He recalled his early days as party leader, when he had to form a shadow cabinet, and he made Jones deputy leader of the Tory Caucus.

"When you work with somebody, you quickly realize who's competent and organized," he remarked.

Brown cited Jones's support of the craft cider industry. As well, he pointed to her successful efforts to prevent autistic children younger than five from being removed from Intensive Behavioural Intervention (IBI) therapy.

"Sylvia took the government on, and it's difficult to take the government on when they have a majority," he observed, adding she kept up the pressure with stories in the legislature about what the therapy meant to the families of the children. "It actually moved the government."

While he observed Jones gets around Dufferin-Caledon a lot, Brown praised her for her work beyond the riding's boundaries.

"Sylvia helps out anywhere," he remarked. "She is such a great champion for our party."

My name is Michelle LeRoy, I am a mom of three adult children, 24, 22 and 18 years old! I grew up in Brampton since the age of 4 years old and now live in Caledon. I enjoy meeting wonderful people doing amazing things in the community which I find Caledon is full of. I also enjoy supporting local businesses and of course the beautiful fresh air and outdoors!

Caledon is a wonderful place to raise a family and close enough to major highways for easy access to the city when necessary.

As a mom it has always been important to me to create a career around my children's lives so that I could be hands on and available to them and watch them grow up! Motherhood has been the greatest gift I could have ever received in my life. As my children grew older my love for children expanded into my own home daycare where I would care for children in my community full time as well as before and after school. After running a home daycare for over 10 years I decided to move to working outside of the home now that my my favourite and helping seniors to downsize into something that would be more suitable for their retirement

Municipal Class Environmental Assessment for the Columbia Way Stormwater Management Facility Retrofit

THE STUDY:

The Town of Caledon has initiated a Schedule 'B' Class Environmental Assessment Study for the retrofit of the Columbia Way Stormwater Management Facility. The Columbia Way Stormwater Management Facility is located south of Columbia Way, between Taylorwood Avenue and St. Michael's Crescent in Bolton, on a tributary of the Humber River. The facility currently functions as a dry pond with no permanent pool, retaining water only during storm events and providing little to no water quality benefit. It currently controls runoff from the adjacent residential developments as well as agricultural lands north of Columbia Way. The Town of Caledon and Toronto and Region Conservation Authority have noted that the facility has exceeded its sediment retention capacity and has significant potential for improvement.

The Study is being undertaken to investigate feasible alternatives for the retrofit of the Columbia Way Stormwater Management Facility such that an "enhanced" level of water quality protection is provided, in addition to restoring its water quantity control effectiveness.

THE PROCESS:

The Study will be conducted in accordance with the planning and design process for Schedule'B' projects as outlined in the Municipal Engineers Association "Municipal Class Environmental Assessment", (October 2000, as amended in 2015), as approved under the Ontario Environmental Assessment Act. The Class EA process includes public/external agency consultation, an evaluation of alternative solutions, an assessment of potential impacts associated with the proposed improvements, and the development of mitigation measures to identified potential impacts.

Gun control, American-style?

ing evidence, that the shooter was mentally ill and to talk vaguely of somehow regulating the use of the Bump Fire stock, a $99 accessory that effectively converts a semi-automatic rifle into a machine gun.

As everyone no doubt knows by now, gunman Stephen Paddock opened fire on a large crowd of concertgoers at a country music festival on the Las Vegas Strip Oct. 1, leaving 58 people dead and 489 injured. In a 10-minute span, 64-year-old Paddock of Mesquite, Nevada, fired hundreds of rifle rounds from his suite on the 32nd floor of the nearby Mandalay Bay hotel before committing suicide.

Police who found his hotel room littered with firearms and ammunition determined that 12 of the semi-automatic rifles had been converted to fire automatically by the retired accountant and high-stakes gambler whose only apparent motive was to demonstrate the ease with which he could engage in mass killings without any formal training.

Perhaps the most bizarre aspect of the incident was that the killer broke no U.S. or Nevada law prior to the moment he opened fire. That's because a federal ban on semi-automatic firearms was allowed to lapse and there is no law limiting either the number of such weapons one can own or restricting the purchase and installation of the "bump stocks." The only law bans their use.

Interestingly, in the wake of the massacre, Trump has said virtually nothing on the subject of gun control, choosing to address much more important topics such as Puerto Rico's debt and National Football League players' kneeling during the U.S. shootings of black men.

And that, of course, doesn't include the unknown number of firearms that have been converted with bump stocks or other similar accessories.

> In 2013, in the wake of a massacre at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Connecticut, California Senator Dianne Feinstein proposed a law that would have banned bump-fire devices or any accessories designed to increase a gun's rate of fire. The legislation never went to vote.

> Now that the White House and even the National Rifle Association have suggested they are open to some regulation of bump stocks, it appears that the debate in Congress will be over whether the devices should be regulated or banned outright.

> For some strange reason we've never seen explained, even the idea of regulating such devices is seen by some Trump supporters as somehow infringing the Second Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. As passed by the Congress in 1791 and preserved in the U.S. National Archives, the amendment says: "A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed."

> Without a doubt, the amendment gives "the people" (whatever that means) the right to own a firearm.

But did "the people" mean everyone, including slaves, felons and the seriousnational anthem in protest against police ly mentally ill? More importantly, did "Arms" include semi-automatic rifles, Since 1986, U.S. gun-makers have been which weren't invented until 1862 and

It was no secret that Henry VIII desperately wanted a son to succeed him on the throne. His first wife, Catherine of Aragon, produced only one child who lived to adulthood, and that was a daughter. It's assumed by many that was one of the reasons he disowned, (possibly reluctantly) Catherine.

Henry's second wife, Anne Boleyn, wasn't much better when it came to bearing healthy sons, and that might be one of the reasons why her head was cut off.

But his third wife fulfilled his desire. The gentle Jane Seymour produced the son, although she died only a matter of days after his birth.

He, who in time became Edward VI, was born this day, Oct. 12, 1537.

Trudeau government must take action on national defence

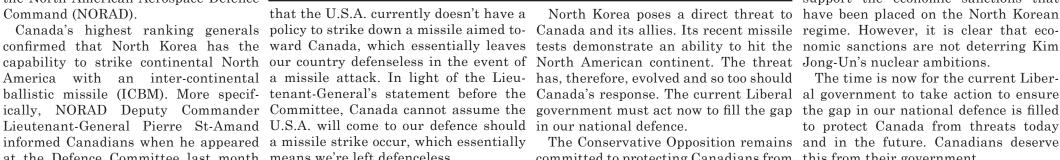

There's been significant news coverage in recent months and weeks of North Korea dramatically ramping up its nuclear program and missile tests.

There is also no doubt that North Korea's leader, Kim Jong-Un, poses a direct threat to Canada and our allies. This raises legitimate concerns for Canadians about our country's defence capabilities, given the gap left by the current Liberal government to modernize the North American Aerospace Defence Command (NORAD).

We believe everyone over the age of 60 should get a FREE baseline hearing test. You can join us by simply booking YOUR test today and encouraging your friends to join you. It takes less than 60 minutes, you don't need a doctor's referral, and there's no cost or obligation whatsoever!

This year we're donating $4.00 for every test with the goal of providing FREE hearing aids to those who can't afford them - So book your test, bring your friends, and together, we can make a difference!

WHY

Our hearing health is closely connected to our brain's health. Since hearing loss becomes so prevalent as we age. we feel that the links between hearing loss and depression, mental fatigue, reduced cognitive capacity, even dementia highlighted in recent studies* are a big deal.

Early detection may not prevent hearing loss, but it could help reduce some of its effects. We believe that together, we can make a difference!

HOW

You can join the campaign by taking 2 easy steps:

- Make an appointment to get your hearing tested.
- Encourage your friends to get their hearing tested too.

Caledon is the only lower-tier munic- award over the last four years.

The Town of Caledon recently received the Distinguished Budget Presentation Award from the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA), for the 2017 budget document, marking the sixth consecutive year that the Town has achieved this award.

"This is a significant accomplishment for the staff and leadership of our Finance Department, I couldn't be more proud of them," Mayor Allan Thompson said. "A considerable amount of time, energy and importance is placed on developing a budget each and every year. This award represents the hard work, dedication and expertise Town staff exemplify when working on the budget and through the budget approval process."

The GFOA's Distinguished Budget Presentation Awards program recognizes governments that meet the highest standards in budget document presentation. Independently evaluated by external GFOA reviewers, this award recognizes the Town's efforts to adopt best practices, communicate financial plans and policies, and to promote overall transparency and accountability.

"In addition to this award, the Town has also received the GFOA's Canadian Award for Financial Reporting for the past five years, and the Popular Annual Financial Reporting (PAFR) Award for the past four years," Town CAO Mike Galloway commented. "Town staff work

Improve property and pasture with Credit Valley Conservation

Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) invites rural landowners interested in sustainable property management to the Caring for Your Land and Water and Caring for Your Horse and Farm workshops.

Both workshops run Oct. 21 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Monora Park Pavilion at 500 Monora Park Rd., Mono.

Participants will use the Your Guide to Caring for the Credit workbook and aerial photos of their property to create an environmental action plan. Actions can include tree planting, well and septic upgrades, invasive species removal, and pasture and manure management. Landowners can schedule a free site visit to discuss next steps and funding opportunities through CVC's Landowner Action Fund. Since 2014, the fund has given more than $100,000 in incentives to rural landowners.

Jessica and Jimmy Hearn are starting a small horse farm on their property in Erin. They attended the Caring for Your Horse and Farm workshop to learn about what steps they could take to protect the environment.

"The workshop was helpful," she said. "It gave us a solid understanding of the principles of pasture and manure management. After the workshop, CVC staff came to our property to help us map areas suitable for pasture and to create a plan for rotational grazing."

"A few small changes to pasture management can make a big difference," CVC Senior Coordinator of Agricultural Outreach Mark Eastman observed. "It improves the quality of grazing areas, prevents erosion and protects water sources."

Register by noon Oct. 13 at www. creditvalleyca.ca/events

For more information, call 1-800-668-5557, ext. 436. Preference will be given to landowners owning one acre or more of rural property in the Credit River watershed.

Workshops are free thanks to funding from CVC's regional and municipal partners.

The Odyssey helped mark Canada's 150th birthday and helped two important charities along the way — Southlake Regional Health Centre Foundation and True Patriot Love Foundation.

Despite being plagued early on by bad weather, significantly extending the journey, it was "an amazing experience." Eighteen months of around-theclock preparation helped make the journey less problematic, but where flying is concerned, anything can happen.

And it did, more than a few times.

Fuel logistics, inclement weather, scheduling conflicts and even forest fires all came into play.

"Flying was the easiest part," Dengler

Given all the variables in play, Dengler said all scheduling of a trip of this magnitude needed to flexible, and able to adapt to changing circumstances on

Despite being on a tight schedule, Dengler said he spent his down time exploring towns and villages, and meeting as many people as he could. Some have become life-long friends.

He said the majority of people he encountered, regardless of the country, spoke English, and showed a very genuine interest in the adventure. It wasn't adulation, but rather a keen desire to know and share. So many people had a "host mentality," and welcomed the crew with open arms. In almost every place they set down, people went all out to accommodate their needs and show them around.

Given compounding delays, the team was worried their Russian visas might expire too soon. Fortunately, they had forged a strong relationship with the staff of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa. They contacted their colleagues at the Russian embassy in Prague who were helpful and accommodating, extending the team's visas. Dengler noted that the universal language of hockey did wonders to cement friendly relations with the officials in Prague. He found the long flight through Russia particularly fascinating and enjoyable. The country is massive, and seemingly endless when you're flying day after day, crossing one or two time zones a day on a regular basis.

The Russian leg went smoothly thanks to Russian navigator and communicator Sergei Komarov. He accompanied the team through Russia, making that segment almost seamless.

Dengler said he learned about geography, history, and culture at every turn. He found Kazan, Tatarstan, a city of 1.2 million on the banks of the Volga and Kazanka rivers, quite interesting. Later he spent several days exploring Yakutsk in the Sakha Republic, and made a number of great friends further on in Magadan.

Travelling by helicopter presented some challenges, since they're not longrange vehicles. It resulted in the crew landing in some very remote places, including a remote fishing camp at the edge of a rushing river in central Rus-

The beauty of the world didn't escape notice and Dengler said he was presented with a cornucopia of photographic images. He was particularly taken by the landscape of northern Labrador and the Canadian Arctic, including the Akshayuk Pass on Baffin Island. Other memorable spots included Whitehorse, Yellowknife and Nome, Alaska.

The trip resulted in an arm's-length list of must-visit places for Dengler and his family in the future.

Dengler praised his wife Bruna who was often the team's "mission control and lifeline to the outside world." Helping with logistics and being the trouble-shooter on the ground became her full-time job while the crew was travelling.

Dengler noted there's a unique fraternity of aviators the world over who provided much support and respect.

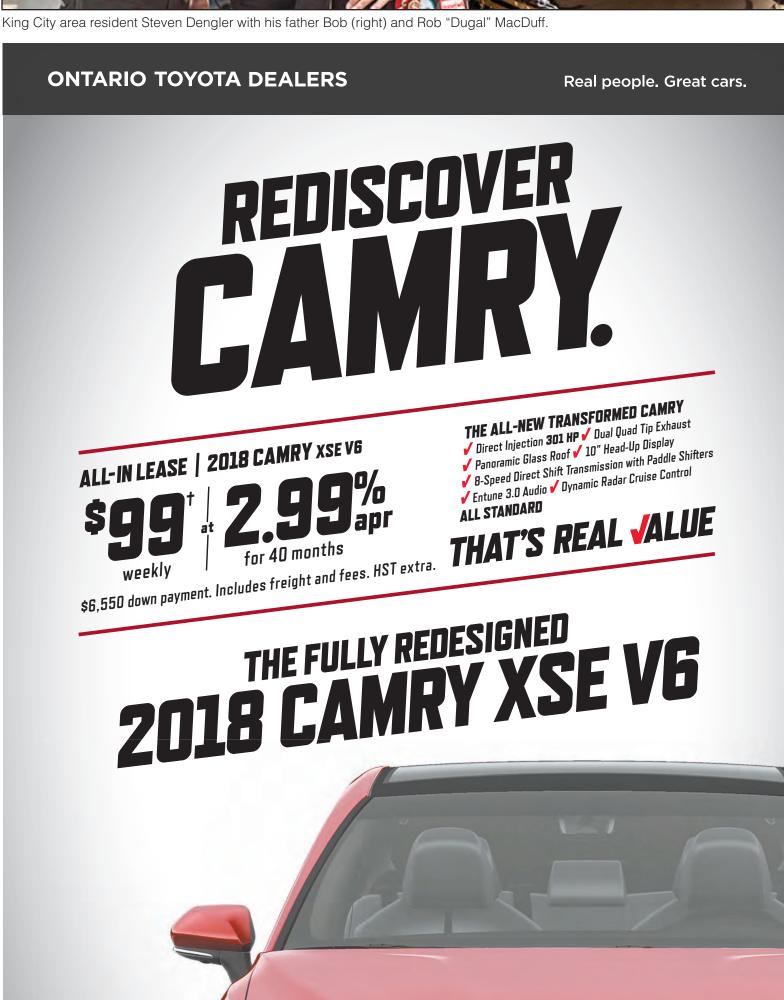

Living and flying together in cramped quarters presented some challenges, but the trio became a well-oiled machine. Dengler said he has a great deal of respect for MacDuff, a larger-thanlife character whom he considers one of Canada's foremost helicopter pilots.

Dengler himself, an experienced fixedwing pilot, said his helicopter skills increased exponentially.

Dengler has already been invited to publicly speak on the trip. In the near future, he plans to convert the c150go. ca website into a day-by-day retrospective, and also publish a book containing many photos of the historic journey.

These things death

Cannot take away

Nor age, nor tears,

nor pain.

Nor care can harm

Nor enter memory's hall.

She that loved,

so beautiful fair

From life's dangers

Now secure is she

Lovely she was and

Lovely shall be.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memoriam

Donna Holwell

In loving memory of a wonderful wife, mother, daughter, aunt and friend, who died peacefully on October 16, 2016, following her courageous battle with cancer.

As I sit in heaven and watch you every day I try not to let you know with signs that I never went away I hear you when you're laughing and watch you as you sleep I even place my arms around you to calm you as you weep I see you wish the days away begging to have me home So I try to send you signs So you know you are not alone

Don't feel guilty that you have life that was denied to me Heaven is truly beautiful, just you wait and see So live your life, laugh again Enjoy yourself, be free Then I know with every breath you take You'll be taking one for me.

> Remember to live your life to the fullest! All our love, Mom, Dave. Nathan and Elyse
