Jones showing confidence in Ford as Leader

By Bill Rea

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones admitted to being “a little bit” surprised at the results of the weekend vote for the new leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party, but she thinks Doug Ford is the one to lead.

Ford was declared Leader in a hotly contested contest over the weekend, but it wasn't until Sunday evening that his main rival, Christine Elliott, conceded the race.

Ford is a former Toronto City councillor. His late brother Rob served a term as mayor of Toronto.

There were concerns over the delay in getting the results announced.

“You knew it was going to be a lot tighter than even the pundits had suggested,”

Jones commented Monday, adding many in the party were interested and engaged in making the right choice. She said she got that message from people who were not even members of the party, observing there was a desire among the public at they do it right.

Jones said she was impressed with the ability Ford has shown to reach beyond traditional Conservative voters. He did well in areas that normally don't vote PC, and seemed to connect with people who considered themselves disenfranchised.

Jones said Monday she had not spoken to Ford since his election as Leader.

She was speaking confidently about his ability to form a government after the June 7 election.

“I hope so,” she said. “That's the plan.”

Jones added that all the candidates in the race have united behind Ford.

“I think that's important for the long-term health of our party,” she remarked.

“Doug's experience in government, business and his leadership in the community will get the province back on the path to prosperity,” Jones said in a statement issued by her office Monday. “Doug has energized the PC party's grassroots based on a call for respect for taxpayers, and I am looking forward to working with him to defeat the Wynne Liberals.”

“I would like to thank the three other candidates for the PC Leadership for their work in growing our party and their efforts seeking the support of our membership,” she added.

“The last two months have been an intense and dramatic time for our party. During that

Frank Dale not running for another term as Chair

By Bill Rea

Peel Region residents will be breaking in a new Regional Chair later this year.

Current Chair Frank Dale opened last Thursday's Regional council meeting by announcing he will not be seeking a second term. Dale, a long-time Mississauga councillor, was elected Chair in December 2014, replacing Emil Kolb, who had retired after 23 years on the job.

"I will be retiring at the end of this term," Dale told his colleagues last week, as he thanked them for their support. "I am proud of the decisions we have made over the years that have contributed to the growth of this region."

He also praised the work of Regional staff over the years, commenting it had been a privilege to work with such talented and dedicated public servants.

He added he plans to spend more time with his wife Terri, his family and grandchildren.

Dale was given a stranding ovation at the conclusion of his remarks.

"I think that's the first time in my life I've received a standing ovation," he joked.

Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson expressed appreciation to Dale for putting himself forward to serve the community for 30 years, calling it a "huge accomplishment."

"On behalf of Caledon, I want to thank you for the fine work you've done," Thompson added. "Caledon is better for it."

"You've always been a fair man," Caledon Councillor Annette Groves told Dale, reminding him she had been supporting him for chair from the first ballot in 2014.

"We certainly appreciate your support and your advocacy for us little folks in Caledon."

"What a career of distinction!" Mississauga Councillor Nando Iannicca said, commenting he couldn't recall ever hearing so much as a suggestion of anything untoward regarding Dale over the years.

"There's still time," Dale joked.

"I'm happy for Terri," Iannicca added. "She deserves a little bit more of you."

"I know Terri's happy for the moment," Dale replied.

Dale had been re-elected to his City Council Ward 4 seat a couple of weeks before his election as Chair. Councillor John Kovac won the by-election to fill that council seat, and he thanked Dale for his guidance over the last couple of years.

"I've appreciated your mentorship," he remarked.

"You've given a lot back to the community," Mississauga Councillor Ron Starr told Dale.

"You're living proof that good guys can finish first," Mississauga Councillor George Carlson commented. "We need more decent people in politics. You're one."

"You're just a nice person," Brampton Councillor Elaine Moore told Dale. "You must be, because I didn't vote for you as chair, and you've continued to be nice to me."

Dale and all previous Regional Chairs have been elected by Regional councillors early in the new term. New Provincial legislation, however, now calls for Chairs to be elected at large by residents.

Information session for candidates for Chair

In the Oct. 22 municipal election, eligible Peel residents will have an opportunity to vote for the Regional Chair for the first time.

The names of the candidates for the position of the Chair will be on the ballot, and Peel electors will vote for their preferred candidate.

The Region of Peel and the Ministry of Municipal Affairs will be holding a candidate information session that will cover key information about becoming a candidate for the position of Chair.

It will be April 10, from 6 to 8 p.m., at the Regional Council Chambers on the fifth floor at 10 Peel Centre Dr. in Brampton.

The session is open to Peel residents who are interested in being a candidate for Chair. It will provide information on the Regional Chair's role and duties; who can run for the position; roles and responsibilities of elected officials; the nomination process and key dates; general campaign rules; campaign and election finances; candidate and third party advertiser duties; compliance and enforcement; voters' list and proxy voting; and scrutineers and recounts.

Registration is not required.

Meeting coming on Brookfield rezoning

A public meeting will be held April 3 to consider proposed rezoning application on behalf of Brookfield Residential (Ontario) Bolton Limited.

The application involves a property at 50 Ann St. in Bolton.

The meeting will start at 6 p.m. in the Council Chambers at Town Hall in Caledon East.

Development might see road connection with Highway 10

By Bill Rea

Finding a road connection with Highway 10 seems to be the main concern with a proposed subdivision near Snelgrove.

The proposals put forth by Caledon 410 Developments Limited at 12290 Hutchison Farm Lane was discussed last Tuesday at a public information meeting before Caledon Council. The proposal calls for a rezoning of the property, as well as the approval of the draft plan of subdivision.

Jason Afonso of Glenn Schnarr and Associates told the meeting the lands consist of about 94 acres which is currently used for agriculture. The land is mainly flat, with two woodlots. The plan is to protect the woodlots.

He also said the property is surrounded by agricultural uses to the north and west, with the municipal boundary with Brampton to the south. Brampton Christian School is north of the site.

Afonso said the proposal is part of the second phase of the plans for Mayfield West

The subdivision plan calls for 509 homes. They would include 197 single-detached houses, 39 on-street townhouses, 255 rear-lane townhouses and 18 back-to-back townhouses. There are also provisions for a 15.79-acre commercial area, a transit hub, and institutional area that he said would be used by Peel Regional Police, about 17 acres of environmental policy area (which will include the woodlots and buffer areas), some open space, a community park, a greenway corridor and a 4.55-acre storm water management facility. Afonso told the meeting details about the commercial area will be provided in subsequent applications.

Collingwood Avenue resident Christopher Wood said he had sent a letter to the Town outlining his concerns, and a major issue for him was the road pattern. He said the main access to the development would be off Robertson Davies Drive, adding there are plans for an east-west spine road running from McLaughlin Road, but there is currently no planned access with Highway 10 or Highway 410. He was concerned traffic will be forced to use Robertson Davies. He also pointed out that with 509 homes and assuming two cars per home, there were be more than 1,000 additional car trips per day using the roads.

Afonso said there's an agreement with the Town that the spine road will connect with the most easterly collector road. He added it will be fully operational before any building permits are issued.

He also said they are working on an environmental assessment (EA) to create a connection with Highway 10. It's expected the EA will be completed this year. He told Councillor Doug Beffort there should be a public information centre on the EA sometime in the summer. He added the Town is assessing how much development can be supported with the existing road network.

"It's an impressive plan," Councillor Gord McClure remarked, although he did see how the road network could be a problem.

Afonso told Beffort the main access will be off the spine road, and not Robertson Davies, which he said is just a collector road. He added they want to get as much traffic as possible on the spine road. He also told Beffort he couldn't say if there will be a connection with the Valleywood lands to the east.

Councillor Barb Shaughnessy was concerned about visitor parking, and was worried some people might have to park on Brampton streets.

She too called for the spine road to be complete, adding she couldn't imagine all the traffic that would use the road network.

Afonso said they share the Town's concerns.

McClure was also skeptical that there could be a connection with Highway 10. "It can't be done," he declared.

But Afonso said the Town has been working with the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) on the EA, adding there should be options ready for public review this summer.

"It's been progressing," he told Councillor Johanna Downey.

He also told Mayor Allan Thompson the cancelling of the planned highway in the GTA West Corridor is speeding the EA process up. He added MTO has been more responsive to moving things forward over the last couple of weeks.

Dumping of hazardous materials in Caledon a concern

The week which ended Monday saw five cases in which Caledon OPP officers responded to reports of hazardous materials being improperly dumped. This investigation is being led by members of detachment’s Community Street

Crime Unit with assistance from other specialty units within the OPP. Last Monday (March 5) saw officers responding to a report of several garbage bags being dumped on Boston Mills Road, east of Creditview Road. The incident was report-

OPP has responded to a number of reports involving the disposal of waste in ditches over the last several days. When examined, the waste appears to be from a synthetic drug lab and is extremely hazardous. Precautionary measures were immediately undertaken in each incident to secure the area which then allowed for specialized resources from the OPP and Caledon Fire and Emergency Services to be brought in to safely remove the discarded waste. OPP is issuing a public safety warning. Should anyone locate any discarded waste products that possess a strong chemical based odour, have solidified or liquid residue and appear similar to the provided photographs, they are asked to contact them immediately. Under no circumstances should any member of the public go near any of these discarded products. Police are also encouraging parents to share this message with children of all ages during March break and as spring brings them back outdoors.

ed to police at about 10:45 a.m. While at the scene, police detected a strong chemical odour coming from the waste and observed white powder inside the bags. There were 72 black plastic bags that were removed from the ditch and samples of the contents were taken by the OPP’s Identification Services for analysis. Assistance was also provided by the OPP’s Urban Search and Rescue (UCRT) and Chemical Biological Radiological Nuclear Explosives (CBRNE) Response Team.

Last Wednesday morning brought a report of garbage bags on Mountainview Road, south of Charleston Sideroad shortly before 10 a.m. Approximately 30 black garbage bags were removed from a private property. The contents contained a strong chemical odour with a crystalized substance inside. Specialty units within the OPP were engaged to assist the investigation, which included Identification Services, Organized Crime Enforcement Bureau, and members from UCRT/CBRNE Response Team.

That afternoon, at about 4:20 p.m., police responded to a report of garbage bags discovered on a private property on The Gore Road north of Patterson Sideroad. Police were informed by the homeowner that approximately 25 to 40 black garbage bags were removed by the owner to another property owned by the complainant in Caledon. The bags contained a white powdery substance and possessed a strong odour. The OPP’s specialty units — Identification Services and members from UCRT/CBRNE Response Team were once again engaged.

The following day (March 8) at about 11:30 a.m., police responded to a report of garbage disposed at a private property on Dixie Road south of King Street. Information was received that waste that was believed to be hazardous was left at the property one month prior to reporting, but had since been discarded.

Monday morning had police responding to another report shortly before noon. Garbage was reported on McLaughlin Road north of The Grange Side Road. There were 21 bags removed from the ditch and white powder was observed inside the bags. Assistance was again provided by the OPP’s UCRT/CBRNE Response Team.

Police are asking the public to report any suspicious persons, vehicles and activity observed in the area. Taking note of descriptions of persons and vehicles (such as licence plate numbers) can help them in solving these crimes. The disposal of hazardous waste is a crime that affects everyone in Caledon.

Police are asking the public to be the eyes and ears of the community, working collaboratively with the police, who are the hands and the feet, to identify the individuals responsible for harming the town and hold them accountable.

“Clandestine drug labs, and the drugs they manufacture, have a toxic and destructive impact on the lives of people, their communities, and the environment,” OPP Deputy Commissioner Scott Tod (retired) stated in 2013. “They can also lead to a wide spectrum of violent acts and property crimes involving criminal organizations.”

“The production of one pound of methamphetamine results in about six pounds of toxic chemical waste,” he added. “And these ‘cooks,’ as we call them, are not very likely to follow the latest Ontario WHMIS standards when handling these chemicals and the waste they create. I don’t know that we would even call them expert or certified chemists. This toxic waste is usually disposed of through careless dumping resulting in potential contamination of nearby land and waterways.”

Anyone with information regarding the disposal of hazardous waste in Caledon is asked to contact OPP at 905-584-2241 or toll free at 1-888-310-1122.

Police are watching out for distracted drivers this week

Over March break, Ontario Provincial Police are highly focused on what has been the deadliest kind of driver on OPP-patrolled roads for the fifth consecutive year — the inattentive driver.

Inattentive drivers were behind 83 road fatalities on OPP-patrolled roads in 2017, surpassing speed-related deaths (75), alcohol/drug-related deaths (46) and those that are linked to lack of seat belt use (49).

Since 2009 (the year distracted driving laws took effect in Ontario), 692 people have been killed on OPP-patrolled roads in collisions that involved an inattentive driver.

“By now, the majority of drivers and passengers have witnessed, had a close call or been involved in a collision with a driver who was texting, talking on their cell phone or engaged in some other form of distraction,” OPP Deputy Commissioner Brad Blair said. “Last year, the OPP responded to 8,711 crashes that were linked to driver inattention.”

If convicted of distracted driving, a fully licensed driver will receive a fine of $400, plus a victim surcharge and court fee, for a total of $490 if settled out of court, a fine of up to $1,000 if they receive a summons or fight the ticket and three demerit points.

Drivers who endanger others because of any distraction, including hand-held and hands-free devices, may still be charged with careless driving under the Highway Traffic Act or even dangerous driving under the Criminal Code of Canada. Both charges carry heavy fines and penalties.

Other parties not impressed with Ford leading the PCs

time, I worked with our Interim Leader, Vic Fedeli, and my fellow Deputy Leader Steve Clark to ensure that the new leader would have the party turned over to them in the best possible shape.”

But not everyone was speaking as positively about the results.

“What’s clear is that there is nothing progressive about the PC party,” Dufferin-Caledon Liberal candidate Bob Gordanier said in a statement he issued Tuesday. “They are no longer pretending to be moderate; the Conservatives are fully committed to a right-wing agenda of cuts.”

Gordanier cited an article that appeared in Maclean’s, by independent economist Mike Moffat in which he determined that the Conservative cuts, will mean at least 40,000 fewer jobs in Ontario in the public sector, such as nurses, doctors, teachers, university professors, firefighters and more. He added economists at major banks have stated that the increase in minimum wage, which the Liberals have been promoting, will only help the economy.

“Ford wants to roll it back,” he observed. Does that mean a pay cut to our lowest paid workers?”

He also said the PCs cannot deliver on their promises. He said that during the debates none of the candidates said they believe in climate change, and they are promoting scrapping the carbon tax. Gordanier argued they will have to make massive cuts to education and healthcare to pay for their promises.

“This not at all surprising,” he observed. “This is what Conservatives do historically, they always make cuts.”

“Ford is on the extreme side of Conservatism,” he added. “What will this do to our present thriving economy with the lowest unemployment levels in 17 years in Ontario, and one of the highest GDP rates in the G7 countries?”

Andrew Nowell, Trillium Party candidate in Dufferin-Caledon, didn’t express much confidence in Ford either.

“He’s got a lot on his plate,” he commented.

“I just see that there’s so much messed up with the PC party,” he added, commenting he doesn’t know if they can recover.

Nowell added this might offer a chance for Trillium to become better known.

Green Party candidate Laura Campbell thought Ford’s election reflects the frustration Ontarians feel toward the Wynne government.

“His brand of populism is trendy right now,” she observed, adding it shows people are ready for change.

Campbell said she’s worried about Ford’s perspective on the environment, as well as what he’s planning to do without talking about government revenues.

The Town is coming into a good chunk of money from the Province, and municipal staff has been given the job of finding out the best way to spend it.

Town councillors, sitting in committee, recently passed a motion put forth by Mayor Allan Thompson to have CAO Mike Galloway work with staff, and report back.

The money amounts to $84,657, which Thomson was told would be coming from Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs Minister Jeff Leal at the recent conference of the Rural Ontario Municipal Association. The purpose of the money is to support capital projects for the revitalization of downtowns and main streets.

Thompson told his colleagues the Town is not obligated to match the funding on any project, adding there are no strings attached.

There are projects in Caledon village and Cheltenham which he said could benefit from this.

“So far, he hasn’t actually proposed any concrete ideas,” she commented.

“I’m curious to see how he thinks he can fix the deficit,” she added, pointing out it’s a huge problem that will need all the parties working together to solve it.

“It came out of the blue,” he said. “We’re grateful for it.”

Councillor Doug Beffort commented it would help to have feedback from village associations around town.

General Manager of Strategic Initiatives David Arbuckle told Councillor Barb Shaughnessy they have contacted the Ministry regarding any parameters governing the use of the money, but haven’t heard anything. He added staff will stay in touch with the Ministry.

He also told Councillor Rob Mezzapelli it’s not clear if there’s going to be more money coming, but it looks like it’s going to be a one-shot deal.

“It’s not a whole lot of money,” Mezzapelli observed, adding he wouldn’t want to see it all consumed by studies. He would want to see actual work done, adding it’s also important to see it spread all over town.

Arbuckle also told Councillor Nick deBoer he was not aware of any time frame in which the money has to be used.

Mulroney made campaign stop in Caledon last week

By Bill Rea

It was the dying hours of the campaign, but Caroline Mulroney brought her quest for the Ontario Progressive leadership to Caledon last Thursday.

There was an enthusiastic crowd out to greet her at the Caledon Estates Banquet Hall.

Palgrave resident Derek Clark, a member of the board of the Dufferin-Caledon Progressive Conservative Riding Association, acknowledged it was a “very short campaign period.”

“Only one leadership candidate has come to Caledon,” he added, referring to Mulroney.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones as on hand for the event, although she stressed that was not an endorsement of Mulroney’s candidacy.

“I’ve stayed neutral so far,” she observed. “I’m staying neutral.”

She added she thought she had an obligation to be on hand, since the candidate was visiting her riding.

“Here in Dufferin-Caledon, we truly believe we are the centre of the universe,” Jones told the crowd.

Mulroney had praise for Jones, commenting that she represents her riding with great distinction. And as deputy leader, she’s been a force in the party.

Mulroney said the local stop was great opportunity for her to increase her profile, although she admitted she benefits from some name recognition.

“I’m Ben Mulroney’s sister,” she observed.

“It’s time to be bold,” she declared, agreeing she’s new to political life, having only secured the PC nomination in York-Simcoe. “It’s time to be fresh.”

She also said she was anxious to start a new chapter for the party, and was looking forward to sitting with Jones at Queen’s Park, no matter what happened in the leadership race.

“Our party is strong and we’re ready to win,” she declared.

She added she had been knocking on doors and hearing a consistent message.

“Voters are desperate for change at Queen’s Park,” she remarked, citing poll numbers that had been published that day that indicated 81 per cent wanted to see change. “More Ontarians than ever are ready to vote PC.”

Mulroney stressed the need to give leadership people can trust.

She pointed to the example of Premier Kathleen Wynne who has been mortgaging the future of the coming generation. “The Liberals have spent 15 years digging us into quite a hole,” she observed, adding it will take a while to get out of the hole.

“We have got to win,” she told the faithful. “We have got to bring change.”

“I am ready to be that leader to send Kathleen Wynne to a very well-earned retirement.”

Caroline Mulroney brought her campaign for the leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservatives to the Caledon Estates Banquet Halls last Thursday.

Plan of subdivision is being proposed for Mayfield West

PMG Planning Consultants has applied for approval of a draft plan of subdivision and a rezoning that would permit 677 homes being built in Mayfield West.

The proposed development is slated for 12461 McLaughlin Rd. (just north of Mayfield Road). The plan is to include 104 detached houses, 164 semi-detached units, 100 on-street townhouses, 137 rear-lane-way townhouses and a high-density residential block containing approximately 172 apartments. In addition, there are proposals to create a 1.46-hectare village square block, a 1.30-hectare railway buffer block, a one-hectare stormwater management facility and associated access blocks, as well as various blocks for community parks and greenland buffer areas.

The proposed rezoning would change the lands from agricultural to mixed density residential with exceptions, village core commercial with exceptions, environmental policy areas and open space.

The Town of Caledon has announced there is no public meeting scheduled at this time to deal with the proposal. Further notification will be provided of a public meeting once it has been scheduled.

Overdose prevention site in Brampton

Peel HIV/AIDS Network (PHAN) has received short-term funding from the Ontario Ministry of Health and Long Term Care to open and operate an overdose prevention site in Brampton.

PHAN Executive Director Phillip Banks said the site is slated to open April 3 at 257 Main St. in Brampton.

This site is among the first four sites announced by the Province that will receive funding to expand life-saving overdose prevention programs in Ontario.

Services at the site will include drug testing, distribution of sterile drug use equipment and naloxone, self-administered drug use stations under supervision, and critical life-saving assistance in the event of an overdose. The site will also offer responsive and proactive needle sweeps, collection and disposal in the surrounding area by trained peers and volunteers.

“More people died of opioid-related deaths in Peel in three months last summer than in all of 2013,” Banks observed. “Our overdose prevention site will save lives. We look forward to working with community members, elected officials, public health, and other key stakeholders as we implement this urgently needed health service in our region. Our community will be better for it.”

In 2016, there were 46 deaths in Peel involving opioids, compared to 21 deaths in 2013. In the three-month period between May and July 2017 alone, Peel had 23 opioid-related deaths.

“Peel Public Health supports overdose prevention sites as evidence-based measures to prevent death from overdose,” Medical Officer of Health Dr. Jessica Hopkins commented. “As part of its Provincial mandate, Peel Public Health will provide PHAN with support for infection prevention and control, as well as injection and harm reduction supplies, including naloxone for on-site emergency use.”

The funding for this overdose site is for six months.

“PHAN is grateful that the government of Ontario is demonstrating leadership and funding frontline organizations for these temporary sites, however much remains to be done to truly combat our current opioid overdose crisis,” Banks said.

Carmanah Band coming to Orangeville pub next Thursday

By Constance Scrafield

Laura Mina Mitic had a dream, similar to lots of 15-year-old girls, of playing a guitar and singing songs others had written, as well as songs she wrote herself.

She joined amateur bands and discovered that she preferred singing with others to singing by herself. So she dreamed of finding the right musicians, “along the path” with whom to play, a band with whom to work and build a collective career.

Living a couple of years ago in Victoria, B.C., where there is a strong music scene, Mitic met Pat Ferguson at a festival.

“We played together spontaneously,” she related the beginnings of their musical friendship, “and found we really matched. So, we stayed to play together.”

They did gigs at venues, inviting other musicians to join them over the next two years. They met, at different times, Mike Baker and Marek Olsen, and ultimately formed the Carmanah Band, which will visit Orangeville next week as part of an Ontario tour.

“We met and played with other musicians,” she observed. “Over the last couple of years, we got together with Marek and then Mike, and now we’re very excited about performing together.”

The name Carmanah comes from the mighty, uncut rainforest in B.C.’s Carmanah Walbran Provincial Park. It is one of the few remaining ancient forests still protected from logging which, heartbreakingly, is permitted elsewhere on Vancouver Island.

Rich and valuable beyond words, the forest is inhabited with many species of wildlife, birds, bats and insects. When an ancient tree dies naturally and falls, it provides intense regeneration where it lays, for the earth and its inhabitants.

It is in honour of this wonderful forest, the band took its name, calling themselves Carmanah. With this noble connection to nature, they are making a reputation of good music and a very caring approach to their own environmental footprint, in British Columbia and, increasingly, the rest of the country.

Their style of music is “eclectic,” taken form a wide range of music.

“Folk, multiple influences — West Coast Soul, Rock,” Mitic said. “I play the guitar and violin. I do the vocals, but with the band, we sing four-part harmony.”

Their upcoming tour in Ontario celebrates the release of their new album, Speak in Rhythms, which came out in February. During this tour of Toronto, London, Collingwood and Kingsville, they will perform at Orangeville’s Mill Street Pub next Thursday (March 22).

“Then, we fly back to Vancouver in time for the Juno Festival on March 24,” she said. “The Juno’s are held in a different city every year and this time, it’s Vancouver.”

Most of the songs they sing are written by Mitic, on her own and in collaboration with Ferguson. The others contribute to the arrangement of the music, creating such songs as Boxcar, Never Goin’ Back, and Voices Over Water.

Ferguson, who specializes in vocals and guitar, is a self-taught musician, playing in festivals since he was 16.

“What makes his music is his love of playing,” Mitic said. “He doesn’t read music; he just plays everything by ear — wonderfully.”

Of the four, Baker (vocals and keyboard) has the most formal training. He studied keyboard in university, both classical and jazz performance and theory.

“He also did computer sciences,” Mitic commented. “Of us all, he has the most music training.”

Olsen, who does vocals and plays bass, came into the band having played the piano in his early years, but was “really drawn to the bass — he loves the rhythm,” she said.

Nick Laba is the glue — the man on the drums.

Having said all that, Ferguson is also an industrial electrician and has considerable mechanical experience” which he put to use in converting his 1997 Dodge Ram diesel to run on waste vegetable oil, also known as straight vegetable oil (SVO).

Using a two-tank system, one each of diesel fuel and SVO, to which mechanics are connected with the engine, he controls which fuel is pumped as they drive along. It took him the better part of a month to research, buy parts and assemble this arrangement as needed.

The truck has to be started with diesel fuel, but once it’s well warmed up, it can be switched to the SVO, which they get from restaurants as they go along. At the end of the drive, the SVO must be purged from the engine to start the next drive with the diesel.

“This is a lifestyle,” Ferguson said. “It’s not a walk in the park, but it has saved us nearly $10,000 in the last three years, driving nearly 100,000 kilometres, fully loaded with band equipment and six band members (including his dog, Spud).”

For his next project, he is working on a 1972 GM PD4905A Greyhound bus, once again powered with vegetable oil, while also engineering heating, solar and looking for sponsors, to be off grid travelling musicians —with comfort.

As well, in keeping with their concern for the environment, Carmanah is a dedicated member of the Jelly Fish Project. It was originally created by a band that saw a way to capture the attention of students in school presentations to the peril in which the oceans currently exist. Using rock music to open their presentations, the band members go on to talk about the oceans’ problems and what can and must be done about them.

“We talked about our ambitions for the band: to keep our eyes on the road ahead,” Mitic reflected about their future. “Travelling, we meet amazing people. We add to the vegetable oil thinking — we’re very conscious of when we are eating on the road. We never use plastic forks and anything we might throw away.”

All this and a great concert is coming to Orangeville.

Doors open at 6:30 p.m. for the 7 p.m. show. Tickets at $25 will be available at the pub.

Bolton HCD approved

Caledon’s first heritage conservation district, the Village of Bolton Heritage Conservation District (Bolton HCD), is now designated under the Ontario Heritage Act.

The Town of Caledon has announced this allows for new construction or alterations on properties in the District, provided the neighbourhood’s cultural heritage is conserved.

The Ontario Municipal Board approved the HCD designation March 5.

“The Bolton HCD has been established to recognize, protect and enhance the heritage character of the historic village of Bolton,” General Manager of Community Services Peggy Tollet said. “The District includes over 180 properties encompassing the commercial core, the main crossroads of King Street and Queen Street, and portions of the adjacent residential neighbourhoods. The Bolton HCD Plan allows the Town to manage and guide future change in the area.”

Residential and institutional properties within the HCD are eligible for the Town’s Designated Heritage Property Grant Program, which offers annual matching grants to a maximum of $4,000 for small and mid-size restoration and maintenance projects, subject to available funding. The program guidelines and application forms are available at Caledon.ca/heritagegrants

Commercial properties within the HCD may be eligible for a variety of grants under the Bolton Community Improvement Plan, available at Caledon.ca/cip

Pharmacare won't help much

Your recent editorial on pharmacare caused me to wonder if government will ever learn.

Some pundits suggest this is an election ploy by the federal Liberals to stay ahead of the same free lunch being promoted by the NDP. This was a re-election ploy used by Ontario's Liberal government, but even they realized what a financial disaster this will become, so they restricted it to those younger than 25, where it is least needed.

Ontario is spending about 40 per cent of its budget for medicare and is going broke. Of all the countries that offer such schemes, Canada is the first or second biggest spender on a per capita basis, with some of the worst levels of service. I wonder, if they can't keep on top of medicare, how will they ever cope with pharmacare, which will grow out of control due to program creep?

"Soaring" drug costs are noted in the article and will be one of the excuses for more government involvement. The automatic assumption of this statement is that the drug companies are making out like bandits, so bulk buying by government will bring them into line. Brand name pharmaceutical prices have remained on average relatively stable for some time. Copy-cat generic drugs, which government enabled, are much higher in Canada than they are in the U.S., for example, so they could be a reason for the costs going up. However, the reason for "soaring" drug costs may be due to the quantity being used, not their prices. This would be the result of an aging population. Higher usage may mean savings are being made in other areas of medical treatment.

The big drug companies are an easy target for politicians of all stripes, who will claim that when a whole nation's supply is up for grabs, they'll get the best prices. Economics teaches that there is a rule of diminishing returns, which means that once a certain quantity is reached in manufacture, there are no more savings to be had by increasing the volume produced. A byproduct of this price squeezing is that some companies will not bother bidding on the contracts, thus limiting the government's number of suppliers. This can have disastrous results, as happened in Quebec a few years ago when the primary contractor had a fire at their factory, leaving the government scrambling to buy the vaccine they made anywhere they could get it at whatever prices were on offer.

If the feds get into the drug business, I assume the provinces that have such schemes will get out of it. Or perhaps it will shake out like medicare, where the feds get the glory and the provinces have to implement it. This will work out like medicare and the bureaucracy will increase quickly at great cost. And when this doesn't lower costs as expected, the cut-backs will follow. I hope those folks with uncommon conditions and truly staggering drug bills don't get their hopes up, as their's may not be included and the number of votes they represent is low.

Amend the Amendment

Bill Rea's Feb. 22 column on gun violence asked a final question: Who's got a solution?

Well, they may not have had a solution to teenage angst and anger, but the student survivors of the Parkland shootings sure had a solution to the murders of 17 of their classmates and teachers. Ban assault weapons and bump stock accessories, eliminate multi-round magazines, improve and enforce background checks, and raise the age of purchase for any firearm to 21 for starters, immediately.

This will not eliminate teenage bullying and psychopathic behaviour. That takes a societal change in parenting and mental health support. As to the Second Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, it was an Amendment and needs to be amended for the 21st century. When it was written in 1791, the most advanced rifle of the time was the Kentucky long rifle. I say, let every American over 21 carry one of those — no questions asked.

The Amendment was also designed to give the American people a protective militia until such time as the colonies had a standing army. Last time I checked, the U.S. had formed a regular Army after they lost the War of 1812 to the British. And the official U.S. Army we know today was formed in 1917 by the United States War Department. Today the U.S.A. has a National Guard and a standing military and no reason for every NRA loving American to carry an assault rifle. There's a solution.

Rotary Club of Palgrave's Weekly Rotary Minute

By Jim Firth

I just returned from Presidents Elect Training in Markham, invigorated, bursting with ideas and eager to take on my role as President of the Rotary Club of Palgrave at the end of June.

The term is only one year and I look forward to carrying out my mandate and continue our club's vision for the future. Our club underwent a visioning session last year and we are well on our way to identifying the action plans, and generating the members' ideas to implement this year.

Rotary recognizes that people's lives are complex and busy. Gone are the days of mandatory attendance, make up meetings, and even face-to-face meetings. There are some newer clubs called Passport Clubs that meet virtually and organize the fundraisers and volunteer events they want to be involved in together and only get together to discharge those Rotary functions. Some clubs are moving away from weekly meetings to bi-weekly meetings, placing greater emphasis on volunteering in the community, rather than meeting as a group. Many clubs recognize that in order to attract younger members, they have to adopt greater flexibility in their approach to volunteering. It has to fit in with work, kids, sports, home, parents — a daunting task for me as president-elect, but I am ready.

Here at the Rotary Club of Palgrave, we are considering making some exciting changes with our meeting cadence. Come check us out at the Caledon Estates Banquet Hall on a Wednesday evening by signing up at www.rotaryclubofpalgrave.com

Interesting times

These are interesting times as we approach the upcoming provincial election, which is now less than three months away.

Last week, we were told of the results of a new poll which was certainly not good news to the governing Liberals. We were told that poll, conducted by DART Insight, in the middle of last month for Newstalk 1010, revealed that about 81 per cent of respondents want the Grits out of power. According to the results I've read (I was looking at a story in last Thursday's Toronto Sun when I started writing this), the Progressive Conservatives, who as of that point were leaderless, were favoured by 44 per cent, while the New Democrats were backed by 24 per cent, 19 per cent are for the Liberals and 13 per cent favour "other."

I'll work on the assumption the poll is correct. Although polling practices have improved a lot since 1948, when Thomas Dewey was expected to kick Harry Truman out of the American presidency, it is accepted that they carry a margin of error. After all, if polls were always right, Hillary Clinton would be the president today.

Bill Rea

Besides, do these polls really mean anything at a time like this? Granted, election day is not that far off, but there is still lots of time for things to change.

For one thing, like I stated above, the Tories did not, as of last Thursday, have a leader. True, Doug Ford has been elevated to that spot in the days that followed. But there have been plenty of questions raised about the practice that was followed to pick a leader. So no matter who ended up getting the nod, there were sure to be a lot of questions raised about how legitimate this leader is. The Grits and NDP are not dummies. They are going to be asking these questions as often as they can.

As well, have not polls heading into previous provincial elections painted roughly similar pictures? If memory serves, Ontarians were heading into the last campaign with certain assurances that a Tim Hudak government was a distinct possibility. And a couple of years before that, we were anticipating seeing John Tory as Premier. History records that neither scenario played out, and it could happen again.

There is always room for surprises, especially in provincial politics. I don't think many people expected Bob Rae to form a majority government in 1990, and the Liberals were talking with extreme confidence at the start of the 1995 campaign (that was the election in which Mike Harris won the first of his two majorities).

I think there are a lot of people who are not too enthused at the thought of Ford as party leader. But he won the race, and myself and a lot of other people are willing to see what he can do.

And now we're hearing about the upcoming Provincial budget, which is not going to be balanced, despite promises that it would be. Finance Minister Charles Sousa announced last week that we could be looking at a deficit on the order of $8 billion.

So are the governing Wynne Liberals planning to spend a lot of money trying to get votes? It's not that big a deal. It wouldn't be the first time something like this has happened, and you can count on the fact it won't be the last.

Governments of all parties have been using our money to buy votes for years, and that's going to continue

One thing we hear too much about is how the deficit comes in terms of a percentage of Gross Domestic Product (GDP), as if that's supposed to mean something.

Here are the facts. Government is in debt at the provincial and federal levels. As I have often stated, there is nothing wrong with being in debt, as long as there is an exit strategy from that debt. There was a time when I was in debt. Like most people who have ever owned a home, my wife and I had a mortgage. But the payments were well thought out in advance and were manageable. We had an exit strategy from that debt, and indeed, we paid off our mortgage a couple of years earlier than we had anticipated.

Most people approach their debts the same way, and are able to get out of them. True, sometimes things take unexpected turns, and there are some people who get in too deep, but most of us are able to manage things.

The problem is government doesn't look at debt that way. Wynne doesn't have an exit strategy for Ontario's debt (for that matter, Justin Trudeau doesn't have an exit strategy for Canada's debt).

There's the deficit that Sousa might be dropping on us later this month. That's just an addition to the already massive debt we have in place. The average person in the street, who's trying to get by and maintain control of their financial affairs wouldn't dare get themselves into deeper debt if they could avoid it. Government, unfortunately, doesn't see things that way.

And it's a debt that's going to have to be repaid one of these days. Indeed, the debt draws interest charges, that we're already paying. Adding more to the debt means more interest payments.

And this is what is going on as we head into an election

There are poll numbers that are telling certain tales. The government is planning to throw money at projects neither it or we can afford.

It happened today

According to Shakespeare, a soothsayer warned Julius Caesar to "Beware the ides of March," but Caesar ignored the advice.

A Roman general and statesman, Caesar proved to be a shrewd politician, but his rivals feared he was growing too powerful. They ganged up on him and assassinated him this day, March 15, 44 BC.

Local home shows coming soon

Spring appears to be arriving early this year, which is perfect timing for the annual spring home shows being held here in Dufferin-Caledon.

There is something at both of the two local home shows for every interest, age and project. It's also an excellent way to see many of the outstanding local businesses and organizations here in our community under one roof and to learn more about the terrific products and services they offer. Be sure to mark these two not-to-miss events on your April calendar.

The first spring home show taking place in Dufferin-Caledon is the 2018 Lions Home and Garden Show. This show will be taking place from April 6 to 8, at the Orangeville Fairgrounds (247090 Side Road 5, Mono). The show will be open April 6 from 5 to 9 p.m. It will re-open April 7 at 9 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. The last day of the show will be April 8, and it will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission and parking to the show are free.

Visitors to the 21st annual Lions Home and Garden Show can look forward to 220 booths supported by 150 vendors. The vendors can assist you with any spring project you've been thinking about over the long winter months, including renovations, landscaping, gardening, home improvement, etc. Information booths on local services and artisans will also be present at the show. The Orangeville Lions Food Booth will also be returning to serve up delicious burgers, hot dogs, sausage on a bun, as well as French fries. Proceeds from the show assist the Orangeville Lions Club continue the important work they do in our community. For more information on this show, please visit <http://www.orangevillelions.org/lions-home-garden-show> or call 226-790-0623.

The second spring home show taking place in Dufferin-Caledon is the annual Caledon Spring Home Show 2018, hosted by the Caledon Chamber of Commerce. This show will be taking place from April 20 to 22 at the Albion-Bolton Community Centre (150 Queen St. South, Bolton). The show will be open April 20 from 5 to 9 p.m. It will re-open Saturday at 10 a.m. and will close at 6 p.m. The last day of the show will be Sunday, and it will be open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission and parking to the show are free. For more information on this show, please visit <http://caledonchamber.com/services/caledon-spring-home-show> or call the Caledon Chamber of Commerce at 905-857-7393.

There will be many local vendors with impressive displays at the Caledon Spring Home Show that will surely inspire you to finally tackle that spring project you've been thinking about, whether it be something for the house, garden, or yard. Visitors to this home show can benefit from the expertise of the knowledgeable and experienced vendors, while knowing they are supporting local small businesses who contribute so much to our community. There are also many gifts, contests and prizes to be won at this home show.

I will once again have a booth at both of the spring home shows. Please feel free to drop by to say hello and to learn more about federal government services and programs. There will be helpful information, as well as a chance to enter your name in a draw for a beautiful print.

The spring home show season is upon us here in Dufferin-Caledon. I encourage you to visit both the 2018 Lions Home and Garden Show and the Caledon Spring Home Show 2018 taking place next month. They are not to be missed events. There is something for everyone and a wonderful opportunity to support exceptional local businesses and organizations we're very fortunate to have in our community.

Government hiking fees is costing Ontarians and businesses more

The Wynne Liberal government has raised 90 service fees which will cost Ontarians about eight per cent more than last year.

According to the independent non-partisan Financial Accountability Officer (FAO), this is primarily due to a 12 per cent increase in vehicle and driver registration fee revenue. Currently, the province charges more than 400 service, licence and permit fees. The government's increases to fees means it will collect about $200 million more in revenue than last year.

The FAO is the independent budget

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

watchdog of the government and provides reports and analysis of the government's policies.

Of the 97 changes, five are new fees, 90 fees have increased, two have been eliminated and none have decreased. Of particular note, there has been a 12.9 per cent increase in the fees for drivers licences, oversize/overweight licences, the commercial vehicle operator record (CVOR) and driver instructor licence replacements, as well as an eight per cent increase in the cost of a licence plates renewal. In fact, nearly 64 per cent of the money the government collected from fees has come from vehicle and driver registration fees.

The ever-increasing cost of driver's licences and other registration fees is an added burden for Ontario families and drivers. In Dufferin-Caledon and in rural Ontario, people do not have the option of riding the bus. There is no subway system to take individuals in Amaranth, Grand Valley, Mono or Bolton to work. They must drive to make a living.

Another interesting example are the fees that are significantly more expensive than the cost of providing the service they are supposedly paying for. There is a legal requirement for the service fee rate to have a reasonable connection to the cost of the service provided. As an example, the FAO points to the personal property security fee is 16 times larger than the cost of providing the service and the Ontario incorporation/business fees are three times the cost of providing the program.

In the end, this is just another example of the Liberal government's track record of making life more and more unaffordable for families and businesses. Whether it is skyrocketing hydro rates, the housing affordability crisis or increasing fees, the Liberals have consistently proven that their policies are making of life more expensive for families and businesses.

Eating locally to impact the future

By Colleen Cathcart,

Now we are in the third month of 2018, some of you may have followed through with your New Year's resolution, or for some, it may have taken the back burner to life.

There is no shame in that, because I am here to convince you to try something new that will help you and your family in the long-term.

I would like everyone to take what I am about to propose as a challenge rather than a long-term commitment. This challenge may be easier than any other resolution you have tried because your daily life is exactly the same; all you are switching up is where you purchase food.

You may have heard of the 100-mile diet, which requires you to use and eat any goods that are created and produced within 100 miles of your house. My challenge is a little simpler. I ask that you buy foods that are locally produced. Therefore, the products you are buying are directly from the farm rather than chain supermarkets.

A good way to go about this is to try a Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) program. These programs vary. Most provide all your summer vegetables, while others combine efforts with local producers to supply baked goods, bread, eggs, even meats and fruits for you. Some advantages for farmers of running a CSA program are guaranteed income security against unpredictable weather and market uncertainties. You benefit by receiving locally grown, often organic produce that is selected for flavour and freshness.

Some of you may be thinking, well I do shop at the farmers markets, and that is a fantastic start. But in Bolton, they only run during the summer. Most CSAs can supply you with fresh foods during the summer, and some run throughout the entire year.

To participate in a CSA, you need to provide a payment and sign a CSA agreement with the farm. In return they will supply fresh-quality, locally-grown foods for you to pick up every week. The good news is that Bolton has their very own CSA, run by Mount Wolfe Farm located between Bolton and Palgrave.

It is worth trying a CSA because you know where your food is coming from, that it is fresh all year round, it's environmentally conscious, and farms often welcome you to volunteer in cultivating crops. Mount Wolfe Farm offers a workshare program where you contribute time on the farm in exchange for reduced payment, as well as a pastured chicken share, which can be combined or purchased separately from their CSA.

CSAs are especially important to the urban ecosystem of Bolton and the environment because they do not require long distance transportation across seas and borders to reach your dinner table. It will reduce your environmental footprint while supporting local farmers and a greener future. CSA ensure quality healthy food for your family, and teaches your children where food comes from. Knowledge is power and in this case, a healthier future. Will you accept the challenge?

Maple Syrup Festival gets great start at Terra Cotta

BUT HE DOES!

Our brewmaster, Andrew Kohnen, threw away a successful career in logistics to pursue his dream of reconnecting with the brewing roots of his family. This carried him to the UK's prestigious Brewlab in Sunderland, England, where he procured the alchemy that would drive his signature brewing style.

He took what he could from there and ventured to Scotland, Cornwall, and ultimately to Krefeld, Germany, working in the same brewery that had belonged to his ancestors. He came home to Canada for Hockley.
