Candidates differ on value of long campaign

By Bill Rea

The writ has been dropped, Parliament has been dissolved and Canadians can get ready to vote Oct. 19.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper set the timing over the weekend, giving Canadians an election period that is much longer than is required.

In Dufferin-Caledon, there are currently four candidates hoping to be MP after Oct. 19, and they differed as to whether the early drop of the writ is a benefit.

Conservative incumbent David Tilson wasn't very surprised at the way things turned out.

"There's been all kinds of speculation," he observed, adding there had been a lot of talk over the weekend that Harper was going to have Parliament dissolved.

As far as the local campaign is concerned, Tilson they have an agenda in place.

"We've been campaigning," he remarked, adding they've had plans in place for months. "We've been doing things."

He did say there are still some complications, since he's still an MP and has various duties to perform in his constituency, while also running for office.

"I understand why the Prime Minister did it," Tilson commented, pointing out the party leaders have already been campaigning, and at the public's expense. "Now that the writ's dropped, they can't do that."

He did concede that the argument that the longer campaign period will be more expensive is a fair point.

Tilson also asserted he's taking nothing for granted in the coming campaign.

"I've never felt confident in elections," he said. "I've got some tough competition. They're good candidates. They're going to give me a good run for my money, and I'm going to give them a good run for their money."

Green party candidate Nancy Erekar wasn't quite as in favour of Harper's action.

"It's a shame it's so long because the taxpayers pay more, a lot more," she said. "But we don't get to call the shots."

"It's not fair politics, but it is what it is, and we live with it," she added.

"But I'm glad to be in it in Dufferin-Caledon," Erekar remarked. "I can vote for the actual constituents and make a difference here. The other party's members don't get to do that."

Liberal candidate Ed Crewson agreed there's added expense from the early call.

"It's $2.8 million a day they say it's going to cost extra," he commented, adding it will end up amounting to more than $100 million.

"It just seems that Mr. Harper has trouble being truthful these days," he commented. "This is just to play to the advertising because they've got more to play with than we do."

Ella Bernard is about to learn a lot about Thailand

By Bill Rea

Thailand is a country that not many people in this part of the world would know a lot about.

A Cedar Mills teen is hoping that will change for her a lot in the coming months.

Ella Bernard, 15, is on her way to Thailand, as part of the Rotary Student Exchange with the Palgrave club.

She was scheduled to leave yesterday (Wednesday) and will be away for 10 to 12 months (her return date has not yet been specified).

Ella said she didn’t pick Thailand. “The people at Rotary chose for us,” she said. She added she had been at a three-day camp in February with Rotarians and other students taking part in the exchange, where they got to know the young people and their personalities.

Ella will have to learn a new language, namely Thai, and that’s not going to be easy. She said that Thailand is about the only place in the world where it’s spoken, so it’s been hard for her to find sources for learning it.

“I’ve been able to learn a couple of simple phrases,” she said, adding she’s had no way of determining how good her pronunciation has been.

Ella has learned the language has 48 consonants in a different script. She added she’s been told that for the first couple of months, no one will really mind about her pronunciations.

She’s also done some research on the country, and even recently made a presentation to Rotarians. She’s learned about holidays like Songkran, which is a new year’s celebration held in April. “It’s pretty much like a four-day water fight,” she said, adding people get splashed with water to wash away the sins that have accumulated over the year.

She’s also learned the significance of Wai. She said it’s a greeting, involving holding the palms of the hands together and touching part of one’s face with the thumbs. “It’s pretty much a sign of respect,” she said, with touching the forehead with the thumbs being the highest sign, followed by touching the nose and the chin.

Ella’s also going to have to get used to a different style of dress.

“They’re very modest over there,” she said, commenting that skirts go down to the knees and shoulders are covered. That might take some getting used to, as the average temperature there is about 30.

Ella said she will be staying in a town called Phanat Nikbion, which is in the province of Chonburi. She said it’s roughly the same population as Bolton, and it’s a commuter town, about an hour away from the capital of Bangkok.

She will be staying with host families while she’s away, and Ella said she’s been busy buying gifts for them. She’s also been collecting pins to distribute. They have been coming from other Rotary clubs in this area, and people like Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson and Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson and MPP Sylvia Jones have been contributing too.

The first host family she’ll be staying with has a mother who’s a Rotarian. There are two sons, aged 26 and 24, and a 20-year-old daughter named Garfield, who’s training to be a veterinarian. There’s also a 16-year-old daughter, but Ella won’t have too much time with her, since she’ll soon be going on a Rotary exchange trip of her own to Ohio. But the two have been in contact through Facebook, and she’s already been introduced to some of her classmates. While she will be attending school, Ella said she’s not sure what courses she’ll be taking.

She’s also been told about the school uniform, complete with a blue pleated skirt (coming below the knees), a white sailor top, socks that go up almost to the knees, and a tie. And it will have her new name on it; Tor-Fah.

She said Garfield had explained that the name Ella means “beautiful fairy.” From that, Garfield came up with the translation to Tor-Fah.

While she will be attending school, Ella said it’s likely she will miss a year academically (she’s going into Grade 11 at Mayfield Secondary School).

Ella said her grandfather Pat Clifford has been a Palgrave Rotarian for about 35 years. She attended some Rotary events and decided about a year ago to apply for the program. Her mother Tracy Clifford said the selection process takes about a year, and involves a lot of interviews, etc.

“The (Rotarian) district has been absolutely amazing in preparing these kids,” she added.

Ella also said there will be Rotarians available to offer support while in Thailand.

She knows this is going to be quite an experience. On the one hand, she’s confident that she’ll be able to handle it. But there’s also some nervousness there, knowing she’s going to be living with people who don’t speak much English. She added she’s trying hard not to prejudge the experience or establish any mindsets.

“I’m just going to go in,” she said.

Rotary will be advancing Ella an allowance, so she will be able to learn something about money management. She is also hoping to pick up other skills, as well as being able to experience a new culture. Her mother said Rotary figures young people come back from experiences like this with about five extra years of maturity.

Long campaign costly

But there are going to be other factors that come into play.

Crewson was at a rally with Party leader Justin Trudeau Tuesday, and was impressed with the positive atmosphere he found. “You see the Harper rallies — it looks like they’re attending a funeral.”

New Democratic candidate Rehya Yazbek agreed it’s going to cost the taxpayers. “It’s going to be really long,” she observed. “I guess this is good for the Tories because they’ve got the finances to do it.”

Yazbek pointed out election officials like returning officers will have to be working twice as long as normal. She also said donations to political parties can be deducted from taxes, meaning less in government revenues.

She also said the longer campaign period will not have a major impact on her personally. She’s still working full-time.

“I only have so much vacation time,” she commented.

Lengthy investigation results in several arrests

In the early hours of May 25, two males allegedly broke into a Bolton telecommunications store. Caledon OPP reported that within minutes, general patrol officers initiated a traffic stop prior to receiving the call of the break-in. At the time of the traffic stop, the driver provided a false name. A further investigation revealed that the driver and the passenger were on conditions to not associate with each other. A search of the vehicle further uncovered break and enter tools. As a result, the men were arrested and held in custody until court the following day. Caledon Street Crime Unit officers continued the investigation which resulted in the execution of a search warrant at a telecommunications store in Toronto. Officers located a large quantity of stolen cell phones from the Greater Toronto Area and Quebec. As a result of the investigation, a 33-year-old man from Toronto was charged with break and enter, conspiracy to commit an indictable offence, possession of break and enter tools, breach of recognizance and obstructing police.

A 37-year-old Toronto resident was charged with break and enter, conspiracy to commit an indictable offence, possession of break and enter tools, and breach of recognizance. A 30-year-old man, also from Toronto, was charged with 10 counts of possession of property obtained by crime, trafficking in stolen goods and conspiracy to commit an indictable offence. A 26-year-old Toronto man was charged with eight counts of possession of property obtained by crime and trafficking in stolen goods.

Car seat clinic Aug. 25

Caledon OPP Auxiliary officers will be hosting their next Child Car Seat Clinic Aug. 25. It will run from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Bolton Fire Station, at 28 Ann St. The clinic will be by-appointment only. Call 905-584-2241 to book an appointment.

HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

The Ontario Fire Marshal's Office is still investigating a fire that destroyed a house on Heart Lake Road, south of Charleston Sideroad early Sunday Morning. Deputy Fire Chief Darryl Bailey said the alarm was reported at about 2:20 a.m. by a passer-by who noticed flames. The house was fully involved in fire by the time crews arrived on the scene. The residents were away from the home at the time, and were eventually found by OPP. But Bailey reported two dogs in the house were lost. "The house was a complete loss," he said, adding the roof had fallen in by the time the first fire truck arrived. Damage has been estimated at about $1 million. Firefighters from the stations in Caledon village, Alton, Mono Mills, Caledon East, Inglewood, Cheltenham and Valleywood were on the scene, along with Caledon OPP and Peel EMS. Crews were there until mid-Sunday afternoon.

West Nile Virus-positive mosquito batches were found in Mississauga

Two mosquito batches collected last week in Mississauga have tested positive for West Nile Virus (WNV). One batch was collected near Hurontario Street and Burnhamthorpe Road East and the other near Dixie Road and Dundas Street East. These are the first batches to test positive for WNV in Peel in 2015. "Other regions in Ontario reported positive batches earlier this summer, so it's no surprise that we have now found a positive batch here in Peel," commented Peel's Director of Environmental Health Paul Callanan. "We encourage residents to keep using personal protection measures and remove stagnant water mosquito breeding areas so they can continue to have a safe and healthy summer." The Region advises that residents should avoid areas with high mosquito populations; wear light-coloured clothing, including long sleeves, pants and a hat, to cover exposed skin, even in their own backyards; use an insect repellent and apply it according to the manufacturer's directions; drain any areas of standing water on their property — remove old tires, turn over pails, toys and wheelbarrows, frequently change the water in birdbaths, and keep eaves-troughs clear; and take extra precaution from dusk to dawn when mosquito activity is higher — if possible, stay indoors. "Residents can sign up for email notifications at peel-bugbite.ca to stay informed about WNV activity in the region," Callanan said. "The website also has tips on how residents can protect themselves from WNV and has a standing water reporting tool." Peel has no confirmed human cases of WNV this season. To date there have been five positive WNV-positive mosquito batches reported in Ontario — three in Windsor Essex, one in Haliburton-Kawartha-Pine Ridge District and one in Hastings Prince Edward Counties. There have been two confirmed human cases reported in Ontario, one in Waterloo and one in Niagara. For more information about WNV, visit peel-bugbite.ca or call Region of Peel — Public Health toll-free at 905-584-2216 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday.

Candidates have differing views on whether there's a recession

By Bill Rea
Is Canada in a recession?
The answer to that question depends a lot on who's asked it.
Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson maintains there's not a recession, but some of the people who are after his job are of a different mind.
"I don't think so," Tilson commented. "The media has talked about it."
"Certainly the numbers would indicate that we are," commented Ed Crewson, the Liberal candidate in Dufferin-Caledon in the current election campaign. "I think that we have to question (Finance Minister) Joe Oliver's steadfast belief that we're going to have (economic) growth this fall."
He added there doesn't appear to have been growth in the first part of 2015.
Crewson also pointed out Canadians seem to be going more into debt, availing themselves of low interest rates. But while people have been piling up this debt, there's been no real increase in household incomes for some time. "If interest rates go up, then how do they manage that debt?" he wondered.
Crewson also said that the government of Prime Minister Stephen Harper has been focusing on the Oil Patch, and that's not helped the manufacturing industry at all. That means with the Oil Patch in trouble, there's not the industrial base to help the economy spring back.

Crewson also charged that during the 2008 recession, Harper responded by cutting funding for political parties. The PM had also observed that with the markets down, there were a lot of bargains available for investments. Crewson said people can't buy stocks if they're out of work.
He also said details on what to do about the recession will be possible once the reality is faced at there is one. "Denying it is not going to make it go away," he said.
But Tilson maintained the government is still on track to keep the books balanced, adding Oliver allowed for a possible downturn when he prepared the 2015 Budget.
"Economists have predicted growth for 2015," Tilson remarked, adding Canadians should not worry about what's been in the media.
He also pointed out Canada did not suffer like European countries or the United States in the '08 recession.
"It's true we were affected, but not nearly the same way," he said.

New Democratic candidate Rehya Yazbek was not sharing that optimism about a recession, or lack of one.
"It feels like one," she remarked, suggesting people go to a mall and see the number of stores that have closed. "What does that tell you?"
The Dufferin-Caledon Federal Green Party Association and the Green Party of Canada have announced that Nancy Erekar will be the Green candidate in this riding in this year's federal election.
Erekar is the owner of ChicaBOOM Consignment Furniture, Fashion and Decor in Caledon village. She has lived in the area since 1987, where she raised her family.
She has a BA in sociology and an MBA from McMaster University. Before opening the consignment store, Erekar was a financial advisor with Assante Capital Management from 1996 to 2010. She recently became an official member of the Green Party of Canada and is ready now to represent the voters of Dufferin-Cale-

"All I know is what I hear in the news," remarked local Green party candidate Nancy Erekar.
She added she's not an economist, but said the Green party has a good plan for increasing employment.
"All the numbers add up," she said.

Federal government announces investments in Caledon

The federal government is making money available in the Caledon area, and Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson has been happily making announcements.
Tilson was in Caledon several times over the last week or so, announcing federal allocations for various projects.
He was recently in Dick's Dam Park in Bolton, announcing a new environmental clean-up project aimed at improving water quality and restoring local ecosystems along the Great Lakes
The Great Lakes Sustainability Fund is contributing more than $2.8 million for more than 30 new projects in areas of concern. That includes $20,000 to Ontario Streams for its Caledon Headwater Rehabilitation Initiative project.
Tilson stated this initiative's goals are to protect and rehabilitate fish habitats in many headwater tributaries in Caledon through in-stream habitat enhancement; mitigating barriers to fish passage; regeneration of riparian areas; reintroduction of Atlantic salmon; and fisheries monitoring.

The aims of Ontario Streams include rehabilitating degraded aquatic habitats, increasing communication between individuals and organization that are involved in conserving aquatic environments and acting as a catalyst to empower communities when it comes to conserving local environments.
"To protect the Great lakes today and for future generations, our government has taken several actions to improve water quality and safeguard the health of Canadians," Tilson commented.
"This year's projects support the goals of our National Conservation Plan by facilitating collaborative efforts among local residents, businesses, conservation authorities and other levels of government to restore and sustain important local ecosystems within the Great Lakes basin."
"The rivers of Toronto have sufficient value to economical and cultural growth of the city and its surrounding communities," Pete Davis, project biologist for On-

Beware of 14 Critical Home Inspection Pitfalls BEFORE You Put Your Home Up For Sale

DUFFERIN-PEEL - According to industry experts, there are over 33 physical problems that will come under scrutiny during a home inspection when your home is for sale. A new report has been prepared which identifies the eleven most common of these problems, and what you should know about them before you list your home for sale.
Whether you own an old home or a brand new one, there are a number of things that can fall short of requirements during a home inspection. If not identified and dealt with, any of these 14 items could cost you dearly in terms of repair. That's why it's critical that you read this report before you list your home. If you wait until the building inspector flags these issues for you, you will almost certainly experience costly delays in the close of your home sale or, worse, turn prospective buyers away altogether. In most cases, you can make a reasonable pre-inspection yourself if you know what you're looking for, and knowing what you're looking for can help you prevent little problems from growing into costly and unmanageable ones.

To help homesellers deal with this issue before their homes are listed, a free report entitled "14 Things You Need to Know to Pass Your Home Inspection" has been compiled which explains the issues involved.
To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your FREE copy of this report call tollfree 1-866-500-3429 and enter 302. You can call any time, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.
Get your free special report NOW to learn how to ensure a home inspection doesn't cost you the sale of your home.

Town appreciative of support from the feds

tario Streams, said. “Actions to preserve or rehabilitate our waterways will not only enhance our natural environment, but will also strengthen our communities, as grass-root organizations and local volunteers work alongside conservation authorities and non-profit groups to tackle environmental issues at the community level.”

Tilson was at Town Hall in Caledon East a couple of days later to announce improvements to five local roads, with funding from the federal Gas Tax Fund. The affected roads will be Walton Drive, Cedar Mills Crescent and Palmer Circle in Cedar Mills, as well as Mountainview Road and Kennedy Road. He said the idea is to improve traffic flows, increase safety and reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

Caledon’s Public Works Director David Loveridge observed there are some 150 kilometrers of road in Caledon, and some of them still don’t have hard surfaces. With Caledon’s population maintaining all these roads involves a major financial commitment.

The contribution from the feds for these five roads is going to amount to a little more than $1 million.

“Our government is pleased to provide municipalities like Caledon with flexible infrastructure funding that allows them to support projects that address the needs of their communities,” Tilson said. “These local road improvements, made possible through the federal Gas Tax Fund, will provide a safer and smoother ride for drivers and cyclists, as well as help protect the environment through reduced greenhouse gas emissions.”

Mayor Allan Thompson called it “great news for Caledon.”

“We’re a rural community and we have a lot of infrastructure,” he remarked. “We have a huge infrastructure responsibility.”

As well, Tilson was out on the Caledon Trailway last Thursday, with a number of other local dignitaries, to announce that $172,500 will be going to trail improvements from the Canada 150 Community Infrastructure Program.

This funding amounts to half the project cost, and it will help the Town work on connecting and enhancing the existing trail networks, and making more connections to the north and south of Caledon.

He also explained the program is aimed at creating lasting legacies as the 150th anniversary of Confederation approaches in 2017.

Mayor Allan Thompson and Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson were celebrating the funding announcement for the Caledon Trailway, accompanied by Parks and Recreation Director Laura Johnston; Landscape Project Coordinator Tina Fernandes; Councillors Jennifer Innis, Johanna Downey and Rob Mezzapelli; Wayen Noble, representing Caledon Hills Cycling; and Manager of Parks and Landscape Architect Brian Baird.

Crewson reacts to election call

When the election writ dropped, Dufferin-Caledon Liberal candidate Ed Crewson lost little time expressing his thoughts on the announcement.

“Even with a set election date, the Harper government manages to manipulate democracy, the voters and again use the taxpayers’ money to his advantage,” Crewson stated. “The cash-rich Tories can make the most of their war chests, while the rest of the country is focused on the last days of summer, making the most of family and vacation time and the expensive and time-consuming task of preparing our children to go back to school.”

“We should all be outraged by a 78-day election, because it is us, the taxpayers who will forced shell out the estimated $2.8 million each day that Harper extends the election past the standard 37-day campaign period,” he added.

Free admission at PAMA extended to Sept. 6

Free admission is extended until Labour Day at the Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA).

Don't miss out on a full line-up of summer exhibitions and family fun, all free in August.

Fun family activities

Thursday nights and weekends in August will include free drop-in family activities for people to create their own exhibition-inspired piece of art.

Aug. 6, 8 and 9 — Discover the Peel Jail and create a "Wanted" poster.

Aug. 13, 15 and 16 — Make an abstract art masterpiece.

Aug. 20, 22 and 23 — Construct a disguise and play detective with a jail-based scavenger hunt.

Aug. 27, 30 and 31 — Create layers on a personal portrait collage.

Summer staycation days

Think big, think small Aug. 4 to 7 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Think big by participating in the creation of an over-sized community art piece. Then, create your very own mini take-home version. New activities daily.

Family art and yoga

Come out Aug. 15 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. and Aug. 20 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. for a special art activity and family yoga lesson. Learn classic yoga movements led by instructor Margarita and create a unique piece of art to take home. All levels of yoga students are welcomed. Please bring your own mat. Class is free and art supplies are included.

Thursday night courthouse tours

Enjoy a unique night out with a guided tour of the historical courthouse, starting at 8 p.m. Combine this with the Thursday Night Concert Series in Gage Park (across the street) or by enjoying Shakespeare in Ken Whillans Square for a downtown adventure packed with culture.

Summer exhibitions

Here are some of the exhibitions that are on at PAMA over the summer.

• Can You Imagine (until Sept. 6): PAMA wants to know your vision for the future of Peel. Visit PAMA and provide feedback in the creative and interactive space. What issues are important to you and your family? What will the arts and culture community look like in 2035? Visit on-site or on-line at facebook.com/Imagine2035 to have your say and offer input on your vision for Peel in the year 2035.

• In Conversation: The Art Collection of PAMA and the Helson Gallery (until Sept. 14): Two public collections displayed together to create new experiences and dialogue.

• Portraits: Moments in Time, Selections from PAMA's Collection (until Sept. 20): Reflecting on identity through the examination of select portraits.

• Timeless Creations: Prints by Stanley Lewis (until Sept. 20): Stonecut prints by the internationally renowned printmaker and sculptor.

• Wish You Were Here Postcard Collection (until Aug. 28): Visit the Archives Reading Room to see this exhibition of summer inspired postcards and photographs. Archives hours do vary from regular PAMA hours.

• Long Moments by Olex Wlasenko (until Oct. 18): A new collection of cinema-inspired charcoal drawings.

There is also great value in being a member of PAMA.

Members can take part in two colourfully creative, free events at PAMA this August. Aug. 13 is Adult Paint Night and Aug. 20 is Family Paint Night.

Prices start at an individual membership level of $45, to a family membership level of $60 per year. For more details on levels, benefits or how to register visit, visit the PAMA website at pama.peelregion.ca PAMA is a place to explore and learn about Peel Region's culture and heritage, as well as use conversation, questions and stories to help make new and fascinating connections to the surrounding community. Operated by the Region of Peel, PAMA is at 9 Wellington St. E. in Brampton. Visit pama.peelregion.ca to learn more.

John Cutruzzola and Brampton and Caledon Community Foundation support Osler

John Cutruzzola, Inzola Group and the Brampton and Caledon Community Foundation showed their support for Osler hospitals recently when they presented Osler Foundation with a donation of $20,208.

This donation represents the proceeds of John Cutruzzola's Christmas in Rome Concert and Art Show, held last December at the Rose Theatre. The event, organized by Inzola Group and its leader John Cutruzzola, offered an evening of classical music, art exhibits and silent auctions with all proceeds benefitting the redevelopment of the Peel Memorial Centre for Integrated Health and Wellness. Cutruzzola, who is an arts and culture enthusiast, also showcased some of his latest paintings at the December event and gave an inspired performance as a tenor.

"This is an exciting time for Brampton with the building of the new Peel Memorial," said Cutruzzola. "It's important for all of us in the community to invest in our new hospital. I encourage everyone to get involved so that we can bring leading-edge healthcare to this area. I want to be a part of that."

All funds raised were directed to the Brampton and Caledon Community Foundation in Trust for the new Peel Memorial. Cutruzzola and his business partner Bill Kannellopoulos were among the first donors to its redevelopment campaign in 2010 with their pledge commitment of $250,000. Having completed the original pledge last year, the additional funds raised through the Christmas in Rome concert will have double the impact for the new Peel Memorial, as it will be matched, dollar for dollar, thanks to the $15 Million Matching Challenge, made possible through Orlando Corporation.

Supporters and committee members including Jim Boyd (President and CEO of the Brampton and Caledon Community Foundation) and John Cutruzzola (Inzola Group) were on hand to present the latest donation to Osler Foundation.

"On behalf of Osler, we thank John Cutruzzola and the Brampton and Caledon Community Foundation for being great champions of local health," said Ken Mayhew, president and CEO of the William Osler Health System Foundation. "We are grateful for John Cutruzzola's leadership in support of the new Peel Memorial. His commitment truly reflects the passion of this community for health care and continues to inspire others to follow in his fundraising footsteps."

Peel teachers and school board agree to arbitration

After three days of mediation, the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF/FEESO) bargaining units representing secondary teachers and occasional secondary teachers in District 19 Peel and the Peel District School Board will implement the interim award of an arbitration panel.

While the panel's award was a partial award and does not address all local issues, many issues were settled that will now be included as local terms in both bargaining units' collective agreements. However, this award does not comprise a complete collective agreement and the parties could find themselves at impasse at a future date, depending on the disposition of central table issues.

"I am happy to report on behalf of the OSSTF/FEESO bargaining team that we were able to reach consensus with the Peel District School Board on many of the items in our local contracts," commented District 19 President Mike Bettiol. "It was unfortunate that it took seven months, a full work withdrawal and the threat of arbitration to accomplish this much with the employer. We hope that this spirit of cooperation continues so that we can complete the agreement with the Board in the coming months as we move on to arbitration."

Cindy Dubu , OSSTF/FEESO vice-president and chair of the bargaining team commended the bargaining team members for their efforts and dedication in addressing their members' issues and commented that "OSSTF/FEESO has always believed that it was possible to reach a local negotiated deal despite the Peel Board's refusal to negotiate. We saw more bargaining and movement in these three days of mediation than during all of our previous bargaining dates and achieved results."

"From the beginning, we have said that we respect our secondary teachers as dedicated professionals, who are committed to student success," commented Board Chair Janet McDougald. "We were focused on reaching a fair, negotiated settlement, and are pleased that we resolved our local bargaining issues. At this point, we now must be hopeful that the central table will reach an agreement and the school year can start for Peel students without disruption."

Bolton native performing with Band of the Ceremonial Guard

With their scarlet tunics and bearskin headdress, the Ceremonial Guard of the Canadian Armed Forces, the Band of the Ceremonial Guard and its Pipes and Drums are the most recognizable military unit in Canada.

For more than 50 years, the Changing of the Guard has been a top Ottawa summer attraction, having thrilled thousands of visitors on Parliament Hill. They proudly provide sentries at the National War Memorial and Rideau Hall, the official residence of Gov. Gen. David Johnston.

This year, Bolton resident Corporal Dawn Rego has the opportunity to spend her summer as part of this tradition. She was also able to play in the Canada Day Ceremonies on Parliament Hill.

Rego is a military musician, playing the flute, who has fond memories of attending Humberview Secondary School in Bolton. Having spent two years in the military she said, "It is incredible feeling to represent Canada through powerful and patriotic music."

"There is a tremendous amount of pride in wearing the uniform and playing the national anthem," she added.

Three weeks of intensive drill training, mastering precision movements while playing her instrument, maintaining a high standard of dress and deportment, and undergoing extensive physical fitness

He's a Classic!

Ted Webb

The 11th annual Tour de Terra Cotta was another success, even if the founder, much to his frustration, had to watch from the sidelines.

Ted Webb, 82, had to stand down this year owing to knee replacement surgery a couple of weeks ago. But he was still there, presenting medals to some of the young competitors.

The annual event in the streets around Terra Cotta started almost by accident. Webb was on the executive of the Brampton Cycling Club, and he added a local event in the club's schedule.

"I just put the race in," he said.

And the event grew, getting too big for the club.

Proceeds from this year's race will be going toward buying 12 bikes, helmets and locks to Big Brothers Big Sisters of Halton, as well as in support of Terra Cotta Community Hall and Caledon Meals on Wheels.

Holy Family students learn about Tour for Humanity

By Bill Rea

The Tour of Humanity, presented by Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Centre for Holocaust Studies, is making the rounds of Ontario, and recently stopped in Bolton.

The program is contained as a mobile classroom on a bus. Education Associate Daniella Lurion said it's been running about a year-and-a-half, travelling to various communities throughout Ontario. They have been to about 160 places so far, and about 60,000 people have been through the program, "which is kind of exciting," she said.

Lurion explained there are three different presentations on the tour.

The one they put on for Grade 4 students at Holy Family Elementary School is called The Happy Experience, which deals with things like prejudice. Lurion said the results are two-fold, as the students learn how to productively do something about discrimination, bullying, etc. They also learn about what has happened and how it happened., and how such events tie in with their lives.

Students in higher grades are presented with The Canadian Experience, and it focusses on historical events, such as the history of Aboriginal residential schools, the treatment of Japanese Canadians during the Second World War and cyber bullying. The aim is to draw a comparison between bullying and what's gone on in the past.

Lurion also said there's a stress on asking the youngsters what they can do to address these situations, also urging them to find something they believe in and "do something."

As well, she said she encourages things like simple acts of kindness, which can make a difference.

The Global Experience is the presentation made to high school students, and Lurion said it's somewhat more graphic, dealing with such things as the Holocaust, genocide, etc.

"We do cover it in a very age-appropriate manner," she said.

Simon Wiesenthal, who died in 2005, was Holocaust survivor, who after the war devoted much of his energies to helping to track down Nazi war criminals.

Lurion said they take the tour where they're invited, adding it was Holy Family who contacted them. They usually get to one school per day, and this was the first time the tour had stopped in Bolton.

The tour currently has just the one bus. She said there are hopes they can add more, but that's expensive.

The tour is funded by donations. "We have very generous donators," she commented.

"It's the only one of its kind right now," she added.

Lurion is a teacher who also has a masters degree in Holocaust studies. She added these subjects are not always easy to teach. "The topic is difficult to take for some students," she said, adding she sometimes finds herself talking to high school students who don't realize what went on during the Holocaust. And young people don't always appreciate what went on in Canada's past, with issues like residential schools.

"Canada was not immune," she said, pointing out people were turned away trying to escape the Holocaust. "Canada was not particularly welcoming to a lot of Jews. It's part of our history."

If the rules permit it

We hate to sound cynical when it comes to a federal election. No matter what we all might think of government or politicians, elections are important because they help establish how this country of ours is to be run, what kind of taxes we pay, what sort of economic rules are in place and how we will fulfill our obligations to the rest of the world. Elections are also the best chance for the governed, meaning us, to have some input. But we also go along with what appears to be the prevailing mood out there, that Prime Minister Stephen Harper dropped the writ and dissolved Parliament prematurely. This means we will have to wait 11 weeks until we know the outcome, meaning 11 weeks without a government. There have been several explanations offered as to why Harper did this. The one most frequently mentioned is Harper’s Conservatives have the most money socked away for an election campaign, so they will be able to handle the demands of a lengthy election period better than the other parties. Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson also observed that the parties have already been campaigning, since the Oct. 19 election date has been known for some time, and since Parliament has been in place, they have been able to do a lot of this at public expense. The point is valid, and that does raise the question as to whether fixing election dates was such a hot idea after all. We have never seen the need or the advantage of such provisions, but we’ll repeat those arguments another time.

The fact is certain rules are in place, and it’s up to the political parties to obey them. But if they can obey them and still find some benefit, then what’s the problem? While Parliament was in session, the parties had been trying to get their messages out to the voters. If the rules allow them to do such things on the public dime, then we have to expect them to do just that. And if dropping the writ early is permitted and gives the governing party an advantage, then we have to expect the prime minister to explore that advantage. The coach of a hockey team does not bench the top scorer because of concerns that represents an unfair advantage. The smart coach takes full advantage. But there is a caution that all the parties had better keep in mind. Just because the rules say something is okay does not mean the electorate are going to approve. Former Ontario premier David Peterson learned that lesson the hard way when he called an election less than three years into his mandate, and found himself unemployed. He violated no rules when he did it. It’s just the voters didn’t approve. As we stated above, there seems to be a bit of grumbling that the election call came so early. True, that grumbling could settle in the 11 weeks to come and all but disappear. Or it could get a lot louder. It was Harper’s call to make, and the consequences will be his to live with.

Our Readers Write Have Conservatives been ‘pre-election campaigning?’

The following letter, addressed to Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson, was submitted to the citizen for publication. Please clarify for me. This morning (Aug. 2), I just heard our current Prime Minister, Stephen Harper, give a speech announcing the dissolution of Parliament and the beginning of a very long and expensive election campaign. He announced that the political parties would be paying for the campaign. However, I understand that the Canadian taxpayers reimburse the eligible political parties at 50 cents on the dollar, the eligible candidates at 60 cents on the dollar, and Elections Canada for every dollar spent. If this is true, then it’s at odds with what the Prime Minister said on national television, and Canadian taxpayers will be paying millions more for a 78 day campaign than for the minimum 37-day campaign. I would also like you to clarify the difference in the current Prime Minister’s opening statements when he referred in French to Canada’s top three priorities for security, the economy and the environment, but only mentioned security and the economy in the English speech. I would also like you to clarify if the dropping of more than $1 billion in public funds should be classified as pre-election campaigning. Thanks for your attention to this matter.

Six months, we’ll complain it’s cold

There are those who will open sentences with the words “I hate to say I told you so.” Since I like to think of myself as an honest man, I try to avoid using those words. The reason is, like most of you, I love being able to say “I told you so.” It offers a great feeling of vindication, of justification, of validation. In even more simple terms, it’s just nice to be proven right for a change. I’ve thought that a lot over the last week or so, as I’ve heard people complain about the excessive heat. And you have to admit, things did get very hot around here over a couple of days.

I was reminded of the complaining I heard six months ago, when we were all freezing in that winter of recent and dubious memory. We didn’t get the ice storm we had the year before, and there were relatively few mornings when I had to get up early to shovel the driveway. But it was cold, wasn’t it? And I heard plenty of people complaining about it. “Six months from now, we’ll be complaining about the heat,” I would remind some of these people, and usually get staunch denials in return. “I never complain about the heat,” some of them would tell me, sometimes indignantly. I think about those occasions during summer heat waves. I’ve heard people complaining, and I sometimes suggest they cast their thoughts back about six months. The fact is I’m not terribly great when it comes to extreme heat or extreme cold. Okay, call me hard to please! The thing is cold is relatively easy to deal with. If the situation requires it, put on more layers. They can be removed if the situation justifies it.

The only thing that really bothers me about winter is the heavy snow. If memory serves, this past winter included one major dumping that took me a couple of hours to clear (at my age too). Ironically, we usually get hammered during the first week of February, which is also when my birthday falls. The presents I consistently get from Mother Nature leave a lot to be desired. And since I have to do a lot of driving in my job, I prefer roads that are clear of the white stuff. On the other hand, I have learned over the years how to drive in adverse conditions. But it never pays to get too uppity, does it? And there’s always a little apprehension on really cold winter mornings as to whether the car will start. Things worked out reasonably well for me this winter, although the battery in my wife’s car started showing attitude at inopportune times. But we got through it. Lest you get the wrong idea, I’m not a big fan of freezing, thus like so many of you, I eagerly look forward to the warmer weather.

But dealing with heat is a different matter. For one thing, one can only toss so many layers before running out. And then there might be legal implications (I don’t know for sure and I have no desire to find out the hard way). I can handle hot temperatures as well as the next man, assuming men (or women for that matter) can really handle it. I do find standing out in the hot sun for prolonged periods drains one’s energy pretty quickly, and thoroughly. There have been lots of times when I’ve returned to the office after covering some outdoor event in a heat wave, and about the only thing I’ve felt like working on was a nap.

But there are precautions that can be taken against the heat, and I usually take them, and I am sometimes amazed that there are others who don’t. For example, there were a number of assignments in the last week that required me to be out in the hot sun for a long time; on the order of hours in some cases. There were others at these events too. In one case, those in attendance came close to numbering 100. It’s normally possible to find shade on such occasions, but not always. Yet I’m surprised at the number of people who don’t wear hats to protect their noggins from the heat.

I carry a baseball cap in my car just about all the time. It’s from Caledon Fire and Emergency Services, and I will grant that it’s getting a bit worn. On the other hand, the protection from the heat that it provides takes precedence. And if I know I’m going to be under the sun for a prolonged period, I make sure it’s on my head. There was an occasion about 10 years ago when I was working in another community, and I took part in a tour of the lands being eyed for a subdivision (which has since been built). It was in what then was a farmer’s field on a blistering hot day. There were four of us doing the tour; a high-ranking representative of the developer, one of his senior planners and two representatives of the media. Somewhat to my surprise, I was the only member of that quartet who was wearing a hat. That’s a rather crucial point, because as the tour was winding down, both the developer’s rep and my competition were showing signs of distress. Indeed, I ended up having to steer my competitor back to her car.

She later thanked me, joking that I might have been worried that I would have had to carry her. I replied by asserting my belief that she was not about to start carrying me. As well, I usually carry a supply of sunscreen with me. There are also matters of keeping one’s self hydrated. I received a bit of a lesson in that regard during the recent Pan Am Games in Palgrave. Unless they had paid a hell of a lot of money, people attending the equestrian events sat in stands that were not covered. VIPs got to sit in the shade. I once wandered close to the VIP area, out of curiosity if nothing else, and was promptly directed to do a very quick about-face (I should also point out that the media had easy access to a well shaded area, but that was not always the best spot from which to take action photos). The point is most people attending the various competitions had to sit out in the open. People attending the games were allowed to bring water bottles with them, but not water. Security personnel inspected all bags, including my camera bag, and since my water bottle was not sealed, I was obliged to dump it all into the sand before I could pass through. From their point of view, I guess they had no way of knowing whether I was trying to sneak in a bottle filled with vodka. But on the positive side, there were stations on the site at which people could fill their bottles at no cost. I availed myself of the service frequently. And there were lots of people with the same idea. There was often a line-up to fill bottles. Of course, there’s an easier way to deal with heat. Find an air conditioned room and wait until winter. Then you can complain about the cold.

Ombudsman’s recent report highlights Hydro One problems

Last week, Ontario’s Ombudsman released his 2014-2015 Annual Report.

In the Ombudsman’s report, it highlights issues regarding the Family Responsibility Office (FRO), the Ontario Disability Support Program (ODSP) and the Workplace Safety Insurance Board (WSIB). One of the significant issues highlighted in the report was Hydro One’s overbilling scandal. Last year alone, the Ombudsman’s office received 3,499 complaints about Hydro One. Unfortunately, this will be the last Ombudsman report that highlights the problems of Hydro One, because the Wynne Liberal government has stripped away independent oversight of Hydro One.

Too often, I have heard complaints about soaring energy costs in our province, and the terrible practices at Hydro One. In all, the cases my office and I heard this year, regarding hydro bills that have gone unpaid, are well over $1,000. In one particular case, a customer received seven hydro bills in one month and were in the range of $2,400 to $3,700, even though their hydro bill on average was about $300 per month. That is a staggering jump, and clearly shows there are issues at Hydro One. Customers are paying what they can, but they simply can’t keep up, resulting in families living in a state of energy poverty.

When I first became an MPP in 2007, I received one call about hydro per month, now I receive one or two calls a day. The Wynne Liberals have no plan to deal with the systemic problems at Hydro One that continues to hurt Ontarians across the province. Instead, the Wynne Liberals plan to sell-off Hydro One, even though 73 per cent of Ontarians do not want Hydro One to be privately owned. The Ontario government should be about protecting Ontarians from the problems of Hydro One, instead they are ignoring Ontarians’ concerns and exacerbating them and forcing Ontarians to continue paying the highest hydro rates in all of North America. Worse yet, is the process for selling-off Hydro One will be made behind closed doors, and once sold, Hydro One will never be evaluated by the Auditor General, the Ombudsman and the six other Ontario government watchdogs.

The Wynne Liberals have completely botched the energy file, whether it is the $2 billion Smart Meter scandal, the $1 billion gas plant scandal, or the overbilling practices at Hydro One and now the sell-off of Hydro One.

The Wynne Liberals are not in it for Ontarians. We need to fix Ontario’s crippled energy sector before it’s irreversible. Please join me and my Progressive Conservative colleagues in calling for an end to the Hydro One sell-off.

Lots of fun had at annual Cheltenham Day

The weather was perfect recently for the annual Cheltenham Day festivities. The Soapbox Derby always attracts a lot of attention at Cheltenham Day. Joey Jacombe, 9, narrowly beat Jack McMullin for the junior championship. Third place was taken by Brooklynn Corbett. The senior title was won by Alyson McElhone, followed by Scott McElhone and Darcy McClure.

Who taught these kids table manners? There were many of the old favourite attractions at Cheltenham Day, including the pie-eating contest There was lots of enthusiasm in the audience as these competitors were being cheered on.

Quebec seeks independence

A more probable outcome of the October federal election will be a minority government led by Green Party leader Elizabeth May with the Official Opposition to be led by Bloc Québécois leader Gilles Duceppe. Followers of Canadian politics who rely on members of the Canadian Parliamentary Press Gallery clique are sorely uninformed of the progress toward an independent Québec in recent important events.

Former Ontario Premier James Whitney, who introduced Regulation 17 in 1912, which banned the teaching of French in Ontario schools, will continue to divide Canada by the perpetuation of English-language press gallery writers to deny the existence of the reality of the commitment of the Bloc and Parti Québécois to establish the nation of Québec.

Guessing outcome is sheer folly

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

Fiinally, they’re off.

After several months of unofficial electioneering by all three major parties, Prime Minister Stephen Harper stopped campaigning just long enough on the weekend to make it official – Oct. 19.

The good news is that they’ll now be spending party money – although a good part of that is subsidized by taxpayers – instead of campaigning with direct tax money.

The bad news is, you can expect to be constantly bombarded by election ads and political speeches for the next 11 weeks, about double the normal length of these things.

The public opinion polls have long suggested this could be the first real three-way election campaign in a long time, with both the Tories and NDP seemingly at or near the top and the Liberals trailing but far from out of it.

You’ll recall that when Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau first took over his struggling party he vaulted to the head of the class – according to the polls and the pundits, that is – but a series of stupid mistakes and a serious lack of, well, being serious about policy, have seen him sinking like the proverbial stone for some time.

NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair, on the other hand, who must have been really ticked at the early Trudeau rave reviews – since he actually appears to have substance, while Trudeau, beyond a natural charm and his Hollywood looks, has little to offer – has recently gone on a run upwards in the polls to the point where some political pundits (particularly those who can’t stand Harper) think he can become Canada’s first NDP prime minister.

As for Harper, well, this is his fifth national campaign, and like any politician who has been around this long, he’s created a lot of enemies in the process. Then again, as the saying goes, he’s generally not creating many new enemies, but is simply confirming the bias of the large number of Canadians who have never liked him.

Since the Tories have a far larger war chest than either the NDP or the Liberals, there is little doubt that a longer campaign favors Harper, giving him far more time to spend some of those millions demonizing his main opponents. Until now, most of the Tory ads were aimed at Trudeau – “he’s just not ready” – but now they’ll set their sights on Mulcair, a leader who, despite (or perhaps because of) his rise in the polls has had very little personal scrutiny from a generally sympathetic media.

That will change. He may soon have to explain how he intends to pay for the plethora of grand national schemes he is promising. Worse, he may also have to convince the rest of Canada outside of Quebec – his home province – why he believes that a vote of 50 percent-plus-one vote in a referendum would be enough to split the country (contrary to the Supreme Court view of a “clear majority”) while his own party’s constitution calls for a two-thirds vote to change.

He may also be asked to explain how he plans to lead the country while holding a dual citizenship with France, a practice that former NDP leader Jack Layton found unacceptable – and unCanadian – when he ran against then Liberal leader Stephane Dion, who also was a dual Canada-France citizen. Interesting.

As for Harper, people like him or they don’t. But politics being what it is, even some who don’t like him will end up voting for him on the rather common basis that they see the other two as less attractive alternatives.

Some point to the recent NDP win in Alberta as a sign that change is definitely in the air. If this is true then one assumes that Mulcair, more so than Trudeau, would be the main beneficiary.

Unfortunately for those who cling to this theory, however, it is rarely possible to compare results in provincial elections with those in federal. Just look at Ontario. For years when the Tories held power at Queen’s Park, Ontarians voted in far more Liberals to Ottawa than they did Tories. Now with the Liberals holding sway at Queen’s Park, the Tories have prospered federally in Ontario far beyond the numbers they enjoyed when their provincial counterparts held power. And so it goes.

Guessing the outcome of a campaign at this stage is sheer folly. History has shown that campaigns do matter.

Certainly the Tories, with a strong majority and lots of cash going in, could win. But so too could the NDP, at least a minority, if Mulcair runs a good campaign (something he hasn’t been tested on yet.)

If pundits or anybody else really knew how it would turn out we could simply ask them and save all this hassle.

But that’s not the way it works.

There were games for the younger folks to try. Miah Kortekaas of Cheltenham watched as Quinn Travers, 4, of Belfountain tried her luck at fishpond.

The Duck Race along the Credit River drew lots of attention. Ken May was dropping the ducks off the bridge.

Overhauled coaching staff ready for Golden Hawks season

By Jake Courtepatte

With pre-season play set to kick off next month, the junior C Caledon Golden Hawks will be hitting the ice with a few fresh faces behind the bench.

Brampton's Ken Robbins has brought three members of his staff to join him on the Golden Hawks' executive, after finding success as a head coach within Brampton's minor league system over the past few years.

"We had a desire to move up, and we're happy and excited for this opportunity," said Robbins.

Robbins, along with his staff of assistant coaches Ryan Susteras, Casey Hermanus and Jim Steele, and trainer Tony DeRuyte have hit some coaching milestones in recent years.

They share an Ontario Hockey Federation title, two Ontario Minor Hockey Association titles and an International Silver Stick Tournament win. Susteras is the only member of staff who chose not to take an official role with the club, opting to spend more time with his young family.

"He'll still lend a hand with the team when he's got time, he just doesn't have a title of coach," said Robbins.

The years of experience on the staff is almost unheard of in minor league circles, between them boasting a combined 100 years of experience. Robbins began coaching in 1999, moving up the ladder from house-league bench boss to the AAA ranks.

Over the past four season, Robbins and his staff have helped their teams to an amazing 206-64-30 record. He spent last season as coach of the AAA Midget Brampton 45's.

With the Golden Hawks, the goal is clear: To take the team deep into the Georgina Mid-Ontario Hockey League playoffs for the first time.

"It's a good young team with lots of potential."

Robbins replaces ex-NHL tough guy Sandy McCarthy as the team's new bench boss, who stepped down after another early exit in the 2014-15 postseason.

The fifth-place Golden Hawks fell in four straight games to the Penetang Kings in the first round of last season's playoffs, and have yet to make it further in their five-year history.

The pre-season unofficially opens with the Alliston Hornets annual pre-season tournament, set for the second weekend in September. Main camps are ongoing throughout the GMOHL all of August. Hawks, visit www.pointstreaksites.com/jrcgoldenhawks

Top Canadian

Andrew York finishes seventh at Pan Am Games

It's been a busy year for Caledon's Andrew Yorke.

Twelve months ago, the former Humberview Secondary School student was the top Canadian, in fourth place at the Commonwealth Games in Scotland.

Yorke came home from those games with two fourth-place finishes and a knowledge that he could race with the best in the world. After a very big winter of hard training in Guelph and South Carolina, he was fourth once again in a major race in New Zealand in the spring.

This past week, Yorke had more than 500 Caledon-based fans and family down in Toronto for the 2015 Pan Am Triathlon, where he was the top Canadian once again in a very close seventh place finish.

"Honestly, the course was too easy for Andrew's incredible biking strength and he came off the bike with a bigger pack than he would have normally seen had the bike been up on something tough like the Forks of the Credit Road," said his long-time C3 coach Barrie Shepley.

Shepley thought the pancake flat Lakeshore at the CNE didn't give Andrew the home-town benefit he would have liked to have seen.

"As much as it was great to have the race in Ontario, I would have selfishly like to have seen the race up in Caledon on our tough roads, where I honestly believe Andrew would have had a legitimate chance to win the overall race," Shepley observed.

The Town of Caledon and C3 have gotten behind Yorke's goal to make it to the Rio Olympics next year with a massive Friends of Andrew Yorke fundraiser that was held in early May.

The proceeds from that supper and C3's on-going support, were designed to allow him to do all the right training in the right locations from now until Rio next August.

Yorke has a major opportunity to be preselected to the 2016 Rio Olympic team by having a big performance Aug. 2 in Rio Brazil when he races on the actual Olympic test course.

"Andrew has consistently been the top Canadian when it mattered over the last two years and he has done the work, made the sacrifices and is ready to become an Olympian," Shepley said.

Shepley was doing the live commentary at the Pan Am Games race site where Yorke was racing last week.

"Looking out and seeing Tracey and Ward Yorke along with hundreds of C3 and Caledon supporters on the race venue waving flags and cheering for Andrew was quite emotional," Shepley said.

"Watching Andrew go from a 14-year-old C3 young-gun novice athlete to the Pan Am Games and hopefully next year's Olympic Games is a truly special feeling for the entire C3 club and the town."

IBHL finals are tonight

George's Arena Spots are looking really great heading into the final evening of post-season action in the Inglewood Ball Hockey League.

The season is scheduled to wrap up tonight (Thursday), and George's has posted a 5-0, record in the post-season so far.

Ron's Tire Discounter posted a win last Tuesday to pull into second place in the round-robin standings.

In a close, even match, the short-benched Carney crew just couldn't quite get it done, while Ron's netted one in the third to get the game.

Ron's hero was Anthony Mellace from Josh Rowland and Dillon Hesketh.

George's Arena Sports 5
Caledon Hills Cycling 1

In a game that was closer than the score would indicate, George's continued on their run for the cup.

Net nabbers for George's were Justin Fiorini and Chris Mete with two goals apiece and Chris Della Morra, with help from Fiorini, Della Morra, David Ruffalo, Mike Volpe, Anthony Villari and Matt Chiarantano.

Caledon Hills Cycling's lone marksman was Dave Philips unassisted.

11th annual Tour de Terra Cotta was another success

The weather was a little ominous in the morning, but the rain held off and a full day of bike racing was had Monday at the 11th annual Tour de Terra. The hamlet was packed with cycling enthusiasts, as well as those to cheer them on. The Elite Road Race was the high point of the day, with competitors turning in 12 laps for 104 kilometres. Among the women, Suzie Brown on Markham was tops, followed by Ashley Barson of Bolton in second and Jennifer Stephenson of Ottawa in third.

Wade into Check Your Watershed Day 2015

Join Credit Valley Conservation (CVC), Trout Unlimited Canada and Ontario Streams for the annual Check Your Watershed Day Aug. 8, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Volunteers are needed to investigate the health of local streams in the watershed.

Check Your Watershed Day is an annual opportunity for local citizens interested in the environment to gain hands-on experience and participate in important research. Volunteers record water temperatures and culvert type and take photos of culverts.

"The data collected during this event is essential to our work in the watershed," said Mike Puddister, CVC deputy CAO and director of watershed transformation. "It gives us a better understanding of what's happening in our local environment and where we need to direct efforts in order to protect and manage our valuable natural resources."

Since joining the program in 2011, CVC has conducted more than 350 visits at 226 sites. Data collected helps prioritize restoration projects. It identifies watercourses and areas where high water temperatures may impact coldwater fish communities. It provides year-over-year data on water temperature changes or flows over time.

Pre-registration is required. Volunteers should meet at Terra Cotta Conservation Area at 12:45 p.m. to receive training and pick up equipment. Participants will be put into Stream Teams of two to four people. Volunteers must have good mobility. Participants will be asked to wear rubber boots or hip waders. Some access points to stream monitoring sites may be steep or unstable. Stream Teams will go to assigned sites in Caledon, Erin and Halton Hills. Certificates will be awarded to volunteers at the end of the event.

Participants must be 18 or older, unless accompanied by a parent. Each volunteer group will require a car to access their assigned sites, as well as a digital camera and a cell phone. For information, visit <http://www.creditvalleyca.ca/event/check-your-watershed-day-4/>

DEATHS

DEATHS

BOWMAN, Doris Eunice (nee Welfare)

Peacefully at Dufferin Oaks Long Term Care, Shelburne on Sunday, August 2, 2015 at the age of 85. Beloved wife of the late Gord. Loving mother of Susan (Mike Robinson), Jim (Patty), and Sharon (Andy McLean). Cherished grandmother of Jessica, Stephanie, Sarah, Tyler, Scot, Kevin, Nicole, and Sydney. Dear sister of the late Irene (late Cliff McCutcheon); and sister-in-law of the late Evelyn (late David Wilson), June (late Hilliard Matson), and Helen (George Grainger). Doris will also be greatly missed by other relatives and friends.

Visitation was held at the Dods & McNair Funeral Home, Chapel & Reception Centre, 21 First Street, Orangeville on Wednesday from 7-9 p.m. Funeral service was held in the Chapel on Thursday, August 6th, 2015 at 11 a.m. Interment Greenwood Cemetery, Orangeville. Memorial donations to Parkinson Society Canada or Knox United Church, Caledon would be appreciated by the family. A tree will be planted in memory of Doris in the Dods & McNair Memorial Forest at the Island Lake Conservation Area, Orangeville. A dedication service will be held on Sunday, September 13, 2015 at 2:30 p.m. Condolences may be offered to the family at www.dodsandmcnair.com

COTTON, Herb (Herbert William Thomas)

Peacefully in his sleep, at Headwaters Health Care Centre on Sunday, August 2, 2015 in his 88th year. Predeceased by his parents Thomas & Ethel (nee Duffy) Cotton. Herb will be loved and missed by siblings Ches (Marge), and the late Irene Rankin Thayer (Jim); nieces and nephews Debbie Foster (Ken), Doug Rankin (Lou), Beverley Rankin-Byrne (David), Bob Rankin (Jackie), Brad Cotton (Louise), Cindy McLean (Al), and Kent Cotton; 19 great and 5 great-great nieces and nephews.

Funeral Service will be held at Dods & McNair Funeral Home & Chapel & Reception Centre, 21 First St., Orangeville on Thursday, August 6th, 2015 at 2:30 pm. Visitation will be held one hour prior. Interment Forest Lawn Cemetery, Orangeville. Memorial donations to Headwaters Health Care Foundation would be appreciated by the family.

A tree will be planted in memory of Herb in the Dods & McNair Memorial Forest at the Island Lake Conservation Area, Orangeville. A dedication service will be held on Sunday, September 13, 2015 at 2:30 p.m. Condolences may be offered to the family at www.dodsandmcnair.com

DOAN, Harold Jr.

Harold, beloved brother to James and Ruby, lost his valiant battle with cancer on Tuesday, July 21, 2015 at Headwaters Health Care Centre, Orangeville. Predeceased by his sister Benita and his parents Harold Sr. and Rachael (Ruby) Doan.

His lifelong interest in history and genealogy led Harold to become a founding member and curator of Dufferin County Museum at its original location in Shelburne. His research into his family roots drew him to join The Society of Friends (Quakers) and also amass a personal library of the history of Ontario. This type of information he happily shared with the Doane Family Association of America and he looked forward to attending their annual reunions. Harold was an active member of the community, sitting on various boards and committees. He touched many lives with his caring and compassion. At the age of 31, he became a trustee on the Dufferin Board of Education. Over the years he has sat on the boards of Family Transition Place, Waterloo-Wellington-Dufferin Mental Health and the early vision of Community Living Dufferin. Starting in the 1970's, Harold worked with his father to develop a successful construction business which later evolved into locksmithing. Harold was instrumental in ensuring Harold Doan and Sons continued after the passing of Harold Sr. and was active in the business until the time of his cancer diagnosis last fall. He then became a vital part of the locksmithing business operating the office and doing the bookkeeping while James maintains the mobile business. Harold will be sadly missed by his many friends and grieved by James and Ruby who feel the loss of their big brother keenly.

The family received friends at the Dods & McNair Funeral Home, Chapel & Reception Centre, Orangeville on Thursday, July 30, 2015 from 2:00-4:00 and 6:00-8:00 pm. Funeral Service was held in the chapel on Friday July 31, 2015 at 2:00 p.m. with Reception and Burial following.

We greatly appreciate the level of care and support extended by Headwaters Health Care Centre, especially the dedicated staff of ICU and Palliative Care as well as his primary physician Dr. Baath and oncologist Dr. Reingold. We also want to acknowledge the tremendous help at home provided by the caregivers of Bayshore Home Health. Harold was able to confide with them and gain reassurance through their exemplary care. Memorial donations may be made in Harold's name to Headwaters Health Care Foundation. (Condolences may be offered to the family at www.dodsandmcnair.com)

Strong businesses are the foundation of a prosperous Ontario

The Ontario Chamber of Commerce (OCC) is Ontario's largest, most inclusive, and credible business network and that is why with each membership the Caledon Chamber of Commerce writes, a portion of that fee is submitted to our provincial Chamber.

Together the Chamber network undertakes research on Ontario's most pressing policy issues from a business perspective. We propose and advocate for solutions that will foster the growth of Ontario businesses and lead to the creation of jobs in the province. Our work is based on the belief that strong businesses are the foundation of a prosperous Ontario.

The OCC's policy work is evidence-based and driven by its members. Together we make a difference.

The Chamber network, both Provincially and Federally are a respected voice among government decision-makers and our solutions-based advocacy sets us apart.

This month the Caledon Chamber joined with the Ontario Chamber regarding a Call for Action on rising Electricity Costs in Ontario.

In the most widely consulted report in the organization's history, the Ontario Chamber of Commerce (OCC) has called on the Government of Ontario to take immediate action and address the business community's rising electricity costs. The report, Empowering Ontario: Constraining Costs and Staying Competitive in the Electricity Market, makes five recommendations that government and energy agencies should take to curb costs and keep business in the province.

The report is accompanied by public opinion research from Leger, which cautions that soaring electricity prices have reached a crisis point for Ontario businesses and consumers. The research finds that 81 percent of Ontarians are concerned that rising electricity prices will impact the health of the Ontario economy and the same percentage fear that rising electricity prices will impact their disposable income. These numbers rise to over 90 percent in northern Ontario.

"The price of electricity in Ontario is set to rise over the next two decades, adding to the cost of doing business in the province," said Allan O'Dette, President & CEO of the OCC "If real and meaningful action is not taken to mitigate these increases, businesses will leave the province, jobs will be lost, and our economy will suffer."

Among the report's recommendations is to keep the Debt Retirement Charge on residential bills until it has been retired, spreading the burden of past government decisions across ratepayers. The Chamber also recommends that government improve the transparency of electricity pricing and system cost drivers. By publishing average electricity rates and disclosing the costs of important investments, government will be held accountable for future decision-making. The lack of transparency in the system has led to reduced customer engagement and confidence in the electricity market. Currently, less than half of Ontarians understand the drivers that contribute to rising electricity bills.

"The Ontario Chamber Network of 60,000 businesses consistently hears that the price of electricity is undermining their members' capacity to grow, hire new workers, and attract investment," said O'Dette. "The Government of Ontario has before them a number of decisions that must be made in order to bend the trajectory of soaring electricity costs. A first step will be to increase the transparency of decision-making in the system so that there is clear accountability and confidence in the electricity market."

Your Caledon Chamber of Commerce will be following the dialogue between our Provincial Chamber and our current government. Growing the local Chamber network of businesses is a signal that this issue is of concern to you – join by visiting www.caledonchamber.com
