Town committee will look at St. Nicholas busing

By Bill Rea

Caledon now has a School Traffic Safety Committee, and one of their first jobs will be to look into the busing situation around St. Nicholas Elementary School in Bolton.

Town councillors Tuesday night ratified a confidential staff report that went to the General Committee a week ago, naming the members of the committee and giving them the authority to make comments and recommendations related to school traffic safety.

As well, councillors Tuesday night heard a presentation on the matter from Renata Gorenec, a parent at the school.

Parents have been upset since the start of the current school year over the decision to cut back on which District School Board earlier this month, without much success.

There was a motion presented at that meeting to call on STOPR to re-instate the busing until Caledon could get its Traffic Safety Committee off the ground and had a chance to comment on the situation at the intersection. Board Chair Mario Pascucci had ruled the motion out of order, arguing the Board didn't have the authority to get involved in the operations of STOPR. Caledon representative Frank Di Cosala had challenged the ruling, but it was upheld by most of the trustees.

Material accompanying Tuesday's presentation raised a number of safety issues regarding the intersection, including the fact some sidewalks there border a ravine, there's an unprotected yield pad, etc. Gorenec said STOPR had said this area of road could be designated a truck route, but she argued it already is. She said it's part of a bypass for the core and that trucks are forced to use it.

She added unlike similar intersections elsewhere in Peel, Caledon students don't have the alternative of accessing public transit.

Gorenec said this amounts to "discrimination and inequality for students in the Town of Caledon."

There are other potentially hazardous intersections in Peel where children have to cross. Gorenec said there's a place where they cross Dixie Road, but she added there's an underpass that they can use. There's no such facility for St. Nicholas students.

"For the first two weeks (of the school year), our children were facing danger," she declared. "Their safety was not a priority with STOPR."

She also said there have been some close calls at the intersection since the kids went back to school.

The Town put crossing guards at the intersection to help the students get to and from school, but Gorenec said there have been consequenc-

King gets attention with threat to close Caledon/King Town Line

By Mark Pavilons
and Bill Rea

King Township's tough stance, and threat to close the Caledon/King Town Line near Bolton, got the attention of the Town of Caledon.

King council, Oct. 17, voted to look into closing the Town Line, unless Caledon or Peel Region ponies up the needed funds for road repairs.

King Mayor Steve Pellegrini discussed the matter with Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson Friday, who was shocked that there was no formal agreement between the two municipalities over this stretch of road. King's move got their attention and now both King CAO Susan Plamondon and Caledon CAO Mike Galloway have begun talks.

"Our staff is going to be working with their staff to see what can be done," Thompson commented.

He added there was no acrimony at the meeting.

"I've always had a good working relationship with Steve," he remarked.

According to Andrzej Drzewiecki, King's director of engineering, public works and building, the strong recommendations were "difficult," but "I don't think we have a choice."

There have been concerns for some time over the structural integrity of what's known as "culvert 210" on the Town Line, a few hundred metres north of King Road. There are insufficient funds available to replace the culvert, estimated to cost roughly $2 million.

"Replacement of culvert 210 has been determined to be a priority considering the concerns about structural integrity of the culvert. This raises concerns about potential Township liability should the culvert's structural integrity be compromised," according to the staff report.

Therefore, staff are recommending the road be closed, between King and Mt. Pleasant Road, "until the funding for the replacement of culvert 210 is identified."

Drzewiecki added there are very few residences along that stretch that will be impacted. However, the road does see a lot of volume, which is considered to be commuter, through traffic.

He noted extensive public consultation, and ongoing talks with the Town of Caledon will take place before the road is closed, and detours spelled out.

Plamondon noted the "most prudent action is to signal our intent to close it," noting the Township can reopen the road at any time. "Hopefully it gets Caledon's attention," she said at the council meeting.

At that meeting, Pellegrini was adamant about the closure.

"Either chip in, or this is the result," he said.

There have been suggestions that the road be "uploaded" to the regional governments, but so far neither York nor Peel has indicated any interest in taking over the road.

Pellegrini noted that when the road closes, drivers will find alternative routes, placing a burden on other arterial roads.

Thompson said about 9,000 cars use the road per day.

King Councillor David Boyd said given the amount of Peel-based traffic using the road, it's surprising that Caledon and/or Peel won't help pay for the upgrades.

Petition going to Queen's Park

es from that. They have impeded traffic, especially vehicles trying to make turns, because of new laws that require turning traffic to completely yield to pedestrians. She added parents have reported seeing vehicles not yielding, even to the guards. As well, she said a lot of the youngsters have experienced stress trying to get across.

"What are parents to do?" she asked council, wondering why they're not being treated equally to other parents in Peel.

Councillor Linda Pabst said she anticipates getting a lot of phone calls and complaints about the road closure. She added it should become a regional road, and pointed out that most municipal border roads are regional roads.

Gorenic also said she had a petition, with 1,412 signatures asking for the bus-ing to be restored. She added it's going to Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones so she can present it to the legislature at Queen's Park.

Councillor Annette Groves expressed thanks to Gorenic and the other parents for all the hard work they have done on this matter, and she said all the related material will be forwarded to the Traffic Safety Committee. Mayor Allan Thompson said he would be passing it on to Peel Regional staff too.

Parents and students were out protesting early in the school year the reduction in busing to St. Nicholas School.

Eligibility for the Offer will be determined by Nissan Canada Inc. ("NCI") in its sole discretion. Proof of current ownership/lease/finance contract will be required. Offer is not transferrable or assignable, except to the current owner's spouse or a co-owner/co-lease of the existing vehicle (either of whom must reside within the same household as the intended recipient of the offer). Individuals who purchased/leased a vehicle under a business name can qualify for the program provided that the new deal is not a fleet deal and that the individual can provide valid documentation that they are the registered primary owner of the business. If the eligible customer elects to lease or finance a new and previously unregistered model year 2016 Nissan brand vehicle (excluding NV, Fleet and daily rentals) (an "Eligible New Vehicle") through Nissan Canada Finance Inc. (collectively "NCF"), then he/she will receive a specified amount of NCF Loyalty Bonus, as follows: (i) 2016 Altima ($2,000); (ii) 2016 Micra/Versa Note/Sentra ($500); (iii) 2016 Juke/Rogue ($600); (iv) 2016 Pathfinder ($800); (v) 2016 Titan XD ($1,000). Loyalty Dollars will be applied after taxes. Offer is combinable with other NCF incentives, but is not combinable with the Nissan Loyalty program. Offer valid on vehicles delivered between October 1-31, 2016. *Models shown $37,474/$18,719/$27,029/$49,324 Selling price for a new 2016 Rogue SL AWD Premium (Y6DG16 BK00)/ 2016 Micra 1.6 SR AT (S5SG76 AE10)/ 2016 Sentra 1.8 SR Premium CVT (C4SG16 RL00)/ 2016 Pathfinder Platinum 4x4 (5XEG16 AA00). # Bethell Hospice thanks volunteers and supporters

By Bill Rea

It takes a lot of volunteer support to run a facility like Bethell Hospice and last Thursday was a time to express thanks.

There was a large crowd out at Devil's Pulpit Golf Club for the Bethell Hospice Foundation Giving Thanks event. The evening included reflections offered by some of the people who have been touched by the facility, as well as the presentation of awards.

The Elizabeth Birnie Leadership Award was presented to Chris Merkley.

It was presented by Birnie, the daughter of Lorna Bethell, who founded the facility. Trustee Stan Cameron, who was MC at the event, praised her as a driving force behind the creation of the Hospice.

"Her dedication rallied support for the capital campaign and she later served both as Chair and past chair of the Bethell Hospice Foundation Board, and as a front-line Hospice volunteer."

She said the award is presented annually by the Foundation to someone who has shown outstanding leadership, as well as contributing to the promotion and fundraising efforts.

"Tonight's award recipient is extremely deserving," Birnie remarked.

"His passionate belief in the importance of Bethell Hospice in our community, and his unwavering support has made a huge impact on our ability to build awareness and meet our fundraising goals," she said.

Birnie also recalled Merkley created the facility's first brochure, and also produced some 27,500 floral cards for the gift card fundraiser. He has continued to work on the brand of the organization, discounting his services and often providing materials for free.

"I was very, very surprised and honoured when I was told about this award," Merkley remarked as he accepted it.

And Anne Livingston was presented with the Lorna Bethell Legacy Award.

In making the presentation, Foundation Co-chair Tim Powell recalled the late Mrs. Bethell's leadership, tenacity and spirit that went into creating the facility. He also said the award is presented annually to a person, family or organization that has made an outstanding contribution to the Hospice

Powell said Livingston was the unanimous choice of the board.

"From the age of 15, when she first volunteered with her mother, assisting war veterans at the Red Cross, she has always made time in her life to help others," he observed. "Juggling the many demands of farming and raising a family, she was always a bundle of energy in the community, lending her talents to numerous volunteer organizations."

"Since becoming involved with Bethell Hospice Foundation, she has not only become the benefactor of our Morning Glory Room and lent her support to countless fundraising initiatives, but also acted as an advocate in the community to encourage others to become involved," he added. "In her own words, 'Bethell Hospice is so important in this community. It makes me feel good to help. I believe in this place.'"

"I do thank you," Livingston remarked as she accepted the award.

"And I don't do what I do to get gifts or be recognized," she added. "I do it because I should."

She also recalled being at the facility the day it opened.

"I was absolutely amazed how beautiful a spot it was," she said.

"I really believe in Bethell House," she added. "I believe everyone in the community should be involved, because it's going to involve most of you eventually."

"Bethell Hospice is a special place," Mayor Allan Thompson commented, pointing out a lot of people volunteer their time there.

"We need to make sure we keep it viable; keep it working to serve our loved ones," Thompson added.

In his comments, Cameron pointed out he's been volunteering at the facility for several years, as he stressed how fortunate the community is to have such an operation. He observed the services provided by Bethell Hospice are free, with the government providing only 60 per cent of the money needed to run it. The Foundation has to raise the rest, which amounts to about $1 million per year.

Bhupinder Sanghera spoke about her daughter Niki and her experiences as a resident at Bethell Hospice earlier this year. To honour her daughter, the family organized Niki's Butterflies, which was the largest team ever at this year's fundraising hike.

New season starting at Blackhorse Players

The Blackhorse Village Players Theatre is buzzing with activity as the group prepares to launch their 2016-17 season with a new comedy, Gloria's Guy.

This funny and warm romantic comedy was written and is directed by local award-winning playwright Joan Burrows of King Township.

When a group of old high school friends reunite for a wedding, old wounds are opened and secrets revealed. The dynamics of messy friends, family and former sweethearts make one ask, Can you really go back again?

Evening performances start at 8:15 p.m. Oct. 26, 28, 29, Nov. 4, 5, 10, 11 and 12, and Sunday matinees will be at 2:15 p.m. Oct. 30 and Nov. 6. Tickets are available by calling the Box Office at 905-880-5002.

Come experience local community theatre. No need to go into the city to enjoy affordable live theatre. Ample free parking is available.

The Blackhorse Theatre is at 17272 Mount Wolfe Rd. at Highway 9 in Caledon. For more information, visit the website at www.blackhorsetheatre.ca

Empty Bowls were filled at Mill

There was a variety of great soup available last Sunday at the second annual Empty Bowls event at Alton Mill. The event was a fundraiser for the local food banks in Orangeville and Caledon, with the bowls being the work of local potters. Tamarack resident Lynne Clark was representing her daughter Jennifer, The Soup Girl. She was serving some Mexican amaranth soup to Deb Peacock of Belfountain.

Positive things are hoped for from OMB review

By Bill Rea

Ontario is undertaking a review of the scope and effectiveness of the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB). And local observers are hoping that will bring positive results.

"I welcome it," Mayor Allan Thompson commented. "I'm glad to see the review happening."

There are also questions about what shape the review will take.

"They didn't announce a lot of details," Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones observed.

The OMB is an independent public body where people can appeal land use decisions that affect their properties and communities. It is seen as an important part of the province's land use planning system.

There is still a continuing need for the OMB in Ontario's land use planning system, according to a statement released by the government. That is why they are exploring changes to make sure that the Board's role is appropriate, open and fair.

Through the review, the government will consider the Board's scope (what it deals with) and effectiveness (how it operates) to determine improvements with respect to how it works within Ontario's broader land use planning system.

Thompson said he's hoping the review will result in more planning authority at the local level. He pointed out things like Official Plan amendments occur after community engagement.

"Caledon planning should be in Caledon," he said. "I think an OMB review is a good way to make sure we get that done."

The government announced there have been a series of land use planning reforms since 2004 that set out clearer rules, strengthen policy directions that outline the provincial interest in land use planning, give municipalities a stronger voice and more independence in local land use decisions, and provide residents more opportunities for involvement and a greater say in land use decisions in their communities

Through this review, the government said it is seeking to build on past improvements to ensure the Board can contribute within the system to its best effect.

The government is maintaining that it's important to have an independent appeal tribunal that can resolve some land use disputes. Not having an OMB would result in more appeals to the courts.

The review has been organized according to five themes: OMB's jurisdiction and powers; citizen participation and local perspective; clear and predictable decision-making; modern procedures and faster decisions; and alternative dispute resolution and fewer hearings

Jones said there are a lot of municipalities in Dufferin-Caledon that will be interested in taking part in the review.

She also agreed the OMB is not perfect.

"Nobody's ever happy when they go to the OMB and lose," she remarked, but added everyone has the right to appeal decisions.

NOBLETOYZ HELPS CCS

The recent grand opening at Nobletoyz Toys and Collectibles in Bolton resulted in some money for Caledon Community Services (CCS). CCS Fundraising Associate Nicole Dumanski recently accepted the cheque for $430.75 from store proprietor Derrick Noble.

Women's Advent retreat at St. James'

A Women's Advent Retreat will take place Nov. 5 at St. James' Church in Caledon East.

It will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

This is an opportunity to reflect, restore and revitalize for the busy season ahead. Also a chance to renew present relationships and make new ones in a calm pleasant atmosphere.

The guest speaker, Major Shari Russell, is the Territorial Indigenous Ministries Consultant for the Salvation Army, with a Bachelor of Arts from Booth University College and a Master of Arts from Providence Theological Seminary. She is Saulteaux (Anishinaabe) originally from Yellow Quill First Nation. Russell travels extensively in her role, and she loves to teach and help people to grow in their understanding of who God is and who He has made them to be.

A table will be set up during the coffee time and lunch hour with items for sale made by women in developing countries. The purchasing of these items will go toward supporting women to have independence. All proceeds go back to funding their continued efforts through Others Trade for Hope.

Registration fee for this event is $20, which includes coffee, muffins, lunch and events of the day. Registration deadline is Oct. 30. All are welcome.

Command change ceremony at Caledon OPP

By Bill Rea

The command at Caledon OPP officially changed hands last Thursday.

The retiring Inspector Tim Melanson handed over his duties to his successor, Inspector Ryan Carothers.

Sergeant Marcus Sanderson said Melanson is leaving after “an exemplary 30 years of service.”

“He’ll be greatly missed,” Sanderson said. “But his retirement is well deserved.”

Mayor Allan Thompson was on hand to wish Melanson well and to welcome Carothers.

“We know you’re very well qualified,” he told him. “We’re in your hands. Welcome aboard.”

Peel Police Services Board Chair Amrik Ahluwalia commented on the long history of cooperation between the Peel Regional Police and OPP, and he expressed appreciation “for being there for us.”

He also had many complimentary things to say about Carothers, although he agreed he’s got a tough act to follow.

“You’ve got big shoes to fill,” he remarked to Carothers.

“He has what it takes to be a great leader,” Ahluwalia commented. “He has what it takes to be a great public servant. Caledon is in excellent hands with Inspector Carothers.”

Chief Superintendent Rose Di Marco, of the OPP Central Region, herself a former commander of the Caledon detachment, praised Melanson for the job he’s done in Caledon and the many people he’s mentored.

“You will be greatly missed,” she said.

She also said they were glad to see Carothers taking over, recognizing the challenges he will be facing.

“It’s a great detachment to work at,” Melanson said in his brief remarks.

“It is my absolute privilege and honour to be standing before you today,” Carothers told those on hand for the ceremony as he reflected on the trust that has been placed in him.

“Caledon in my eyes . . . has always been the gem of the OPP,” he said, adding the people here care about the safety of their community.

Melanson said he and his wife will soon be moving to British Columbia, where he has a married daughter with children.

“We’ll get the house going,” he said, adding he’ll find time for fishing.

Police have Halloween safety tips

As Halloween quickly approaches, Caledon OPP wishes to remind children and parents to practise safety precautions to make the evening a memorable one.

- For Parents
- Discourage the use of masks on your children. Masks make it hard for children to see what’s around them, including cars. Make-up is a better alternative.
  - Costumes should fit properly to prevent trips and falls. Avoid oversized shoes, high heels, long dresses or capes. Select costumes with bright colours to increase your child’s visibility. Add on reflective tape to costumes if possible.
  - Children under 10 should be accompanied by an adult. By the age of 10, some children are ready to go trick or treating with a group of friends.
  - Provide your child with a flashlight. A cell phone is a good idea if you have one.
  - Draw a map outlining the route they should follow and set a curfew.
  - Tell your children not to eat anything until they get home.
  - Let your children draw the faces on pumpkins with a marker and leave the carving to parents.
  - Start trick or treating early before it gets too dark.

- For Children and Youth
- Carry a white bag or pillowcase for your candy, or add some reflective tape.
  - Bring a cell phone in case you need to make an emergency phone call.
  - Always travel in groups. Be sure there are at least three of you at all times.
  - Don’t visit houses that are not well lit. Never go inside a stranger’s house.
  - Walk on the sidewalk whenever possible. If there’s no sidewalk, walk on the side of the road facing traffic. Don’t criss-cross back and forth across the street. Never cross between parked cars, always at crosswalks, street corners or intersections.

- Don’t eat your treats before you get home. When home, ask your parents to look through your treats with you to make sure everything is okay.

- For Homeowners
- Turn on outdoor lights and replace burnt-out bulbs.
  - Remove items from your yard or porch that might trip a child.
  - Sweep wet leaves from your steps and sidewalk.
  - Use alternatives to candles in your pumpkins such as a flashlight or battery-operated candle. If you do use a candle, never leave it unattended.

- For Drivers
- Drive slowly in residential areas where children are more likely to be trick or treating.
  - Watch out for children, many of whom may be wearing costumes with masks that make it difficult for them to see. Children are excited; they may dart out in traffic.
  - Remember that costumes can limit a child’s vision and they may not be able to see your vehicle.
  - Reduce your distractions and stay alert.
  - Remember to enter and exit driveways slowly and carefully. Proceed with caution.
  - Never drink and drive.

Remember that safety is everyone’s priority. People who observed suspicious activity are asked to call 1-888-310-1122.

Serious traffic accident on Highway 10

One person was sent to hospital with serious, life-threatening injuries Sunday after a two-vehicle crash on Highway 10.

Caledon OPP reports a Ford Escape was heading south shortly before 1:30 p.m when it struck a northbound Porsche that was making a left turn onto Old School Road. Emergency service personnel from Caledon and Mississauga were on the scene.

A passenger in the front seat of the Porsche was taken to a trauma centre in Toronto by air ambulance with life-threatening injuries. The driver of the Porsche did not require medical attention, and the driver and passenger in the Escape were taken to an area hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

The investigation is continuing.

OMB review could be a benefit

There is cause for optimism from the Province’s recent announcement that there is to be a review of the scope and effectiveness of the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB).

There is no doubt that there has to be an appeal mechanism when it comes to land-use planning measures. But it is also necessary to make sure it’s performing the function it’s in place to perform.

There have been many horror stories over the years regarding the OMB. It’s been painted as a forum for fair hearings of issues, free of political influence. But there have also been concerns that the Board is the salvation of people with pockets deep enough to afford the best experts. That is not the way things were meant to be.

When it comes to the situation in Caledon, we thought Mayor Allan Thompson put it quite well: “Caledon planning should be in Caledon.”

We believe, therefore, that the rules that have been put into place locally should have a certain amount of priority. They have, after all, been put in place by people close to the ground, and most familiar with local conditions and, yes, desires. And there should also be consideration that these policies, put in place locally, have also been reviewed and approved by higher levels. That should certainly count for something.

It is too often when major proposals are presented which spark considerable controversy. In many cases, those watching just give a shrug, voicing the opinion that the OMB is eventually going to decide it.

In announcing the review, the government stated that since 2004, it has made a series of land use planning reforms that, among other things, give municipalities a stronger voice and more independence in local land use decisions. As we stated above, that’s the way it should be.

But there must always be a way from people to be able to appeal decisions. That is basic in a democracy. We hope that will be remembered as a priority during the review. And it would be nice to see protection from people who use their right of appeal to just be nuisances.

We are all familiar with the famous quote from Margaret Mead: “Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, concerned citizens can change the world. Indeed, it’s the only thing that ever has.”

There is much good that can occur when thoughtful people put their minds to something. But what we all have to worry about is the harm that can be caused by a small group of thoughtless people. Alas, they are not too hard to find.

The review must make sure the OMB remains a body that can hear legitimate concerns, while filtering out the frivolous.

Our Readers Write Need one-third cut in emissions

What is it going to take to rally true and sufficient political will to turn around the man-made escalation of greenhouse causes gases in our atmosphere?

No government seems willing to really walk the talk. I’m surprised Prime Minister Trudeau gave the go ahead to start shipping liquified natural gas by sea. He is clearly not how he represented himself during the election!

Canada should cut carbon emissions by one-third within a decade to keep the promises we made at the December UN climate conference in Paris.

Rotary Club of Palgrave’s Weekly Rotary Minute

By Dan Petre

Some say we decide to act in a split second. To make a change. To try something new. To help a friend.

But, it often takes many seconds, minutes, or even years to get to this point.

I was recently asked: 1) What is Rotary? 2) What do you do there? 3) Are you retired?

While I wasn’t surprised by these questions, I was waiting for one which never came: Why do you do this?

Perhaps it’s not polite to ask. But it should be an answer we give as Rotarians.

As we continue to engage with potential members and tell stories of our many “whats” and “hows” — we should also have an answer for “why.”

Potential members will engage, invest and act because of “why” more than “what” or “how.”

As we start to see generations come together on social media, what we do and how we do it, while important, will only resonate with a few. Why we do it will speak to many.

For more information on our Club and all the wonderful ways you could get involved with Rotary, please visit our Club site at www.rotaryclubofpalgrave.com

It happened today

He’s played a stingy business tycoon, bumbling hotel owner, confused bank robber, enchanter and irate pet shop customer.

He portrayed a private school master who brought his wife into class to put on a sex-education demonstration for a group of bored students, and he was a Roman soldier in Judea who taught a young rebel how to write “Romans go home!” in Latin.

He’s also performed as the Minister of Silly Walks and Sir Lancelot. And he’s produced a lot of laughs along the way.

Monty Python’s John Cleese was born this day, Oct. 27, 1939.

Surviving what happened to Jays

I think we can stop mourning now. Sports have been playing a pretty big role in the lives of people living in this area.

I guess many of us are still getting over the euphoria of the Olympics, and maybe looking forward to a year or so when the next Winter Games take place.

But of more immediate concern has been exploits of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Much of what you are about to read was actually written for last week’s paper. It had been written before the first game between the Jays and Cleveland Indians, and I stressed the point that I was being a little guarded.

There were a lot of high hopes in this part of the world. A place in the World Series was a very real possibility for the local baseball heroes, and I’m willing to bet a lot of you were already surreptitiously adjusting your schedules to be able to watch as much of the action as possible.

But I guess I was a little reluctant to go out on too much of a limb before things had actually started (and the release of the list of Top 100 Leafs provided an opportunity to spout off that was a bit too hard to pass up). I had no way of knowing how that series was going to go, and I stated it was entirely possible it could be over by the time the column appeared in print — little did I suspect.

I’ll share my theory, however, because I think there were a lot of people out there who thought the way I did (frightening).

My theory was the Jays could get by Cleveland. If they were able to sweep the Texas Rangers, then I could see that anything was possible. On the other hand, Cleveland swept Boston, meaning there were probably a lot of people in Ohio using the same logic as I.

I really didn’t think the series would end that quickly, although I certainly knew it was possible. The wishful thinker in me toyed with thoughts of people reading these words while the Jays were waiting to learn who they would be playing in the World Series. Hope does spring eternal.

I watched the Jays advance when they beat the Rangers. I was watching the game instead of the second Clinton-Trump debate (we taped the debate and watched it the following evening). I was excited as any other fan when Josh Donaldson’s hand swept across the plate to end things. It’s generally agreed that was a case of heads-up base running. But the fact is that should have been a double play that ended the inning, not the game. No matter who wins, I much prefer to see crucial games settled by fine ball playing, as opposed to an error.

Here endeth my sanctimony, for the moment.

I also knew the Jays were going to get a couple of days to rest and heal, but I was also mindful that such time could be used to get rusty. On the other hand, Cleveland had had a couple of days off too. So a key issue was who was going to be the most rusty.

The series with the Rangers ended the Sunday of Thanksgiving weekend. That was a bit of relief, since I knew the fourth game was scheduled for the Monday afternoon, and I had to work (yes, I know it was a holiday, but that never applies to me).

Everyone was back at work Tuesday, and there was some talk in the office that Vegas odds makers were picking the Jays to go all the way. I had not yet done the necessary research to verify that, and I was inclined to consider that premature, although we are all entitled to hope.

There were a lot of upset people in these parts over the way the games in the series against the Indians had been scheduled, with the prime-time starts favouring the National League series. I was a little annoyed at that too, but I like to think I have some understanding of the way the world works. The TV networks wanted to get the best prime-time crowds, and I think it’s safe to say there are more baseball fans interested in the Cubs or Dodgers than the Indians or Jays. From where I sit, it sounded like simple economics.

Besides, if the Jays had managed to get by Cleveland, then all baseball fans would be watching, meaning no one would get particular consideration in the scheduling.

I had gone as far as to hope it would be the Cubs the Jays faced if they got into the Fall Classic. The scheduling would have been a lot easier for most of us who have to work the next morning, as opposed to waiting for late games in California. And it would have been easier for Jays fans to get down to the Windy City.

Most of Toronto fans were hoping for the best, but the reality is the whole issue will be over in just a couple of weeks. That’s going to require something of an adjustment.

For the last several months, I’ve been getting home from work at night, and finding the household schedule being predicated on when the ball game starts. And if it happened that I had to work very late, one of the first questions I would ask my wife when I got home was “How did the Jays do?”

I would usually pause long enough to make sure she was still awake before putting that question to her. She was usually awake enough to reply.

True, each team gets a certain number of nights off, which sort of left complicated questions about what to do with the evening. We somehow managed.

And we’ll get through the absence to baseball over the next couple of months. There are other things on TV, and one of these days I might get time to actually watch some of them.

Besides, there will still be the Leafs to watch, and they don’t play every night.

There have been a couple of games so far. I saw the first two goals in the NHL career of Auston Matthews, who went on to do all the Leafs’ scoring in the 5-4 loss. I went to sleep that night wondering where the rest of the team was. In the games that have followed, it looks like other players are stepping up and making contributions. They’ve compiled some pretty nice looking leads so far. Now if they can just stop blowing them.

No matter what happened last week, there can be no denying that despite some rocky moments in the season, the Jays did live up to expectations. They did make it to the post-season and managed to advance. Very little room for complaining in this corner. And we do have the Leafs to look forward to. A rather rough start does not a season make, so this might be the year when they actually start demonstrating that they belong in the big league.

There’s always hope.

Events coming up to offer input

I'm always looking for ways to better communicate and share information, whether its through my newsletters, social media or when I'm out and about in the community.

I decided to start a blog as a way to express my personal thoughts and to sometimes just get things off my chest.

The opinions in the blog are mine alone. Take a look at the recent post on smart communities.

Remembrance Day to be marked in Dufferin-Caledon

November's poppy campaign and Remembrance Day is a time to honour those who serve and have served at home and abroad, as well as to remember those who made the ultimate sacrifice in defence of our nation.

That is why communities and organizations across Canada hold Remembrance Day services — to remember the fallen and thank those who have served and currently serve in the Canadian Forces.

Throughout our nation's history, Canada's military has served in many capacities domestically and around the world, in both war and peacetime. Whether it is on the frontlines of war, as peacekeepers, as security, training or helping with disaster relief, our service members have always been ready to serve whenever called on the land and sea or in the air.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

And now for something completely different: baseball instead of politics.

Regular readers will have no reason to know that your humble scribe, in addition to being a serial political junkie, pretty much lives and dies for baseball each year, particularly — dare I say — for the fate of my beloved New York Yankees.

As a child growing up in the 1940s in Prescott, I was lucky to have an uncle living across the river in Messina, N.Y., who taught me the wonders of baseball. Most weekends, I would take the ferry across the St. Lawrence (there wasn't a bridge at the time) to be met at the pier and taken to the game in Ogdensburg, which had a minor league team in the old PONY league.

When I was just seven years old, having ventured no farther from home than Brockville and Ottawa, he took me to New York to see the mighty Yankees play, an event which is just as real to me today as it was then. Hence, my lifelong love affair with the Yankees.

As you read this, of course, the World Series will have already begun, this year featuring the two franchises who have gone the longest time without a win, i.e the Chicago Cubs and Cleveland Indians. While I have no particular attachment to either team, as a Yankees fan, I always pull for the American League representative (unless, of course, it's Boston) on the self-serving grounds that if they're good enough to beat the Yankees they deserve to be champions.

You will also know that the local nine, the Blue Jays, once again flamed out before making it to the big stage for the first time since they won their second of two straight in 1993.

And I am here to brazenly tell you why I am happy that the Blue Jays lost.

While the Jays, to be sure, put a powerful lineup on the field, to me at least they were the least likeable team in the game.

There is a certain smugness to all Toronto sports teams — even the Leafs, for heaven's sake, who haven't won in forever, seem to believe they are special — that puts off even people like me who have spent a good chunk of their lives living in this great city.

And it's not just the teams themselves. Much of the sports media has adopted the same aren't-we-special attitude towards the local teams.

After the Jays lost in five games to the Cleveland Indians, for example, Globe and Mail sports writer Cathal Kelly portrayed it as "a steamrolling by an inferior team."

Really? Well, the "inferior" Indians did win 94 games during the regular season, five more than Toronto. And before beating the Jays, they swept the Boston Red Sox, the team that finished first in the Jays' division, four games ahead.

The Jays certainly have players to be admired — Josh Donaldson chief among them — but they also feature some of the worst whiners and complainers in the game, Jose Bautista as the prime example.

Nothing that happens to the Jays seems to be their fault. No team in baseball cries more about the umpires being out to get them. I've seen Bautista leading off a game and turning to carp at the umpire when the opening pitch was a called strike — the opening pitch — an indication of his overheated self-importance, as if he doesn't realize — or more likely, doesn't care — that he'll never get a break from those umpires and his selfishness is hurting both himself and the team.

But he's not the only Jay that makes me not want to cheer for them. Time after time, with an opportunity to move a runner by giving themselves up — and again, with the notable exception of Donaldson — Jay after Jay went up there trying to be the hero, swinging for the fences, without any apparent regard for what was best for the team, not to mention its rabid fan base.

Don't even get me started on Bautista's (in)famous bat toss, after his dramatic home run last year. I hate that showboat crap in professional sports (which is one thing that has turned me off the NFL, where they do choreographed dance routines after virtually every play).

Nothing wrong with a spontaneous celebration. But it's bush league to show up the other team. Would Torontonians have cheered, let's say, if instead of the home run, the pitcher had struck Bautista out then thrown his glove up in the air to celebrate? Not bloody likely.

Then, of course, there was the manufactured ballyhoo about the "Indians" nickname, a logo that we're constantly told is racist and demeaning.

Perhaps it is to some — it's not hard to be offended if you're looking for offence — but a public opinion poll in the U.S. this fall among American indigenous people found that 90 per cent of the respondents were not — NOT — offended by the Washington "Redskins" moniker,a reality that, as far as I have seen, only the Star's Rosie DiManno has been honest enough to point out.

But we digress. Next year, with Bautista gone, I'll still be cheering for the Yankees, but the Jays will be easier to watch.

This is one SURVEY you'll want to complete, REALLY!

by Donna Cragg, Manager Communications and Marketing, CCS

Caledon is 'survey rich,' I like to say – while I accept that many readers would apply a different adjective to the number of surveys that come their way. This is one SURVEY you'll want to complete. REALLY? you ask...

REACH

When this survey was created YOUR answers would have reached a collaborative group of thirteen (13) partners passionate about helping you, your family and your business thrive in Caledon; since then the partnership known as The Exchange, 55 Healey Rd. in Bolton, has grown to fifteen (15) partners. Your answers become data that guide decisions that affect your quality of life.

IMPACT

Bethell Hospice, Bolton Alliance Church, Caledon Community Living, Caledon Community Services, Caledon Parent & Child Centre, Caledon Public Library, Canadian Mental Health Association, F.A.M.E.-Family Association for Mental Health Everywhere, Leadership Forum for Women, Peace Ranch, Punjabe Community Health Services, Rapport Youth & Family Services, SHIP-Supportive Housing in Peel, Town of Caledon, VMBC- Volunteer Mississauga-

CHOICE

What specifically is important to you and your family. You can choose the questions that are important and skip the rest.

HAVE A COFFEE ON US!

Enjoy coffee with a friend! Just check the box at the end of the survey and you will be entered in a separate draw for a gift certificate. Butter & Cup in Southfields and The Naked Café in Bolton are both great places to kick back and enjoy a java!

Complete the survey here:

Carve a turnip this All Hallows’ Eve!

By John Arnott

Are you up for a challenge? Well then instead of carving a jack o’lantern from a pumpkin use a turnip — original jacks were carved from this vegetable.

St. Alban’s Anglican community in Nobleton notes that Halloween and many of its customs date back to pre-Christian Europe, when much of that continent was inhabited by the Celts. At this time of year, especially in Celtic Britain, farmers and herders began to gather in the harvest and bring their herds down from outlying pastures. Then it was time to elect or re-elect village headmen, review old laws and make new ones.

Once these tasks were done, a celebration called Samhain (SAH win) was held to mark the end of the old year with its long daylight hours and warily welcome the new year which began with longer hours of unfriendly darkness. Now villagers gathered together to feast and make merry. Great bonfires were lit to hold darkness and its associated evil spirits at bay for Celts believed this was the time when “the veil” separating the world of the living from the world of the dead was extremely thin, thus allowing the souls of the dead to pass through easily and in the dark visit their former homes and so food was left out for them there. But witches and evil spirits along with an assortment of demons were also free to pass through unchallenged, briefly roaming the countryside wreaking havoc as they went.

Turnips carved to resemble skulls with lit candles in them were placed in windows or outside doors to discourage entry by these dreaded creatures.

Now came the Romans, introducing orchards of sweet edible poma (apples) into Britannia (England), their newest conquest now a provincia or province. These new masters also brought along the worship of Pomona the goddess of orchards and fruit, who was honoured during the autumn apple harvest.

To celebrate this harvest, there was a feast, much eating of apples, drinking of sweet as well as hard (alcoholic) cider and apple games — most popular with the children was bobbing for apples in a bucket of water and trying to bite an apple suspended on a cord without using hands. Over the 300 or more years of Roman presence, the Celts began slowly to include this in their Samhain festivities.

In many parts of rural Britain and Ireland, this late October festival, called Snap Apple Day, is still celebrated. In Newfoundland-Labrador, Halloween is often called Snap Apple Night.

Once Christianity was firmly established across Europe, try as they might, early church leaders found it impossible to persuade people to give up the customs and celebrations of their ancestors so reluctantly. But wisely, they began to Christianize these events.

Samhain and the Pomona festival became All Hallows’ Eve, the last day in October, a time to celebrate all the holy (hallowed) people, especially family members who had died. In early Christian central Europe on this day, children went to the houses of families who had suffered a bereavement previously that year and recited a prayer following which they received treats.

In the medieval times, anyone venturing out on All Hallows’ Eve, even to attend church, wore a costume or scary mask to frighten away evil spirits. In 15th century Europe, people often wearing costumes would on All Hallows’ Eve visit friends or relatives and bring “soul cakes” to be eaten in memory of departed loved ones.

European colonists brought All Hallows’ Eve customs to the Americas. In eastern North America, the First Nations may well have shown those “know it all” white people how much easier it was to carve a jack o’lantern from a native orange squash called a pumpkin than a turnip.

It was here in North America that All

Hallows’ Eve got slurred into Hallowe’en and lost its religious connection becoming a fun filled secular celebration.

Back in Europe, the event faded away completely, but in the past few years, due mainly to North American television, it is making a comeback in Britain. Thus, come Oct. 31, hordes of masked and costumed kids, including my two Worcester grandnephews, will storm through the hallowed streets of ancient British towns with cries of “trick or treat” sending even the meanest of evil spirits back to safety behind “the veil.”

Christian churches that have so long ignored Hallowe’en are beginning to reclaim this day, not to take away its fun, but to show it as part of Christian heritage.

Hawks' offence struggles in losses to Terriers and Otters

By Jake Courtepatte

Fourteen games into the PJHL season, and the Caledon Golden Hawks are still looking to leave their home ice with a win.

A three-game homestand came to an end Sunday evening at Caledon East, culminating in a 3-0 loss to the Huntsville Otters. The Golden Hawks sent 31 pucks at the Huntsville net to no avail.

A lack of scoring has been a trend for the 2016-17 Hawks, who have outshot their opponents in three of the last four games. The shutout was preceded by a 4-1 loss to the lowly Orillia Terriers Friday night, a game in which Caledon led the shot total 30-24.

It was Caledon that saw the first quality scoring opportunity of the game, with Ryan Mouser crashing the net late in the first period. A collapse towards the net caused a three-on-one break for the Terriers, leaving Caledon goaltender Andrew Ireland no chance on a bar-down one timer to make it 1-0 Orillia.

They added three more unanswered goals in the second period, one of which came in a short-handed situation. Once again, Caledon was caught off guard defensively, leading to an odd man rush in which Jake Shaw kept the puck and went five-hole on Ireland.

The dagger fourth goal came with just seconds remaining in the frame, a flukey goal off a giveaway in front of the Caledon net that Ireland never saw.

The Terriers took a shutout into the midway point of the third period, before Matt Magliozzi broke the goose egg. On the penalty kill with Kevin Pleasance in the box, Magliozzi caught the Terriers defence off guard with his sixth goal of the year.

Ireland stopped 20 shots in the contest.

Scoring at just more than a two goal-per-game pace, the Hawks sit dead last in scoring in the PJHL's Carruthers division, formerly the Georgian Mid-Ontario Hockey League.

The lack of scoring has contributed to an overall record of 1-13-0, including seven losses and zero wins at Caledon East. Caledon's only win of the season came in the season opener in Schomberg, riding a thirteen-game losing streak since that day in mid-September.

They currently sit six points back of the Schomberg Cougars for last place in the eight team division, and will have an opportunity to close that gap when they visit the Cougars at the Trisan Centre tonight (Thursday).

The Alliston Hornets, the overwhelming favourites to win the division prior to the season, have tallied more than six goals-per-game to bring their record to 12-0-0.

Sunday's weekly home game features the Hawks hosting the Stayner Siskins (10-2-0). Puck drop is set for 6:30 p.m. at Caledon East.

C3 one-mile run for kids this Sunday in Bolton

For more than a decade, C3 and Kinetico have been giving away free race entries to their fall Kids 1 Mile Run.

This Sunday (Oct. 30), C3 and Kinetico are trying to give away 500 free race entries to kids of any age.

The location has changed and will now be at Humberview Secondary School as a part of the Bolton Rotary Haunted Hill 5k and 10k event. Following the races, at 11 a.m., C3 and Kinetico will be giving away free entries to community kids and families. Kids will get a free race shirt, free finisher's medal, race number and post race snack.

"C3 and Kinetico have wanted to inspire the local kids to get active and by giving away free entries, we have taken the economic restriction out of allowing any child to participate," said C3 and Olympic coach Barrie Shepley.

All kids must pre-register so organizers have enough shirts, food and medals for the kids. Parents can walk or run the 1 Miler with their children, or the kids (of any age) can run on their own.

The Bolton Rotary Haunted Hill 5k and 10k runs go off at 9:30 a.m. and the C3 Kinetico Kids 1 Mile Run will go at 11. It's important that families who have participated in the 1 Miler in the past, realize the event, which has previously been run out of Town Hall in Caledon East, has been moved to Humberview to amalgamate with the Rotary event.

Online registration (even though it's free) can be found at <http://www.rotaryhauntedhill.com/>

Classic curling in mixed team action

By Shellee Morning
King Curling Club

Putting some curl into the rock may sound difficult to the non-curler, but for the Thursday night Mixed Team players, it's an essential part of their game.

Ice conditions also play a major factor for these athletes and more importantly, it's how the skip (and who) reads the ice first. Ice maker Richard Quick has once again prepared a fast pebbled surface that keeps the players on their brooms as the ice conditions change throughout the game. Once the ice reading is conquered, the skip can then guide his/her team to perform to the best of their ability and ultimately achieve victory.

Sheets 1 through 4 on the early draw were full of action this past week as they headed into week three of regular season play. The night's team contests were as evenly matched as the Jays' and Indians' bull pens, minus a star rookie.

Team Karl Davis against Team Dan Steenhoek always certifies a back-and-forth, hit-for-hit style of game. Tied going into the last end 4-4, Skip Steenhoek led his squad brilliantly toward a last rock hit and stick shot for the 5-4 win.

Team Robinson and Team Gerrits, both missing key players due the current fall hunting season, required skillful spares to be competitive against their opponents. Skip Larry Sheardown (spared for Skip George Gerrits) commented on his front-end playing great and throwing their rocks to what was asked for. Nancy McCarron stepped up into skip position for her team as Clay Jackson was off to hunt for that prestigious prize. Mid-way through, Team Gerrits had the lead and control of the game, but knowing quite well to never underestimate Wilf Robinson and Kaye Groen as they chipped away at the board eventually squaring off for a 6-6 tie.

Sheet 3 was well represented by Teams Gorsline and Broad. An exciting end for end contest with both teams executing some great shots, but it was Stephen Heise for Team Broad who had a magnificent game with several end-changing shots that kept the Gorsline team in the chase. Gorsline up by a point in the seventh and final end, Skip Broad delivered his last stone at nuclear speed in hopes of either a hit and roll to tie or a lucky double hit to win the game. As the rock crusaded down the ice at warp speed, it nicked a guard re-directing itself removing two of his stones and leaving three opponent rocks, handing Gorsline an 8-4 win.

The Boynton versus Howard game was classic curling with all the bells and whistles. Howard jumped out first for the lead, but Boynton switched gears by the third, applied some pressure and came within one. Vice Fran Bones focused well on her throws, setting up her skip Scott Boynton throughout the game while the husband and wife duo of Diane and Gary Howard continued with their matrimonial style of accurate takeouts and timely guards. Final decision would be a 5-5 tie.

The late draw was to be no different for exciting games and surprising wins. Dave Swackhammer and his comrades hammered Team John Phillips 9-4 while over on sheet 3, Skip Bryce Clark guided his team with a solid effort win of 7-3 over Team Sidon.

Skip Dave Barber, wife Sandra as vice and Anne Jessop at lead welcomed Greg Switzer new to the team this season to play in 2nd position. Switzer, a veteran player, seems to have fit well into the Barber weave as they trounced Team Wright 10-1.

In the battle of rookie teams new to the Mixed League are skip Brad Stronach, vice Kelly Stronach and Stephan Niepage against skip Doug Brown, vice Cindy Brown, 2nd Dave Grosse and Pam McKinley at lead. Opening ends were exchanged as the evenly matched teams both collected their points. Superior draws were made while the double take-outs were executed with ease. As both squads were playing for rookie bragging rights, Team Stronach would squeak by after an in-off hit by the skipper for an 8-7 win.

Pumpkinfest continues at Downey’s

It's been a busy time at Downey's Farm Market on Heart Lake Road over the last couple of weekends, as it's been the scene of the annual Pumpkinfest. It is to continue this weekend. The Stylamanders, Mark Kersey and Paul Gibson of Toronto, were providing entertainment Saturday.

Photos by Bill Rea

What would Pumpkinfest be without Pumpkins? There were lots of them around, and Hope and Isley Bowen of Toronto found them.

There were lots of frightening things to be seen in the Boo Barn.

Face Painting was one of the attractions at Pumpkinfest. Jasmine Kazimierski was working on a creation for Diego Madeiros, 7, of Mississauga.

United Way celebrates contributions of labour

United Way of Peel Region recently recognized the contribution of labour in Brampton, Caledon and Mississauga during the annual Peel Regional Labour Council Breakfast.

Nationally, United Way and the Canadian Labour Congress have partnered together since 1988. Representing more than 3 million individuals, the Labour Congress is the largest federation of unions in Canada. Unions care deeply for their communities, providing cooperative housing, childcare and other social services. Working together with United Way at a national and local level, the Canadian Labour Congress engages and endorses the support of United Way across Canada.

Last year, unionized workplaces donated more than $2.9 million dollars to United Way of Peel Region. In addition, the Dufferin-Peel Secondary Unit (DPSU) of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers Association (OECTA) provided funding to United Way's Youth in Action grant, a one-time granting opportunity focused on youth-led projects that offer creative youth-initiated ideas to address community issues in Peel Region. Youth between the ages of 14 and 24 are eligible to apply for this grant.

"As a teachers' union local representing 2,300 members working in high schools in the Peel Region, our unit executive has sought to create stronger ties with the communities in which we teach," DPSU and OECTA President Peter MacDonald said. "We could think of no better way to build community than to partner with United Way of Peel and to help fund this project."

"Working together we are possibility," said Peel Regional Labour Council President Jim McDowell.

"Labour has been an important longstanding partner of United Way of Peel Region," United Way of Peel Region President and CEO Shelley White added. "Together we are working to reduce the root causes of poverty and enhance possibilities for better income security and self-sufficiency among our citizens and families across Peel. I would like to thank all members of the Labour Council for the tremendous work they do and for their continued partnership with United Way of Peel Region."
