Police said this took place early in the morning of Sept. 23.

They were called to the area of Highway 10, north of Valleywood Boulevard at about 12:35 a.m. They were able to speak to the man and determine he has consumed alcohol. The man was ordered to provide a breath sample and the test result registered a failure, meaning he was arrested. It was subsequently determined his blood-alcohol content was more than three times the legal limit.

The man was charged with having care and control of a vehicle with more than the legal limit of alcohol in his system.

His licence was suspended for 90 days, and his vehicle was impounded for seven.

Autumn is a busy time of year for sight- progress at CVC conservation areas, visseers and locals who want to enjoy the it changing colours of the season.

Some of the best places to admire fall or follow CVC on twitter at twitter.com/ colours are around Caledon. Credit Valley cvc_ca Conservation (CVC) has a number of conservation areas that offer ideal opportunities to take in autumn's splendor.

"This is an ideal time of year to get out and enjoy nature," said Mark Thompson, senior manager of corporate assets for CVC. "We encourage visitors to enjoy the vibrant colour change at our parks. We are so fortunate to have several properties on the Niagara Escarpment that provide beautiful scenic locations for day trips."

Some of the best autumn displays are at Terra Cotta, Limehouse, Silver Creek and Belfountain Conservation Areas, in the heart of the Niagara Escarpment. There is plenty of colour at other CVC properties throughout the Credit River watershed, from Rattray Marsh on the shores of Lake Ontario to Island Lake Conservation Area near Orangeville. Each of these areas offer opportunities to explore nature together and to appreciate the splendor of fall colour changes on trails, boardwalks, bridges or bike paths.

Fall colour experts across the province advise that colours are changing slowly this year. The progress of autumn colours is unpredictable from year to year because of shorter days, rapid temperature change, rain and wind. If you wait

Lots of pumpkins at Community Farm

The Albion Hills Community Farm was a very busy place last Saturday as the facility hosted its first Pumpkin Fest. Emma Van Limburg, 6, of Palgrave found it was quite a task to push this wheelbarrow when it also contained a big pumpkin like this.

Imagine running through rolling hills and wetlands, finding fossils, butterflies and hummingbirds. Reading poetry under an oak tree. Launching a rocket into the big blue sky. Now imagine teachers aren't ringing the bell to get you to come back in, they are out there with you, doing all the same things. Is the sky the limit? Not around here it isn't. It simply gives our students a massive playing field to seek out their own magical answers to the question,

Let's hope for a much closer result the most unusual federal constituencies in Canadian history.

The riding of Cardwell was unique in containing parts of Simcoe (later Dufferin) and Peel counties, and was apparently created to guarantee a seat for the Conservatives, come what may.

Cardwell existed from 1867 to 1904, and always sent a Conservative to Ottawa, usually by a large margin. The riding consisted of Adjala, Mono, Albion (including Bolton) and Caledon.

Since then, constituency boundaries have changed many times but one constant has remained. The only time this area sent a non-Conservative to Ottawa was when there were two conservative parties, the Progressive Conservatives and Reform/Canadian Alliance.

Today, David Tilson is seeking his fifth straight term as Conservative MP for Dufferin-Caledon. There may well be benefits to be derived from living in one of the "safest" Conservative ridings east of Alberta, but if there are, we haven't observed them.

Provincially, one consequence was the downloading of major provincial highways on local taxpayers, leaving Dufferin and Caledon ratepayers paying far more property taxes per dollar of assessment than residents of any part of Toronto.

Federally, Dufferin-Caledon has never experienced any investment in such things as federally owned office buildings or even a federal park like Toronto's Rouge Valley park. And even in the longest federal election campaign since 1874, this part of Canada hasn't been visited by Stephen Harper, Justin Trudeau or Thomas Mulcair, all three seeing the local outcome as inevitably a fifth term for Tilson.

In the circumstances, it would be foolhardy for us to depart from a long tradition of not endorsing a party in a federal or provincial election, preferring instead simply to report on newsworthy events and give all the candidates an opportunity to explain to our readers why they were running and deserved their support.

This time around, Dufferin-Caledon voters will be able to choose from among four good candidates, and no one knows what portion of the local electorate will cast ballots primarily for a party or for its local candidate.

However, if recent national polling has been accurate, the D-C Liberals should do a lot better than they did in 2011, when they wound up in fourth spot behind the Green and NDP with about 13 per cent of the votes cast, down from 39 per cent in 2004, when Tilson edged out former MP Murray Calder.

With the national polls last weekend showing Justin Trudeau's Liberals more than six percentage points ahead of the Conservatives and roughly double the paltry 18.9 per cent of the popular vote the party received nationally with leader Michael Ignatieff in 2011, Ed Crewson is likely hoping for a second-place finish this

Of course, much will depend on whether any significant number of D-C voters opt to vote "strategically," seeing little difference between the stances in the Liberal, Green and NDP platforms and perhaps finding Trudeau more likeable than Ignatieff and his predecessor as Liberal leader, Stephane Dion.

With the advance polling now history and the election now just four days away, the one thing that seems certain is that none of the three main parties will win a majority of House of Commons seats. That being the case, there would seem to be a likelihood that if the Conservatives wind up winning a few more seats than the Liberals and NDP, Harper will opt to continue in office and present a Speech from the Throne that would be attractive to the other parties.

 $However, if \, recent \, statements \, by \, Trudeau \, and \, Mulcair \, are \, to \, be \quad of \ \, the \ \, headlights \, \, on \, \, my$ believed, the two leaders are prepared to work together to end the car went out of commis-Tory tenure in Ottawa, and the only question remaining will be sion. Vote!

We are coming to the end of what has been a long federal election campaign. There are some who say it's been too long. Who home late at night and I learned that car was more than 10 years old (it had cares? It's almost over.

This coming Monday (Oct. 19) is election day. It's the day that we are expected to get out and decide how we want this country of ours to be governed for the next couple of years.

Like most Canadians, we don't know how things are going to turn out after Monday. We are not prognosticators here, and we know of very few people who are willing to go out on a limb and predict who's going to form the next government of Canada.

We do know that the right to vote is one that many, many people in this world don't have. It's also a right that many young men fought and died in two World Wars to make sure we have. Yet there are so many people in this country who, for reasons that defy logic, don't bother to vote. It makes no sense.

Here in Dufferin-Caledon, we have four very worthy candidates who have stepped up to run. One of them is going to be elected, but all four deserve that you get out and vote.

If you don't owe it to them, you certainly owe it to the people who died to get you the vote.

It happened today

It was a powerful storm, having already caused considerable grief in the Caribbean and Carolinas on her sweep north.

But conventional wisdom pronounced her dead in New York state. That should have been the end of the story. But a new storm centre formed on the west side of the mountains, south of Buffalo, and that became the dominant Another oddity was the timing. It hit the Carolina coast at the perfect time — at high water during a full-moon tide in the fall.

People in these parts were not expecting what they received, but the storm moved into Southern Ontario with a force that will probably never be forgotten, causing massive flooding in various places, including Bolton. Hurricane Haze struck the area this day, Oct. 15, 1954.

CANADIAN TIRE GETS CONTRIBUTION FOR JUMPSTART

Chris Hartleib from Canadian Tire Bolton recently received two cheques presented by Cindy Sliwocki and Bob Holmes of Torbsa Limited in Bolton. Torbsa had a golf tournament in July with their shareholders and vendors. A total of $3,420 was donated by Torbsa and Select Acoustic Supply Inc. to Canadian Tire Jumpstart Charities. No kid should be left on the sidelines, but in Canada one in three families cannot afford to enroll their children in organized sports. Money raised for Jumpstart stays within the community and goes directly to help kids participate in sport, dance or other organized physical activities. Jumpstart funding helps families that need a financial hand with registration and equipment. All customer donations go directly to help kids in need.

WE DON'T BREW OUR BEER FOR THE AWARDS!

BUT HE DOES!

Andrew threw away a successful career in Logistics to pursue his dream of reconnecting with the brewing roots of his family. This carried him to the UK's prestigious Brewlab in Sunderland, England, where he procured the alchemy that would drive his signature brewing style.

He took what he could from there and ventured to Scotland, Cornwall, and ultimately to Krefeld, Germany to pick up near where his mother's family brewery had been, working in the samel brewery that had belonged to his ancestors. He came home to Canada for Hockley.

You could call it dumb, but we call it destiny.
