FALLFEST ACTIVITIES OVER THE WEEKEND

The Town of Caledon hosted two Fallfest events over the weekend to celebrate the season. There were plenty of fun activities taking place Saturday at Caledon Community Complex in Caledon East.

Kolb suggests looking to Vaughan for expansion

By Bill Rea He might be retired, but former Peel Regional Chair Emil Kolb is keeping an eye on things.

He's also come up with a possible vision for dealing with the Bolton residential expansion.

It involves annexing land from the City of Vaughan.

Kolb's proposal was included in Tuesday's agenda for the Planning and Development Committee of Caledon council. It was received with little sign of enthusiasm.

"Unless commanded by council, there's no further action to be taken," Town CAO Mike Galloway remarked.

The Bolton Residential Expansion Study (BRES) produced six options for where residential growth could go in Bolton, along with three surrounding areas. Town councillors, Regional staff and Regional councillors have been at odds over the most preferred site.

Kolb, thinking "outside the box" of a way to make Bolton a compete community, is looking beyond the borders of Caledon.

He pointed out the commercial area in Bolton includes a number of large retailers, like Walmart, Canadian Tire, Home Depot, Zehrs, Giant Tiger, etc. There are also various banks and chain restaurants. But he observed the community has not grown in line with the expectations of the people behind these businesses.

The lands Kolb is thinking of lie on the east side of Albion Vaughan Road. It consists of about 153 hectares (378 acres), bordered by Cold Creek Road, Albion Vaughan Road and Kirby Road. It's mainly being put to agricultural or rural uses at this time.

There are a number of benefits that Kolb can think of to using these lands, including the fact a rail line traverses the site, and he thinks an ideal location for a GO train station is nearby.

He also said these lands are close to the Bolton commercial area, as well as to other residential neighbourhoods, meaning there are already existing schools, as well as other community amenities. And there are employment opportunities near the lands.

"To me, all of this makes a little more sense," he said.

As well, Kolb pointed out the lands are isolated, surrounded by the Greenbelt, open space lands operated by the Toronto and Region Conservation Authority (TRCA) and a hydro corridor.

The lands are outside the GTA West Corridor, and adjacent to the area that's subject to Peel's joint study with GO. It's also bounded by an arterial road system with good access to a major transportation network. As well, there is frontage on Albion Vaughan Road, which is an improved arterial road. He also pointed out there are two existing watermains on Mayfield Road which services Bolton, and a third one is planned. There is also a sanitary sewers on Albion Vaughan Road.

The Town had previously chosen Option 3, also known as the Go Station Focus option, which involves lands on Humber Station Road, between the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks and The Gore Road, north of King Street.

Regional staff in June had recommended a hybrid of Options 4 and 5, an "L" shaped parcel of land that straddles Humber Station and runs west to The Gore Road, south of King. But Regional councillors overruled their advice and opted for Option 6. Option 6 involves lands that run along the east side of Humber Station between Healey and Mayfield Roads, as well as a small triangular piece of land at the southeast corner of the site. The justification was it was cheaper and made better use of infrastructure already in place.

Taking over these lands from Vaughan would require annexation, but Kolb said that's not unprecedented. He pointed to a recent case in which Mississauga took over lands from Halton Region. As well, Dufferin County annexed lands from Peel, that resulted in the building of County Road 109.

"In my life as a politician, I've been through several annexations that have always worked out for the better," he observed.

Kolb said using these lands for development would allow the Town and Region time to do more and proper planning of their whitebelt lands, and would be a natural extension of the community. And since the lands are isolated, he argued it would not have a detrimental impact on York Region.

Town councillors weren't enthused with the suggestion.

General Manager of Community Services Peggy Tollett told Councillor Barb Shaughnessy these lands were never identified as a BRES option, adding this was the first time Town staff had seen the proposal.

Shaughnessy was concerned that Kolb thought his option was better than the others. "I'm confused by this," she said.

Galloway reminder her Kolb is a resident of Caledon and can submit his ideas if he wants to.

Councillor Jennifer Innis said this proposal can't be considered because it was not part of a municipal comprehensive review.

Mayor Allan Thompson was not keen on annexation.

"When you start to annex land from another municipality, you've got to have a really good case," he commented.

Fundraising benefit in Caledon coming to fight DBA

Diamond Blackfan Anemia (DBA) is a potentially life threatening, rare genetic blood disorder, characterized by severe chronic anemia due to complete or partial failure of the bone marrow to produce red blood cells.

At just 12 weeks of age, Jack, the fourth of five children born to Janet and Nel Pereira, experienced a life saving blood transfusion. Little did anyone realize at that time, it was the first of more than 115 transfusions he would receive to date as part of the treatment protocol for the disease he was diagnosed with just a few weeks later.

With DBA, iron overload from excessive transfusions can cause damage to the body's major organs. So Jack's treatment also requires being hooked up to a pump every night of his life, to remove excessive iron from his body.

"Just managing DBA is hard enough . . . living with the unknowns is even worse," his mother said.

DBA is extremely rare, with less than 35 cases diagnosed in North America each year. It can cause other medical problems, such as short stature, thumb abnormalities and heart problems, among others. It requires blood transfusions and iron overload therapy, and there is no known cure. At present, transfusions are one of the treatments available and/or the risky process of a stem cell transplant is considered potentially effective.

Pereira, since her son's diagnosis, has been his (and DBA's) most tireless advocate. She is the co-founder of DBA Canada and the current Executive Director. She is also the founder of the Jack's Fight For a Cure Fundraising Gala. To date, she has raised more than $150,000 toward life-saving research for this rare genetic disease and she is passionate about finding a cure.

Come to the fourth annual Jack's Fight for a Cure Gala, taking place Nov. 11 at the Royal Ambassador Banquet Hall in Caledon. This signature event is formal dress, featuring cocktails, a sit down dinner, auction items, casino tables, guest speakers and more. It's a chance to share a wonderful evening with friends while supporting an seven-year-old boy's fight against this life altering disease. What motivates Pereira, and her team of supporters, premier sponsors MWAC and ESSO, along with family and friends? Here is her story, ripped from the pages of her facebook account:

"Last night at bedtime, shortly after putting in his needle, I found Jack in his room crying. When I asked him what was wrong, he said, 'Mommy, I hate DBA and I'm sick of needles. Why did God give ME DBA?' The only reply I could come up with (as I struggle myself with this question) was to tell him, 'I know DBA sucks, Jack, and we are working hard to find a cure and I don't know why you have DBA, but I can tell you what I do know is that God gives his toughest battles to only his strongest warriors.' I'm sharing this with you all, not because I'm looking for sympathy or pity, but so you all understand why we keep fundraising through dinner galas and other special events. We need your help to find a cure for Jack and all families living with DBA. Please book tickets today. Together we can find a cure."

Town approves rezoning of large area for industrial

By Bill Rea

Approximately 420 Bolton area acres are now zoned for industrial development.

Caledon council last week passed the necessary bylaw for the rezoning, after councillors had previously approved it in the Planning and Development Committee. Both decisions came after lengthy debates, with Councillors Annette Groves and Barb Shaughnessy voicing their opposition.

Groves made an unsuccessful attempt to have the bylaw deferred, citing the fact that both Mayor Allan Thompson and Councillor Doug Beffort were absent from the council meeting. But Shaughnessy was the only one who backed that.

The lands involved are on the west side of Coleraine Drive, between Mayfield and Healey Roads.

Town staff had recommended the rezoning.

Staff reported it was the Town that initiated the move, adding it was in keeping with the designation on the lands in Caledon's Official Plan. Staff added there are currently no developments planned for this area. Any such development will require site plan approval.

There are allowances for both serviced and prestige industrial uses on the lands.

Staff reported this is part of the boundary expansion exercise for Bolton, and they said the Employment Needs Study of 2007 identified the need for additional employment lands. Council, about seven years ago, selected a preferred land use scenario for lands west of Coleraine, including the area that was subject of this application. The Town sought a Regional Official Plan Amendment (ROPA) 28 in September 2010, and it was approved by the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) earlier this year. The designation of the lands was approved in April with the passage of an amendment to the Town's Official Plan for the Coleraine West Employment Area Secondary Plan.

The staff report stated a wide variety of uses are going to be permitted in the zoning, including business offices, convenience stores, gas stations, trailer storage, etc.

There will also be accessory uses permitted, like day care, drive thru, etc. The new zoning also addresses site specific standards for such things a building area, setbacks, restrictions on front-yard parking in prestige industrial areas, as well as on loading and delivery areas.

Planning consultant Glen Broll, of Glen Schnarr and Associates Inc., was pleased that the rezoning was proceeding.

"It's a huge milestone," he told the committee, adding their clients want to get out into the market place to start attracting business to the area. But he said there's always some hesitation because the zoning was not in place.

Groves was concerned that the public had not been aware this was about to happen. General Manager of Community Services Peggy Tollett said there had been a public process as part of the rezoning.

Shaughnessy was also concerned about the number of uses that could be permitted. "This zoning seems to be a catch-all," she commented.

Groves also referred to the lands to the north. That is where the massive Canadian Tire distribution centre is being constructed, and she pointed out that area is governed by a Ministerial Zoning Order (MZO), which the Province approved to allow the development to go ahead. Groves thought the Canadian Tire lands should be part of this rezoning, since they were also part of ROPA 28.

She also said people in the Bolton area are concerned about having more warehouse development. As well, Groves pointed to the matters involving the GTA West Corridor that passes near the lands, as well as the ongoing issue involving the Bolton Residential Expansion Study (BRES). These matters have not yet been resolved, and she wondered if this was a case of putting the cart before the horse.

"We are predetermining something," she declared.

Tollett countered the lands in question have always been identified for employment, but Groves maintained that deciding what kind of industry goes where should be done concurrent with the determining where residential development goes, meaning this should be done with BRES.

Shaughnessy also expressed concern with the fact it looks like hydrogen production will be permitted in the Canadian Tire facility (it will be used internally to fuel equipment), and she wondered why it's not being listed as a permitted use on the lands in question.

Councillor Nick deBoer, who was chairing the committee meeting, said the hydrogen production is accessory to a warehouse use, and there is no proposal for wholesale production.

Tollett added production could be included as an accessory use of the lands impacted by the bylaw. "It depends on what comes forward," she said.

Shaughnessy maintained if it's desirable, it should be defined in the Official Plan.

She also stressed she's not against hydrogen, but she's against a process that doesn't allow the public to take part.

Groves had made an unsuccessful attempt to committee to amend to the staff recommendation, stating that warehousing and wholesale warehousing be prohibited in the bylaw. She maintained most people in the village say they're tired of warehouses coming in.

Shaughnessy agreed.

"I'm not going to force it on a village that doesn't want it," she said.

"Warehousing is a necessary evil," Thompson told the committee.

He said people don't like this kind of development because of the truck traffic it generates on Queen Street. But he also pointed out Coleraine is a designated truck route and has the capacity to handle it.

"I think we have a huge opportunity," he declared.

Groves disagreed, pointing out the planned extension to Highway 427 will send more traffic to Coleraine.

She also said traffic is not the only concern. Warehouses don't create many jobs, she argued. Groves maintained Bolton is still seen as a bedroom community, and should attract companies that will provide jobs locally.

Tollett told Councillor Johanna Downey that Groves' amendment would be in violation of the Town's and Region's Official Plans.

"It is our job to support the Official Plan," Downey commented.

"It's also our job to support the community," Groves responded.

Groves kept at it last week before council, when it came time to approve the bylaw, maintaining Bolton residents don't want any more warehouses, and that the have been saying that for years.

"I don't believe we're listening to the community," she declared.

She also argued there had been no study of the financial impacts on the rezoning, as she called the vote "premature."

"I just look at this, and say, 'What's the rush,'" Shaughnessy added. "We don't have people knocking down our doors for that land right now."

A main argument in favour of the rezoning remained the financial benefits to the Town, although General Manager of Financial and Infrastructure Services Fuwng Wong said the tax revenue won't be known until the properties are assessed, and it's the Municipal Property Assessment Corporation (MPAC) that will decide that.

"I think I understand a dollar bill," Councillor Gord McClure remarked as he said he was going along with the staff recommendation. He added companies are not going to locate in Bolton unless there's land available.

"We all understand the dollar bill," Groves shot back, adding there's a need for jobs and there are different kinds of employers who might provide them. "I think I know what the residents want and I think I know what the residents don't want."

"Who says it's going to be warehousing?" Councillor Jennifer Innis countered.

She also pointed out some $77 million was spent to build a bypass around Bolton to help support the industrial-commercial tax base.

"This is huge for us," she declared, adding it's time to move forward.

Caledon East artist Carolina Rennig is currently showing a collection of her works at Town Hall.

Local creations on display at Town Hall

By Bill Rea

The walls at Town Hall in Caledon East are known as a place for art to be displayed, and there is currently a collection of creations by a local artist.

Caledon East resident Carolina Rennig is currently showing a collection of 10 of her oil creations. They have been on display about three weeks. She said she's been showing her works for about 10 years.

Rennig was one of the participants in the Headwaters Parade of Horses that symbolized the local involvement in the 2015 Pam American Games. Her creation is currently at the Trisan Centre in Schomberg.

"It was such an honour," she said.

Painting has been part of her life since she was a child in Holland during the Second World War.

"During my life, I've been painting off and on," she said.

"Painting is for me satisfying, calmness and peace," she added.

Rennig was born and raised on a farm, where she was exposed to the beauty of animals, like horses, and nature. That has always been an inspiration to her.

Artistic creativity also seems to run in her family. Her brother Joseph was a member of the Royal Canadian Society of Fine arts, and another brother Andreas has a sculpture studio in the Rockwood Academy.

Volunteer information session at CCRW

Recent research has found that 1.8 million older adults in Canada volunteer because they want to give back and make an impact on their community.

Additionally, researchers also found out that by volunteering, older adults are getting much more than expected — improved health and wellbeing, compared to those who don't volunteer.

Volunteer MBC believes that older adults can contribute a lot in building their communities and at the same time benefit from it themselves. Hence, the Provincial government, Peel Elder Abuse Prevention Network (PEAPN) and Volunteer MBC are hosting a series of events for older adults.

The one in Caledon will be Oct. 25, from 9:30 a.m. to noon, at Caledon Centre for Recreation and Wellness.

Volunteer engagement professionals from different non-profit organizations and senior volunteers will gather for a short free workshop on engaging older adults as volunteers — what organizations are looking for, engaging seniors based on their skills, answering questions and providing them with resources.

At the same time, volunteers will also be taking part in a workshop to learn about the benefits of volunteering, how to become a volunteer, expectations, etc.

Keep track of how old your smoke alarms are

Caledon Fire and Emergency Services urge all residents to know how old their smoke alarms are, and to replace them every 10 years.

Does your home have a working smoke alarm? Do you know how old your smoke alarms are? If you're like most people, you're probably not so sure.

A recent survey conducted by National Fire Prevention Association (NFPA) revealed that only a small percentage of people know how old their smoke alarms are, or how often they need to be replaced. That lack of awareness is a concern for Caledon Fire and Emergency Services, because smoke alarms don't last forever.

"Time and again, I've seen the life-saving impact smoke alarms can have in a home fire, but I've also seen the tragedy that can result when smoke alarms aren't working properly," said Fire Chief David Forfar. "That's why we're making a concerted effort to educate Caledon residents about the overall importance of smoke alarms, and that they do have a life limit."

To find out how old your smoke alarm is and its expiration date, simply look on the back of the alarm where the date of manufacture is marked. The smoke alarm should be replaced 10 years from the date of the installation of power, or at the replace date marked on the alarm.

The fire department also recommends smoke alarms should be tested monthly, and that batteries should be replaced twice a year or when they begin to chirp, signaling that they're running low.

For more information on smoke alarms, visit www.firepreventionweek.org

New detachment commander coming to Caledon OPP

There will soon be a new man at the helm of Caledon OPP.

Chief Superintendent Rose Di Marco, regional commander of the OPP Central Region (herself a former detachment commander in Caledon) and the Town of Caledon have announced that Inspector Ryan Carothers will become the new head of the local police.

Inspector Tim Melanson will retire from OPP later this month. His leadership and dedication to public safety over his career was apparent to everyone he worked with and served. Melanson has been an asset to the organization for 30 years and to Caledon detachment for the last three years of his career.

Carothers has been policing in Ontario for the past 27 years, having started his career in the Milton detachment in 1990. He was the Sergeant Team Leader for one of the most successful Traffic Enforcement Teams in the history of OPP, the Highway Rangers. Throughout his career, Carothers has worked closely with both the Deputy Minister and Minister of Community Safety and Correctional Services.

In 2009, he was promoted to Inspector and transferred to the Highway Safety Division as the Director of Support.

Inspector Ryan Carothers

Carothers is looking forward to this move.

"I am extremely fortunate and very thrilled to take over command as the detachment commander for Caledon OPP," he said.

"I am proud to extend my congratulations to Inspector Carothers on his new position as detachment commander of Caledon OPP," Mayor Allan Thompson remarked. "Caledon will benefit from his sound experience in policing and his dedication to keeping our community safe."

"I would like to congratulate and welcome Inspector Carothers as our new detachment commander," Peel Police Services Board Chair Amrik Ahluwalia said. "The Town of Caledon will be well served."

The Regional Command Staff of the OPP Central Region has extended thanks to Thompson and Ahluwalia for their assistance in this process.

Arrests made after property recovered

Three men from Brampton are facing charges after a theft in August from a business in east Chinguacousy.

Caledon OPP reports the theft of a vehicle and trailer was reported Aug. 12. The trailer contained merchandise valued at about $1.5 million.

The Caledon Street Crime Unit and Drug Enforcement Unit executed a warrant at a residence in Dufferin, following an investigation. While executing the warrant, officers located a small quantity of marijuana, the stolen vehicle and trailer, as well as all contents of the trailer.

A 30-year-old man was charged with possession of property obtained by crime under $5,000, failure to comply with recognizance and failure to comply with a probation order. A 31-year-old man was charged with possession of property obtained by crime over $5,000, as was a 19-year-old man.

Property tax information for newly constructed homes

The following is important information for residents who have recently moved into a newly constructed home:

Property tax due dates are the first Thursday of March, May, July and September.

Tax Assessment Information for Newly Built Homes

- If the Municipal Property Assessment Corporation (MPAC) has not yet assessed your house, the Town may have calculated and billed your property taxes based on the value of the land only.
- It may take up to 3 years after occupancy before your property assessment reflects both the land and the house.
- The Town issues supplementary tax bills when MPAC has reassessed a property because of additions or improvements that increase its market value or when MPAC has assessed a new home or building.
- For newly constructed homes that are currently assessed at land only, once the full assessment information becomes available, the Town will send a supplementary tax bill.
- The supplementary tax bill can date back three years and will be for taxes payable less any taxes already billed based on the land value.

Pre-Authorized Payment Plan (PAP)

- Your PAP application will be included with your final tax bill. The PAP application form is also available on the Town's website at: www.caledon.ca/tax
- Pre-authorized payment withdrawals are made on the first of the month, January through October OR on tax installment due dates, based on the PAP plan selected.

Semi-detached and Townhomes

When a large piece of land, such as the land upon which semi-detached and townhomes are built, is divided into a series of smaller parcels of land, it is often necessary to "apportion" taxes from the original land block to the new individual parcels. MPAC assigns each of the new parcels an individual roll number and an assessment value for the land. When the Town receives this apportionment information from MPAC, an adjustment to the taxes is created and bills are issued.

Want an estimate of your taxes? Check out the property tax calculator at www.caledon.ca/tax to obtain an estimate of your annual taxes.

David Nairn — New season at Theatre Orangeville and what gives Headwaters top billing

By Constance Scrafield

This year's season at Theatre Orangeville, "your theatre," as Artistic Director David Nairn says, is filled with comedy — for many reasons.

"This playbill this year is really about fun," he explained. "We need to have fun."

"Comedy teaches us more about ourselves than tragedy does, to be honest," he added.

The Ghost Island Light, on from Oct. 20 to Nov. 6, is a comedy-thriller about a married couple; he a lighthouse keeper and she a socialite. We find them in the lighthouse, isolated on a barren rock, far from anything like a city. The environs are peopled by spirits, "ghoulish apparitions" and other hauntings. This thrilling and very humorous play by Peter Colley tells how just the two people, husband and wife, cope with their isolation and the apparent dangers of fright.

For the first time at Theatre Orangeville, for this year's Christmas show, comes Miracle on 34th Street. The adaptation of the film for stage was written by Caleb Marshall and Erin Keating, a well loved story of lost and found faith.

"The truth of faith," Nairn said, talking about the premise of the play, "that's profound — there are truths about life in this play."

Sweet and funny as it is, Miracle on 34th Street touches on the basics of human nature — resisting the corruption of wealth, self sacrifice, restoring belief in goodness.

Miracle on 34th Street will be a treat for anyone who knows the story well, or who

Juneyt to perform at CrossCurrents

Juneyt is a guitarist who plays in the Nuevo Flamenco style, and it is not like any of the traditional Spanish Gypsy guitar one may have heard.

It's a combination of jazz, Latin, North African and many more contemporary traditions.

Community Women's Circle holding sale

The Community Women's Circle will be holding a Christmas Craft Shoppe and Bake Sale at Caledon East United Church.

It will be Nov. 26 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The group has been working to have lots of interesting and creative ideas on display, including hand-knitted scarves, hats, mittens and designer sweaters. There will also be honey, has never seen it or the movie. It opens Dec. 1 and plays right up to Dec. 23.

The New Year production begins Feb. 2 to 19 with the return of Walt Wingfield, stockbroker turned farmer, in Dan Needles' hilarious Wingfield's Progress, starring the great genius Rod Needles.

Nairn was clear about the ownership Dufferin County feels for the Wingfield series.

"Larkspur is Dufferin," Nairn averred. Needles and his family spent their childhood summers and more on their farm in this area.

Over the last many years, while the series was developed into a collection of seven related plays, the people of Dufferin County have filled the theatre to be enthralled by Mr. Beattie playing many of the very people this rural audience knows and identifies with. Everyone else comes for the wildly funny writing and the wonder of his performance.

Additionally, as Nairn remarked, "Wingfield addresses the bravery it takes to change."

Taking a pause from the discussion of the shows, he began to say, "We are looking for people to buy subscriptions to attend all five or any three of the season's productions — 10 well spent hours a year not only to enjoy the shows, but as a commitment to the company and the art form."

It is more than a couple of hours of entertainment that can make each occasion so delightful. The restaurants and shops that line the streets of Orangeville offer enticement too. There are 14 restaurants

He will be bringing his passion to CrossCurrents Cafe in Bolton tomorrow (Friday) night.

The doors open at 7:30 p.m., with the music starting at 8.

CrossCurrents is at Bolton United Church (use the side entrance).

home-made pickles and jams and a bake table with an assortment of home-made goodies. lunch will be available in the cafe.

Proceeds from this community fundraising event will go to support local charities.

in and very near Orangeville that sponsor the theatre and many of these are independent establishments, unique to the area, serving fabulous food that is an experience as much as a meal. There are chain restaurants too, definitely serving the best of their brand.

"I would take all the restaurants on our sponsor list and match any of them to restaurants in Toronto," Nairn declared. "Patrons should mark their dates in stone on their calendars and be sure to reserve their tables at any of these restaurants because they get booked up — people know what sort of quality they're going to be served."

The Norm Foster play this season is The Gentleman Clothier. No doubting the humour of this production and the eccentricity of the plot, coming as it does from the pen of Foster. This production runs from March 23 to April 19.

Foolhardy for failing to appreciate his own world, Norman Davenport reckons he would be better off if he had been born 100 years ago. It often requires courage to deal with the challenges of one's own circumstances, but to wish that life away is not necessarily wisdom, as we may soon learn.

Written by Michele Riml, Sexy Laundry is making a come back to the main stage after its initial production 10 years ago, opening April 27 through to May 14.

"It's a reboot of a marriage — to get away because they need that time (along with a copy of Sex For Dummies), to reinvigorate their relationship," Nairn said of the show. "It's hugely funny but it's also hugely true — people watch and think — that's us! That's me!"

"When he cuts loose — throws off the uniform and remembers who he is . . . that's the power, the impact theatre has."

"I believe that Dufferin County — Headwaters — is the most artistic community, more than anywhere else in this country," he commented. "And why? Because we chose to live here. The community excites us with the Alton Mill, the Dufferin County Museum and Archives.

"Within half an hour of this spot, there are six excellent amateur theatre companies, the studio tours, the Orangeville Art Group, Click Connect — this to me is why Theatre Orangeville is still here — Citrus Dance — those kids come to the Young Company and the after school programs we have."

"How has this county attracted all this creativity? It's magic! Like Theatre Orangeville — it's a bumblebee — it shouldn't fly but it does."

"I would put any of our shows up against anybody's," Nairn declared. "We don't do Broadway, Shaw or Shakespeare, but those actors come here to perform! That's why I think the experience is tremendous. And it's in this community."

Speaking about the arts generally, "What keeps this community healthy and moving forward is the creativity here and those (young people) keep coming back to be part of it."

"Romance and beauty and truth will always win the day," he added. "Whether it be drama, comedy or a musical, we can see ourselves on the stage."

AUTHOR AT LIBRARY

Author Andrew Westoll, whose novel The Chimps of Fauna Sanctuary: a Canadian Story of Resilience and Recovery, won the 2012 Charles Taylor Prize for Literary Non-Fiction, recently spoke at the Alton-Bolton branch of Caledon Public Library. The book describes his heart-warming adventures as a volunteer caregiver in the chimpanzee house at Fauna Sanctuary, which is Canada's only chimp sanctuary. He spoke about his experiences at the sanctuary and how he was witness to the chimps' remarkable recovery first-hand. He also discussed his newly published debut fiction novel, The Jungle South of the Mountain

Many porcelain dolls can put smiles on many faces

By Bill Rea

Porcelain dolls can be very attractive, and they make wonderful collectors' items.

But it is possible to have too many. That is the situation facing some Caledon residents.

John Sgro and his twin sister Anna Rizzardo aren't sure how many dolls that have in their house.

"We never counted them," Sgro said. "They just keep coming."

Rizzardo estimated there are more than 200 of them.

It's her brother who supplied them and she keeps restoring them. It started as a hobby, but it's also become a form of therapy to help her deal with painful back problems.

"It calms me down," she said. "I just concentrate on what I'm doing."

She added there's always the joy that goes with accomplishing something.

"It's relaxing," she said. "Very relaxing." "She does all the hair," Sgro said. "She does the make-up."

"She basically restores them, almost to the original condition," he added.

The dolls are not really toys in the conventional sense.

"They are not playable," Sgro observed. "You can't play with them. They last forever."

But the problem is the dolls have started to represent too much of a good thing.

"It kind of got out of hand," Sgro said, although he added his sister still enjoys working on them. "Now it's getting too much."

They are looking for ways to give some of the dolls away, possibly through donations to outlets like the Hospital for Sick Children, or raffling some off or selling them through some sort of silent auction.

"When I was a child, I always wanted dolls," Rizzardo said, adding they weren't always available.

And now, working on these dolls is a passion.

"I kept working on them for hours and hours," she said. "Every morning I go upstairs and just look at them. It's breathtaking."

She added there really isn't a plan on what the doll is going to look like when she starts, in terms of hair, costume, etc. "I just look at it and figure it out," she said.

"They're all remarkable," her brother observed.

Rizzardo thinks of the joy in a child's face when they see their doll for the first time.

She has three sons and 11 grandchildren, and that includes three granddaughters. And each one has at least one porcelain doll.

They are looking for ideas on what can be done with these dolls.

Anyone with suggestions can reach them at 905-584-8048.

Anna Rizzardo and her brother John Sgro have many rooms in their house filled with porcelain dolls.

Anna Rizzardo works on the hair on this doll, named Vanessa.

Let public library help discover the wonders of Caledon this fall

There has never been a better time to discover Caledon and enjoy the spectacular scenery and the many parks and trails that make up this unique community.

Caledon Public Library and its partners the Toronto Regional Conservation Authority (TRCA) and Credit Valley Conservation (CVC), through the support of World Wildlife Fund (WWF) — Canada, have teamed up to provide a simple, four-step plan for enjoying Caledon this fall.

- Grab your Caledon Public Library card and visit any one of the library's seven branches. In Caledon, one is never more than 15 minutes away from a branch, so there is sure to be a branch nearby.

- Borrow a family pass for free admission to any TRCA or CVC park in Caledon.

- Borrow a set of binoculars (adult and/or child glasses) which are now available through a grant supported by WWF — Canada. This service is free with the card?

- Before heading out into the great outdoors, pick up a book on birding, hiking wildlife or local history. Hitting one of the 260 kilometres of publicly accessible trails? Pick up your own Explore Caledon trail map. Again, all free!

Go out and explore the community. Walk the trails and enjoy the wonders of nature and man. Get a close-up look at the birds and other wildlife that call Caledon home.

New life for an old school?

We like the idea broached at a recent community meeting that the old Alton Public School building, unoccupied since 2014, should have a new life as a museum.

As matters stand, the only museum in Peel Region is a long way away in Brampton, and Orangeville residents have been known to complain at the distance they are from the Dufferin County Museum and Archives, which at Airport Road and Highway 89 is much closer to Alliston than Orangeville.

Museums are certainly a valuable form of infrastructure that can be of more than limited interest to outsiders as well as residents of the local community.

Alton might be seen as an ideal location for such a facility, with its own rich history and existing attractions like the Alton Mill and the Millcroft Inn. And there's an old school that's not doing much.

Our Readers Write

Thanks for supporting Toll Road

The Caledon Optimist Club wants to take this opportunity to offer our heartfelt thanks to our community members for the financial support provided at our Toll Road in Belfountain Oct. 2.

It is true that quite a number of drivers who stopped to donate their loose change were visitors to our area, but the vast majority of contributors were our neighbours, who know and value the youth programs offered and supported by our club. Their smiling participation in this, our fifth twice-yearly Toll Road, helps us to continue to provide our programs, and thus, this is a win-win event.

We are happy and proud to be part of such a warm, caring community.

Think of victims' rights

It has been 35 years since I left Peel Regional Police because of how messed up the judicial system was, and is.

I have always maintained that the system worries more about the rights of the bad guys than it does about the rights of the victims.

Case in point, a Toronto Sun story Oct. 6 about kidnapper Bartosz Gajewski, and it being suggested he be released into the public by the Ontario Review Board. This is very scary to Katherine Newman, who he kidnapped (or attempted to) and even the Crown is stating that Gajewski is not ready to be released.

So, I am suggesting if any Ontario Review Board or Parole Board ever finds an inmate ready to be released into the public, that they, the people finding the inmate ready for release, be made aware that should this inmate continue their crimes that put them in jail in the first place, that these Board members would be found responsible for these crimes as well, and then, and only then, would they perhaps re-think releasing violent offenders into our neighbors, as these members would no longer be able to hide from their terribly bad decisions.

Remember Paul Bernardo. Imagine what else he may have done had he been released. And this is not Gajewski's first attack of Newman. And he also has all the weird and demented paraphernalia at his house that Bernardo did. So please, do the right thing here. Think of the victims' rights for once.

Rotary Club of Palgrave's Weekly Rotary Minute

By Tom Fuller

My wife and I were lucky enough to have taken a wonderful trip to southern Africa this past summer.

We spent a number of days in Victoria Falls, Zimbabwe and Livingstone, Zambia. We had planned to take advantage of one of the benefits of being a member of Rotary, which is the ability to attend, and be welcomed at, a meeting of any Rotary Club worldwide.

Unfortunately, our travel dates did not enable us to attend the regular weekly meeting in either city. However, we were fortunate enough to meet one of the local Victoria Falls Club members. Their relatively small club (only 14 members), and similarly the neighbouring Livingstone club with 16 members, are doing some excellent local community work.

Interestingly, the average club size in both countries is only 22 members. We visited the local Rotary Park, which they built and maintain, which includes a playground for children. We also visited a new project they are undertaking, turning an unused building into a preschool and kindergarten.

I was very proud to be a Rotarian after seeing the great work these very small rotary clubs were doing in their local community.

To learn more about all that Rotary does on an international scale, please visit www.rotary.org

Was Keon the greatest Leaf?

For the record, it was 24 years ago yesterday (Wednesday) that my father died.

I naturally think of him often, but over the weekend, I experienced a strong wish that I could have had him in front of me so he and I could talk.

I would have loved to have heard his reactions to the unveiling of the top 100 Toronto Maple Leafs of all time.

I can see lots of spirited conversations being sparked up in homes and offices all over the place that were prompted by the release of that list late last week.

I have a few problems with the list. Chief among them is a lack of detail on how it was compiled. Saturday's Toronto Star credited it to "a 30-member panel." And that is the most definite statement I saw.

The top 10 on the list are as follows, in order: Dave Keon, Syl Apps, Ted Kennedy, Darryl Sittler, Mats Sundin, Tim Horton, Johnny Bower, Borje Salming, Frank Mahovlich and Turk Broda.

I never saw Apps, Kennedy or Broda play, but I have read enough about them, with that supplemented what my dad told me. I guess it should not come as much of a surprise that my old man's recollections might have been a little flawed. For example, he once told me, when I was a kid, that he seemed to remember that Broda, a goalie, had once scored a goal. I believed that for many years, but I have never been able to find any verification of that.

Facts are facts. Based on what I personally saw, read or was told about, I agree the 10 men who head the list of top 100 Leafs were very splendid hockey players. But when one tries to rank individuals, one leaves tons of room for debate.

Oh, what fun!

Was Keon the best player in Leaf history? There is absolutely no doubt he was a superb player. But does he really rank that high? Room for debate.

I remember watching him play from the time I needed my dad to tighten my skates for me.

It is true that Keon is the only Leaf who ever won the Conn Smythe Trophy, which is awarded to the player judged most valuable to his team during the playoffs. This happened in 1967, the last time the Leafs won the Stanley Cup. But I have read compelling arguments that the trophy should have gone to Jim Pappin.

Pappin, for the benefit of those people whose memories might not stretch back almost 50 years, led the league in scoring during the playoffs that year. Everyone (at least everyone like me who was around to watch the final game) remembers the memorable insurance goal, scored with 47 seconds left in regulation time in the sixth game of that memorable series which, incidentally, Montreal was expected to win. It was scored by Captain George Armstrong. It gave the Leafs a 3-1 lead, and minutes later, Armstrong was hoisting the hardware. What most of the world might not remember (and I confess I had forgotten it until I read about it many years later) is it was Pappin who scored the winning goal in that game. That's a great trivia question to throw at any person who considers him-or-herself a Leaf fan.

Armstrong placed 12th on the list of the top 100. Pappin was 89th.

Granted, I have referenced but a couple of days in the illustrious careers of these three men.

Apps placed second on the list. As I stated above, I never saw him play, but my father did, and he remembered both the player and what he represented.

His son, Syl Jr. had a successful career with a couple of NHL teams, including the Pittsburgh Penguins.

I remember watching one game on TV, played at that former shrine known as Maple Leaf Gardens, in which the Penguins had bested the Leafs. The younger Apps had played a significant role in that victory. He rightly earned the right to be named one of the Three Stars. He skated onto the ice at the end of the match to accept the accolade, to a chorus of "boos."

My father had watched the game with me.

"Y'know, I didn't think I'd live to see the day that the name Syl Apps would be booed in Maple Leaf Gardens," he said.

Kennedy's playing days were long before I came along, but I have read and heard stories of his grit and courage.

Will anyone ever match Sittler's performance Feb. 7, 1976, when he notched 10 points against the Bruins? I remember the date because to was the day after my 18th birthday, and my brother took me out for an evening of entertainment to celebrate, getting me home just in time for the Three Stars.

Sittler also stood out in his community in those days. I well remember the day in 1980 when I stood on a sidewalk on University Avenue in Toronto watching Terry Fox run by, followed by several local illuminates, Sittler among them.

Horton was sixth on the list. I hate the thought that I might appear to be denigrating the man. He was a great hockey player, but does he really deserve to be ranked that high?

When we were little kids, Horton was my brother's favourite player. Mine was Red Kelly (he was 14th on the list). Could sibling rivalry be rearing its ugly head?

Bower ranked seventh. There was a time I was the youngest kid on the cul-de-sac on which we lived, meaning I was relegated to the role of goalie in street hockey games. I both enjoyed it and was good at it. I was compared to the great Bower.

I've met him. A wonderful man! He richly deserves to be in the top 10.

Salming was a great defenceman. I marvelled at the way he threw himself in front of slap shots.

And certainly the Big M must be ranked high among the Leaf alumni.

I have heard stories of the great Charlie Conacher. He was 11th on the list. Did he deserve to be higher? And if he did, how high do we put him?

I think back to the glory days of the Leafs in the '60s, when they won their fare share of Stanley Cups.

Allan Stanley was a big part of the defensive squad in those days. I played defence in house league in those days, so Stanley was one of the guys I followed and idolized. I'm very glad he made it to the top 100, but did he deserve to be in the 23rd spot, especially since Ron Ellis was in 24th? And if we're going to set that kind of standard, then Bob Pulford certainly deserved to be ranked higher than 26th. Better than Stanley — yes. Better than Ellis — debatable.

In fact, this whole list is debatable, and that should be surprising to no one.

If I were put on the spot to name the best Leaf of all time, it would be a toss-up between Sittler and Bower. But those are my opinions, based on what I have seen.

I am frustrated that there are spirited arguments going on all over the country, and I'm missing them.

What would have my father have said?

Trudeau government continues to fail Canada's veterans

We owe a debt of gratitude to our veterans.

They've selflessly and courageously served Canada to protect our security and freedoms. They've also brought peace to areas of conflict around the world. Our country's finest deserve our compassion, care and most importantly, our respect. Unfortunately, the current Liberal government has not been showing Canada's veterans the respect and gratitude they should expect to receive from their government, by forcing injured veterans and their advocacy group back into court.

During the 2015 general election, the Liberal Party of Canada made a solemn promise that veterans would never need to fight for their rights in court against the Canadian government. In fact, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau stated at the time, "If I earn the right to serve this country as your Prime Minister, no veteran will be forced to fight their own government for the support and compensation that they have earned."

However, the current Trudeau government has forced veterans and their advocacy group, Equitas, back into court using government lawyers and arguments that were rejected by the previous Conservative government. Our previous government had reached an agreement with Equitas and developed a productive working relationship with this organization.

It is truly disappointing the Minister of Veterans Affairs, who is charged with the responsibility of serving veterans, allowed his colleague, the Minister of Justice, to end the abeyance agreement our previous Conservative government negotiated. This serves as evidence that the current Minister of Veterans Affairs is unwilling to stand up for veterans and their rights at the Cabinet table.

Veterans from across Canada have raised concerns that the current Liberal government has no plan to keep the promises the Liberal Party made to them during the 2015 election. Their concerns are rightly justified with the current government forcing injured veterans back into court. The current government is demonstrating that it neither adequately understands the issues our veterans face, nor intends to honour the promises made during the election campaign.

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

To date, the majority of funding spent on veterans' programming by the current Liberal government has done little to support the most vulnerable injured veterans. Reckless spending by the current government and massive deficits are putting future benefits at risk. In stark contrast, veterans' benefits increased by 35 per cent under the previous Conservative government:

- we improved frontline services for Canadian military veterans;
- created a network of more than 25 frontline mental health clinics across Canada and 31 integrated personnel support centres;
- introduced the New Retirement Income Security Benefit (at least 70 per cent of pre-retirement income, creating a lifelong pension);
- provided up to $100,000 for each injured military veteran who needs vocational rehabilitation, education, and training;
- implemented a New Family Caregiver Relief Benefit (more than $7,000 per year tax free);
- added a New Critical Injury Benefit ($70,000 tax-free);
- improved the Permanent Impairment Allowance;
- increased benefits for part-time reservists by providing them with the same Earnings Loss Benefit as full-time reserve and regular force veterans;
- began increasing the quantity of case managers and new front-line staff to improve processing times; and
- created world class service dog and horse therapy standards for all veterans who need them.

Canada's veterans deserve programs and benefits designed to meet their evolving needs that can be sustained over the long term. The Conservative Official Opposition believes Canadians have a moral obligation to veterans for their service to Canada and, therefore, ensuring that our veterans and their families receive the services and benefits they need, is a priority for us.

Canada's veterans have proudly and bravely stood on guard for our country. They deserve nothing but the utmost respect from all of us and their government. The current Liberal government is failing to show our veterans this respect by forcing them back into court. Our veterans deserve better from their government. We as the Official Opposition will stand up for them as they've done for all Canadians.

Changes to the Ontario Municipal Board

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

The Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) is an independent tribunal that is charged with hearing appeals and ruling on disputes regarding zoning issues.

OMB is comprised of individuals appointed by the government, and includes individuals with a wide array of professions, such as lawyers, architects, planners and accountants.

When individuals in a community disagree on a local land use planning issue and are unable to resolve their disagreement, they can take their case to OMB for a final decision to be made. For example, if a local council allows for restaurant to be built in a specific area, but will not allow for a drive-through window, the restaurant owner has the right to appeal this decision at OMB.

Part of the Ministry's review of the Ontario Municipal Board will look at the following areas: The tribunal's jurisdiction and powers, citizen participation and local perspective, clear and predictable decision-making, modern procedures and faster decisions, and alternative dispute resolution and fewer hearings. In addition, the Ministry has released a public consultation document that outlines the key areas of focus of the review, as well as questions for individuals to provide feedback. Over the course of the review, individuals can attend town hall meetings across the province that will allow individuals to learn about the proposed changes and ask questions and provide commentary.

The central issue that the government needs to consider is the balancing of local decision making from councils and the provincially mandated land use targets of intensification and density. The government also needs to balance the autonomy of local governments and their expertise in what their community needs, with the right to appeal of all individuals across the province.

I encourage individuals to participate in the consultation and provide feedback. If you are interested in learning more about the review of the Ontario Municipal Board, including reviewing the public consultation document, or attending a town hall session and providing feedback, please visit www.mah.gov.on.ca/Page14965.aspx

The deadline to submit your comments is Dec. 19, 2016. If you need assistance finding information on the review, or have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact my office at 1-800-265-1603 or sylvia.jonesco@pc.ola.org

It is important your voice is heard to ensure our province's adjudicative system is working best for our local communities.

Some storm clouds lying ahead

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

Can it really have been a year already?

Remember in your youthful days when even the summer holidays seemed to last forever, when you got up each day confident that the fun and games would continue indefinitely and those inevitable school bells were still well off in the distance?

Well, with age, lots of things change, among them the speed at which time seems to fly by.

So yes, it really is a year since Justin Trudeau defeated Stephen Harper — and Thomas Mulcair — to take over as Canada's latest prime minister, a year of endless selfies and ubiquitous posing that — according to the latest Star Forum survey — shows that Trudeau is still wildly popular.

Mind you, he hasn't done much yet. And it doesn't hurt that both opposition parties are essentially leaderless, involved in absurdly long leadership contests, leaving the Liberals to pretty much spend their time congratulating each other on just how terrific they really are.

Back in 2012, a year into Harper's first term as a majority prime minister — after several years running a minority — then Liberal deputy leader Ralph Goodale reminded everybody that more Canadians had voted for the opposition than for the Tories (the same situation now for the Liberals) and that Tory ministers are acting with an "attitude of impunity," which pretty well sums up the current Liberal ministers.

"Their (Tory) behavior is a false bravado every day," he continued. "It's triumphalism. And that kind of thing is going to lead to bad government."

Oh, the irony. The Tories, even at their worst, couldn't hold a candle to the smug, self-righteous triumphalism of the current crop.

What's more, like him or hate him, Harper had actually taken a lot of tough decisions during that initial year, as compared to Trudeau's constant flitting around from pillar to post, as yet unable to find a camera he couldn't cosy up to with his Hollywood looks and style.

But Trudeau's so-called "sunny ways" may soon see some clouds moving in, particularly his plan to send 600 soldiers to Africa, a plan that even Defence Minister Harjit Sajjan has made clear "is not the peacekeeping of the past."

Liberals — and others as well — have lived off the glory for years of former prime minister Lester Pearson's grand idea to set up a United Nations peace-keeping force to help maintain order in the world. In many instances, it actually worked quite well.

But things were different then. The enemy was easy to spot and not impossible to control. No more. Now, the enemy is everywhere, and all the old rules governing war have gone out the window.

According to the aforementioned Forum survey, 56 per cent of the respondents support this plan, but that drops to 44 per cent when respondents were reminded that Canadians could come under fire on this mission.

And, as Harper learned in his earlier days, once the body bags start coming home, support for the mission becomes catastrophic, and the prime minister's popularity, whether fair or not, takes a major hit.

But that's not Trudeau's only possible hiccup on his way to a sunny future. He's going to be in a fight with Saskatchewan and others over his plan to unilaterally impose a carbon tax — so much for fact-based decision making with the help of all parties involved. As an idea, the tax may be popular right now. But once it's imposed, and people start paying — and begin to realize it won't do a damn thing to cut back emissions — a lot of those smiling faces will develop a grimace.

Then there's the upcoming decisions over pipelines and Trudeau's wild-eyed proposals to spend billions in infrastructure projects. Sounds good on the surface. But with the average Canadian family already spending more in taxes than they spend on food, clothing and shelter combined, the inevitable hike in even more taxation isn't going to be greeted by massive standing ovations from coast to coast. Quite the opposite.

One thing I've learned in half a century of watching politics is that people often clamour for government action on this and that, but generally are happier with governments when they're not doing anything.

That explains Trudeau's current popularity a year in. But once he starts doing concrete things — and there's nothing governments can do without upsetting a lot of people — we may begin to catch just a glimpse of worry on his bright, smiling face as he hops from selfie to selfie cheered on by the party that invented self-entitlement.

Or, as one former Liberal minister once summed it up nicely when questioned about his excessive personal entitlements, "I'm entitled to my entitlements."

Eventually, the public tires of it. But it takes a while.

Caledon Business Matters

By Tony Maxwell
Project Manager
Strategic Initiatives Department
Town of Caledon

Consistent communication and ongoing promotion are key to brand awareness and, ultimately, sales.

At its foundation are two words: customer service. You have to meet your customers where they are. That's why it's important to promote and communicate your message through the channels your customers use. This applies to business and government.

At the Town of Caledon, we communicate with residents in many ways: newspaper ads, direct mail, signage, public meetings and of course our website, caledon.ca

But with the growth of social media in recent years, we knew there were other channels that would help us reach Caledon residents.

In January 2015, we launched two social media channels: @YourCaledon on Facebook and @YourCaledon on Twitter. Since then, our followers have grown steadily and social media has become a standard part of our communications to residents.

Lessons learned?

- Go slow. Build slowly. Experiment with different types of content, frequency and format until you find a style or voice that works for you.
- Create. Go beyond copying and pasting. Don't be afraid of doing your own writing, photography, video or graphic design. If you keep it simple, direct and honest, your users will appreciate your authenticity.
- Stay with it. It takes time to nurture your social media channels. Producing original content that is relevant to your audiences takes time. So does interacting with fellow users, responding to comments, monitoring mentions and following other users.
- Adapt. Each platform has its own style, etiquette and publishing features. Try to follow the conventions — hashtags are a great way to categorize topics on Twitter for example.
- Trust. There are trolls, critics and spammers out there that can make your life miserable in the short run. Resist the temptation to fire off angry replies that can easily inflame the situation. Over time, the user community tends to police itself: others will jump in with different viewpoints that tend to balance things out.

• Extend. Be aware of which platform your key audience is using. We set up an Instagram account last year for the Pan Am Games to complement our other social media channels. And we established a Town of Caledon channel on Vimeo to host our videos. Just be sure you have the capacity to keep your channels populated with content. Easier said than done!

• Link. Try to ensure you are providing a benefit to your followers by sharing useful — or entertaining — links to other sources. Or, if you are promoting yourself, at least ask the "what's in it for me" question from your readers' perspective.

• Delete. To borrow from Strunk and White's classic Elements of Style: omit needless words. Attention spans are short on social media. Make sure you say what you want to say in as few words as possible.

• Tell. Your readers shouldn't have to guess what you want them to do. Make sure your call to action is clear. If you're hosting an event, for example, use active verbs in your promotions: register, attend, buy, learn!

In the end, whether social media works for you is a question only you can answer. At the Town, we are pleased with the response. For little expense, we can reach out to Caledon residents in new ways.

But social media isn't everything. We continue to look for new and different ways to interact and engage.

Last year at this time, we surveyed residents about our communications and a large majority said they would like to receive Town news by email.

In response, we launched a weekly email which in four short months already has more than 900 subscribers. Subscribe at caledon.ca/enews/

Final thoughts: Be open to change, don't be afraid to experiment and above all, listen to your audience and try to benefit them through fresh, relevant and engaging content.

Region looking to address aging population

By Bill Rea

The population is aging, and there's considerable enthusiasm for Peel Region's efforts to get ready for it.

Part of the review process of the Regional Official Plan includes coming up with plans for an age-friendly community. The review is reflected in Regional Official Plan Amendment (ROPA) 27, which is aimed at age-friendly planning and the creation of a healthy built environment.

The region recently hosted an open house to offer information on the proposed ROPA 27.

Regional staff stated a complete community is one that provides residents with opportunities to interact, learn, work, play and live throughout a lifetime; options for housing, employment, healthy food, services and recreation; and convenient access to public transportation, with options for safe, non-motorized travel.

Staff added such a community meets the basic daily needs of most people, and within walking distance.

The push for age-friendly communities has been prompted by a couple of factors, including the fact the population is aging, and the need to plan for changes in the built environment to address the needs of these older people. It's also based on direction from Regional council as a term of council priority.

There's also an understanding that as seniors retire from the workforce, the number of younger people entering it is dropping. Staff stated that in 1991, there were 11 people in the workforce for every senior. In 2041, it's anticipated that number will be down to just three.

Looking ahead, it's expected there will be almost 415,000 seniors living in Peel by 2041, or roughly three times the current seniors' population. The proposed policies are in line with efforts to encourage municipalities to come up with policies that support seniors aging in place, encourage the use of universal accessibility design in the built environment, require municipalities to use a healthy development framework and work with municipalities to find gaps in support services and the built environment.

Addressing built environment issues, staff pointed out how people live and move about has an effect on their health. Reliance on cars when planning communities over the years have reduced physical activity in the lives of many people. It's expected that without some intervention, threat of diabetes in Peel will increase to one out of six people by 2025, which will increase health care costs. There is also air pollution caused by motor vehicles which results in hospitalizations and premature deaths.

The proposed policies to support the healthy development framework include requiring health assessments of planning applications, as well as health assessments of all municipally operated and owned building and space applications.

They are also aimed at assuring the results of these assessments are reported to local councils and integrating the framework into local municipal policies and plans.

Staff reported key elements that influence health in the framework include densities, proximity to transit and services, the land use mix, street connectivity, parking, aesthetics, and road network and sidewalk characteristics.

"We've got an aging population and we've got to look out for them," Councillor Barb Shaughnessy commented. "We haven't done a very good job so far."

Adrian Smith, manager of policy development with the Region, said he had heard no negative comments about the process so far.

He added they are working with the development industry and gathering feedback to coordinate the work with other elements in the process.

"I think the healthy development framework has been well thought out," Mayor Allan Thompson commented. "We've got to figure out how to make it work with the Town of Caledon."

Mayor Thompson talks about the 'planning fiction'

By Constance Scrafield

The Mayor of Caledon spoke his mind during an interview with The Citizen earlier this week in a discussion about the Province's Places to Grow planning document that lays out a pre-determined shape of the future not only for Caledon, but for the entire province.

Sandra Sharpe, executive assistant to the Mayor, sat in with us.

"We have to think smarter," Thompson told us. "They're not looking at how to make it right."

"They're planning to paint everything with one brush," he added. "Anyone knows you can't do that."

An elected official but, also a landowner, Thompson is particularly concerned about: "They've created municipalities out of land where there aren't the people used to dealing with the Province. The challenge is the navel gazing — they're putting prime agricultural land into (development) play out of ignorance."

In the U.S.A., there is a better understanding of the importance of arable land. "You can't get out of high school without taking courses in agriculture," he said.

"The Europeans know what it is to go hungry," he said, referring to those who learned that caring for farm land is essential to good planning.

"The Province may mean well — to me, the one challenge is leap-frogging," he continued. "As soon as 'green' was established, prices began to soar and the developers panicked to buy up the land."

"The Green Belt is fiction," he said bluntly. "The Green Belt is propaganda with no reality to it."

He related the story about a Portuguese gentleman, whose children have grown up here, going to university and doing very well.

"He told me that he is a successful man," Thompson related, "He said, 'Yes, I'm very proud of them, but I am successful because I own this house.' He had come from Portugal, 13 generations of family living on a landowner's farm. But after 13 generations, he owned his own home. That's the Canadian dream. And what we've done is make this land unaffordable for our kids."

The resistance to true consultation is a source of frustration, as is the role the environmentalists play. We mentioned the open house the Province brought to Caledon earlier in the year which outlined the proposed Places to Grow planning which was run by people who had no answers to questions and were not listening to comments.

This is more generally the case than otherwise, the Mayor commented.

"As much as they consulted, but they weren't listening," he commented. "To me, this is planning fiction."

"I've been pushing to bring in broadband," he told us. "We need to pay attention to what is going on."

The proposed GTA West Corridor, cutting through Caledon to connect Highways 400 and 401, is another point of interest. Certainly, it will impact on farmland, but understanding the problems and needs of the farming community is important. Thompson was clear in his opinions.

"Framers need it," he said. "Over 74 per cent of the traffic on Town roads is commuters, not residents. We need the infrastructure. What they're proposing is not good, but it's better than nothing. We need to get the farm products to the market."

"You can design and build just about anything," he added. "There are lots of highways built like bridges."

This would be the better design for a major motorway crossing the countryside from Nobleton.

Foresight for all aspects of "community living" is far from complete, the Mayor worries. Likewise, the omission of green energy: geothermics and solar panels, are examples of concerns. The increase in intensity of population within built up areas is not well thought out.

In the case of the Mayfield West development, Thompson noted, "We didn't build the roads wide enough for parking and the back yards are too small."

For Thompson, local input is essential to get planning right in any given area. Each region has differences and one plan cannot fit all of them.

"The local politicians put themselves up and the Province isn't listening to them either," he remarked. "The Province uses the environmental agenda to their own advantage."

"You can't protect something you don't understand," he added.

This business of bending information to take on what is and is not good for the environment is too often manipulated to suit the needs of proponents of specific projects or, indeed, those who object to them.

"If the concern was true," he commented, "you would see geothermics, but you don't. They should be looking at this as 'sprawl' — what's good and bad about it — what are the necessities."

Of all the rush to build tight, multi-storey housing in order to accommodate the heightened numbers of souls per acre, as it were, too much is being put on hold, not considered in advance.

As Caledon's Mayor pointed out, "What about medical facilities? What about seniors when we're building three-storey townhouses? What about post-secondary education? Is there a place for a college to come?"

Regardless of how well the Town of Caledon has managed both its development and the environment, the new Provincial plan takes away most of the municipal authority over development across Ontario. "Places to Grow has taken over the guidelines," he said.

Former Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion recently "pulled all the mayors across the GTA to address the Province. We'll see what happens."

A recent Round Table was held at the Dufferin County Museum and Archives (DCMA) where members of the arts, media and political communities attended to discuss making Headwaters a more vibrant destination through cooperation of all.

We touched on this ambition and Thompson remarked, "It's happening. There are three cideries and a new brewery. Things are all starting to happen now. This is a huge growth area. Downey's is one, but there will be others. The arts culture isn't business. You need the populace to come to them. The problem is the silo mentality. Collaboration is the key — how do we build on our strengths?"

About the whole picture, he insisted, "Let's have everybody at the table to talk about it. You don't have to build it all today."

Mayor Allan Thompson

Golden Hawks lose in home-and-home with Flyers

By Jake Courtepatte
 The young season is spiraling out of control for the junior C Caledon Golden Hawks, who added two more losses over the weekend.

Special teams were the culprit in back-to-back losses to the Midland Flyers, the first of which came Friday night in Midland.

Midland went two-for-two on the power play, with Francesco Corona opening the scoring with the extra attacker just more than eight minutes in. Corona doubled the lead with a short-handed marker in the second period, jumping into the play out of the penalty box after a short five-on-three advantage for Caledon.

Caledon's Sean Nottle exchanged a goal with Midland's Matt Walilko, for a 3-1 Midland score after two periods.

Another one on the power play snuck past goaltender Jason Cumbo in the third, before Nottle made it a tight match with his second of the game.

Down by two in the dying seconds, Andrew Woods scored his first goal as a Golden Hawk, but it was too little too late in a 4-3 loss.

Caledon was zero for six on the man advantage.

In Caledon's home barn at Caledon East Sunday, Midland continued to dominate on the power play by opening the scoring in the final minute of the first.

Captain Nicholas McNutt brought his scoring streak to four games with a goal in the second period, but a pair of Midland markers had the Hawks once again down by two in the third.

Tyler Whitten had a glorious opportunity to bring the Hawks back to within one five minutes into the final frame, hauled down on a breakaway for a penalty shot. Jake Norton, who had won three of his last four games for Midland, stopped the attempt.

Matt Magliozzi capitalized only a few minutes later, but the Hawks dropped another one-goal game by a score of 3-2.

Time is already running out for the Hawks in the short PJHL season, now one month old with three to go. A lone win in the season opener has been followed by 11 straight losses, while the other basement dwellers of the Carruthers division seem to have found their legs.

While the Schomberg Cougars and Orillia Terriers are beginning to add to their win columns, the Hawks record of 1-11-0 sits six points back of both squads.

The results, however, are remarkably similar to Caledon's start last season. After losing each of their first nine games of the schedule, the Hawks turned it around to post the second best record in the league following that mark and squeak into the playoffs.

Still in search of their first home win this year, the Hawks will get a pair of opportunities this weekend beginning with a late 9 p.m. game Friday hosting the Terriers at Caledon East.

Sunday's home game will feature the Hawks and the Huntsville Otters, with puck drop set for 6:30 p.m.

The Alliston Hornets continue to lead the league with a perfect record of 10-0-0.

Meet Olympic gold medalist at Fines Ford Oct. 29

By Brian Lockhart
 Fines Ford Lincoln in Bolton will be hosting a special We Scare Hunger event at their Highway 50 location, in a bid to help the Caledon Food Bank.

A Ford F 150 pickup truck will be on site, and the goal will be to fill up the truck bed with food donations for the Food Bank at Caledon Community services.

While the Food Bank donation is the main purpose of the day, Fines Ford has an ace up their sleeve to make sure this event is a success.

Canadian Olympic champion Rosie MacLennan will be at the dealership to meet fans, sign autographs, and give people the opportunity to see what a real Olympic medal looks like.

Ford Canada has partnered with the We Movement — an organization that promotes working together to promote change and make the world a better place.

We Scare Hunger is an initiative as part of the We Movement that strives to help local food banks fill their shelves and provide for local people in need.

"It is a foundation that teaches young people to care — to care about other societies and other people who are not quite as fortunate as we are," explained dealership owner Bob Fines. "Here in Bolton, we've partnered with Allan Drive Middle School. As a sponsor of We Day and a partner with We Schools, Ford of Canada is passionate about enriching local communities. In our event, we'll be doing We Scare Hunger. It's a food drive and all the food will be going to food banks. In our case, we'll be donating this food to the Caledon Community Food Bank."

MacLennan, a two-time gold medalist who claimed the top honours in trampolining both in London and Rio, has a special partnership with Fines Ford and it's a pretty interesting story how they hooked up.

"About a week before the Summer Olympics in London, I was driving my grandfather's old car," told Trader.ca in an interview. "It was a '98 Ford Escort and it died. I was asked what I was going to do with my prize money (from the Olympic win). I said, I have to replace my car."

Fines Ford heard the story and offered a unique partnership that would provide MacLennan with the use of an automobile — a Ford Focus, that she loves.

The Ford dealership has had a long history with several top athletes and Fines thought this would be a great opportunity to help an amateur athlete who gained international fame and represented her country so well.

For her part, MacLennan, who lives in King City, makes personal appearances and is well known for her charming personality and approachability with fans.

She is an inspiration to young athletes across the country.

MacLennan will be at the We Scare Hunger event at Fines Ford Oct. 29, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Come out and meet MacLennan and bring a food donation to help the Food Bank in your local Community.

Fines Ford Lincoln Sales and Leasing Consultants Jess Di Domizio and Alex Singh will be challenging visitors to fill up the box of this Ford F 150 pickup truck with food donations during the Bolton dealership's We Scare Hunger event next Saturday (Oct. 29). Canadian Olympian champion Rosie MacLennan will be at the event with her gold medals and will be signing autographs. Food collected at the event will be donated to the Caledon Food Bank at Caledon Community Services.

CALEDON MIDGETS WIN IN TOURNAMENT

Caledon Girls Hockey Association hosted their first ever Place to B Girls Rep Hockey tournament recently. They hosted 22 teams from across Ontario in a two-day, four-game guaranteed tournament, and it was a big success. There were four Caledon teams participating and all teams demonstrated great sportsmanship throughout the tournament. The Caledon Bantam BB team won the silver medal and the Midget B team made history and won gold, keeping the first place banner in the hometown arena. A big thank you to the community sponsors — Garden Foods, Foodland, Kelsey's Restaurant, Farm Credit, Pizza Express, National Sports and Zehrs.

Bolton Chiropractic takes the lead in senior standings

Mike Lo Dico scored with 28 seconds left in the game Oct. 3 night to thwart a strong effort by Fines Ford Lincoln to upset Jiffy Lube Oilers.

The goal left the game in a 3-3 tie, which allowed Jiffy Lube to remain one of the two undefeated teams after four weeks of play in the Caledon Senior Hockey League. Bolton Chiropractic Centre edged Yale Industrial Trucks 5-4 to also stay unbeaten and on top of the CSHL standing. In the other game at Don Sheardown Memorial Arena, a shootout between Heart Lake Insurance and Rutherford Global Logistics ended in an 8-8 draw.

Fines Ford 3, Jiffy Lube 3

IN MEMORIAM

MARIE RUTH MASON

In loving memory of a dear mother, grandmother & great-grandmother who passed away October 19th, 2014

*Mom, it is so hard to believe two years have passed!
Your presence we miss,
Your memory we treasure,
Loving you always,
Forgetting you never.*

Loved and dearly missed,

Daughter Dale, husband Mark and family.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM

McLELLAN, Ruth Eleanore (nee Dillon)
December 29, 1932 - October 21, 2014

Our family would like to dedicate this song to her: "Like I'm gonna lose you" by Meghan Trainor (feat. John Legend)

*I found myself dreaming
In silver and gold
Like a scene from a movie
That every broken heart knows we were walking on moonlight
And you pulled me close Split second and you disappeared and then I was all alone
I woke up in tears
With you by my side
A breath of relief
And I realized, no, we're not promised tomorrow
So I'm gonna love you
Like I'm gonna love you, I'm gonna hold you Like I'm saying goodbye,
wherever we're standing,
I won't take you for granted
'cause we'll never know when we'll run out of time
so I'm gonna love you
Like I'm gonna love you, I'm gonna love you like I'm gonna love you
In the blink of an eye,
Just a whisper of smoke,
You could lose everything,
The truth is, you never know,
So I'll kiss you longer any chance that I get,
I'll make the most of the minutes and love with no regrets,
Let's take our time to say what we want,
Use what we got before it's all gone.
'Cause no, we're not promised tomorrow.
I won't take you for granted
'cause we'll never know when we'll run out of time so I'm gonna love you like I'm gonna love you.*

You will be in our hearts forever, Mom.
See you soon. Love your family

ROTARY THANKS SPONSORS

It was a recently a night for members of the Rotary Club of Palgrave to thank their sponsors for their assistance over the year. It was also a time to learn some facts about COPE Service Dogs, which are trained to help people with various disabilities. Brenda Lue was there with Luna, a golden retriever who's almost two, and Darlene Vaughan was with Luna's sister Brandy.

Osler President and CEO leaving in November

Vanita Varma, chair of the William Osler Health System Board of Directors, has announced the resignation of President and CEO Matthew Anderson.

Anderson is leaving the organization after six years in the role, and will be joining Lakeridge Health in Oshawa in November as its President and CEO.

"In his time with Osler, Matthew has been an extraordinary, visionary leader who has taken Osler to new heights, forging new and innovative partnerships, advancing critical hospital redevelopment projects, and expanding clinical programs and services to help meet the health care needs of this community," Varma said. "The success that Osler has achieved over the past number of years has been a team effort, and part of Matthew's legacy was building a strong and capable Senior Leadership Team focused on excellence."

The Board of Directors Aug. 24 named Osler's Executive Vice President, Clinical Services and Chief Nursing Executive (CNE) Joanne Flewwelling as Interim President and CEO, upon Anderson's departure.

"We are fortunate to have strong leaders on this team, who are ready and willing to step up, and the Board is pleased that Joanne has agreed to take on this important role, as well as excited about the possibilities for this organization under her leadership," Varma commented. "Joanne's passion for health care and commitment to excellence makes her a remarkable leader and a natural choice to help lead this exemplary organization through the exciting times that are ahead."

A registered nurse, Flewwelling has more than 30 years of health care experience in both academic and community hospital settings, including a background in critical care and emergency nursing.

Prior to her previous role, she was the Vice President of Strategic Information and Performance Systems, and Chief Information Officer at Osler.

The Board of Directors has struck a search committee to lead a recruitment process to find a new President and CEO.
