Council gets first look at proposed 2016 budget

By Bill Rea

How does a 3.8 per cent property tax increase sound?

Caledon councillors received their first formal look at Town staff's 2016 budget proposals and the current figures are pointing to a 3.8 per cent hike in the overall tax bill.

The figures that staff presented Tuesday would see the Town's portion of the tax bill increase by 5.8 per cent. As the lower-tier municipality, Caledon is responsible to collecting taxes for education, as well as for Peel Region. Councillors were reminded by staff Tuesday that the Town kept 37 per cent of the taxes it collected in 2015, while 32 per cent went to the Region and the remaining 31 per cent went toward education.

Treasurer Peggy Tollett said staff had estimated the Regional budget will be up about two per cent for 2016, and that will equate to a 0.7 per cent hike to the taxes Caledon residents pay. She added the figures are based on an assumption that the educational portion of property taxes will stay the same.

As well, there are proposals for a storm water management plan, as well as a levy to facilitate bringing broadband internet to town.

Tollett told councillors work on the budget so far has been a "collaborative effort" involving all departments.

Tuesday's session was the first of several meetings at which the budget will be discussed. The next will be a public open house and special council meeting planned for Dec. 1, starting at 7 p.m. The current plan calls for approval of the budget Jan. 19.

The Town owns almost $542 million in assets, and many of those are showing depreciation. Efforts are being made to create a tax-supported fund to cover that.

Director of Corporate Services Fuwing Wong pointed out there are a number of pressures governing the 2016 budget, including inflation, cost of living adjustments and negotiated wage settlements

Peel will hold meeting on BRES by end of February

By Bill Rea

Peel Region is moving ahead with processing the results of the Bolton Residential Expansion Study (BRES).

Regional councillors last Thursday directed staff to schedule the required Public Information Meeting for BRES for before the end of February.

This came after lengthy discussion much of it in camera, involving the use of Provincial facilitation to address Bolton land-use planning matters.

Regional council, in July, voted to take part in facilitation, over the strong objections of Caledon’s five representatives. Last Thursday’s meeting saw the resolution to take part in facilitation rescinded.

Minutes of settlement have been reached in the facilitation, but Caledon councillors last Tuesday put off accepting them until later this month, wanting more time to study the implications and get more information.

Patrick Harrington of the legal firm of Aird and Berlis, representing land owners involved in BRES, addressed Regional council last Thursday, urging them to proceed with BRES.

Harrington drew an analogy with a beauty contest to describe the Town’s process in BRES, in which there were six contestants, and his client won, with other contestants accepting the decision. He argued it’s always been the practice at the Region to accept what’s been done in the municipality in cases such as this and deal with the necessary Regional Official Plan amendment (ROPA). In this case, however, he said the last-place contestant wasn’t happy and proceeded to disrupt other ROPA applications, including ROPA 28, dealing with the Bolton Employment Expansion Area.

Harrington said the Province agreed to set up facilitation, but not involving BRES because that was already before Regional council.

There have been calls to redo the BRES process, but Harrington said that would be like redoing the beauty contest from scratch.

“Why?” he asked. “This council has never seen the results of what Caledon did. It was a full and complete process, like the Region has come to expect.”

“That wasn’t a cheap study that Caledon did,” he added, pointing out the proposal is to do it again, at the cost to Regional taxpayers. “This is a bottom-up planning process; always has been.”

Harrington also observed the Region was looking at restarting a process just because one of the participants didn’t like the outcome. He wondered what message that would send to the development community.

Councillor Annette Groves wondered how BRES got into the discussion. She said facilitation was supposed to involve ROPA 28 and the Ministerial Zoning Order (MZO) that was issued last year to allow the Canadian Tire development at Healey Road and Coleraine Drive to proceed. It had been stipulated that BRES was not part of that.

Regional Solicitor Patrick O’Connor said the settlement documents set out a lot of aspects that will have to be dealt with.

Mississauga Mayor Bonnie Crombie didn’t like the beauty contest analogy, calling it a “little distasteful.”

She added there are questions as to whether there was a fair and open process.

Harrington told Brampton Councillor John Sprovieri that Caledon taxpayers paid for the original BRES study. It was a two-year process, and he said he’s heard the figure of $1 million used to estimate the cost. He added he would expect Peel would pay for a new study.

Caledon Councillor Jennifer Innis was concerned that facilitation was supposed to bring all parties together. “All stakeholders were not part of that process,” she remarked, adding the Town spent $1 million on a process.

Mayor Allan Thompson said the normal process was followed, with studies being done at the local level, then submitted to the Region. He said that was done with the Mayfield West plans, and the same things were asked for involving BRES.

Mississauga Councillor Carolyn Parrish didn’t like the beauty contest references either.

“I think you were speaking down to council,” she told Harrington. “It’s a very bad lobbying tactic.”

Parrish also said there are people in Caledon who didn’t like the way the process was handled, adding that spending another $1 million would be a fair prices for a proper planning process.

Regarding the beauty-contest analogy, “Maybe that was the problem all along,” observed Mississauga Councillor Nando Iannicca observed.

Brampton Councillor Gael Miles asked if there was any indication that the Caledon BRES process was not appropriate.

“We have no indication of any impropriety in preparation of the BRES documentation,” O’Connor replied, adding Caledon’s application to have it dealt with by the Region is complete.

Director of Integrated Planning Arvin Prasad confirmed that, but added the process takes time and is complex. He said the next step would be to hold the public information meeting, but that’s not been scheduled.

“I’m very confused about what’s happening here,” Miles commented. “The process is not typical.”

She added the Town went through a proper process, and there’s no evidence the BRES process was flawed.

“I don’t understand why,” she said. “Why, at the end of the day, one developer, who did not get the results he wanted, has been able to influence the process the way that he has.”

“I understand your frustration,” Miles told Harrington, adding the facts he presented are in line with what she’s been told about the process. “The facts are the facts.”

Caledon Councillor Barb Shaughnessy observed there had been a lot of talk around the table, but no one had yet seen the BRES material on which to base unbiased opinions. She called for a public meeting on the matter.

“To leave the study idle for over a year is losing the Region of Peel money,” she said.

Parris was concerned with the motion to schedule the meeting, commenting it had been made up on the fly, after a lengthy in-camera session. She suggested it be deferred.

“Let’s just leave this for two weeks,” she suggested, but that didn’t get very far when it came to a vote.

for staff and growth in the municipality. That growth means bringing in more equipment to deal with it and maintain service levels. It also requires adding facilities, and they have to be maintained. These demands are offset by assessment growth, enabling the Town to collect more taxes. But Tollett pointed out it takes as much as three years between the completion of a house and the time that's reflected on the assessment rolls, but the associated infrastructure like roads have to be maintained.

Last year's budget was for $75.7 million. Tollett said there are unavoidable changes already built into the 2016 budget, such as the payment of debts resulting from such things as the enhanced roads program and the Caledon Equestrian Park. They amount to $754,000. On the other hand, there were some one-time costs in last year's budget that have been removed, resulting in savings of about $369,000. The budget also calls for increased expenditures, although there are also service delivery efficiencies that have been found, and Tollett said they are looking for more.

"I'm still trying to squeeze departments out for efficiencies," she commented. Those expenses come to a little more than $1.64 million, but are offset by slightly in excess of $701,000 in added revenues.

As well, there are proposed increases to meet various unmet needs.

The current budget proposals call for a little more than $14.5 million, with the bulk of that (about 55 per cent) going to public works.

There was talk about infrastructure spending that had been promised by the Liberals during the recent federal election. But Councillor Doug Beffort said he's heard Prime Minister Justin Trudeau refer to a "bank of infrastructure."

"It looks like loans," he said. Councillor Gord McClure didn't like what he was seeing.

"I think everybody looks at the bottom line," he said, adding people will wonder why the taxes are so high and what's being done to reduce them. "This is our job. I think we should rip all of this up and go through it again. This is too much."

Mayor Allan Thompson said staff had presented a "reality check" on what the Town has to face.

Addressing McClure, he said "if we take everything out of Mayfield West this year, we can make it work."

Councillor Barb Shaughnessy said she would like to see comparisons with what other municipalities will be charging. She knows she'll be asked about that.

Thompson later said the proposed increases are high, but added "we're at a crossroads."

They include dealing with growth and closing the gap in the capital funding to maintain infrastructure.

"I do know we're not alone," he said. "All the municipalities have these challenges."

He was also pleased to see the provisions for the storm water management plans and the broadband internet.

"Is this really a tax increase, or is it an investment for the future?" he asked. "This is what it's going to cost us to invest in our community."

This is Bullying Awareness Week

Nov. 15 to 21 is Bullying Awareness Week in Ontario.

Ontario Provincial Police supports the efforts of everyone collaborating and setting goals to promote bullying awareness.

Police stated that statistics show 75 per cent of people have been affected by bullying. Bullying can cause serious harm such as headaches, depression, anxiety and increase the risk of suicide.

Take an opportunity to understand some of the different forms of bullying which include:

- Physical — kicking, hitting, punching, slapping and shoving in order to gain power and control over another person;
- Verbal — name calling, mocking or making sexist, racist or homophobic comments;
- Social — excluding others from a group or spreading gossip or rumours about them;

- Electronic (commonly known as cyberbullying) — spreading rumours and hurtful comments through the use of cell phones, email, text messaging and social networking sites;

- Workplace — not only happens on the job. It can also occur at off-site business functions such as conferences or meetings and work-related social events such as holiday gatherings.

OPP identifies the importance of strong community partnerships and how they are essential in setting goals to promote anti-bullying programs.

“When communities and youth work together, they can create awareness and provide support towards one another, making bullying prevention possible,” OPP Inspector Robyn MacEachern observed.

Man charged with stunt driving

A 49-year-old man from Nobleton was charged Nov. 15 after Caledon OPP spotted a motorcycle that was being driven excessively fast.

Police report a Traffic Unit officer was conducting speed enforcement on Forks of the Credit Road at about 2:15 p.m. and observed a Honda bike going 110 km-h in a posted 50 zone.

The man was charged with racing a motor vehicle.

The bike was impounded for seven days.

CHILD CAR SEAT CLINIC IN BOLTON

Caledon OPP Auxiliary officers recently held the latest of their child car seat clinics at the Fire Hall in Bolton. Aux. Sergeant Jim Drake was showing Brampton resident Kathryn Toliver how to adjust this seat for her grandson. The next clinic is scheduled for Nov. 24 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the fire hall at 28 Ann St. in Bolton. It will be by-appointment only. Call 905-584-2241 for more information or to book an appointment.

‘Wrapped in Courage’ theme for Women Abuse Prevention Month

By Tabitha Wells

When it comes to violence against women, both in Canada and worldwide, the statistics are terrifying.

In Canada alone, 67 per cent of the population knows someone who has experienced physical or sexual abuse, and in 2009, Statistics Canada released data showing that a staggering number of women over the age of 15 had reported experiencing sexual violence.

While 473,900 women reported it, the numbers are likely higher, as many women still fear the repercussions of speaking out.

November is Women Abuse Prevention Month in Canada, which seeks not only to raise awareness about how big an issue this still is, but also works to encourage women who are in abusive situations — whether physical, emotional, verbal, sexual or otherwise — to have the courage and strength to walk away.

In the last year, Orangeville-based Family Transition Place (FTP) has housed 115 women and 59 children in their emergency shelter, provided counselling support to 945 women, and had a number of women and children on their wait list. They also received more than 3,000 calls on their 24-hour crisis and information hotline.

“We want the violence to end,” wrote FTP in a recent press release. “All year long, we engage the youth and community by providing education to help promote healthy relationships and break the cycle of abuse.”

Last year, the Ontario Association of Interval and Transition Houses (OAITH) began a new campaign to coincide with Women Abuse Prevention Month, to provide a symbol of the courage it takes for a woman to leave her abuser. But with the symbol came the statement that often courage is not enough.

“It takes the strength of an entire community to end violence against women,” OAITH writes on their Wrapped in Courage campaign page.

The symbol they came up with was a purple scarf, to be “wrapped” around a person signifying wrapping those who need support in courage, and letting them know that their community is behind them.

According to statistics, between 20 and 30 women are murdered by someone they know each year in Ontario alone. Abuse, attacks and domestic violence against women is the second top reason for calls to emergency police services, and the effects of these situations on children can be an overwhelming disturbance, causing them focus problems at school, struggles in relationships with peers and adults, and increases the risk of them participating in high-risk behaviours such as substance abuse or increased risk of anxiety and depression.

This area is, unfortunately, no stranger to these kinds of violence. In April 1997, Ludvik Kirec killed his wife Helen, and their four children before setting fire to his house and killing himself. Shirley Snow succumbed to injuries following an act of domestic violence from her husband in May, 2002 when he ran over her several times with a mini-van in the Walmart parking lot.

More recently, tragedy struck the Bognor family when their daughter Heidi Ferguson, was shot to death by her estranged husband in September of 2009. Ferguson’s family has since decided to use her death to help spread awareness of domestic violence and support FTP through an annual fundraiser called the Ferguson Memorial Walk.

It can be easy for people to convince themselves that this kind of violence does not exist in their communities, but that is often the biggest problem. Domestic violence is rarely something that is known when it is going on, and many often suffer in silence, behind closed doors and afraid of coming forward.

Campaigns like Wrapped In Courage, launched last Monday, help tell these women that they are not alone, and their community is there to support them and help them get back on their feet when they find the strength and courage to leave such situations.

“The Wrapped in Courage purple scarf campaign is an outward showing of support for the many women who have experienced or are experiencing domestic violence; to let them know they’re not alone,” FTP stated. “This month, we invite you to participate in showing your support to ending woman abuse by purchasing, wearing and telling others about your ‘Wrapped in Courage’ purple scarf.”

The scarves are available for purchase at the First Street location of Scotiabank, as long as quantities last. They are $15 each, and Scotiabank will match the scarf sales made during November.

MPP Jones recognizes Bullying Awareness and Prevention Week

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones rose in the Legislature Monday to recognize Bullying Awareness and Prevention Week.

“There is no doubt that bullying is a serious issue that continues in our society and especially in our schools, having serious implications on the lives of our students,” Jones said. “We need to do a better job of teaching children that if you are being bullied, please reach out and talk to someone. We need to ensure that victims of bullying know that there is always someone out there to talk to.”

“Here at Queen’s Park, we must show leadership by working together to put an end to all forms of bullying,” Jones added.

Additional parking spots open at King City GO Station

Ontario is making it easier for commuters in the area to take public transit by adding more parking spaces at the King City GO Station.

As of Oct. 13, 72 new parking spaces are open at the existing lot at the King City GO Station, bringing the total number to 502. Later this fall, construction will begin on more than 60 additional new spots, which will be available in the spring of 2016.

This project is part of the largest infrastructure investment in Ontario’s history — more than $130 billion over 10 years, which will support more than 110,000 jobs per year on average, with projects such as roads, bridges, transit systems, schools and hospitals.

Improving daily commutes is part of the government’s plan to build Ontario up. The four-part plan includes investing in people’s talents and skills, making the largest investment in public infrastructure in Ontario’s history, creating a dynamic, innovative environment where business thrives, and building a secure retirement savings plan.

Since 2003, the Ontario government has extended GO’s rail network by nearly 90 kilometres, opened 14 new stations, rebuilt four existing stations, and added more than 31,000 new parking spots across the system.

Curbside yard waste collection ending

Peel Region has advised that curbside yard waste collection in Caledon will be ending next Friday (Nov. 27). It will resume in the spring. During the final week, yard waste will be picked up regular collection days. Residents are asked to follow these steps when putting yard waste at the curb for collection: Place yard waste in paper yard waste bags, bushel baskets, or labelled, open, rigid and reusable containers; set out yard waste and recyclable material on the opposite side of the driveway from garbage, if possible; tie brush securely in bundles of up to 1.2 metres (four feet) in length and 76 centimetres (30 inches) in width; ensure brush, tree trimmings, limbs and branches are 10 centimetres (four inches) or less in diameter; and ensure yard waste containers and bundles do not exceed 20 kilograms (44 pounds) each. Leaves, garden trimmings, plants, grass clippings, twigs, branches and lawn edging (earth removed) can be set out as yard waste. Corn stalks and other fruits and vegetables from the garden should be placed in backyard composters, yard waste containers or green bins for organics recycling. Do not use plastic bags, cardboard boxes or recycling boxes for yard waste. Do not include sod, soil, stumps or stones with yard waste. Take stumps, soil, sod and excess yard waste to any of Peel's Community Recycling Centres (CRCs) for disposal. Drop-off fees apply.

Victorian Christmas Gala is back at Theatre Orangeville Nov. 21

By Constance Scrafield

One of the best parties of the season is back again Nov. 21.

Theatre Orangeville's Victorian Christmas Gala is its biggest fundraiser of the year.

With all the entertainment, the great food and the premier schmoozing, this is a not-to-be-missed event.

First, something about the occasion itself. It is held annually the third Saturday of November, at the Best Western Hotel and Conference Centre. The Victorian Christmas Gala begins at 5:30 p.m. with a complimentary champagne and oyster bar, set amid the beautiful silent auction that runs throughout the main halls and areas outside the dining room.

Humber Jazz Trio will supply the ambience and TOYS (the Theatre Orangeville Youth Singers) will begin the entertainment by singing from the curved staircase in the centre of the hotel foyer.

It is a time to chat, to meet and greet, to truly tour the silent auction, have a look at the handmade jewellery by Anne Marie Warburton that can be won by buying a "bauble," and the fabulous dining chargers, hand-crafted by Jim Lorriman, which will be part of the Live Auction during dinner.

The silent auction is the accumulation of a great many things, meals, experiences and services by a great many people.

The stalwart members of the regional business community do give large and small items from their pantries, as it were, to many organizations, as well as the theatre, and their purpose is for all to come to the parties and bid with largess. Their generosity is and should be matched by everyone – through attendance at the event and enjoyment, for this is an evening designed to be a real pleasure.

Central to the festivities is Theatre Orangeville Artistic Director and MC David Nairn, who will get the place lively with his Live Auction.

Those who have never been to a live auction should not miss this one, for hilarity and unusual options. Those who have been to one shouldn't miss it either, for they have never seen one quite like it for originality and best results. It is so much fun. Nairn is mirthful and quite merciless in his pursuit of the best bid for his precious items.

If he is central, then the backbone of the operation, the absolutely essential human element, is the volunteers.

Many volunteers begin as ushers at the theatre. That is a lot of fun, as long-time volunteer Barbara Bailey explained.

"For us (her husband, Ross, also volunteers), it is the social interaction, meeting people," she said. "I sometimes usher three or four times. This last show (Jonas and Berry in the Home), after four times, I was still laughing as hard as the first night."

"This is our fourth Victorian Christmas as volunteers," she commented. "It's fun to take part in the event. I love to see the smiles on peoples' faces after the shows and at the Gala."

Their son is working full-time at Milton Theatre, "doing whatever," after completing a bachelor of applied arts at Ryerson and a few years of freelancing, which certainly peaked their interest in the theatre.

Baillie has acted as "child wrangler" during the extensive rehearsal weeks of the theatre's Christmas show, which usually includes child actors. It is under her watchful eye that they "not abused in any way, behave themselves, do their homework."

"They are so great," she added. "They really know what they're doing (about balancing the show with school work)."

As for the big fundraising Gala, Baillie is happy to volunteer, not only for the social fun of it, but also for its monetary importance to the theatre, which, as she remarked, "the theatre affects a great many people — we've gotta keep it."

Laura Austin, whose son Danny has been in several of Theatre Orangeville's Young Company productions, is a passionate supporter of the theatre and volunteers any way she can be helpful.

The law requires that a volunteer sits in with Nairn while he is auditioning young people. There have been occasions while watching an audition she has seen the difference the experience makes to a youngster, to his or her confidence and self-esteem and heard Nairn say to her, "That's why we do this."

The important changes that theatre make to any young person, so many of whom are struggling with social and/or personal disadvantages, has impressed

Austin very deeply.

"Just to be part of all that," she commented, matters.

"The theatre is like a family," she added. "People want to support the theatre — David calls it your theatre. It's infectious, they way people comment on the shows —how much they love them."

"We're very fortunate to have so much talent in this area and the theatre supports all of that."

Her analogy: "If the community is like a human body, then this theatre is one of the main organs."

The Victorian Christmas Gala is Nov. 21 at the Best Western.

The evening is replete with wine and good food throughout and the entertainment will dazzle. Tickets are still available at the theatre box office on Broadway and at the tourist information centre on Buena Vista Drive at Highway 10; by telephone at 519-942-3423 or at www.theatreorangeville.ca

Blue Rodeo and Natalie MacMaster to headline benefit concert for Osler

Popular country-rock band Blue Rodeo and celebrated Cape Breton fiddler Natalie MacMaster will perform live at Brampton's Rose Theatre for a special concert in support of William Osler Health System's three hospitals.

Blue Rodeo, one of Canada's most beloved bands, and fiddle virtuoso MacMaster are teaming up to give audiences a musical journey they will not soon forget. Osler's One Night — Two Stars — Three Hospitals Benefit Concert, presented by William Osler Health System Foundation and DG Group, will take place Nov. 21 at the Rose Theatre in Brampton. The show will feature a full concert by Blue Rodeo followed by traditional Cape Breton tunes from MacMaster.

Proceeds from the gala will fund redevelopment projects at Etobicoke General Hospital and Peel Memorial Centre for Integrated Health and Wellness, as well as the latest technology and equipment for Brampton Civic Hospital.

Gala co-chairs Francesco Policaro of Northwest Lexus and Policaro Automotive Family, and Norma Jean Borley of StageWork Home Staging, promise this year's benefit concert will be an extraordinary evening of great music featuring a high energy mix of traditional and contemporary tunes.

"Osler's fourth annual One Night — Two Stars — Three Hospitals Benefit Concert will be legendary," Borley said. "It doesn't get much better than having a chance to see Blue Rodeo and Natalie MacMaster perform. These Juno Award-winning musicians will captivate the audience with their upbeat, energetic performances and it will be an exciting evening in support of a great cause."

The black-tie-optional event begins with a cocktail reception at 6 p.m. at which guests will have the opportunity to bid on a brand new Lexus IS 250, donated by Northwest Lexus, as well as other silent auction items.

Medical care has improved since the Victorian era

By Bill Rea

Many might long for what's commonly known as "the good old days," but stick with the present when it comes to the practise of medicine.

The Caledon East and District Historical Society received a good lesson in that recently as Kitchener resident Nancy MacLeod brought her Victorian Medical Show to the area.

A lot has changed from the days when doctors didn't even recognize the existence of germs.

MacLeod explained a lot has changed in terms of attitude. For example, she said during the American Civil War, men who were too ill to fight were expected to help out in hospitals. The belief at the time was women shouldn't be taking care of men they were not related to. As well, in those days, it was expected that a doctor had to be a man.

During 1800s, there were about 80 medical schools in North America. Some of them developed in to the prominent centres that still operate today. Others just required a certain amount of money for a doctor to receive certification.

These schools offered two-year courses, MacLeod added.

"It's all theory," she said. "You really didn't get into the blood and guts of it until later on."

In the 19th century, the idea was people got sick because they had too much blood, or phlegm of bile.

As far as children were concerned, it was the mothers who provided the first level of care if they fell ill. MacLeod said if a child was not feeling well, the first things the mother would prescribe were a bath and a bottle of wine.

She explained that in those days, people might take a bath once a year, usually in May (she said one of the reasons why so many weddings are traditionally held in early June stems from the days when it would have been shortly after the brides had their annual baths). The reason behind the wine was it was thought it would make the blood stronger, which it didn't. She added there was no law in those days against giving children alcohol.

If the child was still ill after the bath and wine, MacLeod said it would be time to call in a doctor.

In those days, especially in rural areas, doctors would have been rather scarce, and would have had to cover a large area. That meant a doctor called in to treat a child would have had to stay at the house, until needed elsewhere by another patient. And since there was probably one bed in the house, with a mattress full of straw and fleas, they all would have slept on the same bed, fully clothed.

Doctors, at the time, relied on equipment and practices that were available. For example, MacLeod said the way to check how a heart was working was for the doctor to lay his head on the patient's chest. That's one reason why they eventually invented the stethoscope.

There were other pieces of equipment that were put to multiple uses. MacLeod had an example of an enema pump, which could also be used by women to address their feminine needs. And since no one believed in germs at the time, there was no need to sterilize it.

She also had a sample of what was used as a bedpan in those days, and the simple way they'd deal with such issues.

"When it's full, they'll open the window and empty it out," she explained.

There were medicinal powders, etc. in those days, which would have been mixed with water into a paste. Some of them would have included side effects, such as rotting of teeth, meaning they would have to be pulled. MacLeod had a sample of a devised used for such a purpose. She said some people have mistaken it for a wine bottle opener.

Since it was assumed that some ill people might have bad blood, leaches would have been used to draw it out. MacLeod said they would have left saliva under the skin, which would have thinned the blood, so the patient would continue to bleed after the treatment.

Or the doctor might have cut into a vein to draw the blood. MacLeod had samples of instruments with as many as 12 razor blades mounted on them for that purpose. The wounds would have been bandaged, and when they had healed, the bandages would have been washed, iron and rolled up to be used again.

The advent of electricity resulted in devices coming into play to make use of it.

MacLeod said there were items used by men because they were told it would help them grow hair. She also cited a Sears Roebuck catalog from 1908 advertising a home electric shock machine that sold for $12. She said it could be applied to the temples, hands or "to invigorate men."

"It's the only piece that's heavily used," she added.

Nancy MacLeod showed this example of an enema pump, which might have been put to other uses.

Orangeville's Broadway wins planners' award

The Canadian Institute of Planners announced last Wednesday that it has made Orangeville's downtown Broadway the 2015 winner of its Great Street and People's Choice awards in its Great Places of Canada contest.

Great Places in Canada was created to celebrate and share those places which make one's community unique and to recognize the work of professional planners. Each nominated place is showcased on www.greatplacesincanada.ca

"Broadway is the hub of the community's social, cultural and economic activities," the Town of Orangeville stated in making the nomination. "From specialty shops and businesses to historical buildings, from street festivals and popular eateries to unique landscape features, Broadway is a kaleidoscope of all that's vibrant and interesting about the community's life."

The contest's two other winners were both from British Columbia — the West End of Vancouver for Great Neighbourhood and Stuart Park in Kelowna for Great Public Space.

Learn to care for horse and farm with CVC

Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) invites equine farm owners to participate in the Caring for Your Horse and Farm workshop Nov. 21 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The workshop will take place at the Watershed Learning Centre in Terra Cotta Conservation Area at 14452 Winston Churchill Blvd.

“This workshop is a great way for equine farmers to assess their operations and create an action plan to make environmental improvements,” CVC’s Deputy CAO and Director of Watershed Transformation Mike Puddister commented. “A one thousand pound horse will produce approximately nine tons of manure each year. Learning how to turn waste into a resource is one example of how this workshop helps equine farmers and the environment.”

Workshop participants will learn best practices to manage a healthy equine farm, including how to manage horse manure, improve pasture quality and protect natural features such as ponds, wetlands and streams. Following the workshop, participants can schedule a site visit for technical support and become eligible to apply for funding when they complete certain program requirements.

“As a small horse farm owner, the workshop helped me identify priority environmental projects that help my horses and farm,” said Bridget Ryan, a past workshop participant from Erin.

With guidance from CVC, Ryan installed eavestroughing and rainbarrels to control barn water roof runoff and started rotational grazing in her pastures.

“I see the positive impacts of pasture rotation,” she said. “Not only has the pasture quality improved and reduced our need to administer dewormer, it helped protect our nearby streams and pond.”

Workshops are free, thanks to funding from CVC’s regional and municipal partners. Interested equine farm owners should own property within the boundaries of the Credit River watershed.

Region celebrated Waste Reduction Week

In celebration of Waste Reduction Week, the Region of Peel planted a tree that symbolizes the 14 million trees that have been saved by residents recycling newspaper in the Region's Blue Box Program since 2001.

This took place Oct. 19 in Mississauga. "Approximately 85 per cent of residents in Peel participate in the Region's Blue Box Program," remarked Director Waste Management Norman Lee. "Saving one million trees a year is something Peel residents should be very proud of. The new recycling carts that are currently being delivered in Peel will give residents the capacity to do even more."

If residents are unsure that an item is recyclable, they can visit peelregion.ca/waste and use How To Sort Your Waste, an online sorting tool which has correct disposal information for more than 600 items. Residents can also refer to their Waste Management Guide that was delivered to homes in April and multi-residential homes in August.

"Learning and practicing 3 R behaviours — reduce, reuse and recycle — means your household will generate less garbage, which is better for the environment," commented Councillor Jennifer Innis, vice-chair of Peel's Waste Management Sub-Committee. "Getting in the habit of using the recycling and organics programs will reduce the amount of garbage you put at the curb."

Waste Reduction Week (WRW) is a nation-wide initiative that encourages Canadians to reduce, reuse and recycle acceptable waste. WRW calls on all Canadians to adopt more environmentally conscious choices and is currently held in the third week of October each year.

Club started for recreational sports and socializing

By Bill Rea

Looking for some fun, exercise, a chance to get and stay in shape, and socialize too? The new Bolton Recreational Sports Club might be worth looking into. This is the initiative of local resident Ryan Richards. It's a community, not-for-profit club aimed at giving adults an opportunity to meet and connect with others. He is proposing a variety of coed recreational sports leagues in a fun, social environment.

Richards said there are already plans to start an indoor soccer league, slated to commence play Dec. 4 at Caledon East Public School. As well, he said plans for a volleyball league are drawing considerable interest. That's scheduled to start Jan. 8 at St. John the Baptist Elementary School. He added he's been in contact with the local high schools, in the hopes of getting students out to help facilitate these games, as a way of compiling the community service hours they need.

Richards commented there are clubs like this in Orangeville, Brampton, Mississauga, etc., and he wanted to see something locally. He's also hoping to see other sports take shape, such as ultimate Frisbee and flag football, with people showing up to play, almost on a pick-up format. The club was started by Richards in August. He said he moved to the area about four years ago, and said he was looking for something to do, in the way of social sports. There are sports leagues for adults, but they are competitive. "This is a completely social league," he said. "It's all for fun."

He also said it should be successful, once

Public open house on Whitebelt plan

The Town of Caledon will be hosting an open house and information session on its Whitebelt Visioning Exercise tonight (Thursday). It will run from 6:30 to 9 p.m, with a formal presentation at 7 p.m. It will be at Brampton Fairground on Heart Lake Road, at Old School Road. The Whitebelt is the area outside the Greenbelt and existing settlement areas in south Caledon. It makes up about 20 per cent of Caledon. The Province is planning a 400-series highway to go across the Whitebelt, and businesses in the community, and providing information on events in the area. "It's amazing to see all the things that are going on," he said. Richards said the club is geared to adults. He's thinking of people aged 30 and older, but people a little younger would be welcome too.

ians are to register their child in person at their designated Catholic school. To inquire about home school locations/boundary areas, contact the Board's Planning Department at 905-890-0708 ext. 24440. The following documents are required for registration:

- Proof of age of the child (birth certificate or passport).
- Original Roman Catholic baptismal certificate (for child and (or) parent or guardian) or baptismal certificate from an East-through what is known as the GTA West Transportation Corridor. Previously, the Town initiated the GTA West Land Use Study to look at future strategic employment lands in the vicinity of the GTA West Transportation Corridor. The GTA West Land Use Study is being expanded to include visioning for the entire Whitebelt and will look at all land uses including residential, commercial, institutional, employment lands, agricultural and environmental protection. There will be no time-frame specified for the Whitebelt Vision.

"I'm not going to be checking IDs," he said. "I know that it will build, once people are in and having a good time," he remarked. The deadline for registering for soccer is Nov. 25, and it's Dec. 9 for volleyball. For more information, go to the website, or email to boltonrecreationsport@gmail.com ern Church in full communion with the Holy See of Rome. If the child has not been baptized, but the parent or guardian has been, the parent or guardian must bring their own baptismal certificate.

- Updated immunization records (immunization card, Peel Health form or letter of exemption).
- Proof of Canadian citizenship (birth certificate or passport) or permanent resident status.
- Proof of home address (two of the following: property tax bill, current utility bill, real estate document or Government of Canada issued forms).
- Emergency rural address numbers for identifying property, if applicable (residents of Caledon and Dufferin County)
- Proof of English Separate School Support.

Admissions are open to Catholic children and children of Catholic parents. Kindergarten students must be at least four years of age by Dec. 31, 2016. For more information, parents or guardians should contact their local Catholic school, visit the board website at www.dpcdsb.org, or call the Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board at 905-890-1221.

LeafGuard gutters protect because their design utilizes liquid adhesion. Liquid adhesion is a simple but powerful principle: water adheres to a surface, and is pulled downward by the force of gravity. That “pull” corrals the water gently into the seamless gutter system, rather than allowing it to escape over the edge.

Thanks for work at Cenotaph

On behalf of the Board of Laurel Hill Cemetery, we want to thank local businessman Jimmy Pountney, and the members of the local Fire Department for refurbishing the flag poles standing at either side of the Cenotaph at Laurel Hill.
In addition to their efforts, Laurel Hill's board has been working through an application to Veteran's Affairs Canada for the restoration of the Cenotaph. When completed, enabling all names to be readable, arrangements have been made to have the Cenotaph illuminated.
Laurel Hill will continue, as in the past, to welcome the Memorial Day Parade and Celebration, and will be available to work with the planning committee.
Thank you Mr. Pountney for you initiative.

CVC needs to listen to Belfountain residents

Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) recently held its second consultation with the residents of Belfountain regarding the repurposing of the local park from a family recreational destination to a learning complex promoting the ecological views of the authority.
CVC will build a visitor centre that will be used for a variety of unspecified functions. Additional parking will be added, resulting in less park, and off-site parking locations are being sought so more people can be bused to the park. There will be concessions to sell to the park visitors. Officials claim not to know if additional revenue will be generated.
The metamorphosis of the park is obscured by statements about the need for restoration and maintenance. It is obvious that the park could use a facelift after years of neglect by CVC. The architectural firm is proposing interesting faux historic structures and neat garden centre landscaping. It would have the aesthetics of a Niagara Parkway Park as opposed to an Algonquin Park. Signage would inform you of what you are looking at thereby "enhancing" the visitor's experience.
The Mack Dam and headpond were subject to an environmental assessment by Amec Foster Wheeler Environment and Infrastructure. There are various options available under the plan. The final decision will be made by CVC, which states no decision has been made to the fate of the dam. Yet their web site recommends that the dam should go. Their stated policy of creating a Natural Heritage System is at odds with the retention of the dam.
To gain the community's acceptance, CVC is offering free admission, the use of the visitor centre for community functions and local merchants the first opportunity at running the concessions. Despite this, the community stands firm against the Complex.

CVC is not hearing that the park is filled to capacity already; creating traffic congestion, parking, noise and pollution problems. Mack Park is in the hamlet of Belfountain, any change to the park by CVC is essentially usurping the planning process of the community.
The people of Belfountain may think the CVC consultative process is a request to make these changes, but the consultative process is just a box to check off on their due diligence list. They have the authority under the Conservation Authorities Act, Sec. 21, 28, to do as they please. They operate independent from municipal government and in this case separate from the Ministry of Natural Resources.
What Belfountain needs is a political champion who will instill some democracy into this process and take the concerns of the people to Natural Resources and Forestry Minister Michael Coteau.

Reustore looking for volunteers

Would you have four hours per week to spend doing something very worthwhile? Did you know that all of the goods for sale at the Reustore on Industrial Road have been donated by the community? Did you know that the majority of the sorting, pricing and displaying of these goods is done by volunteers? Did you know that all of the money raised at the Reustore goes right back into this community to fund many important programs?
The Reustore keeps thousands of pounds of furniture, books, housewares, electronic devices, even useable appliances out of landfill. The Reustore provides this community with a steady supply of reasonably priced goods with plenty of life left in them. Some customers drop by every day to see what new bargains are available for purchase. You never know what you will find on display next.
There are a small number of paid staff at the Reustore, but they cannot hope to keep up with the volume of donations without a strong group of volunteers. Right now, the volunteer numbers are low and inventory is piling up. No special skill is necessary for you to become a volunteer. All that you need is enthusiasm.
We need your help. Just four hours per week is all that we ask. So little time for you and such a big benefit to your community.
Give Brigitte Malo a call at Caledon Community Services at 905-584-2300, ext. 235 or email bmalo@ccs4u.org. She will get you started.
I have been a volunteer cashier at the Reustore for 18 months. I heartily enjoy my time every Wednesday. I look forward to seeing you there.

It happened today

It's generally regarded as one of the greatest pieces of oratory in history.
Lasting a little more than two minutes, it was one of several addresses delivered to dedicate a cemetery for soldiers who died in the American Civil War, but it's the only one that's remembered.
Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg Address this day, Nov. 19, 1863.

Let Bernardo write

Public opinion is something that's very important in what is supposed to be a free society, but it worries me sometimes too.
We're hearing a lot of public input into the fact that notorious murderer and rapist Paul Bernardo has written a novel that was for sale on Amazon.
There were a lot of people calling for the book to be taken off the Amazon website. Indeed, Newstalk 1010 (CFRB) set up a petition calling on Amazon to drop the book. As of Saturday morning, the petition had attracted more than 62,000 signatures.

I was upset Sunday evening when I learned Amazon had apparently taken the book down.
For the record, I did not sign the petition. In fact, I'm disappointed that a journalistic outlet that I have followed and respected all my life would call for the suppression of written words simply because the people in charge there don't like the author.
I don't like the author either. Paul Bernardo is repulsive. He abducted, assaulted and murdered two innocent young ladies, dismembering one of them, and caused the death of another through disgusting acts. And he also attacked and assaulted many other women. He has been declared a dangerous offender. Chances are excellent he will die in prison, which is fine with me. I guess there is an outside chance that he might get paroled at some point, but only when he's a very old man, on or near his deathbed. Therefore, Bernardo, who's in his early 50s, can look forward to at least another 25 years in his current accommodations, assuming his health holds out.

I have no plans to read his book, entitled A MAD World Order, although that could change, depending on public reaction to this work of fiction, and not the guy who wrote it.
While I have extremely limited use for Bernardo or people like him, I have no trouble with him writing. The man is serving a well-deserved life sentence for his crimes, which means he's got a lot of time on his hands. If he wants to devote some of that time to writing, then let him. As long as his work is not in itself illegal (child pornography, etc.) or he's not trying to give himself a literary pat on the back for the acts that resulted in his incarceration, then I'm okay with it. And if people want to read his words, that's fine with me too. I don't believe we have, or should have, the right to tell our fellow citizens what they can or cannot read, based on public perception of the writer.
And from what I've read, the book was attracting a lot of attention. It was the top item on Amazon's Movers and Shakers list before it came down. That's hardly a surprise. People are still very interested in Bernardo.

I would be curious how many of those more than 62,000 who signed that petition have also bought the book online. I'm sure a lot of them have, or would have.
According to what I've read so far, the book involves international political intrigue; sort of the works that a lot of other authors have produced over the years. There have been concerns that Bernardo's book depicts certain violent acts. Read Frederick Forsyth's The Dogs of War, and you'll get accounts of the protagonists doing some pretty gruesome things.

I'm not saying Bernardo's work would be of the same quality, but the fact is I don't know. And from what I gather from the various commentators I have heard and read, I'm in pretty good company. Relatively few people have read this book, although it appears it was available on Amazon for some months. Yet, it is clear there are many people who want to make sure I never find out how good or bad it is.
But just because the guy is rubbish doesn't necessarily mean Bernardo's writings should be banned. There are evil people whose writings are obtainable today. For example, I believe it would be relatively easy to get a copy of Mein Kampf, Hitler's autobiographical manifesto. Incidentally, like A MAD World Order, Mein Kampf was started in prison.

The Caledon Public Library does not currently have a copy of Mein Kampf in its collection (I asked). But I was also told they could obtain one for me, if I wanted it (I don't).
But the matter does raise questions of perspective, as I reflect that there are people who would seek to ban Benardo's writings.

According to public documentation, he is responsible for the deaths of three people. Hitler is responsible for the deaths of millions, yet I'm not aware of any move to ban Mein Kampf. I have read that Chapters/Indigo has elected not to carry the work, but that is their decision, and as I have learned, the book is still obtainable elsewhere.

About 40 years ago, as I was studying the Second World War in high school history class, Hitler's rise to power was discussed, and the fact he set his plans out in Mein Kampf was mentioned. I remember, on an impulse, asking the teacher if copies of Mein Kampf could be obtained. He seemed almost surprised at the question, assuring me it was in the school library, and I should read it if I was interested.

I never did, but I always felt a certain satisfaction that I could if I chose to.
There have been views expressed about the fact that there is money involved with this book. Amazon stood to make money, and since it's a business, what else is to be expected? Bernardo would be in line for some money too. There are restrictions against convicted criminals profiting from the crimes they have committed. But if the accounts I have read so far are true, this book has nothing to do with the wrong he did. Assuming that's the case, does that mean there could have been money coming his way? A lot of people suspect that, and I believe that's behind a lot of the effort to send the book on its way into oblivion. They don't want him getting any money.
But think about that for a minute. Even if Bernardo realizes a potful of scratch from his writings, what's he going to do with it?

The guy's doing life in prison. He's not about to go out and buy a nice new car, or accentuate his wardrobe, or redecorate his current lodgings, or take an exotic trip to the French Riviera. The money is a big irrelevancy.

The book by Bernardo might be a piece of literary trash, or it might turn out to be a great read. Very few of us are currently in a position to know, but I firmly believe we all have the right to decide for ourselves.

To that end, I regret Amazon stopped making the book available. And to hell with that petition. Let the rest of us make up our own minds.

Travelling abroad this winter? Make sure you're insured

Cooler temperatures and the first signs of snow in the air often have us thinking about escaping the winter season to warmer climates.

Planning a winter escape can be exciting; however, there are many things to take into consideration. One very important thing is travel insurance. Everyone should have this when travelling abroad, even if it's just a day trip across the border to the United States. Unfortunately, we never know what may come up and by thoroughly researching and purchasing the best travel insurance we can, we will have peace of mind that we're prepared for anything, making a winter escape as enjoyable as possible.

When making your travel arrangements, it is advisable to purchase the best travel insurance you can afford and to purchase it before you leave Canada. You should ensure it includes health, life and disability coverage to prevent you from incurring considerable expenses later on, such as costs associated with hospitalization or receiving medical treatment outside of Canada. If you're going to be flying, it is advisable that the insurance you purchase covers such things as flight cancellation, trip interruption, loss of luggage and document replacement. Taking such steps will save you frustrating delays and unforeseen costs later on. If you'll be travelling by car, it is advisable to ensure you have driver and vehicle coverage, should you be in an accident abroad.

Travel insurance may be purchased through your travel agency, insurance broker or through your employer's insurance provider. Credit card companies may also provide travel and health insurance to their customers. However, whether you purchase your travel insurance from your credit card company or through your travel agency, it is essential that you fully understand the eligibility requirements; terms and conditions; limitations; restrictions; and any exclusions of the insurance policy.

Do not assume that your Canadian insurance (i.e. Ontario Health Insurance Plan or OHIP) is valid outside of Canada. OHIP or other provincial/territorial health plans may not cover anything or a just a minimal amount of expenses if you become ill or are injured outside of Canada. For residents of Ontario, visit the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care's website at www.health.gov.on.ca to learn more about OHIP's coverage outside of Canada.

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

It is also important to note that in some countries, it has been said that hospitals and clinics have refused to provide medical treatment to those who were injured or ill because they did not possess sufficient health insurance or funds to pay for treatment. Alternatively, if a hospital or clinic outside of Canada does provide medical treatment to you without having travel health insurance, you may find yourself in debt for a very long time trying to pay for those costs associated with illness or injury. Furthermore, the government of Canada will not cover the cost of your medical bills.

Another important thing to keep in mind when researching and purchasing your travel insurance is to always check the government of Canada's Country Travel Advice and Advisories (<http://travel.gc.ca/traveling/advisories>) at least twice when planning your trip and again before you leave. It is important to do this because a Travel Advisory issued for your destination may impact your travel health insurance or initiate your trip cancellation insurance. Be sure to understand all terms and conditions listed in your policy with respect to Travel Advice and Advisories issued by the government.

When researching travel insurance, it's also important that you're satisfied the policy you're selecting meets your needs and that you take the time to verify all terms, conditions, limitations, exclusions and requirements before you leave Canada. Always ask questions, such as whether the plan covers pre-existing conditions. Another question is to confirm whether the plan will cover the cost of medical evacuation to Canada or to the closest location for medical treatment and for a medical care provider to travel with you to that location. Another consideration is to ensure the plan clearly explains deductible costs and that it also covers the preparation and return of your remains to Canada, should you die while outside of Canada.

There are many important things to consider when purchasing travel insurance. However, by carefully and thoroughly researching travel insurance plans and selecting one that covers all of your needs, you can travel with ease and be sure to enjoy your winter escape.

It's flu season, so get your shots

Late fall brings gray skies, falling leaves and of course, the flu season.

Each year, there are different strains of the flu which can impact each of us differently, making some very sick. There are many ways we can guard ourselves against the flu, but one easy and important way is to receive the flu shot.

The flu vaccine or flu shot is a safe and effective measure to prevent the flu. It helps to save lives because it protects us from the virus if we're exposed to it, it prevents us from becoming very ill and assists in protecting others against the flu because it reduces the chances of spreading the virus around. A common misconception is that the shot may cause the flu; however, this is not the case. The majority of people do not suffer from side effects after receiving the shot and severe side effects are quite rare.

According to the Healthy Canadians website (www.healthycanadians.gc.ca), everyone six months and older should receive the flu shot. It's most important for people who are at high risk of complications, such as those with health conditions, such as cancer, diabetes, heart disease, lung disease or obesity; people 65 years and older; people who live in nursing homes or other long-term care facilities; children younger than five years of age; pregnant women; and Aboriginal peoples to receive the flu shot.

Some individuals are more likely to spread the flu to those at high risk of complications. These people include those who are in close contact with those identified higher risk groups, such as family, household members, caregivers; those who care for or are expecting a newborn baby during flu season; health care workers; child care workers; those who provide services to people at high risk in closed settings, such as crew on a ship.

It's also important to receive a new flu shot each year because its prevention isn't infinite and therefore, a new shot each season is needed to remain protected. Furthermore, the strain of the flu virus can change from year to year and medical professionals develop a new vaccine to ensure we're protected as much as possible from the virus of that season.

There are other things we can do to protect ourselves from the flu in addition to receiving the flu shot. They include common sense measures, such as washing our hands regularly; coughing and sneezing into the bend of our arms and not our hands; avoid touching our nose, mouth, or eyes with our hands; disinfecting surfaces that we touch regularly; eating a healthy diet; and receiving plenty of sleep.

The flu shot combined with common sense measures can help guard against the dreaded flu and make for a more enjoyable fall. For more information on the flu shot, please visit the Healthy Canadians website.

I would also like to express my deep appreciation and gratitude for re-electing me as your Member of Parliament Oct. 19. It has been a great honour and privilege to represent Dufferin-Caledon since 2004 and I will continue to represent your best interests in the House of Commons in Ottawa in the upcoming 42nd Parliament.

We should be prepared to step up

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

The first major action Justin Trudeau took as prime minister designate was to phone U.S. President Barrack Obama to say Canada is getting its fighter jets out of Iraq and Syria.

This followed an election pledge in which he argued that instead of fighting ISIS, we should rely on diplomacy and warm blankets. He didn't mention group hugs at the time.

Last Thursday, as Trudeau prepared to leave for his first major overseas meetings with world leaders, new Defence Minister Harjit Sajjan told CBC News that Canadians have no need to fear ISIS.

"ISIS is a threat, no doubt about that," he said. "Should we fear it? No. The Canadian population should have full confidence in all the security services to keep us safe."

He added that Canada's military remains committed to "help" bring 25,000 Syrian refugees into Canada by the end of the year.

And then came Friday the 13th in Paris. Now we'll see what Trudeau and Company are made of.

If there ever was a time to scale back military operations against what French President Francois Hollande properly called these "barbarians," this, surely, is not that time. Au contraire.

Liberal-minded people like to believe you can solve every problem by just sitting down with people and listening to their grievances. Then, after tea and crumpets and a meaningful chorus of Kumbaya, everybody can go their separate ways and live happily ever after.

It has always been complete nonsense, but never more so when dealing with people who will stand up in a crowded concert hall and coldly murder people one by one for the apparently heinous crime of being western infidels.

How do you talk with people who delight in chopping the heads off captives, in turning women and children into sex slaves, in putting captives in cages and burning them alive, and in numerous other outrageous crimes against international norms?

The answer: you don't; you obliterate them.

Another thing. The early evidence from Paris – where at least 127 innocent people died and more than 300 were wounded – is that one ISIS shooter had a Syrian passport. Greek officials say he had passed through the island of Leros on Oct. 3, a graphic reminder that in our rush to be the world's good guys and set aside normal security measures to welcome 25,000 Syrian refugees, the current historic migration could be a ticket in for some ISIS extremists wanting to get to the west to wreak havoc.

When Stephen Harper made that point during the hysteria caused by the heart-wrenching picture of a young boy lying dead on a beach – which the media and the opposition shamefully turned into a failing by Harper, as though Canada had something to do with it – he was roundly attacked for lacking empathy for the hordes of misplaced people.

No doubt the vast majority of the current refugees are, through no fault of their own, caught up in the growing regional war, but, as the Paris experience shows, we still must do due diligence before we open our gates to one and all.

As for Hajjit's claim that Canadians have nothing to fear from ISIS, well, let us just say that ISIS has publicly put us on their hit list as a charter member of the western alliance. We've already experienced some terrorist attacks in this country, so surely this is no time for our newly elected leaders to stick their collective heads into an Ottawa snowbank and pretend we're immune from such savagery.

Responding to what was the worst attack in France since World War 2, and one of the worst terrorist atrocities on Western soil since the 9/11 attack in New York and elsewhere, French President Hollande called it an "act of war" and promised to take the fight to ISIS.

With the G20 countries gathering for meetings – the showpiece of which is a climate summit, the overhyped "threat" of which surely pales by comparison to the real threat of ISIS – now would be the time for all western countries to man up and pledge the necessary resources – both military and humanitarian – to wipe this current evil from the face of the earth.

Just as Canada stood proudly against Hitler and his friends, so too should we be prepared to step up and help end the scourge of ISIS.

Last June, when veteran CBC journalist Terry Milewski asked Trudeau – when ISIS atrocities were again making headlines – "If you don't want to bomb a group as ghastly as ISIS, when would you ever support real military action?"

Arrogantly dismissing a good question as "nonsensical," Trudeau claimed Liberals have always "been supportive of Canada standing up for its values and taking action where necessary."

Really? Under Trudeau's leadership in opposition, Liberals voted – not once, but twice – against the current modest combat mission against ISIS.

Now we'll really see if Trudeau thinks the Paris massacre merits "taking action where necessary."

Let us hope so.

Celebrate Incredible.

Golden Hawks soar past Kings to fifth place in GMOHL

By Jake Courtepatte

With a perfect four-point pickup over the weekend, the Caledon Golden Hawks have strung together their first three-game winning streak of the season, and have won five of their last seven.

These numbers are an enormous turnaround for a team that struggled out of the gate with seven losses in a row in the Georgian Mid-Ontario Hockey League season.

Visiting the Erin Shamrocks Saturday, the Hawks earned all five of the final goals in the game to come out on top 6-3.

Erin led 2-1 heading into the second, despite putting just six shots on net in the opening frame. After Caledon goaltender Brendan Macham allowed another short-handed marker for a two-goal cushion, he settled back in shutting out the Shamrocks for the rest of the game.

Nicholas McNutt and Randy Chen each scored twice for the Hawks, while Tyler Whitten and Christian Mariconda notched a single apiece.

Chen was arguably the hardest working player on the ice Sunday, when Caledon hosted a tilt with the Penetang Kings.

With the Hawks up 1-0 in the first, he doubled the lead with a pretty deke through the final defenceman's legs, before snapping it home.

Later in the frame, Chen outskated two King defenders for a loose puck for a partial breakaway that he just missed the bottom corner of the net.

Up 3-0 in the second, the Hawks got a scare when Penetang clawed back to 3-3 going to the final 20 minutes.

It was Daniel Cafagna, the team's leading scorer, who scored the game winner with a nice deke to his backhand.

James Pitsadiotis added another on the power play, as the Hawks took the game 5-4.

What those wins over Erin and Penetang mean for Caledon, combined with a Schomberg Cougars loss in their only matchup of the week, is a deeply impactful shakeup of league standings.

For the first time this season, the Hawks are better than eighth in the nine-team league, climbing above the Shamrocks, Kings and Cougars into fifth place.

Along with the goal-scoring prowess of the team's top forwards, the Hawks can play the onus on a newfound knack for discipline in their recent success. Caledon was in the box for only five minor penalties over the weekend's pair of games, and boast the lowest penalty minutes in the league.

If anyone happens to think that doesn't make a difference, close behind the Hawks for second lowest is the league-leading Aliston Hornets.

Caledon will welcome back-to-back home games this weekend, holding a winning record at Caledon East. The Shamrocks (7-11-1) are in town Friday, while the Orillia Terriers (2-18-1) visit Sunday.

Puck drop Friday is at 8:30 p.m.

Also looking ahead, the GMOHL has announced the rosters for the Junior C

All-Star and Prospects games to be held Saturday in Mitchell. Caledon will be represented by Cafagna, McNutt, and Pitsadiotis, all to play in the All-Star competition.

CALEDON'S ATHLETES

Wolfpack fall short in bid for ROPSSAA Tier 2 championship

By Jake Courtepatte

For the Robert F. Hall Wolfpack varsity football squad, the regular season was a walk in the park.

They cruised through the Tier 2 North division until the final week of play, taking down their Region of Peel opponents by a total score of an astounding 140-14.

But in the first week of November, the Wolfpack seemed to have met their match. On the road in Bolton to face the St. Michael Thunder, Hall managed only a field goal in a 13-3 loss, bringing the green and white back down to earth before entering ROPSSAA competition.

It didn't seem to affect their play — Hall swiftly took down the interdivision Philip Pocock Pirates of Mississauga two majors to one.

That set up their most difficult challenge yet, a semifinal match Friday with the St. Edmund Campion Bears, who in their 6-0 regular season record averaged more than 30 points per game.

Despite being the underdogs on the other team's turf, it was the Wolfpack who were given the first glorious chance of the game. Midway through the first, Hall received the ball on the Campion 15-yard line after the opposing running back fumbled a handoff.

However, despite getting first down with the ball on the opposing five, a fumble of their own cost Hall the drive.

Deadlocked at zeroes after the first quarter, Campion converted on two separate third and four attempts to start the second, moving the chains to Hall's 10-yard line.

An unnecessary roughness call brought Campion to first and goal on the one, where they made no mistake with a quarterback sneak on the very next play.

Hall fought back by blocking the extra point, leaving the score at 6-0.

A bad snap put Hall in terrible positioning to end the half, giving Campion the ball in the red zone where they capitalized with twenty seconds left for a 12-0 lead.

Another opportunity came the Wolfpack's way late in the third, after a huge sack left the Campion offence no choice but to punt on third and 25.

Hall went to the air for two plays to get the ball to the Bears' nine-yard line, but once again failed to make anything out of it.

With only four minutes left in the game, the Wolfpack brought themselves within five after a long drive, scoring a major for a 12-7 score.

Campion went three and out with just over a minute and a half to go to give Hall some life, but they failed to gain another yard as the Bears ran out the remaining clock.

Hall can hang their hats on a terrific season, however, going 5-1 in the regular campaign.

The Wolfpack were Tier 2 champions in 2013, capping off a perfect 9-0 season with a 7-6 victory over the Cardinal Ambrozic Riverhawks.

Campion moves on to face the five-time ROPSSAA champion Notre Dame Knights in the final matchup Friday. The Knights defeated Loyola in the other semifinal in a low scoring 7-0 game.

The Robert F. Hall Wolfpack lost a 12 - 7 heartbreaker to the St. Edmund Campion Bears in the ROPSSAA Tier 2 final on Friday at Campion.

MEMORIAM

MEMORIAM

MEMORIAM

MEMORIAM

AMOS, Scott Lee, 'Scotty'

October 27, 1964 – November 21, 2010

It has been five years today and yet,

Time hasn't dried a single tear,

Nor chased away the pain.

He lives with me within my heart

Until we meet again.

Mom

Remembered today by
Joan, Al, Tony and Todd

STEWART, Dorothy A.

In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away November 18th, 2000.

Two bright eyes,

A tender smile,

A tender heart that knew no guile,

Doe's trust in God that all was right,

Her joy to make some other bright,

If sick or suffering one she knew,

Some gentle act of love she'd do.

No thought of self,

But of the other I know,

He said, "Well done, dear Mother"

See Ya!
Peter

STEWART, Jack D.

In loving memory of a dear father who passed away November 22nd, 1999.

In tears we saw you sinking,

We watched you fade away,

Our hearts were almost broken,

You fought so hard to stay.

But when we saw you sleeping,

So peacefully free from pain.

We could not wish you back,

To suffer that again.

See Ya!
Peter

STEWART, Robert A.D.

In loving memory of a dear brother who passed away November 23rd, 2009.

God called him home,

It was His will,

But in our hearts,

We love him still,

His memory is as dear today,

As in the hour he passed away.

We often sit and think of him,

When we are all alone,

For memory is the only thing,

That grief can call its own.

See Ya!
Peter
