"He embodied what local journalism is all about - probing and uncovering without subjective filter or prejudice."

He added, "In an age where social media has distorted so much, a guy like Bill Rea stood out as a pillar of common sense, ethical conduct and dogged perseverance. It is hard to imagine Caledon without this man in his rumpled vest, camera slung over his neck and creased notebook in hand. What a profound loss."

Having worked alongside Bill for much of his 35 year career in the busiess, Mark Pavilons paid respect to the reporter and, later, editor, who quickly became a friend. The current editor of the King Weekly Sentinel shared an office with Mr. Rea in Bolton five days a week.

"Bill was meticulous, incredibly intelligent, dedicated and committed to a fault. He would do anything for you," Mr. Pavilons remarked. "The office is not the same at all and I don't know if it ever will cals can donate to if they wish to make a be 'business as usual'."

Municipal class environmental assessment Various locations — structure rehabilitations / replacements

THE STUDY:

As part of the Town of Caledon's growth strategy, the Town has identified a need to consider improvements to its inventory of bridge and culverts as a result increased wear and tear on existing infrastructure through increased traffic use

The Municipal Class Environmental Assessment process (October 2000, as amended in 2007, 2011 & 2015) (Class EA) is approved under the Ontario Environmental Assessment Act and allows municipalities to follow a Class EA process when undertaking municipal infrastructure projects.

The Town has initiated a Schedule 'B' Class EA to consider improvements for the McLaughlin and Innis Lake Bridges. The Schedule B Class EA will evaluate alternative solutions with consideration for the natural, cultural, technical and economic environment, and recommend a preferred solution in consultation with the public. # Norm Foster delivers a barrel of laughs in Screwball Comedy, playing in Orangeville

By Constance Scrafield

It will not matter if you have never watched an old black and white comic film from the late 1930's. There were plenty of them, going back to the silent films in the 1920's as well. Once the talkies and the depression hit the film going world, comedy was the best medicine for ailing times and writers came into their own with snappy dialogue and clever twists.

Hailing back to this exciting and very funny time of film is Norm Foster's 'Screwball Comedy', named after the style of comedy that was prevalent in the '30's. The play opened at Theatre Orangeville on April 5 and runs until April 22. Norm Foster, who attended the Opening Night on the 5th, was observed laughing as hard as any member of the audience, and well he should have.

He commented later- "With this cast it's so funny – they have really jelled. Their timing is perfect!"

The cast does indeed weave the magic: Mairi Babb as the ambitious young journalist, Mary Hayes, who is trying to knock her way into the big time; Melanie Janzen works it with three roles, costume and wigs changes in a hurry, still elegant comthe funniest if you can; Adrian Shepherd as the suave, vain, man about town, top hat journalist with all the moves for seduction, Jeff Kincaid; and Stephen Sparks doing the quick change, quick hair with four contrasting roles – can he keep them to Peter Terwilliger (Sparks #4) straight? Yes, he can.

And now, folks, for a synopsis: the editor of a big city newspaper, Bosco (Sparks

THE STUDY:

The Town of Caledon has initiated a study to address concerns related to stormwater flows in the Area of Study below. The study will be undertaken as an Environmental Assessment (EA). This EA will develop, evaluate, and recommend preferred alternatives for the remediation of stormwater management concerns at the affected sites. To determine the nature of the problem, an inventory of the local physical, natural, and social environment will be completed. Once the problems are fully understood, a set of alternative solutions will be developed and presented to the public and regulatory agencies for comment.

AREA OF STUDY:

Opportunities will be explored for stormwater management to address flows from Norton Boulevard reaching Meadowvale Court and to address stream erosion of Jaffary's Creek adjacent to Connaught Crescent.

changes that require different forms of housing and planning ahead is critical. Planning ahead will allow you to implement your choice of housing resulting in piece of mind for everyone.

Depending on the level of care required there are many options for new living arrangements. Here are a few to consider:

Social housing includes rent levels that are: Market and Subsidized rent. Peel Living has five to choose from-Bolton-Riverview Terrace, Stationview Place and Jane St.

Retirement Residences

Provide care accommodations for seniors. They are not subsidized by the government. Generally, retirement residences designed for seniors who need minimal to moderate support with their daily living activities. These settings enable residents to live as independently as while providing possible, certain services and social activities. Caledon is excited to have Bolton Mills Retirement Community in the development phase-expected to be completed in the fall. "I am thrilled Caledon residents will have options to remain where they have resided for years."

Long Term Care Centres

Designed for people who require 24-nursing care and supervision within a secure setting. All Long Term Care Centres operate in accordance with Ministry of Health. Subsidized funding is available. One must be accessed by LHIN (Local Different phases of life bring Health Intregation Network. CCAC). (previously Bolton offers the Vera Davis Centre and King Nursing Home presently.

Condo Living

It may just mean the senior can no longer maintain their home and manage the bills so moving to a condominium provides a more manageable lifestyle and also deals with a senior feeling isolated. Many buildings have security and seem to be geared towards senior living and therefore have social functions and "get together" to promote socialization and friendship. Rivers Edge on Ann Street in Bolton is a perfect example of luxury condo living.

Often people have accumulated an abundance of items with many emotional attachments and the thought of dealing with the removal of these items is genuinely overwhelming. Some seniors are fortunate to have family support to help with this decision process. Receiving support and guidance through this transition can play a crucial role in how one adjusts.

Once it has been determined the senior needs/wants to re-locate you may want to consider hiring a Senior Move Manager to assist the senior and their family through this often overwhelming transition.

A Senior Move Manager specializes in downsizing and moving for seniors and is committed to simplifying the process by applying years of experience, knowledge and resources to guide seniors and their families through every step of the move. "Seniors and their families can then spend quality time together without having to worry about any of the details of the move."

Ward Winner Tells Real Estate Secret

Kevin Flaherty, a local Realtor with iPro Realty Ltd. Brokerage, has been awarded iPro's overall top sales award over 950 other Realtors for the 8th consecutive year.

Surprising, Mr. Flaherty says the reason for winning the awards are more important than the awards themselves.

According to the National Association of Realtors (NAR), 96% of buyers will first be introduced to your home online. Buyers will then shortlist it based on what the homes online representation leads them to believe the home has to offer. Mr. Flaherty says that "online representation" breaks into two primary areas; how much information on the home can be obtained online in an engaging manner (i.e. professional high-quality video narrated 3D animated online showing) and how many places can it be found online.

"Essentially, what buyers are doing, is finding their next home online," said Mr. Flaherty. "Your home is then tried and convicted online; that is the secret that most Realtors don't want you to know."

He believes that 9 out of 10 buyers shortlist which homes they are interested in, right online. "It is your Realtor's job to ensure that all of the home's key features and benefits are clearly understood online" he said. "If your Realtor fails to do this, your house could be dismissed as being overpriced."

"The thing the public generally misconceives about Realtors is that they are employees of a brokerage when in fact Realtors operate as independent contractors. The type of marketing a seller receives has a lot more to do with the Realtor they choose than the brand of the brokerage". He said. "What a Realtor does is up to the individual, which means you could interview ten Realtors from the same company and get ten different answers on what they are going to do to market your home."

There was a case in Orangeville where the sellers had been trying to sell their home for 328 days with two different brokerages. Immediately upon the listing expiring, the sellers listed with Kevin Flaherty and got three offers within two weeks and sold for $10,000 over their asking price. Those stories go on and on, he said. "They [the sellers] didn't start doing their homework on researching Realtors until it became critical for them because of the belief that all Realtors are generally the same." Nothing could be further from the truth, he said.

"Simply go online and look at any listing and assess what you think of the marketing for it, then look at any one of my listings and you will see what I am talking about."

Mr. Flaherty's personal team consists of eight marketing experts (not Realtors) in various fields including; professional photography, graphic design, narration, videography, 3D animation, floor plans, search engine optimization/syndication, internet data mining, and even a drone pilot with a full commercial pilots license. Mr. Flaherty says he has nine Realtors that also work with him, but they are not part of his marketing team. The entire team of 18 people work from Kevin's private iPro Realty offices located at 170 Lakeview Court Orangeville.

Mr. Flaherty's team provides custom web pages for each listing that contains a video narrated 3D animated online showing, 3D floor plan images, 2D floor plans with measurements, aerial photos/video, detailed maps, and then syndicates the home's representation to 57 places online for maximum exposure. Mr. Flaherty's team also utilizes advanced marketing strategies which include internet data mining, machine learning, and predictive analytics. This helps Mr. Flaherty's of that marketing definitely without a doubt becomes extremely powerful."

Mr. Flaherty says that if you list your home and it's not selling, it's only one of two things; it's either the marketing or the price. It can be a combination of these things but it's only these. If you call up your Realtor and ask him/her why your home is not selling, it is highly unlikely you will hear it's because they have poor marketing, but rather you will be told the problem is your price.

"It seems to me that sellers are often willing to drop their price by tens of thousands of dollars until their home sells, rather than do their homework and research the difference in real estate

1990's. "It didn't do a lot for me then, but since that time it has become everything, and it's essential to stay up to date with online marketing and it's best practices, which change constantly." He added "We on the Flaherty Team believe in challenging the status quo, we do that through the use of 8 marketing specialists and the strategic application of innovative technologies that help get our sellers more money faster and easier, and with less inconvenience to them."

Mr. Flaherty has been in the real estate business for 30 years and he commented that the industry itself hasn't evolved much since the 1990's with respect to what Realtors do. People have a tendency to think industry's naturally evolve with technology. That's just not true said Mr. Flaherty. People in the industry must evolve with it and customers must demand more advanced services, otherwise nothing changes

Mr. Flaherty stated that another benefit of the detailed video narrated 3D animated online showing is a reduction of unnecessary traffic through your home. "The feedback my team receives from buyers is that they know more about the house online from my online showing than actually going to the house." This gives the house and it's features far more exposure, which is why we can sell homes on average 52% faster and for more money", he said. "When a buyer shows up for the first time to one of my listings, it's like a second showing," he said. "If you saw one of my home's custom web pages and the level of information and detail we present, do you think you would need to go see the home if you weren't interested?" he said.

"Bottom line, it's a lot of hard work but it pays off for my sellers. At the end of the day it has been proven people get more money faster with my exclusive Home Selling System Team." The fact that's it easier with less inconvenience (i.e. fewer showings) to them is a bonus.

This system has become so popular that in order to keep up with the demand Mr. Flaherty had to hire nine Realtors to work with him and is even now planning on more marketing/production staff beyond the eight he already has working exclusively with him.

Kevin says "the one-man show in Real Estate will soon be a thing of the past." "It's already starting to change. iPro Realty Ltd. is the first brokerage I know of to offer concierge marketing services for its individual Realtors. Other Realtors with iPro have access to professional floor planners, photographers, and graphic designers, and is the first evidence we see of a Real Estate brokerage evolving to assist its individual Realtors with competing in the digital age".

team understand who the buyers are for different locations and price ranges. Mr. Flaherty said "We frequently have between 600 and over 1,000+ buyers for any home we list". Mr. Flaherty's team then "remarkets" the home's online showing to those buyers. That means that when those buyers are online, homes listed by Mr. Flaherty that match that buyer's criteria will appear to them in many different locations online. Although untraditional and salary based, two of his marketing team hold a license to trade in real estate and they work shifts 7 days a week contacting those buyers directly who are most likely to purchase homes listed by the Flaherty team.

"The home's custom web page ties directly into the Multiple Listing Service (MLS) and his syndication network so that with one click, home buyers can be on the home's custom web page that contains all the high-end information," said Mr. Flaherty

"The online representation of your house is absolutely critical, it's not a nice feature, it's not a cool benefit. It is the beginning and the end, it's incredibly important"

"Basically we take a great representation of a house then syndicate it to 57 places online and remarket it to pre-identified buvers. The impact services offered by different Realtors." he said. To help with this, industry experts have prepared a list of 10 questions you should ask a Realtor before listing your house. For a FREE copy of these these questions simply call 1-855-912-6913 and enter ID Code 8110.

The other huge misconception when it comes to getting top dollar is that when a home goes on MLS it is "on the market". The MLS system is not the market. In fact, "placing a home on MLS with substandard marketing is one of the fastest ways to cause damage to a home's value" said Mr. Flaherty. If a home is placed on MLS and it doesn't sell, that history can never be erased. When a buyer learns that a home has been sitting on MLS without selling, they immediately believe something may be wrong with it and even if interested, will offer a lot less. This problem is solved by both pricing the home properly to begin with and most importantly, ensuring the home's features and benefits receive mass exposure quickly right online. Mr. Flaherty said that his team still places his client's listings on MLS, however, it is done in a very strategic way.

This system has been evolving since the mid 1990's. He said. He was one of the first Realtors in Canada to be predominant online in the mid-

Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson Town of Caledon

Bill was a friend of the people of Caledon, a keen observer of all things political and supporter of all things community related. I will miss his wit, his story telling, his reminiscing on past events. My heart goes out to Beth, I cannot express in words how sorry I am for her loss.

Coun. Barb Shaughnessy Town of Caledon

I will always remember Bill's dry wit, determined work ethic and pure professionalism. The Citizen is known as a true community paper covering what matters most to our residents, fairly and respectfully. The Citizen's reputation is no doubt a direct reflection of Bill's tireless efforts. My deepest condolences to Beth and their family.

Coun. Jennifer Innis Town of Caledon

'Community Bill' will be missed. Residents often commented on how dedicated he was to attend their meetings and provide such excellent coverage of items of local interest. I will miss his sense of humour and his tiny blue camera that I called his Fisher Price, always with a retort from Bill. Rest in Peace.

Bill Rea has been at the centre of journalism in Caledon for as long as I can remember. His fairness and objectivity were always a hallmark of his reporting, giving his readers the news with balance and insight. Bill's great sense of humour was infectious. He always made such an outstanding effort to be at everything taking place in the community, which was easy to see in his reporting.

David Tilson MP Dufferin-Caledon

Bill was a thoroughly professional journalist who shadowed me for much of my career - always cheerful, always accurate and always fair. He embodied what local journalism is all about, probing and uncovering without a subjective filter or prejudice. In an age where social media has distorted so much, a guy like Bill Rea stood out as a pillar of common sense, ethical conduct and dogged perseverance. It is hard to imagine Caledon, or King, without this man in his rumpled vest, camera slung over his neck and creased notebook in hand. What a profound loss.

Garth Turner Former MP for Halton and Halton-Peel

Bill was meticulous, incredibly intelligent, dedicated and committed to a fault. He would do anything for you. The office is not the same at all and I don't know if it will ever be "business as usual." Bill Rea was one of a kind in many ways. He made the world a more interesting place and for that fact alone, I will miss him dearly.

Bill was always a champion of life here in the high schools, never missing an event, be it Parents' night, Football games or studentrun events. I can recall the times that I have driven the floats for RF Hall in the Bolton and Caledon Village Santa Clause parades and there would be Bill, walking the entire length of the parade, getting shots of the parades. He was a tireless worker and a good friend to Robert F. Hall and he will be missed dearly.

It is with deep sadness that I, members of Caledon OPP Detachment, and the Caledon community, mourn the sudden passing of Bill Rea. Bill has always been a consummate professional, attending and reporting thoroughly and impartially on any and all newsworthy events happening in the Caledon community. With his notepad and his two cameras, Bill always had a quick smile and a kind word for people before he would get down to the serious business of news reporting. Bill's professionalism and presence will be missed in the community.

Bill Rea was a fantastic supporter and champion of Caledon Meals on Wheels. He was always there to write about and report on our cause. He will always be remembered and truly missed by all who knew him.

Bill, every day you walked into the office and you'd say 'Did you We are deeply saddened to hear of the passing of Bill Rea. He miss me?' or 'I'm back'. Well, all I can say now is that I will miss was very much welcome and appreciation. Faithfully and inconspicuously he covered a number of Teen Ranch events over the years, snapping great photos and following up with excellent editorials. Just over a week ago, we were blessed to have Bill here at the Easter Round Up once again. May God give all those wrapped up in the bundle of life with Bill incomprehensible peace now and in the days to come.

Our club is saddened by Bill's passing and we extend our heartfelt condolences to his wife and family. Bill was a great supporter of Rotary, showing up at all of our events to take pictures, with the big honking black camera slung around his neck, and "the one that works" tucked into his pocket. No matter the time of year, or the weather, Bill was there.

Janet Clark Rotary Club of Palgrave

It is with a very heavy heart to learn of the passing of Bill, he was a true gentleman who supported the fire services by being fair and respectful. We could always count on Bill to attend our events while promoting critical fire safety information to make the Town of Caledon a safer place to live and work. On behalf of all Caledon Fire and Emergency Services personnel, thank you Bill. You will be sincerely missed.

Fire Chief Drew Bailey Caledon Fire and Emergency Services

It was with great sadness that we learned of Bill Rea's passing.

Bill Rea was not only a stalwart of the newspaper, who for decades loyally served the readers and residents of Caledon and King, but was the ever-present voice of all things local.

His passion for journalism was equal to his passion for the community. He was deeply skilled in traditional news-gathering and a gentleman who recognised hard work. Indeed, his work ethic was legendary in the business; his story count at various events across the community was so phenomenal, it left many wondering if he had a twin (or, ever slept?).

Bill had an intelligent wit, was generous and warm-hearted and along with his adored wife, Beth, garnered the deepest respect of the community. Through his written words and photographs, Bill was able to connect us all and remind us of the importance of our local and day-to-day world.

While a vital voice of the community has been lost, Bill will always remain alive in the memories of those whose lives he touched. Working with Bill was an absolute privilege and I am honoured to have counted him as a friend.

> Last year's winners were Dr. Stephen Milone, an anesthetist at the hospital, and Dr. Stephanie Milone, an emergency physician. They were the first joint recipients in the award's history. The couple have been practising medicine at HHCC for more than a decade. It was their continued efforts in community service contributions, which include volunteering, educating, mentoring and leading numerous fundraising initiatives supporting the local community, that led to their receiving the award.

> Other previous award recipients have been selected for advocacy in many areas, including improving accessibility, fundraising and volunteer leadership with local organizations, improving long-term care, recruiting physicians, establishing after-hours clinics and promoting violence prevention.

The deadline for the Dr. David Scott Award nominations is Friday, May 4. The award will then be presented at HHCC's annual general meeting on June 19.

Town Council seeking all-day parking in Bolton core

By Bill Rea

There's a desire to restore all-day parking on Queen Street in the Bolton Core.

But disagreement on how to go about it led to a sometimes heated discussion among Caledon councillors last week.

Councillor Rob Mezzapelli put forth the motion, but Councillor Annette Groves seemed to think the request to Peel Region was a little pushy.

The current rules allow for parking on both sides of the street, except at rush hour. Parking is banned in the southbound lanes during morning drive, and in the south from 4 to 7 p.m. Those restrictions were introduced about 15 years ago.

Mezzapelli's motion, which was passed last week as councillors sat in committee, called on the Town to ask Peel Region to re-implement all-day parking there. It also called on Town staff to evaluate the impact on residents, traffic and business, and to report back with their findings. As well, the motion called on the Town volumes. to continue working with the Region to make sure all the recommendations of the Bolton Transportation Master Plan are implemented.

As well, Mezzapelli observed there considerable public consultation into the development of the master plan.

"Bringing back full-time parking will support local businesses, lower speeds making the core safer, encourage through traffic ti utilize the bypass, all making the core a more people-friendly environment,"

"This is a really important one for me," Mezzapelli told his colleagues, adding he had received requests for this action from both residents and the business community. "It is entirely justified."

He added the only negative involved in this would be increasing travel time for people trying to get through the village. But he pointed out there are already traffic signals on Queen doing that, adding all-day parking will probably lower traffic

And slowing traffic down will also benefit pedestrians and cyclists.

"I think that is the vision everyone wants for Bolton," he remarked.

30 PEOPLE WITH HEARING LOSS

Qualified Participants Needed for Technology Field Test

We're looking for people like you, who may be experiencing difficulty hearing in noisy environments to evaluate a remarkable new digital hearing gid[1] and a rehabilitative process that could be the solution to your difficulties. There's no cost or obligation to participate!

Call us toll-free today to see if you qualify for this Field Test. Potential candidates will be given a FREE hearing test to determine their candidacy.

Selected participants will be given a FREE in-office demonstration and the opportunity to evaluate the latest, most advanced hearing aid technology for 30 days. This latest digital technology solves the biggest challenge for hearing aid wearers – hearing well in noisy environments.

Nobody will notice it because of its minute size, fitting snugly and comfortably just behind the ear. Everything works automatically, so you can get back to enjoying your relationships, rather than thinking about your hearing.

New face at Citizen

I'm the new kid in the neighborhood. The one Rick Mitchell mentioned in his goodbye to Tanya last week.

Actually, I'm not that new to the area. I've been working for the Bolton Enterprise (the competition) since the end of February, so I have met some of you. As Rick mentioned, I just finished my journalism course at Humber College. Part of the course required me to intern at an actual newspaper, in this case, the Enterprise.

So, here I am, working my first weekend for the Citizen, and starting to appreciate the difference between school and the real world. The big change concerns the fact that it's one thing to have one of your instructors read your work; it's something else to have your BOSS read it. You hand him your story, and then sit back, trying to remember if you misspelled any words.

This wasn't much of a surprise, actually. I knew I was going to have these feelings the day I was hired. The question which ran through my mind, therefore, was what's the best way to handle them.

One of the answers was the obvious one. Make a good first impression. Be

That solution, however, just created another problem. Is it best to be super early for your first day on the job, or would it be better to walk through the door, spot-on, at 9 a.m. After a great deal of contemplation, I decided to be, if nothing else, predictable. I would show up at the time expected.

Off I went, last Wednesday morning, from my home in Toronto, for the first day of my career. My timing was perfect, as I walked down the nine steps from the street to the office door at exactly 9. I reached for the door handle, and tugged.

You guessed it. The door was locked. I was the first one there. So much for my good first impression. What's the point of trying to impress people with your punctuality, if no-one is there to see how punctual you really are?

I walked back up the nine steps, wondering what to do now. As I started walking south on Queen Street, lugging my two bulging briefcases, a camera and my lunch, a car pulled up in front of the office. Paul Forsyth got out and disappeared down the stairs. I got through the front door simply by following him.

I guess it's the same with every company. When a new person joins the staff, no-one really knows what to do with him on the first day. Pat Middlebrook solved suggested I sit at his desk.

About half an hour later, Rick walked in to find the newest employee seated in his large, official-looking and, I might add, extremely comfortable chair. I looked up, grinned rather sheepishly, and in my best Mike Stivic voice said, "Get out of the chair, right?

That was the first of several chairs I was chased out of that day. Welcome to the real world, Bill.

In the coming weeks, you will be seeing my name, looking at my pictures and, I hope, reading my stories in the Citizen. The part I'm really looking forward to is writing these weekly columns. Rick has told me there are no restrictions on what I write about, provided I don't commit libel. These pieces, therefore, will be a mixture of my personal opinions, anecdotes from my past, and discussions of things which concern us all. Some of them will involve Caledon directly; others won't.

In these days of rapid communication, we are spectators to events happening all over the world. No matter how far from Caledon they are, they are important. Whether it's who becomes Canada's next Prime Minister, Ronald Reagan trying for another term in the White House. or what Mrs. Thatcher does about Moammar Khadafy, these are things of importance and interest to the world. Caledon is part of that world. It can even be said to be an important part, because that is where we live or work.

I intend to address some of these issues, from time to time.

The prospects of the job are exciting, and a little scary. Part of the problem is that I'm stepping into Tanya Lebans' shoes. Tanya is a person who is well-respected in this area, and with good reason. Taking over from her makes me feel like a coach taking over a championship team. I'm constantly asking myself if I can handle it.

The situation isn't all bad, though. During that first day, before Tanya kicked me out of her chair, I noticed a poem lying on her desk. I assumed it was hers, until I noticed copies of the same poem in various places throughout the office.

I don't know who wrote it, but it's called "State of Mind" "If you think you are beaten, you are. If you think you dare not, you don't. If you'd like to win, but think you can't, It's almost a cinch that you won't. If you think you'll lose, you've lost. For out in the world you'll find Success begins with a fellow's will, And it's all a STATE OF MIND."

Digging through the archives at the Caledon Citizen, we found an interesting piece announcing Bill Rea's arrival in the community, dated May 2, 1984! Bill would spend the next 34 years largely managing the newsroom at the Citizen.
