Community pitched in to help others over the Holidays

By Bill Rea

The spirit of helping and giving has always been strong in Caledon, and that was certainly the case over the Holidays.

Caledon Community Services (CCS) once again ran their annual Santa Fund in support of families in the area facing hard times.

Fiona Coughlin, director of fund raising and communications with CCS, said there were more than 150 families needing assistance, and that included more than 300 children. She observed that works out to about one child in every classroom in Caledon.

"It's about even with last year," she added.

Coughlin said the effort has gathered support from many groups and individuals, including businesses. Caledon OPP dropped off many contributions collected from schools through the Cram the Cruiser program. As well, she said there's been "amazing support from a variety of school groups coming in."

The contributions went to the Exchange on Healey Road in Bolton this year.

"People are definitely donating and they know where we are, which is wonderful," Coughlin said.

For the sixth year in a row, Husky Injection Molding Systems matched every dollar donated to the Santa Fund up to $25,000.

"Husky is proud to support Caledon Community Services," said Husky's Vice President of Corporate Services and General Counsel Michael McKendry. "We have participated in the annual Santa Fund campaign for six years and are happy to contribute to this worthy cause that helps to assist families and children in need at this time of year. I hope that we can encourage other local business leaders to help the Santa Fund reach its goal by generously giving back to the community during the holiday season."

"It is the community's residents and business owners that drive the Santa Fund to success," observed Monty Laskin, CEO of CCS. "It is through our community's support that hundreds of families celebrate the holidays and build hope for the year ahead. Having Husky in our corner is extraordinary; it brings Caledon together in the spirit of giving."

Many local schools helped out with the CCS efforts, but there were other activities some of them were involved with.

Staff and students at Bel-fountain Public School were involved in the Share the Joy program, which was put on by the Peel District School Board, according to Office Manager Debbie Sutton.

She explained the Board provided the details of a family in Peel that was going through difficult times, including what they needed, and the school community pitched in to help.

Share the Joy benefitted from the efforts of Credit View Public School.

"The community has donated a lot of items," observed Principal David Abelo.

He also said the school collected non-perishable food

Improve your online presence

A course will be offered at the Exchange aimed at helping people improve their online presence so they can be found by Google and customers.

It will also involve helping participants master social media tools such as LinkedIn, Twitter and Facebook

The course starts January 12 and will run for seven weeks, Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m. The fee is $250 (a tax receipt will be issued), and the entire registration fee will be donated to Caledon Meals on Wheels. The Exchange is at 55 Healey Rd., Unit 10, in Bolton.

EXCHANGE GETS A BOOST FROM ROWLAND

Staff at Rowland Investments in Caledon dropped off a wide assortment of food contributions at the Exchange in Bolton, helping the efforts of Caledon Community Services (CCS). The company has made annual donations to the Santa fund for more than 15 years, always matched by Manulife Financial. Kim D’Eri, manager of community animation for CCS, Event Planner Shona Lauzon and Board Member Bill Dunne accepted the contributions from Bente and Jim Rowland and Julianne Carras. One of the company’s product partners will be matching the contribution.

items for the Caledon Firefighters Food Bank.

CCS benefited from a toy drive that was organized by Holy Family Elementary School in Bolton, Head Secretary Margaret Proctor reported.

She also said the school’s youth faith ambassadors had been making gingerbread houses with residents of the Davis Centre in Bolton, and they were to be raffled off, with the money going to Share-Life, the annual charitable appeal, of the Catholic Archdiocese of Toronto.

The community at Caledon East Public School were among those taking part in Share the Joy, and Principal Heather Denley said they managed to raise some $1,500 in cash and gift cards.

“I think that’s pretty impressive for a school of 250 kids,” she said.

The community at Macville Public School had a couple of projects on the go, according to behavioral teaching assistant Louise Milliken. She said the school contributed to the CCS food drive, as well as gathering items from a hat and mitten tree for CCS.

Staff from James Bolton Public School worked to help a family through the Share the Joy program, Principal Laurie Allison reported.

The school as a whole collected food contributions for the breakfast program at a school in Brampton. And there were other food contributions that were delivered to CCS through the Cram the Cruiser program of Caledon OPP. As well, the Home and School headed up a toy drive for CCS. She also said gently-used snow suits, hats, mittens and boots were collected to donate to a school in Milton.

There was quite a bit of charitable activity for the Holidays around Herb Campbell Public School.

Teacher Kelly Peake reported they were taking part in the Share the Joy program, gathering food, gift and household items for a struggling family.

The school also collected food items for OPP to deliver to CCS by cramming cruisers.

As well, there was a Candy Cane Tree set up at the school, with students taking a cane with information on a child and buying an appropriate gift.

“Every day, we come to school and the pile of gifts keeps growing,” Peake observed in the days leading up to the holidays.

CCS benefitted from the charitable efforts of the Ellwood Memorial Public School community.

Assistant Secretary Brenda Conforti said CCS received the contributions of a Mitten and Hat Tree. And the school also crammed a couple of cruisers with food items for the police to deliver.

Students at Palgrave Public School also crammed their share of cruisers; eight in all, according to Principal Julia Breen.

The school is also very active with Sleeping Children Around the World, which supplied bed kits to children in the Third World.

The students and staff at St. Cornelius Elementary School in Caledon East were also involved in cramming cruisers, along with some other charitable work over the season, according to Assistant Secretary Marisa Cafagna.

As well, the school is involved in Project Gift. The students were compiling shoe boxes and filling them with toiletries, toys and other useful items for an under-privileged child.

A toy drive in support of CCS was among the projects undertaken by the community at St. John the Baptist Elementary School in Bolton.

Head Secretary Louise Grant also said the school was working to support a couple of local families in need of assistance.

Allan Drive Middle School in Bolton collected 616 canned-goods items to contribute to CCS through the Cram the Cruiser program. Students were also selling Rafiki bracelets, with proceeds going to Free the Children.

Special Education Teacher Sean Hennessy said it’s part of the effort to get students involved in being community leaders.

He added Rafiki bracelets are hand-made in Kenya. “It’s Swahili for ‘friendship,’” he said. He observed that $50 could buy a goat which could help a family support itself. “We sold 200 bracelets and raised $1,000,” he said.

There were a couple of projects undertaken at Mayfield Secondary School.

Special Ed. Teacher Meghan Barson said families in Peel Region were adopted to receive donations and gift cards. As well, toiletries, gift cards and clothing were contributed to the efforts of CCS, and staff collected contributions to a women's shelter.

Things have been busy, from a charitable point of view, at St. Michael Catholic Secondary School in Bolton.

Chaplain Colette Sicoli reported students were busy putting Christmas baskets together for families in the community.

In addition, she said items like dried beans, soap, powdered milk, etc. have been collected at the school to go recipients in the Third World, mainly in Central and South America, through Canadian Food for Children.

"If we have families in need in the school community, we assist them too," she said.

Students and staff at SouthFields Village Public School were busy collecting items to cram into police cruisers, filling three of them. Teacher Christine Byrne Martin said they also collected 12 boxes of personal care items for Peel Children's Aid Society.

The efforts at Alloo Public School included collecting hats and mittens for Single Women in Progress Peel, a group for single mothers, according to Principal Tammy King.

As well, she said the school collected food contributions to Peel Outreach.

"We collected just over 800 items," she said. "We had quite a bit for a little school."

There was a food drive at Caledon Central Public School in support of CCS, Principal Lynn Bristoll reported. She added two students at the school were sponsored under the Caledon OPP Shop with a Cop program.

Students at Alton Public School made contributions of hats and mittens to a Mitten Tree, with the items being distributed in the Orangeville area, according to Principal Laurie Johnson.

She also said Grade 5 and 6 students are going to start learning about addressing poverty in the new year by holding a food drive.

As well, Johnson said they were gathering gently used coats and snow suits for students at a needy school in Peel.

The efforts from St. John Paul II Catholic Elementary School included collecting school-age toys for the efforts of CCS, according to parent volunteer Serina Acocella.

The charitable work at Robert F. Hall Catholic Secondary School included a food drive in support of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul in Orangeville, according to Chaplain Brenda Holtkamp.

She said students took tags of a tree. The tags represented a child in need and the student bought a gift for that child.

As well, Holtkamp said they collected more than 1,100 pairs of socks for Good Shepherd Ministries in Toronto, and put together Christmas baskets for families using Romero House, a Toronto centre for refugees.

The people at St. Nicholas Elementary School in Bolton have been doing "tons" of charitable work for the Holidays, according to Vice-Principal Velia Viola. "We did so much."

She said they made contributions to Dr. Simone, who supplied candy to children in the Third World, also supplying hygiene items in ziplock bags.

"We always give to ShareLife," Viola added.

There were several activities being carried out at Humberview Secondary School, according to Principal Sue Fried.

There has been a Me to We Boutique, which saw a number of items for sale to support the Me To We Club. It raises funds for both local and international charities. Items include Rafiki Chains, which she said made excellent stocking stuffers and they are made by African women who are working to earn a sustainable income for their families.

The Interact Club made cards for the King Centre for seniors and ornaments to decorate for the Rotary Christmas Dinner.

Fried added members of the Interact Club will be volunteering at the Exchange Jan. 13.

The Student Activity Council (SAC) raised more than $1000 for the Santa Fund. In excess of 200 students donated a portion of the price of their Semi-Formal ticket towards the fund.

"The SAC wanted a practical demonstration for our concern for others and enriches everyone's lives," she observed.

Fr. Bob Glynn and Chaplain Brenda Holtkamp joined students of Robert F. Hall Catholic Secondary School in the midst of the contributions they collected for the less fortunate.

7 Things You Must Know Before Putting Your Home Up for Sale in Spring 2015

DUFFERIN-PEEL - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their homes and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their homes on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable. In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar".

Kids take part in third annual Shop With A Cop

The Wal-Mart at Mayfield and Bramalea Roads was a busy place the Saturday before Christmas as officers from Caledon OPP were joined by chosen Caledon students to take part in the third annual Shop with a Cop event. The students had the opportunity to spend time with an officer, shopping for Christmas gifts for their families, using gift cards donated by local businesses and schools. “Without the generosity of the Caledon community we wouldn’t be able to continue with this fantastic program,” commented Constable Christina Sanghera, chairperson of Shop with a Cop. “During a fundraising drive at Zehrs’ Bolton with the assistance of the manager Marco Cesarone, we raised over $2040 to assist in our cause. “This is a very special event for our officers and civilian members and truly makes our Christmas season special.” Constable Sarah Crowhurst was touring the store isles with Rihanna Lopez, 8, while Constable Ryan Myette looked over merchandise with Jayden Tricocu, 4.

2015: 200th birth anniversary of Sir John A. Macdonald

It was 200 years ago, Jan. 11, 1815, that one of Canada’s greatest political minds and visionary leaders, Sir John Alexander Macdonald, was born. Not only was he our first Prime Minister, but he played a key role in Confederation. He left a tremendous legacy that we can all be proud of as Canadians.

As a lawyer specializing in commercial law, Macdonald started his political career at the municipal level, acting as alderman in Kingston from 1843 to 1846. A few years following his election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada in 1844, he became Receiver General. After occupying various cabinet positions, he was finally appointed the first Prime Minister of Canada after Confederation July 1, 1867. In order to underline the historical significance of the moment, Macdonald was proclaimed Knight Commander of the Bath by Queen Victoria the same year.

We should not forget all the hard work Macdonald did in shaping our country. The establishment of the strong, centralized federal government we’re so proud of today, can be traced back in part to the views vigorously defended by Macdonald during the Confederation conferences. However, Macdonald did not want to stop after successfully uniting a nation; he went on to develop a comprehensive plan for Canada — a national strategy. He thought of farmers in the West, but did not forget industry people in the East. He surrounded himself with strong, capable colleagues, such as George-Etienne Cartier, but worked hard himself too. After years of struggling with gallstones and other illnesses, Macdonald died while in office at the age of 76. He served as Prime Minister for a grand total of 19 years, a record only broken by William Lyon Mackenzie King.

It has now been 200 years since the birth of Sir John A. Macdonald. We’re indebted to him for all of his efforts in laying down the foundations of our great country. If you, like me, would like to learn more about this visionary policymaker, I would recommend that you visit his restored office in East Block on Parliament Hill in Ottawa. East Block is only open for tours in July and August of each year.

It’s time to change the social inequity of poverty

By Dely Farrace

Gas prices have plummeted, and unyielding complaints about it are under way.

According to economists, the level to which gas prices are falling is devastating as it will yield substantially less tax revenues for the most dependent provinces, Ontario being one of them.

There is a concern that social programs will be cut. Why? A few years ago, when gas prices skyrocketed, where did the extra revenue go? Social programs did not gain as a result, nor do they consequently need to suffer now. It is the responsibility of government to maintain the necessities of life for those who are struggling to meet their own and their families’ needs.

We say that children should never go hungry, especially in such an affluent land. That’s why there are school breakfast programs. Children need good nutrition and rest for proper brain development, as well as proper physical development and mental health.

We believe we live in an ideal society, one that protects and defends its rights and freedoms. Canada is one of the most prosperous countries in which to live and raise happy, healthy children. Why, then, are 29 per cent of our children living in poverty? Something is essentially wrong.

Some say that capitalism can exist only with its companion, poverty. In our society, we believe we are tempering the unrestrained damaging effects of capitalism with social programs, and that is true. But we must continue to keep up this trend in order to make our society whole and people-centred. For if not for people, what is the purpose of civilization? For if not for our people, what is the purpose of our existence? Is it to perpetuate extreme wealth for the top 0.1 per cent of the population? Are we not more civilized than that? Or do we rely on a premise that maintains people are poor who deserve to be poor, who somehow choose their path, or who simply become unfortunate?

What happens if we are permanently paralyzed in an accident, or have profoundly disabled children, or lose everything through fire or theft or an “act of God”, or lose our livelihood, our life partner, whatever it is that sustains us? Then what? Some may recover, and others will not.

Within a societal structure which now requires two working parents for a family to remain within the earning bracket of the middle class, what happens when one parent abandons the family, or simply leaves the marriage, denying that they have abandoned the children? Over time, the reality of abandonment emerges because in every practical sense, the newly engendered arrangement is not sustainable.

Children and their mothers, although shameful to admit, are left in desperate situations in our affluent land. The judicial system supports this, and other social programs follow suit. Twenty nine percent of children in Canada are living in poverty.

That’s one out of four kids.

These children may be fed through social assistance, but opportunities to transcend poverty are left in the dust. Access to technology is the greatest opportunity that, if not afforded, will predestine anyone to perpetual poverty.

Canada constitutes one of the most capable societies because it has enormous resources, it is one of the most literate, demonstrates great potential and is continually growing economically. It is unsupportable to have more than 20 per cent of our people living below the poverty line. After all, since we live in a post industrial society, the largest economic foundation in our society is consumerism.

All people need to be active consumers. How does it benefit capitalism to have poverty in our midst? If all people were guaranteed the minimum of a living wage, they would consume more, and it would positively impact our economy.

With an increase in Canada’s GDP of 115 per cent since 1981 and a mere 15 per cent of it going to middle class families, it really is time for a fundamental change. Canada requires a revolutionary approach to wealth both in its making and its distribution if we are to have any hope of a stable and prosperous future for us all.

Osler Foundation and Shoppers Drug raise funds for women’s health

Women’s heart health at William Osler Health System (Osler) has been supported in a big way, thanks to the combined efforts of Shoppers Drug Mart and its store teams and customers.

The Shoppers Drug Mart 2014 Tree of Life fundraising campaign has harvested more than $33,326 for Osler Foundation in support of the cardiology program at Brampton Civic Hospital.

With more than 1,240 Shoppers Drug Mart/Pharmaprix stores across Canada participating in the four-week campaign, the 13th annual Tree of Life campaign will provide support to over 487 Canadian women’s health charities. National in scope yet locally based, the Tree of Life campaign offers patients, customers and employees the opportunity to donate directly to charitable organizations to ensure that resources and programming are available to meet the needs of Canadian women.

“We are extremely grateful to the Shoppers Drug Mart employees and customers who participated in the Tree of Life campaign this year. Their generous support allows us to invest in top-of-the-line cardiology equipment and resources at Brampton Civic,” said Maureen Sheahan, vice-president of philanthropy with William Osler Health System Foundation. “Over the years, the campaign has raised more than $160,000 for the education, care and support needed to keep women’s hearts healthy in our community. The Tree of Life campaign is a wonderful example of the community coming together to help their neighbours.”

Osler Foundation is a registered charity devoted to providing Osler with the funds to expand clinical programs and enhance patient care at its three sites: Brampton Civic Hospital, Etobicoke General Hospital and the new Peel Memorial Centre for Integrated Health and Wellness.

Serving one of the fastest-growing and most culturally-diverse regions in Canada, Brampton Civic provides a mix of emergency, inpatient and outpatient services. The hospital’s angioplasty program was launched in late 2011. Last year, the program helped more than 1,900 patients. In recognition of Shoppers Drug Mart’s generous ongoing support, a recognition plaque hangs in the Cardiology department at Brampton Civic.

2014 was another year to reflect upon

The end of any year stirs up memories for everyone.
In our more self-centred moments, we think of how the year that has passed has impacted on us personally. We reflect on the successes and failures, think of the good days and remember those close to us who have departed.
But there is time for broader thinking, as we reflect on some new wrinkles that were introduced in the war against terrorism, and Eastern Europe is again a place of interest and concern.

Closer to home, we are looking forward to a federal election in the coming 12 months, after having been through two campaigns last year.
A year ago, it looked like voters in Ontario had just about had it with Kathleen Wynne and the Liberals, yet when it came down to the actual election, those voters gave her a majority.
And municipally, we've got a number of changes to get used to, with a new mayor, Regional chair and some new councillors.

And there were other issues to hold the attention of people in Caledon, be it the progress of massive developments in places like Bolton, or big aggregate operations in the northern part of town or a parking lot near the Badlands. There were a lot of issues in the area last year, some of which we're sure to hear about in the months to come.
Some of those issues were . . .

"I am truly sorry for my actions," he added, as he asked forgiveness from Morrison, her family, friends and community.

February

The Town was seriously looking at two possible options for the planned expansion of Bolton, and the western alternative seemed to have the edge.
Consultants told councillors the option known as Go Station Focus, seems the more attractive on a couple of levels.
The lands are on Humber Station Road, between the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks and The Gore Road, north of King Street.

Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson reacted to a move by federal Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau to kick all 32 of his party's senators out of caucus, announcing they would be independents, commenting he didn't think the move would amount to much.
"It sounds like there's a change, but there really isn't," Tilson said.

As clean-up continued in the wake of the massive ice storm, Mayor Morrison and councillors took time out to acknowledge the contributions of staff. Morrison personally delegated council to thank staff.
"We couldn't have done this without everyone working so hard," she commented.
Councillor Allan Thompson praised parks and recreation staff for keeping warming centres operating, also pointing out several part-time employees put in a lot of hours in the days following the storm.
"They didn't question," he said. "They stepped right up to the plate."

MP David Tilson's private member's bill aimed at protecting cenotaphs and war memorials from vandalism, passed second reading in the Senate.
"I'm pleased my bill has progressed another stage towards becoming the law of the land," Tilson said. "We owe it to our veterans and the fallen to protect our cenotaphs and war memorials."

There was lots of snow on the ground, meaning conditions were perfect for SnowFest, the annual Family Day celebration put on by the Caledon Agricultural Society.

It only took the Schomberg Cougars five games to end the season of the Caledon Golden Hawks in their Junior C playoff round.

Caledon council had given their support to the application of Olympia Sand and Gravel in December to mine material from a pit near Melville, and they learned in February Opposition to the pit not going away.
In fact, it was announced the matter would be going to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB).
Citizens Against the Melville Pit (CAMP) hosted meetings to drum up support and outline some of the plans in the coming fight.

Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers hosted the community to watch the men's Gold medal hockey game at the Olympics in Sochi on the big screen. Those on hand for the festivities included Sophie Eck, 2, of Bolton, who was waving the flag during the game, accompanied by her mother Marisol.

Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers invited the community to their Bolton facility early one Sunday morning so hockey fans could watch Canada play for Olympic Gold in Sochi on their big screen, and about 100 people took them up on the offer. Canada won.

Petty Officer First Class Tyler Szarko, of Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Crescent, learned he would be spending about a week in March with HMCS Quadra (a base just north of Victoria), staffing Orca, which is a fleet of cadet vessels.

March

There might not have been much enthusiasm, but there was certainly interest in talk of a possible seniors' lifestyle community being developed just north of Caledon village.
Heather Glen Seniors Village had shown interest in developing some 200 acres in the area. There had been no formal application, but about 80 people were out for an information session, hosted by the Caledon Village Association.

Belfountain Public School was named Caledon's Environmentalist of the Year.
The school was an early adopter of Education for Sustainable Development, using sustainability as an integrating context for teaching and learning, decision-making, civic engagement, community partnerships and campus practices.

See 'Residents' on page 9

Crews from the Ministry of Natural Resources were hard at work in January helping to clean up trees that fell during the ice storm on Longwood Drive in Bolton.

A new year started, but the old year had left a lot in its wake for people to remember.
Many around Caledon were still picking up in the aftermath of the massive ice storm that had strick a couple of days before Christmas. And there were ripples being felt well into January.
Town council eventually voted to ask the Province to have the town declared a disaster area.
Peel Region was joining with other municipalities in seeking Provincial and federal funding to help with the cleanup.

Despite weather issues, there were some things that just could not be stopped, like population growth.
Caledon's population started growing within the first couple of hours of the new year.
Headwaters Health Care Centre welcomed its first baby of 2014 at 12:29 a.m. Jan. 1. Kirandeep Kaur Brar of Caledon delivered a baby boy, weighing in at eight pounds 14 ounces. Less than two hours later, at 2:01 a.m., Dolly Iatomasi of Bolton delivered a baby girl, Vienna, at Brampton Civic Hospital. The baby weighed in at six pounds five ounces.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison ended speculation by announcing she would not be seeking another term at the head of the council table, after 11 years in the position.

Inspector Tim Melanson took over as the new commander of Caledon OPP in January.

Baffo's Pizza and Pasta in Bolton was suddenly closed, with a Bailiff Notice posted on the front door of the establishment.
Baffo's proprietor Aldo Buccioni was hopeful they'd be able to get things going again.
"We're trying to make it right," he said. "We're making a valiant effort."

There were few details to offer, apart from the fact that the Canadian Tire issue in Bolton had been referred to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB).
Construction had already started on the development, and Morrison said that didn't have to stop, since a building permit was legally issued once the MZO came down.

The fate of some ash trees on Bolton's north hill had some residents angry, but the Town was maintaining it was necessary.
Kevin Attard was upset when crews cut down about eight trees that were lining Humberlea Road.

It was announced that Belfountain snowboarder Jake Holden would be among those representing Canada in the Winter Olympics in February in Sochi, Russia.
Later in the month, Belfountain area native Brittany Webster learned she would be cross-country skiing for Canada at the Sochi Olympics.

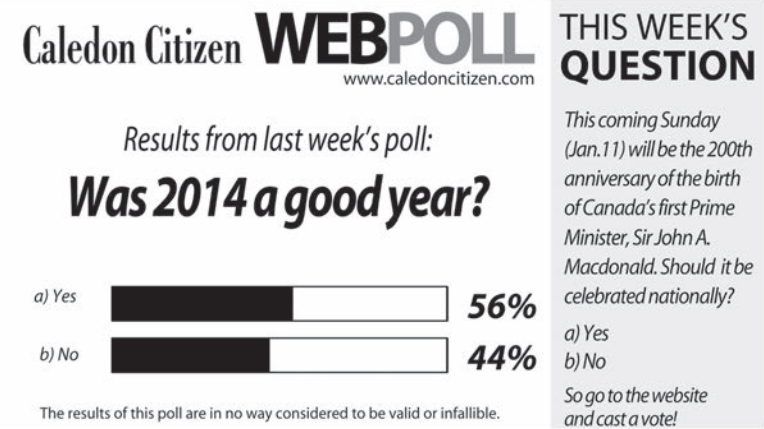

Instead of cutting a ribbon, officials broke a loaf of bread to officially open the Exchange, the project of Caledon Community Services with other community partners. It represents a new model in delivery of food, as well as health promotion and community engagement.

Jeffrey Granger sounded contrite, but a Newmarket judge went along with the request of the Crown and sentenced him to three years in prison.
Granger had previously pleaded guilty to breach of trust by a public official, accepting a secret commission and fraud. Part of the charges involved an attempt to discredit Mayor Marolyn Morrison which led to a police investigation that turned up nothing.

"I fully understand the severity of these charges," Granger, 39, told the court, acknowledging that Morrison suffered because of his actions. "Her reputation was called into question in her community."

It happened today

In his youth, he began to exploit his interest in the arts of scouting and woodcraft.
In the woods around his school, he would hide from the masters, while catching and cooking rabbits, being careful not to let telltale smoke give his position away.
After a successful military career, he set to work rewriting his training manual, aiming it for a younger audience. He tested out his ideas by bringing together 22 boys and taking them on a camping trip under his leadership. It is thought by some that this was the founding of the Scouting movement.
The founder of that movement was Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell. He died this day, Jan. 8, 1941.

The school was nominated by the Caledon Horticultural Society.

Staff Sergeant Michael Garant was promoted to Operations Manager at Caledon OPP.

The federal government allows the production and distribution of medicinal marijuana, but a big concern was where, and that was being discussed in Caledon.

Swimming enthusiasts in the Caledon village area got some bad news in March. Caledon Central Pool had been closed since January, and it was announced that it would stay closed for good.

Town councillors accepted the staff recommendation that the facility remain closed and removed from the department's inventory.

The pool, on Kennedy Road and Charleston Sideroad was closed as a precaution in January after the discovery of mould and on the recommendations of an environmental inspection company.

Officials at Sheridan College were seeking certification to be known as a university, and they found plenty of enthusiasm around the Peel Regional council table.

College President and CEO Jeff Zabud-

Cheltenham Fire Hall was the scene of the sixth annual Chili Show Down in support of the Heart and Stroke Foundation. It was a family affair at this table as Sydney Lynch, 9, served up Syd's Chili Tacos, while her father Captain James Lynch offered seafood chili, which ended up taking top prize.

sky and Board Chair (and Caledon resident) Bryan Dawson received a very favourable reception when the put forth the notion to council.

Regional councillors unanimously passed a motion endorsing the plan.

Citizens Against the Melville Pit (CAMP) started circulating a letter to the Environment Minister, asking for an environmental assessment of the massive pit being proposed by Olympia Sand and Gravel.

Former Caledon Citizen editor Wes Keller died at 82 of an apparent stroke.

Residents of SouthFields Village received an update of what was in the works for their community. The included the prospect of commercial development, along with a Catholic school.

April

Clarence Pinkney was named Caledon's 2014 Volunteer Champion at the annual Volunteer and Citizen Achievement Awards ceremony.

Mayor Morrison pointed out that Pinkney has been serving the Society and Caledon Fair in various capacities for some 54 years.

"He has been an anchor, and knowledgeable resource," she commented.

The Bolton area lost an institution in April with the unexpected death of Bill Whitbread.

The long-time editorial fixture with the Caledon Enterprise (formerly Bolton Enterprise) was 78.

Recent cases of measles reported in Ontario, including Peel Region, was a cause for concern, but not alarm.

Medical Officer of Health Dr. David Mowat agreed the number of recent cases of measles has been unusual.

He said Canada had been free of endemic measles since 1998.

"Measles is now a rare disease," Mowat said, adding it can be hard to diagnose because there are so many other rashes out there.

Parking in the area of the Cheltenham Badlands had become a safety concern for people, but a solution was suggested in April that drew support from Peel Regional councillors.

They approved construction of a parking lot just east of the site. There was also the idea of setting up a viewing area.

George's Arena Sports took the championship in the Caledon Senior Hockey League with 5-3 win over Fines Ford Lincoln.

The Face-off for Families hockey game, in support of Caledon Community Services had the OPP Road Runners battle the Garden Foods Grinders. The Grinders ended up winning in a shootout.

Cleaning up after the December ice storm was still on the minds of a lot of people around Caledon.

Several people were up very early Easter Sunday morning for annual Easter Sunrise Services. Claude Presbyterian Church hosted their annual service at the Cheltenham Badlands.

Are they really under-represented?

NATIONAL AFFAIRS
Claire Hoy

It was British Baron Leonard H. Courtney, way back in an 1895 article, who coined the famous cautionary phrase that: "There are three kinds of lies: lies, damned lies and statistics."

The rampant abuse of "statistical evidence" still abounds, and it's certainly not restricted to any particular group and/or ideology. Everybody does it.

We see it often, for example, in medical scare stories, where somebody will declare that a particular food or airborne element "doubles" the risk of a particular ailment. Sounds scary alright, but if the risk is, say, one in 100 million, then doubling that risk isn't exactly enough to warrant concern. On the other hand, if the risk was one in four and it was doubled, then we've got a problem.

But that's the thing with statistics. They can – and often are – be used to "prove" any thesis that the user wishes to promote and far too often an unsuspecting media – or more likely a sympathetic media – goes along with the distortions.

Take for example an article in Friday's Toronto Star headlined: "Parliament's lack of diversity goes beyond race, gender: study."

Written by Nicholas Keung, the paper's immigration reporter, it cites a demographic "study" by Torontonians Kai L. Chan, all of it "based on information found on the official and personal websites of MPs and senators, as well as other publicly available data."

The main complaint, of course, is that Parliament does not represent the diversity of the country, either in terms of race, gender, religion, language or education.

To support his thesis, Chan, among other examples, found that while 23.3 per cent of Canadians are visible minorities, they account for just 12.3 per cent of the Commons and the Senate. The Tories – naturally – fare worst, with just 10.2 per cent visible minorities, compared to Liberals, 13.4, and NDP, 14.4, not doing much better.

He uses the same argument for women, median age and other things, but since space is limited, let's focus here on his main theme, i.e. the lack of diversity as seen through the "underrepresentation" of visible minorities.

At first glance, it seems like an open-and-shut case: 23.3 per cent are visible minorities yet only 12.3 per cent are in Parliament.

But things aren't quite that neat and tidy. For one thing, what percentage of visible minorities – compared to everybody else – are of voting age?

More importantly, however, visible minorities tend to be concentrated in and around the major cities, overwhelmingly so in and around Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver. So it's simply not legitimate to take an overall number and apply it to a system where we elect people on a riding-by-riding basis.

Without getting overwhelmed – or bored silly – by statistics, just consider a few examples to illustrate the shortcomings of Chan's universal approach. According to the 2011 census, the representation of visible minorities ranges wildly from city to city – and is exceedingly low in most rural and small town areas. Toronto, for example, had 49.1 per cent visible minorities, Vancouver, 51.4, Calgary and Edmonton about 30 each and Montreal, 31.7. But Quebec City had just 4 per cent, Halifax, 9, Sudbury, 2, Kelowna, 7.6. And so it goes, simply illustrating that the national numbers can't be applied to specific local numbers and lead to legitimate conclusions.

So even if visible minorities only voted for other visible minorities – which, of course, they don't – it would not appreciably change the outcome because of their concentration in a few areas and scarcity in others.

Chan said he was prompted to his study over concerns about the small percentage of parliamentarians with science and engineering degrees, something he calls "abysmally low." He says these skills are essential to sustained growth and suggests Canada should copy Australia and Belgium by making voting mandatory to "force political parties to offer a slate more aligned with the demographics of their constituencies." Really?

Actually, Chan found women make up 27.6 per cent of our Commons and Senate. In Australia's national parliament, women represent 27.3 per cent. Riddle me that?

The biggest irony of this entire story, however, was that Chan, the champion of diversity, is currently living in Dubai and working as a policy adviser to the prime minister of the United Arab Emirates, where "diversity" clearly is a four-letter word.

In much of the UAE, apostasy is punishable by death. So too is homosexuality, and women often need permission from their "male guardian" to marry.

Indeed, women who complain of being raped are often charged criminally for having sex outside of marriage, and it's illegal to criticize the royal family or form labor unions.

Some diversity. Some "study."

Environmental Assessment Study

Notice of Completion - Additional Water Supply Capacity for Caledon East

The Study
The Region of Peel has identified the need for additional water supply capacity in Caledon East in accordance with the Region of Peel Water and Wastewater Master Plan Update (2007). Additional supply and a connection to the existing water distribution system are required to support approved growth through 2031.

The Process
The Class EA Study objective was to assess several alternatives and identify a solution to provide additional water supply capacity in Caledon East. The Class EA process includes public and review agency consultation, evaluation of alternatives, assessment of the impacts of any proposed activities, and an identification of reasonable measures to reduce any adverse impacts.

Preferred Alternative
The preferred alternative identified through the completion of the Class EA is to construct a new production well (CE4A) with a rated capacity of 1,515 L/min. on the site of existing production well CE4 and to use existing infrastructure to connect new production well to the Caledon East water system. Subject to comments received as a result of this Notice, and the receipt of necessary approvals, the Region of Peel intends to proceed with the design and construction of this project.

30-Day Review Period
The Project File is available for review at the following locations and available online at peelregion.ca/pw/water/enviro-assess/cale-east-water-supply.htm:

Klomp's hat trick leads Golden Hawks past Midland Flyers

By Jake Courtepatte

In a busy pre-Christmas schedule, the Junior C Caledon Golden Hawks began a back-to-back-to-back weekend in Fergus to face the Devils.

In what turned out to be a goaltenders' battle, Hawk goalie Sam Procopio kept the home team scoreless until midway through the second despite already facing more than 20 shots.

At the other end of the ice, the Hawks solved the Devils' goaltender twice before the second buzzer, on goals from Christian Mariconda and Michael Andrews.

Procopio stood on his head in the third period, with the Hawks having an edge in shots to the tune of 19-5 in the frame, allowing one goal to send the game to overtime.

In extra time, Steven Klomp made a solo effort to lead the Hawks to a 3-2 victory.

The Hawks were in Midland to visit the Flyers the next evening. Despite sitting in the basement of league standings, the Flyers had had Caledon's number all season, defeating them in all three matchups so far.

The situation looked dire very early on, as Procopio showed some fatigue by allowing a goal just nine seconds in on the first shot of the game.

The Flyers would add two more in the period, countered once again by goals from Mariconda and Andrews for a 3-2 Midland lead after one.

However, the Hawks took complete control of the game in the second, chasing goaltender Jake Norton from the net after netting five unanswered goals. Procopio stopped all 14 shots he faced in the in the period.

The momentum was still in Caledon's end of the rink in the final frame, as Klomp picked up his second goal of the game just three minutes in.

Sent on for the powerplay and looking for the magic number of three, Klomp capitalized on the hat trick with 10 minutes left off a pass from Daniel Cafagna.

The offensive onslaught was a nice break for a team with the second lowest goals-for in the league, ahead of only the Orillia Terriers.

James Cyfko was between the pipes Sunday to host the Alliston Hornets, who have dominated the GMOHL this season on way to a 25-3-1 record.

Alliston took control of the game right from the get-go, scoring three unanswered goals in the first for a lead they would never relinquish.

Klomp and Mariconda both had tallies in the second period to try to mount a comeback, but it would fall short when the Hornets notched their third power-play goal of the game early in the third, en route to a 4-3 win.

With nary a holiday break, the Golden Hawks are back in action facing the Erin Shamrocks Saturday, before hosting the Penetang Kings at Caledon East Sunday.

A recent skid from the Kings has the Hawks only seven points back of last year's league champions in the GMOHL standings.

Puck drop is at 7 p.m.

King Curling Club

For the King Curling club, 2014 has come to an end.

But not without crowning the first half champions in the club's Social Leagues.

Three different, but exciting, playoff rounds have been completed and the winning teams have all been determined.

The Wednesday night Social League featured Team Sowerby versus Team Heise for the title. A tough battle to the bitter end, it was Team Sowerby who claimed victory earning league championship. Congratulations to Skip John Sowerby, Tom Ellison, Sue DiFebo and Barb Ellison.

Consolation champions were Skip Chris Welch, Eric Heise, Mike "Blister" O'Hara and Judy Trip after a great game that went end for end against Team Patrick Lee.

The Friday night Social League crowned its champions after an exciting close game between Teams Duffy and Kyle Barber. Winning Skip Gerry Duffy, our local Scottish Nook entrepreneur, and his team of Stephen Niepage, Rick Yates and Tamara Niepage, played a strategic game of accurate weight setting the house in their favour. Barber kept the game close with the exception of one end, when the Duffy team collected the extra point, securing the lead into the eighth frame.

The consolation championship title went to Skip Shellee Morning (Jody LaPlante spared) and her team of Darryl Firth and Chris and Suzanne Fielder. Runner-up was Team Quick.

League Convenor Rosie Kamstra would like to extend a very big thank you to all that donated toward the Friday Night League's food drive. Under the lounge Christmas tree was a full box of various items that were donated with pride to the community's local food bank.

And finally, the Sunday night Social League champions were Team Howard. Skip Diane Howard, Gary Boose (Anne Jessop spared), Nicholus Beck and Sheila Kelly prevailed over regular season first place winners (yet another close scoring game) Team Heise. Both Heise and Howard benefitted from great shots by their mates, making it a great and fun game to be part of.

Wrapping paper, bows, ribbons and of course the traditional Christmas meal are all now behind us as we await the beginning of 2015 play. The year welcomes new teams, new challenges and new friendships for the Social Leagues and as they eagerly await the start of their second half to the curling season. The club congratulates everyone for a successful first half and wishes all its members continued success and good curling for 2015.

Tamara Niepage delivers her stone towards victory during the club's Friday Night Social League Championship game.

Library at Caledon Central Public School was renamed after Alex Raeburn

It was announced in April that there was going to be a spring tree round-up as usual, but it was not going to be usual in practice.

Public Works Director David Loveridge told councillors the bulk of the Town’s efforts during the storm were aimed at keeping municipal facilities open and making sure the roads were clear and safe, with recovery and clean-up getting less priority.

The remaining work included cleaning up and removing downed trees from road sides, parks and trails; overhead removal and pruning of trees on Town right-of-ways and other lands; getting rid of trees and debris from areas around bridges and culverts; and helping residents get downed trees off their properties and disposed of.

George’s Arena Sports took the championship in the Caledon Senior Hockey League with 5-3 win over Fines Ford Lincoln.

The Face-off for Families hockey game, in support of Caledon Community Services had the OPP Road Runners battle the Garden Foods Grinders. The Grinders ended up winning in a shootout.

May

There was lots to see and do as the Caledon Chamber of Commerce put on their annual Home Show.

The late Alex Raeburn spent much of his long life contributing to the Caledon community.

Many of those contributions were recalled in May as the library at Caledon Central Public School was renamed in his honour.

Pope John Paul II Catholic Elementary School in Bolton celebrated the canonization of the man after whom the school was named.

The school was later renamed to reflect John Paul’s Sainthood.

The government of Premier Kathleen Wynne brought down a budget and Ontario voters soon found themselves in the middle of an election campaign.

Egan Funeral Home in Bolton completed a significant expansion, and it was seen as a good time to mark 100 years of service to the community.

Everyone loves a happy ending, and one resulted from the work of Caledon OPP.

Local dog breeder Liz Jubb was reunited with her 12-week-old chihuahua puppy, after it had gone missing a couple of weeks before.

Local Rotary clubs put on an information evening on diabetes and work that’s being done to combat it.

People attending the dinner heard from world renowned doctors and researchers Dr. Gary Lewis and Dr. Maria Christina Nostro.

Milaina Prezzano and Kelvin Dahri took a break from being Grade 5 students at Palgrave Public School to become acting officers at Caledon OPP.

Prezzano was named detachment commander and Dahri was staff sergeant for the day.

The Peel District School Board unanimously passed a motion agreeing with a recommendation from Student Transportation of Peel Region (STOPR) to reinstate bus service along Airport Road for students living north of Larry Street.

There was a strong challenge, but Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson was able to secure the Conservative nomination to run in the next election, winning the contest with Palgrave resident Paul Hong.

“A lot closer than any of us thought,” one person commented shortly after Tilson’s acceptance address.

Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson successfully put his private members bill through the Senate.

Cedar Mills resident Chanel Beckenlehner was named Miss Universe Canada 2014

The Bill, aimed at protecting war memorials and cenotaphs from damage or vandalism, passed third reading in the Senate.

A lot of good work for the environment had been taking place at Belfountain Public School, and more recognition was added.

The school, and particularly the Grade 2 class, was presented with the grand prize for the best elementary school video in the 2014 Classroom Energy Diet Challenge (CEDC). The challenge is run by Shell Canada and Canadian Geographic.

June

A great time was had by many at the 154th edition of the Caledon Fair.

The senior boys’ soccer team from St. Michael Catholic Secondary School in Bolton were provincial camps.

As well, the varsity girls travelled to Thunder Bay for their OFSAA tournament, coming home with fourth-place honours.

Terra Cotta area resident Donald Lobb spent years advocating for the sustainable management of soils.

Those efforts were rewarded in June when, assisted by Mayor Marolyn Morrison, he uncovered his stone on Caledon’s Walk of Fame.

The weather was perfect for the annual Caledon Day festivities at Town Hall.

Local observers were probably not surprised that Sylvia Jones got to keep her job as Dufferin-Caledon MPP after the June 12 provincial election.

The community had waited some time, but the Rotary Club of Bolton Peace Park was officially opened at Dick’s Dam Park.

Mayfield Secondary School student Rose Ramsarran earned the right to represent Canada at the World Taekwondo competition in Mexico.

She competes at the National level in Taekwondo Poomsae, which is the patterns component of this sport.

Rose, who’s been doing Taekwondo since November 2009, trains at Mudo Academy in Brampton.

Peel Region’s municipal water is fluoridated, and moves were stepping up to have that stopped.

Regional lawyers were going to be reporting on whether the program needed more discussion.

This came after a presentation delivered by lawyer Nader Hasan, representing Concerned Residents of Peel.

The month ended on a sad note as former Caledon councillor Bob Cannon died.

The former area councillor for Ward 3 (Caledon East) was 78.

Mr. Cannon was first elected to Town council in 1978 and stayed there for 10 years, deciding not to run in 1988. At the time of his death, he was member of the Adjustment and Land Division Committees.

Emil Kolb spent many years working on a bypass for Bolton, and that was being commemorated.

Peel Regional council voted to name the northwest portion of the new Bolton Arterial Road (BAR) Emil Kolb Parkway. The section of road runs from King Street to Regional Road 50.

Caledon Councillor Allan Thompson, who chairs the public works committee of Regional council, presided over the vote.

“I think it’s very fitting for a person who has been championing this for as long as I can remember,” Thompson commented, as he asked for (and received) a unanimous vote.

Caledon OPP welcomed four new members to the ranks of their auxiliary unit.

Another school year ended with the local Secondary schools announcing the top scholars of the Class of ‘14.

Michelle Shi was tops at Mayfield Secondary School with a 97.8 per cent average; Rose Ferrao led the way at Robert F. Hall Catholic Secondary School with a 95.33 in her top six courses; Angela Stewart earned a final average of 98.3 per cent at St. Michael Catholic Secondary School; and Mackenzie Claggett headed his class at Humberview Secondary School with a 98.83 per cent average, and that included three perfect scores — in law, philosophy and world issues.

Tav’s Real Estate Corner The New Generation of Real Estate

This week’s theme: “STIGMATIZED” PROPERTIES

“Stigmatized” Properties

Although a potential buyer may be content with the physical condition and location of a residential property, they may avoid purchasing it due to concerns regarding an event or circumstance which occurred in the home, on the property, or in close proximity.

Examples include a property next door to a residence occupied by a convicted sex offender, or known criminal. The property could be known to be haunted. Other examples include a murder or suicide in the home, or used as part of an illegal operation such as a brothel or grow op.

In Caledon, we may be more familiar with properties being stigmatized due to close proximity to gravel pits, or industrial areas which may have uses that could negatively impact the value of surrounding homes. If your home is beside a park it will have a better resale value than if it were beside a factory. Grow ops are also prevalent and require remedial restoration which can be costly to the buyer.

Even though the “stigmatizing event” may not directly affect the appearance or use of the property, it can still have a negative psychological effect on the potential buyer to an extent where they no longer decide to purchase the property. The property becomes known as a “stigmatized property” or a “psychologically impacted property”, potentially making it much more difficult to sell and ultimately adversely affecting its market value.

The significance of the stigmatizing event will vary with a buyer’s values, perceptions, beliefs, age, religion, ethnic background, gender and other concerns personal to that buyer. Some events are so heinous that everyone will know through the media and be so horrified that they would never dream of buying the affected home. In other cases, such as a reputed haunted house, you may find some people may really be shaking in their boots while others may see reported ghost sightings as part of the property’s distinct charm, simply shrug their shoulders and hope the notoriety increases the home’s value. As it can be so subjective, it is impossible to determine all the possible events or circumstances that can cause a property to be stigmatized. This makes it very hard to set rules on what possible stigma should be disclosed. One can also ask why should a seller disclose possible stigmatizing events and risk devaluing their main asset when it may not have any effect whatsoever on the buyer’s decision to purchase or not.

Working with a reputable real estate agent who is familiar with the area and does significant research into the history of the property is imperative when buying or selling your home. Choosing a trustworthy, award winning agent with a proven track record should ensure great results!

MEMORIAM

YOKOM, James
In loving memory of a wonderful husband and father and a very special Grandpa and Great-Grandpa (Papa), who passed away January 8, 2014.

You are the roots of the family tree
And in our hearts you will always be
You had the biggest heart of gold
That has left us memories to treasure and hold.
You lived your life for each one of us
Never complained or made a fuss
You always made us laugh with what you'd say and do
Not a day goes by we don't think of you
We know you're with us everyday
'Cause watching over us was just your way
We truly miss that smile on your face
And we'll always hold you close in a special place.
Seeing your big chair empty makes us sad and blue
