Move to list properties without telling owners

By Bill Rea

Properties in Caledon could soon find themselves on the Town's Heritage Register without the owners' knowledge.

There were a few reservations, but Town councillors, sitting in committee Tuesday night, decided to accept the recommendation of Heritage Caledon and agree that pre-notification of owners will no longer be required prior to listing the property on the Register.

Listing a property does not mean it has a heritage designation. It means if an owner wishes to demolish or remove a building on the site, there would have to be a 60-day delay to give the municipality the chance to do further checking to see if it has heritage value that should be preserved.

Councillor Barb Shaughnessy likened it to hitting a "pause button" on the process. Heritage Caledon made the recommendation after receiving a delegation earlier this month from Betty Starr, Alton resident in which she suggested it.

"But with these blessings comes a huge responsibility, as good stewards, to protect and preserve for future generations that makes us special and unique," she said.

Starr reminded councillors the Ontario Heritage Act requires municipalities to maintain a heritage register, which would include properties that have been designated for their heritage or cultural value, as well as those that have not been designated, but which the local council believes has cultural or heritage value. They are included in the register by council resolution, and such listing is not listed on title of the property, she said.

Starr also pointed out there are other municipalities that are not in the habit of advising property owners about additions to the register. She said in Brampton, they are notified after council has made a the decision to include it. She added no notification is given in Dufferin or Wellington Counties.

Councillor believes heritage buildings deserve ‘another 60 days’

The current protocol in Caledon, she said, is for staff to send a report to Heritage Caledon, which makes a recommendation to the Planning and Development Committee of Council. Notices are sent to the property owner. But Starr observed there might be a delay before the matter goes to Council for ratification, which could provide more time for the owner to proceed with demolition. Listing a property with no notification means the Town would have 60 days before demolition could take place to see if it should be protected. Starr pointed out the current protocol has resulted in significant buildings in Bolton and Alton being demolished. Councillors also heard from Belfountain resident Judy Mabee, who was supporting Starr’s position. She observed that listing a property on the Register provides interim protection. She also pointed out the Register contains information that is accessible to planners, developers and the public. “I really do believe it’s nothing more than a time-out,” Shaughnessy observed. “I think it’s about time.” She added the changes will provide time for properties to be evaluated to see if there really is heritage value. General Manager of Community Services Peggy Tollett told Mayor Allan Thompson there would be no legal ramifications resulting from the change. Thompson said he understood the value of preserving heritage, but he also stressed the need to be open and transparent, and he was concerned the changes might be contrary to that. “In my gut, it tells me you just don’t do this to people,” he remarked. Councillor Johanna Downey commented that heritage buildings are “non-renewable.” “I believe we owe those buildings another 60 days,” she added.

Hall honours top achievers from last year

By Bill Rea
Scholastic achievement is an important part of any school, and that includes Robert F. Hall Catholic Secondary School in Caledon East. The school took an evening to recognize that recently with the annual Achievement Awards Night.

The evening saw more than 240 students recognized for making the Honour Roll last year, with averages of at least 80 per cent. There were also presentations of achievements awards in various subjects, as well as individual acknowledgements of excellence. “It’s truly a privilege to be among such committed and hard-working individuals,” observed teacher Diane Melanson, who was MC for the evening. “Hard work and commitment are important factors in student success,” Student Council President Damien Houston observed. Superintendent of Schools Tammy-Lynne Peel was on hand to offer congratulations on behalf of the Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board. Principal Tom Wisnicki called the awards night “one of my most favourite evenings of the year.” “You look pretty good,” he told the award recipients. “You’re all shined up.” “You’ve put in hard work,” he added. “You’ve put in commitment.” “Use the talents that God gave you, because that’s what they’re there for,” he urged, also telling the students to keep working hard, both for themselves and the betterment of others.

Make this Halloween a safe and fun night

As Halloween is quickly approaching, Caledon OPP wishes to remind all parents and children to practice safety precautions to make the evening a memorable one.

- Halloween safety tips
For parents
- Discourage the use of masks for children. Masks make it hard for children to see what is around them, including vehicles. Make-up is a better alternative.
 - Costumes should fit properly to prevent trips and falls. Avoid oversized shoes, high heels, long dresses or capes. Select costumes with bright colors to increase the child's visibility. Add on reflective tape to costumes if possible.
 - Children younger than 10 should

- be accompanied by an adult. By the age of 10, some children are ready to go trick-or-treating with a group of friends.
- Provide children with a flashlight. A cell phone is a good idea if one is available.
 - Draw a map outlining the route they should follow and set a curfew.
 - Tell children not to eat anything until they get home.
 - Let children draw the faces on pumpkins with a marker and leave the carving to parents.
 - Start trick-or-treating early, before it gets too dark.
- For children and youth
- Carry a white bag or pillowcase for candy, or add some reflective tape.
 - Bring a cell phone in case in the event that an emergency phone call has to be made.
 - Always travel in groups. Be sure there are at least three of - you at all times.

- Do not visit houses that are not well lit. Never go inside a stranger's home.
 - Walk on the sidewalk whenever possible. If there is no sidewalk, walk on the side of the road facing traffic. Do not criss-cross back and forth across the street. Never cross between parked cars, instead use crosswalks, street corners or intersections.
 - Do not eat treats before arriving home. When home, ask your parents to look through the treats with you to make sure everything is okay.
- For homeowners
- Turn on outdoor lights and replace burnt-out bulbs.
 - Remove items from the yard or porch that might trip a child.
 - Sweep wet leaves from the steps and sidewalk.
 - Use alternatives to candles in pumpkins, such as a flashlight or

- battery-operated candle. If you do use a candle, never leave it unattended.
- For drivers
- Drive slowly in residential areas where children are more like to be trick or treating.
 - Watch out for children, many of whom may be wearing costumes with masks that make it difficult for them to see. Children are excited; they may dart out in traffic.
 - Remember that costumes can limit a child's vision and they may not be able to see your vehicle.
 - Reduce your distractions and stay alert.
 - Remember to enter and exit drive-ways slowly and carefully. Proceed with caution.
 - Never drink and drive.
- Remember that safety is every-one's priority. If you observe suspi-cious activity, call 1-888-310-1122.

Dangerous driving charged last week on Airport Road

A 53-year-old man from Caledon is facing a number of charges after an incident Oct. 18 on Airport Road.

Caledon OPP reports two officers from the Community Response Unit were on general patrol heading south near Castlederg Sideroad shortly after 4 p.m. when they spotted a black 2017 Chevrolet Camaro heading north, travelling in the south-bound lane, at a very high rate of speed. It was passing a number of northbound vehicles, including a school bus carrying children.

The officers determined the car was going 162 km-h in a post-ed 80 zone. They made a U-turn and went after the vehicle and caught up with it after it had turned to east on Castlederg.

Police are expressing appreciation to the motorists in the area who were quick to pull over in both lanes to let the officers catch up with the Camaro.

The driver was charged with dangerous operation of a motor vehicle and racing a motor vehicle. His licence was suspended for seven days and the car was impounded.

Police would like to talk to anyone who observed this incident and is able to provide a statement to police or submit dash cam footage. They can contact Constable James Fazzalari at 905-584-2241 or toll free at 1-888-310-1122.

Town approving new sign at police station

By Bill Rea

The Town is supporting a new electronic sign outside the Caledon OPP station on Innis Lake Road.

Councillors recently approved the necessary motion that would amend the Town's sign bylaw to permit the new sign without comment.

The motion, that was brought forth by Councillor Jennifer Innis, noted the Town has a new sign bylaw that is slated to come into effect in January that will permit an electronic sign to go at that location. Such a sign is not permitted under the current bylaw.

Jones wonders why money was not spent

By Bill Rea

The Provincial government seems to have a lot of money to spend on infrastructure which is not being spent, and Sylvia Jones wanted to know why.

Dufferin-Caledon’s MPP raised the issue in Question Period in the legislature recently.

But Infrastructure Minister Bob Chiarelli told her the government is spending considerable funds on projects.

Jones cited public accounts documents which indicated the government failed to spend almost $3.3 billion in infrastructure spending during the fiscal year 2016-17.

“Ontarians are waiting for essential infrastructure for their communities, from hospitals to highways,” Jones told Chiarelli, according to Hansard. “Will the minister provide a list of the projects that are now delayed or not started because 20 per cent of the money he promised to communities was not distributed?”

“I’m surprised by the question, Mr. Speaker, given the extent of infrastructure investments we are making as a government,” Chiarelli replied, adding Jones should know the government has a project moving ahead over 13 years that will cost $190 billion.

He added most of these funds are getting out fast.

“We don’t take any back seat with respect to our investments in infrastructure,” he added. “It’s been very, very well received across the province.”

Jones countered that according to public accounts documents, the pending shortfall “was due to ‘lower-than-forecast construction activity for the period.’”

“Can the minister tell Ontarians why he failed to get these projects going?” she asked. “Was it red tape? Was it inaction? Or is this another stretch goal?”

“We have the largest investment in infrastructure in the history of the province of Ontario,” Chiarelli replied, although he agreed there have been some delays, due, he said, to the processing with the federal government.

He also said some of these projects are in ridings currently represented in the legislature by Progressive Conservatives.

“Some of those municipalities have not been able to deliver the actual shovel in the ground on time, but they’re coming,” he added.

Jones later indicated she was not too pleased with the answers she got from Chiarelli.

“The Minister response was disappointing because that he chose to blame federal and municipals partners rather than explaining why $3.3 billion wasn’t spent on needed infrastructure projects,” she said.

“The government makes announcements, but fails to actually deliver the projects,” she said. “It’s clear that the government is more interested in making promises than building roads, hospitals and transit.”

“The communities in Dufferin-Caledon are looking for investments in projects,” Jones added. “Sewage waterworks, an advanced green at Highway 89 and 124, GO service to Shelburne and Bolton, yet the government did not spend $3 billion that was allocated in the 2016 budget.”

HELPING TO FIGHT HUNGER

Young people were out at local grocery stores recently collecting food donations in support of Caledon Community Services and the Exchange in recognition of Hunger Awareness Week, which runs from Sept. 18 to 22. Cristiano Crecco, 14, of Bolton was outside Garden Foods, collecting contributions.

“Summer Student Series Part 3: Spotlight on Shreya Nair”

by Cassandra Briscoe, CCS Volunteer

(This 6-part series explores the day in a life of six 2017 CCS summer students. A new feature will appear here each month.)

Shreya Nair spent her summer working as a Program Assistant with the Health Services team at Caledon Community Services (CCS).

The 22-year-old recently completed her bachelor of honours life sciences with a minor in biochemistry at McMaster University. She is continuing her education at the Michener Institute, studying medical laboratory sciences.

With future plans of owning her own business, Shreya used her time at CCS to learn new skills she’ll require to excel as an entrepreneur in her chosen field.

“I learned how to be detail oriented and got first-hand experience working with patients,” she said.

Having moved to Caledon at a young age, Shreya was familiar with CCS. As a user of Jobs Caledon services for job searching and building her resume, she was excited to learn what else CCS offers the Caledon community.

Working with the Health Services team, Shreya was able to use her science background for researching and implementing new ideas.

We believe everyone over the age of 60 should get a FREE baseline hearing test. You can join us by simply booking YOUR test today and encouraging your friends to join you. It takes less than 60 minutes, you don’t need a doctor’s referral, and there’s no cost or obligation whatsoever!

This year we’re donating $4.00 for every test with the goal of providing FREE hearing aids to those who can’t afford them – So book your test, bring your friends, and together, we can make a difference!

WHY

Our hearing health is closely connected to our brain’s health. Since hearing loss becomes so prevalent as we age, we feel that the links between hearing loss and depression, mental fatigue, reduced cognitive capacity, even dementia highlighted in recent studies* are a big deal.

Early detection may not prevent hearing loss, but it could help reduce some of its effects. We believe that together, we can make a difference!

HOW

You can join the campaign by taking 2 easy steps:

- 1 Make an appointment to get your hearing tested.
- 2 Encourage your friends to get their hearing tested too.

Ghost Island Light beckons to Blackhorse

By Anne Ritchie

An ingeniously designed lighthouse sets the stage for Peter Colley's Ghost Island Light, the latest production at Blackhorse Village Players.

An eerie atmosphere generated by very special effects highlights the talents of both budding and veteran actors, making this comedic thriller excellent entertainment.

Kudos to the production crew who bring the startling story to light with footsteps and flashes, creaking and crashes midst a fierce ocean storm. Only this one flies in the face of a disastrous curse that will plague the newest lighthouse occupants.

Ivor Cathcart captures our attention as stubborn lighthouse keeper Josiah Tollifsen and never lets go. Hang on to your seats as he takes us through the storm that somehow spans centuries, hanging on for dear life to a youthful wife who is not all she seems to be. He clings to his lighthouse manual as if it were a life preserver, and the combination Caledon Concert Band will be presenting a live music event at Caledon Community Complex this Sunday (Oct. 29).

Viva Italia: Film, Opera and Romance will start at 2 p.m. It will be an eclectic mix of legendary melodies from Italian film and culture, such as O Sole Mio, Nessun Dorma, Funiculi Funicula, La donna e mobile, Barber of Seville, Marriage of Figaro and the Wedding Tarantella. Enjoy great Italian movies, Cinema Paradiso and Rocky.

Tickets will be available at the door. They will be $15 for adults, $10 for students and seniors and kids 12 and younger will get in for free with an adult. Group Rates and reserved tables are available online at www.caledonconcertband.ca

Proceeds will support the Caledon Concert Band Association Scholarship Program and music development opportunities within the community.

Interested musicians are welcome to join rehearsals each Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Caledon Community Complex Hall B.

of drama, comedy and spine-tingling encounters with a mysterious visitor brings out one of his best performances.

Emma Hedley takes the stage by storm in her premiere performance as the newlywed Rowena Tollifsen. She skilfully navigates her way through a versatile role: Rowena can be aloof or engaging, furious or flirtatious, "too young for books" or negatively ancient, and she becomes them all very well. We hope to see much more of Hedley's talent in the future.

When the storm arrives on his doorstep, assistant lighthouse keeper Brandon Aynsworth III becomes a life saver, and with a sophisticated flair, actor Andrew Pawaroo rises to the occasion. In his Blackhorse debut, Golden Boy, as he is aptly titled, is genuinely charming in every way, creating a ballast to the ensuing storm, be it in the lighthouse or at sea.

The life saved by Brandon belongs to Erin Ward, played by Elizabeth Coulter. Coulter sensitively recounts a past experience that will generate sympathy, not only from Brandon but the entire theatre audience. She capably battles mysterious elements, steering the action through to a most surprising outcome.

Applause goes to director Pamela Niesiobedzski-Curtis, producer Margery Cruise and an excellent production crew for a resounding success.

There's mysterious happenings afloat for audiences at Blackhorse Village Players Ghost Island Light from Oct. 27 to 29 and Nov. 3 to 5. Call 905-880-5002 to reserve tickets now.

MOVING PERFORMANCE AT CROSSCURRENTS

Ian Reid recently enchanted the CrossCurrents audience with an evening of mostly original folk music. With a voice not unlike Donovan or John Denver, he wove magic around his own experience of a lifetime across Canada. He did a cover of Nat King Cole's Nature Boy that was so compelling, he was asked to do it twice. He also sang in French, Spanish and even Hebrew.

Shawna Caspi coming to CrossCurrents

Shawna Caspi is a mighty singer, fingerstyle guitarist, story sculptor and a truth teller.

She has toured across Canada and the U.S.A., and believes in poetry and the power of one person and one instrument, accompanying herself with a remarkable lyrical fingerpicking guitar style. Caspi loves the landscapes of her travels and while weaving them into her songs, she has also been portraying them on canvases, painting one-of-a-kind works of art inspired by the rich scenery she has seen on tour.

Caspi will be appearing next Friday (Oct. 27) at CrossCurrents Cafe in Bolton.

Her fourth album, Forest Fire, released in September, is a collection of songs about burning things down and building them up again.

CrossCurrents operates out of Bolton United Church at the corner of King Street West and Nancy Street. Doors will open at 7:30 p.m. and the music is slated to start at 8.

Admission is free, but donations are welcome.

Win free hearing aids from Hear Well Be Well

By Bill Rea

Hear Well Be Well, which operates out of the Goodfellow Professional Centre on McEwan Drive in Bolton, is running a contest in October, with the prize being free hearing aids.

Nancy Robinson, regional education leader at the clinic, said they have partnered with Beltone, which makes high-quality hearing devices, for the contest. The result, she said, is some local person will be getting the gift of hearing for free, as she added the hearing aids given away will be the best that money can buy.

Hearing aids can cost between $2,000 and $9,000.

People can book a free hearing assessment during October, and that will get them entered into the draw, which will take place sometime in November. To be entered, one has to be at least 19 years of age and have a confirmed hearing loss.

Robinson added the draw will be random, since no one person is any more or less deserving.

“We’re looking forward to giving back to the Bolton community,” she added.

Hearing assessments can be booked by calling 905-857-0022.

NAFTA: dead in the water?

Not surprisingly, the fourth round of tripartite talks on potential changes to the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) wound up last Tuesday with the Canadian and Mexican delegations faced with the challenge of responding to United States demands that will set the stage for the trade pact's demise.

If there's any doubt about that prospect, it should disappear by simply examining what U.S. President Donald Trump has been doing elsewhere in his first nine months in office.

Despite having some of the lowest public approval ratings of any U.S. president, Trump has continued to enjoy the support of his base, dominated by white, elderly males with minimal education who get their information exclusively or mainly from social media and hence yearn to see a return to the years before globalization.

They might not all be white supremacists, but a substantial portion of the "Trump base" likely is, and quickly subscribe to Trump's claims that everything done by his predecessor was wrong-headed and had to be reversed, whether it was Obamacare, his moves to protect the environment or the achievement of the Iran nuclear deal.

And although NAFTA was negotiated many years ago, Trump portrays the deal as anti-American and the cause of both millions of jobs leaving the U.S. and a huge trade deficit with Mexico, albeit a much smaller one with Canada.

So it is that while the three nations' negotiators have seemingly agreed on the need for the trade deal to be modernized, the Trump administration has come up with some demands it must know its neighbours could not accept, some of them targeting Canada more than Mexico.

The demands include forcing renegotiations every five years, reserving the lion's share of automotive manufacturing for the United States and making it easier to pursue import barriers against some Canadian and Mexican goods.

U.S. Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer made no apologies about his hard negotiating line, which he has said reflects Trump's desire to claw back lost manufacturing jobs and shrink U.S. goods trade deficits amounting to $64 billion with Mexico and $11 billion with Canada last year. Meanwhile, Trump has continued his attacks on NAFTA, repeating his threats to terminate the pact if Mexico and Canada won't agree to such changes.

U.S. negotiators opened a new front last weekend with a demand that Canada dismantle its supply management system of protections for the dairy and poultry sectors, but more serious aspects of the U.S. bullying include opposition to NAFTA's dispute resolution mechanisms, and new restrictions on Canadian and Mexican firms' ability to bid on U.S. public-sector projects.

The Canadian and Mexican positions on NAFTA are enjoying support from some U.S. industry, farm and services lobbying groups who oppose the Trump proposals and are stepping up efforts to persuade administration officials to ease them.

In the circumstances, the Trudeau government needs to look seriously at how to counteract the damage that will be done by Trump pulling the plug on NAFTA.

Although one option might be to go back to a bilateral agreement, by resurrecting the Canada-U.S. free trade agreement, more success might be enjoyed by working with the U.S. Congress to reverse or modify trade sanctions imposed by executive order.

The objective would be to find a bipartisan majority in Washington that sees a brighter future for U.S. workers in free trade rather than protectionism, as well as in green energy instead of a return to coal and a more open door to refugees rather than travel bans.

Rotary Club of Palgrave's Weekly Rotary Minute

By Janet Gray

Oct. 24 marked World Polio Day, when the World Health Organization and Rotary International seek to raise awareness of continued existence of polio in the world and the importance of continuing the efforts to eradicate it from the face of the earth.

Polio is a highly infectious disease that most commonly affects children under the age of five. The virus is spread person to person, typically through contaminated water. It can attack the nervous system, and in some instances, lead to paralysis. Although there is no cure, there is a safe and effective vaccine — one which Rotary and its partners have used to immunize more than 2.5 billion children worldwide.

You have read in this column that we are "this close" to eradicating polio from the world. When Rotary started its Polio Plus Campaign in 1985, it raised $120 million (U.S.) to help with the vaccination programs around the world. That generosity came from people like you. In 1988, when the World Health Organization joined with Rotary to recognize the importance of eradicating polio, there were 350,000 cases in 120 countries around the world. In 2003, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation pledged to match every dollar raised by Rotary in its Polio Plus Campaigns. As of 2016 there are only 37 cases in three countries. While cases have been reduced by 99.9 per cent, until the disease is eradicated completely, every child is still at risk.

If we stop now, experts predict that within 10 years we could see as many as 200,000 new cases each year, all over the world.

The Rotary Club of Palgrave makes a weekly donation to Polio Plus, made up of member donations as well as a donation on behalf of the speaker to thank that individual for their speech.

This is for you, Jan

There are those experiences in life to which we eagerly look forward.

We rejoice in our hearts as they take place, and we feel let down when they are done.

I'm feeling let down as I write these words. I don't regret the experience, but I do regret it's over.

There is a high school in the west end of Toronto called Humberside Collegiate Institute, which is marking its 125th anniversary this year. The main celebration took place over the weekend.

I attended that school; a member of the Class of '77. I therefore attended and participated in the observances, but there was more to it.

For many years, Humberside benefitted from the services of a music teacher named Janet Keele, who ran the choirs, as well as directing annual musical productions. I took part in both during my high school years. They gave me an appreciation for music that has greatly enriched my life. They also gave me the chance to do things before live audiences of which I would have previously sworn I was incapable.

There was, and still is, a quality to her that I have always revered, and I know I am not alone. I well remember the day more than 40 years ago when Jan said she could tell who the Grade 13 students were because they now addressed her by her first name.

That same teacher, who has been retired for some years, organized an alumni choir to put on a concert Friday night in honour of the anniversary. I learned late last year from my brother Michael (Class of '72) that plans were in the works for a celebration, and that a choir would be assembled for a concert. I sent my former teacher an email, assuring her I would be on deck for being pressed into such service.

Some of you may have noticed that I was absent from community events in town the last several Wednesday evenings. The explanation is simple — I was in rehearsal, along with about 140 other alumni, spanning the more than 30 years this lady taught there. Consequently, I spent those evenings with an eclectic mix of people I hadn't seen in years and a whole lot of total strangers. We were all under the command of a woman we all love very much.

The dynamic was impressive, especially when I reflected back some 40 years. I had seen this lady draw pleasing sounds from the diaphragms of a couple of hundred kids, overcoming things like changing voices, smart remarks and asides from a bunch of teens who thought they had suddenly become sophisticated, and a hell of a lot of hormones. But being a good teacher, she knew how to get around that.

For a lot of those kids, it was an easy credit. To others, myself included, it was a labour of love, never to be forgotten. That's what drew us back to the routine over the last several Wednesday evenings.

But things were different. Jan was no longer dealing with a bunch of teens. Many of her charges over the last couple of weeks are in their 60s, and a whole bunch of others (like me) are looking forward to that imminent milestone with a certain amount of dread.

She frequently had to interrupt the reminiscing taking place in the ranks by barking the word "Stop" in her very distinctive voice (she's still got it). She was very gentle when it came to telling some of the women that unless their voices were well trained and practised, they simply might not be able to hit a high G any more. At one point during one of the rehearsals, she asked the assembly to stand, after we had all been sitting for more than an hour. She was rewarded with a 30-second chorus of grunts as a room full of 60-something joints creaked.

She also somehow drilled into us a repertoire, that included show tunes, works by Mozart, Rachmaninoff, Simon and Garfunkel, and Vivaldi, among others. I had sung some of the pieces when I was a kid (I got through the Rachmaninoff largely on memory from the mid-70s).

And then there was the actual concert Friday night. I know I missed the last note in Scarborough Fair (I was close, but my voice wasn't where it was supposed to be), and I know I had a lot of company. But a couple of pieces later, we did a medley from Richard Rodgers, which concluded with a rather moving rendition of You'll Never Walk Alone (another one I was able to do pretty much from memory). Jan's body language at the end told us that was one we nailed.

The final work was the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah.

Most of the concert can be found at www.facebook.com/hcialumni/videos/1507460605955649 (I'm the grey-haired, bearded, bespectacled guy somewhere in the middle), and I have to say I think the Hallelujah sounded pretty good. A lot of people I talked to later agreed, including Beth and Michael.

The last couple of weeks have been a tricky time, as I had to free up my Wednesday evenings. Like about 140 other people, I did it because I wanted to. Jan led us through it all because she wanted to.

Humberside marked its centennial 25 years ago, and Jan, who was still teaching at the time, had put together an alumni choir, which I joined with appropriate eagerness. I walked away from that experience happy that I had participated once again in something that had been such a special part of my youth, but sad as I realized I would probably never get a chance to do something like that again.

But I did get another chance, and am now a lot more hopeful than I was 25 years ago.

Right after Friday's concert, I approached Jan, asking her when she would be forming her next alumni choir. I told her to count me in.

It happened today

It was a gun fight that's story has been told and reenacted countless times. There have been movies made of it, and it was the inspiration of an episode of Star Trek. The story goes that Wyatt Earp, a former Kansas police officer, was working as a bank security guard in Tombstone, Arizona. He and his brothers, Morgan and Virgil, along with their friend Doc Holliday, represented "law and order" in Tombstone, though they also had reputations as being power-hungry and ruthless. Ike Clanton and his younger brother Billy, along with Frank and Tom McLaury and Billy Clairborne, were viewed in the opposite light, being seen as cattle rustlers, thieves and murderers. In October 1881, the struggle between these two groups heated up, until the Earps and Holliday spotted their five rivals in a vacant lot behind the now famous O.K. Corral. It's not known for sure who fired the first shot, but in the end, the two McLaurys and young Billy Clanton, just 19, were dead. Morgan and Virgil Earp, along with Holliday, were wounded. The famous gunfight took place this day, Oct. 26, 1881.

Liberal hypocrisy on full display

Justin Trudeau and Finance Minister Bill Morneau are in full retreat.

The revelations that have emerged regarding Morneau's vast assets and his failure to properly disclose, divest or place them in a blind trust as required by the Conflict of Interest Act are a staggering display of Liberal hypocrisy.

The Finance Minister is the most important financial decision-maker in Canada. People deserve to know what personal financial interests may affect his decisions. At the same time he is trying to slap sharp tax hikes on what he calls tax cheats — namely hard-working small business people and farmers — it has come to light that those same tax changes stand to benefit the Minister personally.

It is now known that Morneau owns about $40 million worth of shares in his family company, Morneau Shepell. Rather than place them into a blind trust, as recommended by the Conflict of Interest and Ethics Commissioner and which is normal practice, he put them into two numbered companies in which he is the sole shareholder. It is estimated those companies earn about $135,000 per month in dividends.

Conservatives believe that all members of the Trudeau government must follow the rules and fully and completely disclose their private interests to Canadians in accordance with federal law.

The Finance Minister has authority over regulations, taxation, subsidies, contracts, tariffs, government bonds and countless other levers that help or hinder corporate interests. These vast powers give the Minister the ability to advance a company (in this case, Morneau Shepell) in which he is invested and to make investment buy-sell decisions with privileged information.

Experts have said that the Finance Minister's family business, Morneau Shepell, stands to benefit from the changes outlined in his tax hike on local businesses. However, the Minister has given multiple indications that he does not understand his responsibilities under the law as described by the Conflict of Interest Act.

Liberals' hydro mess will cost Ontarians $4 billion more than necessary

Ontario's Auditor General (Auditor) released a special report Oct. 17 on the government's hydro plan.

The Auditor report shows that the Liberal government's attempt to hide the true cost of their hydro plan could cost Ontarians $4 billion more than necessary. The report also reveals that the Ministry of Energy stonewalled attempts from the Auditor General to access documents, and spent $500,000 on legal fees to stall the release of key documents pertaining to the Liberals' hydro scheme.

The Auditor General is an independent non-partisan officer of the Legislative Assembly and is considered the financial watchdog for the Ontario government. According to the Auditor, the government financing of their hydro scheme will cost $4 billion more than necessary. The Auditor's report shows that government would have received a lower interest rate if they borrowed the money directly. But instead, the government decided for a higher interest rate by borrowing through Ontario Power Generation. This decision will result in Ontarians paying $4 billion dollars more than necessary. An email from a senior official reveals that the government officials raised concerns that the government approach would be "more complicated and (more) costly route."

The Auditor concluded that the government knowingly ignored its own policy for preparing financial statements to create an unnecessary, complex financing structure designed to keep the true financial impact of its rate reduction scheme off the province's books.

To put this in perspective, $4 billion would fund 13,015 new hospital beds. Instead, ratepayers have to pay for the Liberals' hydro scandal. The government talks about being open and trans-

Accessibility equals good business

By the Caledon Accessibility Committee

The numbers are staggering.

Seniors and people with disabilities will represent 20 to 25 per cent of the Canadian recreation, retail, entertainment, work place and housing market in the next 10 years and beyond. In Ontario there are more than 1.5 million people, including nearly 40 per cent of people over the age of 65, with disabilities and, as our population ages, those numbers will continue to rise.

Here's where it gets really interesting from a business perspective: 75 per cent of people with disabilities are physically and financially able to travel. And when you add in their circle of family members, work colleagues and service providers, we are talking billions of dollars in new retail and tourism spending annually.

Clearly, being accessible can add to your bottom line.

To become more accessible, consider the following:

- Make entrance easy — clear snow, remove any trip hazards, add a handrail, power door opener and/or ramp.
- Adapt for difference — provide service counters at a lower height, install "tap" payment options.
- Communicate clearly — use clear language, design and test your website to ensure it is user-friendly and accessible.
- Offer multiple methods of service — consider alternatives such as home delivery or on-site personal shopping assistance.
- Promote best practices — encourage staff to clean up any spills and water/slush as soon as possible.
- Use large print menus and high contrast signage.

- Have seating available to allow individuals who have difficulty standing for long periods of time or become easily tired an opportunity to rest.
- Have clear icons along with text labels on products or services.
- Keep aisles free of displays and clutter.

And let's not forget the importance of equal customer service for all:

- Treat people with disabilities with the same respect and consideration you have for everyone else.
- Don't make assumptions about what type of disability a person has. Some disabilities are not visible.
- Take the time to get to know your customer's needs. Be patient.
- If you're not sure what to do, ask your customer, "How may I help you?" If you can't understand what someone is saying, politely ask again.
- Ask before offering help; don't just jump in. Your customers know how you can help if they need it.
- Look at your customer, but don't stare.
- Speak directly to person with disabilities, not to their interpreter or someone who is with them.
- Don't touch or address service animals.
- Ask permission before touching a wheelchair or piece of equipment.
- Every business should have emergency procedures for customers including those with disabilities. Make sure you and your staff know what they are.

Serving the needs of the growing number of seniors and people with disabilities is simply good business. To learn more about accessibility, visit ontario.ca/accessibility.

WE DON'T BREW OUR BEER FOR THE AWARDS.

BUT HE DOES!

Our brewmaster, Andrew Kohnen, threw away a successful career in logistics to pursue his dream of reconnecting with the brewing roots of his family. This carried him to the UK's prestigious Brewlab in Sunderland, England, where he procured the alchemy that would drive his signature brewing style.

He took what he could from there and ventured to Scotland, Cornwall, and ultimately to Krefeld, Germany, working in the same brewery that had belonged to his ancestors. He came home to Canada for Hockley.

Pumpkins were used for medicinal purposes by First Nations

By John Arnott

That pumpkin you're about to carve into a Halloween jack-o-lantern has a history dating back to prehistoric times.

Seeds from pumpkin-like squash, dating from between 5,000 and 7,000 years ago, have been found in Mexico, where it is believed most squash, and pumpkins, a naturally hybridized variety of squash, originated.

Usually deep yellow to orange with a smooth but more often lightly ribbed shells, pumpkins have the botanical name cucurbita — Latin for gourd, pepo from the Greek pepon meaning large melon. Our name comes from pepon to pompon in France through pumpkin in England finally becoming pumpkin in English speaking colonial North America.

In the last few years, white or ghost pumpkins have become popular. There are green coloured pumpkins as well.

All pumpkins are classed as winter squash and now go by that name in Britain and Australia-New Zealand.

This North American native is today grown worldwide with Canada, United States, China and India being the largest producers.

Pumpkins here in our area are a warm-weather crop with seeds being planted from mid June to early July when the top three inches of soil is at least 15.5 C. Pumpkins need a good amount of moisture to grow well, thus the growing soil must retain water, but not be soggy. Plants do poorly in sandy soil or soil that's badly drained. They also need to grow full sun. Pumpkin plants are ground lying, bristly-stemmed vines that produce both male and female flowers and large, edible, gently-lobed leaves. The large hibiscus-like male yellow flowers, also edible, attract pollinators, especially the squash bees (peponapis pruinosa), but due to wide use of pesticides, these bees have dramatically declined and honey bees have taken their place. But with honey bees becoming scarce, hand pollination in some areas is now necessary.

For thousands of years, First Nations people grew the squash we call pumpkin as food, even roasting and eating the seeds. Medicinally, it was to treat intestinal worms and urinary problems. All this they shared with the incoming European colonists.

Modern veterinarians use pumpkin extract to treat cats for hairballs and both dogs and cats for constipation and diarrhoea.

Today, pumpkins are grown commercially as animal feed and for ornamental use, such as those often intricately-carved jack-o-lanterns (in the British Isles where jack-o-lanterns originated, they were usually carved from turnips). The seeds of the green pumpkin are used to produce an unsaturated oil for cooking, healthy salad dressings and for herbal medicines.

The extremely large pumpkins, that can weigh hundreds of pounds, and are best known in pumpkin growing contests, originated from the cucurbita maxima — Latin for large species, which horticulturists found growing in South America. It is related to the pepo, which is probably its main ancestor.

The idea of using pumpkin as a pie filling came from pioneer times, when once the seeds had been removed the pumpkin "meat" was mashed inside the shell and mixed with cream, honey and spice or cinnamon/cassia, then baked. Surprisingly, today most commercially sold pumpkin pie filling is made from other types of squash most often the butternut variety.

COMMUNITY KITCHEN APPRECIATES SUPPORT

Palgrave Preserves, which started in June at Palgrave Community Kitchen at Palgrave United Church, is a series of workshops and events focusing on food canning and preserving. The program was helped by a $25,000 grant from the federal government, along with donations from the Rotary Club of Palgrave. Friday was a time to show appreciation. Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson was on hand for the celebration, joining Rotarian Ross Farrelly, Lorraine Witty of the Community Kitchen, Karen Hollingshead, Church minister Greg Daly, Meredith Taylor and Barb Imrie of the Community Kitchen and Rotarian Marie Jay. "It's not just the money," Tilson observed. "It's what you're actually doing with the money."

Golden Hawks sweep doubleheader with Cougars

By Jake Courtepatte

After a pair of tough contests with the league's best Alliston Hornets and Stayner Siskins, it was a return to form over the weekend when the Caledon Golden Hawks picked up four points in the Provincial Junior Hockey League.

A busy weekend saw the Golden Hawks topple the rival Schomberg Cougars in back-to-back games, before succumbing to the Siskins in the teams' third meeting of the season.

Thursday night's battle in Schomberg was a high-scoring affair, one which saw the Golden Hawks come out on top 6-4, the fourth time this year they have managed to pot six in a game.

As is often the case in rival contests, the play on the ice often took a back-seat to the rough stuff, with the teams combining for 127 minutes in penalties.

It was actually Schomberg who entered the third period with a 2-1 lead, thanks to goals from Brandon Scholten and Connor Kearney, making it a 3-1 game just seconds into the third off the stick of Mitchell Robinson.

Caledon fought back to tie the game on goals from captain Matt Magliozzi and Behn Ware, leading shortly after to some heavy scrums. A carousel to the penalty box led to two power-play goals for the Hawks to take the lead.

Owen Heilemann brought the Cougars back to within one with just less than four minutes left in the game, though Magliozzi shut the door with Caledon's sixth of the game just 29 seconds later.

The Hawks peppered Schomberg goaltender Albert Parente with 44 shots, while Michael Kaczor earned the win with 18 saves of his own.

A rematch the following day in Caledon looked promising to continue the tussle, though remained mostly tame in a game that saw Caledon lead the entire way.

Both goalies were strong throughout an offence-heavy first period, with only Magliozzi finding the back of the net with less than a minute to go: his 11th of the season, good for fifth among division scoring leaders.

Both teams exchanged goals in the second, though Caledon managed two more in the third to sweep the back-to-back by a score of 4-1.

Hosting the powerhouse Siskins Sunday, Caledon toyed with the lead in the first period after goals from Michael Andrews and Marc Simonetta, though Stayner took over from there for an eventual 5-2 win.

The sweep of the Cougars did wonders for the Hawks in the Carruthers division standings, who now sit four points up on Schomberg in third, with a record of 6-7-0-1.

They and the rest of the division are far behind the Hornets and the Siskins, who in 26 games this season combined have a total of two losses.

Caledon's only action this week is a meeting with the last-place Orillia Terriers at Caledon East Arena Sunday. Puck drop is set for 7 p.m.

Minor atom Hawks sweep tournament in Stoney Creek

By Pino Agostino

What a game!

The Caledon minor atom AE Hawks compiled a 6-0 record to take the title in the 32nd Ace Bailey Tournament in Stoney Creek.

The Hawks were down 6-2 with one period left to the Oakridge Aeros in the championship game. The beginning was rough, and the Aeros played fantastic and were quick, strong and determined to take the gold.

The Hawks didn't give up. With one time-out left, and 15 minutes to play in the third, the Hawks scored a third goal with 14:36 left on the clock to make the score 6-3. There was a quick line change and the Hawks scored again with 12:53 remaining to make it 6-4. At this point, they were not celebrating goals as the Hawks lined up at center ice. The puck was dropped and the play moved toward the net, and there was another goal after only 20 seconds to tighten the score to 6-5.

The game was getting tense, and the Hawks catching up had made it surreal.

At this point, the coaches were talking about pulling the goalie with two minutes left in the third period, but the Hawks scored again to tie things up with 1:55 remaining. Timeout was called by the Hawks' bench, knowing that if they were to tie the game, they would be faced with sudden-death overtime, and then penalty shots.

The coaches decided to go for it and not conserve their players or energy for the extra time. The puck dropped, and after 32 seconds of play, the Hawks got a goal, scored by Nicolas Corsi, assisted by James Agostino and Bryce Prieur.

The arena was in awe, the fans were jumping up and down and no one could sit at this point.

With 1:23 remaining in the period, the battle was on, for time just couldn't move fast enough. The final seconds were being counted out by the players on the bench — "9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1!"

The Hawks were victorious with the greatest comeback in all their experiences. These boys fought hard, they made up for the four-goal deficit and were determined to win.

Thanks to all the players, the families that brought them there and the coaches for all their time!

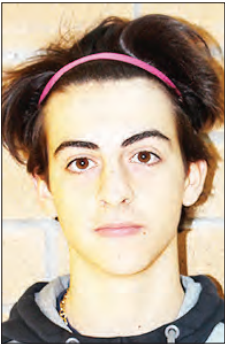

A big thanks to Stoney Creek for hosting a wonderful tournament as the team looks forward to visiting again in the not so distant future.

Game of ‘steals’ sets the tone at King Curling Club

By Shellee Morning

While the second week of the season is now in the King Curling Club’s history books, some teams are already on winning streaks, with others still brushing for a win.

In the Mixed Team Entry League, draw one posted challenges with the ultimate draw for the win as teams struggled to find the perfect weight.

Team Swackhammer struggled a bit in their match against team Davis, who stole a single point in each of the first three ends. Skip Dave Swackhammer looked to be in trouble again in the fourth, but after superior sweeping by Joanne and Peter Mumford, the skipper executed an angle raise takeout for two. That timely raise seemed to be the turning point of the game for Swackhammer, as he and his squad returned the favour of steals, collecting their single points in each of the final ends to earn the 5-3 win. Vice Lou Ann Curtis commented that it was truly a game of steals and you can never give up until the last rock is thrown.

Last season’s runner-up champion Team Gerrits is on a winning streak, with back-to-back wins so far with a victory against league champion Team Broad, as well as last week’s close broom-for-broom win over Team Robinson. The 7-5 win showcased the precision take-outs by Al Courneya and perfect draw weight from the Skip. Team Robinson wasn’t totally out done, as they too executed some high-performance take-outs and timely come-arounds, keeping the game close.

Other winning teams included Sheardown, Stronach and Brown from the early draw and Barber, Boynton and Broad with solid efforts from the late draw.

Beginner program gets underway

Friday night curling opened a new platform for beginner curlers this year that allows them to learn the basics of skill and safety of the game.

This Adult Instructional League involves eight consecutive sessions held Friday evenings alternating between the 7 and 9 p.m. draws. Each session will build from the previous one, progressing through a program designed and approved by the Ontario Curling Association (OCA).

The club’s trained OCA coaches will instruct the proper way to deliver a rock, basic strategy, team play and introduce structured games beginning in the fifth session. Once the program is complete, participants will be encouraged to join the regular Friday night league as they will have graduated to being “game ready” for the second half of the season Jan.5.

There have been 27 participants and five coaches who filled the four sheets, all displaying an excited and eager manner to learn. The new approach when working with rookie curlers emphasized stretching beforehand as a preventive measure against injury, and getting used to the gripper and slider immediately. Participant Bill Barron said that the instructors made the first time being on the ice feel safe by learning the very basics first.

“My instructor slightly moved my broom a little closer from where it was (for pushing off in the hack) and that completely changed my balance making the slide a lot easier,” Barron said. “I really enjoyed it all.”

Bob Belcher, one of the instructors, thought the first session went really well.

“In fact, the enthusiasm from the group was so great they gave a round of applause at the end of the session,” he said.

Belcher stated that the slow start to learning balance on the ice is critical and that once a curler feels safe, the rest of the learning process is made a lot easier. Sweeping, learning which way to curl the rock and determining the weight of the throw are all components of the game that will take the next few weeks to absorb, but when the session is complete these future legends will be one of the hurry hard crew sweeping to victory.

Simon Whitfield and Scott Thornton to be at charity game in Bolton

Seventeen years ago, Canadian Simon Whitfield won the Gold Medal in the Triathlon at the Sydney Olympics.

Over his career, Whitfield went to four Olympics, won a silver in Beijing in 2008, a Gold at the 2002 Commonwealth Games and a silver at the ‘99 Pan American Games. With more than 50 major victories, he became one of the all time most successful Olympians in Canada’s history.

Whitfield will be inducted to the Canada Sports Hall of Fame in Toronto Nov. 9, before coming to Caledon for a Nov. 10 charity hockey game at the arena in Bolton. He will be joined by other Olympic athletes, local business people and retired NHL hockey stars like Scott Thornton, who played for several NHL teams, including Toronto Maple Leafs.

Barrie Shepley of C3 Running said the Nov. 10 game is free to everyone, but tickets must be picked up prior to the evening to ensure the event is not oversold. Get free tickets at either the North Hub Bike Shop at 55 Healy Rd. in Bolton or the Caledon Hills Bike Shop (in Inglewood). Tickets are also being distributed at a number of schools in Caledon.

Anyone in the arena will be eligible for great draw prizes throughout the night. Don’t miss this chance to meet some of top Olympians, NHL players for free in the local Bolton arena.

Scott Thornton

Annual Udder Tournament coming

The sixth annual Udder Tournament, a charitable women’s hockey tournament, will be held at the Caledon East arena Nov. 10, 11 and 12.

This year, all proceeds raised will be shared between the Donna deBoer Memorial Scholarship Fund for female athletes, and the Girls Can Too program.

Girls Can Too is a program that operates out of the Bolton Camp and provides young women with hands-on learning experiences in construction and ecology. It includes mentorship and training opportunities with females from a variety of professions. More information about Girls Can Too can be found at <https://trca.ca/learning/bolton-camp-project/girls-can-too/>

The tournament has previously raised more than $100,000, shared between the scholarship and community initiatives. Thirteen scholarships have been awarded to support female athletes enrolled in post-secondary education. Scholarship applicants need to exude positive values, such as sportsmanship, respect for others and cooperation, both on and off the ice.

The tournament is facilitated by Caledon Women’s Hockey League (CWHL), and is only successful due to volunteers, community involvement and players’ participation.

Those looking to volunteer or donate (support-in-kind, financial or items for the raffle and/or silent auction) are asked to contact Kathy Stranks at kstranks@sympatico.ca

The tournament was initially created to recognize a founding CWHL member’s remarkable contribution to the league and community. After a courageous battle, Donna deBoer died of brain cancer in 2011.

The tournament’s success has been two-fold. It celebrates a teammate, friend and life-long dairy farmer’s influence and qualities, while bringing the community together for some old fashioned Canadian sport and camaraderie. Ms. deBoer was a proud local dairy farmer and alongside her family implemented a robotic milking system, allowing a good work-life balance with family and community. Her passion for dairy farming led to the cow theme of the tournament.

4-Her’s spotted in Algonquin Park. ‘Canoe’ believe it?

By Allison French

This summer, seven Peel 4-H members were out on the water trying their hand at canoeing to complete our Silver Duke of Edinburgh Award.

With one expert out of the seven of us 4-H members, it was fit for Robert Matson to be the junior leader of our Adventurous Journey Club.

The Duke of Edinburgh Award is an international program available to all 14 to 24 year olds. For the Silver Award, there are four sections and participants must demonstrate consistent commitment in service, skill and physical recreation for a minimum of six months. Then they have to complete an adventurous journey that is three days and two nights. It is a requirement for members to complete a pre-trip of two days and one night before embarking on their adventurous journey.

We decided to do our journey Aug. 12 to 14 at Algonquin Provincial Park on North Tea Lake.

The members of the club were, Nicole and Kayla Emmerton, Colin, Julie, Nicole and Allison French, Robert Matson as the junior leader, Karen Matson, Mary Emmerton, Thomas Hautot and Brain Emmerton as our leaders. Scouter Steve Vickers and Scout Ethan Mumford joined us.

After countless hours spent on Island Lake in Orangeville, we were finally ready for our pre-trip. We decided to do that at Guelph Lake. Everyone loaded up two cars Aug. 5 and headed off to the lake. We had tons of fun paddling against the wind the whole first day. When we arrived back at the campsite, we set up the tents and the rest of the site. Following this, we discussed aspects of the Duke of Edinburgh’s Award and prepared a menu and a packing list for the adventurous journey.

With everyone surviving the pre-trip, the preparations for our trip started to take place. After a group trip to the grocery store and spending what felt like hours at the meat counter, trying to get the best deals, we prepped all of our meals for the trip. We had a team barbecue the night before to go over a few last things and pack all of our stuff into barrels and thumps.

We left for our adventure at 6 a.m. Aug. 12 in the two cars with everyone ready and excited to start.

Arriving at just outside of Algonquin Park, we started our journey canoeing across Kawawaymog Lake and then through a small winding river, completing two portages successfully. One was 135 metres and the other was 255 metres. We ended up at the mouth of North Tea Lake.

We then went looking for a campsite, and after finding our home for the night, we all broke off and started collecting firewood, pitching tents, pumping water, starting to cook dinner and many other small jobs.

While we were trying to hang our bear bags, one of the group members started reading us the “fun facts” about black bears and what to do if we encountered one. This in turn motivated us to throw our bear bag onto a higher branch.

After going on a night swim and lazy canoe around an island, we played a card game and called it a night, making sure that we brought a paddle to sit outside our tent door (no explanation needed after our black bear “fun facts”).

When morning arrived, we made breakfast and packed all of our stuff up to move to our next campsite.

We hit the water when it was glass-like and went “real-estate shopping” as our leaders put it. This meant that we stayed along the shoreline and looked at all the different campsites and talked about the pros and cons of each of them. Our “ideal campsite” was simple; it had a beach.

We kept canoeing on North Tea Lake and ended up finding our ideal campsite on an island. With the island to ourselves we unpacked everything and then went back out onto the water on a leisure canoe to a beach. After swimming for a bit, we came back and started dinner and some had some s’mores afterwards.

After laughing around the campfire, we went to bed with a 5:30 wakeup call the next morning.

The next morning, after having breakfast and packing up all our things, we hit the water by 7 and headed back across North Tea Lake. We were all in great spirits and high energy, because we all knew that there was ice cream at the end of the day’s canoe trip.

On our way back, we had some great vocals lead by Kayla and Nicole French. And then the rest of the group joined in. We spotted a loon and a great blue heron, as well as (according to Julie) a red squirrel that was swimming. We didn’t take long to get to the first portage and quickly traversed both portages with ease. After being in the winding river forever we final saw the end in sight when we reached Kawawaymog Lake.

Despite reaching the final lake, it was not going to be an easy canoe back, due to the wind that was blowing across the water.

We all made it back alive without having to use any of our emergency maneuvers rescues (meaning we didn’t flip any of our canoes once). To end off our trip, we headed into Huntsville and got pizza and of course some Kawartha Dairy ice cream.

This was an incredible opportunity that a lot of us would not do normally, and it took a lot of people out of their comfort zones, but it was an amazing journey that we will never forget.
