Town favours expanding Regional council

By Bill Rea

Caledon could be retaining its five seats on Peel Regional council, while Mississauga and Brampton could see their shares increase.

That is the option that Town councillors voted unanimously to back Tuesday night.

Regional councillors are slated to discuss a report from Regional Chair Frank Dale today (Thursday) on recommendations from the Governance Review Task Force.

The task force, consisting of Dale, the mayors of the three municipalities, the CAOs of the Region and municipalities and the Regional Clerk, have put forth five possible options, including the status quo, according to the Dale's report.

There are currently 24 members of council, not counting the Chair. There are 12 representatives from Mississauga, seven from Brampton and five from Caledon. The option Town councillors backed Tuesday night would see Brampton and Mississauga each get another four councillors. In the case of Brampton, Town CAO Mike Galloway said all members of City council would sit as Regional councillors too.

The motion passed by Town council stated the favoured option recognizes the need for more representation for Brampton while Mississauga would keep its current status of having half the seats at the council table, while maintaining effective representation for Caledon.

"I think it's a good compromise," Mayor Allan Thompson commented Tuesday night.

This would not be the first time there have been changes to the composition of Regional council

When the Region was formed in 1974, Mississauga had 10 representatives, with seven from Brampton and five from Caledon. That was changed to the current distribution in 2005.

"Peel Region is growing rapidly," Dale stated in his report, which is on the agenda for today's Regional council meeting. "Over the next 20 years, the population gap between its two largest municipalities will continue to narrow, while growth in Caledon will begin to accelerate."

He added there is no legislation that establishes a formula for reviewing the size or composition of Regional council.

"Consequently, different factors, including representation-by-population, area and

Jones not taken with new cabinet

By Bill Rea

Premier Kathleen Wynne shuffled her cabinet last week, but that shouldn't bring many positive results, as far as Sylvia Jones is concerned.

The new cabinet has 30 members, including seven who have been promoted from the back benches. Twelve members of the cabinet are women, amounting to 40 per cent.

Jones, MPP for Dufferin-Caledon, is also the children and youth services critic for the Progressive Conservative caucus, and she said she was pleased to see Wynne gave that file to someone else.

"I'm happy that the former minister of Children and Youth has been shuffled out," Jones said.

The former minister, Tracy MacCharles, has now taken on the responsibility for Women's Issues and Accessibility. Michael Coteau is now in charge of Children and Youth Services, as well as anti-racism, having been moved from Tourism, Culture and Sport.

Jones said she found it frustrating to get answers from MacCharles.

She was also not too taken with the size of the new cabinet, pointing out only three people were dropped, and they had all announced their resignations before the shuffle. They were Mario Sergio, who was responsible for seniors's issues, former attorney general Madeleine Meilleur and Ted McMeekin, who had been in charge of municipal affairs and housing.

"I think it's too big," Jones declared. "I don't think we need half of the entire Liberal caucus in cabinet."

She also speculated that Wynne is trying to buy loyalty with the promotions.

She didn't think this will help Wynne much.

"She has put such a brand on that Liberal government," Jones commented. "It's clearly her agenda; her mandate."

Jones added the new faces won't make much of a difference.

Thompson not stepping aside

Mayor Allan Thompson says he plans to move forward with the Town's interests.

This is in light of calls for him "step aside" from the group calling itself Your Voice for Bolton.

Thompson has been facing conflict of interest allegations. Arguments were made late in April to a judge of the Superior Court of Justice, but no ruling has been made yet.

"We demand the Mayor step aside — and we expect him to not interfere any further with the very planning process his conflict of interest case is tied to," declared Kim Seipt of Your Voice for Bolton.

Thompson has maintained he was not in conflict.

"I'm looking forward to hearing what the judge's opinion and ruling is," he said.

Most of King Street to remain open

By Bill Rea

Local residents might have seen signs on King Street in Bolton announcing the upcoming closure of the road from Coleraine Drive to Albion Vaughan Road, but things are not quite as bad as they might seem.

Councillor Annette Groves reported she has been informed there will be intermittent closers in the coming weeks, as part of the on-going construction on the road. But it won't be a case of the whole road being closed.

"We just have to let people know," Groves commented.

Peel Region is in the process of replacing existing asphalt on King between Deer Valley Drive and Humber Lea Road, as well as doing some sidewalk replacement and repairs to a storm culvert under the street east of Queen Street and some other work. The details were spelled out in April at a public open house.

At the open house, Project Manager Olek Garbos said the work was to be done in stages, with the road being closed during each stage. Trying to work with partial road closures would shorten the amount of work that can be done during the day, thus lengthening the construction period. Full road closures allow for a larger work area and longer work days, meaning the project should be completed sooner.

Groves told the Citizen the plan remains the same.

She also said Garbos had sent her a message stating the road closure signs are for the through traffic, directing it to a detour which will be setup for the asphalt works in July and August. He added the plan is still to close the road in sections.

"It's giving (local motorists) warning ahead of time," Groves commented.

Province will have to approve history each have a place when determining their respective representation at Regional council," the report stated.

Dale's report also stated changes have to be implemented by the end of 2017 in order to be in place in time for the 2018 municipal elections.

Regional council will be able to ask the Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing to approve a regulation to change its composition, and then a Regional bylaw would have to be passed.

Obey rules when setting off fireworks

With Canada Day celebrations fast approaching, Caledon Fire and Emergency Services reminds retailers and homeowners that there are responsibilities when it comes to selling, purchasing and setting off fireworks.

The goal is to ensure holiday celebrations can be enjoyed safely by everyone.

Retailers can only sell fireworks during the 10 days prior to Canada Day, starting June 21. They must purchase a permit from Caledon Fire and Emergency Services. The permit costs $179. Fire prevention staff will be conducting spot inspections to verify compliance with the bylaw and any other federal and provincial regulations.

The Town strictly prohibits setting off fireworks on public property, parkland, parks, roads or sidewalks.

Fireworks can only be set off on Canada Day (July 1) and only then on private property.

Discharging fireworks on any other day is in contravention of the bylaw and is subject to a fine.

Safety Guidelines

- Keep sparklers away from children. Hot sparklers can burn.
- Appoint a responsible person to be in charge.
- Carefully read and follow the directions on fireworks packaging.

- Always keep a hose or pail of water close by when discharging fireworks.

- Discharge fireworks well away from combustible materials, such as buildings, trees or dry grass.

- Keep onlookers a safe distance away, upwind from the area where fireworks are discharged.

- Light only one firework at a time and only when they are on the ground.

- Never try to light a firework in your hand or re-light dud fireworks.

- For dud fireworks, wait 30 minutes, soak them in a bucket of water and then dispose of them in a metal container.

- If someone is burned, run cool water over the wound for three to five minutes and seek medical attention, if necessary.

- If using wheel-type fireworks, nail them securely to a post or fence and allow spinning clearance.

- Be especially vigilant with children around.

Permits can be obtained at Fire and Emergency Services, 6211 Old Church Rd., Caledon East.

For more information about Town of Caledon Fireworks Bylaw, visit caledon.ca/by-laws.

If there are questions, contact Caledon Fire and Emergency Services at 905-584-2272, ext. 4303 or by email at fire@caledon.ca

Tilson presents bill to allow deduction of greens fees

Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson has introduced a Private Member's Bill which would allow businesses who are entertaining clients on the golf course the same 50 per cent tax deduction enjoyed by competing hospitality industries.

"The saying is true; more business is conducted on the golf course than in the boardroom," Tilson commented. "So I ask why are greens fees excluded from our current taxation laws? A business can entertain clients at a Jays' game or Leafs' game and claim an entertainment deduction. Why not a round of golf?"

The golf industry in Canada is very strong, with 5.7 million players, more than in any other participatory sport. There are 300,000 Canadians who derive their income from golf. More than $530 million per year is raised for charities, again, far more than any other sport. Golf generates $14.3 billion in GDP in Canada and $3 billion in tax revenue for all levels of government. In excess of 60 million rounds of golf are played each year on Canada's 2,340 golf courses.

"This change to the Income Tax Act would have a direct impact on small business across the country," Tilson commented. "Canada is at a disadvantage in this category, since both the U.S. and the U.K. allow for this type of deduction under their tax codes. The Liberal government has committed to a mandate that is supposed to champion the middle class and small business; if the Liberals truly are committed to this approach then they should support my bill."

Multiple deaths much more common in transport truck collisions

OPP has responded to more than 27,000 collisions involving large transport trucks over the past five years.

For this reason, police teamed up with the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) June 16 for Operation Corridor, a 24-hour enforcement and education initiative aimed at encouraging all commercial vehicle drivers to help keep roads safe.

Among the truck-related collisions on OPP-patrolled roads between 2011 and 2015, 260 of them resulted in at least one fatality. Tragically, many of the crashes involved multiple fatalities with a total of 321 people having lost their lives.

Of the victims, 281 of them were drivers and passengers in other vehicles involved in the crashes. The other 40 victims were drivers of the transport trucks. Whether these collisions were the result of unsafe driving on the part of the truck drivers or the drivers of other vehicles, the most compelling fact remains that on average, over the five-year period, for every transport truck driver who died in these collisions, there were seven other lives lost.

This latest data reinforces the need for commercial truck drivers to make road safety their number one priority. The statistics also serve as a reminder to other motorists to share the road safely with these large vehicles.

While most of these truck-related incidents were the result of a collision, every year the OPP investigates road incidents involving tires or other equipment dislodging from transport trucks and flying into the path of other vehicles. In many of these instances, the driver and/or other car occupants are seriously injured or killed.

"Every life we lose on our roads is tragic and, sadly, the highest price we pay for crashes on OPP-patrolled roads is in the loss of human life," commented OPP Deputy Commissioner Brad Blair. "As our latest data tells us, crashes involving commercial motor vehicles usually result in a higher number of multiple fatalities when compared to collisions involving regular-sized vehicles. Although our officers see many safe drivers on our roads every day, those who are not need to know just how devastating and costly it can be when they fail to make safe driving decisions or do not undertake proper maintenance and truck inspections."

During the campaign, officers and their MTO road safety partners were ensuring that commercial truck drivers were driving safely and that their trucks were being properly inspected and maintained.

Mischief at Bolton park

Caledon OPP are asking for help from the public as they investigate a case of mischief at R.J.A. Potts Memorial Park in Bolton.

The incident occurred between 9 p.m. June 12 and 8:15 the following morning. A suspect or suspects entered the men's washroom there and caused more than $1,000 damage to a sink and toilet.

Anyone with information related to this mischief is asked to contact Sergeant Aaron Arnett at 905-584-2241 or toll free at 1-888-310-1122, or call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Police stress damage caused to public facilities, like parks, places to be frequented and enjoyed by many, is not only illegal but contributes to the deterioration of the community. Any mischief is unacceptable, but when damage prevents law abiding citizens the ability to access such facilities, it is an infliction that the whole community must bear.

Be safe during Bike Month

It's a great time of the year for it to be Bike Month, and that's the case until June 30.

With the sunny skies, warmer temperatures and picturesque landscape of Caledon, it's time to pull out the bicycle from storage if that has not already happened. But before doing so, Caledon OPP wants cyclists to make sure they review these safety tips before heading out for a ride:

- Avoid distractions when cycling, such as listening to music using headphones or ear buds, or using a cell phone. Pay attention and keep your eyes on the road.
- Check the weather conditions before you head out.
- Ride in the direction of traffic.
- Beware of parked cars pulling out or opening doors.
- Plan a safe route to your destination and back — Studies have shown that cycle tracks, bike lanes, and bike paths are safer for cyclists, as are routes that have low traffic volumes like residential streets. If possible, avoid cycling on busy roads, major streets and highways. Also, choose routes with lower speed limits.

• Avoid cycling after dark on routes without streetlights if possible — Evidence has shown that riding routes without streetlights, after dark, increases one's risk of injury.

Use Safety Equipment

- Wear reflective and bright clothing.
- Use lights after dark — A bike must have a white front light and a red light to the rear or reflector if it's ridden 30 minutes before sunset and 30 minutes before sunrise, and white reflective tape on the front forks and red reflective tape on the rear forks. The failure to do so may result in a $110 fine.
- Wear a helmet — By law, every cyclist younger than 18 must wear an approved helmet. The fine for not doing so is $110.
- Use a bell or a horn — A bicycle must be equipped with a bell or a horn in proper working order. If you do not have one, the fine is $110.

Different voting methods have their good and bad points

By Bill Rea

When it comes to deciding how to run federal elections in this country, it looks like there's no such thing as a perfect solution.

That was one of the points that came through Sunday at the electoral reform panel discussion, which was hosted by the Dufferin-Caledon Federal Liberal Riding Association.

Presentations were made in favour of proportional representation, the use of ranked or preferential ballots, and maintaining the status quo, also known as first past the post.

Dr. Dennis Pilon, associate professor of political science at York University, pointed out that under the current system, a candidate could win an election, even if that person gets considerably less than half the total votes. A candidate just has to have more than anyone else.

Proportional representation is easy to understand. He said if a party at election time gets 45 per cent of the total vote, that party gets roughly 45 per cent of the seats in the assembly. He added that while there are some variations, most western democracies use some form of proportional representation.

There are lists of candidates who would be eligible to be named to seats under a system like this. Pilon said there are variations, in which the list could be open or closed. If the list is open, voters have the ability to move candidates up or down the list.

One of the variations he mentioned is mixed-member proportional representation, in which some representatives are elected in ridings, and others are chosen from lists. He said such a system is used in New Zealand.

Pilon said one of the advantages of the current system is it helps create legislative majorities, with significant local representation. The disadvantages is the results may not reflect the will of the voters. Its also not clear how to measure accountability when a party can form a majority government with only 40 per cent of the vote.

The advantages of proportional representation are it's more accurate, creating real majorities in government, and more competitive. The disadvantages include fewer clear majorities, meaning there have to be coalitions to form governments. He added there are concerns such a system could result in instability, but that's not well supported by facts.

Pilon also addressed how a decision to change the system should be made. He said the Conservatives want a referendum, but there are arguments that would just reflect a matter of taste. He argued it should be more a matter of principle, or what is right.

Dr. Barry Kay, associate professor of political science at Wilfrid Laurier University, said he was an advocate of proportional representation until recently.

"There's no perfect system," he maintained, adding the decision has to be based on what is better.

Kay pointed out that in the 23 federal elections in Canada since the Second World War, there have only been two occasions when one party got more than 50 per cent of the total vote. One was in 1958, and the other in 1984.

He agreed proportional representation offers a fair way to distribute representatives, but that's assuming the party system remains as it is now.

He cited examples of Italy and Israel, where there are about 10 parties competing for seats in the legislature. There are some parties that won't deal with certain other parties. Kay said that results in a bargaining exercise, in which smaller parties are able to carry more leverage than their vote totals should allow. He was worried Canada could move in a direction like that.

He was also concerned that proportional representation could lead to the creation of more parties.

Kay stated that if people are going to opt for change, they are not likely to choose proportional representation.

He also said that if ranked ballots (allowing people to vote for their first, second and third choice) are used, that will likely benefit the Liberals more. Many Conservatives would pick the Grits as their second choice, as would many New Democrats. He added there are some who would see ranked ballots as a Liberal power grab.

Some people vote strategically, meaning they vote for a party that's likely to get elected, rather than the one they would like to. Ranked ballots would make that unnecessary.

Kay also pointed out most MPs get elected with less than 50 per cent of the total vote, so ranked ballots can fix that.

Philip Olsson of KJ Harrison and Partners Inc., argued the current system is effective, flexible, accommodates growth and change, and is fair and understandable. He also said it's transparent, as pre-election deals between parties are rare.

"So we have problems?" he asked.

Olsson pointed out ranked ballots would result in more legitimate majorities, but he was concerned that they would result in moderation of party policies to make them more appealing to second-choice voters.

Proportional representation, he said, seems more fair for smaller parties, but he also said it's not self-evident that parties will go to Ottawa in proportion to the number of votes they get.

"It's not matter of natural justice," he said.

He also said it might seem to be more transparent, especially in terms of cooperation between parties. But he argued it could result in more pre-packaged coalitions.

Olsson said there could be unforeseen consequences from both alternatives.

The foreseen consequences from ranked ballots, he said, would be confused voters. He also said it would increase the role of parties and the influence of polling, possibly producing results it's not supposed to.

What does a seniors-friendly community look like?

Mayor's Seniors Forum

Wednesday, June 29, 2016
2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Caledon Community Complex

Join us for an informative and engaging afternoon featuring a panel discussion on how best to build a seniors-friendly community.

Enjoy refreshments and an opportunity to ask questions and share your thoughts with our Municipal partners. Register for this free event at:

www.caledon.ca/seniorsforum

905.584.2272 x.4156

Looking for an opportunity to serve your community or know someone who is?

The Town of Caledon is currently seeking one (1) community-minded resident to serve on the Committee of Adjustment for the remaining 2014-2018 term of Council.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE COMMITTEE OF ADJUSTMENT?

The Committee of Adjustment is a quasi-judicial body that considers applications for minor variances from the Town's comprehensive zoning by-law and applications for severance (consent, easements, leases in excess of 21 years and lot additions). Decisions made by the Committee of Adjustment may be appealed to the Ontario Municipal Board. Members receive a per diem of $130.00 for each meeting attended. Meetings are held once a month on a Wednesday from 1:00 p.m. – 4:30 p.m.

AM I QUALIFIED?

Consideration is given to applicants with the following qualifications; however those who do not meet all the qualifications are still encouraged to apply:

- a resident of the Town of Caledon;
- available for daytime meetings;
- not an employee of the Town of Caledon;
- preference will be granted to those with a planning, real estate, legal, engineering or agricultural background;
- previous committee or tribunal experience preferred; and
- have not been appointed to the Committee of Adjustment for more than three terms of Council.

WHERE DO I SUBMIT MY APPLICATION?

Application forms can be obtained from the Town's website at www.caledon.ca/committees, picked up at Town hall (6311 Old Church Road, Caledon on) or contact 905.584.2272 x.2366.

Interested individuals must submit the required application form to the Town's legislative services section either by email to legislative.services@caledon.ca delivered or mailed to Town Hall, attn: Legislative Services – committee recruitment, 6311 Old Church Road, Caledon, ON L7C 1J6 by Friday, July 8, 2016, at 4:30 p.m.

Please note that appointments to the Committee of Adjustment are decided by Council. All applicants will be notified regarding Council's decision.

WHERE CAN I GET MORE INFORMATION?

For further information regarding the recruitment process, contact legislative services at 905.584.2272 x.2366 or email legislative.services@caledon.ca.

Final property tax bills have been mailed

The final property tax due dates are:
Thursday, July 7, 2016 and Thursday, September 1, 2016

Taxpayers are responsible for the payment of property taxes by the due date.

Please contact the Town at 905.584.2272 x.7750 before the due date if you do not have a copy of your 2016 Final property tax bill. Failure to receive a tax bill does not excuse a taxpayer from responsibility for payment nor relieve the taxpayer from liability to pay penalties and interest.

NOTICE: POTENTIAL POSTAL STRIKE

To avoid late payment fees in the event of a postal strike, information on special arrangements to collect tax payments will be available:

Online: www.caledon.ca
Phone: 905.584.2272 x.4026
Email: taxes@caledon.ca

Alternate payment methods are listed on the Town's website and on the back of your tax bill.

Late payment charges will be applied one day following the due date and on the first day of each following month that property taxes are outstanding. Neither the Treasurer nor Customer Service staff have the authorization to waive penalty or interest charges.

Payment options include enrolling in a pre-authorized payment plan, by post-dated cheque, in person at Town Hall during operating hours or by 24-hour drop box (by cheques only in drop box please), by telephone, mobile or internet banking, at your financial institution or online by credit card at www.plastiq.com (service fee applies to online credit card payments).

Cartoonist Anthony Jenkins display at Dufferin museum

By Constance Scrafield

You no doubt remember them: the funniest caricatures, by Anthony Jenkins, of all the people you love to hate but will never meet, for years in The Globe and Mail.

Politicians, actors, celebrities — the famous and the infamous have all come under the gun of Jenkins' witty pen.

They are about to be on display at the Dufferin County Museum and Archives (DCMA), beginning with an opening reception June 25 at 6 p.m.

It was always black and white at The Globe until he was informed, as he told us, "Then, they said, 'we're going to colour.'"

However, over the years, Jenkins had been travelling far and wide, largely in the Third World. He was very impressed with the wonderful colours everywhere in Africa, Asia, South America, not only in the land itself but even more the people and what they wore — the marvellous cloths and weavings of their many cultures.

In the 1980s, he spent several months in Africa, with Mali, at the southern edge of the Sahara Desert, as one of his first experiences of all this colour. The travelling and the richness of what he saw influenced his take on how he would "colour" his caricatures.

"It couldn't be faces that were an orange blob with hair on top — I just threw wild colours — there's no rhyme or reason — I just do it, which is the way artists work, I guess."

After 40 years in the business, his body of work has simply collected in boxes at home.

"I thought, 'Why should they sit there in boxes? I should get them out and show them,'" he commented.

How the exhibition at the museum came about, Jenkins explained, "I just approached them. It was just shy of 40 years with The Globe and Mail. It was my only job, just out of university — a dream job, being paid to draw. So, I have this big collection to display."

"For years, I had an inky hand," he said. But now? "Yeah, I still do," looking at his fingers, "now."

"Now I'm freelancing and my wife suggested I draw local people, hopefully to promote the show," he went on. "I do fairly straight work as well and am willing to take commissions — I do that too. I'll do portraits."

His technique: "I will draw the figure (or the face) in lines and then, paint them out."

As you will learn when you go to the Museum and here, by the bye, Jenkins has a book out of his drawings, entitled A Fine Line.

He loves the lines, which are very simple.

"It's nice to see most of your work between covers in a book," was his remark about it, "Then, I look at one and think — that's pretty good."

"There's a bit of a fraud involved." He said it almost like a confession. "It looks like I did it in five minutes. You have to think about what to leave out — what you can leave out and still make a pleasant image."

Even as a child, he said, "I always wanted to be a caricaturist — Mad Magazine was my bible — the drawings are still killer — they're caricatures with ideas."

"I've always liked faces," he added. "I have a wall of 50 faces, taken from (my travels in) Africa, Asia and South America, photos I took — wonderful faces in the Third World."

He related something of his trip to India. "I was in India for only 30 days," he said.

"I was always travelling with a sketch pad and decided I would draw a face a day. So, I would sit on a curb, drawing a person but there were so many people everywhere and, all of a sudden, I'd have 50 people standing around, some behind me or the person I was drawing — so, the pressure was on to finish the drawing. Sometimes, I'd give it to the person I had done."

On another adventure, he travelled from Alaska to the southern tip of South America, along the Pacific "spine" of the continent. Coming across one of the early borders from Alaska, a border guard asked him where he was going and he replied: "Tierra del Fuego. And the guard got really angry and gave me a really hard time."

"I love all the colour in the Third World — the rest of us are so dull — the Third World, people are poor but it is not dull."

Naturally, about the upcoming event at the Museum, "I'm thrilled. It's nice to have your stuff on display. What I love in any exhibition of art are the flaws or mistakes — where something is covered over or adjusted. I can see the humanity in there. It humanizes the work."

This is a rare opportunity to see and visit the years of caricatures from the Globe and Mail, as well, of course, as the many other publications to which Jenkins contributed.

As he encouraged us: "For lovers of the drawn line, I've got all this stuff, come and see it."

And not only them, but all of us.

For information about the exhibition, titled like his book, A Fine Line, or tickets to the opening reception, Jenkins' caricatures and other drawings and paintings are on display from June 25 to Aug. 20, call 877-941-7787 or online at info@dufferinmuseum.com

The museum is at the intersection of Airport Road and Highway 89.

Auditions at Century Church Theatre

Century Theatre Guild will be holding auditions for the pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, by Jo Phenix, June 25.

All ages are welcome, but children must be able to read from a script.

This is a musical comedy, so an ability to sing, either solo or as part of a group, is important. There are 13 principal roles for adults and youth, and 15 ensemble roles for all ages. Ensemble members will play multiple characters, and take part in up to 12 songs and production numbers, and adults who would like to participate, but not as solo singers are encouraged to try out for these roles.

Jo Phenix will direct, with Doug MacDougall as musical director, Melissa Robertson as choreographer, Geri Vanderen-de as stage manager, and Trish Hamilton taking charge of costumes. Rehearsals will start in September, with shows dates Nov. 25 to Dec. 4.

The auditions will be at Century Church Theatre, 72 Trafalgar Rd., Hillsburgh. Children up to Grade 8 should come at 9:30 a.m., with older students and adults at 10:30 a.m. Auditions sides (scripts) for anyone interested in a speaking role are available by emailing jophenix@sympatico.ca; children still at school should give their age so the appropriate script can be sent. It would be helpful for anyone planning to audition to inform Jo by email.

For more details, visit centurychurchtheatre.com, and follow the link to Auditions.

SPRING PRODUCTION AT HUMBERVIEW

The stage at Humberview Secondary School in Bolton came alive recently with the annual Spring Drama Production. One of the plays dealt with the distractions caused by the Internet, and it included the performers pelting each other with stuffed pigs.

Osler Foundation launches public capital campaign

William Osler Health System Foundation recently kicked off the public portion of its $30 million fundraising campaign for the new Peel Memorial Centre for Integrated Health and Wellness at Brampton City Hall.

The new facility is scheduled to open its doors to the public in early 2017.

While Queen's Park will pay 90 per cent of the cost of construction, Osler Foundation must raise $30 million through the community to help complete the construction and to provide all of the funds to equip the facility. That represents everything from the waiting room chairs to high-tech diagnostic equipment.

Peel Memorial is a new, state-of-the-art hospital that is currently being constructed in downtown Brampton. Providing complimentary services to Brampton Civic Hospital, Peel Memorial will also offer a range of speciality clinics, day programs and services — from high-tech diagnostics and surgery, to women's and children's health. Space will also be created for education classrooms, where patients and family members can learn from health professionals about how to take a more active role in managing their own health.

"We are honoured that our community leaders and champions have fund raised in support of the new Peel Memorial," commented Foundation President and CEO Ken Mayhew. "However, more needs to be done to raise money to help complete construction and fund the purchase of millions of dollars of equipment that is needed for this new facility. With the community lending its support, we all have the power to do something extraordinary."

Meaghan's 30th anniversary luncheon Sunday

Residents and members of the business community are invited to a free lunch Sunday (June 26) as the guests of Meaghan Zarembo.

It will run from 1 to 4 p.m. at Bolton Pizza Panini, 12599 Regional Road 50, Unit 1.

Donations will be accepted for the Meaghan Zarembo Music Room for Disabled Individuals.

Meaghan is celebrating 30 years of survival since a horrific car accident left her with a permanent brain injury. This local hero founded the music Room, sponsors kids from needy families and provides music scholarships to worthy students. Last year, she was an official torchbearer for the 2015 Toronto PanAm Games.

At the launch, Osler Foundation revealed its "You Have the Power" campaign, showcasing how the community has the "power" to help open the new Peel Memorial. The creative showcases how the facility provides life-changing care to families from the patients' perspective.

"Everyone has their own personal story and everyone knows someone helped by Peel," Mayhew added. "Each person featured in the 'You Have the Power' campaign is a real patient with a real story. Each of these individuals is profoundly grateful for the exceptional care they have received from our Brampton facilities and they appreciate the role the community has played and needs to play to help equip Peel Memorial."

Those featured in the campaign include a baby who arrived a little earlier than expected. Today, she is healthy and growing. She and her mother will turn to Peel Memorial for years to come as she grows into adulthood.

There is also a man who underwent knee surgery through the day surgery program (which will be offered at the new Peel Memorial). He is well and working toward a full recovery so that he can enjoy activities on through his retirement.

There was a 16-year-old boy who had a seizure walking home from school and received care at Brampton Civic, care which will soon be available at Peel Memorial.

As well, there was a man who was worried about cancer, a disease which claimed the lives of both his older and younger brothers, in the past three years. He needed a CT scan to put his mind at ease. High technology diagnostic equipment, such as CT scanners, will be available at Peel Memorial.

There was also a mom with her son who recently received care at Brampton Civic. He can rest easy knowing his mom has access to an integrated care path that includes Peel Memorial and Brampton Civic.

"The City of Brampton is excited to be part of the 'You Have the Power' campaign launch, and about the opportunity for businesses and individuals to help be a part of delivering life-changing care to our community," said Brampton Mayor Linda Jeffrey. "The new Peel Memorial will be a wonderful complement to the programs and services already provided at Brampton Civic Hospital, and we are eagerly anticipating its opening. Community support for our hospitals has never been more important."

"This is truly an exciting time for this community, with the anticipation of a state-of-the-art hospital that will become a reality in just a few short months," said Osler President and CEO Matthew Anderson. "The new Peel Memorial will improve access to the important health services that people in our region rely on most, and provide more options for the hundreds of thousands of patients who receive care and treatment at Osler sites each year. Its focus on health, wellness and prevention will also support people in managing some of the key health challenges facing our community, including chronic disease."

"The new Peel Memorial is giving us a chance to lead the way in the province, with a state-of-the-art facility that will meet the increasing health care needs of our community, while changing our health system by focusing on health, wellness and prevention of illness and chronic disease," said Osler Chief of Staff Dr. Frank Martino. "As physicians who work in our hospitals across Osler, we know how important it is for patients to have access to the space, equipment and technology so that we can provide exemplary, life-saving care. That is why many of my colleagues and I have made our own personal pledges in support of Peel Memorial. There has never been a more crucial time to support leading-edge health care in this community."

SALE AT TRINITY CHURCH

The lawns around Trinity Anglican Church in Campbell's Cross were packed with merchandise recently. The church was holding the annual Yard Sale. Rob Judge and Joyce Wiggins were helping to sort the inventory.

Crowds were out for a great time

The grounds between Town Hall and Caledon Community Complex were packed with people Saturday as the Town hosted the annual Caledon Day festivities. MagicalLee of Bolton was entertaining people with some of his magic tricks.

Michelle Woodhouse of Bolton opened the celebration by singing O Canada.

The band I Done Lost My Tractor Again earned the right to perform at Caledon Day when they won the Battle of the Bands competition last month.

Volunteers at the Eco Caledon tent were showing people how to make mats out of milk bags. Betty de Groot, a teacher at St. John the Baptist Elementary School in Bolton, was giving Kate Delaney, 8, of Belwood some pointers.

Canada Day celebrations coming to Caledon

Mollie Cavan, manager of the Bramalea and Mayfield branch of Scotiabank, presented a large donation to Councillor Jennifer Innis, a director of Caledon Canada Day celebrations. The money will help pay for the preparation and setting up of the Albion Hills Conservation Area. Also present was the staff of this Scotiabank branch, Jay Clark of Toronto and Region Conservation Authority and Bernie Rochon from the Palgrave Rotary Club.

Rochon, Innis and Clark were at the Bolton Canadian Tire to receive a contribution from store proprietor Chris Hartleib.

Help celebrate Caledon Canada Day at Albion Hills

Albion Hills Conservation Area provides the perfect natural backdrop and is the host for the 20th Caledon Canada Day Celebration.

Meet and greet some of the critters from Reptilia and Kingsport Environmental Birds of Prey. Kids can enjoy playing at the Canadian Tire Fun Zone, or explore the inflatable maze, and climb the rock wall.

Enjoy live performances by Steelpan Revolution, Rhythmfoot with Frank and Chanda, and the Leahy family, a musical group that brings rhythm through music, dance and soul.

To end the evening off, rock out with the Campfire Poets.

This event also features food vendors and provides many different food options to satisfy the hungriest of event goers.

Choose from one of the fantastic food trucks, including hearty hamburgers and hotdogs, burritos, Caribbean cuisine, gourmet sandwiches, lasagna, roasted corn, wood oven pizza, poutine or slow cooked butter chicken. And don't forget about the fair food — ice cream, delicious mini donuts and funnel cakes.

The event kicks off at 4 p.m. July 1, and continues until 11 p.m. The official singing of O Canada by Julia Gentile will be at 7:05 p.m. All of this excitement will be topped off at dusk, with a fantastic pyrotechnic display which is sure to have you ooing and awing.

Come to the festival in Caledon village

The Caledon Agricultural Society will be holding its 26th annual Caledon Canada Day Strawberry Festival.

It will be July 1 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Caledon Fairgrounds in Caledon village.

Admission will be free, and the festi-ties will include birthday cake and balloons at noon, a classic car show, all-day strawberry breakfast and strawberry desserts, crafts and more.

The opening ceremonies will be at noon.

The Caledon Fairgrounds are at 18297 Hurontario St. (Highway 10).

Mitch Ferris, sales representative with James Dick Construction, and Dino Ferri of Argo Developments also made contributions to the coming Canada Day celebrations at Albion Hills.

Canada Day celebration at Downey's

Join in the family fun at Downey's Farm Market and Winery July 1.

There will be free admission and parking. At 9 a.m., enjoy a strawberry pancake breakfast at $8 per person. Serving pancakes and Downey's own strawberries will be some of Caledon's finest councillors and mayor. Live entertainment begins at 10 a.m. with Bob's Banjo Band and continues on during the day. Downey's Farm Caledon's Strawberry Festival will be officially opened at 10:30 a.m. You are invited to celebrate Canada Day with a piece of birthday cake.

Team K-9 Dog Show will be performing at 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Abracadabra Magic at 1 p.m.

Visit farm animals at Downey's Kritter Korral and the ponies will be saddled up and ready for rides around the ring. Take a wagon ride to the U-Pick strawberry fields or buy strawberries ready picked.

Enjoy fries from Poppa John's French Fry Truck or hot dogs from the grill. Try a heaping helping of strawberry shortcake or strawberry ice cream at Downey's Ice Cream Saloon. In addition, breads, pies, muffins and donuts are all baked in view in the Barn Market.

Downey's Farm Market is located at 13682 Heart Lake Rd., south of King Street. Downey's Farm is a family owned agritourism farm featuring U-Pick and ready picked strawberries and raspberries, birthday parties, school tours and corporate events. Visit the website at www.downeysfarm.com

What about our infrastructure?

It seems to be almost daily that we read about the infrastructure needs of our large cities, and particularly those in Toronto.

We recently witnessed Premier Kathleen Wynne celebrating the completion of track-laying on the long-delayed extension of Toronto's subway into York Region and portraying it as the first step toward having a truly regional public transit system.

Even now, the Province, through its Metrolinx agency, is building a crosstown LRT (light rail transit) line along Eglinton Avenue, stands committed to finance an eastward extension of the Bloor-Danforth subway to the Scarborough Town Centre and is apparently ready to finance a downtown relief line and a northward extension of the Yonge subway to Richmond Hill.

These projects and others are part of a commitment by Queen's Park to spend $120 billion on transportation infrastructure in Toronto.

But what is, or at least should be, at issue is the increasing reliance on Ontario taxpayers to pay for something that essentially benefits only Toronto and its immediate environs.

Looking at it in a slightly different way, the government announcements come at a time when housing prices in Toronto have risen about 30 per cent since 2012 and it's increasingly difficult to find a detached home anywhere in the city for less than $1 million.

The reason, the experts say, is a worsening imbalance between supply and demand, with little or no vacant land left in Toronto and Mississauga and a Greenbelt area designed to prevent the sort of urban sprawl witnessed since the Second World War.

In the circumstances, spending $120 billion on improving public transit in Toronto will obviously increase the value of suburban properties, making it even more difficult for young couples to find a starter home anywhere but in a high-rise condominium — hardly the ideal place to be raising a family.

One consequence of the current planning will surely be an increasing exodus to the fringes of the Greater Toronto and Hamilton Area (GTHA), with homeowners commuting to Toronto from as far away as Kitchener and Peterborough.

Yet, we're hearing nothing at all from Queen's Park about improving the transportation infrastructure in these "exurbs."

We wonder whether any study has ever been made of the potential of policies designed to provide affordable housing and transit facilities on marginal farmlands in Dufferin and Caledon.

Ideally, we would aim to have new housing available for less than $300,000 a unit, and commuter services that would allow breadwinners to make it to and from work in less than an hour.

That, we submit, would be possible if Metrolinx were to abandon its addiction to double-decker GO Transit trains and purchase equipment similar to that in use for the Union-Pearson (UP) Express and provide at least rush-hour service to Union Station from Orangeville, Alliston, Stouffville and Peterborough.

Such trains could make the trips to Union Station in about an hour if they provided express service through portions of the GTA that already have double-decker trains. Orangeville-area commuters bound for intermediate points in Mississauga and Toronto would have optional transfers at Brampton.

Financing such services would involve trivial costs by comparison with those now being contemplated for Toronto.

Of course, something that should happen, but won't, is a Provincially imposed property tax in Toronto to support the transit investments there. A tax of $100 on each $100,000 of assessed value would raise $1,000 on a residential property worth $1 million, and still leave the total property tax burden for Torontonians well below that already faced outside the city.

Such a measure would at least mean that a greater portion of the proposed $120 billion in spending would be borne by those who will benefit from it.

Why won't it happen? Obviously because there are too many votes in Hogtown.

Rotary Club of Palgrave's Weekly Rotary Minute

By Bill Clarke

"Rotary," it seems, is not a common household topic and many people have no idea what Rotary is all about.

For this reason, it is important that every member of any Rotary Club should be spreading the word about the good that Rotary does around the world and in our own communities. Rotarians should take every opportunity to let others know about the contributions made by Rotary worldwide through various humanitarian and educational program performed by local Clubs.

Rotary Clubs worldwide are always looking for new members and it is so very important that each and every Rotarian encourages those who he or she thinks would be the type of person to embrace the ideals of Rotary and its efforts to bring some peace and joy to those who struggle in today's crazy world.

Our club, this past year, helped such efforts locally as the Caledon Parent-Child Center, Caledon Meals on Wheels, Meaghan's Music Room, Bethell Hospice, Family Transition Place, The Exchange, Peace Ranch, local Scouts and Girl Guides, Bolton Sea Cadets and many others. Internationally we aided Sleeping Children Around the World (with help from Palgrave Public School), Asopica (a school in Venezuela), built bathrooms for schools in Honduras, and aided in building of schools in Knysna (South Africa).

Please visit www.rotaryclubofpalgrave.com for more information on our Club and all the wonderful ways you could get involved!

It happened today

During the Watergate scandal that brought down the administration of American President Richard Nixon, his staunchest defenders maintained there was no hard evidence, commonly referred to as the "smoking gun," that Nixon had done anything wrong.

That "smoking gun" was revealed in early August 1974, when tape recordings were released of a conversation between Nixon and his chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman, in which Nixon authorized having the CIA block the FBI's investigation of the Watergate break-in.

That "smoking-gun" conversation took place this day, June 23, 1972.

Save for retirement

There's a TV commercial that many of you have probably seen.

The first scene depicts the retirement party of some nice man, with the guest of honour being presented with a fancy new watch.

Fast forward an unspecified amount of time, and see the same nice man clutching his precious watch, walking up to a shop so he can pawn it.

The message is no one who has worked hard for years should be forced to pawn personal possessions in order to get by. It ties in, of course, with plans of the federal government to expand the current Canada Pension Plan (CPP). This ad is been paid for by the unions of the Canadian Labour Congress, and needless to say, this outfit is in favour of expanding CPP.

They have also set up a website to promote their position, and it contains certain facts.

For example, it seems about 600,000 Canadian seniors are trying to get by with low incomes.

It is sad to think that some people are struggling, especially those who are past the point when they can look forward to possible raises or advancement at work. And I'm sure there are a lot of people who are forced to sell personal possessions because they need the money. It's not nice.

At the risk of seeming to be harsh, the first time I saw this commercial, and realized what the message was, I found myself wondering if this man had set aside money for his eventual retirement. One would like to think he would have. Most of us can, you know.

Another point that's behind this commercial is a lot of people have trouble setting aside money. Granted, it's not easy. It requires a certain amount of discipline. I think it's just a matter of preparing a budget and living within it; something we should all do, but which I suspect many of us do not do.

Interestingly, the Fraser Institute came out with a report in the last week or so, outlining five myths when it comes to CPP. One of the myths cited is Canadians are not saving enough for retirement.

"The evidence shows most Canadians are well prepared for retirement and claims to the contrary ignore the ample resources outside the formal pension system available to Canadians when they retire," the report stated.

Some of us have pension plans where we work, but a lot of us, myself included, don't. In fact, according to the website, about two-thirds of Canadians don't have a pension plan to look forward to.

Are those two-thirds not aware of that? I have been paying into CPP since I first entered the workforce, so I naturally expect there will be some money there for me if and when I retire. And since I am in my late 50s, thoughts of retirement pop into my head a lot more frequently than they used to. I have always known that CPP would provide me with some income when I reached a certain age. But there was always an understanding that if I expected to enjoy a certain quality of life, I had better start making some necessary arrangements myself. Until the days of their respective deaths, both my parents nagged me to do just that, and that's what I did.

I have always maxed out on my RRSP contributions, and plan to keep doing so for as long as I can.

I will grant that it has not always been easy to do that. There have been times when I had to borrow money to make the necessary contributions. And there have been times when I've had to convert other investments (more about that later), but it's been done willingly. The benefits have included reductions in the income tax I was expected to pay. Plus I have investments with growth potential on which I don't have to pay taxes, at least not yet.

And for many years, a certain amount of every paycheque I receive has gone into investments. Granted, as an investor, I probably belong in the "small potatoes" category. There's only so much I can afford, but every little bit helps. These investments, barring a massive market collapse, will represent an ability to live a bit beyond what CPP might provide.

Another myth cited by the Fraser Institute is "higher CPP contributions will increase overall retirement savings."

Not so, according to the Institute. Increasing the contributions will mean people will have less take-home pay, meaning they will have less money for things like investments, including RRSPs. In a lot of cases, the savings won't increase, but will just be moved around some.

So is CPP a superior form of saving to the investments some of us make?

I doubt it. For one thing, once the contributions come off our paycheques, it becomes the government's money, meaning the people in charge of Ottawa decide who gets how much and when. Despite what promises might be made by the Trudeau government, they can change their minds at any time. And future governments could change the rules as they please.

Besides, no matter how much I have contributed to CPP, if I don't live long enough to collect, I won't see a dime of it, and neither will my heirs.

On the other hand, the way the system is designed, there's no way to outlive CPP benefits. People who live into their 90s or beyond are assured there will be that reliable amount of income. No matter how much one personally invests or sets aside, the more they draw on that money, the greater the chance that it might eventually run out.

When it comes to investments, including RRSPs, the investors have a certain amount of control because it's their money.

Although I do try to maintain a certain level of liquidity, there is always the unexpected. I could one day find myself in a tight spot, and the money I have in investments will be there to help me out. I could even dip into the money in my RRSPs, although I would get dinged for tax on that.

You can't dip into the money that you've put into CPP, because it's not your money any more — it's the government's.

There are people who have trouble getting by after they have left the workforce, but I think there's a sound argument that increasing CPP contributions is not the answer.

Finding some way to drive home the message that people have to provide for themselves in their old age would be much more productive. We are all going to get old, and we should prepare for it. That sounds like simple common sense, but it constantly surprises me how the use of common sense seems so uncommon in many cases.

Take in the Canada Day celebrations in Dufferin-Caledon

Canada Day is a celebration of all that is great about our country.

It honours our past, our present and our future. We are all proud to celebrate Canada's rich history, diverse natural and cultural heritage, strong values, and many accomplishments.

At 149-years-young, Canada is vibrant, dynamic and as strong as ever.

Here in Canada, there is so much to be proud of, and in celebration of that, Dufferin-Caledon is hosting numerous events taking place July 1 which will help represent this remarkable country and all of the residents living within it.

The Canada Day festivities taking place in Dufferin-Caledon include Downey's Farm on Heart Lake Road in Caledon with delicious food, great company, and tremendous patriotism. For more information, visit www.downeysfarm.com Alongside Downey's Farm, is the Caledon Agricultural Society located at the Caledon Fairgrounds in Caledon Village.

OTTAWA JOURNAL

MP Dufferin-Caledon

Visitors can expect live entertainment, classic cars, a petting zoo and so much more. For more information, please visit <http://caledonfair.ca>

Following that celebration, there is the annual celebration at the Orangeville Legion (7 John St.). This is always a wonderful ceremony, and it begins at 2 p.m., followed by a big barbecue with music, refreshments and mingling. For more information, please call 519-942-4895.

The events continue with Amaranth's celebrations on 6th line, including fantastic food provided by the Orangeville Lions Club, along with short speeches and entertainment. For more information, please call 519-941-1007.

There is also the Town of Orangeville's Canada Day events located at the Alder Street Recreation Centre. The festivities will consist of free swims, laser tag, kids' activities, cake-cutting, and fireworks at 10 p.m. over at Island Lake Conservation Area. For more information, please visit www.orangeville.ca

The Town of Shelburne's Canada Day celebrations will take place at the Centre Dufferin Recreation Complex. This particular event is filled with fun community activities, including free swims, a tractor pull, a communal barbecue, live music, lots of food, as well as fireworks at dusk. For more information, please visit www.shelburne.ca

Finally, the Albion Hills Conservation Area in Palgrave is the location of another fun-filled event, complete with lots of Canada Day-themed activities, including live music, hay rides, magic shows, a splash pad, great food and a spectacular fireworks display at dusk! For more information, please visit <https://trca.ca/caledon-canada-day-celebrations/>

Canada's future is bright and July 1, here in Dufferin-Caledon and across the country, we are proud to celebrate Canada — the best country in the world.

Happy Canada Day!

An eventful spring session wraps up at legislature

The spring Legislative session came to an end recently, and what an eventful session it has been.

Whether it is banning the use of natural gas; deleting government hard drives related to the Pan Am Games; or cutting-off children over the age of five from accessing life-changing therapy, this has been a session this government would like to forget.

For more than two months, my leader Patrick Brown and I as the Critic for Children and Youth Services have shared personal stories of families impacted by the government's decision to remove children over the age of five from accessing Intensive Behavioral Intervention (IBI) therapy. Individuals and organizations, including the Ontario Association of Speech-Language Pathologists and Audiologists, Autism Ontario, the Provincial Advocate for Children and Youth, the Ontario Association of Behavioural Analysis, the chair of the government's expert panel, the Ontario Public School Boards' Association, and organizations including ETFO, OSSTF, the OFL, CUPE and OPSEU, have united to oppose the government's announcement. In addition,

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

more than 20 municipalities, including Orangeville, Caledon, Shelburne, Melancthon and Mulmur, have passed resolutions calling on the government to reverse their decision. It's time for the government to start listening to the experts and the thousands of parents impacted, and allow children over the age of five to access this life-changing therapy.

Last month, a leaked version of the government's Climate Change Action Plan included details about the government's intention to ban the use of natural gas for home heating. This goes to show their intention to make life harder for everyday Ontarians. There are 76 per cent of Ontarians who use natural gas to heat their home. If the government got its way, it would cost Ontarians an additional $3,000 per year and $4,500 to retrofit their home to use electricity that has skyrocketed in cost under this government's watch. While we agree that climate change is a threat that needs to be addressed, the government's plan is reckless and economically disastrous. The Progressive Conservative Caucus and I support a practical and realistic plan that will protect the environment help grow our economy and make energy affordable for Ontario families.

The Auditor General released her special report on the 2015 Pan Am/Parapan Games June 8, and confirmed that the Pan Am Games were neither on time nor on budget, costing taxpayers over $300 million more than expected. In addition, the Auditor General noted that she was unable to obtain all answers and documents requested, and couldn't get access to hard drives because they were destroyed. Following a letter from my PC Caucus colleague, the Information and Privacy Commissioner of Ontario will now investigate the record-keeping practices of the Pan Am Games staff.

While the Legislative session may be over, my PC Caucus colleagues and I will continue to ensure the interests of Ontarians are heard.

PLANTS PLANTED IN BOLTON

So much for the sacred trust

NATIONAL AFFAIRS
Claire Hoy

One of the primary issues which really hurt the Tories during the last election campaign was the notion that they treated Canada's veterans poorly.

You may recall that former Vaughan MP Julian Fantino was eventually hounded out of his Veteran's Affairs portfolio after opposition parties and veteran activists made a persuasive case that the Tories, who talked a lot about respecting veterans, weren't exactly up to the job.

Thus it was that well into the campaign, Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau, recognizing an easy target when he saw it, surrounded himself with uniformed men and women on a stage in Belleville and vowed that if he became prime minister he would live up to the "sacred trust to our veterans and their families" by launching a $300 million annual program to invest in our retired servicemen and women.

Of all the groups in society pushing for help from government, it's hard not to argue that those people who put their lives on the line in defence of our nation are not among the most worthy.

And so it is, as everyone knows, that Trudeau did indeed become prime minister, to some degree on the strength of his commitment to veterans. Though the Tories did, in fact, do a lot of good work on the veteran's file, the fact remains that a series of highly publicized missteps by Fantino and others created an image of an uncaring, arrogant government that talked the talk but refused to walk the walk.

No doubt veterans across the land, upset with Stephen Harper's government, were joyous at Trudeau's electoral success, particularly in light of the Tories' insistence on fighting a court case launched by six wounded veterans in 2012 arguing they were being unfairly shortchanged by a new Tory policy on pensions.

The government argued, rather coldly, that the case should be dismissed because the government does not have a special obligation or "social covenant" with veterans.

Trudeau, during his Belleville campaign extravaganza, said he would not only introduce a bill recognizing the government's "sacred obligation" to veterans, but would re-open the Veterans Affairs offices closed by the Tories (mainly because they weren't serving many clients) and he also promised to immediately bring in the notion of lifelong pensions for injured veterans.

So here we are, almost a year after Trudeau made his "sacred" pledge to veterans and — guess what? — little has changed, except, of course, the Liberals benefited from the notion that the Tories were being mean to veterans and the kind-hearted Liberals would right that horrid wrong.

None of the things Trudeau promised have yet come to pass.

Worse, the much-maligned court case launched by the wounded veterans in 2012 has not been dropped by the Liberals.

Indeed, Justice Department officials are carrying on the same arguments they used under the Tories, and even asked the court to have the veterans' case dismissed on the grounds that the government does not — despite Trudeau's electioneering pledge — have a sacred obligation to veterans.

Late last week, the wounded veterans claimed a victory of sorts when Justice Harvey Groberman of the B.C. Appeal Court ruled that his court will consider "contradictions" between the government's current legal position and the stance taken by Trudeau during the election campaign.

Veterans Affairs Minister Kent Hehr sloughed off criticism of the Liberal duplicity by claiming the court case "is part of an ongoing lawsuit, which began many years before we came into office."

That, of course, is true. But there is nothing other than a lack of political will (plus a lack of focus during a non-election period) stopping them from ending the court case as promised and living up to their electoral promises.

Despite all the brave talk about veterans, there is also the current case of 94-year-old Petter Blindheim, a Second World War hero who won six medals of honor fighting for the Allies, has lived in Canada since 1945, is close to death, yet is still being refused a bed at the Camp Hill facilities in Nova Scotia (which currently has 13 empty beds) because of a bureaucratic technicality which Trudeau and/or Hehr could correct with one stroke of a pen.

Yet, so far at least, they won't do it, turning their backs on a man, while not technically an Allied soldier, who risked his life and saved many Allied lives through an incredible act of heroism on our behalf.

Talk, as they say, is cheap. And election promises are worth even less, despite Trudeau's blathering about his "sacred" duty.

Walk the runway at BFC

The third annual Light Up the Runway Walk will take place Aug. 4 at Brampton Flight Centre.

Participants will be able to walk the main runway at the Inglewood area flight centre to help raise money for Bethell Hospice. It will run from 7:30 until 10:30 p.m.

There are many ways to show support for the effort, including actually going on the walk. Registration is $15. It's also possible to make a pledge in support of a participant, or make a cash donation (donations of $20 or more are eligible for tax receipts).

Volunteers are also needed for registration, set-up and supervision.

For more information, contact Daphne Parsons at 905-838-1400, ext. 225, or at LUTR2016@bramfly.com

Bethell Hospice is the only residential hospice serving Caledon, Brampton, Dufferin Country and west Woodbridge. There are no fees to stay at the Inglewood facility or to participate in any of the Community Care Programs, and no one is ever denied care due to financial situation. Each year, Bethell Hospice relies on donations and fundraising initiatives such as this to meet the remainder of their operating budget not covered by government funding. This amounts to 40 per cent of the budget, or roughly $700,000.

Mandatory voting discussed at meeting

Commenting on the consequences of proportional representation, Olsson simply said, "Goodbye majority government."

He added it could lead to pre-packaged coalitions. He also said it would be harder for voters to turn out a government.

Another consequence is it would decrease regional representation.

One woman in the audience commented on the concentration of power in the Prime Minister's Office, commenting that ranked ballots would result in more majorities and few checks and balances.

Kay argued it wouldn't result in a great change, but it would be more legitimate.

One man argued a lot of people are not well-equipped to vote now. If a more complex system is brought in, will they learn how to use it? He also wondered if there are any plans for making voting mandatory, like it is in Australia.

Pilon pointed out there are some people who don't care. "That's a freedom in our system," he said.

He added that often comes from a feeling that they don't know enough, commenting that something can be done about that.

Pilon also said mandatory voting would be a great way to get people out to the polls, adding that would force parties to change the way they respond to the electorate.

He also didn't think forcing people to get out to vote would be any worse than forcing them to pay taxes.

"We make people do stuff all the time," he said.

Kay argued that mandatory voting would result in less committed voters, making them more susceptible to the likes of a Donald Trump.

"Is that the experience in Australia?" one man called out.

"The devil's in the details," Pilon replied.

Dodgers suffer fourth loss in a row to Orangeville

By Jake Courtepatte

The senior AA Bolton Dodgers have fallen to the number 10 spot in the North Dufferin Baseball League standings with their fourth loss in as many games.

Coming off an 11-6 shellacking at the hands of the Midland Indians last week, the Dodgers took a five-day break after last Wednesday's scheduled home game was postponed due to weather.

Their next match was Friday night at Princess of Wales Park in Orangeville, facing a 6-6-0 Giants team that was headed the other direction, with three-straight wins under their belt.

After a scoreless first inning, the Dodgers earned the first real scoring opportunity with a string of successful at-bats. Andrew English led off the top of the second with a single, followed by Shaun Bijai with a single of his own. Two batters later, a walk loaded the bases with only one out, which led to English scoring the first run of the game on a sacrifice fly.

Unfortunately for the Dodgers, Giants' starter Jesse Edmunds was dealing from there on, save for a solo home run from Colin McKeen, his first of the season. Orangeville followed up with seven runs of their own in a 7-2 victory on home field.

The rollercoaster of a season continues for the streaky Dodgers, who began with three-straight losses, then went on a 4-1-1 tear, and have now sunk four in a row. Their record falls to four games below .500 at 4-8-1, dropping from eighth to 10th in the 14-team NDBL.

This came after a week in which a trio of losses put the Dodgers back in the red after earning back-to-back wins.

The team hosted the Clearview Orioles at North Hill Park, where starting pitcher Damien Allison drew a loss he certainly did not deserve.

Allison and his Clearview counterpart Mike Blackwood were locked in a pitcher's battle all game, each going the distance in a 2-1 final. The Bolton hurler gave up his only two runs of the game early in the first inning, a single knocking in two baserunners, before cruising the final six innings while allowing six hits total.

Blackwood also allowed six hits, while only English crossed the plate for the Dodgers in the third inning, also going three-for-three on the night.

The scene moved to Tiffin Park in Midland to take on the Indians in an afternoon doubleheader, where Midland took all four available points.

Tysen Hansen pitched a gem of his own on the mound for the Dodgers in game one, allowing just three hits and two runs in a full six innings of work. He, too, did not deserve the loss, with Indians' pitcher Nathan Dix shutting out the Bolton squad 2-0.

Shawn Hansen and Michael Gemmiti both contributed multi-hit games.

Game two was an entirely different atmosphere, a slugfest that saw 25 hits combined between the two teams. The Indians converted on 11 of them, the Dodgers six, in which McKeen hit Bolton's first jack of the year.

Ron DiPalma took the loss for the Dodgers.

Through the first month of the AA season, the Dodgers have amassed a 4-7-1 record, good for eighth in the 14-team league. They sit one point up on the Barrie Angels, and two back of the Lisle Astros.

Returning to North Hill Park in Bolton Wednesday after press time for a home game with the Mansfield Cubs (1-11-0), the most crucial test of the week for the Dodgers comes Monday in a road match with the Lisle Astros. The Astros are currently four points up in Bolton in a tight standings race.

The Ivy Leafs lead the league with an 11-2-0 record.

Space Stations - Part 2: The Canadian Contribution

By Jim Middleton

Do you have a Canadian $5 bill handy? Look at the back. Spoiler alert! Shown is the Canadian contribution to the Space Station Program and I'm going to tell you the story! I'm going to tell it from my perspective, since I led the Spar team who created the Canadian Space Station Program.

Prior to the establishment of the Canadian Space Agency (CSA) in 1989, space activities were under what was called the Interdepartmental Committee on Space (ICS). ICS was mainly made up of National Defence, Communications, Natural Resources, Industry and Finance. The National Research Council (NRC) was a small player until the Canadarm program came along.

The ICS was mainly interested in communications and earth resource imaging, including weather, as a longer term strategy. Canadarm was an aberration and not seen as a longer term strategic opportunity. This sets the Canadian space perspective.

When Canadarm was seen operating in space in 1981, it became iconic and established the Canadian space program as a highly visible, technical achievement to the Canadian public. It was the one moving part of the space shuttle, along with the astronauts. What a great achievement for Canada!

It became a major political irritant, however, to the U.S. A Congressional committee was struck to investigate how NASA had allowed a "key" piece of robotics technology to be developed outside the U.S. NASA was chastised for allowing this to happen and was put under scrutiny for technology leakage. Robotics was the U.S. domain and don't let this happen again! This was a challenge we were about to face, in spades!

In 1983, the U.S. kicked off the Concept Development Group (CDG) to look at space stations. We entered into discussions with the NRCC program folks that this might be a logical follow-on program to Canadarm. A small contract was put in place which I led, with five other engineers, to come up with a concept for a Canadian contribution to the Space Station program.

In my mind, I wanted something more than an arm. I wanted Canada to have the overall responsibility for the planning and operations of whatever was going to be provided to the program. I liked the idea of a garage. It would have a service bay and, one thing I really wanted to be part of the program; a robotic mechanic with two arms who could repair things. Yes, there would be a new, large, advanced arm which could walk around the space station but the robotic mechanic was to be the crown jewel! We called the garage in space the Integrated Servicing and Test Facility (ISTF).

President Reagan announced the plan to build a space station in January 1984. A plan was in place to have the President meet with Prime Minister Mulroney in March 1985 around St. Patrick's Day. What a great chance to move the Canadian plan forward. We got it on the agenda as a line item, but without commitment. A new space station in orbit by 1992, celebrating 500 years since Columbus discovered the Western World and a major Canadian contribution to the program. Things were looking up!

Meanwhile, the Americans weren't happy. They didn't mind us putting up another big arm (they called it a space crane), but a fancy, two-armed highly capable robot was another thing! No, they weren't going to let that happen.

The Canadian space community wasn't happy. Their goal was a communications satellite called M-Sat, and an advanced radar spacecraft called Radarsat were the priorities, not another robotics program. Spar Aerospace, for whom I worked, was not pleased, since they would be the prime contractor on M-Sat and Radarsat.

Then NASA changed the space station configuration and the ISTF became obsolete. NASA told us to come up with another idea and be ready in a week!

I sat in my office and thought about the problem and an old idea I had came to mind. Instead of a garage to do servicing and repair, maybe a "tow truck" could drive along a railway going from spot to spot on the station. It would have the big arm and the little robot mechanic. I decided to call it the Mobile Servicing Centre (MSC). I got the group of engineers working on the program, told them about the idea and got them putting "meat on the bones."

We took the idea to Ottawa and presented it to the government. They liked the concept, so we would go to NASA and present it the next week. NASA agreed and all seemed well with the world.

Then came the word! The MSC was fine but there was not to be a fancy little robot as part of it. "The Empire Strikes Back!" NASA, under direction from Congress, was developing their own fancy two-armed robot in 1987 known as the Flight Telerobotic Servicer. It would do all the specialized tasks, being the flagship robotics device on the space station.

After significant push-back from Canada, NASA agreed that we could provide the small robot, but it couldn't have the words "robot" or "robotic" in its name.

It would be very limited on the tasks it would be allowed to do. We decided to name it the Special Purpose Dexterous Manipulator, or SPDM for short.

How was the Canadian dilemma solved? The Canadian government initiated a program called Regional Development, which required government-funded programs to be distributed along the following lines: 10 per cent — British Columbia; 10 per cent — remaining western provinces; 35 per cent — Ontario; 35 per cent — Quebec; and 10 per cent — Atlantic Provinces.

We met with companies across Canada to get them involved in the Canadian space station program, and it worked! They got excited to be part of the program. Hence, when the government plans for space were announced, the Canadian Space Station program was the top priority, thanks mainly to regional development.

So, all once again seemed right with the world. The Canadian team was coming on board and we were working to a fairly tight schedule. The U.S. program was slipping, and changing, and we had to change with it. The 1992 goal was a long-lost one. The final change came when the U.S. combined its program with the Russians and the International Space Station came to be.

By the way. You may ask "what happened to the Flight Telerobotic Servicer, the flagship U.S. robotics program? It was cancelled as the U.S. program costs rose.

We were not immune to the vagaries of cost growth. The program became known as the Canadian Space Station Program and costs started to rise significantly. When the Chretien government came to power in 1993, reviews were under way to get the program costs back in line. A casualty of this cost cutting was my beloved robot, the SPDM. We worked hard to keep it alive, but to no avail. We filed the drawings away.

Meanwhile, my tenure as program manager of the Mobile Servicing System came to an end at the completion of the design phase in 1993. A new program manager was appointed to take the program through manufacturing and assembly to launch and operations.

I went on to become vice-president of marketing (not my favourite job by far). Always lurking in my mind was how to bring the little robot back. I had allies at the Canadian Space Agency. In 1995 an idea arose along the "pay it forward" lines. I wanted to convince Spar to fund the development and construction of the SPDM and have the government pay for its operations in space.

We put a proposal together for a fixed price program which interested the Space Agency. Coming up was the visit by Prime Minister Chretien with President Clinton April 8, 1997. I was sent to Montreal with four others to negotiate a deal with the CSA. We worked through the nights from Friday to Sunday and reached agreement at 3 a.m. Monday morning. The prime minister presented a model of the SPDM to President Clinton during the speeches on the White House lawn. President Clinton's speech acknowledging the SPDM can be found at www.presidency.ucsb.edu/ws/?pid=53964

The first element of the Canadian program, Canadarm-2, was launched to the Space Station April 19, 2001 with Chris Hatfield on board to install the arm. Other elements of the Mobile Servicing System were launched over the following years.

The SPDM, renamed DEXTRE, was launched March 11, 2008 and has become the "handyman" in space. NASA and CSA have developed the capability to operate DEXTRE through ground control, freeing up the on-board astronauts to perform their important tasks on the space station. DEXTRE does his/her job just as intended; replacing failed components and installing new and improved features. It can work along with the astronauts as a robotic assistant.

Let's get that $5 bill out again and look at the back. In the background to the left beside the astronaut is the tow-truck, called the Mobile Base System. There's Canadarm-2 right in the middle. Lo and behold, there is DEXTRE, the SPDM, being held at the end of the "big" arm.

To learn more about DEXTRE go to www.asc-csa.gc.ca/eng/iss/dextre/

My next article will cover why one could possibly want to spend money on a space station and what are they really doing up there.

Jim Middleton is a "semi-retired" aerospace engineer with more than 50 years of experience in the U.S. and Canadian space programs. He has worked on the Space Shuttle and Space Station programs for over 25 years. He is currently involved in the operations of Canadensys Aerospace Corporation, a space company located in Bolton.

Caledon Day

Car enthusiasts had lots to check out at the recent Caledon Day festivities in Caledon East.

PHOTOS BY Bill Rea

Former Caledon resident John Gullusci, who now lives in Brampton, is just the second owner of this 1969 Pontiac Firebird, which he's owned for 31 years. He did much of the restoration work on the car.

This was the first time Troy McMullin of Caledon East was showing this 1941 Willis Coupe. He only bought it a couple of weeks ago.

Kevin Borg of Nobleton was on hand with this 1967 Ford Falcon, which he said he's had about 10 years. He confessed it's "not that good" on gas.

Riley Murphy of Cheltenham got to show this 1955 Chevy Bel Air for his grandfather, George Sherson of Collingwood.

Bolton Toyota Scion was running a contest at the recent Caledon Day celebrations, with a prize for who ever could accurately guess the number of beach balls in the back of this Tundra TRD Pro. Lindsay Quance and Fabian Guida were running the booth. Guida said the correct answer was 70 beach balls, and the prize was an iPad Mini. Bolton Toyota Scion was a sponsor of the event.

Many out to test drive LINCOLNS

Driving a Lincoln is something everyone should do at least once, and many people got that chance recently at Fines Ford Lincoln in Bolton.

And they got to help out a worthy cause in the process, namely the Bethell Hospice Foundation. For every person who test drove a Lincoln product, Lincoln Canada donated $50 to Bethell, with the ceiling being at $7,500, or 150 drivers. "We'd be so thrilled if we got to that," Bob Fines remarked as people started arriving to take the drive. He had good reason to be thrilled at the end of the day, as they reached that target with points to spare. General Manager Carlos Martins announced the figure had reached 159 test drives by the end of the day.

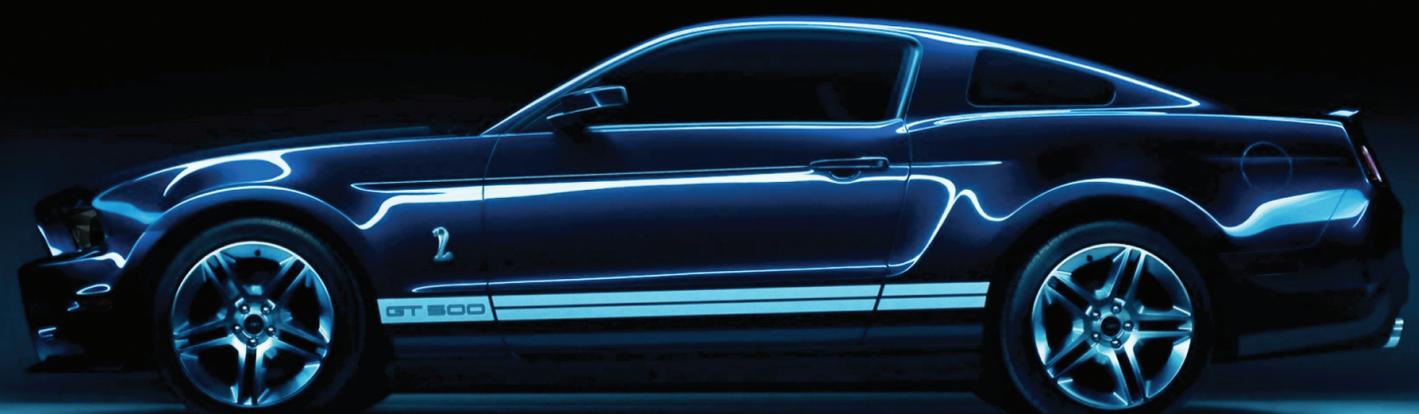

"You never know," he remarked, commenting they had just asked people to come in and spend a little time. "This is the first time we've hit the maximum," he added. "That's no surprise, given what the charity was." Fines is also taking part in the Caring for Our Community Lottery, being run in support of Bethell. There will be 12,000 lottery tickets available for a 2016 Lincoln MKC SUV as the grand prize. They are selling for $20 each, or three for $50. The draw for the car will be at Bolton Fall Fair in September. And there will be two early-bird draws, for cash prizes of $1,000 and $2,500, at the Caledon Strawberry Festival July 1. "We hope to sell out of those tickets," Martins remarked. Bethell operates the only residential hospice serving Caledon, Brampton, Dufferin County and west Woodbridge. It also provides community programs throughout Caledon and Brampton. For more information on the lottery, visit www.bethellhospice.org

The Ever-Better Expedition

The Test Drive to Top all Test Drives

110 Days. 18,000 Miles. 9 Vehicles.

It all came together in the Ever Better Expedition.

If you think it's tough making time to take a test drive to determine your next vehicle choice, consider what Toyota team members embarked on in an effort to gain insight, unite worldwide team members and connect directly with customers.

The Ever-Better Expedition was the North American leg of Toyota's Five Continents Driving Project, a global initiative designed to support Toyota's 330,000 worldwide team members in their mission to deliver ever-better vehicles. It allowed Toyota engineers and other team members to connect directly with customers; experience the products that Toyota designs, engineers, manufactures and sells; and gather new ideas to inspire future innovations.

The first leg of the tour took place in Australia, where for 72 days and more than 12,500 miles, 50 engineers drove vehicles cross-country, taking on the diverse and rugged terrain of the outback. The result was a deeper insight and understanding of our products.

The second leg, consisting of 110 days and 18,000 miles, took place in North America and was split into summer and winter expeditions. The team had already tackled some of the continent's most challenging driving environments throughout the summer, but they were now about to take on the icy roads of a Canadian winter. Along the way, the Expedition continued to visit Toyota manufacturing and research facilities, and enjoyed catching up with our customers.

The Ever-Better Expedition brought together 140 Toyota engineers, designers and other team members from around the globe. They shared experiences, met the people who drive Toyota vehicles on a daily basis, and tackled some of the most challenging driving conditions in North America. You can see their stories in video form on the dedicated website toyotaeverbetter.com.

Bolton Toyota Sponsors Canada Day

What started as a vision by a few staff and dedicated volunteers to connect a unique community of communities, has now grown to a major one day event hosting over 50k people over the past 8 years. "As important and growing members of the Caledon community, we are proud to sponsor this wonderful event. I'm proud of the effort our team makes to connect with our customers", said Bolton Toyota General Manager Craig Nazare. Next issue, look for comprehensive coverage of the event and Bolton Toyota's experience.

Fuel cell powered Toyota Mirai hits the road in Canada Top all Test Drives

It's not a concept – it's a real car. And it hit the road in Canada for the first time in June, demonstrating one of the most efficient and clean power sources in the world. The 2016 Toyota Mirai headlines a stellar line-up of fuel efficient vehicles as Toyota puts its best to the test in the 2016 EcoRun – an annual event organized by the Automobile Journalists Association of Canada (AJAC) and taking place June 1-3 between Toronto and Ottawa.

"Toyota has the proven track record for developing and producing real-world vehicles that are cleaner, fuel efficient, fun to drive, and easy to adopt by drivers around the world," said Cyril Dimitris, Vice-President, Toyota Canada Inc. "We're always ready to put our technology to the test, so we welcome this opportunity to show Canadians the power and efficiency of the Mirai, plus our popular Prius and RAV4 Hybrid models."

The 2016 Toyota Mirai is the future, today: A hydrogen-powered fuel cell vehicle available in Japan, parts of Europe, and California*. This model delivers a range of approximately 480 km and a refilling time of about five minutes. The Mirai's fuel tank stores hydrogen, which is mixed with air in the fuel cell stack. The resultant chemical reaction produces two things: electricity and water. The electricity powers the vehicle, while the water leaves through the tailpipe – the Mirai's only emission.

Beyond its remarkable power supply, however, the Mirai is very familiar: a stylish, feature-rich, fun-to-drive four-door sedan. The aerodynamic body is highlighted by LED headlamps and daytime running lights, touch sensor front door handles and trunk lid, and 17" alloy wheels. And as a Toyota, the Mirai also delivers the peace of mind of no-compromise safety, including eight airbags, Toyota Safety System +, a back-up camera, blind spot monitor with rear cross traffic alert, and more.

ROAD TRIP

The 2016 EcoRun wrapped up with closing speeches at Ottawa City Hall. Twenty-seven vehicles, minus my Nissan Leaf, made the journey from Toronto to the nation's capital. — Photo Courtesy AJAC

Auto writer hones green driving skills on 2016 EcoRun

Closing speeches under the hot sun at Ottawa City Hall may sound enticing, but thanks to the whims of lithium-ion batteries, I had to settle for an hour of five-pin bowling.

My all-electric Nissan Leaf came up short on the final leg of AJAC's annual EcoRun event – a rolling showcase of green vehicles touring from Toronto to the nation's capital.

I sensed trouble upon entering the 401 in Brockville, when after five km on the odometer (with the A/C on), my 125 km range plummeted by more than 20 clicks. Had some prankster engaged the parking brake or flipped on the heated rear seats?

Hmmm... it was 116 km to City Hall, and even at 103 to the hotel, I didn't like my chances.

Switching off the accessories helped a little, but at normal highway speeds, my ride was gobbling electrons at a rate that meant I'd soon need a Plan B.

The Leaf finally forced my hand about 50 kilometers from Ottawa. With barely 30 left on the meter, I exited at the farming community of Kemptville where a fortuitous charging station at the bowling alley provided an ideal spot to kill time and score a mediocre 122.

Okay, so I didn't quite finish the 2016 EcoRun.

But no matter as it isn't really a competition. It's an opportunity for Canadian journalists to test a range of eco-friendly vehicles back-to-back, while doing their best to drive green.

Which means being light on both the gas and brake, coasting towards red lights and staying at or near the speed limit. And making the most of regenerative braking for those driving hybrids.

No dangerous hypermiling techniques, like drafting transport trucks or driving 80 km/h on our 400-series highways. EcoRun is about real-world results – those achievable by average motorists, not those with a death wish.

And it features more than just pure electrics, hybrids and diesels. Conventional gas burners from automakers like Mazda, Honda, GM and Subaru are now extracting more from each drop of fuel without aid of turbo or electricity, proving one needn't pay a premium to save on petrol.

All in, the 2016 EcoRun featured 27 vehicles, spanning subcompacts to SUVs and trucks. Porsche even brought their iconic 911, which may have looked out of place until you consider its achievable fuel economy – averaging 7.8 litres/100 km when driven in a very un-Porschelike way.

My seven vehicles represented a good cross section of this fleet, from the 1.0-litre Ford Focus to the 400-hp, seven seat Volvo XC90 SUV.

Here are a few highlights:

MAZDA CX-3

On route to our first stop, Toronto's Evergreen Brickworks, I drove Mazda's CX-3 compact crossover.

It employs the company's fuel-saving SKYACTIV tech with a naturally-aspirated 2.0-litre four cylinder (146 hp, 146 lb/ft of torque). NRCAN fuel ratings are 8.8/7.3 litres/100 km (city/hwy); our team of journalists scored a thriffter 6.4.

By the way, do yourself a favour and check out the historic brickworks at 550 Bayview Ave. This rehabilitated site, abandoned in 1984 after nearly a century of operation, is now an environmental hub with a farmer's market on weekends (see Evergreen.ca for hours), urban art and an old brick factory with its original kilns.

SUBARU IMPREZA

I fondly recall the second-generation Impreza – a googly-eyed compact with a punchy 2.5-litre boxer engine and low centre of gravity. It made about 170 hp (excellent for the early 2000s), but was thirsty.

Fast-forward to 2012 where Subaru swapped the 2.5 for a more fuel-efficient 2.0-litre four cylinder. Power dropped to 148 hp and 145 lb/ft (where it remains today), but Impreza now sips at a rated 8.5/6.4 litres per 100 km (city/hwy). We managed to do better, with a combined average of 6.1.

What's even more impressive is the starting price of just under $20K for an AWD vehicle. My $31K tester, however, included Subaru's EyeSight safety tech, which can stop the vehicle if it senses an impending crash. Thankfully, I didn't require its services.

FORD FOCUS 1.0

This three-cylinder EcoBoost engine has a tiny displacement, but with a turbo it still manages a respectable 123 hp and 125 lb/ft of torque. Modest compared to the Focus RS that delivers an asphalt-ripping 350 horses, but this model is about sipping fuel, not guzzling it.

The 1.0-litre EcoBoost is rated at 7.8/5.7/6.9 L/100km (city/hwy/comb), which we once again thrashed with an average of 5.8 litres combined.

Such thrift comes at the cost of performance, but there are other powertrains for those wanting more sizzle.

LEXUS RX 450H

Large, luxurious and surprisingly fuel efficient, this hybrid version of Lexus's popular mid-size crossover was a relaxing way to wrap up Day One. Starting at the scenic Cobourg waterfront, it averaged 7.6 L/100 km over the 91 kilometres to Belleville. Our group scored 7.1 L/100km overall.

NRCAN rates the 3.5-litre V6 with electrics (net 308 hp) at a slightly higher 8.0 litres combined, but either way, it's exceptional for a vehicle this size.

VOLVO XC90 T8

Even more impressive were my Day 2 results from Volvo's full-size, seven passenger SUV. Despite its three-ton curb weight and impressive 400 hp and 472 lb/ft of torque, I managed 3.8L/100 km from Belleville to Kingston.

Allie Marsh from AJAC provides my Sonata Plug-In Hybrid with some added charge. This vehicle can provide up to 43 km of emissions-free driving. — Photo By Neil Moore

That's because the XC90 derives its V8-worthy power from a 2.0-litre four cylinder, aided by a turbocharger and supercharger (for 316 hp), along with an 87-hp electric motor.

Sure, it's more fun to drive with a heavy foot, but I resisted the urge and made use of its 30 km of electric-only range. And for a change, bested my colleagues who averaged 5.9 L/100 km.

HYUNDAI SONATA PLUG-IN HYBRID

I've always believed plug-in hybrids to be the best eco option – so far. You can charge up for enough electric-only range to get around town, without the hassle of calling CAA when the battery runs dry.

This Hyundai is powered by a direct-injected 2.0-litre four cylinder with electric motor that provides enough juice for up to 43 km of emissions-free driving.

It wasn't fully charged for my trip from Kingston to Brockville, yet I still averaged 4.7 L/100 km over the 84 km route. The team score on this one was 3.8.

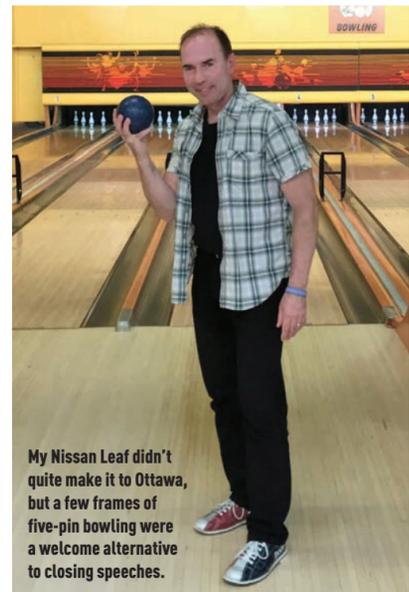

I had a word with EcoRun co-chair David Miller, who assured me that overall, each of us outperformed the official NRCAN numbers, with an average efficiency score of 133.2 percent.

"It's an incredible figure and one that can clearly be achieved by accelerating gently, anticipating traffic ahead, coasting to a stop and avoiding high speeds," he added, proving that eco-friendly driving is as much about how you drive as what you drive.

My Nissan Leaf didn't quite make it to Ottawa, but a few frames of five-pin bowling were a welcome alternative to closing speeches.

Ron Macinnis of Hillsburgh brought his 1960 Plymouth Fury to the recent Cruise Night.

Caledon Cruisers President Pasquale Tortorici and his 1966 Ford Fairlane 500.

Caledon Cruisers

attract car enthusiasts every Thursday

Cars have always held a fascination for many people; some more than others.

Car shows are usually very good at attracting the curious and the connoisseur. That's especially the case when the cars are classics, or help spark memories of what occupied the roads years ago.

Car enthusiasts in the Bolton area have the chance this time of year to get a feel for some of the classics. The Caledon Cruisers meet every Thursday night in the parking lot of the Canadian Tire store on McEwan Drive in Bolton for Cruise Nights.

These sessions have been going on for about 27 years, according Pasquale Tortorici, who's in his second year as president.

The group has just started getting together for another season. Tortorici said they traditionally start meeting the first Thursday after Victoria Day, and usually go until the Thursday before the start of Bolton Fair in September.

There are currently 45 members of the club, but Tortorici said they are always looking for more, and they try to get the word out, as a lot of people don't know they're there every week.

Membership is $25 per season, and for that, members get to participate in events and put forth their ideas on what charities to support.

Last year, it was Caledon Community Services (CCS) that benefitted from the club's fundraising efforts, to the tune of $2,500. The previous year, funds went to Bethell Hospice.

As well, the Cruisers present The Bruce Chevalier Award annually. This is a technical award presented to a Humberview Secondary School senior transportation student who is pursuing a career in auto mechanics. It's named in honour of a long-time member of the club.

"It's non-profit organization," Tortorici said, adding there club has about 40 sponsors.

"I love old cars," he said, explaining his interest in the club. "I have an old car. I have kids who are into cars."

Tottenham resident Dave Stephens was at a recent Cruise Night with his 1932 Ford Tudor. "I just love cars," he explained.

He added he grew up with cars in the 1960s and '70s. "Cars were the thing," he said.

Tortorici's show piece is a 1966 Ford Fairlane 500, which he said gets about 20 miles to the gallon.

"I'm not here to race, that's for sure," he grinned.

It's not just the Thursday evening shows that attract the attention of the members. Tortorici said there are shows going on all the time, during the season. He said there are four or five such shows per weekend, scattered all over Ontario.

"Love of cars," he said. "Where would we be without them. Transportation is what made the world advance so quickly."

And the club gives people the chance to exchange stories and ideas, as well as get together.

"You get to know people," he explained. "It's a social gathering."

Ken McKay of Bolton has been a member for about 20 years, and was on hand recently with his 1947 Mercury Panel Truck, which he said he's had for about 20 years.

"I just like the old vehicles," he declared.

"The Cruisers give back to Caledon," he added. "That's what basically keeps us going, as we give back to the local charities in town."

Ron Macinnis of Hillsburgh gets to meetings as often as he can, calling himself an "old car guy."

"It's been an addiction since I was a kid," he added. Gene Yakymchuk and his wife Jo Ann had come up from Weston.

"We support everything that they do," he remarked.

I used to build soapbox derbies when I was a youngster," he added "It sort of progressed as I got older."

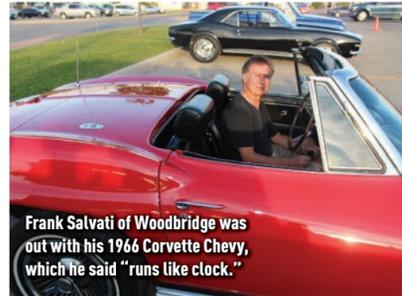

The Thursday evening Cruise Nights start at 6:30 p.m. at the Canadian Tire parking lot.

An educated consumer is the best customer at CALEDON CHRYSLER Dodge Jeep Ram

After four years at their Highway 50, location in Bolton, Caledon Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram, has earned a well deserved reputation as a fully stocked dealership that excels at customer service and strives to educate consumers on the best practice when it comes to purchasing a vehicle.

It is their culture as a business that brings satisfied customers back when it's time to look for a new car. It is that same respect for consumers that draws new visitors based on referrals from friends and family who have had a good experience when purchasing a car, truck, or SUV.

Transparency," said Roham Jamali, Managing Director of the dealership, is a key component of their business model and why their customers trust them.

"Other stores may alter the fees or interest rates after the purchase of a car or add fees on top of the advertised price. We don't do any of that. Every price is set. We give our customers the best price first," Mr. Jamali explained.

The franchise has the full line up of Chrysler sedans and SUV's and Dodge cars and vans.

For those that like to drive off the paved road while still motoring in comfort, the Jeep line-up includes the Renegade, the Patriot, Compass, Cherokee, Grand Cherokee, and the popular rough and tough Wrangler.

The Jeep brand is currently celebrating its 75th anniversary in production. The original version went into production in 1941 as a military truck and over the years has evolved into the number one consumer off road four-wheel drive adventure vehicle.

When it comes to trucks, nothing can beat the Ram. From the 1500 model right up to the super heavy-duty 3500, Ram trucks have become the vehicle of choice for many truck enthusiasts who rely on it as a dependable and rugged vehicle that is also fuel efficient and has the comfort of a well appointed interior.

While Caledon Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram, is well known as a franchise dealer, they are also a premier location for used vehicles with around 300 cars, SUV's, and trucks on their lot. Partnered with their other location, North York Chrysler, they have access to around 1600 quality used vehicles.

They stock a wide variety of makes and models including many hard to find brands and higher end luxury vehicles.

"We have a 120 point inspection on all used vehicles versus a 30 point inspection at most used car outlets. Our cars all have the full price, description, and a picture on-line," Mr. Jamali explained. "The difference is you're not buying from a used car place, you're buying from a franchise. There is big difference in the service, the quality of inspections, and the work that goes toward the conditioning of the cars. Most companies compete at a 100 kilometer radius. We compete across Canada. Every car comes with a Car Proof report and is readily available to consumers. We give them a full report up front and provide them with all the information."

Competing at a nation wide level, Mr. Jamali said their best customer is an educated customer. By knowing prices across the country for a particular vehicle, a buyer can make an informed decision when considering the market value of a car or truck when making a purchase.

"We give the best price for the value for every car that's here. Not just in our area or in Ontario but across the country. That's why we encourage people to compare prices," said Mr. Jamali.

One of the main reasons customers return to the dealership, besides the fair pricing strategy, is the low pressure approach used by the sales staff and encouraged by management.

...We give the best price for the value for every car that's here. Not just in our area or in Ontario but across the country. That's why we encourage people to compare prices...

"Our sales people are consumer-centric," Mr. Jamali stated. "We call this a 'shark free zone.' The reason for our success is that we have stayed transparent and people see this over time - and transparency doesn't end at the point of sale. Our sales person's job is to listen to the customer's needs. Of course the final decision is the customers, but we help guide them to the right vehicle depending on what they need."

The dealership has some amazing offers when it comes to financing.

"For example, you can get a Dodge Caravan at zero per cent financing for 84 months - that's seven years and every penny you spend goes towards the car, not interest."

Behind the show room at the dealership the work continues in the automotive service centre.

A full service repair facility, the shop has ten automotive bays and two cleaning stations.

Trained automotive service technicians will work with a customer, especially when a repair requires a high priced part, to see if they can source a quality part from a different manufacture to keep costs to a minimum.

To observe their success in Caledon, the dealership will be holding a fourth anniversary celebration from Wednesday, July 6, through to Sunday, July 10, with lots of prizes for participating customers including free oil changes, a $200 gasoline gift card, and a 54 inch big screen LED television.

The staff and management at Caledon Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram, are excited to be a part of Caledon and are looking forward to many years of serving the community.

You can visit the on-line at www.caledonchrysler.ca.

Gardens Are For Sharing

Everyone is welcome to attend a meeting as a guest. Membership fees entitle you to our monthly Newsletter - electronic or hard copy - the annual Yearbook, private Garden Tours, discounts at participating garden centres and of course invaluable gardening information. Our motto is "Gardens Are For Sharing", and at each meeting we share information.

At our regular meetings we have knowledgeable speakers on topics of general interest. There are also flower shows to enjoy and enter in May, June and September.

We are also a social group beginning each meeting with light refreshments and a meet and mingle. There is also the opportunity to purchase draw tickets for gardening gifts or items from our donations table.

In the summer, rather than a formal meeting, we host a special in town garden tour, and take a bus trip or two to some interesting gardens both locally and further afield.

Visit www.orangevillehort.org for more information.

Sarah Fleming's success comes from hard work

Sarah Fleming, incorporated Fleming Realty Inc at the end of 2008, and started actually working under her own brand in January 2009 after several years with an international brand.

Prior to real estate, she was always an entrepreneur, even as a teenager. Sarah was raised with a competitive attitude, being the youngest of six children. She was active in sports, having gone to the Provincial level four times in curling, and being "Zone" winner with a team in the Tournament of Hearts. She attributes her success to her strong work ethic, and believes in the Mark Twain quote, "The harder I work the luckier I am."

So Sarah tends to go above and beyond for all her clients. Her goal in working as a real estate professional is to educate and help the consumer in all aspects of buying or selling their home.

An active member of the Brampton Real Estate Board (BREB), where she volunteers on two committees (the Professional Standards Committee, and the Bylaw Committee), Sarah is also active in the Caledon Chamber of Commerce, proud sponsor of Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE), and associate member of CREA, RECO and OREA, Sarah has also volunteered with more local activities, such as the pancake breakfast for the Vera Davis' Centre, and is looking forward to being involved with Habitat for Humanity. As well as owning and running all aspects of Fleming Realty Inc., Sarah also is co-owner of a business with her husband, and is involved in most aspects of running that business as well.

Sarah strives and encourages her staff to build business with repeat and referrals from past clients, thus building relationships with people; you just have to take a look at her testimonial page on her website to see what clients say about using a "Boutique" firm. These clients are the reason Fleming Realty Inc., was presented with the Business of the Year — 2014 award by the Caledon Chamber of Commerce. Sarah stated was she was both honoured and humbled by such an accolade and shall continue to maintain the highest of standards in her businesses.

How to Sell High: Avoid these Three Mistakes When Selling Your Dufferin-Peel Home

DUFFERIN-PEEL - When you decide to sell your home, setting your asking price is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. Depending on how a buyer is made aware of your home, price is often the first thing he or she sees, and many homes are discarded by prospective buyers as not being in the appropriate price range before they're even given a chance of showing. Your asking price is often your home's "first impression", and if you want to realize the most money you can for your home, it's imperative that you make a good first impression. This is not as easy as it sounds, and pricing strategy should not be taken lightly. Pricing too high can be as costly to a homeseller as pricing too low. Taking a look at what homes in your neighborhood have sold for is only a small part of the process, and on it's own is not nearly enough to help you make the best decision. A recently study, which compiles 10 years of industry research, has resulted in a new special report entitled "Homesellers: How to Get the Price You Want(and Need)". This report will help you understand pricing strategy from three different angles. When taken together, this information will help you price your home to not only sell, but sell for the price you want.w To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your FREE copy of this report call toll-free 1-866-500-3429 and enter 316. You can call any time, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Get your free special report NOW to learn how to price your home to your maximum financial advantage.

Who's Who on your Home Team?

When the time comes to purchase your first home or renew the mortgage on your current home, it's a good idea to know who your home team partners are. There are a number of professionals that you will need to work with to get the job done. Here is a breakdown of who they are, what they do, why they are necessary and how to find the right one.

Mortgage Broker – A licensed Mortgage Broker or Agent should always be your first point of contact when considering buying or refinancing a home. Knowing how much you can afford to spend and comfortably carry each month in debt, are numbers you will need before you begin your search for the perfect home for you and your family. Refinancing to pay off high interest debt or to free up equity for investing is a smart strategy that your Mortgage Broker may be able to help you with. Renewing an existing mortgage with your current lender can often be the most expensive option. Review the bank's offer with your mortgage professional, who will give you their opinion of the offer you've received. A Mortgage Broker brings you options and choices including: which lender to choose, what term and amortization are best to suit your financial situation, how to structure your down payment and finally and most important – how to pay that mortgage off sooner!

Real Estate Broker or Sales Representative – The argument has raged on about the best way to sell your house, using a real estate professional or selling privately. It can be a gamble if you are trying to save the commission expense of using a realtor and handle the transaction by yourself, but it becomes a personal decision that only you can make. Remember only the seller pays commission to the Realtor so as a purchaser it is always in your best interest to use an Agent. Real Estate Brokers and Sales Representatives are certified professionals registered with and regulated by RECO (Real Estate Council of Ontario) and CREA (Canadian Real Estate Association), with ongoing learning and testing through OREA (Ontario Real Estate Association). Consider interviewing potential Brokers or Sales Representatives to ensure that they are a good fit for you. Commissions can range greatly depending on the amount of work you are expecting from your potential Realtor.

Real Estate Lawyer – The Solicitor that represents you in a real estate transaction will conduct a title search, register the deed and handle the transfer of funds. The title search will ensure that your home is or will be free and clear of any prior encumbrances such as previously registered mortgages, liens or claims against the title of the property. The lawyer may then register a title insurance policy for the property. Your lawyer will represent your best interests in this transaction and will ensure that the Vendor and the Lender are acting fairly.

Home Inspector – A certified professional that will provide you with an opinion of the home's performance and condition. I have never purchased or sold a home or commercial property without the benefit of a Home Inspector's opinion. They are the eyes and ears that should and will crawl up in to the rafters and dig in the darkest basement corners to ensure that the property you are looking to buy or sell is sound. They will identify any current and potential issues that have or could arise with the property. The cost can range anywhere from $ 300.00 to $600.00 for a residential property, with additional inspections such as thermal imaging for heat loss and moisture, available for an extra cost. Well worth the investment!

Appraiser – A certified real estate appraiser will assess the true value of the property, taking many aspects in to consideration such as age, improvements, condition of the home and surrounding landscaping. The appraiser will then look for recent, comparable sales to support the value of the property.

There are many things in life that should be left to the professionals; Dentistry, Surgery and Pumping of your Septic Tank to name a few. Having an experienced team of professionals working for you, ensures you are represented, protected and educated throughout your home purchase or refinance.

Safeguard your biggest financial investment and avoid costly mistakes.
