Town will look at entire Whitebelt for planning

By Bill Rea

The Town will be expanding its GTA West Land Use Study to take in the entire Whitebelt.

The Whitebelt is defined as lands outside the Provincial Greenbelt and existing settlement areas in town which are eligible for development.

Caledon council approved the expansion Tuesday. The Town has already started its land use study as a visioning exercise to identify and protect future strategic employment lands, including those impacted by the proposed highway that will traverse the GTA West Corridor passing through the Whitebelt. But the motion passed Tuesday noted that exercise alone doesn't address all the needs of the community.

"I think this is an extremely important exercise that probably should have been done some time ago," Councillor Rob Mezzapelli commented.

He was a little troubled that the motion didn't specify land uses, and he wanted assurances that all of them would be examined, including agriculture, as part of the broader exercise.

Mayor Alan Thompson assured him the study will look at everything.

Planning staff was also directed to bring a report to council's Oct. 20 meeting with a detailed work plan for the exercise.

Director of Development Approval and Planning Policy Mary Hall said agricultural uses would be covered in the report.

She also told Councillor Nick deBoer preparation of the report has already started. It will include terms of reference and costs.

Donation might be excessive

Have you made a recent donation to Caledon Community Services (CCS)?

You might have been more generous than you realized.

CCS CEO Monty Laskin reports an item was recently dropped off at Chez Thrift in Bolton, and staff there found within that item a large sum of money.

He suspects the donor was unaware the money was there, and Laskin is anxious to get it back to the rightful owner.

If you suspect the donated item in question came from you, contact CCS by emailing to info@ccs4u.org, providing a description of the article donated and the amount of money left inside. The agency will respond.

Beware of 14 Critical Home Inspection Pitfalls Before You Put Your Home Up For Sale

DUFFERIN-PEEL - According to industry experts, there are over 33 physical problems that will come under scrutiny during a home inspection when your home is for sale. A new report has been prepared which identifies the eleven most common of these problems, and what you should know about them before you list your home for sale.

Whether you own an old home or a brand new one, there are a number of things that can fall short of requirements during a home inspection. If not identified and dealt with, any of these 14 items could cost you dearly in terms of repair. That's why it's critical that you read this report before you list your home. If you wait until the building inspector flags these issues for you, you will almost certainly experience costly delays in the close of your home sale or, worse, turn prospective buyers away altogether. In most cases, you can make a reasonable preinspection yourself if you know what you're looking for, and knowing what you're looking for can help you prevent little problems from growing into costly and unmanageable ones.

To help homesellers deal with this issue before their homes are listed, a free report entitled "14 Things You Need to Know to Pass Your Home Inspection" has been compiled which explains the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your FREE copy of this report call toll-free 1-866-500-3429 and enter 302. You can call any time, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Get your free special report NOW to learn how to ensure a home inspection doesn't cost you the sale of your home.

King man charged in collision that claimed three children

By Mark Pavilons

There has been an outpouring of support for a Brampton family devastated by the loss of four family members.

The Neville-Lake family lost three children and their grandfather in a horrific crash Sunday in Vaughan. The public has responded in kind to an online fundraiser, helping the family with costs.

York Regional Police report a 29-year-old King Township man is facing a long list of charges; four counts of impaired driving causing death; four counts of over 80 causing death; four counts of dangerous operation of a motor vehicle causing death; two counts of impaired driving causing bodily harm; two counts of over 80 causing bodily harm and two counts of dangerous operation of motor vehicle causing bodily harm.

He appeared in Newmarket court Monday and is scheduled for a bail hearing tomorrow (Friday).

Daniel, 9, Harry, 5, little sister Milly, 2 were killed, along with Gary Neville, 65, of King.

Police are still seeking witnesses in the collision that occurred at the intersection of Kirby Road and Kipling Avenue in Vaughan.

They were called to the scene at 4:10 p.m. and all occupants of the mini-van suffered injuries. Two adult females of the same family were removed from the same vehicle and taken to hospital with serious injuries, where they remain. Their condition has improved to stable and they are expected to recover.

Two occupants in a third vehicle involved were not injured.

Police are asking any witnesses to come forward. They can contact the Major Collision Investigation Unit by calling 1-866-876-5423, ext. 7704, or Crime Stoppers anonymously at 1-800-222-TIPS. They can also leave an anonymous tip online at www.1800222tips.com, or text a tip by sending TIPYORK and the message to CRIMES (274637) starting with the word YORK.

In the aftermath of the crash, a GoFundMe page has been set up in memory of those who lost their lives, raising money for the family left behind. It has come to serve as a makeshift memorial to their lives.

A mass was held at the children's school, St. Joachim, in Brampton Tuesday.

Third person charged in high school incidents

A third youth has been charged in connection with Sept. 16 incidents that occurred at Mayfield and Humberview Secondary Schools.

Caledon OPP reports a 17-year-old boy was charged last Thursday (Sept. 24) with being an accessory to robbery.

Two other boys from Caledon, aged 15 and 17, had previously been charged.

Police had previously reported a Mayfield student contacted administration to report he had received a digital photograph of a weapon. They were able to confirm no threat was made, but they added the school, as well as the nearby James Grieve Public School were both in lockdown.

A few minutes after the incident at Mayfield started, police report a robbery took place in a park adjacent to Humberview in Bolton, and one of the two victims was assaulted, receiving minor injuries. Both Humberview and neighbouring James Bolton Public School were in a hold and secure state.

Police later added that while they had initially believed the two incidents were separate, it was determined they were related.

The investigation is now complete, as far as police are concerned.

They have expressed appreciation to students and parents for their support and patience during the occurrence and throughout the investigation.

Man arrested on golf cart

A 43-year-old Caledon man is facing several charges after an incident in Bolton Sunday evening.

Caledon OPP reports officers saw a man operating a golf cart on Kingsview Drive shortly after 11:30 p.m. He apparently saw the officers and tried to put the cart in reverse to evade them.

The officers approached the operator on foot and immediately detected a strong odour of alcohol on his breath and noted that he displayed other signs of impairment. The man was arrested for impaired operation and taken in for testing. Through their investigation, officers also learned that the man was disqualified from driving through a court order.

He was charged with driving while his ability was impaired, refusing to provide a breath sample, driving while disqualified and driving while under suspension.

His licence was suspended for 90 days, and the cart was impounded for seven.

Not many torches carried for the penny by candidates

By Bill Rea

The federal candidates in Dufferin-Caledon were again contacted in the last week for their spontaneous responses to some predetermined questions.

The answers from the candidates are presented here in alphabetical order.

Do you miss the penny?

"I haven't given it a lot of thought," commented Liberal candidate Ed Crewson. "So I guess I don't miss it. If I did miss it, I'd know that."

Conservative incumbent David Tilson said he put forth a private member's bill when he was an MPP, calling on the federal government to get rid of the penny.

"They're a thing of the past and they just weigh down your pockets," he added.

Green Party candidate Nancy Urekar commented that as a business owner, she thought at first that the government's getting rid of the penny would be a detriment.

"I thought it would be hard," she commented. "But you know, it's not at all."

"I can do without the penny," she added.

"I would say not really," commented New Democratic candidate Rehya Yazbek. "I think I have a few of them lying around."

"The penny isn't worth anything any more," she added. "I don't miss having pennies in my purse."

Is the monarchy a benefit to Canada?

Crewson observed he's from United Empire Loyalist stock and had an ancestor killed in the Revolutionary War. Canada has a British Parliamentary form of government, with the monarch as the head of state and the governor general as the Queen's representative.

"It would be a great disruption in our system to become a republic," he remarked. "I'm quite happy to be in the Commonwealth of Nations with the Queen as the head of state.

"I think it's part of our heritage," Tilson said, adding he thinks the Queen "makes people feel good."

Tilson also pointed out Canada is a constitutional monarchy, and losing the monarchy would mean the next step would be to become a republic.

"Our parliamentary system is one of the best, if not the best in the world," he added.

"That is something I think about a lot," Urekar said. "I don't want Canada to spend a lot on the monarchy."

She added she didn't see it as a great benefit, but she would be reluctant to give it up, commenting she understands why some people follow the Royal Family. "They're like other popular cultural icons," she said.

"I guess it's always important to be a part of something bigger and greater," Yazbek observed. "It's always good to have allies."

"In our day-to-day life, I don't really feel the presence of it," she added.

Would you support proportional representation in the House of Commons?

"We're considering that, along with ranked voting," Crewson said. "Certainly, I would consider it."

"It's got merit," he added. "Ranked ballots has merit as well."

He also said that Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau has said if he's elected, this will be the last election decided by first past the post.

"No," Tilson said, adding there have been referendums of the topic held in Ontario and British Columbia. "It's been resoundingly defeated by the public."

He pointed out it would mean appointing MPs, commenting there are many people complaining about the appointment of senators.

"All members of the House of Commons should be elected, not appointed," he declared.

"Absolutely," Urekar declared. "We need proportional representation in order to support and represent all Canadians."

She added that the way things currently are, a lot of Canadians are not represented in Parliament. Urekar also pointed out that 27 of 34 member countries of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) have proportional representation.

"Yes, I would," Yazbek quickly replied. "That's an easy one."

She added that under the current system, some parties will never get a say in government.

"You're just wasting your vote voting for them," she observed. "They will never have a strong presence."

"At least with proportional representation, your vote will count for something," she added, pointing out it works well in other countries and leads to more democracy.

Thompson second runner-up in furrow competition

By Bill Rea

Terra Cotta area resident Julia Thompson was first runner-up last week in the Ontario Queen of the Furrow competition.

Representing the Peel-Dufferin Plowmen's association, Thompson, 20, was up against 23 other competitors at the International Plowing Match, hosted this year by the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

The title went to Kathryn Chant, representing Grenville County.

Thompson, daughter of Mayor Allan Thompson, also won a $500 BMO scholarship.

She said the competition required an interview, demonstration of plowing skills, and delivering an impromptu speech.

Thompson, who's starting her third year studying agricultural science at the University of Guelph, said the experience was a benefit, helping her with her public speaking and social skills.

"It was a great experience," she said. "All the girls were fantastic. It's definitely an experience where you learn a lot."

Julia Thompson was demonstrating her plowing skills at last month's Peel-Dufferin Plowing Match.

How to Sell High: Avoid these Three Mistakes When Selling Your "CALEDON HOME"

CALEDON - When you decide to sell your home, setting your asking price is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. Depending on how a buyer is made aware of your home, price is often the first thing he or she sees, and many homes are discarded by prospective buyers as not being in the appropriate price range before they're even given a chance of showing.

Your asking price is often your home's "first impression", and if you want to realize the most money you can for your home, it's imperative that you make a good first impression.

This is not as easy as it sounds, and pricing strategy should not be taken lightly. Pricing too high can be as costly to a HomeSeller as pricing too low.

Taking a look at what homes in your neighborhood have sold for is only a small part of the process, and on it's own is not nearly enough to help you make the best decision.

A recently study, which compiles with 10 years of industry research, has resulted in a new special report entitled "HomeSellers: How to Get the Price You Want (and Need)". This report will help you understand pricing strategy from three different angles. When taken together, this information will help you price your home to not only sell, but sell for the price you want.

Community out to run for Terry Fox

The spirit of Terry Fox was well represented last Sunday in communities all over the world, including this one. The Rotary Club of Palgrave held their annual run, and club President Jim Firth said the effort raised $8,000 for the Terry Fox Foundation. Tina Haller was leading the warm-up before the Palgrave run.

Last Sunday was a great day for a walk, as these people demonstrated on Chapel Street in Bolton. The run was put on by the Bolton Kinsmen. Kinsman John Stegeman said there were about 90 people out, and the effort raised about $12,000.

Palgrave Rotarians were also busy preparing breakfast for the runners. Working in the chip wagon were Sandra Tomona, Doug Nicholson, Warren May and Cheryl May.

Behram R. Condractor is a regular participant in the Bolton Terry Fox Runs.

Councillor Rob Mezzapelli actually ran in the Terry Fox Run, as opposed to walking.

Provocative 30-foot sculpture debuts at PAMA Oct. 4

Experience a one-of-a-kind sculpture when Stephanie Rayner's Boat of Eternal Return debuts at the Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) Oct. 4.

The stunning 30-foot boat is comprised of 20 unique elements, including moose ribs, mahogany, a mare pelvis and the score to Mozart's Requiem.

"Art, in all its forms, is the language of the soul," commented the Brampton-raised Rayner. "It speaks louder than death, and has always been humanity's lifeline."

The Boat of Eternal Return, 14 years in the making, has never been publically displayed before. Its unveiling represents the first exhibit curated by Tom Smart, an internationally celebrated arts leader and former CEO of the McMichael Canadian Art Collection, in his new role as PAMA Art Gallery Curator.

"Part boat, part musical instrument, the Boat of Eternal Return is sculpture as you've never seen it before," Smart said. "Rayner's body of work offers a deeply spiritual metaphor. Through this piece, she reflects on the mysteries of birth, death and the cycle of perpetual regeneration."

The opening reception will be Oct. 4, from 2 to 4 p.m. The Curator Talk will be at 2:30.

Win a private tour

Beginning Oct. 4, follow PAMA on Twitter @visitpama and share a few words about your life's journeys, trials and triumphs. The first 25 people to do so will receive an exquisite Boat of Eternal Return official exhibit catalogue signed by the artist. There is also an artist-led high-school education program. In this two-hour program, Rayner leads young artists through the creative process and provides a guided tour of the Boat of Eternal Return. For information on sessions, contact infopama@peelregion.ca

It will be at 2:30 p.m. The featured artists will be violist Arkady Yanivker and violist Ronald Hurwitz. The program will consist duets for violin and viola.

Much in demand as a violin soloist and ensemble performer, Yanivker's first major solo appearance was at the age of 13 with the Odessa Symphony Orchestra in the U.S.S.R. After graduation, Yanivker was engaged in concerts both as a chamber musician and solo violinist throughout the concert halls of Russia. He became concertmaster of the Novosibirsk Opera and Ballet Theatre, during which time he also became member of the Faculty of Music. Yanivker came to the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in 1978, where he became well-known on the music scene as a violin soloist and chamber player. During his tenure as a member of the TSO, he served as concertmaster of the Toronto Philharmonia Orchestra, and guest concertmaster for the Kitchener Symphony Orchestra, London Symphony Orchestra, Huntsville Festival Orchestra and the New Canadian Chamber Orchestra. He has appeared as soloist and chamber musician at home and in Europe. Yanivker is founder of chamber the music group Serenade Ensemble, which is highly acclaimed and enjoyed by all audiences. He has been invited for future seasons in scheduled recital performances as violin soloist and chamber musician.

Hurwitz began his studies of the violin and viola at age eight. He earned degrees in music from Indiana University and The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., studying with the great viola and violin virtuosos William Primrose and Oscar Shumsky. Following service as Viola Soloist in the U.S. Marine Band White House Orchestra and String Quartet in Washington, D.C., Hurwitz spent a season performing with the Rotterdam Philharmonic Orchestra. He served as Principal Violist of the Indianapolis Symphony, and 31 years as a member of the Toronto Symphony. He has appeared as soloist and in chamber music concerts in the U.S., Canada and Europe, as well as on CBC radio and television and continues to perform chamber music as a member of the Hurwitz-Yanivker Duo.

The concert takes place at St. James' Anglican Church, Caledon East. Tickets are $25 for adults and $10 for students 16 years and younger and may be purchased at the door.

The proceeds will be shared between St. James' and Caledon Chamber Concerts.

Senior Saviour Solutions aims to answer seniors' wants and needs

By Bill Rea

It is often hard to find the services that seniors both need and actually want.

Bolton resident Stephanie Anderton is trying to fill that gap.

She recently launched Senior Saviour Solutions, a free service aimed at helping seniors help themselves.

"For me, the journey is very personal," she said, recalling the experience when her first husband was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease while he was a relatively young man. "Fifteen years ago, there wasn't nearly as much available as there is now," she remarked, adding it sometimes takes some doing to find out about all that's there.

Anderton, an accredited life coach, aims to make available to these people the best quality of life possible.

The service starts with a free consultation, with the issue often being whether the senior should stay at home, or be moved to another facility.

"Together, we can figure it out," she said.

In a lot of cases, if they stay in their homes, they will need help, and Anderton said there are different people available who can offer that assistance.

"There's a whole bunch of things," she declared. "You name it. We can help."

Anderton likened it to more of an alliance.

She said it's often hard for seniors to ask for the help they require, so the focus is taking the stress off them.

Anderton said her role is to connect with the seniors and help them find out both what they want and need. She recalled when dealing with her husband's illness, there were lots of people telling them what was needed, but not as much attention paid to what was wanted.

"Part of this is very much driven by my own experience and my own passion," she said.

Senior Saviour Solutions is operating out of Anderton's home, but she was quick to point out it will really be operating out of her clients' homes, as she works to connect them with what's available.

"My focus is on the seniors," she said, adding she will make sure they're aware of what they want, along with the costs involved.

For more information, go to www.senior-savioursolutions.ca or phone 905-857-3077.

Winter coat drive starting

The Caledon branch of the Navy League of Canada and Krystian's Menswear in Orangeville are partnering again this year for a winter coat drive.

People in the community are asked to donate gently-used winter coats in order to help keep someone warm over the coming winter. Men's women's teens' and childrens coats are needed, and all items have to be on the good, clean condition.

Coats will be collected between Oct. 1 and Nov. 30.

Innocence is important in our system

In the great scheme of things, it's not going to attract a lot of attention.

Indeed, we think it would be a safe bet that most of you don't know that tomorrow (Oct. 2) is Wrongful Conviction Day. Caledon councillors passed a proclamation to that effect at their meeting this week.

This was at the request of the Association in Defence of the Wrongly Convicted (AIDWYC).

As the name implies, AIDWYC is a Canadian, non-profit organization with a mandate to identify, advocate for and exonerate people who have been convicted of crimes they did not commit and to prevent wrongful convictions through legal education and reform.

We all like to think of Canada as a just society, where the rule of law is paramount and the rights of those accused of crimes are protected. Indeed, we often hear complaints that the accused have too many rights, at the expense of the victims.

But no matter who has how many rights, it is a sad, and even frightening fact that our system, for want of a better term, sometimes blows it. And no matter how noble the intentions are of those who make the mistakes, or how honourable they might be, such incidents harm those who are wrongly convicted, as well as those close to them. They also harm the victims. No victim of crime ever benefits when they lock up the wrong guy.

As well, council's motion made the point that wrongful convictions result in questions about the integrity and fairness of the criminal justice system, undermining trust in that system.

Does it happen often? Alas, we have no way of knowing for sure. There have been a couple of well-publicized cases. Names like Robert Baltovich, David Milgaard and Guy Paul Morin spring to mind. All three of these men were convicted of murder, and all three of those convictions were subsequently thrown out. And the worrisome thing is these are cases we found out about.

There are, of course, cases when everyone knows the right person has been found and sent away.

On the other hand, people were pretty sure some 55 years ago that they got the right guy when 14-year-old Steven Truscott was sentenced to hang for the murder of Lynne Harper. He was acquitted by the Ontario Court of Appeal in 2007.

Fortunately, we live in a country that no longer puts criminals to death, but there's still the question of how many innocents went to the gallows.

Canadian statesman Thomas D'Arcy McGee was assassinated in 1868, and Patrick James Whelan was hanged the following year for the act. There is considerable evidence that an innocent man was executed.

The system we have here in Canada is a pretty good one. Indeed, we think most people would have a very hard time coming up with something better. But it is certainly not perfect, which means all of us have an obligation to push for improvement.

Even if cases of wrongful conviction are rare, they still happen, who knows who the next person will be to endure something like that.

Most of us meet the basic qualification, namely innocence.

A generous donation, but was it intended?

Caledon Community Services (CCS) operates two fabulous thrill-of-the-find thrift stores in Caledon.

Chez Thrift on Queen Street has clothing and smaller household articles and the ReUstore on Industrial Road has household furnishings and much more. Donations are gladly accepted. They are top-notch quality and the prices for re-sell cannot be beat!

We recently received a donation at at Chez Thrift and inside the donated article was a very large sum of money; enough to take a nice trip during the nasty cold of winter. A sizeable sum indeed!

We are always grateful for the community's kindness in donating items they no longer use. Last year, our salvage operations and stores' sales generated almost $700,000 in revenue. Once we paid for the cost of our operations, all of the net proceeds were put right back into community services. That amounts to lots of rides for seniors, healthy food for families and warm houses over the winter.

If you recently made a donation to one of our stores and inadvertently left money in the article donated, please send an email to info@ccs4u.org

Please provide a description of the article donated and the amount of money you accidentally left inside. We'll then be in touch with you.

CCS would very much like to get this money back to its rightful owner.

People find demolition derbies fun

I think most people have a certain fascination with wrecked automobiles.

I always did as a kid. It was always something as a thrill to see a tow truck with the lights flashing, knowing there was a good chance there had been a smash-up of some description.

I was a very little kid at the time, maybe five, so I knew very little about damage, the costs, insurance, injuries or fatalities.

Some kids never seem to grow up, because we all know there are plenty of adults with the same fascination. It's well documented that car accidents slow traffic down, partly because the wrecked vehicles block lanes, but more because the drivers passing the scene have to pause to take a look.

How many times have we heard radio traffic reporters ask people to keep moving? I personally make a point of not slowing down more than I have to, and not looking at the carnage. If I'm working and am covering the accident scene for the newspaper, I'm probably looking for a place to park. If not, then I have somewhere else to be and better things to do than slow everyone else down.

Besides, I'm enough of a nice guy to get out of the way so the rubberneck behind me can get the good look he or she wants.

I may not completely understand the attraction, but I know better than to argue with the mob. Thus it comes as no surprise that demolition derbies attract crowds. I've seen it lots of times, and I saw it yet again Friday night at Bolton Fall Fair.

That's very easy to understand, since Friday was a very pleasant evening for late summer or early fall, depending on where we currently are on the calendar.

Under such conditions, the opening night of any fair is going to carry a certain amount of appeal.

But last Saturday was a different story at Brampton Fall Fair, also held in Caledon. The weather during the day was less than outstanding, and the crowds were noticeably down, at least in the morning and early afternoon. I returned to the grounds in the evening because I wanted to get pictures from the Demolition Derby. Despite what I stated above, it's rather nice to take pictures of cars being wrecked without having to worry about accompanying anguish, injuries and mangled human bodies.

Great minds must think alike, because the grounds were packed, even if the evening wasn't too appealing. People were bundled up against the cold. The place was so full, it took me a while to find a decent vantage point for pictures.

Weather conditions were radically different between the two nights, but the crowds were equally impressive. They were large and it was obvious that just about everyone was having a good time. And one of the main things a fall fair is supposed to be is fun.

My lack of understanding actually puzzles me a bit. When I was a bigger kid (meaning older than five), I used to watch Wide World of Sports every Saturday afternoon, and they would occasionally have one of these demolition derbies on. I quite enjoyed them, if for no other reason than they were somewhat unconventional, at least in terms of sports. We will hear endless debates on who's the greatest golfer, or tennis player, boxer, runner, baseball player, etc. I'll bet none of you can tell me who's in the running to be the world's greatest car wrecker (and guys, please don't send me emails citing your wife or teenage kids).

I think one of the main reasons my mind changed about these events is I learned how to drive. Thus concepts like damage, injuries and insurance rates became a reality for me.

I have had a few accidents in 40 some years that I've had my licence. Most of them have been rear-enders, and in all but one of those cases, I have been the victim. The roughest one came when a woman bumped into my brand new car (it was to date the most expensive car I had ever bought, and I had had it less than two weeks) about 16 years ago. It really wasn't my fault — the law requires me to stop for red lights. It was my new car that got dinged, but it was the woman who did the dinging who was the most upset. I spent most of the experience fearing that she was about to burst into tears, and was doing everything I could think of to calm her down, up to and including the cracking of jokes.

"Thanks for being so understanding," she muttered as we parted, after exchanging the necessary information (insurance, etc.)

It, therefore, takes a certain amount of mental gymnastics for me to get my head completely around the idea of destroying automobiles in the interest of fun or entertainment.

Yet, there's no doubt the spectacle is popular. I've realized that for years, the crowds I have observed over the last couple of weeks only confirms that. And as I already commented, who am I to stand in the way of other people's fun? Besides, these things are run very professionally, with safety evidently being a prime consideration. Firefighters are well represented in the pit. And the drivers know what they're getting into, so they would also know how to take care of themselves.

But I reflected a bit on it all Friday night as I was taking pictures of the happy mayhem at the Fairgrounds.

Next time you're at a demolition derby, and you feel like a bit of a diversion from all the action, take a look at the field. Pick a car, any car. Then think back a couple of years, when that automobile was proudly sitting in a showroom, all bright, glimmering and spanking new. Think of the man or woman who was happily making out a cheque for a hell of a lot of money to buy that car. Think of that wonderful smell that comes only from a brand new car. Did the original owner ever think that such a spectacle would be its eventual destiny? And what about the people of the assembly line who built it? I'll bet not one of them ever wistfully thought, "This car's going to win the Demolition Derby at Bolton Fall Fair."

On the other hand, the car I'm currently driving is seven-years-old, and is definitely showing its age (after more than 320,000 kilometres, I would expect that). I'm hoping to get another couple of years out of it, yet I know the day will come when we must part. I'm in the habit of driving the guts out of my cars. Thus, when it comes time to trade them in, I walk into the showroom expecting very little, so I'm seldom disappointed.

But it has occurred to me that something might happen to my current wheels after that parting that I might not have bargained for. Some person might lay his or her hands on it and enter it into a demolition derby.

Good luck to them, but I don't want to see it.

Jones requests Deputy Chief of Staff's resignation

Last week, the OPP announced that Liberal fundraiser Gerry Lougheed Jr. has been charged for his involvement in the Sudbury byelection scandal.

The charges stem from his allegedly attempting to offer a job or an appointment to former Liberal candidate Andrew Olivier to not run as the Liberal candidate in the byelection. The charges against him include one count of counselling an offence not committed, and one count of unlawfully influencing or negotiating appointments.

Earlier this year, Andrew Olivier released his recordings of his conversations with Lougheed and the Premier's Deputy Chief of Staff Pat Sorbara that allegedly show he was offered jobs in exchange for not running as the Liberal candidate. Subsequently, Chief Electoral Officer Greg Essensa released a report on the scandal, in which he believes Lougheed and Sorbara contravened the Elections Act. As a result, two investigations were launched by the OPP into these serious allegations.

As a result of their investigation, the OPP have charged Lougheed. The fact is there is still an ongoing investigation into whether Sorbara violated the Elections

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

Since the recent announcement by the OPP, both opposition parties have questioned the Liberal government with questions ranging from having Sorbara step down, and calling for the Premier's resignation. I led off during Question Period demanding that the Premier remove Sorbara from her office while these charges are before the courts. However, the Premier has continued to support Sorbara and has disregarded these serious allegations against her staff.

There are an unprecedented four OPP investigations into this government's actions, including the deletion of emails regarding the decision to cancel the Mississauga and Oakville gas plants, the Ornge Air Ambulance Service scandal and the OPP investigation into the violation of the Elections Act.

Peel board urges Prime Minister to welcome more refugees

The Peel District School Board has sent a letter to Prime Minister Stephen Harper, urging him to do what's in the best interests of children and their families from war-torn countries — to increase the number of refugees accepted by Canada, and to review and revise the process to make it faster.

"Through our three We Welcome the World Centres, we have had the privilege of welcoming refugees from Syria and other war-torn areas to our community, and to our schools," commented Janet McDougald, chair of the board. "We have seen the impact the conflict has had on families — children who have lost both parents, who arrive without any formal schooling due to the conflict in their country, and some who have experienced such trauma that they are unable to speak. It is impossible to experience this process and not feel the impact, and understand the need for Canada, as a country, to do even more. To welcome more refugees — to make the process faster — to bring them to schools and communities that are safe havens for children and families."

The Peel board operates three We Welcome the World Centres in Brampton, Malton, and Mississauga to welcome families new to Peel and get their children registered for school. The centres are funded by Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC).

CIC provides funding for programs that help newcomers overcome barriers and obtain useful information in a timely manner to make informed settlement-related decisions. These programs also encourage them to build networks within their communities and to participate fully in Canadian society.

Coyote reported at Island Lake Conservation Area

Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) is advising area residents and visitors of Island Lake Conservation Area that a potentially aggressive coyote has been reported on the Baker Link Trail, connecting the Vicki Barron Lakeside Trail to the Town of Mono.

"Visitors of the park should avoid the Baker Link and use the Island Lake Trail as an alternative route to connect to the lakeside trail," said Bill Lidster, operations manager for the north zone at CVC. "We have posted signs at the Baker Link to alert visitors of the alternate route. It's very important that people remain aware. Coyotes are generally afraid of humans and will usually avoid contact."

If you encounter a coyote, keep your distance and the animal will likely avoid you. The Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry offers the following tips if

- You encounter an aggressive animal:
- Never approach or touch a wild animal;
- Do not turn your back or run from a wild animal;
- Back away from the animal while remaining calm;
- Stand tall, wave your hands, and make lots of noise;
- Carry a flashlight at night.

If a wild animal poses an immediate threat or danger to public safety, call 9-1-1.

CVC reminds visitors to conservation areas to keep pets on a leash of six feet (1.8 metres) or less at all times. Off-leash dogs are at risk of coyote or other wildlife attacks. Conservation areas are natural spaces and coyotes can be present, and encounters can potentially occur. Be aware of surroundings when enjoying the outdoors.

Consultation coming on plan for Bolton heritage conservation

A community consultation meeting is planned for Oct. 6 with a presentation and discussion about the draft Village of Bolton Heritage Conservation District (HCD) Plan and Guidelines.

The draft Village of Bolton HCD Plan is posted online at caledon.ca/BoltonHCD and is available in hard copy at the Development Approval and Planning Policy counter at Town Hall.

The session will be in the Egan Room at Rotary Place, 7 Rotarian Way in Bolton. It will run from 6:30 to 9 p.m., with the presentation beginning at 7.

Niqab isn't a religious requirement

NATIONAL AFFAIRS
Claire Hoy

Regular readers will know your humble correspondent is, ideologically speaking, right of centre in fiscal and social terms.

And so it is, like all people who read and watch the news, there is a tendency to view everything through a personal prism and conclude that your viewpoint gets short shrift. Sometimes this is not true, but other times, alas, it is.

Take the case of the mainstream media coverage of the current debate over whether Muslim activist Zunera Ishaq — or anybody else — should be allowed to cover her face while swearing the oath of allegiance to Canada.

You will know, of course, that Prime Minister Stephen Harper has consistently argued that "it is offensive that someone would hide their identity at the very moment where they are committing to join the Canadian family."

You will also know that various public opinion polls show the vast majority of Canadians — 82 per cent in a recently-released poll of 3,000 respondents — agree with Harper, believing it does not make any sense to hide your face the citizenship ceremony.

On the other hand, two courts — the Federal Court last February and the Federal Court of Appeal two weeks ago — ruled that Ishaq should be able to wear her niqab.

In addition, both NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair and Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau argue that Ishaq has every right to wear her niqab — a complete face-covering some Muslim women wear — and essentially accuse Harper (and by extension, one assumes, the vast majority of Canadians) of being racist.

Federal Court Justice Keith Boswell said in his earlier decision that, "To the extent this policy interferes with a citizenship judge's duty to allow candidates for citizenship the greatest possible freedom in the religious solemnization of the solemn affirmation of oath, it is unlawful."

That argument might work if, in fact, the niqab were a religious requirement. But it is not. It is merely a cultural preference, which makes you wonder what on earth Boswell is talking about.

The recent Court of Appeal ruling in her favour was rushed through in order to give Ishaq to get her citizenship in time to vote in the Oct. 19 election. That court essentially acknowledged it wasn't a religious requirement but was her strong preference and therefore she should be allowed to wear her niqab. Amazing.

In last week's French language election debate — where Bloc Quebecois Leader Gilles Duceppe joined Harper in supporting the ban on face coverings during the citizenship ceremony (opposition to the niqab is stronger in Quebec than anywhere else in Canada) — Trudeau accused Harper and Duceppe of sowing fear and division. "My position is clear. I believe that just as a man cannot impose his will on how a woman dresses, we shouldn't have a state dictating how a woman cannot dress."

This is a bit rich coming from a guy who decreed — with no discussion or debate among his elected members — that anybody running for the Liberals must be pro-life. Period. End of story. Talk about imposing your will.

Nobody argues she can't wear her niqab in her normal day-to-day activities. We're talking here about a citizenship ceremony, for heaven's sake.

Harper argued that, "Our position for a long time has been that when you join the Canadian family, you should not hide your identity, and that is why we think new citizens should wear the oath with their face uncovered. Mr. Mulcair, I will never tell my young daughter that a woman should cover her face because she is a woman."

To which Mulcair responded, "Do not attack the woman. Attack the oppressor if you believe there is oppression."

Oh please. Ishaq has freely chosen to cover her face, not because she's forced to, or because it's a religious requirement, but because she wants to make a political statement.

Naturally, most of the media — typically out of step with the general public — is busy accusing Harper of a) lacking tolerance (which means he doesn't agree with their view; and b) — as the Tory-hating Toronto Star wrote, "... political opportunism ... worse, political opportunism in the middle of an election campaign ... (and) trolling for votes."

There might be some validity to that if, in fact, Harper suddenly announced his position in the middle of the campaign, but, as everyone knows, he's held that position for years.

Would the Star prefer he flip-flop in mid-campaign? Apparently.

Here's the point: there's an underlying assumption in most Canadian political coverage that Mulcair and Trudeau — both small "l" liberals — actually believe what they're saying. But when it comes to Harper, a dreaded Conservative, well, he clearly can't be trusted.

The bias is palpable. And it will get worse as election day nears. Count on it.

Golden Hawks winless through first four outings

By Jake Courtepatte

It's been a rough start to the 2015-16 season for the Caledon Golden Hawks, still looking for a notch in the win column after two weeks.

With five days off to recover from a third period meltdown at home against Huntsville, the junior C squad took to the ice with the Midland Flyers Friday with an 0-2 record. Veteran Sam Procopio was back between the pipes, working alternate starts with newcomer Branden Macham.

He was locked in a goaltender battle with his counterpart Tim Bester until the dying seconds of the first period, with both goalies turning aside a dozen shots before Flyers' leading scorer Matt Smith found the back of the net.

From there the floodgates opened, with Midland beating Procopio three more times in the second and opening up a sizable 4-0 lead. Bester stood tall until the midway point of the final frame, with Kevin Pleasance finally breaking up the shutout, but much too late in the game. Midland cruised to a 6-1 victory.

On the bright side, Pleasance could celebrate a milestone as it was his first junior goal in his second year with the Hawks.

Stayner entered the arena in Caledon East Sunday night riding a two-game winning streak, and took that momentum to the Hawks. Macham's luck in net didn't seem to improve over Procopio's early on, giving up the first goal of the game with James Pitsadiotis in the box for a hard cross-check.

Ryan Mouser tied it up for the Hawks minutes later, notching his first goal of the 2015-16 campaign. They would leave the first period down 2-1, but with an extended five-on-three opportunity to start the second after a couple Stayner players lost their cool near the buzzer.

The Hawks would take full advantage of the situation, with perennial goal scorer Daniel Cafagna and Tyler Whitten each notching power-play markers to give their team their first lead of the game.

Pleasance added another to give the Hawks their best chance at a 'W' so far this season with a 4-2 lead and less than 25 minutes to play.

But a defensive breakdown was the cause of two Stayner goals two minutes apart that tied the game heading to the final period.

Five minutes in, Stayner's Kyle Paulitzki beat Macham with the eventual game winner. Macham stopped 26 of 31 shots in the loss.

The Hawks face the Schomberg Cougars for the first time this season on the road tonight (Thursday), before looking to avenge last week's loss to the Otters in a day game in Huntsville Sunday.

For stats, schedules, and more information, visit www.jrcgoldenhawks.pointstreaksites.com

Golden Hawk Ryan Mouser battles down low for the puck with Flyer Jon Goldsworthy. Caledon lost on the road in Midland 6-1 on Friday.

Close start in men's hockey

Ron Sampson was the Caledon Senior Hockey League's strong man last Monday night, firing three goals and four assists to lead Yale Lift Trucks to a 7-3 thrashing of Fines Ford Lincoln.

In the other games, Rutherford Global Logistics downed Jiffy Lube Oilers 7-2 and Bolton Chiropractic Centre and Heart Lake Insurance split a 4-4 game.

The Rutherford crew have the early lead in the standings after two weeks of play, but things are pretty tight so far.

Sept. 21

Yale 7, Fines Ford 3

Sampson may have found himself on the carpet at Fines Ford last week as his big night came at the expense of his employer.

Also enjoying good games for Yale were James Heenan with three assists, Bill Davis with two goals and Stefan Pacula, who notched two assists. Dan Tasson scored the other Yale goal with single assists going to Greg Twinney, Robert Masutti and Rich Petrie.

Paul Speck paced the Car Jockeys with two goals and an assist. Peter Kuchar made a splashy CSHL debut with a goal and an assist. Goaltender Vanni DiMarco eased the pain from Sampson by garnering a single assist. James Hardman and John Pallotta also had one assist each.

Rutherford 7, Jiffy Lube 2

Gary Hughes was the spark plug for Rutherford with three goals and an assist.

Also carrying a hot stick was veteran forward Scott Sinclair, who scored two goals. Jim Pitre struck for a goal and two assists while Joe Palumbo notched a goal and one assist. Gary Stewart and David Shoalts both had two assists. Single assists went to Rick Geiger, John Pitsadiotis and Bill Frolick.

Mike Lo Dico and Jeff Boyles scored for Jiffy Lube. The assists came from Dave Smith, Peter Coghill, Brian Fetterly and Mike McNamara.

Bolton Chiropractic 4 Heart Lake 4

Heart Lake fell behind 4-1 after two periods and then stormed back for the tie, led by Greg Frangakas, who potted three goals.

Rod Sinclair scored the other one for the Insurance Boys. Victor Marrelli had two assists while one each went to Ian Kerr, Brian Samuel and Frank Cirone.

Nick Taccogna led the Chiropractors with two goals and an assist with Jim Moyer chipping in a goal and two assists. Mike Shore had a goal and one assist with single assists coming from Mike Gasparini, Jim Horan and Sam Genova.

Sept. 14

All three games opening night were decided by two goals or less, with the winning goal in one coming just at the final buzzer.

CSHL rookie Pitre scored just before the clock ran out to give Rutherford a 3-2 win over Heart Lake. In the other games, Bolton Chiropractic edged Yale 4-3 and Fines Ford downed Jiffy Lube 4-2.

Fines Ford 4, Jiffy Lube 2

The line of Pallotta, Speck and John Castellucci proved to be too much for Jiffy Lube as it produced two third-period goals for the win.

Pallotta led the way with two goals and an assist while Castellucci had three assists and Speck had two. John Crossley and Hardman scored the other goals for Fines, with Gary Faultless and Dave Armstrong collecting one helper each.

Jim Rogers scored both Jiffy Lube goals with assists from Bill Doherty, Smith and Garry Hoxey.

Rutherford 3, Heart Lake 2

Rutherford blew a 2-0 lead in late in the third period, but Pitre managed to pull out the win for them with the buzzer-beater goal.

Howard Wight and Hughes assisted on the winner. Geiger and Steve Tarasco scored the other Rutherford goals. Wight finished with two assists while Hughes, Tarasco, Pitsadiotis and Frolick had one each.

Marrelli and Tony Dinis scored for Heart Lake in the third period, with assists going to Chris Spilar, Frangakas and Samuel.

Bolton Chiropractic 4, Yale 3

Gary Moss scored two goals for the Chiropractors while Moyer had two assists.

Horan notched a goal and an assist with Taccogna scoring the other goal. Single assists went to Gasparini, Genova, Bill Moyer, Bob McHardy and Ted Callighen.

Heenan, Twinney and Bruno Fracassi scored for Yale and all three goals were unassisted.

Captain Canada Ian Millar wins the Caledon Cup

By Bill Rea

Ian Millar is this year's winner of the Caledon Cup.

He claimed the title Sunday after emerging victorious in the $75,000 Caledon Cup Championship — Phase 3, at the Canadian Show Jumping Tournament, held at the Caledon Pan Am Equestrian Park in Palgrave.

Millar, riding Teddy du Bosquetiau, belonging to Emily Kinch, was among 34 horse-and-rider combinations entered in Sunday's event, and among the six that made it to the jump off. He turned in a clear round in the second outing, doing it in 44.49 seconds, less than a second faster than his nearest competitors.

Surprisingly, there was a tie for second place. Olympic team silver medalist Mac Cone of King City was clear in the jump off aboard Gasper van den Doorn, with a time of 45.31. But Hyde Moffatt of Brantford, riding Egor, was clear in exactly the same time.

"That's weird," Cone remarked later. Conor Swail from Ireland, but who's currently based out of Cheltenham, completed the jump off in an impressive 41.56 seconds on Grafton, but he knocked down a rail in the process, leaving him in fourth.

Leslie Burr-Howard of Darien, Connecticut, was fifth on Utah, followed by Isabelle Lapierre of Levis, Quebec, riding Cescha M.

Millar's daughter Amy was the winner in the second phase of the competition, a $35,000 event Friday, riding Heros.

The pair put in a good showing Sunday, jumping clear in the first round. Unfortunately for them, however, they took more than a second too long to do it, and ended up with a time fault. They ended up in seventh place. Vanessa Mannix of Calgary was also clear on Gerand Cru VD

Vijk Eiken, but they were more than two seconds too slow. Jonathon Millar also picked up a single fault riding Star Power, and that kept him out of the jump off.

Ian Millar had another mount in the competition, Dixon, the 12-year-old bay Belgian Warmblood gelding owned by Susan and Ariel Grange, which he rode to team gold in the recent Pan Am Games. Dixon made too much of a splash at the water jump, however, and ended up with four faults and 13th place in the final standings.

He wasn't too put out that his main mount didn't make it to the winner's circle. "Dixon's had a very full year," he observed, adding the unpredictability is one of the big appeals of show jumping. Besides, Teddy du Bosquetiau is no stranger to major competition. Kinch rode the a 12-year-old Belgian Sport Horse gelding in the Pan Am Games, competing for Barbados.

"I just got the ride a week ago Tuesday," he remarked. "Obviously, I couldn't be more pleased with his performance."

He added it usually takes up to a year for a rider to develop a good partnership with is mount.

Sunday's course, designed by Bernardo Cabral of Portugal, was an exacting one, taking a toll on the competitors. Three riders withdrew in the middle of their rounds. There were 16 others who collected time faults. The first element in a double combination near the end of the course provided a lot of grief for many competitors. At least 16 riders knocked a rail down there.

Millar agreed that was a complicated jump, which the horses had to approach at a difficult angle. Coming late in the course, he said riders, aware of the time, might have approached it too fast. Or if they were too direct in the approach, the horse might have been confused.

"It was a real trick to get it right," he concluded.

Cone was pleased with the performance of his mount, a nine-year-old belonging to Mark Samuel of Chadburn Holdings Inc. of King City.

"I have a good horse," he said. "I've been riding it most of the season."

"He just feels like he's quite a special horse," Cone added.

The Caledon Cup, held annually at the CSI2* Canadian Show Jumping Tournament, is comprised of three phases. Darrin Dlin of Calgary won the opening phase, the $10,000 Caledon Cup – Phase One, presented by Equestrian Management Group, last Thursday

Friday evening saw 34 grand prix competitors headed indoors for the first time in the Canadian Show Jumping Tournament's history, making full use of the Caledon Pan Am Equestrian Park's legacy from the Games.

This jump caused problems for horses and riders all afternoon, but Ian Millar had no trouble getting Teddy du Bosquetiau over it, on his way to winning Sunday's event.

DEATHS DEATHS

EVANS, ANN

Suddenly on Sept 26, in her 87th year. The sunflowers lining her laneway bow their heads in sorrow as we bid goodbye to a beloved mother, nanny, sister, friend and neighbour. Loving mother to Gayle (Stephen), JoAnn, Judy (Michael) & Jim . Proud Nanny to Samantha. Dear sister to Reg and sister in law to Doris and Ross. "Auntie Ann" to countless friends and family alike.

The community of Camilla, where Ann lived for 63 years, will surely miss her and those amazing butter tarts. Ann's many treasured friends will be lost without the phone calls, road trips and visits, for tea and snacks or a swim. And what of her many canine friends who have lost their home away from home? We will miss her more than words can express.

A Celebration event is to be held at Ann's farm 594197 Blindline, Mono, on Saturday, October 10th from 1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m., remarks at 2:00 p.m. Those lucky enough to have received one of Ann's Knitted creations might want to show it off. Donations to OSPCA or CNIB in lieu of flowers. Arrangements entrusted to In Memoriam Transfer Service Inc. Online donations and condolences at www.inmemoriamts.ca

Sadly missed by her nieces, nephews and many friends.

MEMORIAM

John O. Bible
Feb 28, 1944 - Sept 28, 2008

Once had something special
That money couldn't buy
I had a special person
But I had to say goodbye.

If I was asked one question -
"Why I thought the world of you"
I could give a million answers
And they all would be true.

The heartache and the sadness
May not always show
People say it lessens
But little do they know.

John, meet me in my dreams
And talk to me once more
And ease this everlasting pain
That makes my heart so sore.

The road without you is very long
A tear for every mile
But I know one day
When I reach the end
John, you will be waiting
With your smile.

You'll always live inside of me,
Deep within my heart.

Love, Marie
I wish there were visiting hours in Heaven!

Lindsay Wren

Nov. 3, 1977 - Oct. 2, 2000

Lindsay's always in our hearts

How to be Lindsay
Laugh as often as you can
Count the dots on a ladybug
Make Friends with Freedom
Take a nap
Buy shoes to cheer yourself up
Buy shoes if you're already happy
Fall asleep in a breeze
Cry at movies
Giggle with children
Listen to old people
Wear your heart on your sleeve
Be free
Be mischievous
Pretend you have an accent
Get wet
Give stars your own name
Listen to the wind
And answer if you feel like it
Be who you are.

FIVE BENEFITS OF NETWORKING

Chamber membership provides members with an opportunity to have a positive impact on their business community and to be part of a worldwide business network.

The Chamber is a membership organization and participation presents excellent networking opportunities. Your local Chamber typically hosts a variety of events throughout the year including Awards Ceremonies, Business After 5 meetings, Industry Luncheons, Golf Tournaments and Home Shows. These are great places to hone your networking skills.

Whether you are new to the Chamber or long time member, as an entrepreneur, networking is a key activity that is not only fun, but critical to your personal growth and business development.

Small business in particular is all about networking, building relationships and taking action.

Building and growing a successful business takes a lot of time and drive, so it's good to have a network of friends and associates to draw energy from and to keep you motivated and growing. Here are 5 benefits of networking within the Chamber;

1. SHARED KNOWLEDGE

Networking is great for sharing ideas and knowledge. Whether it's asking for feedback or discussing your point of view, it will help you expand your knowledge and allow you to see things from another perspective. It is also likely that within a group there will be those who have already been where you are today. This provides you with an opportunity to learn and avoid some of the common pitfalls they experienced.

2. OPPORTUNITIES

It's natural that networking will result in opportunities. The thing you will not know is when or how they will materialize. Whether it's a referral, offer partnership or request for your service or product, it is important to be ready to seize opportunities when they come along.

3. CONNECTIONS

Remember you are not just gaining exposure to the people in the room, you are building connections with their network too. If someone they know has a need that matches your business, if you have made an impression, you will likely get a referral. And remember it's not just a one-way street. If someone in your network matches a business you encounter at an event, don't hesitate to share their details. It will only strengthen your relationship.

4. INCREASED CONFIDENCE

By regularly networking, and pushing yourself to talk to people you don't know, it will help increase your confidence. This is an important attribute as a business owner because your business growth is dependent on talking to people and making connections.

5. RAISING YOUR PROFILE

Being visible and getting noticed is a big benefit of networking. By regularly attending business and social events, people will begin to recognize you. This can help you build your reputation as a knowledgeable, reliable and supportive person who offers useful information or tips to people who need it. You are also more likely to get more leads and referrals as you will be the one that pops into their head when they need what you offer.

When developing or enhancing your business plan remember membership in your local Chamber makes you a referable business by an organization who's branding is synonymous with good business and by business colleagues who will know and trust you. It's an affordable effective way to build your brand and get connected with your community at the same time.

In the next couple of months make an effort to network at the following events;

Town of Caledon Mayors Luncheon (Oct 6), Stars & Stiletto's Gala & Business/Woman of the Year (Nov 26), Business After 5 (BA5), Business Excellence Awards. All the information on these events is available by calling 905-857-7393 or www.caledonchamber.com

Your Chamber held a successful and informative 2 hour debate with the Caledon-Dufferin Federal Candidates earlier this month. Our best wishes go out to all the Candidates and we look forward to working together with the next area Member of Parliament. We urge all registered voters to go to the polls on October 19th.
