JUICE AT FARMERS MARKET

Sunday saw the Inglewood Spring Festival at Inglewood Park, representing the first event of the year for the Inglewood Farmers Market. The Market itself will be opening June 10, and will be running Wednesdays from 3 to 7 p.m. until Oct. 7. Susan Graham, from Riverdale Farm, is one of the organizers this year. Her booth featured this blender for making juice, powered by this exercise bike. She watched as Councillor Doug Beffort gave it a try.

Town nixes facilitation over land uses

By Bill Rea

The Town is not going along with facilitation to deal with land use issues in Bolton.

Caledon councillors reached that conclusion Tuesday night, before a standing-room-only crowd after haring from several delegations representing both sides of the issue.

They voted unanimously in favour of a lengthy motion put forth by Councillor Jennifer Innis, stating that the Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing be advised that the Town would not take part in facilitation for a number of reason. They included concerns that the Provincial facilitation process is not "open, transparent and public." The motion also cited statements from the Minister that two Regional Official Plan amendments (ROPA) are available for facilitation. One, also known as ROPA 29, deals with the Mayfield West Phase

2 Employment Expansion Area.

An appeal to that had been launched by Solmar Development Corp.

But Solmar has since reached a settlement with the Mayfield West Phase 2 Landowners Group, so the appeal has been withdrawn. The other issue is known as ROPA 28, dealing with the Bolton Employment Expansion Area. One of the reasons cited in the motion for not going on with facilitation is Solmar has indicated support for ROPA 28, so facilitation is not needed.

Chris Barnett of DLA Piper, external counsel for the Town on this matter, explained the office of the Provincial Land and Development Facilitator helps the Province, municipalities, developers and other interested groups resolve issues impartially. The criteria for using facilitation includes if the matter is the result of implementing provisions in Provincial legislation.

Barnett stressed the facilitator has no statutory authority and can make no final decisions. Since ROPA 28 has been appealed, only the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) can make binding decisions. As well, he said the process is voluntary and no party can be forced to take part. "You can't be made to be at the table," he told councillors.

Volunteering and job search to be discussed today

Are you looking for ways to update your skills while helping your community?

Jobs Caledon at Caledon Community Services (CCS) at the Royal Courtyards in Bolton will be hosting a guest speaker seminar on Volunteering and Your Job Search.

It will be today (Thursday) from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Shelly Sargent, from the Caledon Parent-Child Centre (CPCC), will discuss how volunteering benefits a job search, including topics such as building a positive morale, developing job skills and creating community connections.

Sargent has been managing volunteers for more than 20 years in the non-profit and media sectors, and most currently as manager of community relations and volunteers at CPCC, a non-profit community service organization that provides quality programs for children, parents and caregivers in Caledon and the surrounding areas. Services include child development opportunities, early identification of developmental concerns, referrals to specialized services and supports, and parenting education.

“Job hunting is a ‘job’ on its own and it is easy to get disheartened and frustrated,” Sargent said. “Attending a workshop like Volunteering and Your Job Search will offer insights on ways to make new connections and learn new skills while doing some real good for your community.”

Differing opinions voiced on how open facilitation is

He also said there are no rules when it comes to facilitation. The Town had expressed concerns the process is not open to the public. Historically, he said, that's been the case. But the rules are not fixed, so the possibility of an open process is there.

Barnett pointed out that Peel Regional council last month passed a resolution favouring facilitation, subject to conditions, including that the Town decide to participate. There was also a provision that facilitation not deal with matters that have not yet been dealt with by Regional council, including any boundary expansion for residential development in Bolton.

Bolton resident Skid Crease was representing Our Caledon Our Choice, calling it a broad-based citizens' group that was reformed this year. The group, he said, wants an open and democratic process, adding that the Bolton Residential Expansion Study (BRES) should not be part of facilitation.

Crease also stated that the Town has followed the appropriate process in these matters. He agreed not everyone will be happy, but added those who aren't can take the matter to OMB.

But Kim Seipt, treasurer of Your Voice for Bolton, said the group has valid concerns and favours facilitation.

"We believe Bolton is not being planned properly," she remarked, adding they don't support delinking the residential and employment growth components of the planning because they fear that will make the development of things like warehouses easier.

Michael Melling, of the legal firm of Davies Howe Partners, representing Solmar, countered arguments that facilitation is a closed process.

He said in the late 1980s, litigation was the only way to settle planning disputes, and the only people who benefitted from that were lawyers. He said the Province told OMB at the time to start mediating and facilitating cases, and that's been very successful in dealing with disputes.

Melling agreed ROPA 28 is very important to the Town, but he stressed it's of Provincial interest too, as it's impacted by the GTA West Corridor. It's also of Regional interest as it's part of Peel's land use structure.

He also stressed that facilitation is voluntary, and participants can leave any time. The process is without prejudice, meaning anything one party says in facilitation can't be used against them at OMB.

"It is delusional to believe that litigation is an open process," Melling observed. "Litigation is an inherently secret process."

Former councillor Ian Sinclair commented that Peel's planning culture is unique in Ontario, as it's always been from the bottom up. He added the three municipalities in Peel had their Official Plans in place before the Region approved its in 1996, and there were never any plans for the Region to take the lead role in planning.

Sinclair maintained his belief that facilitation would be a secret process, in which development interests would be seeking immediate rights to proceed. He also recalled last fall's municipal elections (Sinclair ran for Mayor), in which most candidates came out in favour of open and transparent decision making. As well, he argued facilitation would cause the Town to lose control of the process, and be insulting to the professionalism of municipal staff.

Councillor Annette Groves said she supported ROPA 28 in 2007, reflecting on the amount of study that had gone into it.

"We felt that those lands were a good fit," she remarked.

She added the massive Canadian Tire development at the northwest corner of Cole-raine and Healey came later and the Ministerial Zoning Order (MZO) that advanced that was not part of an open process.

A letter from current Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Ted McMeekin stated MZO won't be subject to facilitation, and neither will BRES. The appeal of ROPA 29 has been withdrawn, so Groves was wondering what there was left to facilitate.

Councillor Rob Mezzapelli agreed there's not much left for facilitation.

He also pointed out ROPA 28 was approved years ago, with no objections until now.

"To me, we've gone through the exercise," he remarked.

Mezzapelli also observed the Town has a good track record of defending its positions at OMB, which means the planning process is a good one.

OPP reports boating fatalities in Ontario have reach 10-year low

Boating incidents investigated by OPP have revealed a 10-year low in fatalities, but not wearing a personal floatation device (PFD) or lifejacket continues to be a contributing factor in the overwhelming majority of the deaths each year. OPP partnered with the Canadian Safe Boating Council and other marine safety partners to take part in Safe Boating Week earlier this month. Heading into the campaign, police were sharing facts about boating fatalities in Ontario and asking boaters to do their part to stay safe this boating season.

Last year (2014), 20 people died in boating incidents (on OPP-patrolled waterways) which is the lowest number of marine fatalities they has seen in the last 10 years.

While police are pleased to see this general downward trend, it is issuing an important reminder that wearing a lifejacket or PFD significantly increases survivability, should a mishap occur. Not wearing this equipment continues to be a contributing factor in the overwhelming majority of boating fatalities from year to year, on OPP-patrolled waterways.

Over the last five years, there were 20 boating deaths in 2014, and 17 of them attributed to not wearing a PFD or life-jacket; there were 23 fatalities in 2013, and 20 of them involved not wearing a PFD or lifejacket; 22 deaths in 2012, with 18 of them involving not using a PFD; 22 deaths in 2011 and in 19 of tyhose incidents the victims were not using a PFD; and 28 fatalities in 2010, with 22 of the not using a PFD.

While the warmer weather is here, the water is still chilly. Police are reminding boaters that most lakes and rivers, especially those in Northern Ontario, are still very cold and the threat of cold water immersion makes this a particularly important time to be prepared and wear that PFD or lifejacket.

There are four phases of cold water immersion (hypothermia is one of them) and each of the four phases pose unique physiological challenges for one when they find themselves in cold water as a result of a boating incident.

When a person first enters very cold water, they experience an automatic gasp reflex and if their head is under-water, water may be breathed into the lungs. This is one way drowning occurs. Wearing a PFD or lifejacket keeps one's head above water during this critical moment and can save their life.

Motorized boats are not the only culprits in boating deaths.

Last year (2014), five paddling crafts (four canoes and one kayak) were involved in boating fatality incidents investigated by OPP. While they are increasing in popularity and are a great way to experience the waterways, people shouldn't leave their safety on shore — a paddle PFD is your best accessory!

Boat passengers and the public play a role in keeping it a safe and enjoyable boating season

If you are a passenger being invited for a boat ride, take responsibility for your own safety and insist on wearing a PFD or lifejacket. If the driver of the boat does not have one on board for you, do not go out.

If you suspect that a boater is operating their vessel while impaired, call 9-1-1 to make a report. By taking charge of your own safety and taking action against boaters who place you and others in a potentially dangerous situation, you could be averting a tragedy on the water.

OPP is counting on everyone being on board with making it a safe boating season in Ontario.

Warning from RCMP

Residents beware of telephone scam

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) in Ontario is issuing a public notice with respect to fraudulent telephone calls.

Several residents in Ontario have reported receiving a telephone call from a person who claimed that they were from the RCMP Integrated Technological Crime Unit (ITCU). The calls varied in nature; in one case the caller stated that the ITCU had found that the resident was sending malicious content through their computer. In another case, the caller claimed that international criminals had accessed their computer and were using it for criminal activity.

These types of telephone scams are designed to create such shock and anxiety that victims respond by sending money quickly in order to fix the problem or protect themselves from unwanted access.

Be aware: RCMP does not contact individuals for the purpose of collecting fines or taxes and never asks the general public to allow RCMP access to their computers.

If you have received similar telephones calls or know of someone who has, contact your local police and the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre at 1-888-495-8501.

Kids are back in school

By Bill Rea

After three weeks off, secondary students in the Peel District School Board are back in class.

Classes resumed yesterday (Wednesday) morning after the Ontario Labour Relations Board (OLRB) ruled that the previous day that local secondary teachers' strikes, directed by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF), in Peel, Durham and Rainbow district were in contravention of the School Boards Collective Bargaining Act, 2014.

"We're pleased that the OLRB's ruling supports what we've believed all along, that provincial OSSTF began an unlawful strike in Peel to put pressure on provincial negotiations," Board Chair Janet McDougald commented in a statement issued by the board. "But we're even more pleased that the ruling returns our 42,000 secondary students to their classrooms, where we know they will be supported in their learning. We're confident that our dedicated Peel teachers will return to their classrooms and deliver the quality education they always have. Our students deserve nothing less."

"Every day, we work hard to build confidence in public education, to build trust with our students, families and community members," she added. "The conflict and confusion created by the new two-tiered provincial bargaining structure has undermined this work. As a board, we'll continue to bargain local matters with all our unions and federations, and hope that central table negotiations progress and move all school boards across Ontario closer to achieving fair, local agreements."

This was not good news for the teachers, according to Mike Bettiol, president of District 19 (Peel) of OSSTF, as he reflected that the Province has been working on legislation to get the teachers back to work.

"What this basically does is take away our right to collective bargain," he commented, adding the government is not giving teachers the right to negotiate their contract.

"We went on strike for local reasons," Bettiol said, adding he's not sure the OLRB decision was based on anything that went on in Peel.

The Teachers are not pleased with the developments.

"They're obviously upset by this, because there is no closure for them," he remarked.

Bettiol added he was at one school site yesterday morning, and was told the teachers all walked in together.

"There is still solidarity left in them."

Seneca King Campus: Summer Fun for the Community

By Tuktuk Islam

Located within the forests, wetlands and rolling hills of the Oak Ridges Moraine, Seneca's King Campus is the ideal setting for a family summer adventure. From hiking trails to outdoor activities, the campus offers something for the whole family.

King Campus' hiking and snowshoeing trails are a hidden gem of the city where eager trailblazers can experience both scenic wilderness and urban flair. Picnic areas are also available, so families can easily plan an entire day of hiking, walking, running and bird watching.

With summer just around the corner, child care and day camps also provide energetic kids with fun and educational activities to keep them busy.

The King Observation Laboratory Teaching School (KOLTS), King Campus' child care facility employs qualified Early Childhood Educators to provide children with a high quality of care. KOLTS is open to children from eight months to 12 years old, offering full-day, half-day, full-week or part-week programs.

"The Seneca King Campus' rural location provides the ideal setting for putting children on the path to becoming stewards of the land," says Pam Leavere, KOLTS manager.

Parents can also register their children for the Seneca King Day Camp which runs for eight weeks, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., with programs for children aged three and a half to 16. For example, the "Field Mice Program" teaches four-year-olds to use their five senses to experience the outdoors, while the "Challenger Discovery Program" teaches older campers essential wilderness survival skills. Half-day options are also available, including pottery, aerial adventures, mountain biking, canoeing, kayaking, sailing and much more.

"We provide a day camp program in a residential camp setting, celebrating the outdoors and the diversity of our unique location," says Kelly Mathews, manager of King Day Camp and the Seneca Outdoor Education Centre. "We have been proudly serving the local community for 23 years."

The Seneca King Campus also hosts the Annual King Day Camp Summer Family Fun Day on Saturday, July 25 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. This day will give families a chance to experience everything that Seneca's King Campus has to offer, including boating, climbing and canoeing. As part of an ongoing commitment to community engagement, on Saturday, August 15, Seneca will again sponsor and host the annual Toromont CAT Dragon Boat Festival on Lake Seneca in support of United Way Toronto and York Region.

Employees from Mars Food visited the farm to celebrate their five-year partnership with Downey's farm and donate their new organic Seeds of Change to the farm.

More than 30 workers from the Mars Corporation brought their skills to engage in jobs, like building deer fences, raking the planting grounds and planting their organic seeds.

The seeds are expected to be harvested in early fall to be given to Caledon Community Services.

Albion Hills Farm was recently certified in growing organic and this will be a big step in that direction for their farm with Mars donations and help.

Many individuals attended the event including Caledon Councillor Rob Mezzapilli, event coordinator Saira Absar and Director of People and Sales Lisa Taillefer, who volunteered their time.

Taillefer said her company believes that starting with rice is the route to healthiness. They help sponsor community groups and organizations through Mars Grants.

“We are excited to create a partnership with Albion Hills and are looking forward to helping this community farm grow,” said Mars Food Canada General Manager Shawn MacLeod. “We are proud to call ourselves a Thriving Foodie Community and efforts like this where we can use our brands as catalysts of change to make a difference in our community is at the root of Mutuality, which is one of our company’s Five Principles.”

"It is very helpful to have a great partner like Mars in the community and we're very happy to bring this initiative to life," said Shannon Lee, farm manager at Albion Hills. "Through both our farm team's work and the work of the Mars Associates, we are thrilled to be able to once again this year provide farm fresh local food and gardens to the Bolton/Caledon area. This not only positively impacts us at Albion, but helps to provide produce for the Exchange and Caledon Community Services."

Environmental Assessment Study

Notice of Completion

Alton/Caledon Village Additional Water Supply

The Study

To ensure the Region of Peel can provide municipal servicing to the population increase being proposed for Alton by the Town of Caledon, a reliable water servicing solution needed to be identified prior to the approval of this growth. This study examined a range of alternative solutions for providing a sustainable water supply for the village of Alton and Caledon Village through 2031.

The Process

The Class EA Study objective was to assess several alternatives and identify a solution to provide additional water supply capacity in Alton/Caledon Village. The Class EA process included public and review agency consultation, evaluation of alternatives, assessment of the impacts of any proposed activities, and an identification of reasonable measures to reduce any adverse impacts.

Preferred Alternative

The Region completed hydrogeological assessments at three (3) of the six (6) alternative site locations. Following the completion of the test well testing, it was determined that none of the alternatives provides satisfactory results for this project. As such, the "Do Nothing" (i.e. maintain existing system and conservation methods) has been identified as the preferred solution for this project.

30-Day Review Period

The Project File is available for review at the following location:

What is a Community Improvement Plan (CIP)?

A CIP encourages revitalization, investment, improvement and promotes economic development. Using a CIP, the Town may provide financial incentives in the form of grants or loans to property owners who wish to improve or develop their property. The Plan may also establish a framework for Town-led initiatives such as infrastructure improvements, streetscape improvements and other revitalization initiatives. The study focuses on revitalizing the villages and improving the quality of life for residents.

Who should attend?

All interested persons or parties are strongly encouraged to attend one or both of these Open Houses / Workshops, including residents, business owners and other stakeholders in Alton, Caledon Village, Cheltenham, Inglewood, Mono Mills and Palgrave. There will be opportunities to discuss your ideas and provide input to Town staff and the consultants, to review background information and to provide written comments.

What is being discussed at the Open Houses?

The purpose of the meetings is to present the draft CIP, including proposed financial incentive programs and other initiatives to promote the revitalization of the Six Villages. These meetings represent the second round of public consultation on this project. Public meetings were previously held on March 2 and March 30, 2015 to introduce the project and present the Discussion Paper. Since completing these initial meetings in March, the Draft Community Improvement Plan has been prepared. It will be presented at the June 8 and June 24 Open Houses.

The Background and Assessments Discussion Paper, along with materials from previous meetings can be viewed on the Town's website.

Property Tax Information for Newly Constructed Homes

The following is important information for residents that recently moved into a newly constructed home:

Property Tax Due Dates are the first Thursday of March, May, July and September. For 2015, the next due date is July 2.

Tax Assessment Information for Newly Built Homes

- If the Municipal Property Assessment Corporation (MPAC) has not yet assessed your house, the Town may have calculated and billed your property taxes based on the value of the land only.
- It may take up to 3 years after occupancy before your property assessment reflects both the land and the house.
- The Town issues supplementary tax bills when MPAC has reassessed a property because of additions or improvements that increase its market value or when MPAC has assessed a new home or building.
- For newly constructed homes that are currently assessed at land only, once the full assessment information becomes available, the Town will send a supplementary tax bill.
- The supplementary tax bill can date back three years and will be for taxes payable less any taxes already billed based on the land value.

Pre-Authorized Payment Plan (PAP)

- Your PAP application will be included with your final tax bill. The PAP application form is also available on the Town's website at: www.caledon.ca/tax
- Pre-authorized payment withdrawals are made on the first of the month, January through October OR on tax installment due dates, based on the PAP plan selected.

Semi-detached and Townhomes

When a large piece of land, such as the land upon which semi-detached and townhomes are built, is divided into a series of smaller parcels of land, it is often necessary to "apportion" taxes from the original land block to the new individual parcels. MPAC assigns each of the new parcels an individual roll number and an assessment value for the land. When the Town receives this apportionment information from MPAC, an adjustment to the taxes is created and bills are issued.

Want an estimate of your taxes? Check out the property tax calculator at www.caledon.ca/tax to obtain an estimate of your annual taxes.

For more information, please contact the Tax Office at 905.584.2272 x.7750

Resident creates life-size TARDIS on his property

By Mark Pavilons

We all like to get away from it all at times.

For one resident, all he has to do is walk across his front lawn and be sent clear across the galaxy. Or at least that's the idea.

Alan Hart, who lives on Mount Wolfe Road on the Caledon-King border, created a full-scale replica of the TARDIS, an iconic piece of hardware from the long-running British science fiction show Doctor Who. The TARDIS (Time and Relative Dimension in Space) is as recognizable as the starship Enterprise, but less cumbersome.

It's intricate to the Dr. Who saga, a machine that allows the characters to travel through time and space, wreaking havoc, creating mayhem and averting disaster in nearby galaxies and dimensions.

In the series, the Doctor pilots an apparently unreliable, obsolete Type 40, Mark TARDIS. Its chameleon circuit is broken, leaving it stuck in the shape of a 1960s-style London police box after a visit to London in 1963.

Hart's creation stands roughly nine feet tall, with 52 square inches of floor space. It's been quite the conversation piece and traffic stopper, since it's been perched on his front lawn for the past year or so. He wanted to build it to pay homage to the show's 50th anniversary, which was celebrated in 2013.

While decorative, the TARDIS can be used by Hart's children as a shelter waiting for the school bus.

any science fiction drama.

Hart is an idea man and has plenty racing around his mind at any given time. He loves entertainment and would love to break into the industry via movies, TV and commercials. He has rough drafts for all of these. He did produce a two-minute car commercial that's been seen on YouTube.

He came up with an idea for an innovative beer commercial. Since he likes to go "big," he approached Irish stars like Liam Neeson, Brendan Gleeson and Colm Meaney to lend a hand to his project. He approached others like Howard Stern, even producer Steven Spielberg. He's also wanting to get into acting, but has more of a desire to be behind the camera. He's still hopeful that he will one day present his ideas, including a TV show and game show, to receptive producers.

While he's hit some brick walls, Hart is tenacious.

His personal to-do list continues to grow. He's been busy around his Caledon home, honing his skills making furniture, guitars, garden sheds and some miniature versions of the TARDIS.

As the local TARDIS pays tribute to a TV show, it's a testament to one man's talents and passion.

Hart is more than happy to discuss his projects. If you'd like to find out more, contact him at ahart67@gmail.com

It's a simple shape, yet Hart painstakingly recreated the design, trim and window style. If you're a fan of the show, its appeal is obvious. As you approach it, you almost expect opening the door to see the inner workings of a massive time machine.

As production progressed, the TARDIS got heavier and heavier. It weighs in the neighbourhood of 650 pounds.

Hart's love for the show got a boost when actor Tom Baker, arguably one of the most famous Doctors, stopped by his elementary school in Belfast in the mid-1970s. Fast-forward to 2013 and Hart contacted Baker's agent to see if it was possible for Tom to visit Bolton for 50th anniversary.

He's been catching up on past seasons of Doctor Who, and has a great fondness for all the newer Doctors.

In its early years, Doctor Who was produced on a limited budget and would seem quite funny by today's standards. It has evolved into a very sleek, well written show that rivals

The Art of Politics to be discussed at Mill

Ever wondered what goes on behind the scenes when politicians get together?

How the laws that govern our democracy are created and established? What it means to live the life of a politician or political activist?

You can find out at Culture Café's The Art of Politics: Up Close and Personal, May 29, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Alton Mill Arts Centre.

Culture Café host Harry Posner is thrilled to offer something rarely seen in politics.

"We only ever get to see these people in their 'political costumes'," he said.

"We almost never get to see them as human beings, just like us, who struggle with the complexities and challenges inherent to the culture of politics. I'm inviting politicians to step out of their normal skins, to share their stories and insights into the political 'game'."

Featured at the event will be politicians from all levels of government. Sharing the stage will be former Liberal MP Murray Calder, current MPP Sylvia Jones, Mayor of Mono Laura Ryan, Councillor Barb Shaughnessy and political activist Liz Armstrong.

Following the talks there will be a panel discussion with questions from the audience, moderated by Andrew Welch, author of The Value Crisis.

"Politics is a culture, just like any other," Posner said, "and is deserving of celebration and exploration. This will be an evening devoid of the typical polarized debates we are used to. It's really about engaging the human being behind the political animal."

Tickets at the door, $5 by donation.

Feds and Province help fund Torch Relay in Caledon

Tourism, Culture and Sport Minister Michael Coteau was at the Caledon Pan Am Equestrian Park in Palgrave last Thursday to announce a $7,500 Provincial grant for the upcoming Pan Am Torch festivities in Town. Those on hand for the announcement included Councillors Gord McClure, Rob Mezzapelli and Barb Shaughnessy, Caledon's Director of Parks and Recreation Laura Johnston, Mayor Allan Thompson, Coteau, Councillors Johanna Downey and Jennifer Innis, Equestrian Management Group Managing Partner Craig Collins, Councillors Nick deBoer and Doug Beffort, Hills of Headwaters Tourism Association Chair Stacey Coupland and Mike Fenning, associate director of property and risk management for Toronto and Region Conservation Authority.

As if there's not a lot already on the schedule in Caledon June 13, the Pan Am Torch is slated to pass through town. It promises to be quite a festival, and both the Provincial and federal governments have stepped up with funding to help deal with the expenses.

Tourism, Culture and Sport Minister Michael Coteau was at the Caledon Pan Am Equestrian Park last Thursday to announce the Town will be getting $7,500 through Ontario's Torch Relay Community Grant.

About an hour later, Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson was at Town Hall in Caledon East, announcing the federal government is contributing another $15,000 through its Community Celebrations Fund.

Caledon's Director of Parks and Recreation Laura Johnston observed at that point there were just seven Mondays to go until the Games are here.

"Pan Am excitement is definitely building," she declared.

"Caledon is ready and excited for the Games," Mayor Allan Thompson commented, addressing the group at the Equestrian Park, adding the Torch Relay will ignite more than the flame for the Games.

Thompson stressed the importance of partnerships, involving the numerous volunteers who have signed on for the event, that have joined public agencies like the government, Toronto and Region Conservation Authority (TRCA) and Headwaters Tourism Association, and private interests like Equine Management Group.

"Partnerships are things that move things forward," he said.

"I want to thank the government for investing in Caledon," Thompson added. "We have built a winner, on time and under budget."

"The Town of Caledon is excited and ready to bring together our communities, residents and visitors to celebrate the Torch Relay and Caledon Day on June 30," he said. "The success of the 2015 Games is dependent on strong partnerships and I want to thank Minister Coteau and our Provincial partners for their part in ensuring our entire community benefits from the Games."

"It's a world-class facility," Coteau observed, commenting the upgrades and improvements have made it even better.

He stressed that part of the journey to the Games will be the Torch Relay, which will see some 3,000 bearers running through their communities, as well as another 250 who will carry the Torch for the Parapan Am Games in August. Communities hosting the Relay will be planning celebrations of their own, and the Torch Relay Community Grant is aimed at helping to make them happen.

A ceremony at Town Hall last Thursday recognized the local residents who will be carrying the Pan Am Games Torch June 13. They are Heather Whittier of Caledon East, Ken Bokor of SouthFields Village, Jeremy Grant of Alton, Meghan Zarembo of Bolton, Alyssa Hoar of Bolton, Charlie Fogerty of the Palgrave area and Ethan Mumford of Bolton.

Caledon won

There was an overflow crowd in the Caledon Council Chambers Tuesday night as Town councillors decided to tel the province they were not interested in taking part in facilitation when it comes to dealing with land use issues in and around Bolton.

There were a number of concerns expressed, the main one being that the process would not be public. A number of holes were knocked in that argument.

But what is really important, and the position council stood up for, is who decides planning issues in Caledon.

The point was made many times Tuesday night that the planning process in Peel starts at the municipal level, and works its way up. We are not aware of any documented case in which Caledon council-lors have tried to interfere with planning matters in either Brampton or Mississauga. Yet there have been calls from the Regional council table for facilitation, and the mayors of the two cities to the south have been prominent in that effort. Last month's motion in which the Region decided to take part in facilitation was moved by Brampton Mayor Linda Jeffrey and seconded by Mississauga Mayor Bonnie Crombie.

While Caledon might be small, we are not aware of anything wrong with the planning process that is practised here. And if there are any problems, they can be addressed internally.

There is no precedent for the Region trying to manage the planning in any of the three municipalities, and no pressing need for it now.

Besides, several councillors expressed puzzlement on what there is to facilitate. We wait to hear.

Citizen democracy

An historic Town council meeting took place Tuesday night.

While I am writing this letter as a private citizen, I had the privilege Tuesday of presenting a delegation from the citizens' group, Our Caledon Our Choice. When OCOC was first formed in 2008, its mission was to provide substantiated and well-re-searched information to the citizens of Caledon so that we could make intelligent choices on issues facing our Town.

I was quite dismayed that another group, created to lobby against the Canadian Tire development site, was claiming to be the voice for Bolton. It was certainly not my voice, or that of many others in my community. So two weeks ago, I asked for Our Caledon Our Choice to reactivate. The purpose was to provide support for the excruciatingly detailed public planning process that the Town goes through in approving development projects. We wanted to ensure that the process remained in the public domain, and to reject the proposal from Peel Region that our Town enter into Provincial facilitation.

Tuesday night, after receiving 12 delegations from citizens, citizen groups and developers, Town council voted unanimously in a recorded vote to reject the need for a Provincial facilitator, and to keep Caledon's planning process in the public domain. But what was most celebratory about the evening was the May- or and councillors' heartfelt thanks for the participation of citi- zens supporting their dedicated work on our behalf.

Thank you, Town of Caledon. We love living here. Let's keep getting better.

Hurt'n Old Guys
starting up again

Another year has come and gone and bike night is just around the corner.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who has supported and sponsored us to make our bike night a suc- cessful event every summer for the last 10 years.

Special thanks to Around the Howse Construction, St.Lou- is Bar and Grill, Marc Angelo Foods, Dr. Dave Bettio and Dr. Jo-Anna Malchuk, Highway 50 Auto Collision, Bargain Tire, Basse Machine and Tool, Beinhart Trailors, Southwood Graph- ics, Hilton Disposal and Demolition, Hugger Covers, Saunacore, R. Gabriele, Sierra Spray Painting and Guerra Auto Centers.

I also would like to thank the members of the Hurt'n Old Guys for their hard work and dedication in making sure everything goes smoothly each Wednesday night. Whether we have 50 or 200 bikes this event could not happen without them.

A special thank you to Lee from St. Louis Bar and Grill for hosting bike night at every Wednesday night and to the staff for their excellent service.

The community support along with our sponsors has helped raise funds for Caledon Community Services. Your help has sent kids to camp, given them school supplies, food, Christmas presents and more. Together, we have been able to give back to our community, something that means a great deal to all the guys and their families.

The Hurt'n Old Guys are celebrating 15 years of being togeth- er as a riding club, so please come out Wednesday nights, and help make our 15th year the best summer ever.

It happened today

Yvonne Édouilda Marie Dionne, was born into poverty, and her up- bring was managed by the Provincial government of the day.

She was brought up in the public domain, attracting the attention of an enchanted, Depression-stressed world. Her formative years were filled with exploitation.

The only thing really remarkable about her was her birth, because she was one of five quintuplets born to Oliva and Elzire Dionne in Corbeil, Ontario, near North Bay. Her sisters were Annette, Emilie, Cecile and Marie, and their survival was regarded as a miracle at the time.

Only Annette and Cecile are still alive.

The famed Dionne Quintuplets were born this day, May 28, 1934.

Do you ever get the feeling that you're in the wrong business?

I have always really enjoyed what I do, even if I have always known it was never going to make me rich. I rely on the On- tario Lottery and Gaming Corporation to do that for me. Hope still springs eternal.

I'm so content with my lot in life that I don't get too put out that a lot of people make more money than me. The size of the annual Sunshine List sometimes leaves me shaking my head, but is also a fact that the day this world starts making sense, there will be no further need for newspapers, and I'll be without an income.

With that in mind, I do start to wonder about some salaries that go through the proverbial roof.

I think of what profes- sional athletes make. The really, really good ones, of course, make real bundles, on the order of umpteen millions every year. Even the mediocre journeymen make sums that I'm not likely to see in my bank account any time soon, at least not until OLG gets its act together. I actually feel a bit for these players. From my un- derstanding, these pros devote their lives to learning their craft trying to get to the big leagues, and they are paid handsomely if (big if) and when they get there. On the way up, do they learn the basics of money management? If badly managed, a cou- ple of million dollars can disappear pret- ty quickly. I think we've all heard horror stories of athletes who were on top of their game who ended up in terrible financial straights, if not on the street or worse.

And now we hear about the new coach of the Toronto Maples Leafs, Mike Babcock, and the $50 million he's going to be realiz- ing over the next eight years (that's $6.25 million per annum, for the benefit of those of you who don't have a calculator handy).

That sounds like big news. It was a ma- jor talking point in these parts last week. The subject was hashed about some in the Citizen office. The Toronto Sun devoted some 15 pages to the story, so it must be big news.

I guess I sound a little jealous, but I don't think I am. I could have eaten my Wheaties as a kid, and devoted the time to honing my hockey skills that I wasted reading comic books and watching TV, and maybe have put myself in line for such a deal. Yeah right. Reality tells me that would never have happened.

So good for Babcock. You certainly can't fault the guy for going for such a paycheque when it's offered to him, and there's a certain eloquence in being the best paid coach in league history.

But the hoopla about this signing makes me wonder.

He's being called the best coach in the game by some, and it is true he has a Stanley Cup championship to his credit (with Detroit Red Wings in 2008). In fact, he's got exactly the same number as Ran- dy Carlyle (remember him?), although Babcock's is a bit more recent, and he's also got a world championship to his cred- it, as well as Olympic gold.

There are people who are saying this is just what the mighty Leafs need in order to return to prominence. I think there are some fans out there who would settle for respectability. Others would be willing to go along with making the playoffs, at least occasionally.

The problem with these bold prognosti- cations is we've heard them many times before. Did not people think bringing a proven winner like Carlyle in the camp was just the thing that was needed?

We've been hearing that things were about to turn the corner for years.

Those of you like me, who are old enough to remember, should think back to the late 1970s and early '80s.

The Leafs made it to the playoffs in 1978 without too much trouble, and got by the first round to face the heavily-fa- voured Islanders. The series went seven games, with the Buds taking the series in overtime, putting them in the final four.

They faced Montreal in the next round, and the miracles ended then and there, as the Habs prevailed in four straight.

I remember lots of talk at the time of the Leafs hav- ing finally turned the cor- ner, and how things could only get better from there.

That was not to be the case. Those of you who were around in those days might recall the Leafs sort of stalled the following sea- son, compiling an accept- able, but disappointing re- cord. Things got so bad that Harold Ballard fired coach Roger Neilson, then hired him back a couple of days later. Things didn't improve much over the rest of the season.

But hope was back the following year, after Neilson was gone, because Punch Imlach was brought back as general man- ager. I remember lots of predictions that this was just what was needed to push the Leafs ahead to prominence. Imlach applied his methods, which were some years out of date, and the team went back to the sewer.

So much for the success that he was supposed to bring.

So forgive me if I seem a little cynical when it comes to all these high hopes be- ing expressed for Babcock. You see, like so many of you, I've heard such things before, and they don't seem to amount to much.

But it is also true that good things do happen sometimes, which means I'm will- ing to wait to see events unfold.

I won't be expecting miracles, and that seems in step with the warnings that Babcock himself has been issuing. I guess that means we're not going to see big cel- ebrations for at least a couple of years. That should make sense to the realists out there. Add to it all that he's been signed to an eight-year contract. That tells me Leaf management agrees this is going to take a while, and are prepared to wait for the results to develop.

But there is another reality, that says Babcock had better deliver at some point, with some sign of progress being shown pretty soon.

Missing the playoffs again next year might be forgivable — Leaf fans are kind of used to that, I think. But they'll want to see improvement before too long.

Besides, if management is laying out $50 million, they are going to expect some re- turn on their investment, and rightly so.

In addition to the money, the manage- ment folks behind this deal have a lot on the line. If the Leafs win all the marbles in the next eight years, they will be en- titled to take a lot of bows for accomplishing something that hadn't been done in half a century. And if Babcock doesn't deliver, they are going to look like dopes, not to mention financially irresponsible.

One positive result of this story is it's attracted a lot of attention, and the num- ber of headlines the issue got was impres- sive, considering we're in the middle of a playoff tournament to which the Leafs weren't even invited.

It almost makes one forget about the Blue Jays.

Government bill includes Jones’ Respecting Private Property Act

Recently, the government of Ontario introduced the Supporting Ontario’s Trails Act.

I am pleased that the government has incorporated part of my private member’s bill, Bill 36 — the Respecting Private Property Act, as part of the Supporting Ontario’s Trails Act.

In 2009, there were 33,423 charges received under the Trespass to Property Act. Every year since, the number of charges has increased. More must be done to curb trespassing.

The Trespass to Property Act, as it’s currently written, has a fine limit of $2,000. This fails to discourage trespassing. There is also a limit on compensation for damages of $1,000. This does not go far enough in providing fair compensation for property owners whose property is damaged due to trespassers. It is critical that we find a way to discourage trespassing on private property and create a system of fair compensation for individuals who experience damage on their property as a result of trespassing.

My private member’s bill would have ensured property owners are fairly compensated for destruction to their property and would have helped deter trespassing. I am happy the government has included elements my private member’s bill into the Supporting Ontario’s Trails Act. This new piece of legislation would make needed changes to the Trespass to Property Act by increasing the fine limit to $10,000 and by removing the $1,000 compensation limit.

Many of those who experience damage to their property are, not surprisingly, farmers. When their property is damaged, it impacts their livelihood. As an example, those who trespass on farmland can end up damaging fences, crops, and releasing livestock. This can quickly add up to thousands of dollars in damages. Increasing the ability to recoup compensation for damages allows property owners to be fairly compensated for destruction of their property. And increasing the fine limit will teach individuals to be aware of their surrounding so not to trespass.

This bill, if passed, will also protect our unique local treasures like the Cheltenham badlands. This piece of legislation, along with the fence currently being erected, will protect this unique geological feature so future generations can enjoy it. In addition to tackling trespassing, the Supporting Ontario’s Trails Act, if passed, will establish a classifica-cation system for trails in Ontario and the development of an Ontario trails strategy. There are thousands of trails across our province that people use to hike, bike and run on. Many are located here in Dufferin-Caledon. I am happy to see the promotion and further development of Ontario’s trails that will enable everyone to observe and appreciate our local trail system.

Jones extends welcome to new Progressive Conservative leader

I want to congratulate Patrick Brown on becoming the new Leader of the Progressive Conservative Party of Ontario.

Through this leadership race, nearly 80,000 members from across Ontario signed up to participate in the vote. His experience as the MP for Barrie since 2006 and Chair of the GTA and Central Ontario Caucus has allowed him to cultivate relationships with both urban and rural communities. He is a driven and passionate leader with bold ideas, who will do what is best for Ontario. Patrick understands that our ballooning hydro rates are a major concern for Ontarians and would be one of his top priorities as Premier. Having affordable energy will result in a strong and competitive economy. We now stand behind our new Leader who will restore our province as the economic engine of Canada.

In his first speech in the Ontario Legislature, welcoming Quebec Premier Philippe Couillard, Patrick discussed the important relationship between Quebec and Ontario that has existed throughout their history. He also stressed the need to continue cultivating that special relationship.

Patrick also praised Premier Couillard’s leadership in ensuring Quebec has affordable energy rates and making a balanced budget a top priority. He stressed that Quebec realized that to have a strong and competitive economy, you need to have affordable energy rates. As noted in his speech, he states “low hydro rates mean a better business climate. Companies see these rates as a cost of doing business rather than a barrier to doing business.” This is evident by the fact that businesses like Xstrata Copper decided to set up shop in the province. Low energy rates have also led to job growth in Quebec.

Through low energy rates, families and individuals in Quebec can now bet-

Conservation Youth Corps is a natural fit for summer

Registration for Credit Valley Conservation’s (CVC) popular Conservation Youth Corps (CYC) Program is now open.

High school students can earn volunteer hours by participating in environmental stewardship activities. Spaces are limited so students are encouraged to sign up now.

“The program is an opportunity for students to engage in environmental activities while earning their volunteer hours,” said Adam Wilford, acting program coordinator for CYC at CVC. “It’s a great way for students to earn valuable experience and build important skills such as communication, leadership and team work. For many, the program is a chance to spend more time outside and develop a new appreciation for nature.”

This is the ninth year CVC has offered the program to high school students in the Credit River watershed. Participants volunteer in groups of seven with CVC staff for one week of the summer. The first volunteer day consists of an orientation session at Terra Cotta Conservation Area. Remaining days are work days spent completing conservation, restoration and ecological monitoring projects. The program runs for nine weeks during summer break.

ter manage their own budgets, instead of worrying of how they will be able to pay their skyrocketing hydro bills. As a result of all this, Quebec was able to balance its budget and continue growing its economy.

Unfortunately, under the Liberal government’s leadership Ontario has seen hydro rates triple and resulted in businesses leaving and job losses. In addition, we have seen the government’s inability to tackle the deficit and no plan in sight to balance the budget by 2017-2018. Patrick believes that we need to look to the successes of Quebec and follow in their footsteps. Through affordable hydro rates, it will lead to job growth, and result in businesses flocking to set up shop in our province. Once this is achieved, our economy will turn back into what it once was as Canada’s economic engine.

Each year, approximately 250 students work on a range of activities that benefit nature, while earning up to 35 of the 40 volunteer hours needed to graduate high school. Activities include tree planting, managing invasive species, aquatic and terrestrial monitoring, fish and wildlife habitat construction, community gardening, trail maintenance and more.

Volunteers have an opportunity to learn about the environment through meaningful experiences, explore different areas of the Credit River watershed and meet new people. The CYC summer program also looks impressive on a resume as well as on college and university applications.

All training and tools are provided. The only thing volunteers need to bring is lunch, a refillable water bottle, appropriate footwear and a good attitude.

For more information and to register, visit www.creditvalleyca.ca/cyc or call CVC at 906-670-1615 or toll free at 1-800-668-5557.

CVC’s Conservation Youth Corps program is made possible by the support of the Region of Peel, TD Friends of the Environment Foundation, Enersource and personal donations through the Credit Valley Conservation Foundation.

Omar Khadr deserved what he got

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

The headline caught my eye which, of course, is what headlines are designed to do.

There it was, in a recent Toronto Star, for all to see: “We are all to blame for Omar Khadr’s mistreatment.”

Well, being the simple guy that I am, I had thought all along that Khadr himself had something to do with what happened to him.

But apparently not, at least not according to the author of the piece Omer Aziz, a visiting researcher at the Munk School of Global Affairs at the University of Toronto.

Here’s how Aziz sums up Khadr’s activities:

“The trial of Omar Khadr — Omar K. In a Kafka work, or an “alien unprivileged enemy belligerent” in Guantanamo code — is a permanent stain on Canada’s record. Khadr was raised by a family with ties to Al Qaeda, trained to take up arms, accused of lobbing a grenade at a U.S. soldier at age 15, thrown into a secret prison without adequate legal assistance, beaten and tortured, forced to choose between an unjust plea deal and an unfair trial, until finally, one day 13 years later, he was released on bail.”

Aziz then goes on to write that there are “at least 300,000 child soldiers currently serving in militaries and militias around the world,” and points out that “forced recruitment of minors is considered slavery by the International Labour Organization.”

And then this: “To fault Khadr for falling in with Al Qaeda as a boy is to fault him for being born to the wrong parents.”

Oh my. Where to begin?

Let’s start with the line about being “accused of lobbing a grenade at a U.S. soldier.” That’s one way of putting it. Not to get too technical or anything, but another way of putting it — and a more honest way — would be to point out that the grenade he “lobbed” actually killed the U.S. soldier. There’s a body. And a host of bereaved loved ones.

Which is why the soldier’s family is current launching a lawsuit against Khadr for the action, and action, by the way, that he admitted. And why Prime Minister Stephen Harper and two Liberal administrations before him had no sympathy for the radical jihadist.

It is true that Khadr was 15 when he killed that soldier. What is not true is that automatically makes him a “child soldier” as his legion of apologists claim. He doesn’t fit the definition, mainly because he wasn’t part of a recognized military force fighting against another one.

As for the notion of Khadr being the victim of “forced recruitment,” well, the history of his family and his own history don’t seem to support that notion. They seemed to be true believers and Khadr and others in his family were out there lobbing lots of grenades and other things at the evil West, an army which, lest we forget, included Canadian input as well.

Many Canadians aged 15 have been tried and convicted for murder and other serious crimes which they committed when they were 15 or in some cases younger. This is not unique to Khadr and should not be portrayed as if it was.

For sure, Guantanamo wasn’t a pleasant place to be, but they had to put these guys somewhere, and when you go around “lobbing” grenade at soldiers, nothing good is going to come from it.

And now the real corker, the argument that — let’s repeat it again — “To fault Khadr for falling in with Al Qaeda as a boy is to fault him for being born to the wrong parents.”

Really? Lots of people are born to the “wrong parents,” and while many don’t live the lives they may have hoped, they don’t automatically take up arms against the West and hope to kill the infidels.

Khadr tossed the grenade, not his father or mother or any of the other radical islamists in his family. He was old enough to know what he was doing and he did it. Period.

The great irony here is that in the battle Khadr was badly injured, yet the evil Americans actually saved his life. They could have left him there to die but they didn’t. And while they carried him off to a hospital, they had to transport the body of his victim back to his loved ones in the U.S.

Aziz said, “It was we, Canadians, who wanted Khadr locked up in Guantanamo and us who kept ourselves ignorant when the facts became uncomfortable.”

Not quite. It’s the Khadr apologists who, from the outset, have glossed over the “uncomfortable facts,” making him out to be the victim when, in fact, he was a victimizer and deserved what he got.

Thompson says Town keeps working to meet challenges

By Bill Rea

Although he's only been on the job a couple of months, Mayor Allan Thompson seems pretty pleased with the way things are progressing in Caledon.

It was an upbeat talk he recently delivered at his first Mayor's Business Breakfast at the Royal Ambassador Event Centre.

He admitted it's been quite a shift to move into the mayor's office after 11 years as a councillor, adding council is setting direction and policy for the Town.

He also praised the Town's economic development department as champions who help local business people face their challenges.

"It's time," he said, adding it's time for all levels of government to look at old ways of doing things and changing with the times. "People are getting tired with regulation and getting weighed down."

Thompson stressed the need to welcome business to the town and get rid of the red tape that might impede such development. The Town staff and council have been working on that, he said. During the recent budget deliberations, changes were made to the process of the process involved in rezoning and site plans for subdivisions with an aim to expediting things. He added the building permit process has been streamlined too.

The Town is also working on improving customer service, with some positive initiatives coming soon.

"Stay tuned," he said.

The Mayor said they're looking to hire staff to help people through the process, as well as watching what's being done in other places to improve customer service. In the efforts to keep applications moving, they are finding efficiencies, such as getting in touch with people through emails and phone calls, instead of just sending letters.

"We are turning things around," she said.

Another challenge that is special to Thompson is coming up with a plan to bring high-speed internet to Caledon. He raised the issue in his victory address the night he was elected mayor in October.

"This is a real challenge," he said. "It's no longer a luxury. It's essential."

He added it's going to take co-operation from the federal and Provincial governments to get on the band. Thompson observed there is fibre cable being run up Regional Road 50 to serve the Caledon Pan Am Equestrian Park in Palgrave for the coming Games. "That's going to be a huge help for Bolton," he declared.

He also said they are working on having WiFi infrastructure installed in new developments in town. That's the way new intelligent communities are working," he said.

Providing roads as they are needed is another big challenge Thompson mentioned, tying it in with the need for internet. He pointed out they can't build roads fast enough, so better internet service would enable more people to work from home, thus taking the stress off the roads.

The Mayor said partnerships are the way to make things move forward. He pointed to the need to work with businesses, adding if they are profitable, so is the community. He reminded the audience that business sponsors sports teams, support charities and do a host of other things for the community, so making them profitable is an investment in the community.

He added partnership with Equestrian Management Group, Toronto and Region Conservation Authority and the Town has resulted in the equestrian facility in Palgrave.

Addressing issues in Ward 1, Thompson commented that the community lost a swimming pool last year that the community had sponsored. Residents there want and deserve a pool, so that's an investment that needs to be made in the community.

Thompson said they are opening doors, but will need collaboration to make the community thrive. And there are also challenges.

He pointed to the GTA West Corridor which runs through Town. The question is whether it's a detriment to the municipality or an economic driver. Thompson said it's a big opportunity to bring in employment land. While most of the land in Caledon is protected by plans covering the Niagara Escarpment, Greenbelt and Oak Ridges Moraine, 19 per cent of the town is in the Whitebelt, so a plan is needed on how to use it. There also needs to be an employment base to make the rest of the town sustainable.

Mayor Allan Thompson recently addressed the audience at his first Mayor's Business Breakfast.

Summer Dreams by Layla Panjeta and Lori Pirroncello

"School's out!"

Favorite words of any child or youth, especially when activities are planned that take advantage of the many things Caledon offers. Kids want to spend time in their favourite activities, be with their friends and learn new skills. Most do this throughout July and August.

There are also many Caledon kids whose parents work through the summer and activities amount to little more than watching television. Caledon can do better, and that's why we're asking you to consider less fortunate kids when you enroll your sons and daughters in local activities, go on a family holiday or spend a weekend away at one of Ontario's beaches. For hundreds of Caledon children and youth, these are luxuries. They remain out of reach in their families' limited budget.

Caledon Community Services provides support to more than 300 children within the community. Our Kidz in Caledon Program provides opportunities to attend summer camp and recreational activities throughout the year. Through the community's generosity, children and youth attend Town of Caledon camps, hockey, karate, gymnastics, guitar lessons, art classes and much more. We encourage kids to participate in things they're passionate about.

Participating in any recreation activity, or being part of a sports team is a huge confidence booster for young people. Don't you remember your childhood summers when you tried something new and completely mastered it? There's no better feeling in the world for a young person! All kinds of evidence suggests that children participating in cultural, social, arts and recreation programs decrease their feelings of isolation, develop a healthy view of their diverse peers, and avoid violence and self-destructive behaviours. Providing our community's children and youth with a sense of purpose and opportunities to be socially engaged enhances their quality of life. It also allows parents to support their children's interests.

Kidz in Caledon is a fantastic summer campaign that counts on our community's generosity. If you are able to make a donation, please go on to our website at www.ccs4u.org.

If you would like support from our Kidz in Caledon Program, please contact one of us. We're CCS's Care and Counselling Coordinators and we're located at The Exchange. We can be reached at 289-966-1715.

Summer dreams belong to all of Caledon's kids. Please help us make them come true.

English hurls Dodgers to 2-1 record with 6-0 win

By Jake Courtepatte

It's been a roller coaster of a season for the Bolton Dodgers AA-baseball team, and they're only three games in.

The Dodgers were the victims of some solid base-running after being lit up by single after single in their only game last week, an 8-0 loss to the Ivy Leafs.

After a week's rest, they took to the field at their home park of North Hill in Bolton to take on the Angus Black Sox, both teams entering the game with 1-1 records.

Despite lasting just 2.2 innings in the season opener, the Dodgers went back to starting pitcher Shawn English, having seen his fair share of North Dufferin Baseball League action.

English didn't disappoint, bouncing back for a shutout game, with the Dodgers lighting up Sox pitcher Walley in his first start of the season. Final score was 6-0.

After a fairly vacant start to the NDBL schedule for the Dodgers, the Bolton squad will be put to work in the next few weeks with a handful of games.

They will be looking to boost their stats when hosting the Nobleton Cornhuskers

Wednesday, who are still looking for their first win of the season.

If you're looking for some weekend ball, the Dodgers will be in Barrie Sunday for an afternoon matchup with the Angels.

For stats, schedules, and more information, visit www.ndbl.ca

Dodgers starting pitcher Shawn English earned his first win of the season last Thursday against the Angus Black Sox.

Mayfield grad on Women's National Soccer Team

By Bill Rea

Reaching the level that puts one on the Woman's National Soccer team is a big accomplishment, and Ashley Lawrence can confirm that.

The 19-year-old resident of SouthFields Village recently learned she's made the team as a midfielder. The announcement was televised from Vancouver.

Lawrence, 19, attended Mayfield Secondary School.

She said she's been playing soccer since she five, playing with Brams United and Erin Mills. "It just became a passion," she said. "I just loved it."

She has had a number of accomplishments on the soccer pitch. She was part of the team that represented Canada at the Youth 17 World Cup in Trinidad and Tobago in 2012, as well as taking part in other national team events.

"I was called to the national tour about two and a half years ago," she said.

Lawrence said being on the team, for her, will involve understanding her role to play on any given day. She may have to start as an impact player coming off the bench, or learning how to go on the attack, "being a well-rounded midfield offensive threat."

The team is currently in training camp in Los Angeles, and will be taking part in friendly matches against teams from the U.S. and Mexico.

Ashley Lawrence was recently named to the Woman's National Soccer team.

Lawrence is about to start her third year studying business at West Virginia University. She said she looked at a number of schools before choosing this one.

"I love the campus," she said. "It had a family-oriented feeling."

"I'm honoured," she said, describing how it feels to make the team. "It's still pretty surreal for me."

She added it took a lot of work to reach this level. "It just feels like it finally paid off," she said.

The team is getting ready for the FIFA Women's World Cup, which Canada is hosting this year. Canada's first game of the tournament will be June 6 in Edmonton against China, then they will be moving on to Montreal.

"I'm excited for what Canada's going to offer at the World cup," Lawrence declared.

"We've got a fantastic group of players here that are ready to step up and proudly represent their country on the biggest stage," said Head Coach John Herdman. "It's now up to Canadians to show them they are not alone on this journey and that they've got the strength of an entire country with them."

Brewers in tough so far in AAA league

By Jake Courtepatte

Well, they seemed off on the right foot.

After posting a come-from-behind win in their first official game in the AAA Greater Toronto Baseball League, the Bolton Brewers may find themselves reminiscing of their AA North Dufferin Baseball League (NDBL) days as of late.

Four straight losses have the team in a 1-4 hole, and in only one of those games was the score within reaching distance.

They hosted the Leaside Leafs in their home opener last Wednesday at North Hill Park. John Hutchinson went two-for-three in the first three innings, bringing in Mike Wallace for an RBI while cashing one in himself. Unfortunately, that would be all the offense the Brewers could muster.

Mike Blackwood was on the mound for the Brewers, allowing five runs over three innings. With Bolton still in it, his fatigue began to show in the fifth, giving up 10 runs in an eventual mercy-ruled 16-2 loss. His fielders didn't provide much support, as only six of the runs were earned.

Martingrove was the site the next evening match, where the Brewers played their best baseball of the week. After a few scoreless innings, the Brewers got on the board first in the third, taking a 2-0 lead into the bottom of the fifth.

Zack Ridell, a junior call-up last year, came into the game in the fifth to relieve starter Nick Boyd, who had allowed just five hits and zero runs through the first four innings. It just wasn't his night, as he allowed six runs in the next three innings before being relieved himself.

The Bolton squad couldn't claw back, dropping the game 6-2.

Saturday's double-header in East York against the Bulldogs was a defensive meltdown, coupled with a lack of production at the plate for a dangerous combination. The Bulldogs took the first game 11-3, and shutout the Brewers 13-0 in game two.

Bolton's schedule gave them a few days to regroup before they pick back up against the Pickering Red Sox at home tonight (Thursday), the only GTBL team they have been able to solve so far this season.

Opening pitch is at 8:45 p.m. at North Hill Park in Bolton.

Caledon participants in Torch relay are introduced

“I know this is great news for your community,” Coteau remarked. “This will make those incredible events even more special.” Thompson used the celebration at Town Hall to introduce the community representatives who will be carrying the Torch through town June 13. He said parts of the Relay will be broadcast live on CBC. The Mayor said the bearers come from across Caledon, both in terms of geography and demographics.

“Each of you represents what makes Caledon a wonderful place to work, live and play.”
- MP Tilson

Caledon East resident Heather Whittier will be representing those 60 and older. She was chosen for her ongoing volunteer work, as well as her involvement with seniors’ organizations and hospices. She also been a world champion archer, still holding eight unbroken records. Ethan Mumford, 13, of Bolton is representing youth. He was selected because of the respect, integrity and good values he has demonstrated through academic and Scouting activities. Charlie Fogerty of the Palgrave area will be the sports representative. He has competed provincially in track and field, and has spent summers volunteering at the Palgrave Tennis club.

Jeremy Grant, one of the owners of the Alton Mill Arts Centre, was selected for his contributions to arts and culture. He has played a major role in transforming the facility from a rubber mille to the arts centre it currently is. Meghan Zaremba will be representing unsung hero community members. She has overcome personal challenges to become a leader in her community, and has inspired and sponsored children to participate in music lessons. Ken Bokor is a representative of emerging residents. He was a co-founder of the SouthFields Village residents’ Group, sits on numerous committees and has helped organize many community events. The other local Torch bearer will be Bolton resident Alyssa Hoar. Thompson added that Toronto Maple Leaf forward (and Caledon native) Peter holland will make the final hand off of the Torch. Johnston said the schedule for the Torch Relay has not yet been finalized. “What a Relay team!” Tilson declared. He congratulated the Town for the major contribution it’s been chosen to make, adding the government is happy to help make it “spectacular.” “Each of you represents what makes Caledon a wonderful place to work, live and play,” he told the bearers. Tilson added the Torch Relay will help make people in the community feel like they are part of the celebration.

Tav’s Real Estate Corner
The New Generation of Real Estate

This week’s theme:
Why RIGHT NOW is the best time to list your home

It’s that time of the year when people decide to take on new renovation projects! Whether it is updating kitchen cabinets, replacing carpet with hardwood, painting garage doors, or cleaning up the driveway/landscaping, here is an opportunity to increase the value of your home without spending tons of money. It is important to spend your money wisely on the “right” upgrades where you can see a fair return on your investment. Spring is a great time to list because after summer hits, families seem to be busy with vacations, cottages, weddings, etc. This may result in a decrease of buyers and in home prices, despite all of your recent upgrades. In my experience, right now in the spring season is the best time to put your home on the market! “Timing is everything” especially when it comes to real estate. Choosing to list at an appropriate time can provide you with a significantly higher price for your home. Some people may want to wait a few months to do their renovations, but this may affect them later on negatively if there are fewer buyers on the market at that time, or if home prices go down.

Another reason why it may be wise to put your home on the market now is to take advantage of the exceptionally low mortgage interest rates. Due to this, the number of buyers in the market is high, resulting in higher selling prices. There is no guarantee that the interest rates will remain this low and stable for a long time in the future, so it may be wise to take advantage of now. Our clients find this to be quite beneficial and reassuring, knowing that listing their home now provides them with the chance of being sold faster than they expected!

Even when we focus on the current lower Canadian exchange rate, this is still favourable for sellers! There is a ripple effect on the real estate market since there is increased interest now in investing in Canadian real estate, since our dollar is significantly lower than the U.S.A. Another great reason why sellers should list today!

If you are curious on what your home may sell for in today’s market, as a knowledgeable real estate professional, I would be happy to hear from you and answer any questions you have about the listing process or the value of your home. Even if you are not ready to list, it is important to know what value you hold in your home. We understand that purchasing your next home, or potentially your dream home can take time, so we advise taking the first step in having a real estate professional evaluate your homes worth, you know your possibilities or expected timeline to achieve your goals!
