Town voicing opposition to sale of Hydro One

By Bill Rea

The town is joining with other municipalities in calling on the province to stop plans to sell off Hydro One.

The plan to sell part of the utility was announced in the Provincial budget earlier this year.

Caledon councillors Tuesday passed a resolution calling on the Provincial government "to halt the sale of any part of Hydro One, and maintain Hydro One as a public asset for the benefit of All Ontarians."

The motion also called on the Province to respect the autonomy and local decision-making powers of distribution companies by not forcing them into mergers or sales.

The preamble to the motion stated "the public electricity system in Ontario is a critical asset to the economy and vital to the living standard and well-being of all Ontarians."

It also stressed the need that the utility remain in public control, citing experiences in other jurisdictions that indicate privatization can mean greater costs for consumers.

As well, the motion warned that a privatized Hydro One will not be subject to the scrutiny of such officials as the Auditor General, Ombudsman, Financial Accountability Officer or Integrity Commissioner. It also stated the government has no mandate from the voters to sell any part of the utility.

There was no opposition at the council table to the intent of the motion, but Councillor Rob Mezzapelli had some problems with the timing. It was not on Tuesday's agenda, coming up as a matter of urgent business.

Peel Region has reported garbage and recycling (blue box, green bin and yard waste) will be picked up the regularly scheduled collection day.

Councillor Nick deBoer, who moved it, said a number of other municipalities have already take such stands, and that the Province is moving forward with the sale.

"I think we have to add our voice," deBoer commented. Mezzapelli was concerned that he wasn't given more

No change in garbage collection

This coming Monday (Oct. 12) is Thanksgiving, but that will result in no change to the garbage collection schedule in Caledon.

Peel Region has reported garbage and recycling (blue box, green bin and yard waste) will be picked up the regularly scheduled collection day.

time to study the issue, adding he likes to have all the facts to go over before he makes a decision. He also said he had no way of knowing then and there that all the points made in the preamble were correct.

But other councillors were ready to take the action.

Councillor Annette Groves thanked de-Boer for bringing it forward, stating the Province has been told municipalities are not in favour of this plan. She said Premier Kathleen Wynne spoke at the recent meeting of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario (AMO), and representatives of 44 municipalities made their opposition clear.

Groves was also not pleased with the idea of privatization.

"Take a look at the 407," she said. "Your fees have skyrocketed. There are no controls on it."

She also said Wynne had stated proceeds from the sale will cover infrastructure issues.

"Once the money is gone, it's gone," Groves said.

Councillor Doug Beffort said his concern was with seniors. He said most seniors' housing is heated by electricity, so fee increases would be at the mercy of private corporations.

The motion called for copies of the resolution to be distributed to the Premier, Minister of Finance, Minister of Energy, area MPPs and AMO. Councillor Jennifer Innis wanted that list expanded to include Peel Region and all MPPs in Peel.

'Make the Connection' with your baby at CPCC

The parent-child relationship is at the heart of healthy child development.

It is an important connection that affects secure attachment, brain and language development, social and emotional well-being, and general success in school. This fall, Caledon Parent-Child Centre (CPCC) is once again presenting Make The Connection: Birth to One, a parenting program designed to help strengthen the parent-infant relationship.

Make the Connection is an experiential, strength based, nine-session education series for parents with infants from birth to 12 months of age. The program focuses uniquely on the parent-child attachment relationship. Through interactive group participation, parents will learn the skills necessary to establish loving relationships, foster two-way communication and nurture the curiosity behind a baby's drive to explore and learn. Parent Educators will guide parents using hands-on practice with reflection, videotaping and group discussion to help parents connect and communicate with their baby.

The sessions will take place Friday mornings from 10 to 11:30 a.m. beginning Oct. 23 at The Caledon Parent-Child Centre in the Albion-Bolton Community Centre. Babies accompany parents. Child care is not available. Advance registration is required on a first come, first served basis at a cost of $12 per registrant. For more information, call CPCC at 905-857-0090 or visit www.cp-cc.org

MPP Jones is Deputy PC Leader

Ontario Progressive Conservative Leader Patrick Brown appointed Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones Deputy Leader of the PC Caucus along with Leeds-Grenville MPP Steve Clark.

In addition to being named Deputy Leader, Jones was appointed PC Critic for Children and Youth Services and will continue serving on the Select Committee on Sexual Violence and Harassment.

"I look forward to this new opportunity to work with our Leader Patrick Brown as the fall legislative session begins next week to highlight the issues facing Ontarians and businesses today, including skyrocketing energy rates, excessive red tape and the Wynne Liberals' proposed job killing payroll tax — the ORPP," Jones said.

"As the Critic for Children and Youth Services, I am looking forward to working again with advocates and organizations that serve our province's future generations," she added.

Since elected in 2007, Jones has held the roles of PC Critic for the Ministry of Children and Youth Services, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Ministry of Government Services, and the Attorney General.

Altercation leads to stabbing at school in King City

By Mark Pavilons

A police investigation into a stabbing at King City Secondary School Friday led to a brief hold and secure situation.

York Regional Police reported that at 11:38 a.m. Oct. 2, they were called to the school to look into reports of a stabbing. Officers arrived and were unable to locate a victim or suspects at first.

They eventually found two victims and charged one teen with assault. The suspect in the stabbing has not been located.

Police report that a large group started an altercation off school property and a 17-year-old male was stabbed. An 18-year-old female tried to intervene and she was assaulted. Police have charged a 16-year-old male with assault and common nuisance cause injury.

The school initiated the hold and secure from roughly noon to 1 p.m., according to Licinio Miguelo, spokesperson at the York District School Board. He said a hold and secure occurs when there is a police presence in the neighbourhood of a school. The doors are locked, but classes and activities carry on as usual inside the school. It's much different, and less of an emergency, than a lock down.

Woman charged in $1.2 million fraud case

A 43-year-old woman from Bolton is facing charges in connection with a fraud investigation in Vaughan.

York Regional Police report officers with the Major Fraud Unit began an investigation of a woman suspected of defrauding her former employer of more than $1.2 million dollars. The accused allegedly provided false documentation and credentials in order to obtain an accounting position at a private company in Vaughan.

She was an employee of the company between Aug. 8, 2008 and March 31, 2014. During that time she allegedly began writing herself cheques, as well as paying bills and paying off personal debt from the company accounts. The accused apparently committed 13 different types of fraud to take money and avoid detection.

She was arrested Aug. 27 and charged in connection with fraud over $5,000, theft over $5,000 and uttering forged documents.

Drug warrant executed

A 41-year-old Caledon man is facing charges after officers from the Caledon OPP Street Crimes Unit and the Emergency Response Team executed a Controlled Drugs and Substances Act Warrant on a home in Bolton Sept. 3.

While executing the warrant, officers located a quantity of cocaine, cellular telephones, digital scales and other paraphernalia commonly used by people dealing in drugs.

The man was charged with possession for the purpose of trafficking in a Schedule I substance, trafficking in a Schedule I substance and possession of a Schedule I substance.

Fire Safety Week tips from Hydro One

Electrical fires top the list of causes for house fires in Canada and it is important to take preventive measures.

To mark the importance of Fire Safety Week, Hydro One reminds homeowners of some electrical safety tips to keep in mind.

- Keep electrical cords away from heat and water, as they can both damage the insulation and create a shock hazard.
- Avoid octopus outlets. Clusters of wires and plugs can be a fire hazard, along with using extension cords as permanent wiring.

- Put safety caps on any unused electrical outlets, especially if there are young children in the house.
- Buy appliances approved by the Canadian Standards Association (CSA) and always disconnect small appliances before cleaning them.
- When you're changing a light bulb, be sure to turn off the switch or circuit.
- If you're renovating, remember that all electrical work must be inspected and approved by the Electrical Safety Authority. This inspection must be done prior to covering any wiring with drywall or any other wall/ceiling materials.

• In the market for a new home this fall? Then an electrical inspection should be high on your list prior to signing on the dotted line. You want to ensure that your home is safe as well as know whether updates to the home's wiring are required to bring it up to code.

For more information on how to stay safe, visit www.hydroone.com/MyHome/StaySafe/Pages/StayingSafe

This is Fire Prevention Week

Oct. 4 to 10 is Fire Prevention Week. Caledon council last week passed a motion proclaiming the week in town.

The theme for the week is "Hear the beep where you sleep. Every bedroom needs a waking smoke alarm." This is being seen as a reminder of the need to have working smoke alarms installed in the home to give time for everyone to get out safely.

Two Holdens have their names on Walk of Fame

By Bill Rea

Two inductees are better than one, and that's the case this year with the Caledon Walk of Fame.

The stone commemorating Forks of the Credit area resident Beverly Holden and her grandson Jake was unveiled Saturday on the walk in Caledon East.

Mrs. Holden came to prominence competing provincially, nationally and internationally in duet synchronized swimming, winning several titles, as well as a Bronze medal at the 1955 Pan American Games. That was Canada's first medal in that sport.

Her grandson has made his mark in both judo and snowboard cross. He and his snowboard represented Canada at last year's winter Olympics in Sochi.

Mayor Allan Thompson commented on the symbolism of the Walk of Fame, being located just off the Trans Canada Trail that snakes through the Town, and which is maintained by community partnerships.

The Walk of Fame was started in 1999 to recognize people from Caledon who have made significant contributions. Others who have been recognized include film director Norman Jewison, writer Farley Mowat, choral conductor Elmer Iseler, art collectors Robert and Signe McMichael and sports entrepreneur Conn Smythe.

"Caledon has been home to exceptional people," Thompson observed.

The Holdens have been long-time residents of the area. "It's terrific that we're able to recognize their achievements," Thompson remarked.

Mrs. Holden, he said, was a trailblazer in the sport of synchronized swimming, teaming up with Diane Ferguson for the Bronze in 1955.

Mr. Holden was on the 2006 world judo team before competing in the winter Olympics.

Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson was pleased to be taking part, telling the Holdens the community "is extremely proud of your many accomplishments in sports."

"This is a wonderful moment for you both (and) for your families," commented Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones.

Speaking for himself and his grandmother, Mr. Holden expressed thanks for choosing two people for one stone for the first time.

"It's a special moment for us," he said.

He also thanked his uncle, Jeff Holden, for nominating them for the honour.

"It's a reminder of how lucky I am to be living where I do," he said.

"It's awesome."

Administrative hours changing at OPP

The Caledon OPP Extended Services Office at the Caledon Centre for Recreation and Wellness (CCRW), 14111 Regional Road 50 in Bolton, will be staffed Wednesdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Town working on getting more LED streetlights installed

By Bill Rea

The Town is stepping up its efforts to get more LED streetlights installed.

Town council recently approved a new item in this year's capital budget, to the tune of roughly $1.3 million to replace lights with light emitting diode (LED) technology.

The staff report that went to council stated there are continuous improvements with LED technology as well as benefits in terms of economic, environmental and safety factors.

Council called on staff about two years ago to look into options for bringing in

LED lighting for all new subdivisions, as well as part of the annual streetlighting retrofit programs and installing them as part of road reconstruction projects. LED lighting has previously been installed in the parking lots of numerous Town facilities, including Town Hall, Caledon Community Complex and Albion-Bolton Community Centre.

Staff explained that LED lighting relies on charged electrons that go through a semiconductor chip, which then emits light. The result is lower power consumption, which could result in energy savings of between 40 and 65 per cent. As well, LED lights don't burn out, so they last a lot longer, meaning reduced maintenance costs. They can also be dimmed in areas where a lot of lighting is not needed. They also don't contain mercury or lead.

Staff stated the Independent Electricity System Operator (IESO), which used to be known as Ontario Power Authority, offers incentives for the installation of LED lighting, and they have been improving, since the cost of lighting has been dropping.

The Town submitted an application for incentive funding, and received conditional pre-approval of funding, worth $249,272, in May. Staff also pointed out the IESO incentives are scheduled to run out at the end of the year, so they suggested the capital project be approved for this year.

The bulk of the project, a little more than $700,000, will be funded from the Town's tax-funded capital contingency reserve fund, and another $393,000 will be coming from Peel Region.

Bolton Transportation Master Plan Notice of Study Completion

The Town of Caledon and the Regional Municipality of Peel have completed a joint study to develop a Transportation Master Plan (TMP) for the community of Bolton. The purpose of the study has been to address the transportation concerns in the study area to support planning goals for the short-, medium- and long-term. The study has encompassed areas adjacent to Bolton for undertaking network analysis, goods movement characteristics, transit considerations and other broad aspects of the study.

The study followed a comprehensive multi-modal transportation master planning approach, which has included developing a transportation vision for the downtown core area.

PROCESS

The Bolton TMP has been prepared by following Phases 1 and 2 of the Municipal Class Environmental Assessment (October 2000, as amended in 2007 and 2011), which is an approved process under the Ontario Environmental Assessment Act. Master Plans are long-range plans that integrate infrastructure requirements for existing and future land uses with environmental assessment principles. While the TMP addresses need and justification at a broad community-wide level, more detailed studies related to some infrastructure components of the TMP are expected to be undertaken at a later date as part of Municipal Class EAs for infrastructure projects.

OUTCOME

The draft Bolton TMP was presented to Caledon Council on September 15, 2015, and to Peel Regional Council on September 24, 2015. Both Councils approved the TMP in principle pending the 30-day public review period that commences with issuance of this Notice. The Bolton TMP is available for review online at www.caledon.ca/btmp or in the Clerk's Department at Caledon Town Hall, 6311 Old Church Road.

Please take this opportunity to provide your written comments to Mr. Kant Chawla at the Town of Caledon or Mr. Eric Chan at the Region of Peel by November 9, 2015. The TMP will be finalized accordingly taking into consideration the received comments. Implementation of the programs and projects contained in the TMP then will begin, in accordance with the Municipal Class Environmental Assessment process.

Native plants bring all the birds to the yard

Landscaping is a source of pride for landowners.

Beautiful trees, plants and flowers with bursts of vivid colour are only part of the story. The other part is the long list of welcomed visitors. Vibrant songbirds, migrating butterflies and busy bumblebees bring life and excitement to any garden. Native plants are proven to attract more welcomed wildlife, creating a garden that's truly buzzing.

Ontario's local wildlife is perfectly adapted to Ontario's native plant species. For example, ruby-throated hummingbirds will eat nectar from cardinal flowers while pollinating them at the same time. When the cedar waxwing, a very beautiful bird, eats the berries from a red cedar, the germination rate is three times higher than if they didn't pass through a bird at all. Turtlehead flower nectar contains a "medicine" for bees to reduce intestinal parasites. So while bees are busy eating, they are healing themselves and pollinating flowers. These examples of plant-animal symbiosis result from millennia of native plants and native wildlife evolving together in the same ecosystems.

"Landowners don't need to resort to exotic foreign plants and flowers," observed Karen Bannister, a landscape architect with Credit Valley Conservation (CVC). "Native trees, shrubs and flowers can create beautiful landscapes that also provide valuable wildlife habitat."

Another benefit of native plants that all gardeners will appreciate is their lower maintenance requirements. Native plants are well adapted to local soil, water, light and heat conditions. These plants have survived on their own in southern Ontario for thousands of years. That means less time micromanaging your garden and more time enjoying it.

"Native plants attract a lot of attention from corporations and institutions looking to lower their annual maintenance costs," Bannister said.

Planting native plants is easy. CVC has developed four comprehensive booklets to help homeowners, corporations, municipalities and the landscape industry select the right native trees, plants and flowers for their specific site conditions. The booklets feature detailed information on 238 plants that are native to Southern Ontario. They are great for beginners or expert gardeners alike. Two of the booklets focus on trees, shrubs and plants that create bird habitat.

Creating habitat for local wildlife is more important than ever. Loss of habitat has been linked to decreases in certain bird and bee populations. Front yard and backyard landscaping is an opportunity to reverse the trend and help resuscitate these ailing species.

"Our cities and towns are here to stay," Bannister said. "Nature has the remarkable ability to adapt. Incorporating native plants into our gardens will make a difference."

CVC's native plant booklets are available for free as a digital download. Hardcopies can be purchased at <https://store.creditvalleyca.ca/gardening/>

David Tilson seeks re-election for the fifth time

David Tilson is a name known throughout the county for his time as our local Dufferin-Caledon MP in Ottawa. In 2004, Tilson became the riding's Member of Parliament, where he has remained unseated in each of the following elections.

Before his political career began, Mr. Tilson was a lawyer in Orangeville for 20 years. He received the designation of Queen's Counsel in 1982 and served as a Trustee on the Dufferin Board of Education as chair of their management committee.

"I've practiced law in Orangeville since 1970," said Mr. Tilson. "I was on the old Dufferin School Board, which gave me experience in education, something I feel strongly about."

"After that I sat on Orangeville Council for two terms, then served as an MPP as Queen's Park."

During his time as an MP, Mr. Tilson has served in a number of different positions, including Chair of the Standing Committee on Access to Information, Privacy and Ethics, Chair of the Bill C-2 Legislative Committee, and Chair of the Standing Committee on Citizenship and Immigration.

Locally, he has had a large focus on community, as a member of the Optimist Club of Orangeville and one of the original founders of the 3rd Orangeville Boy Scouts, Big Brothers of Orangeville and District, and the blue box program in Orangeville.

Why do you feel you would best be able to serve the residents of Dufferin-Caledon?

Mr. Tilson said that along with raising his family here, his experience in law, serving on the school board, as well as time as an MPP and Orangeville Councillor have helped give him the edge he needs to represent the riding to the best of his ability.

"I know the riding very well," said Mr. Tilson. "I know the issues, I know the concerns of the public, and I've represented the riding publicly since 2004. I think I've done a good job, I like the job and I want to get reelected."

Many pundits suggest there is little difference among the Liberal, NDP and Green Policies. Do you agree, and if not, why do you disagree?

In Mr. Tilson's eyes, the biggest thing that stands out as the same amidst all three opposition parties is that, while some platform items promise different things, they are all going to spend a lot of money.

"Some of the things are different, but they are all expensive," said Mr. Tilson. "The question is, where are they getting all that money?"

He went on to explain that many of the plans would cause the need to raise taxes, along with Trudeau's plans to utilize the deficit.

"The issue is all about the economy in this country," said Mr. Tilson. "We need jobs, and need businesses to survive. I don't think the public can stand any more taxes. I think all three [parties] are the same," he said. "Promising a lot of things on money they don't have and the only way to get the money for it is to tax the public."

What are your thoughts on the niqab issue?

"I support the Conservatives on this issue," said Mr. Tilson.

"If you want to become a citizen of this country, and you take the oath before a judge, the judge needs to see your face."

He added that he is surprised the issue has not surfaced more in the courts, as it is an important one.

"The issue is about becoming a Canadian Citizen," he said. "I have no problem with women wearing a niqab, but if you come to take an oath in court or you come to take an oath to become a citizen, a judge needs to be able to see who you are to properly administer that oath."

Do you feel that the Canadian Government is providing an adequate response to the Syrian refugee situation?

"I do," said Mr. Tilson. "There's 16.5 million refugees on the planet, and one half of the population in Syria has either left or been killed. It's a terrible situation that started with a civil war and developed into the situation with ISIS."

He added Harper has agreed to allow in another 10,000 refugees and has pledged to match donations up to $100 million for the refugees up to the end of the year.

"The primary concern here is security," he said. "We welcome refugees to our country, but we want to make sure that we are secure and are not allowing terrorists and criminals into the country."

Is Quebec separatism still an issue?

"Definitely not," said Mr. Tilson. "Having been an MP since 2004, I have met a number of Quebecois. I think Gilles Duceppe is dreaming in spades if he thinks the Bloc are going to increase their votes there. I think separatism is dead in Quebec."

Political rookie Nancy Urekar getting a lot out of campaign

This is her first venture into the political arena, and Nancy Urekar is finding it well worth the effort.

"It's very fun and exciting," she said. "I've found there's huge support for the Green Party. It could happen here."

Urekar is carrying the Green banner in Dufferin-Caledon, seeking support in the Oct. 19 federal election.

She had only joined the part shortly before announcing she would be the local candidate.

"I was pretty naïve going in," she admitted, adding the experience has been a lot more interesting than she had anticipated.

"I've learned so much," she declared. "I'm so hooked on this right now, you'll never get rid of me."

"I'm pretty happy about it," she added. "I always like a new adventure. It's a very big adventure."

"What inspires me about the Green Party and our leader Elizabeth May is the influence we exert on other parties' policies," Urekar stated earlier in the campaign. "We become stronger as Canadians increasingly vote Green."

"The Green Party has a clear plan for the country and the economy," she added. "For instance, we need to move from a fossil fuel-based economy to a greener more sustainable one. By investing in research to develop alternate energy sources, we can diversify our economy and create more jobs."

She has also been promising to be Dufferin-Caledon's voice in Ottawa, not Ottawa's voice in Dufferin-Caledon.

She is also mindful of the fact that the Green candidate finished second in this riding in the last federal election four years ago.

A resident of Orangeville since 1987, Urekar has been operating her ChicáBOOM Consignment – Furniture, Fashion and Decor store in Caledon village since 2011. Prior to that she had been a financial planner with Assante Capital in Mississauga and a business consultant for McLeod, but was the mother of two daughters who has met's leadership in her administration and finance from McLeod.

While she doesn't have any grandchildren yet, she said she thinks about them a lot and is worried about the world that's going to be left to them.

"I really care about the future," she said. "It's my children and their children and their children. What kind of world are they going to have?"

"I don't think our government pays enough attention," she added.

Some specific, predetermined questions were put to Urekar, and here are her responses.

Why do you feel you would best be able to serve the residents of Dufferin-Caledon?

"I think that our country's big parties need a Green Party to hold them accountable and push them on environmental issues, and paying down the debt and social justice," she said.

"There are lots of other issues, but these are the big ones."

Many pundits suggest there is little difference among the Liberal, NDP and Green policies. Do you agree, and if not, why do you disagree?

"None of them manage our money conservatively, including the Conservatives," Urekar observed.

She added the Liberals and New Democrats have been adopting Green policies.

"That is a good thing," she said. "It gets done some of the things we want done."

"The Green policies are not the same as the NDP and the Liberals," she added. "They are much more fiscally right and socially left."

What are your thoughts on the Niqab issue?

"I think it's a diversion," she observed. "It's not a question of identity."

"Everybody must reveal their face to an officer before the (citizenship) ceremony," she added. "We support people's right to their culture; all people."

Do you feel that the Canadian government is providing an adequate response to the Syrian refugee situation?

"No," Urekar replied. "They make up stories, but they do no actions."

"They need to bring in families as soon as possible," she added. "That's what Canada is built on. That's who we are."

"The Conservatives now say they are bringing in lots of refugees, but actually very little is being done," she said.

Is Quebec separatism still an issue?

"I don't think so," Urekar said, adding she's originally from Quebec, having been born in Montreal.

She said she didn't think that issue will come up again, but "you never know."

Ed Crewson wants to be our voice in Ottawa

Although he is new to Federal politics, Ed Crewson's experience spans an impressive 26 years, including 17 years as Mayor of Shelburne, as well as having served as County Warden, a councillor and reeve over the years.

"Over my time as a municipal leader, I've been a passionate advocate for the residents and businesses in Shelburne and throughout the County," said Mr. Crewson. "I believe in being fiscally responsible while continuing to be socially progressive."

Known for his signature red bowtie, Mr. Crewson has been an active member of local government, beginning his political career at the age of 28, when he was first elected into the position of Councillor in the Town of Shelburne.

Under his leadership, KTH Manufacturing, one of Dufferin County's largest employers was brought to Shelburne, and he has played a major role in improving the health care/medical experiences in the area through the redevelopment of Shelburne's long-term care home and the launching of a medical centre in the town (which is now home to six physicians).

Mr. Crewson and his wife, Wendy have raised three children locally, as well as have been small business owners in the community, now with two locations and 14 employees.

"As a small business owner in a small community, my wife and I have experienced first-hand the challenges owners face in this economy, and the struggle in trying to grow a strong business," he said.

"I want to be a voice for Dufferin-Caledon in Ottawa, rather than having a voice for Stephen Harper in Dufferin-Caledon," explained Mr. Crewson. "I have a desire to serve, and this seemed like the natural progression of that desire."

Why do you feel you would best be able to serve the residents of Dufferin-Caledon?

"I have the experience of 12 years as a municipal politician and the desire to continue serving the local residents," said Mr. Crewson.

He added he believes the Liberal Platform in this election is one that would be a great service to the residents of Dufferin-Caledon, as well as Canada as a whole.

"The Infrastructure program Trudeau has announced would provide greater support for middle-class families, create a stronger focus on health-care and speak to an overall better vision for Canada," he said.

Many pundits suggest there is little difference among the Liberal, NDP and Green Policies. Do you agree, and if not, why do you disagree?

"Certainly there are areas where we're similar," admitted Mr. Crewson. "But even within those similarities, there are differences."

Part of the NDP infrastructure promises, he explained, includes the Universal Day Care plan, but that program would depend on support from the provincial levels, and would not be implemented until many years from now.

"Our infrastructure is stronger, because it focuses on what we can implement now," said Mr. Crewson. "Things like building affordable housing, and a child benefits program that is progressive in nature."

He added that with the Green's, while they both recognize a need for better 'livable' income, the Liberal's feel reducing taxes for middle and lower class families will cause a greater relief than making a $15/hour minimum wage.

What are your thoughts on the niqab issue?

"I can't believe the passion this issue has unleashed across Canada," began Mr. Crewson. "It's pretty clear to me that the Charter of Rights and Freedoms is there for everyone, and we can't just choose the bits and pieces that we like and don't like."

According to Mr. Crewson, protocols have already been put in place to make sure that whoever is taking an oath is identified, and said that the Charter of Rights and Freedoms assures these women of their right to wear a niqab.

"It's sad that one woman's desire to exercise her religious freedom has become such a lightning rod in this election," he said. "There are so many more important issues we should be discussing right now. It's so sad that this is what we are focusing on."

Do you feel that the Canadian Government is providing an adequate response to the Syrian refugee situation?

"Evidently not, because we're calling for only 25,000 refugees to be settled," said Mr. Crewson. "The government has proposed to spend $100 million just on processing them, then another $100 million in human aid."

Mr. Crewson said he can't imagine what it must be like to live in Syria right now.

"I've seen pictures. Everything is destroyed, nothing is working," he said. "Of course you would need to get out."

Is Quebec separatism still an issue?

"Not that I'm aware of," said Mr. Crewson. "I hope it's not, but so far it doesn't appear to be an issue in this election, thankfully."

Rehya Yazbek enjoys spreading the NDP message

Rehya Yazbek is into her second run in the political game, and is very pleased with the way things are going.

She is carrying the New Democratic colours in Dufferin-Caledon in the upcoming federal election. She was the local NDP standard bearer in the 2014 provincial election.

So far, she said things are going "fantastic."

Yazbek said she's been talking to lots of people, and the feedback she's been getting has been providing her with lots of optimism. "I see change coming," she remarked. "I think people are getting fed up with the current government."

"We want to move this country forward, but we have to make sure it's done responsibly," she added.

Yazbek said she has noticed some difference in this campaign from her last exposure to the process. A local NDP member had approached her about running at almost the last minute. That meant she wasn't as well prepared as she is this time. "This time, it came together sooner," she said, adding they have a good body of volunteers.

She also said the party has a good platform to present to the voters this time. "Everything has been costed out so well," she said. "I can feel the momentum building this time."

Yazbek lives on Heart Lake Road, not far from Campbell's Cross.

She works for the United Food and Commercial Workers (UFCW), which she said is one of the largest private sector unions, with more than 250,000 members. She performs various functions with the union, in terms of organization, education, political activities, etc. She's been working for UFCW for about eight years, but has been an active member for roughly 25 years. "I've always been an advocate for working people," she remarked.

Prior to working for the union, she was a florist and floral manager with Loblaws. As such, she has worn both hats, and is familiar with both sides of labour and management issues.

She added she has done a lot of work in the area of human rights through the union, including dealing with native and women's issues.

Why do you feel you would best be able to serve the residents of Dufferin-Caledon?

"I feel I have the experience and skills working with government," she said. "I have a long history of lobbying government."

While she doesn't have a lot of experience as a politician, she said she understands how government works and has taken part over the years from different angles.

Yazbek added she recently turned 45, so along with her experience, she is still young enough and has the energy to go forward.

"I also do think I have really good listening skills," she said, adding she can putxsw what she hears into action. "I have spent my whole career doing something about it."

Many pundits suggest there is little difference among the Liberal, NDP and Green policies. Do you agree, and if not, why do you disagree?

"On the surface, I agree," Yazbek said. "I believe our party, the NDP, has always been pro-active with what their policies are. They've always had a more stronger ideology."

She added the NDP is the party that has always looked out for the environment, while the Liberals are "trying to be the new left."

She also said the NDP have always been fiscally responsible and concerned about social justice.

What are your thoughts on the niqab issue?

"I've had some experience with it," Yazbek commented, adding she's had to deal with issues of women wearing hijabs and niqabs. "I understand that it was their choice to wear it," she said. "They weren't forced to wear it. They wanted to wear it."

"We're making a mountain out of a molehill," she added, pointing out there have only been two women who took the citizenship oath wearing a niqab. "It's important to everybody to have their human rights."

Do you feel that the Canadian government is providing an adequate response to the Syrian refugee situation?

"No, I don't believe they're providing an adequate response," Yazbek said, adding civil war has been going on there a lot longer than Isis has been around.

The United Nations has been calling on Canada to take more refugees since 2007, and a lot of these people have already been vetted by the U.N.

"A lot of them are educated and a lot of them have a lot to offer the country," she added. "We're a country of immigrants."

Is Quebec separatism still an issue?

"I don't think so," Yazbek said. "I haven't heard anybody talking about it, not even the Bloc."

"The Bloc is dead," she added. "They have nothing in Quebec."

"Tom (Mulcair) is a federalist," she said. "He's always been a federalist."

Students really enjoying SciTech program at Macville

By Bill Rea

The new science program at Macville Public School has only been going a couple of weeks, but there are already plenty of signs of enthusiasm.

The Peel District School Board has expanded the SciTech program this year to Macville. It's where students in Caledon and parts of north Brampton can take it.

It provides an interactive approach to learning about science and technology. It's aimed at young people who are creative and who enjoy problem solving.

Macville Principal Kelly Kawabe said there are two Grade 6 classes in which the program is being taught. They are still filling out the supplies, as she said they "get new stuff coming in every day."

But already, it's providing a "really, really cool opportunity for hands-on learning."

The students were handed a hands-on assignment recently, requiring teams of four to make a replica roller-coaster, using two six-foot lengths of foam pipe insulation, one metre of masking tape, scissors and a marble that had to successfully roll the length of their creation. Teamwork was a big part of this particular assignment. Kawabe pointed out many of these youngsters had only known each other about a week by that point.

Many of the students live outside the Macville area. But Kawabe said some parents have got together and are providing private transportation.

She said there had also been concerns that the program would just attract boys. She said almost half the students in the program are girls.

The program is only being offered to Grade 6 students this year, but the plan is to expand it to Grade 7 next year and Grade 8 the following year.

It's being taught by Swarnaly Modi, who helped launch the program at Tomken Road Middle School in Mississauga, and Sandeep Sidhu.

"They're very creative," Kawabe observed, adding she's already been presented with a list of about 40 extra-curricular activities they're interested in, such as a Rubik's Cube Club.

The program has benefitted other programs in the school. Kawabe said students have been getting involved in things like sports.

"It's going to be a real boost to the athletics here," she commented.

Kawabe observed earlier this year one of the reasons Macville got the program is because of its central location. She also said the school has lots of room, so there will be no need for portables. The school population will almost double by the time the program has students from Grades 6 to 8.

The five-acre property includes an outdoor classroom that facilitates a focus on the science curriculum, with solar panels, a watering system, etc.

For parents interested in applying for next year, Kawabe reported their child must be in Grade 5 going into Grade 6. There will be an information meeting Jan. 21 at Humberview Secondary School in Bolton, starting at 7 p.m. Applications will open Jan. 22. No busing is provided for the program.

Aditi Pujar, Guneet Khakh, Arnav Gandhi and Jayant Arora were getting started on their roller-coaster.

Teacher Swarnaly Modi was stressing the importance of team work to Harsh Shaw, Ryan Wilkie, Milika Purewal and Simreen Guram.

Headwaters hospital celebrates an exceptional year

Headwaters Health Care Centre celebrated and highlighted many achievements from the past year at its annual general meeting recently.

The AGM provided an opportunity to share the year's highlights through videos, special presentations and a new annual report. Attendees heard several illustrations of Headwaters using innovation and partnerships to transform health care and bring care closer to home for patients in its community.

"It is through innovation that we find new ways of working together with health care providers in the community in order to drive change in the health care system," said Board of Directors Chair Rob Hamilton. "Thanks to the remarkable teamwork and efforts of staff, physicians, volunteers and community partners, we have made tremendous progress toward our Vision — Exceptional Experience Every Time. By building on our past accomplishments and working together with our partners, we will achieve our goals and most importantly, our Vision to benefit patients and families in our community."

Last August, Headwaters helped to create a cross-sector partnership that is first of its kind in Ontario and that brought together the non-clinical or administrative support ("back office") functions of the Central West Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) and William Osler Health System with Headwaters. The Boards of the three organizations have also formed a Strategic Partnership Committee to exchange ideas to improve access to health care services, explore partnerships and find common ground to promote efficiency and align performance.

Headwaters is also continuing to evolve and redevelop its facilities to meet growing demand for services, both in volume and complexity of care, and is eagerly waiting to break ground on a new 8,200 square foot expansion. Construction is expected to begin this fall.

"Our hospital is evolving and growing to meet the health care needs of our community," said Headwaters President and CEO Liz Ruegg. "This expansion will help us create a modern space for the patients and families we serve in the areas of chemotherapy and oncology, for minor procedures like stitches or a biopsy, and infusion clinics."

During the meeting, Headwaters' also offered gratitude and congratulations to the winners of the prestigious Dr. David Scott Award for leadership and contributions to the health and well-being of the community — Dr. Amy Catania and the Dufferin Area Physician Search Committee.

The first ever Chair's Award was also presented to local leaders, John "Doc" Gilles and Dr. David Scott for their impact and many contributions to Headwaters Health Care Centre.

Town launches communications survey of residents

During October, The Town of Caledon is reaching out to residents via an online survey at www.caledon.ca/survey

The aim is to seek input on levels of awareness of Town programs and services; how residents receive information now; how residents wish to receive information in the future; overall satisfaction with quality of communications; and desire to engage in more conversational communications with the Town.

"We want to openly communicate with Caledon residents," Mayor Allan Thompson commented. "This survey is your opportunity to help determine the best way to do that. Take a few minutes to complete the survey and have your say."

"We are excited to bring this survey to Caledon, to learn first-hand how we are doing with our Town communications," said the Town's Communication Manager Bethany Lee. "We've made the survey easy; I invite you to come and spend a few minutes with us in person or online and let us know how we are doing."

Watch out for the Have Your Say Street Team at various events happening around town this month. Times and dates will be posted on social media — www.facebook.com/YourCaledon or @YourCaledon on Twitter.

Those who take the survey and provide an email address will be entered to win a new iPad Pro.

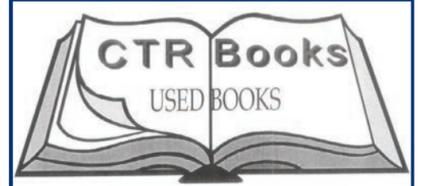

Headwaters Board Chair Rob Hamilton and Dr. David Scott flank Dr. Amy Catania, recipient of the Dr. David Scott Award.

All candidates are optimistic about the Blue Jays' chances

By Bill Rea

Federal Candidates in Dufferin-Caledon in the Oct. 19 federal election agree on at least one thing.

All four are hoping for good things from the Toronto Blue Jays as they enter the playoffs.

They were contacted last week for their spontaneous responses to certain predetermined questions.

Their replies are presented here in alphabetical order.

Are Canadians well served by the CBC?

"I listen to the CBC almost all the time," commented Liberal Ed Crewson. "Certainly in my vehicle."

"I think we're well served," he added, noting the Liberals plan to invest an additional $150 million to reverse cuts from the Conservatives.

"I think the CBC is performing a service that's acceptable," commented Conservative incumbent David Tilson. "I question sometimes when the reporting is a tad biased."

But he also said the CBC needs about $1 billion from the government annually. "They've lost the NHL hockey, which I think is too bad," Tilson added. "The CBC are having their troubles. They're having difficulty properly serving the public."

"I think the CBC is essential to Canada and helps weave the fabric of what Canada is," commented Green Party candidate Nancy Urekar. "It helps us retain our culture."

"Yes," declared New Democrat Rehya Yazbek. "That's the only news I trust and that's the only programming I really like."

She added the CBC is an integral part of the Canadian fabric. "We need to preserve it."

She added some of the CBC shows have become part of Canadian culture, and the news reporting there is much less bias than other sources.

Would you favour term limits for MPs?

"I don't see that that's necessary," Crewson commented. "I think it's up to the individual and the electorate."

"I don't think so," Tilson said. "I think we need fresh faces. We also need experience. I think we need a mix."

He added the problem with fixed terms is "you'd lose some good experience."

"I've never thought about it before," Urekar said, offering no other comment.

"I'm not sure what my party's stand is on this," Yazbek commented.

"When you do anything for too long, you get complacent," she added. "I really think it's up to the voters to decide that."

Does Canada do enough for its veterans?

"I'm really disappointed with the Harper Conservatives," Crewson remarked, adding one on five veterans have to wait eight months for mental health care. "It's a travesty."

Crewson said a Liberal government will hire the support workers veterans need and provide more funding, as well as benefits for their families. The government will also re-open the Veterans' Affairs offices that have been closed.

"We're going to do a lot more for our veterans and so we should," he declared.

"Yes, they do," Tilson said. "You can always do more for veterans."

Tilson said he respects what they did in the Second World War, Afghanistan and on peace-keeping missions.

"They've served us well," he observed. "They've kept our democracy free."

Tilson also said spending on veterans is up 13 per cent, denying suggestions from other parties that spending in this area has been cut.

"We haven't cut," he said. "You can always spend more. We need to."

"No," Urekar said. "Canada's failing its veterans."

"We need to open the Veterans' Affairs offices that have closed," she added. "We have to roll back the cuts."

She also pointed to the importance of addressing the needs of veterans, both physical and mental.

"Whoever needs it needs it, whatever they did," Urekar maintained. "They served our country."

"No, it doesn't," Yazbek replied, pointing out more veterans have committed suicide after coming home than were killed in the line of duty.

"It's a shame what they have done in Veterans' Affairs," she added. "Calling a 1-800 number doesn't do anything."

Yazbek said the government needs to re-open the Veterans' Affairs offices that have been closed, and expand the health benefits to veterans and their families, making sure they get the supports they need.

How far do you think the Blue Jays are going to go in the playoffs?

Crewson said he used to be a big baseball fan, but hasn't been able to watch it much this year because he's been too busy knocking on doors.

He recalled during the 1993 federal campaign, he was knocking on doors for Liberal candidate Murray Calder. Calder, the Liberals and the Blue Jays all won that year. "I'm hoping for a repeat," he said.

"They're going to win it," Tilson said. "They're going to be the champions."

"The Blue Jays make us feel good," he added. "Everybody's a Toronto Blue Jays fan."

"And they're blue," he observed.

"All the way," Urekar declared. "I'm an optimist."

"All the way, I'm hoping," Yazbek said. "Go Jays go, even if they're blue."

Former prime minister Paul Martin and Dufferin-Caledon Liberal candidate Ed Crewson were welcomed Sunday by the staff of Mercato's Fine Foods in Bolton.

Crewson welcomes Paul Martin to riding

Dufferin-Caledon Liberal candidate Ed Crewson welcomed a special visitor to the riding Sunday.

Former prime minister Paul Martin was at Mercato's Fine Foods in Bolton to discuss the issues facing the area.

"There has been severe underinvestment from the federal government in our local infrastructure," Crewson observed. "From rural high-speed internet to senior housing, our community faces pressing needs that have been ignored by our federal government for too-long."

The Liberal party is proposing to spend $125 billion on infrastructure over the next 10 years, the largest infrastructure investment in Canadian history.

"We know that investing in public infrastructure not only grows the economy and creates jobs, but makes our communities stronger," Crewson observed. "Investment in infrastructure is crucial to the long-term development of Dufferin-Caledon and all communities across the country."

Martin expressed confidence in the Liberal plan.

"The truth is, if we don't invest now, the economy is not going to turn around," he said.

The two discussed the impact of federal spending on the municipal level, with Crewson noting his success in attracting industry to Shelburne was in part because of the availability of federal infrastructure grants.

"Over the past 10 years, I have watched the federal government retreat from its role as a partner with municipalities," Crewson commented. "We need to invest in our future."

Candidates square off in Orangeville

By Tabitha Wells

It was a full house at last Wednesday night's debate for the upcoming election.

Held at Orangeville District Secondary School, the session was hosted by the Greater Dufferin Area Chamber of Commerce and the newly formed Dufferin Board of Trade.

The call for a new voice to represent the riding was loud and clear from the opposing candidates, while Conservative incumbent David Tilson spoke to the need to remain the same, calling for responsible leadership to rebuild Canada's falling economy — a job that he thinks can only be done by not pursuing change.

"Now is not the time for change and frisky economic approaches led by those without experience," Tilson said. "Here in Dufferin-Caledon and across the country, Canadians want to feel safe. Only our party can provide that security and tackle threats like the jihadists head on. The alternatives lack the necessary experience and have an unwillingness to take action. We need leadership and experience, and this is what our government possesses."

Despite Tilson's confidence in towing his party line and standing firm with Harper's goals, those present at the debate were not as impressed. Tilson's comments caused several outbursts from the crowd, calling into question his support of anti-terrorism Bill C-51 (which has come under fire by organizations such as Amnesty International for crossing the line on human rights), and for the muzzling of scientists, which was revealed earlier this year. Moderator Ron Mumro had to request several times that the audience allow Tilson to finish his comments.

The Conservatives also received jabs from the opposing candidates, particularly regarding research into improving agriculture to help the increasing need for food worldwide.

"The first thing we would do would be to unmuzzle the scientists," said NDP candidate Rehya Yazbek. "The NDP plan on implementing a national strategy to increase access to local, organic foods. One of the upcoming cuts from the Conservatives is to take $1.4 billion from food safety, cutting 700 food inspectors. We are going to increase incomes and support so that every family can afford a healthy meal. And we won't cut the food inspectors."

Green Party representative Nancy Urekar seconded the need to unmuzzle the scientists and move on.

"It's not right what's been done and Canadians want to see this happen," she said.

She went on to explain that focusing on improving agriculture would be key in helping provide the world with more access to food.

"We have to re-instate the positions that have been lost in agricultural Canada," Urekar said. "The government has devastated a lot of the scientists and people that worked for Agriculture Canada. We need to negotiate agreements with the Provinces to protect farmland and provide sufficient fiscal incentives. We need sustainable food and lots of local food."

The candidates were asked how their parties intend to implement a national action plan on violence against women, and focus on the restoration and expanding of capital supports to shelters.

"As part of our infrastructure program, we will spend a third of it on social and affordable housing, which provides support for those women who are in dangerous situations," said Liberal Ed Crewson. "Having served 23 years on the Shelburne Police Services Board, I saw the cost of violence in the home. I would also support immediate the investigation of the 1,200 women who have been missing, and are presumed dead and gone."

Urekar was clear that women's rights are a definite part of Green Party policy, calling for the need for change.

"I don't get why we don't seem to understand that violence against women is not acceptable," she said. "The Green Party would defend every hard-earned victory for women's rights. So many of these have been lost under the Conservative government. A lot of people fought for it, a lot of people have suffered for it, and we need to see a change. It's about equality and this is a society where we consider everybody equal. There is no second class."

Tilson thought, however, that the Conservative support for the issue, particularly with the missing aboriginal issues, is going down the right path.

"We want to do whatever we can," Tilson said. "We support institutions in this community, like Family Transition Place, and the issue of the missing murdered women has been raised over and over again. These deaths and abductions are a tragedy, and have caused deep pain for their families. The only real solution is to look at this under the law. This is a criminal issue, and we are the only party in the House that has demonstrated any commitment to putting an end to the violence."

While there was no clear winner, there was a large amount of applause and support for each of the candidates on different issues. In closing, the candidates spoke to their role as the Dufferin-Caledon MP, should they be elected, and shared some of their goals.

"Ladies and gentleman, this is the most important election in this generation," Crewson said. "There is a clear choice between the voice of Harper in Dufferin-Caledon, and one who is ready to bring local, vocal and vigorous representation to the community. We have a vision of working together to roll out the biggest infrastructure investment in Canada."

He added that investment includes the support of small businesses, encouraging innovation and research by freeing scientists and unmuzzling researchers, and restoring a robust environmental process.

"It's time for real change in Dufferin-Caledon and it's time for real change in Ottawa," Crewson added. "I may not have nice hair — I wish I did — but I am ready to be your representative in parliament because I have spent my life caring for you. Your values are my values."

Yazbek took the opportunity to re-highlight more of NDP Leader Tom Mulcair's promises and platforms for a future Canada, speaking of issues such as climate change, childcare, liveable wages and a pursuit of change for a better country.

"For the first time, your government will set real targets and time tables for reducing emissions," Yazbek said. "Instead of Harper's road blocks, we will work with the global community on global warming. If you are ready for change, think seriously about the NDP."

For the Green Party, Urekar explained that they have no delusions about becoming the reigning party in Canada at this point, but thinks the party has the opportunity to create positive change in the government if they can obtain more seats.

"We don't expect the Green Party to fly the government just yet, but this year there will be several Greens in parliament," Urekar said. "I'm running for the Green Party because I really care about the future of our county, Canada and earth. I care about the generations to come, and my children's children's children."

She added that the environment is the most serious issue Canada is facing today as it affects everything, from the economy to jobs, security and more.

"(The Green Party) influences the government," Urekar said. "We see our policies getting adopted, and we are happy to be there to make a difference. (We) have a plan. I'm not a career politician. I'm well known for honest ty and integrity in this community. Vote for what really matters and vote for someone to hold them accountable. And if you want new ideas, you want change, don't go back to the old parties."

In his closing speech, Tilson reiterated that he believes now is not the time for change in Ottawa, but rather a time to keep the government the same to provide stability for the country.

"On October 19, you have a choice between strong, proven leadership and dangerous economic approaches," Tilson said. "We can all agree the global economy remains unstable and uncertain. A re-elected Conservative government will keep the economy strong and our country safe."

He added the Conservative party is one that supports small business and knows the backbone of the economy.

"The federal tax burden on Canadian families and on job creating businesses is the lowest it has been in several years," Tilson said. "We are focused on protecting Canadian jobs, further lowering the small business tax rate, and further cutting red tape. These are just a few of the examples of how our government will help small business thrive and prosper. I am asking for your support, and continued support as your voice in Ottawa."

Outcome still anyone's to guess

Perhaps the one lesson learned from this overly long federal election campaign is that it proved prognosticators can be wrong.

Back in early August, when the election writ was dropped, most of the pundits saw the early call as greatly benefiting the ruling Conservatives, and surely no one doubts that was why it happened.

The main reason cited was that the Conservatives had a huge war chest and would be able to use it against the main opposition parties, the New Democrats and Liberals.

Thus far, the money has gone into a series of attack ads that began well before the election call and were designed to establish that once again the Liberals had picked the wrong leader, a contention easily established with both Stéphane Dion and Michael Ignatieff. The message this time around was that Justin Trudeau was "just not ready" to become prime minister.

No doubt the ad campaign was devised well before the election campaign started, at a time when opinion polls placed the Liberals slightly ahead of the NDP. Whatever the case, it now appears to have succeeded mainly in turning the public's attention to the Liberal leader to see how well he performs and how long it took for him to make a major gaffe.

And perhaps the most surprising result of the campaign was the Liberals' decision to use the attack ads against the Tories and Prime Minister Stephen Harper personally, suggesting that it was Harper himself who sees Trudeau as not ready to occupy the Prime Minister's Office (PMO).

The most recent polling seems to show the Liberals as slightly in front and the NDP to be sinking close to the party's traditional support level prior to the 2011 Orange Wave in Quebec.

However, our suspicion is that a large portion of the polls' respondents who favoured the Trudeau option were really not committed to a party and might not turn up to vote Oct. 19.

In that case, a lot will depend on such things as the weather polling day and any late developments in the campaigning.

One thing we don't see as having much impact is this week's announcement of the successful conclusion of negotiations leading to a Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) trade agreement.

The subject of secret talks carried on for a number of years, the trade pact is being trumpeted by the Conservatives as great for Canada and Canadians but also as something that will require billions of dollars in government assistance to Canadian agriculture and our auto industry.

Without being able to see it, NDP Leader Tom Mulcair has served notice that an NDP government would not ratify the pact in its present form, while Trudeau has taken a middle course of saying that while he favours free trade he would need to look at details of the agreement before deciding whether it is a net benefit to Canada and the proposed aid to the farm and auto industries is appropriate and adequate.

In the circumstances, we suspect that most voters will take a similar wait-and-see approach and base their decision on which party to support on something else — hopefully on something more significant than the appropriate wearing apparel at citizenship hearings.

One disappointing feature of the election campaign has been the apparent limits placed on Conservative candidates by either the party or the PMO.

Locally, Conservative incumbent David Tilson has shown unusual courage in joining with the other Dufferin-Caledon candidates in deploring the length of the campaign, but apart from that has clung closely to the themes advanced by his leader.

That the Tilson camp has lots of money coming in is shown by the huge number of large blue signs on our highways and byways. But when it comes to lawn signs in neighbourhoods there are an unusual number of red ones in Shelburne and Bolton.

Now, with the election just 11 days away and advance polls commencing this weekend, the only thing we can predict with any confidence is that no party will emerge with a majority of Commons seats, and even that confidence is not unlimited.

And if that is the case, the Ottawa scene will be a lot more interesting than would otherwise be the case, post-election.

A message from friends of the Cheltenham Badlands

The following was submitted by the Coalition of Concerned Citizens.

We encourage everyone to complete an online survey regarding the future of the Badlands, that has been prepared by the Ontario Heritage Trust and the Management Team.

When answering, please be as precise as possible so your answers cannot be misinterpreted.

Friends of the Badlands believe that the Badlands should be appreciated from behind their protective fence. The Badlands are a valuable learning tool for high school and post secondary students, as well as geologists and scientists, and we should make every effort to protect and preserve them for ourselves, children and grandchildren.

Building a parking lot on what is designated as environmentally sensitive land is contrary to our educated sensitivities regarding the preservation of those lands.

Please go to www.heritagetrust.on.ca/Conservation/Natural-heritage/The-Cheltenham-Badlands.aspx, fill out the survey and please attend the meeting scheduled for Oct. 13 in Caledon East to discuss the future of the Badlands.

It happened today

No-hitters in baseball are like holes in one in golf. They do happen but they are rare. They are so rare that only one no-hitter has ever been thrown in World Series play. Don Larsen did it for the New York Yankees in the fifth game of the series against the Brooklyn Dodgers, requiring 97 pitches to retire 27 batters.

"Last night I was a bum, and tonight everybody wants to meet me," he was quoted as saying after the game.

The Yankees went on to win the series in seven. That no-hitter was thrown this day, Oct. 8, 1956.

Remembering O.J. after 20 years

How time flies!

Case in point — Think back 20 years this past Saturday (Oct. 3). Do you remember where you were at about noon — this time zone?

I was in my car cruising about the streets of East York, which is where I was working in those days. I wasn't going anywhere. I just wanted to listen to the radio without being disturbed. I frequently do that when there's something I want to hear and I don't want to be interrupted with phone calls or people trying to talk to me.

What I wanted to hear was the verdict in the O.J. Simpson murder trial. According to Wikipedia, I was one among some 100 million people who did the same thing. According to the same source, an estimated $480 million was lost in productivity from people stopping what they were doing to hear the verdict live (somebody actually gets paid to keep statistics like that).

I had already made up my mind on what the verdict was going to be, and I was anxious for confirmation that I'm actually as smart as I like to think I am.

I remember that it had been announced the previous afternoon that a verdict had been reached, after about four hours of deliberation. You will also recall that the trial judge, Lance Ito, had decreed the verdict would not be announced until the following morning, Los Angeles time (about noon our time).

Now I have very little in the way of legal training. I took a course in international law in university, and quite enjoyed it. But the thought of going to law school never occurred to me, and I doubt very much that I would have ever been a success at it. I've also never sat on a jury, and all indicators tell me people in my line of work are seldom picked to be on such a body.

But I have seen and read some details on how the judicial system works in this part of the world (granted, there are differences between the way things are handled in the United States and Canada).

Remember there were two victims in this murder case: Nicole Brown Simpson and Ron Goldman. There would have had to be a lot of debate to decide if Simpson was guilty of one of those murders, and since there were two victims, that timeline would have been roughly doubled. And then the jury would have had to decide if it was first-degree murder, second-degree, etc.

Based on my admittedly amateur viewpoint, I figured it would have been impossible to come up, in that case, with a verdict other than acquittal in such a brief period.

As history has clearly recorded, I was absolutely right.

Although I was curious about the verdict, I was never obsessed with the trial, as I know a lot of people were. It was on TV, and a lot of people with time on their hands watched it constantly. There were a couple of times when the coverage was stopped, largely because Ito had thrown some kind of hissy-fit, but beyond that, it was continuous.

I happened to be home one afternoon during the trial, and turned on the coverage, out of curiosity, if nothing else. I watched a couple of minutes, but quickly became bored.

I was aware of the trial, listened to talk radio go over it at length. The station I regularly listen to (it was called CFRB in those days) even had a legal expert based in L.A., who was on offering expert commentary every evening, and I listened to it if I happened to be in my car at the time.

Total strangers were talking about it. I was eating in restaurant one evening, flipping through a magazine as I ate (either Time or Newsweek). My server noticed I was reading an article about Simpson, and she struck up a conversation with me.

"I don't think he did it," she said. "Do you? I don't think so."

I honestly replied that I didn't know. I still don't, although I have my suspicions. More about that later.

The simple fact is that workaholics like me are too busy to worry about things like murder trials, unless I happen to be covering them. I just couldn't find a local angle in this case, so I focused most of my attention on matters of more immediate concern.

But since I was awake for most hours of the day in those days, I was getting my fill of information about the trial, whether I wanted it or not. And as time went on, it became clear there was one issue in the trial that had fallen off the table, and that was whether or not Simpson actually committed these murders.

Kind of a crucial issue, don't you think?

As I stated above, I don't know whether Simpson is a murderer who got away with it or not. The concept that a person is innocent until it has been proven beyond reasonable doubt in the proper forum (a court of law, with the verdict from a jury of peers) that he or she is guilty is a basic fundamental in our society, and one I have always believed in. No matter how horrific the crime, or how obvious the guilt of the accused might be, the presumption of innocence must stand in the face of all opposition. We have absolutely no business calling this a free society if we are prepared to settle for anything less.

Indeed, as things were gearing up for the trial, a prominent resident of East York had approached me for permission to write a piece in my paper, expressing her views on the Simpson case. I raised no objections to a prominent local citizen commenting on a topical issue, provided she remember that Simpson must be presumed innocent. I never saw that piece.

Thus once the jury proclaimed Simpson to be "not guilty," the concepts in which I have believed all my life demanded that I accept the fact that Simpson didn't do it.

Yet how many times have people been convicted of terrible crimes, eventually to have those judgments reversed. The problem is there is little in the way of effective mechanisms for dealing with people who have been wrongly acquitted.

The fact is I don't know if Simpson is a murderer. But I do know there is considerable room for doubt.

The late Vincent Bugliosi, the man who successfully prosecuted Charles Manson, wrote a book and appeared in a documentary about the Simpson case.

Bugliosi, who died earlier this year, pulled very few punches when it came to proclaiming his belief that Simpson's trial was marred by extremely stupid jurors, incompetent prosecutors and a performance from Judge Ito that left a lot to be desired. His emphatic conclusion was that Simpson got away with two murders.

We all know there have been some very well documented cases of people who were convicted of terrible crimes who were subsequently found to be not guilty. It stands to reason, therefore, that the reverse is equally possible.

Is that the case with Simpson?

We, unfortunately, will never know.

Thanksgiving and the fall harvest are here

As we adjust to the cooler weather, we get a front row seat to the beautiful fall colours throughout Dufferin-Caledon.

It also means Thanksgiving and the fall harvest are here.

Harvest is a time for our farmers to take off the majority of the crops they have been carefully tending through the spring and summer. Farming and the jobs it creates is very important across Ontario, and especially here in Dufferin-Caledon. We should be thankful that we have an abundance of fresh, locally-grown produce that we can enjoy from throughout Dufferin and Caledon. Whether it's potatoes in Dufferin to the apple orchards in Caledon, there are lots of producers growing a huge variety of vegetables ranging from spinach to rapini. This is a perfect time of year to visit a local farmer's market and do your Thanksgiving dinner shopping.

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

During the Thanksgiving weekend, there are many activities to keep the kids busy and outside. You can't miss the huge pumpkin display at Downey's Farm Market or apple-picking at one of the local orchards. You will see lots of visitors and leaf-peepers on one of the many scenic and popular drives, or riding their bikes on the Trans Canada Trail and our many quieter back roads. Remember to share the road and pack your patience as we share our beautiful countryside with visitors out for a day in the country.

During the Thanksgiving weekend, many of us will be spending time with family and friends, enjoying the abundance that comes with the fall harvest, and being thankful for our blessings. Unfortunately, the cooler weather also means budgets are stretched as heating costs increase and some in our community must rely on a food bank to make ends meet. The fall is often a time that the local food banks prepare for this added need with a campaign reminding us to donate. I want to thank my colleague, MPP Bob Bailey, for helping farmers and food banks across Ontario, through his amendment to the Local Food Act that will provide a tax credit for farmers and producers who donate their products to local food banks. This ensures that donated produce by farmers and producers will be used to help stock the shelves of our local food bank and return a tax credit worth 25 percent of the wholesale value to farmers. For more information about local food bank initiatives in Dufferin-Caledon please contact my office at 1-800-265-1603.

I want to wish everyone a safe and bountiful Thanksgiving.

Dufferin-Peel students continue to outperform in literacy

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board has some pretty literate students.

Results from the 2014-2015 Ontario Secondary School Literacy Test (OSSLT), administered by the Education Quality and Accountability Office (EQAO), indicate that Dufferin-Peel students exceeded the provincial success rates by between three and five per cent.

The percentage of Dufferin-Peel students passing the OSSLT on their first attempt continues to exceed provincial performance and highlights the ongoing excellence of Dufferin-Peel students in terms of literacy skills.

Additionally, among students who were previously unsuccessful on the OSSLT, Dufferin-Peel demonstrated much higher success rates than did the province as a whole. Whether attempting the OSSLT for the first-time or tackling it in subsequent years, Dufferin-Peel students, as a board, have exceeded the provincial average on the OSSLT for the last five consecutive years.

Eighty-five per cent of Dufferin-Peel students who wrote the OSSLT for the first time, successfully completed the test. This success rate for fully participating, first-time eligible Dufferin-Peel students writing the March 2015 OSSLT represents a very high level of achievement for the board, despite a decline over the previous year's high performance. Success rates among students who were previously eligible also declined in 2014-2015. In the context of historical perspective, this year's results continue to support the high levels of achievement of Dufferin-Peel students over the last five years of the OSSLT.

"Dufferin-Peel Catholic schools have a long established record of academic success, and our EQAO results are but one indicator of that success," said Director of Education John Kostoff. "Moving forward, we remain strongly committed to improving student learning, achievement and well-being among all learners. It is the good work, support and commitment on the part of many professional educators, support staff, trustees and stakeholders in our system that makes Dufferin-Peel a system that works."

"We are proud of our record of academic excellence, including the historical upward trend of our EQAO results," said board Chair Mario Pascucci. "Our EQAO success is one of many indicators that our students are achieving. The fact of the matter is that Dufferin-Peel is a system that delivers on its promise."

The OSSLT assesses students' proficiency in reading and writing. Successful completion of the Literacy Test (or the Ontario Secondary School Literacy Course) is one of the 32 requirements necessary to obtain the Ontario Secondary School Diploma (OSSD). The OSSLT results are provided for two groups of students: those eligible to write for the first time in Grade 10, and those who were previously eligible to participate but who were unsuccessful in a prior year.

"We are encouraged by the continued high rate of success that our students have displayed through this year's test results, and are now taking some time to analyze these results in greater detail," said Associate Director of Instructional Services Sheila McWatters. "This will enable us to provide better support to schools, parents and students to ensure that even more students meet or exceed the provincial standard."

Each school has its own plan to support literacy learning, which will be reviewed in the context of the test results, to improve students' reading and writing skills in all subject areas. School plans include strategies to assist all students, including remediation for students who did not successfully complete the OSSLT.

Board and individual school results will soon be available on the board website at www.dpcdsb.org

Additional information on the OSSLT and other assessments can be obtained through the EQAO website at www.eqao.com

Learn to care for land and water with CVC

Find out how to enhance a rural property with guidance from Credit Valley Conservation (CVC).

CVC invites landowners to participate in its upcoming Caring for Your Land and Water workshop. The event takes place Oct. 24 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Alton Library Community Room.

"This workshop is a great way for landowners to learn about their rural property and create an action plan to help protect the environment," said CVC's Deputy CAO and Director of Watershed Transformation Mike Pudister. "We provide tools, information and now funding that makes it easier for workshop participants to go from a plan to taking action."

Workshop participants will create a Landowner Action Plan for their properties. Examples of actions are planting native species, following a regular septic maintenance schedule or a native grassland restoration project.

Following the workshop, participants can schedule a site visit for technical assistance and become eligible to apply for funding through the Landowner Action Fund (LAF). LAF provides grants to rural landowners for environmental projects that range from 50 to 100 per cent. Grants are subject to eligibility and caps.

Lunch will be provided at the workshop and all participants receive custom maps of their property.

"This workshop far exceeded my expectations," said a past participant. "The personalized property maps really helped. Thank you for offering this workshop."

Workshops are free, thanks to funding from CVC's regional and municipal partners. Interested landowners should reside in the Credit River watershed and own at least one acre of rural property. Register by Oct. 16 at www.creditvalleyca.ca/events

More than one principle involved

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

Here we go – again.

Not to single out a particular culprit here – because it's so commonplace in today's mainstream journalism – but a Sunday Star column by Marin Regg Cohn underscores the extraordinary irony of the approach to "tolerance" by people who consider themselves more enlightened than the teeming masses.

Cohn – a decent man, and actually a writer I regularly enjoy – fell victim to the popular notion that tolerance, in essence, means agreeing with his viewpoint and intolerance, by definition, means holding a different view.

Writing about the controversies over Ontario's imposition of a new sex-education curriculum and the current dispute in the federal campaign over the suitability of wearing a face-covering niqab at a citizenship ceremony, the column's front-page headline (which Cohn didn't write, but which accurately reflects view) reads: "Smear and goading: How Harper lifted the veil on our phobias."

Then, turning to page A6 for the rest of the column, that headline reads: "Tolerance is a two-way street, though many aren't walking it."

Especially, it seems, people like Cohn who actually see "tolerance" as a one-way avenue into their belief systems.

As you likely know, the courts have ruled in favour of a woman who demands the "right" to hide her face during her citizenship ceremony, a position that Prime Minister Stephen Harper (and, according to opinion polls, more than 80 percent of Canadians – including the bulk of Muslims) finds offensive.

On the other hand, both NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair and Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau support the woman's position and, like Cohn, are accusing Harper (and by extension, the vast majority of Canadians) of being racists.

To the extent that polls really do reflect public opinion – a subject open to debate – it seems that Harper's position has helped his struggling campaign, while both Mulcair and Trudeau have been hurt by it.

To the "liberal-minded" out there, that just won't do. So the standard tactic comes into play, i.e.

Here's how Cohn put it. "Now ... Harper is lifting the veil on the phobias still lurking beneath our vaunted tradition of tolerance. Who knew so many of us could get so hot and bothered about burqas and whipped into such a frenzy about homosexuality and sexuality."

The argument here, of course, leaves no room for assigning even a hint of credibility to the arguments of those who feel a citizenship ceremony is no place to hide your face and likewise those Ontarians who are concerned about the impact of the new sex-ed curriculum.

Clearly, they're all bigots and should be ashamed of themselves.

And Harper – villain that he is – is shamelessly taking advantage of it.

It apparently seems impossible to "liberals" that somebody can genuinely believe in conservative values and that believing in them does not by definition mean being hateful or bigoted at all.

No room for argument in the perfect world of "liberalism." And there's no explanation for these people beyond sheer bigotry and intolerance. Period. End of story.

It sometimes gets lost – deliberately, one assumes – that the dispute over the niqab is not about the ability to wear one during your day-to-day lives – even though, just to be clear, it is strictly a cultural choice and not, as is often claimed, a religious mandate.

Like anything else you wear, there are appropriate and inappropriate places to wear it, and it seems to me – and to most Canadians – that covering up at a citizenship ceremony is not an appropriate venue.

What gets up the nose of those who disagree is that by appealing the latest court decision on the niqab, Harper is on the winning side politically. That just won't do, of course. So he must be a bigot.

Cohn writes of the "principled" stands of the opposition parties on the issue. Indeed.

The flip side, of course, is that Harper, by disagreeing with Mulcair, Trudeau, Cohn, the Toronto Star and the usual suspects, must be "unprincipled." The only other option would be to admit that there is more than once principle involved here and both can be legitimate.

Cohn, sadly, sinks one step deeper than most, raising the spectre of the slippery slope, asking if those on the wrong side of the issue will "next turn their sights on Canada's ultra-orthodox Jews, the Hassidic ... who persist in wearing black hats and silk stockings in public because they believe it an essential tenet of faith..."

That's really stooping low, even for a tolerant "liberal."

Cohn knows full well the Hassidic, whatever their beliefs dictate, aren't hiding behind a veil. It's not about what one wears in their daily lives, it's about the propriety of hiding your face during a swearing-in ceremony.

Golden Hawks defensive woes continue, still searching for first win

By Jake Courtepatte

The Caledon Golden Hawks junior C team is still looking for the answer, and so far they haven't found it defensively.

They entered last Thursday's contest in Schomberg winless in their first four, and were given little chance off the bat in this one with two squeak-ins allowed by Hawks goaltender Brendan Macham by the seven-minute mark of the first period.

However, it was James Pitsadiotis who lead Caledon's charge back, potting two in a row before the end of the period to tie it up.

With a Schomberg player in the box for unsportsmanlike conduct to start the second, Daniel Cafagna scored the Hawks' third straight to give them their first lead of the game.

It didn't last long, as Schomberg took advantage of a few defensive lapses to score three goals in just over three minutes to lead going into the third. Macham stopped all nine shots he faced in the final frame, but Caledon could not counter and fell 5-3.

Pitsadiotis and Cafagna have both been putting up more than a point-a-game production, as a number of other Hawks have put up a handful of points early this season as well. One of those players is veteran Ryan Mouser, who gave the Hawks an early lead Sunday in Huntsville against the Otters.

The Hawks entered the third period down 3-2, when Cafagna breathed life into the team with 14 minutes to go. But they failed to register their first point of the season by just two minutes, when the Otters retook the lead for good shortly before overtime.

Almost one month into the season, the Hawks find themselves sitting at a record of 0-6-0. They are averaging 4.67 goals against per game, the highest in the league, during that period. That places both Procopio and Macham near the bottom of the league in their goals against average, but it's hard to blame them — both are facing around 30 shots per game.

It doesn't get any easier this week, on the road or at home. The Hawks will visit the Alliston Hornets Friday night, before hosting the Penetang Kings at Caledon East Sunday.

The two sit second and third in the league respectively.

Puck drop Sunday is at 7p.m.

U16 Caledon Bulldogs cruise to Ontario title

By Jake Courtepatte

After dominating the local competition throughout the summer, the under-16 Caledon Bulldogs proved that they are also one of the best soccer teams in the province.

They took to the pitch at the new Ontario Soccer Centre in Vaughan late last month, the same field utilized by Toronto FC's feeder squad, for the Tier 2 Ontario Cup final against Windsor Croatia.

Jordan Armorer got the Bulldogs on the board first, when he climbed above a pack of defenders and headed the ball down past the outstretched arm of the Windsor keeper to make it 1-0.

They would double their lead before the half, with Carter Moffatt finding the back of the goal.

He would replicate the effort after a short few minutes into the second half, essentially putting the game out of reach. Ryan Machado added another goal late in extra time to crown Caledon as Ontario champs by a dominating score of 4-0.

Head coach Maurizio Marini was pleased overall with his team's efforts.

"In the first 10 minutes, our opponents came on pretty strong, they had us hemmed in our half for a bit," he commented. "But we knew that once the game settled and the excitement and the nervousness of the day kind of passed, it just became a game like any other. The boys settled into our plan, and I think for the rest of the game we carried most of it."

With the win, the Bulldogs complete the elusive "treble," winning all three of the Peel Halton Championship, PHYSL League Cup and now the Ontario Cup. While the boys would have seen the competition in their loop regularly, it took some research to defeat the unknown Windsor squad.

"We hadn't had the opportunity to face them," said Marini.

"We got a brief look at them at the semifinal, they had played one of our league opponents and handled them quite well."

The Bulldogs staff researched the records of Windsor's league in Essex County, which made it clear that Windsor was a high-scoring team.

"We made sure we neutralized some of their bigger threats," he explained.

And neutralize them they did. Marini gave some credit to the strength of his centrebacks for the nil score line on Windsor's end, including Armorer, whose header for the first goal was named the highlight of the game.

But in the end, he said the Caledon Bulldogs success has come as the result of an overall team effort.

"The depth of this team, all around, is really what's helped us this year. We were able to roll our entire lineup through, and there was really no falloffs, so I think we were just fresher for a longer period of time."

The U16 Caledon Bulldogs are Ontario Cup champs, completing the 'treble' by winning all three of their championships over the season.

Mr. Handyman leading way among junior men

The season is only three-weeks-old, but the Mr. Handyman Moose are showing the early strength in the search for the Callaghan Cup, in the Sunday Night Junior Men's Hockey League.

The Moose were victorious in their first three outings to take top spot in the standings so far.

The St. Louis Bar & Grill Wings are on their heels in second with five points, followed closely by the We Are Creative Warriors with four.

Sept. 27
Warriors 5, Wild 4

In a see-saw battle that saw the teams switch leads back and forth, the Warriors potted a pair in the first while the Pommes Cider Co. Wild only managed one.

The Wild netted three in the second to the Warriors' none. The Warriors answered with three in the third to take the win.

Scoring for the Warriors were Daryl Bailey and Brandon Jones, each with a pair, and Lee Noseworthy with the single. Helpers came from Brent Spagnol, Andrew Kirk, Steve Conforti, Kevin Norris and Bogdan Rapan.

Wild haymakers were Jay Beech with the brace and Dan Shaw and Alex White with singles. Assists went to Mike Swan, White, Richard Archer, Craig Shaw and Peter Coghill.

Penguins 5, Blades 3

The Ken's Lawn Mower Repair Blades took off to a big start, chopping in three in the first for the early lead over the George's Arena Sports Penguins.

But the Penguins bounced back, potting a single in the first and a pair in each of the next two periods.

Blades choppers were Shawn Simpson from Mark Bauldry and Darren Levy, Darren Jones from Levy, and Jason Clark from Simpson and Steve Smith. Penguins paddlers were Corey Schittenhelm from Matt Dowdle, Jesse Thompson from Dowdle, and Mike Tarasco with three, assisted by Brandon Scott, Ron Toffin and goalie Rick DiPassio.

Wings 9, Predators 4

The Inside Out Family Chiropractic Predators came out of the gate gnashing the opposition and getting three off the bat, while the Wings could only manage one.

The second and third periods were all Wings, as they were able to find the back of the net eight more times to the Predators' one.

Taking flight for the Wings were Victor Ranieri (one goal and two assists), Mike D. (two assists), Daniel Hamlett (two goals), Brad Wigner (a goal), Bob McHardy (three goals and one assist), Chris Quayle (a goal and two assists), Shane DeLaronde (a goal), Sean Doner (an assist) and Rob Thibeault (an assist). Predator clawers were Colin Fyffe (unassisted), Ray Ilijasic from Howard Cantelon, Tim Vokey from John Hutchinson, and Fyffe from Cantelon.

Moose 5, Fire 2

The short-benched Moose were able to dig deep and pull out a win, even with the charging Ainsley Fire squad throwing everything at them in waves.

It was a two-man show for the Moose, with Brad Ztorc getting the hat-trick and Cam Coulter bagging a brace. Brendan Pace, Carlo Landolfi and Graham Bryson added assists for the Moose. Fire firers were Matthew Geiser from Ryan Wood and Mike Weeda from Shane Ainsley.

Sept. 13

Action in the league started Sept. 13.

Moose 2, Predators 0

In the first game of the season, the Moose were able to shake off the off season rust and bag a pair to take the win from the Predators.

Brett Weight stood tall and turned away all shots to earn the shutout while Pace from Coulter, and Marc de Abaitua from Chuck Hughes added the scoring punch.

Wings 4, Fire 4

The game saw neither team able to best the other, as the Fire and Wings battled to a draw.

The back-and-forth match had each team notch one in the first, one in the second and a pair in the third.

Fire go-to guys were James Kennedy from Steve Whitten, Rob Silvestri from Wood, Sandro Mignosa from Whitten, and Ainsley from Mike Horsley. The Wings net nabbers were Scott McCrimmon from Mike D, Quayle from Hamlett, Thibeault from Mike D, and Hamlett unassisted.

Warriors 7, Blades 3

Warriors showed no mercy in taking the game to the Blades.

After taking a two-goal lead in the first frame, the Warriors lived up to their name and never looked back. While the Blades did try cut into the lead by getting a pair in the second, it just wasn't enough this night.

Point getters for the Warriors were Giancarlo Tarsitano from Norris, Rapan from Conforti, Brent Spagnol (unassisted), Rapan from Spagnol and Conforti, Norris from Tarsitano, Rapan from Spagnol and potting his fourth of the night Rapan (unassisted). The Blades bin bulgers were Levy (unassisted), Clark from Shawn Simpson, and Bauldry from Greg Fuller.

Penguins 4, Wild 4

In a game that echoed the second game, again neither team could best the other. There was no scoring in the first period, with each side potting one in the second and three in the third frame.

The Penguins' lamp lighters were Scott from Alex Schittenhelm, Tarasco (unassisted), Tarasco from Cory Schittenhelm, and for the hat-trick Tarasco from Alex Schittenhelm. The Wild twine ticklers were Beech from Craig Shaw, Shaun Heron from Beech and White, Dan Shaw from James Sheridan and Swan, and Heron from Archer.

Sept. 20

The second week of play in the league had some big scores and great games.

Knights are North Dufferin league champs

The New Lowell Knights defeated the Ivy Leafs 7-5 to claim the 2015 North Dufferin Baseball League championship.

The Leafs and Knights played three games in one weekend, two Saturday and one Sunday to decide a winner.

Ivy won the first game at their home diamond by downing the Knights 10-4 after an explosive nine-run sixth inning.

Brandon Norrie and Todd Gowan pitched for the Knights with Norrie going five and a third innings, giving up four runs on six hits and had one strikeout. Gowan threw the last two-thirds of the sixth inning, allowing six runs on four hits and one walk for the loss.

Brad Grieveson pitched for Ivy and over his seven innings of work let in four runs on an uncommon nine hits, one walk and one hit batter. He also recorded four strikeouts.

Hits for New Lowell went to Sean Connor, Gowan, Chad Purchase, Norrie, Allan Brownridge, Jesse Methetal, Dale Lighthead and Andrew Willmetts.

Ivy had hits from Phil Tan, including a grand slam, Brett Elliott who had two home runs in the game, Matt Bylow, Grieveson, Jarrett Vanderpost and Mike Kazienko.

Game two Saturday was played at the New Lowell park, where the Knights rebounded and kept Ivy off of the scorecard for a 4-0 victory.

Brownridge toed the rubber for New Lowell and gave up only four hits, a walk and a hit batsman, while striking out five.

Vanderpost started for the Leafs and allowed four runs on six hits, three walks and recorded two strikeouts.

Ivy hits went to Bylow, Jeremy Fernandez, Grieveson and Vanderpost.

Chris Greer, Purchase, Norrie, Sean Thompson had hits for New Lowell with Brownridge helping his cause with a two-run home run.

The final game played at Ivy Sunday proved to be an exciting affair. New Lowell was first to plate a run in the second inning. Ivy would tie the match in the fourth frame with a single run and then take a one run lead in the fifth.

The Knights answered back with a three-run sixth inning, only to be outdone by the Leafs in the bottom half of the inning, scoring three runs of their own, and to retain a one-run lead.

New Lowell manufactured a run in the top of the seventh to tie the contest and added two more for a 7-5 lead going into the bottom of the last inning. Ivy couldn't get a bat on the ball in their half, with the last three batters going down on strikes.

Brownridge started again for the Knights and over five innings, allowed four runs on four hits, two walks and marked five strikeouts. Norrie closed the game and recorded the win striking out the last four batters and giving up one run on one hit.

In a post-game presentation, league secretary Scott Anderson presented the Paul Carruthers Memorial Award for Playoff Most Valuable Player to Brownridge for his pitching and hitting contributions.

Anderson also presented the championship trophy, the Strother Cup, to New Lowell's Brownridge and coach Pete Kinghan.

Hockley

He's a Classic!

Craig Collins

Caledon was on the international map over the summer by hosting equestrian events for the Pan American Games at the Caledon Pan Am Equestrian Park in Palgrave.

Craig Collins, managing partner of Equestrian Management Group, which runs the facility, said it was seven years of hard work, especially over the last three to bring it all together.

A lot of the credit went to staff crew, officials and volunteers. "They rose to the occasion, but they also blossomed," he said.

"It was a lot of work, but it was such a wonderful experience," Collins added. "I was thrilled to be part of it."

He also got to be one of the bearers of the Pan Am Torch.
