that time was a dairy operation (Beth’s father died a couple of years before we became an item — I never met the man — she never met my dad either), yet wedding vows had to be exchanged before I was invited into the barn.

A couple of months after we were married, Beth asked me if I could spare a couple of hours the upcoming Saturday to help Paul vaccinate his dairy herd against Bovine Viral Diarrhea. I was happy to oblige, if only to get more of a feel for farm life, and a chance to get a glimpse of the inside of the operation.

Was I, as a city boy, unique? Certainly not.

The day after Beth made her approach for my time the coming Saturday, I had occasion to talk to my brother Michael on the phone, and casually mentioned the service I had been pressed into (lovingly, to be sure) for the following Saturday. Big brother was (and still is) a city boy like me, and was intrigued enough to get on the blower to my brother-in-law and shamelessly wangle an invite. And since Paul is not a stupid man, he was not about to turn down the unsolicited offer of free labour.

Thus started an annual tradition that went for several years, proving that two lads born and bred in urbia (I just made that one up) could step in manure with the best of them.

And I got to learn a few of the basic realities of farm life, such as how hard a Holstein can kick (very hard).

And although it was never written in any marriage contract, there was a general understanding when Beth and I were married that part of my initiation to the family included milking a cow. I eventually did that. It took about seven years, and it was all done mechanically (Paul had to give me a minor bawling out for attaching the mechanism to the udder backwards, but we’re all entitled to a mistake in life), but the mission was accomplished.

We hear a lot of talk these days that farmers are not appreciated for the role they play in society. It is a fact that at least one farmer (probably several) contributed to the last meal you consumed. Yet I do have the idea that people are getting the message.

I base that statement on what I saw Saturday at the Royal. The place was packed. The only thing that was not in abundance was elbow room. And one of my cousins-in-law was chaperoning the local 4-H contingent. Saturday’s crowds didn’t faze him much. It was the anticipation of Monday’s mobs that worried him. School kids take field trips to the Royal.

Like I stated above, annual trips to the Royal have been a tradition for Beth and I for years, as are the apple dumplings we avail ourselves of every time. But my exposure to the event goes back long before I had even heard of Beth (it even goes back to the days before Beth heard of me).

My first experience with the Fair came when I was a very little boy (four or five — I don’t remember). My mother dragged Michael and I to the Fair. There were vague references to butter sculptures, and we sat for a time in the Coliseum, watching people walking cows around the ring. My mother explained the judges were going to give prizes to the nicest cows. I thought they were all pretty nice, but what did I know?

But I really got exposed to the Fair as a school kid through the aforementioned field trips. They were taking Toronto kids down there 50 years ago too. I was still trying to figure out why one cow was nicer than the others (fact is, I’m still trying to figure that out).

Another fact is the Royal is a fun place to spend a day, and Beth and I had the very sore (and dirty) feet to prove it.

So check it out if you get the chance. It runs until Sunday.

Just make sure to wipe your feet when you get home.

Canada is continuing its contribution to fight terrorism in Iraq

The situation in Iraq continues to grow more and more tragic.

The Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) has conducted a campaign of unspeakable atrocities — beheadings, rape, slavery — on the most innocent of people, all because they think differently from ISIL.

And recently, brutal attacks related to extremism have been inflicted on Canada. First it was in Saint-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Quebec, where two members of our Canadian Armed Forces were senselessly run down by a man who, according to Canadian national security services, had become radicalized. Our government continues to offer our deepest condolences to the family and friends of the members involved.

Two days later, we faced another attack on home soil in the Nation's Capital — a fatal shooting at the National War Memorial and then shots in the Centre Block of Parliament Hill. As Prime Minister Stephen Harper said, "... let there be no misunderstanding. We will not be intimidated. Canada will never be intimidated."

Indeed, we will remain vigilant against those at home or abroad who wish to harm us.

But these senseless acts of violence will only strengthen our resolve as Canadians. It's the least we can do to honour the memory of Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent and Corporal Nathan Cirillo.

Meanwhile, our government is proud to remain in strong condemnation of the actions of ISIL.

We have joined our allies — the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Australia, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, and others — in launching air strikes against ISIL.

We are also contributing one air-to-air refuelling aircraft, two Aurora surveillance aircraft, and the necessary air crews and support personnel. In addition, we are extending the deployment announced in September of the Canadian Armed Forces, in a non-combat role, to continue to advise and assist security forces in Iraq.

This builds on the previous action our government has taken to respond to the humanitarian crisis in Iraq. We dispatched relief supplies for refugees, including tents, blankets, and kitchen and hygiene kits with the help of the Red Cross. We also continue to work with organizations such as Save the Children Canada and Mercy Corps. In addition to providing supplies to those displaced by the violence, we are also providing medical supplies to health facilities and helping with emergency repairs to water and sanitation facilities.

If left unhindered, this terrorist threat will only grow. This is why, as our allies have recognized and responded to ISIL, we've joined the cause. Canada will not stand on the sidelines, we will do our part. Our government is standing up for the safety and security of Canadian families and innocent civilians around the world.

Small Business Tax Credit to help local businesses create jobs

Our government is squarely focused on creating jobs, growth and long-term prosperity.

In doing so, we recognize the fundamental importance of small businesses in fueling the Canadian economy. This is why we recently announced the introduction of the Small Business Job Credit, which will lower small businesses' payroll taxes by 15 per cent for the next two years, saving them an expected $550 million over that period. These savings will help small businesses in Dufferin-Caledon hire more employees and grow our economy.

According to the Canadian Federation of Independent Businesses (CFIB), small- and medium-sized businesses employ 70 per cent of the total private sector workforce in Canada. This is why we have introduced numerous measures since 2006 to support small business growth — including the temporary hiring credit and the Employment Insurance (EI) rate freeze. In total, small businesses have seen their taxes reduced by 34 per cent since 2006.

The Small Business Job Credit will reduce EI premiums by 15 per cent for the next two years. Any firm that pays employer EI premiums equal to or less than $15,000 in those years will be eligible for the credit, which will be applied automatically.

By supporting small businesses in Dufferin-Caledon — and across the country — we are helping to ensure that Canada's economy continues to thrive. And the results are showing. We have created more than 1.1 million net new jobs since July 2009 (over 82 per cent full-time and 78 per cent private sector), we are projected to have among the strongest economic growth in the G7 in the years ahead, and Bloomberg has recently ranked Canada as the second best country in the world to do business.

I am proud of our government's record and I look forward to continuing to work with small businesses in the community to reinforce our commitment to low taxes, economic growth, and long-term prosperity.

Congratulations Jennifer

Jennifer Innis will be the new Regional councillor for Albion and Caledon East (Wards 3 and 4 – Town of Caledon), a position that I have held for 20 years.

I know that Jennifer shares with me the belief that this commitment is based on community service. I know that she will serve the community well in the years ahead and the people and the issues are not new to her.

Jennifer, I wish you well as you start your new term and I know that our paths will cross as we continue to serve our town in different ways. It's important for all of us to work together in harmony for the common good of our beautiful community and its many challenges.

Richard Whitehead
Regional councillor, Wards 3 and 4
Town of Caledon

Lots of good ideas came up in campaign

With the election behind us, I'd like to congratulate those candidates who got elected and encourage them to have an open mind toward the ideas for improvement that were put forward during the campaign period by all of the candidates.

Many of the candidates had ideas that are worth considering, regardless of whose platform they arrived on. For example, Mark Radford made an excellent point about the fact that our Regional tax dollars are going toward the 3-1-1 service, but Caledon isn't taking advantage of it. We should take a good look at that as well as what else we may be paying for but not getting.

One thing I personally was looking forward to doing was making sure that no place within Caledon would continue to be long distance to another place in Caledon. Believe it or not, this is possible, but it requires the Town of Caledon to write a letter to Bell Canada and to Rogers Telecommunications and put forward a business case relating to the economic impact of this separation on the community. This is exactly why it isn't long distance from Cheltenham to Toronto but it is from Cheltenham to Bolton. Needless to say, it isn't long distance from Alton to Orangeville but it is from there to SouthFields.

It's just another hurdle that keeps our town divided. It's pretty hard to have a sense of cohesiveness and town pride when our arts and culture, our economic centres, our Town Hall and all of our villages and hamlets can't call each other without dialing "1" and paying extra.

These are just a couple of things that I hope won't fall through the cracks as we move forward.

So once again, congratulations to our newly elected council. I'm sure I speak for many in saying that I am looking forward to seeing great things over the next four years.

Yevgenia Casale,

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

The duty of Members of Provincial Parliament is to represent our constituents at Queen's Park.

One way we are able to communicate our constituents' wishes is by reading petitions.

A petition is a very direct way to voice your concerns on a particular issue and ask the government to take action on it.

Petitions can cover a wide range of concerns and issues. For example, a petition can ask the government to stop allowing wind turbines in a specific area; or it can be about getting the government to provide assistance to individuals who have a disability. The issue and the requested action must fall within the jurisdiction of the Ontario government, and must have a specific call to action.

Once you have your petition ready, ask others who agree with it to sign their names in support. For more information on writing a petition and to see examples, please visit my website at www.sylvia-jonesmpp.ca

Once I receive your petition I will then be able to present it in the legislature so your concerns can be heard and the government is obliged to provide an answer to the request made in the petition.

Turning jurisprudence on its head

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

Until last week, most Canadians had never heard of either Scott Andrews or Massimo Pacetti, two Liberal MPs who are both married with young families.

But, thanks to Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau's unseemly (and self-aggrandizing) rush to judgment, both men had their names and faces plastered across the country and both were booted out of the Liberal caucus and stand accused of, well, of what exactly?

Nobody is saying, but, humans being what they are, most people are thinking it's bad.

The two MPs, we're told, did something — although we don't know what, and they deny having done anything untoward — to two unnamed female NDP MPs, at least one of whom explicitly asked the Liberals not to go public with whatever IT is.

Since the political careers of the two Liberal MPs — not to mention their personal reputations and possibly their marriages — are now at risk thanks to Trudeau's actions, a real leader in search of justice, rather than one intent on exploiting the issue to win Brownie points in the feminist community, would have dealt with the matter in a responsible way.

But that's not Trudeau's way. Rather than take the matter to the Speaker — which is what one does on Parliament Hill when serious accusations are made — and spark an investigation before going public and either substantiating the accusations or not — Trudeau claims he punished them for "serious personal misconduct" (whatever that means).

In his unseemly rush to make himself appear to be a champion of women's rights, Trudeau headed to the nearest microphone — without telling either the NDP, who had asked him to keep it private, or explaining to his two MPs what they're accused of.

Turning centuries of jurisprudence on its head, Trudeau solemnly announced that in cases such as this — whatever "this" may be — victims must be afforded "the benefit of the doubt." In Trudeau's world — at least when it comes to issues involving what appears to be inappropriate behaviour toward women — it's no longer innocent until proven guilty, but is guilty until proven innocent. As they used to say in the old westerns, "Hang 'em high. We'll convict 'em when the judge gets here."

Initially, Trudeau was well received in most media reports — which, pathetically, appears to be his objective — but that was before NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair accused him of "revictimizing" the two women by publicizing their complaints against their wishes (and not even alerting them beforehand) and before some more sober-minded people — not completely caught up in the current media frenzy created by the Jian Ghomeshi CBC scandal — wondered aloud about the wisdom of assuming accusations — from a rival political party, no less — are completely valid and worth publicly shaming the accused victimizers without benefit of a) them knowing what they're accused of; and b) getting their side of the story; and c) allowing the Speaker and the Board of Internal Economy to investigate what may indeed be serious transgressions — or may not be — before going public.

Trudeau says he had no choice when one of the two women NDP MPs approached him on a bus and told him about the incidents.

Nonsense. To be sure, he couldn't ignore it. Otherwise, if an investigation ensued and it was shown Trudeau knew and did nothing, he'd be in a pickle. But there's a big difference between doing nothing and punishing his own MPs for unspecified and unproven accusations by unnamed MPs against them.

In most sexual misbehaviour cases — which everybody assumes this is — the victim is in the unenviable position of being an underling to the perpetrator. But here, we're talking about four elected MPs, people who are not without power and resources, mature adults who, as Tom Flanagan wrote in The Globe and Mail, "have been toughened by public struggles for nomination and election."

This is the kind of story that ignites a public mania — how often, in the past week, have we read about the "culture of sexism" on the Hill, based apparently on two unknown accusations by two anonymous MPs against two publicly-outed MPs? No doubt bad things occur, but one sensational example — and an unproven one at that — hardly constitutes an epidemic or a "culture."

But then, Trudeau, who touts the fact that he used to work with women who were victimized by men, sees himself as the women's go-to champion. I t's the same game he played to announce, with no debate and no consultation, that Liberals who don't subscribe to his pro-abortion views are not welcome in his party; the identical high-handed approach in cavalierly booting Liberal Senators out of the Liberal caucus, again without warning or consultation.

People say Stephen Harper is dictatorial. Hah! Imagine what Trudeau would do if he were prime minister instead of the leader of the third party.

The mind boggles. The earth quakes.

Klomp explodes for five points to lead Golden Hawks to victory

By Jake Courtpatte

There has been a hole lately in the defence of the Junior C Caledon Golden Hawks, one they have found difficult to fill with offensive production.

After being dismantled at home by the Stayner Siskins last Sunday, the Hawks looked to turn their luck around on the road Friday against the Alliston Hornets.

Unfortunately, they came in against a hot Hornets team, having won five in a row to move atop the GMOHL standings.

The Golden Hawks, meanwhile, were riding a three-game losing streak.

Despite a slow start, the Hornets opened the scoring with three quick goals late in the first period to take a sizable lead into intermission.

A powerplay goal by James Pitsadiotis early in the second cut the lead to two, but that would be as close as the Hawks would come.

Christian Bonaldi would add another marker in the third for the Hawks, no match for the Hornets four. The final score was 8-2 for the Hornets.

The Huntsville Otters were at Caledon East for the first time this season Sunday, with the Hawks desperate to spark some offensive flair.

They entered the game without forward Adam Breen, who was given a game misconduct for abuse of officials late in the Friday loss.

The first period was a flurry of shots from every angle by both teams, with Steven Klomp opening the scoring for the home team less than five minutes in.

Christian Mariconda, in his first game in a Golden Hawk uniform, earned an assist on the goal.

They ran into some penalty trouble shortly after, when Steve Zeppieri was sent off on a double minor for spearing and Ben Ardis picked up a kneeing minor two minutes later.

Goaltender Sam Procopio was a brick wall, killing off the double minor with the help of a solid box defense.

Unfortunately they could not hold on forever, giving up a goal on the penalty kill with Ardis still in the box.

The next period and a half was all Hawks. Zeppieri redeemed himself with his second goal of the season late in the first, with Klomp and Mariconda both earning their second point of the contest.

Two minutes later, Daniel Cafagna put the Hawks up 3-1.

In the second, the trio of Klomp, Mariconda and Cafagna could do no wrong as they combined for two more goals and three more assists to give the Hawks a 6-2 lead.

Up by four, the team seemed to devolve into a trap defense, not forcing the play as they had been earlier in the game.

Huntsville rallied for four unanswered goals in the second and third, tying the game with the majority of the third period left to play.

The reality check once again sparked the offense, as midway through the frame Cafagna took passes from Klomp and Bonaldi to put the Hawks up by one once again.

A late empty net marker from Zeppieri sealed the 8-6 win.

Klomp almost doubled his offensive production for the year in one game, as his two goals and three assists brought his season stats to eleven points in 10 games.

Cafagna's two goals and two assists were a welcome addition, having gone pointless in the past three games.

Procopio was a force for the Golden Hawks, allowing only one goal on seven powerplay chances for the Otters. He faced 40 shots in the game.

The schedule doesn't get any easier for the Hawks, facing two higher-ranked teams this week in both the Fergus Devils and Orillia Terriers Friday and Sunday respectively. The team will have the chance to earn points in front of their home fans both nights.

For stats, schedules, and more information, visit www.juniorgoldenhawks.pointstreaksites.com

Sam Procopio slides over to make a stop in Sunday's 8-6 victory over the Huntsville Otters.

Dramatic steals in the game of inches

By Shellee Morning
King Curling Club

One of the most wild back-and-forth exchanges in King curling took place during the club's Wednesday night league after the scoreboard revealed some very enormous counts.

Observers were treated to an exciting match between Teams Wasylikiw and Broadhurst that took the full round to determine the winner. Skip Ian Broadhurst and his team of Pat Schneider, and Cheryl and Dean Teasdale claimed the first end with a steal of two, then followed with an astounding five-point steal in the next end to blast into a 7-0 lead after two ends. Skip Peter Wasylikiw didn't falter for a moment as the lop-sided scoreboard stared back at him in the face. His team of Cameron and Ginny Ross and Kim Kotell remained rock solid as they sharpened their brooms and re-bounded in the third by collecting a sizable six-rock count to take the end. A steal of one more by Wasylikiw in the fourth closed the gap completely, bringing the game to a tie. Wasylikiw wasn't finished. The team went on to steal another in the fifth, taking the lead for the first time and moving the score to 8-7. Pressure mounted for both skips while they clearly depended on their team to set up the house in their favour for the closing ends of the contest. Skip Broadhurst's final stone in the sixth left him with a draw and a chance to tie the game. The game of inches prevailed as Broadhurst's last rock came up inches short, offering Team Wasylikiw the win after his team claimed yet another two for a well-deserved 10-7 win.

Both teams, equally matched in their performance, delivered an exciting game that once again solidifies "that one should never give up."

King's youth report

The Youth program that takes over the sheets of King both Wednesday and Thursday (there are a few spots open), and Sunday afternoons (which has doubled in membership), have filled their leagues with enthusiastic Little Rockers and bantam curlers.

If the enrolment as well as the energetic desire to learn and conquer is any indication of the future of the club, then the outlook is more than promising for future stars.

A busy schedule is planned this year, as some of the bantam and junior curlers will be participating in the Toronto Curling Association Interclub League. The King team will play two weeks of every month at different clubs such as Thornhill, Brampton, Oakville, Chingwacousy, High Park and Weston. The grand finale will take place in April, hosted by the Dixie Curling Club.

Exhibition games are also planned with neighbouring clubs, as well as invitational bonspiels throughout the season. The well-received Shamrock Bonspiel hosted by King Curling will once again be held in March, featuring a draw for both Little Rocks and bantam players. These young curling stars will undoubtedly thrill the spectators with their doubles and draw to the button shots as they enjoy a season full of exciting curling. King Curling sends good luck and wishes the youth program great success in their 2014-15 bonspiels.

Robert F. Hall sports round up

Junior basketball girls' finally get a taste of victory

By Gabi Best

With fall sports slowly coming to an end, only a couple teams had games to report last week.

Oct. 29, the junior girls basketball team had an amazing game against Sandalwood. With losses all season, the girls finally came out on top and proved that they were there to play. They brought home a 26-15 win in their final season game. Point scorers were Alexis Viveiros, Giselle Fernenback, Victoria Lucas and Arielle Neil.

"Giselle scored a three-point 'buzzer beater' to end the first half," stated coach Burgess.

The coaches would like to thank all the girls for their hard work and determination throughout the season, finally earning the win they deserved. Victoria Lucas earned player of the game honours and was a strong leader on the team throughout the season. Coaches hope to see all girls out next year and wish good luck to the players moving up next year.

Next, we have the varsity boys' football team, who brought the speed of lightening to their game against the St. Michael Thunder Oct. 30. The boys were fired up to play their final season game, when a win would mean the boys would carry on to the playoffs but a loss would do them no good. Jordan Baggio, Josh van Amel Svoort and Quinn Wheeldon proved that the Thunder was nothing but noise, and shut them down on defence. Although the Wolfpack did not play a strong offensive game, their defence was fantastic. Gabe Siemienic earned the team a field goal and a rouge, putting the Pack on the board with a score of 4-1. Congratulations to Quinn Wheeldon for earning player of the game recognition and shutting down every attempt made by the Thunder.

Students Welcome

DEATHSDEATHS*FORD, Catherine (Kay)

Peacefully at Dufferin Oaks Nursing Home, Shelburne, on Thursday, November 6, 2014. Catherine Elizabeth Robinson was born on December 6, 1928 to William and Ruby Robinson on a rural family farm near the community of Marvelville.

Growing up during the Great Depression taught her to be resilient, determined, and to appreciate the simplest things in life. In 1949, she boarded a train for Caledon East to teach at a one-room school. On arrival she changed her name to "Kay" and soon met the love of her life, William Gott. They married and had three children; Stanley and his wife Helen, Richard and his wife Carol, and Albert. When tragedy struck at the death of her husband, Catherine resolved to continue on and returned to teaching. Later she found happiness in her marriage to George Ford where they had two children: John and his wife Jane, Linda Ford and her husband Paul Volk. In her later years Catherine became a proud grandmother to Alister (Tina), Lisa (Grant), William (Clare), Kevin (Tammy), Sean (Stephanie), Ben, Emily, Julia, Michael, Skyler, and proud great-grandmother to Lauren and Harper.
