Allan Thompson will be next mayor of Caledon

By Bill Rea

Allan Thompson will be the seventh mayor of the Town of Caledon.

Thompson, 53, collected 7,822 votes in Monday's municipal election, according to figures (still unofficial) released by the Town. That was good for 48.48 per cent of the total vote.

Former councillor Ian Sinclair was second with 3,091, followed by Gary Cascone with 2,898 and former councillor Nancy Stewart with 2,199. Bolton resident George Niras had registered to run, but stopped his campaign with a couple of weeks to go. His name remained on the ballot, however, and he collected 123 votes.

Thompson is going to see some new faces at the council table, especially at the Regional seats.

Jonathan

took the seat as Ward 2's representative on Peel Regional council, the seat Thompson vacated to run for mayor.

In Ward 1, Barb Shaughnessy defeated veteran incumbent Richard Paterak. In Wards 3 and 4, Jennifer Innis topped veteran Richard Whitehead. And in a close contest in Ward 5, Annette Groves frustrated Patti Foley's bid for a second term as Regional rep by just 79 votes.

As far as the area council races were concerned, it was a good night for the incumbents. Doug Beffort, Gord McClure, Nick deBoer and Rob Mezzapelli were all returned for another term.

Only figures for Caledon were available at press time, but they put Frank Di Cosola in the lead for another term as trustee for Caledon and Dufferin County on the Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board.

Thompson spent the first part of the evening in the Council Chambers in Town Hall waiting for results to be reported. They were slow coming in, with the first results going on the screen shortly before 9 p.m. They had Thompson with a little more than 50 per cent of the vote, and he hovered around that figure the rest of the evening. But by 9:30, it was pretty obvious that he had won. Thompson then moved to the Royal Ambassador Event Centre, where he entered his victory party, accompanied by his family, with the band playing For He's a Jolly Good Fellow.

"The team did it," he told his supporters. But he also stressed there is a lot of work still to be done. "I've heard it loud and clear that we have to change a few things, and we will do that," he declared, adding they will improve customer service through a team approach. Thompson expressed appreciation for the work over the years of the councillors who were defeated, and welcomed the new faces on council. "We've all been elected by the people, and it's my job to make it work, and we will make it work," he promised. "The big word is 'we.'"

One promise, which he said had not been in his platform, was to bring high-speed internet to Caledon, and he said he was going to be working on that. He stressed the important part of the evening in the Council Chambers in Town Hall waiting for results to be reported. They were slow coming in, with the first results going on the screen shortly before 9 p.m. They had Thompson with a little more than 50 per cent of the vote,

Think of HomeJames when out celebrating over the holidays

By Bill Rea

It's getting close to that time of the year for holiday revelry, meaning it's also time to think about how to get home if the celebrating has gone too far.

HomeJames can be the answer. The program has been running a number of years in Caledon. People can phone the dispatch centre if they fear they've had too much to drink. A team of three will respond and get the client, his or her passengers and their car home safe.

Broadcaster Tayler Parnaby is running the program this year with Bernie Rochon. Parnaby said it will be starting Nov. 14, and will run Friday and Saturday evenings until the end of December, plus New Year's Eve, which falls on a Wednesday this year. It will be based out of Humber River Hall (formerly the Bolton branch of the Royal Canadian Legion).

As in past years, they are going to need volunteers; on the order of 150 to 200.

Parnaby said it's encouraging that they have been hearing from more younger people interested in volunteering, so the message must be getting out. There are lots of tasks to be performed, including driving, registration, displacing, manning the phones, arranging the food, etc.

This cause is one that's special to Parnaby. He recalled his early days in broadcasting, reading public service announcements from the Ontario Safety League. And then there was the day he heard sirens, and later learning they had been headed to the scene of an accident in which several young people, including a friend he skied with, had been killed.

When he started working in Toronto, he started getting involved in such groups as the Toronto Safety League, and was eventually asked to be honorary chair of a group known as Operation Red Nose.

"I volunteered," he said.

Parnaby said he's always been volunteering, to "give back to the community in one fashion or another."

"This one seemed like a decent fit with my interests," he added.

This year's HomeJames program has a new website (www.homejames-caledon.ca), which contains lots of information on how to volunteer, including access to the forms.

"It's totally interactive," he said.

There will also be a registration night Nov. 6 at Humber River Hall, starting at 6 p.m.

tance of helping people who want to work from home.

"That's what the public wants," he said. "We, as the public, need it."

There are going to be other things requiring the attention of council.

"I think the election was the easy part," he told the crowd. "We now have work to do."

"Together, we're going to do great things here in Caledon," he added.

Sinclair had been at Town Hall watching the results come in, and was there to congratulate the victor.

There was no sign of bitterness in his voice as the results of the election became clear.

"Allan is highly liked by a lot of people, including me," he commented.

He also observed the number of new faces on council will be a good thing, although he agreed it will take some sorting out.

"I'm hoping for some more friendliness from council overall, and I'm hoping they don't pick disastrous fights with developers," he added.

Sinclair also had words of praise for his campaign team, but acknowledged he wasn't too surprised by the outcome.

"I knew I was running second the whole time," he said.

Cascone, who spent the evening in Bolton, was almost philosophical in his reaction.

"It is what it is," he remarked, adding the results were what the voters wanted.

"I wish Allan the best," he said. "He's a nice guy."

"No bitter grapes. None of that stuff," he added. "When you run for public office, you have to respect the wishes of the people."

Addressing the council races, Cascone said he wasn't surprised to see Shaughnessy's election.

"I think Barb Shaughnessy is a really terrific choice," he declared.

He added he knew the race between Groves and Foley was going to be close.

Cascone also said this will be his last campaign.

"Entrepreneurs very rarely do this," he explained.

Efforts to contact Stewart by phone were unsuccessful, but she did email a statement to the Citizen Tuesday.

"I consider last night a win for myself and supporters," she stated. "I entered this campaign barely six weeks ago because I care deeply about the future of Caledon."

"With my track record of taking on difficult projects and succeeding, I wanted to offer the voters of Caledon an alternative," she added. "To tackle the current problems with large tax increases, communication and red tape, and move Caledon in the right direction. To provide a full and frank discussion of the issues. We accomplished that."

"We did make a difference," she concluded. "We take pride in that. I thank my supporters ever so much. I couldn't have done it without them!"

Allan Thompson accepted congratulations from opponent Ian Sinclair in at Town Hall Monday night.

Hawks4Hunger Massive Food Drive Nov. 8 and 9

The Hawks4Hunger Program is back again for its third year.

The program is working, and people in the community are asked to contribute what they can.

This homegrown initiative of the Caledon Hawks Rep Hockey Association is very simple — minor hockey teams raise food and funds to help support the local area food bank. A surprise to most, but Caledon does need a well stocked food distribution centre, despite the relative affluence of the area. The Exchange on Healey Road in Bolton will act as a facility where food security will be integrated into a broader curriculum of nutrition and wellness promotion.

For the 2014-15 season, the Hawks are once again partnering with the Mississauga Steelheads and Caledon Community Services to help alleviate poverty.

All Hawk Rep teams have been challenged to collect more food and/or cash donations for the newly designed Exchange for 2014.

The Hawks' drive will be at the Don Sheardown Memorial Arena in Bolton Nov. 8 and 9. Items in high demand are canned chicken, ham, turkey and fish; canned fruits and vegetables; sauces for pasta; cereal; oatmeal; peanut butter and jams; juice boxes; coffee and tea; toiletries; shampoo; conditioner; dental floss; saran; ziploc bags; aluminum foil and bathroom tissue, and cash is always appreciated as are grocery gift cards.

Any contributions (with receipts) of more than $20 will be allocated a tax slip.

The association's goal is to surpass past figures of 42,000 pounds in 2012 and 51,000 pounds in 2013.

For more information about the event, contact Maria Ellis at ellis-ellis@sympatico.ca

Police had 84 trucks pulled off road in blitz

Caledon OPP joined forces with police from Peel, Halton and York Regions, as well as Toronto and Orangeville, along with staff from the Ministry of Transportation last month for a two-day commercial safety motor vehicle blitz in town. The blitz was conducted Sept. 24 and 25, and police report 200 vehicles were inspected.

The result was 72 document charges, 59 defective equipment charges, six suspended or unlicensed drivers, 37 other charges under the Highway Traffic Act, 17 charges under the Compulsory Automobile Insurance Act Charges, one dangerous goods charge, 73 warnings, 84 vehicles placed out of service and 20 had their plates removed.

"The number of vehicles placed out of service is still concerning, and we will continue to ensure compliance through education, awareness and enforcement strategies," commented Inspector Tim

Melanson, detachment commander at Caledon OPP. "This two-day blitz with our neighbouring municipal services emphasizes the importance of co-operation between enforcement agencies to ensure commercial motor vehicle safety on our roadways."

Alton Fire Hall hosts the community

Sparky was an honoured guest at last Saturday's open house.

The Alton firefighters hosted their annual open house last Saturday, inviting the community in. The activities included a pancake breakfast. Firefighter Brian Ewles and Captain Don Rea were busy at the grill.

Wrapping the community in courage for Woman Abuse Prevention Month

Scotiabank Bolton last week took part in the launch of the Wrapped in Courage purple scarf campaign, in support of Woman Abuse Prevention Month recognized in Ontario each November.

The Wrapped in Courage purple scarf campaign is to show support for the many women who have experienced or are experiencing domestic violence; and let them know they are not alone.

The goal is to sell as many scarves as possible throughout the campaign. Scarves are available at Healthetica, Amped Nutrition and Bodhi Wellness, as well as at the Bolton bank branch. Scotiabank has agreed to match all sales up to $5,000 at the end of the campaign. Scarves are $15 and all proceeds will support Family Transition Place (FTP) programs and services.

FTP's Manager of Development and Community Relations Stacey Tarrant used the occasion to announce the agency will be running a seven-week series, posting items of information on their website (<http://familytransitionplace.ca>) on how people can get involved in the combating violence against women. She said the conclusion of the series is scheduled coincide with Dec. 6, which will be the 25th anniversary of the Montreal massacre at the École Polytechnique, in 14 women were shot and killed.

Tarrant said FTP's shelter facilities are at capacity.

"People have no idea," she observed. "It's still a taboo subject."

She added during November, they are hoping to be able to reach out to those who could help the most.

You voted for a Caledon that maintains control of its destiny in every important way that reflects our values and what we hold dear. The reason we have chosen to make Caledon our home.

Caledon will move toward the future balancing the distinct needs of our variety of wonderful communities, agricultural and equestrian lands, businesses and our natural heritage which abounds. Beyond geography, we have communities formed from shared interests that stretch across the Town.

We will work together to ensure that each of these groups and each area of the Town of Caledon thrives.

-  Responsible, long-term view of infrastructure and transportation that ensures that it is affordable and meets today's needs and the needs of future generations.

I sincerely thank the first-rate team that has come on this election journey and each past election with me. Tonight's result is made especially sweet by sharing it with all of them and with my family -- my wife Anne, daughter Julia, son James, my parents Roy and Heather Ann and my brother David, his wife Jackie and their family.

So let's get to work. I'm excited by the prospect of unleashing the power within as we create our vision and move steadily toward building a sustainable Caledon for ALL of us to enjoy.

My sincere and heartfelt thank you for your vote of confidence.

Frightapalooza hits scary notes at Alton Mill

Alton Mill was a busy place again Sunday with a family festival to celebrate this scary time of year. There were all sorts of fun a creative activities going on at Frightapalooza. Brooke Freingruber, 13, and Paige Angot, 11, of Alton were busy decorating pumpkins. What would an event like Frightapalooza be without face painting? Volunteer Richanith Heng was working on a scary design for Karina Kirsten, 8, of Bolton. Carola Little of Shelburne was manning this butcher shop. Clare Magee combined music and story telling to entertain young and old.

Put your clocks back an hour on Sunday, November 2, 2014 and, while you're at it, change the batteries in your smoke alarms and carbon monoxide alarms, too!

Quick Tips:

Alarms can be electrically powered, battery powered, or a combination of both. If you are installing electrically powered alarms, it is recommended that they have a battery back-up in case of power failure.

Carbon Monoxide (CO) alarms are now required near all sleeping areas, in all service rooms and adjacent to all sleeping areas in multi-residential units.

Athlete, advocate and author Carole Staveley prescribes steps to be your own Health Champion

By Brittany Spencer

Every so often, certain people come along that possess the ability to inspire through their stories of personal victory over seemingly insurmountable odds.

Carole Staveley, a woman formerly restrained by the painful grips of a rare muscular condition who in 2012 crossed the finish line to become an official ironman triathlete, is the proud owner of one of these stories.

Staveley has turned her experiences of personal triumph into a philosophy of health and wellness that she shares in her book Not Lying Down: How I Conquered Years of Pain to Triumph at the Finish Line.

Her book includes nine steps to becoming your own Health Champion, which were inspired by her own deeply personal stories of the challenges and successes she faced in her pursuit to maximize her body's full physical and psychological potential.

"To be a Health Champion is to come to the realization that it really is no one's responsibility but our own to make sure that the health issues we may be dealing with are addressed to the best that they can possibly be addressed," Staveley explained. "We often expect that it's the doctor's responsibility alone to address and treat our issue. But the key is that we have to take the responsibility to be in the lead position, and allow doctors and healthcare professionals to be our resources in our pursuit of recovery."

After a sustaining a sports-related muscular injury in 1996, Staveley began experiencing chronic pains and tension throughout her body that became so severe that they often left her unable to leave her home. She then found out that she had chronic myofascial pain syndrome, an underlying soft tissue condition that limited Staveley's proper muscle function and made even simple everyday tasks a painful battle for her.

In addition to a soft tissue disorder, Staveley was also confronted by fertility difficulties in 2002, at which time her the foundation of her developing philosophy was set. "The (Health Champion) mind set leads to much more productive problem solving related to health issues. If you go in, like I did, with a list of questions and the expectation that the doctor will help to lead you to the best possible answer, it allows you to take ownership of the problem and arrive at a more satisfactory and comprehensive solution to that problem."

Due to her extensive research and perseverance in presenting her doctors with specific questions until she found an answer, Staveley is now the proud mother of two and a successful ironman finisher.

Staveley's goals and physical training to become a Health Champion and ironman triathlete took her many places, including the C3 Canadian Cross Training Club in Caledon. She described her involvement with C3 as "an incredible stroke of luck that turned into the most amazing experience and relationships in regard to my development as a triathlete."

Through her continued training at a quarry in Caledon, Staveley swims alongside professionally ranked athletes such as champion triathlete Andrew Yorke and nationally acclaimed triathlon coach Barrie Shepley. "We discovered that there are national and international athletes training with C3 in the quarry . . . It's absolutely inspiring to train with such a wonderful and inclusive group. The quarry is such a positive place both psychologically and physically and being affiliated with C3 really drives us to do that much better in our training."

C3 Group runs organized swimming programs that are available to swimmers of any level and further information concerning membership or swimming schedules can be found at www.c3online.ca

Not Lying Down is a guide to encourage readers to become their own health advocate, and equip them with the tools to achieve their full potential despite any health condition.

"This is my new career in life, to help others figure out their health problems," she said. "To even show up and say that I was prepared to take on an ironman triathlon was enough for me to feel like I had the right to start delivering my message and help others to find the Health Champion route."

Further information regarding Staveley's journey and her steps to becoming a Health Champion can be found at www.carolestaveley.com. Her book Not Lying Down is available for purchase, both in hard copy and e-book, on amazon.ca

MPs were 'terrified' during gun fight in Parliament

By Bill Rea

It's "business as usual" last Thursday on Parliament Hill, but Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson reported things were pretty scary the previous day.

Last Wednesday saw what is thought to have been a terrorist attack on Parliament Hill.

According to published reports, a single gunman, identified as Michael Zehaf-Bibeau, 32, shot and killed Cpl. Nathan Crillo, 24, as he stood guard at the National War Memorial, then entered the Parliament Buildings, where shooting erupted.

Tilson stressed people were back at work the following day, although security was tight and it was still a crime scene.

"We're not going to be intimidated," Tilson told the Citizen. "We're back at work. It's business as usual today."

Tilson reported all three political parties were in their regular weekly caucus meetings Wednesday morning.

At Conservative meetings, Tilson said Prime Minister Stephen Harper generally speaks at the start, and that was the case in this session.

"We all heard about 30 gun shots, just outside our door," Tilson said. "Needless to say, we were all terrified. It was a very scary time."

Tilson said it was a case in which people there didn't know what to do; whether they should get out of the room or which door to use.

"We had no idea if there was one person out in the hall or 10 people out in the hall," he recalled.

MPs barricaded the doors with chairs and tables. There are no weapons in caucus rooms, so Tilson said some Members grabbed flag poles, with sharp ornaments at the top shaped like maple leaves, and fashioned them into spears with the purpose of slowing the attacker(s) down if the doors were breached.

Harper was hustled by Members into a side room, which Tilson said is used to store sound equipment, and some of them held themselves against the door.

RCMP officers eventually arrived and took Harper out, but MPs were kept in their caucus rooms during the lockdown.

"We had some water, no food," Tilson said.

At about 6:45 p.m., large buses arrived to take MPs to the Pearson Building on Sussex Drive (about a mile from Parliament Hill). Tilson said there were about half a dozen armed police officers on the bus.

Once there, they were fed pizza.

"We hadn't eaten all day," Tilson said.

There were also TVs set up, so they were able to see Harper's address to the country, as well as the addresses of the other leaders. The PM later showed up at the assembly of MPs (from all parties) and addressed them.

There were a lot of rumours circulating during the lockdown.

Tilson said one problem was they still didn't know how many gunmen there were. Some security people had dropped hints the one man had been armed with a large knife.

"I didn't even know who the fellow was," he commented.

Tilson agreed that Parliamentary Sergeant-at-Arms Keven Vickers, who shot and killed the gunman, is a hero.

He said the House of Commons resumed the following day.

"We gave a standing ovation to Mr. Vickers, the Sergeant-at-Arms, when he walked into the House," Tilson reported.

He said Harper delivered an emotional address, followed by the other party leaders and independent MPs. There were signs of unity from all present. "The three leaders even hugged each other at the end of their speeches," he remarked.

Spending almost nine hours in lockdown with no food was not very pleasant, but Tilson said he found ways to put the time to good use. "It was an opportunity for me to talk to ministers," he said, adding had some constituency matters he wanted to bring up with some of them, and they are sometimes hard to get in touch with.

He was also able to call his wife; several times.

MPs are not allowed to bring phones or Blackberrys into caucus. They are checked in rooms just outside the meeting chamber, but once the incident took place, they were able to get their equipment back.

Tilson also said he called his two constituency offices (in Bolton and Orangeville) and instructed his staff to close them.

"We had no idea whether there was some sort of country-wide terrorist attack," he said.

"I had dozens and dozens of telephone calls and emails from people expressing concern for Members of Parliament and myself, and I appreciate that," Tilson said.

He also recalled that he "absolutely" was scared when the shooting started.

"The doors were not secure," he remarked. "All members were scared."

He also observed that there was no word how many attackers there really were.

"If they had stormed into the room, the Prime Minister would have been killed, and a number of Members of Parliament would have been killed," he commented. "That's how scary it was."

Woman facing several charges

An Oct. 8 investigation of a possible impaired driver resulted in a 47-year-old Caledon woman being charged.

Caledon OPP reports they were called out at about 2:35 p.m. to investigate an incident on Creditview Road. They had been told a possible impaired driver had apparently entered a construction area, and was observed stopped in the middle of the road. There was also a complaint about erratic driving received relating to the same vehicle.

Police found a silver Dodge Caravan on Creditview at the top of a private driveway, and they observed that the brake lights were activated. The officers approached the vehicle and observed the female seated behind the steering wheel in an intoxicated state.

Upon speaking with her, the officer detected a very strong odour of alcohol on her breath and she displayed many other signs of impairment. As a result the driver was arrested and transported to the detachment for testing.

The investigation

also revealed that the driver had caused damage to two stop signs in the construction area.

The woman was charged with having care and control of a vehicle with more than the legal limit of alcohol in her system, and with dangerous driving.

Her licence was suspended in the spot and her vehicle was impounded for seven days.

Flags throughout Caledon were at half-mast in honour of Cpl. Nathan Crillo.

Police have tips for everyone to have a safe Halloween

Halloween 2014 is fast approaching and Caledon OPP wants everyone to have fun and be safe.

"Halloween is an exciting time of year for children," Detachment Commander Inspector Tim Melanson observed. "We need to remind our children on how to avoid potentially dangerous situations while ensuring a memorable evening."

For parents

- Accompany your children or ensure they are with a responsible adult.
- Costumes should fit properly to prevent trips and falls.
- Select costumes with bright colors to increase your child's visibility and add reflective strips.

- Provide your child with a flashlight and a cell phone if available.
- Draw a map outlining the route they should follow and set a curfew.
- Do not allow children to carry anything that looks like a weapon.
- Tell your children not to eat anything until they get home.
- Start trick or treating early, before it gets too dark.

For children and youth

- Carry a white bag or pillowcase for candy, or add some reflective tape.
- Bring a cell phone in case you need to Man failed to provide breath sample

A 31-year-old Caledon man is facing charges after he was spotted driving strangely in Bolton early in the morning of Oct. 19.

Caledon OPP reports officers conducting speed enforcement shortly before 1 a.m. on Regional Road 50 north of Columbia Way spotted a vehicle travelling in excess of the posted speed limit. Officers followed the vehicle and noticed it was moving back and forth in its lane. They also reported noticing other indications of impaired driving.

They were able to stop the vehicle, and noticed signs of impairment as soon as they spoke to the driver.

He was arrested and taken to the station for further testing, but the man refused to supply a breath sample.

He was charged with driving while his ability was impaired and with refusing to provide a breath sample.

His licence was suspended on the spot, and his vehicle was impounded for seven days.

Region offering free election sign recycling

Now that the municipal elections are over, candidates and residents who had campaign signs on the lawns have them to take care of.

Peel Region advises residents that election signs can be recycled at any Community Recycling Centre (CRC) free of charge.

It is the responsibility of a candidate's campaign office to remove all signs in Caledon by 11:59 p.m. today (Thursday).

If residents prefer to recycle the signs prior to removal by the candidates campaign office, they must separate the three main types of signs, corrugated plastic, paperboard and plastic film, from their associated hardware (e.g. metal and wooden stakes and staples) to qualify for free drop off. Election signs will not be collected curbside and are not accepted in apartment recycling containers.

When taking election signs to a CRC, residents must keep them separate from other recycling and waste materials in order to meet the dedicated load free drop off criteria.

Vehicles or trailers containing only materials accepted free of charge are categorized as dedicated loads. If they have materials accepted free and those subject the fees, they will be considered mixed loads and the entire weight will be subject to fees.

Reason for hope from elections?

It's still a little too early to assess the implications of Monday's municipal elections in Caledon, or to even try and explain why what happened actually happened.

For the moment, we all have to accept the fact that the voters had their say and made their decisions.

We can say that several worthy candidates stood for election and some of them lost. On the other hand, it could also be said that some candidates were successful when someone else might have been more suitable. Since no candidate was acclaimed, we would submit that such an argument could be made regarding every race in town.

We do believe that Patti Foley, Richard Paterak and Richard Whitehead deserve the thanks of their community for their years of service. All three of them went down to defeat Monday night, and whether that was deserved is a decision each one of us has to make individually in the privacy of our own thoughts. But they stood up and put themselves and their views before the public, and in many cases, took a lot of flak for their pains. That's a task few of us would be willing to take on, so they have earned our thanks. But a new council is about to take office, with four new faces, and a new man sitting in the chair.

As well, those four new councillors will be part of Caledon's representation at the Peel Regional council table. Add to that three new faces from Brampton and three more from Mississauga, not to mention a new Regional Chair. We predict it's going to take a while for all these people to get together and find ways to work together. That's not going to be easy.

But no matter how hard it might be, it will be up to the new councillors at both levels, led by the three new mayors and new Chair to make it all work, and we expect they will do it, if for no other reason than it's their job.

Mayor-elect Allan Thompson touched on that Monday night as he addressed his supporters in his victory remarks.

"We've all been elected by the people and it's my job to make it work, and we will make it work."

Well, Allan, and all the rest of you. You all got the jobs. Now it's up to you to make it work.

Toronto Life article was slanted

The following letter, addressed to Sarah Fulford of Toronto Life magazine, was submitted to the Citizen for publication.

Re: Article: Battleground Caledon, September issue.

As a Bolton area resident, I want to express my strenuous objection to the tone and substance of this article, which is clearly biased against the Town of Caledon and particularly Mayor Marolyn Morrison.

With the use of phrasing and photos of large equestrian centres, it creates the impression the mayor's supporters are all wealthy horse people in the west end of Caledon. The few horse owners mentioned in the article probably totalled about 10 votes in the fall 2010 municipal election.

A lot of ordinary residents throughout Caledon, especially in Bolton, support the town's overall goal of orderly and properly planned growth. That was amply demonstrated by the 2010 election, in which Mayor Morrison decisively defeated a resident opponent who was pushing for a major residential expansion of Bolton's urban boundaries.

Instead of casting developer Benny Marotta in such a positive light, there are several questions the writer could have and should have asked. One of those questions is obvious.

Why didn't the developer conduct research into the Town's growth policies before purchasing hundreds of hectares of land in the Bolton area?

Based on how this article was slanted, a reader might wonder if Toronto Life always distorts the issues on other subjects it profiles.

Let the authorities do their jobs

As a person born in the '50s, I experienced a very positive time as a young person as the Second World War was over and everyone was enjoying a sense of prosperity, freedom and just a very positive time, with very little bad news on the radio, or TV if you had one.

And now, 100 years after the First World War started, and 32 years after we brought in the Charter of Rights and Freedoms (1982), I honestly can't say we are any better, perhaps worse.

And I don't mean that we are so high-tech that we have abandoned all the old personal contact that we used to, and I really miss. I am referring to the fact that many places in the world are still at war, and brutal wars. And now we see the terrible events in Ottawa Oct. 22, where a young un-armed soldier is shot dead, and the very qualified and experienced senior soldier who took out the shooter was so humble (a Canadian thing), because he knew that this was still a very sad day for Canada.

And now, we Canadians want Big Brother to protect us from this ever happening close to where we live. In order to do that, our authorities have to be able to investigate and learn about all possible people. That in itself is very, very challenging, but they try their best. And we all want that so we can be safe in our country, right?

So why is it that when something like the G-20 happens, and everyone is told to stay away, then stuff happens and these very same people of authority now try to control the situation and then are so poorly treated by those of us that went there, even though we were told not to? We want it all, don't we? Well we can't have it both ways.

So let the authorities do their jobs. They have our best interests in mind.

Brian Perras,
Caledon

It happened today

Muhammad Ali had been stripped of his heavyweight boxing titles because he refused induction into the American armed forces during the Vietnam era, and was barred for several years from earning a living in the only trade he knew.

He eventually got permission to fight again, but the titles had changed hands a couple of times. He finally travelled to Zaire to challenge the seemingly invincible George Foreman. Employing a technique later known as "Rope-A-Dope," Ali stopped the champ with an eighth-round knockout.

That happened this day, Oct. 30, 1974.

Gunman got that close — Scary

I think I'm in good company with most Canadians when I state that I had the feeling I had been sucker punched in the gut last Wednesday.

The centre of democracy of my country, Parliament Hill, a place I have always held (probably naively) in awe was breached. And in the process, two lives were lost.

I mourn for Corporal Nathan Crillo. He was just an ordinary guy who was doing his job. I was editing community newspapers before he was even born. Yet he came upon a particular day when he came into contact with a nut, who apparently was packing some perverted agenda.

Guys don't go shooting off guns on Parliament Hill just for the hell of it. This was a person who had some very serious problems. Religion might have had something to do with what he did, but it is also a fact that some people, in the current vernacular, "go postal." It's happened lots of times, including an incident last week at a school in Washington. This system of ours has failed twice in the space of a week.

And while there are probably some people in other lands who might have heard of the occurrences in Ottawa with satisfaction, I'm not completely convinced that last week's debacle was the work of some off-shore conspiracy of followers of a certain religious faith to disrupt Canadian society. Had that been the case, would not the attack on our Parliament been much better organized? And considering the fact that our Prime Minister was just metres away from the action (something I think well-organized terrorists would have verified well ahead of time with very little difficulty), would not a concerted attack on our government had been more successful?

Remember the 9-11 attacks on the United States 13 years ago. These were well-orchestrated actions against two prominent buildings in the most prominent city in the Western Hemisphere, as well as other targets, and the carnage was the result of four commercial aircraft being hijacked. A lot more organization went in to the terror we experienced in September 2001 than went into last week's activities in Ottawa.

I am more inclined to believe last week's events were the product of a very troubled man who decided to take action, and got as far as he did mainly through dumb luck.

But the fact he got as far as he did is frightening enough.

I spoke to Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson the day after the incident, and the account he offered of what went on last Wednesday frankly scared the hell out of me.

The thought of Conservative MPs hustling Stephen Harper into essentially a closet, and then using their bodies as a human shield, while other Tory colleagues took down flag staffs and hastily converted them into spears. And it seems the rest of the Conservative caucus barricaded the door with tables and chairs.

Granted, these measures would not have done a whole lot of good against a gang of well-armed, well-organized terrorists. Even Tilson acknowledged that to me. But what else was there for them to do? And please remember that from the point of view of these MPs, the possibilities of what they were dealing with ran the range of some dumb kid pulling a silly collegiate prank (I have a cousin who attended Carleton University in Ottawa about 40 years ago, and there were some pretty creative stunts in his day, according to his recollections) to a genuine coup d'état.

Dufferin-Caledon voters sent David Tilson to Ottawa because of his legal training and political experience (the fact he's a Conservative and on Harper's good side probably helped a lot too). Had they wanted a street fighter, they would have elected someone else three years ago.

The fact that someone got that close to the seat of government in my country surprises me, and scares me too. I have been in the public gallery of the House of Commons a couple of times. The last time I was there (granted, more than 25 years ago), I pulled out a pen to take down some notes, and was quickly admonished to put the pen away. I have since learned the hard way that similar rules are in place in the legislative assembly at Queen's Park.

While I am angry that a citizen in this country is not allowed to take notes in the Parliamentary houses that his hard-earned tax dollars go to support, I also have to give my head a shake that some guy got into the halls of power packing a rod.

That is something that needs to be addressed, and I think we can be well assured that's just what's going to happen. I have heard some concerns expressed that this is going to restrict freedoms. I don't buy that for a second. All the security people have to do is apply the rules that are already in place (the rules that required me to keep my ballpoint pen in my pocket). It's good to have these procedures reviewed every now and then. But it's tragic that events like last week's have to take place to bring about such reviews.

I have heard a lot of other comments in the days that followed.

There were some suggestions that Harper behaved badly in all the excitement of last Wednesday. I heard some radio commentators state that he should have made his nationally televised address a lot sooner than he did. Maybe he should have, but maybe we should look at the situation from his point of view; that of a father of two who suddenly found his life was under threat one day last week and was hustled into a closet by some of his colleagues in the hope that would provide protection. While we are entitled to expect a certain level of performance from our Prime Minister, we also have to let him largely call the shots in cases such as last week's. I have stated in this space before that I have limited use for Stephen Harper, but the fact is I thought he did a good job dealing with the situation he was handed last Wednesday. I'm frankly at a loss to know what more he could have done.

And let us also not forget that good information on what exactly was going on was a little hard to come by last Wednesday. For example, it took about 24 hours before I heard reliable verification that there was just one gunman involved in this situation. I spent most of the day hearing stories about shots being fired elsewhere in and around Ottawa. And from what Tilson told me, the information he and his colleagues were getting while under lockdown was not a whole lot better.

Cast your mind back to 9-11. That situation was bad enough, to be sure, but there were a lot of other horror stories making the rounds that day that simply were not true. I well remember hearing that a car bomb had gone off outside the State Department building in Washington. It never happened, but at the time, we had no way of knowing that.

I have been employed in the media long enough to know that it sometimes takes a bit of time before all the facts come out. We just have to be patient.

And it's likely going to take a while before we really understand all that happened in Ottawa last week, and why.

In the mean time, we can be content that we're still here, our country is still here and things are, functioning normally. If it was an attempt the disrupt our system and lives, it sure didn't get very far.

Federal government is supporting our veterans, as they deserve

We owe a huge debt to our veterans.

They have proudly and loyally served our country. They've also made tremendous sacrifices to ensure we may continue to enjoy the peace and freedoms we have in Canada. They've risked their lives to bring stability to war-torn countries around the world. We, as Canadians, deeply appreciate the sacrifices our veterans have made on our behalf and our government will always recognize and honour their contributions by continuing to provide practical support to these outstanding men and women.

Our government has continued to make supporting Canadian veterans a priority, with nearly $5 billion in increased investment since coming into office, including doubling the Last Post and Burial Fund and increasing the compensation available for seriously injured veterans.

Economic Action Plan 2014 proposes $108.2 million over three years to expand eligibility for the Funeral and Burial Program, to ensure that modern-day veterans of modest means have access to a dignified funeral and burial. Changes to this program that were announced last year increased the funeral services reimbursement rate to $7,376 and simplified its administration.

Our government has continued to build on existing initiatives that assist Canadian veterans, such as the Hire a Veteran program and the Helmets to Hardhats program, by successfully partnering with private sector companies and industry leaders. We introduced the Veterans Hiring Act March 4, 2014, to ensure more of Canada's men and women in uniform have access to meaningful careers when their military service to Canada has ended. This Bill gives Canadian Armed Forces personnel and honourably-released veterans better access to openings within the federal public sector. Such support for building meaningful second careers is a key part of a successful transition to civilian life for Canada's veterans.

Another example of our government's support for Canadian veterans is the launch of the Psychiatric Service Dog Pilot Project, to study the use of psychiatric service dogs to help veterans with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). In September 2013, Veterans Affairs Canada commissioned the Canadian Institute for Military and Veteran Health Research to collect and evaluate the existing research on psychiatric service dogs to determine the next steps needed to create a Canadian approach. The results revealed that a pilot project was the appropriate step forward. Veterans Affairs Canada is funding this two-and-a-half-year project to examine the impact of the use of psychiatric service dogs in assisting Veterans with PTSD. It will also provide up to $500,000 in research and treatment benefits for the pilot project. The goal is to have up to 50 veterans, who are in receipt of a disability benefit for PTSD and have approval from their mental health professional, participate in the project.

Canada's veterans can count on our government's support through practical and efficient programs that respond to their needs. They've bravely and loyally dedicated themselves to serving our country and they can expect that same loyalty from our government. We will always stand by them as they've stood by Canada.

Government offering continued support for Ukraine

Prime Minister Stephen Harper welcomed Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko on his first official visit to Canada.

In his address to Parliament, President Poroshenko stated, "I am thankful to Canada. Your country was one of the soundest supporters of Ukraine," adding, "As a Commander in Chief, as a Ukrainian, and as a father of a soldier, I thank Canada for each life that is being saved today in the Ukrainian Donetsk by every bulletproof vest or helmet you gave to us."

Since the outbreak of the crisis in Ukraine, Canada has stood steadfastly with Ukrainians in their struggle to restore political and economic stability. Prime Minister Harper was the first G7 leader to visit Ukraine in the current crisis. To ensure the integrity of the electoral process, Canada sent 500 electoral observers to monitor the presidential election. And, Harper attended the swearing-in of elected President Petro Poroshenko.

At the same time, Canada has been a leader in condemning Russia's illegal occupation of Crimea, while also taking the lead in imposing economic sanctions and travel bans against those responsible for the ongoing crisis. Prime Minister Harper's leadership within the G7 helped ensure Russia's expulsion from the G8, and our government continues to work with the international community to help ensure Ukrainians can determine the future of their own country.

During the visit, the leaders discussed a plan to restore Ukraine's territorial integrity and ensure its sovereignty in the face of Russian military aggression in eastern Ukraine. Prime Minister Harper reiterated our principled position stating, "We will never – ever – recognize the illegal Russian occupation of any Ukrainian territory."

Building on our unwavering support for Ukraine, the leaders reached an agreement on the provision of a Canadian loan to Ukraine. This low-interest loan is helping stabilize Ukraine's economy and promote economic and social development during this challenging time. Prime Minister Harper also announced an additional $3 million in humanitarian assistance. This funding is helping support our international partners, who are providing medical attention, food, safe drinking water, sanitation, shelter and emergency response to those in the areas affected by the ongoing conflict, including the nearly 200,000 displaced Ukrainians.

With freedom, democracy, and the rule of law as our guiding principles, our government will continue to stand with Ukraine. As Prime Minister Harper stated "... whatever lies ahead, Canada and Ukraine will continue to move forward together."

Make sure you take some time to remember this Nov. 11

This year marked a significant milestone in our military history, as it is 100 years since the beginning of the First World War.

As a dominion of Britain at the time, Canada was there from the beginning, supporting our allied forces. When the battles ended in 1918, we had earned the respect of our allies and the rest of the world. Indeed, our military sacrifices and accomplishments earned Canada a seat at the League of Nations. This was the first multinational organization whose objective was to maintain world peace and was also a pre-cursor to the United Nations.

It is important that we take a few moments Nov. 11 to show our appreciation for those who have served and continue to serve as members of Canada's military.

You can show your support by wearing a poppy. Poppies, which are available from the last Friday in October until Nov. 11,

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

have been worn as a symbol of remembrance in Canada since 1921. Across Canada and overseas, the Royal Canadian Legion reports that more than 18 million poppies are distributed. The Poppy Campaign uses the donations it receives to provide support to ex-service members and their families.

The cenotaphs located throughout Dufferin-Caledon memorialize the names of those who once called our communities home and made the ultimate sacrifice for our freedom. Recently, I attended a rededication ceremony in Shelburne for their cenotaph which now includes the Afghanistan mission. Additionally, I was honoured to attend the Orangeville Legion's rededication ceremony of the Memorial at the Veterans' Plot located in the Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Our communities in Dufferin-Caledon hold a number of Remembrance ceremonies. Caledon East holds a service Nov. 2 and the Alton Legion and the Bolton BIA services are Nov. 9. Ceremonies Nov. 11 include Shelburne, Orangeville, Grand Valley and Mansfield. I encourage everyone to take time to attend one of our local services.

As I will have the honour to lay the provincial wreath at a number of events in Dufferin-Caledon, I will be taking time to thank veterans for their personal service and sacrifice. This time of year reminds us that it is important to remember our Canadian Forces members who have faced threats, and continue to face threats, both here at home and abroad. This Remembrance Day, we struggle to understand the senseless murder of two military men. One, an off-duty Warrant Officer with 29 years of service, who was struck down in parking lot in Montreal. The other, a 24-year-old reservist who was shot as he stood as a ceremonial guard at our National War Memorial. The tragic deaths of WO Patrice Vincent and Cpl. Nathan Cirillo is a reminder that our freedom that was so valiantly fought for 100 years ago continues to be challenged by those who would seek to threaten all that we hold dear.

Please take time this Nov. 11 to remember and honour all of those who chose to fight for our freedom. Let us not forget.

Security moves should be minimal

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

It was the late Robert Kennedy – who knew something about the subject – who once described "tragedy" as "a tool for the living to gain wisdom, not a guide by which to live."

Good advice, of course, for all Canadians to keep in mind when pondering the horrific deaths of two soldiers last week at the hands of maniacal terrorists in both Ottawa and Quebec.

As usual in these situations, real tragedy does elicit both the best and worst of human nature, and the murders of two unarmed soldiers is no exception.

It doesn't get much better, for example, than the brilliant decision by somebody at Hockey Night in Canada to use our "national game" to show solidarity for the soldiers – and for our democratic way of life – by deciding to co-ordinate the singing of our national anthem at the start of Saturday's hockey games in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa.

If that didn't move you then you'd better check your heart.

Then there was the extraordinary parliamentary unity – Prime Minister Stephen Harper actually hugging NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair and Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau – and the tear-inducing prolonged standing ovation from the heroic sergeant-at-arms Kevin Vickers, who risked his own life to kill the intruder and thus avoid what could have been a far, far worse tragedy than it was.

There were also the ordinary citizens, passers-by, who, not thinking of their own safety, rushed to the aid of the mortally-wounded Cpl. Nathan Cirillo as he lay dying at the base of our National War Memorial, where, unarmed, he'd been on honorary guard duty at the tomb of the unknown soldier before being shot from behind by the crazed terrorist gunman.

And there are those thousands of Canadians who lined the overpasses of the Highway of Heroes – solemnly saluting, holding up Canadian flags and shedding tears – as Cpl. Firillo's body was driven from Ottawa to his home in Hamilton. God bless them. And him.

On the other side of the coin, alas, there were the idiot commentators who rushed into print or went on the air to immediately castigate our security arrangements, some of them even claimed we should have stopped the attack before it began.

These same people, you can be sure, would be the first to holler and scream if, say, our police forces rounded up anybody they even suspected had a terrorist bent. We can hear the cries now of "racial profiling" if police, ignoring our system of laws, went on a tear like the famous movie cop in Casablanca and went out to simply "round up the usual suspects."

There are those who – no doubt with all sincerity – think that this horrible tragedy means that rather than make some incremental changes in our security apparatus we must become an armed camp where citizens can no longer walk up to Parliament Hill or enter the building without elaborate pre-screening and other security measures.

Indeed, watching U.S. television on the event, I was struck by how often American commentators remarked in amazement why Cpl. Firillo wasn't armed and how the terrorist could "just walk into" the Parliament buildings. (He didn't just walk in, actually. He ran. A guard tried to stop him and was shot trying.)

To this scribe, however, perhaps the most unsettling approach to the Ottawa tragedy in particular can be summed up by a column in the Thursday National Post written by former Privy Council Office (PCO) employee Benjamin Shinewald.

Shinewald, who worked there from 2005 to 2008, wrote that part of his job was attending Cabinet committee meetings about once a week.

"Each time I went, I was stunned by how lax security was. On one occasion, I walked all the way into the Cabinet Room – filled with 20 or so Ministers – without a single security check of any kind. I could have had a gun, or worse, but no one even checked my ID."

Well, I worked on Parliament Hill for about 15 years and every day entered through the door in the basement past security guards, usually greeting them by name and often stopping for a little chat. (I learned early on, if you want good information that's a place to find it.) I, too, was never scanned, but like the security guys who were watching Shinewald, they knew me, knew what my business was, and, I say, thank heavens allowed me to go about my business unmolested.

Yes, there will be some necessary toughening of our security. But let us hope it's minimal.

We're a free and open society and should never allow ourselves to be defined by the maniacs among us.

The more we do that, the more they win and we lose.

Peel Region wins award from power authority

By Bill Rea

It was a time for taking bows at Peel Regional Council recently.

Caledon Councillor Richard Whitehead announced the Region had received an Ontario Power Authority (OPA) Community Conservation Award.

Whitehead, who chairs the management committee of Regional council, said Peel residents should be honoured. "It doesn't happen very often," he said.

The staff report to council stated the award was presented Aug. 18. This is the third year for the award program, which is a collaborative effort led by OPA with the Association of Municipalities of Ontario and the Electricity Distributors Association. Peel was one of three recipients.

"The Region of Peel won this award because of the Region's many innovative and progressive energy projects," the staff report stated, adding the projects included the South Peel Water System Pumping Optimization Study, Smog Alert Automated Response System, Ozone Laundry Pilot, education and outreach initiatives provided through Let Your Green Show and Water Smart Peel.

Penalty kill helps Golden Hawks past Fergus Devils

By Jake Courtepatte

The Junior C Caledon Golden Hawks faced two similarly-ranked teams last week, with a chance to either jump or fall in the GMOHL standings.

They ended up splitting the two games. The first outing of the week was a rare Friday home game, taking on the Fergus Devils.

Veteran Steven Klomp picked up his second goal of the season just six minutes into the game, shortly after an effective penalty kill led by goaltender James Cyfko. The Hawks led 1-0 heading into the dressing room.

Despite earning the first five penalties of the game, it was the Hawks defence that continued to shine in the second, holding Fergus to just eight shots in the period.

A goal by Adam Breen off assists from Chris Smith and James Pitsadiotis doubled Caledon's lead by the end of the second.

Down by two with only 20 minutes left to play, the Devils began to press. They got their opportunity almost immediately when defenceman Jake Mottershaw went to the box after cross-checking a Devil's player behind the Caledon net.

But the special teams continued to click, as the Hawks' penalty killers played an effective box in their zone to keep the puck and Devil players to the outside.

The penalty kill once again went to work a few minutes later, where they seemed to play their best hockey of the night. Steve Zeppieri was a force on the kill, winning a couple different puck battles to actually keep it in the Fergus zone.

In the same penalty kill, Nicholas McNutt had a great shorthanded opportunity, winning the race to the puck on a dump-out and cutting to the middle past a defenceman for a semi-breakaway. He was stopped on a nice pad save by the Fergus goaltender.

Now even strength, Derek Czech gave the home team some insurance with less than seven minutes to play as he walked in alone from the top of the slot, moved across the net to wait out the goaltender, and slipped it home from an almost impossible angle.

However, the Hawks penalty troubles weren't over yet. With less than six minutes to play, Adam Breen was booked on both a high-sticking minor and a cross-checking major, meaning the Hawks would spend the remainder of the game shorthanded.

The shutout was broken on the extended powerplay, but Caledon was able to fight off the entire five-minute major.

Czech buried an empty-netter to seal the win, a 4-1 victory for the Hawks.

Cyfko had a rare goalie point, earning an assist of the empty-net goal. He was perhaps the star of the game, as the Hawks were outshot 22-8 in the third period.

The team then headed north the next night to face the Orillia Terriers, a team they had somehow yet to see this season.

It was a tight race from the start, with both sides shooting from all angles, but unable to solve Hawk's goaltender Sam Procopio or Terrier Gordie Weiss.

Mottershaw scored his second goal in as many nights midway through the second, quickly followed by another from Daniel Cafagna for a 2-0 Hawk lead after two periods.

Orillia came out strong in the third, scoring just less than a minute in, and adding another to send the game to overtime.

Orillia's Jason Binnie completed the comeback in the extra frame, as the Hawks fell 3-2 in OT.

With the three-point week, the Golden Hawks are now tied for fourth place in GMOHL standings with Huntsville. The teams will meet again Nov. 9.

Meanwhile, this week's games consist of a rematch on the road with the Fergus Devils Friday, followed by a home game with the Stayner Siskins Sunday.

Varsity football team comes back to beat Castlebrooke

By Gabi Best

The Wolfpack varsity boys' football team travelled to the Dragons Den at Castlebrooke Secondary School in Brampton Oct. 15.

The boys had a bump in the road, with only half the team showing up for the beginning of the game due to transportation issues. With horrible field conditions and the lack of organization, the boys went into half time down 3-0. Then the Wolfpack buckled down and played as a team, scoring one touchdown, one convert and two safeties. Jake Fetterly and Evan Kumer stood out on offence; pounding the ball which lead to a long drive down the field, and Kumer getting a much-needed touchdown. Quinn Wheelton and Jordan Baggio shut down the Dragons on defence, even when Castlebrooke had the ball first and goal, from the three yard line.

Kumer earned player of the game honours for the second time in a row. Congrats to the boy's on their hard earned 10-5 victory. We look forward to watching Hall's home game against the Sandalwood Sabres.

Junior girls' basketball suffered a tough loss, losing 51-11 to the Ambrozic Cardinals Oct. 15.

The Cardinals swooped in and took the Wolfpack by surprise. Great defensive efforts were lead by Victoria Lucas and the coaches report, "The fourth quarter was their best offensive quarter of the season."

Points were scored by Alexis Viveiros, Lucas and top scorer, Ariel Neil. Lucas played a great game offensively and defensively, earning herself player of the game honours. The girls are slowly learning how to play with these competitive teams and coaches have high hopes for the girls in their next game.

Oct. 16, the varsity girls' flag football team took on Holy Name of Mary and unfortunately, they did not have the same outcome as the previous week. The girls loss 20-12 and battled their hearts out against a tough offence.

"The girls have the skills to make it to the next level and need two more wins to fight for their playoff spot," Coach Slokar reports.

The coaches are proud of the girls for moving from tier 2 to tier 1 football, and now are pushing them to strive to make the playoffs. Lindsey Smith kept the team in the game by scoring two touchdowns with the help of her team mates and Alexandra Young earned player of the game honours. She was reported to be "stellar" and fast on defence. The girls' next game is at home verses North Park, where we expect the girls to play the best football they can in order to move onto the playoffs.

To end the week off on a positive note, the varsity girls' field hockey team had their last game of the season.

The girls ended with a bang against the St. Michael Thunder and won 2-1; their first win of the season. Calista Iannotta started of the scoring and Megan Campbell followed suit later on in the game.

Coach Di Venosa wanted a special shout out to Abigail LaPalme and Kathryn Macrae for making great plays during the game and helping the Wolfpack earn their first victory of the season. Coach D would also like to thank the girls for such an amazing season and is very proud on how quickly they learned the game and represented the Wolfpack well. Congratulations to Shona Scott for earning player of the game honours and being a great leader for the girls throughout the year. We look forward to seeing the squad back out again next year.

Friday night was a real family affair in King curling

By Shellee Morning
King Curling Club

For the sheets of King, Friday night curling wasn't your typical night on the rings of red and blue.

The family names of Barber and Kamstra were matched up during the late draw this past weekend in what was truly believed to be an entertaining round. Both Barber teams, one led by father Dave and the other by son Kyle, battled for bragging rights on Sheet 2, while Sheet 3 featured the teams of husband and wife; Peter and Rosie Kamstra, who were engaged in an end-for-end, animated match that captured the ears of attention across the rink.

The Barber game consisted of dynamic doubles between father and son, with great rock placements by both teams' front ends. Dave had some great shots delivered from his vice (spare) Peter Wasylikiw while the front end of new curler Heather Vickers and Claire Murphy balanced out the strength they needed to try and over-come the young skip (Kyle) Barber.

At times, the game got tense, but skip Kyle controlled his team's energy and collected a solid performance by all. Vice Patti Agnew delivered great effort on her rocks to help set up the house for her skip, while new curler John Mulrooney played a simple and confident game as lead. The final end proved to be the most challenging, as son Kyle took over his dad's team to capture the well-earned win 10-6.

On the neighbouring rink, the atmosphere was totally opposite.

Kamstra versus Kamstra was a spirited affair, which is a given by those who know Rosie, in what was to be the game to watch.

For skip Rosie Kamstra, it's more about the fun that's at stake rather than the score. Having the hammer in most ends, Rosie and her team certainly made Peter's team earn their one point per end throughout their game of love. Vice Charles Levine executed some timely draws, applying the needed pressure and keeping his team in the chase. Glancing across the ice, one would see a cluster of "Rosie" red rocks around the target, sitting patiently for skip Peter to test his skills for the steal.

Holding their breath in the fourth, Rosie had a chance on a button throw for three points, but only managed to collect a single. New curlers Julie and Chris Sonnen for Peter's team and spare Shelley Courneya played a solid game, earning honourable assistance. Veteran (husband) Peter offered some "skip advice" to his wife, but independence was key for Rosie in her efforts in hopes of winning the contest.

Only once was there heard a cry for the mercy rule as Rosie and her team of Mike Murphy, Ruth George and Charles Levine gave it their all in the narrow 7-3 loss.

Other winners during Friday play included Team Dave Swackhammer who was golden at the helm, along with Teams Doug Brown, Scott Gilpin, Ian Donaldson and Gerry Duffy.

Monday Men's League posted some interesting games as teams exchanged points on the score board for their fourth game of the season. For Teams Sheardown and Barber, the score board looking like the pendulum of a clock, traded ends collecting no more than a point or two and creating a tight match from the get go. Skip Dave Barber made a perfect chip into the rings in the first end to collect two, and got things going. Mid-way, Skip Larry Sheardown facing two opposition stones, threw an impeccable pressure draw, collecting a point for his team in the exciting stone for stone match. Hit after hit left very few rocks in play by the time the skips were called to throw. In a tight pressure-filled competition, the 5-4 score was laid out perfectly for Team Barber in the seventh as they assembled a three-point end to capture an 8-4 win.

Men's Invitational Bonspiel

The first annual King Country Men's Invitational Bonspiel will be held Nov. 22 and 23 at the Trisan Centre in Schomberg, welcoming 16 teams for three guaranteed eight-end games.

The four-division round-robin format concludes with the top two teams in each division advancing to the championship and consolation rounds. Registration of $270 also includes lunch Saturday and Sunday, as well as a special Saturday night dinner event held at the club.

Registration is still being accepted online at kingcurling.com or by contacting Dan Steenhoek at d.steenhoek@sympatico.ca

In previous week's action, Teams

Gorsline and Sheardown curled to an exciting finish last week during Ladies Team Entry League division play.

Three different times during the game, both teams had tied the score, proving that both were there to play.

Team Gorsline, skipped by Kathleen with team mates Marnie Deathe as third, Heather Rutledge as second and Adriana Sardella as lead, opened the scoring with a single point after one. Skip Sue Sheardown and her squad of third Shelley Courneya (spare for Cindy Phillips), Anne Savage as second and lead Ann Gerrits replied with their own point for the game's first tie.

The teams were tied once again at four points after respectfully collecting three markers each after the third and fourth ends. Vice Deathe commented that her skip (Gorsline) crafted a couple of "Plan Ds" to keep them in the hunt, while all four players from Team Sheardown re-invented the A game.

For the third and final time of the game, the score board once again displayed a 5-5 tie heading into the final end. Superior sweeping by Sheardown's front end of Savage and Gerrits, allowed their skip to throw some meticulous come-around draws that Canadian Olympic Gold Medalist Jennifer Jones would have raised her eyebrows over in admiration. Even Team Gorsline commented on Sheardown's multiple beauty draws that kept her team in the challenge.

With a skip showdown seemingly in place, it was all up to the last rocks to determine the night's winner. Gorsline threw her last shot perfectly, setting up for the steal and a win. Sheardown, without a doubt, new it had to be the shot of the night, and relied on her mates to help guide them to victory. After coming up a bit short on her last rock, Gorsline stole the end to win 7-5.

Other winning ladies included Teams Brown, Morning and Bones (by default).

Thursday's Mixed Team Entry play also caused some excitement with a few tie breaking plays and nail-biting finishes.

Early draw featured Teams Burman and Lupier, who were sitting in fourth and third place overall.

Team Lupier, skipped by Seaneen Lupier, Simon Prigmore, Beth Egan and George Gray, played a solid game throughout, challenging the Burman team stone for stone. Skip Bart Burman and wife Sue, along with Steve Bradley and Maria Ruksa, battled end-for-end in the early stages of the game before things got serious in the sixth.

Tied at five points each, the final end came down to last rocks, and with the remaining teams having finished and left the ice level, you could have heard a pin drop when the last rock was thrown. Skip Burman, holding the broom for his wife (throwing last rock), called the line perfectly for his sweepers to control the stone to its final resting place. As the rock glided down centre ice, the curl went in Burman's favour, parking in the rings for a two-point finish and the hard-earned win.

Late draw saw the first and second place teams of Boynton and Broad going broom-for-broom in a show-down of take outs and button draws.

Skip Scott Boynton and his team of Fran Bones, Don Keough and Michelle Boynton claimed ends one, three, four, and six, while Steve Broads' team of Jessica Maier, Joe Burnato and Kim Broad collected in ends two, five and seven, resulting in a tie as they headed into the eighth.

As Skip Broad could only stand by and watch what the outcome would be, it was up to Skip Boynton to seal the deal. On his final rock, he made no mistake throwing with perfect weight enabling his team the single point for the win.

Orangeville man charged

A 25-year-old man from Orangeville is facing charges after an Oct. 7 incident at a Highway 10 gas station.

Caledon OPP reports their investigation revealed that the suspect had parked his vehicle in a handicapped parking spot while he entered the store. A customer was upset over the misuse of the parking spot and began taking photos of the vehicle. The suspect exited the store, exchanged words with the patron and reversed out of the parking spot striking the victim in the mid-thigh area with the rear of his vehicle. The suspect left the scene and was located by officers at Highway 10 and Mayfield Road. The victim did not require medical attention for his injuries.

The man was charged with dangerous operation of a motor vehicle and assault with a weapon.

NO POWER? NO PROBLEM!

REMEMBER THE ICE STORM LAST JANUARY THAT CAUSED HOMES TO GO WITHOUT POWER AND HEAT FOR DAYS, SOME HOMES WEEKS?! AND THIS WEATHER PHENOMENON CALLED A POLAR VORTEX THAT HELPED TO CREATE ONE OF THE COLDEST WINTERS IN 50 YEARS?!

WE SELL AND INSTALL GAS AND PROPANE FIREPLACES THAT DON'T NEED POWER TO WORK.

This means by simply installing one of these fireplaces you can add security and comfort when there is no power from the utility.

MEMORIAM MEMORIAM DEATHS DEATHS DEATHS DEATHS DEATHS DEATHS

Wayne Selwood

August 22, 1951 – October 28, 2013

*It was a sudden parting too bitter to forget,
Those who loved you dearly,
are the ones who cannot forget.
We often sit and think of you,
And think how you died,
To think you could not say goodbye,
Before you closed your eyes.
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
Our loss is great, we'll not complain,
But trust in God, to meet again.*

*In memory of a loving husband, father & papa, who we lost 1 year ago.
Sadly missed along life's way, quietly remembered everyday.
No longer in our life to share,
but in our hearts, he's always there.*

Love always, Wendy, Greg,
Christine, Aimee & Zack
