Girls Can Too are the latest to benefit from 100 Women Who Care

By Jasen Obermeyer

The Girls Can Too Program in Caledon will soon be benefiting from the efforts of the 100 Women Who Care Caledon.

The women gathered for their first meeting of the year Feb. 1 at Caledon Ski Club, and raised a total of $7,900.

Participants were able to nominate an organization ahead of time, with three randomly drawn. Each participant pledged $100 to contribute. The nominators were given five minutes to make their pitch to those in attendance.

Sandra Sharpe spoke on behalf of Girls Can Too.

She explained the program is offered by the Toronto and Region Conservation Authority and provides young women from Grades 7 to 12 with hands-on learning experiences in construction and ecology. They offer either one or two week programs in the summer and though they don't turn down anyone. What limits their size is the amount of funding.

Sharpe said the program simply encourages girls to go into a skilled trade, as some may choose to go into a different career.

"It certainly gives them the confidence to be able to have the possibility to choose any career," she said.

Sharpe shared how when she was in Grade 12, she took a shop class, but didn't have anyone to look up to or go through the class with, as she was the only girl.

"My daughter did take shop, where there were many other girls in the program," she said. "Even though you may not go into these kinds of trades in the future, they open doors."

The money raised will allow the program to purchase the supplies and materials needed for the participants this summer.

The program resulted in a lot of progress being made last summer in the restoration of the Bolton Camp property, due to the efforts of the 61 young women taking part. The hands-on projects included creating habitat, restoring trails, actual building, etc.

Nadia Zanardi, co-leader of the program, said in the fall that she was among about 160 young people hired by TRCA in the summer of 2014 to do construction and restoration work. She said she really liked it, but had noticed a lot of the girls had signed up for the more traditional projects on the site, such as those related to arts, etc. But there were some who wanted to switch to more of the "hands-on" work.

Zanardi said that with collaboration from TRCA, as well as a $25,000 grant from the Laidlaw Foundation, they were able to get the program going.

"It's been a really good project so far," she remarked.

The other nominees were Well-spring Cancer and Caledon Parent-Child Centre (CPCC).

Gail Dickson spoke on behalf of Wellspring, which is a network of community-based support centres offering programs and services that meet the emotional, social, practical and restorative needs of people living with cancer and those who care for them. The programs are offered free of charge.

"It's a safe, confidential place to meet others living with cancer, to learn coping strategies, knowledge, and share with others living with cancer at any stage in their life," Dickson explained.

She said they don't receive funding from the government, and rely on donations from individuals, corporate sponsorships and fundraising events.

Dickson said everyone has known someone who has been touched by cancer, which is where Wellspring comes in to provide love and care. "Hospitals are stressed and maxed out, and they can't provide what people need," she observed.

Sherolyn Roman spoke for CPCC, which is a non-profit community service organization that provides quality programs for children, parents and caregivers in Caledon and the surrounding areas.

She said the challenge they face is meeting the needs of diverse families in urban and rural areas.

"Caledon is a huge geographic area, with a variety of families that come in all shapes and sizes, and we endeavour to serve them all," Roman said. "For us, fundraising typically doesn't come in huge corporation sponsors and dollars."

There was a good crowd out at the most recent meeting of 100 Women Who Care Caledon. It was held at Caledon Ski Club.

Raising the Roof favoured recipient from golf tournament

By Bill Rea

Raising the Roof could be looking at an infusion of up to $75,000 later this year through the Caledon Council Community Golf Tournament.

Town councillors, sitting on the Golf Tournament Committee Monday, favoured Raising the Roof over about nine other groups that had been in the running to be primary grant recipient from the Tournament, which will be held in the fall. The motion passed by committee, which still has to be ratified by Council, names Raising the Roof, making it eligible for up to 75 per cent of the net proceeds from the event, up to a maximum of $75,000.

The mission of Raising the Roof is to provide national leadership on long-term solutions to homelessness through partnership and collaboration. The organization is eyeing a Cedar Mills property that is owned by Toronto and Region Conservation Authority (TRCA) for its first Reside program, using an existing vacant building to provide supportive affordable housing. Raising the Roof is also partnering with Caledon Area Families For Inclusion (CAFFI), which is looking for supportive housing to assist families with young adults children with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

According to the grant application, the money will be used for capital costs to cover renovations for the house.

Raising the Roof was requesting $75,000.

The other grant requests considered by Council included $50,000 sought by Bethell Hospice Foundation to cover operating costs to deliver and grow residential and community programs and services; $100,000 requested by Caledon Community Services (CCS) for the purchase of a new accessible chair bus, along with winter tires and one-year maintenance; $50,000 sought by Caledon Seniors' Centre to cover operating costs to provide satellite programs in Caledon East, Caledon village, Inglewood, Alton and Mayfield West; $30,000 requested by Dorado Stars Swim Club to replace pool starter blocks at Mayfield Recreation Centre;

$88,000 that was requested by the Great War Flying Museum at Brampton Flight Centre to pay for a hangar extension; $75,000 that was being sought by Habitat for Humanity build 10 townhouses on Kennedy Road in Southfields Village; $75,000 that National Wildlife Centre was seeking to fund the building of a wildlife hospital in Caledon; and $32,000 that the Peel Agricultural Society was seeking for new outdoor signs at the front of their property.

There were numerous complimentary comments made about several of these organizations at Monday's meeting, and councillors seemed to be going to great lengths to avoid saying anything negative.

Councillor Rob Mezzapelli stressed in the importance of funding capital projects, as opposed to covering operational costs, because that kind of funding might not be sustainable.

He also pointed out there is usually about $100,000 to be distributed after each tournament, with about $75,000 going to the primary recipient, with some of the remaining funds going as secondary grants.

Rob Mezzapelli will not be seeking another term on Council

By Bill Rea

No matter what, there are going to be some changes to the look of Caledon Council after this fall's municipal elections, as voters in Ward 5 will have to break in a new area councillor.

Councillor Rob Mezzapelli has announced he will not be seeking a third term in office.

Mezzapelli stressed his time in office has not been about him, but making sure Bolton had good representation at the council table.

"This has been a challenging term for me personally, he added.

Looking at the time horizon, he said

Check smoke alarms when resetting clocks

The clocks go ahead one hour this weekend to mark the start of daylight time, and Caledon Fire and Emergency Services are reminding residents it's a good time to check other things, such as making sure electric and battery-operated smoke alarms are working properly.

Clocks officially go forward one hour this Sunday (March 11) at 2 a.m. The Fire department suggests when changing the clocks, it's also a good time change the batteries in both smoke alarms and carbon monoxide alarms in the home. All alarms should be tested monthly, and replaced after seven to 10 years, or by recommendation from the manufacturer's instructions.

For these alarms to do their job, they need to be operational. Alarms can be electrically powered, battery powered, or a combination of both. People installing electrical-powered alarms are advised to have a battery back-up in case of power failures.

"In a fire, every second counts," Fire Chief Darryl Bailey said. "Roughly half of home fire deaths result from fires reported at night between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. when most people are asleep. Smoke alarms can alert people to the presence of toxic smoke and give everyone an opportunity to get out alive."

Bailey also emphasized the importance of developing a home escape plan. Occupants may have less than two minutes to safely escape the toxic smoke released from a fire. Make sure everyone knows two ways out of each room and discuss an outdoor meeting place in advance.

Remember, every home in Ontario must have a working smoke alarm on every storey and outside all sleeping areas — it's the law.

For more information on smoke alarms, fire safety and home escape plans, contact Caledon Fire and Emergency Services at 905-584-2272, ext. 4303, or visit www.caledon.ca/fire he sees Bolton and Caledon as really being a small town with an urban-rural mix, along with slow growth. He said the growth that's coming is beyond what he thinks is reasonable. He observed the population in town is slated to be 160,000 by 2041, "beyond what I think we should be absorbing, in my opinion."

"It seems to be the way that's been laid out before us," he added. "It seems to be the way that the future of our community will be."

A professional firefighter in Toronto, Mezzapelli said he's always felt a strong connection with the Bolton community, and a desire to serve it.

"I had to put that in the balance with my career as a Toronto firefighter and my home life," he said, concerned he might have been stretching himself too thin.

He's also gone as far to endorse a possible successor.

Steve Conforti has announced his plans to seek the seat this fall.

"I believe this person will be a good representative for Bolton," Mezzapelli said. "He will be a great area councillor for Bolton."

But he did say he will miss being a councillor.

"It's been an absolute honour and a privilege to have been able to serve," he said. "It has blessed me personally in more ways than I could describe."

Conforti planning to run for Council

By Bill Rea

Steve Conforti has devoted a lot of energy over the years to serving his community.

Now he's interested in trying it from the Caledon Council table.

Conforti, 39, said he is planning to run for the area council seat for Ward 5 (Bolton) in this fall's municipal election. He is interested in replacing Rob Mezzapelli, who has announced he will not be seeking re-election.

A life-long Bolton resident, Conforti owns and operates the marketing company We Are Creative. He's also been involved in various groups and organizations in the community, including the Sunday Night Hockey League. He also helped organize the first Cheers Caledon last year.

"My history shows I've done a lot already for the community," he added.

This will be, however, the first time he's entered the political arena.

"It's a good opportunity for me and it's a good time for me," the father of two sons remarked.

Conforti noted there's currently a lot of infighting on council, and he would like to see more transparency if elected.

"There are different stories all over the place," he said. "Let's get the truth out with all these issues."

He is looking with some confidence at his chances for election, commenting he has a lot of contacts in the local business, sports and social community.

He was also happy to have the support of Mezzapelli.

"I appreciate any wisdom and knowledge he can share with me," he said.

Tilson recognizes local home shows

Home show season is fast approaching, and Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson took time last week to recognize that in the House of commons.

Tilson rose in the House to celebrate the upcoming shows sponsored by the Caledon Chamber of Commerce and Lions Club of Orangeville.

"Mr. Speaker, Members may have noticed that there's a hint of spring in the air this week," Tilson told the House. "In Dufferin-Caledon, that's a sign that our local home shows are right around the corner."

He added both the local shows offer area business people the chance to showcase products and services to residents who might be thinking of sprucing up their homes in the spring.

In Orangeville, the Lions Home and Garden show runs at the Orangeville Fairgrounds April 6, 7 and 8. The Caledon Chamber of Commerce's Spring Home Show 2018 runs at the Albion-Bolton Community Centre April 20, 21 and 22.

"The show is a 'shop local' experience, where constituents can find great deals on items related to their home and garden living," Tilson told his fellow MPs.

Clarksons recognized for work to restore stream

By Bill Rea

David and Faith Clarkson have been busy for the last several years working to restore a watercourse on their Kennedy Road property, and those efforts were rewarded last Friday.

The Clarksons were presented with a Lieutenant Governor's Ontario Heritage Award for Excellence in Conservation. The presentation was made by Lt.-Gov. Elizabeth Dowdeswell at Queen's Park.

The Clarksons have been working on the project at their Applegarth Farm in partnership with Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) since 2012, to study, design and restore the watercourse. They opened their property to neighbours, councillors, municipal employees and environmental organizations, and attended various meetings. The result, according to Ontario Heritage Trust, has been the restoration of a cold water stream, valley, wetland and grassed area that has benefitted several species of fish, amphibians, insects and birds.

It takes up about 800 metres of stream flowing into the East Credit River.

Dr. Clarkson, a retired family doctor, said they learned of the award in January.

"It was a pleasant surprise," he remarked, adding he was taken by the quality of other projects that were recognized at the ceremony. "It was a bigger deal than I first anticipated."

"There were some wonderful projects," Mrs. Clarkson observed, adding she was taken with the Lieutenant Governor. "She's a lovely lady."

They both added the contribution of CVC couldn't be understated.

"We worked with very professional people," Dr. Clarkson remarked.

"They were so respectful of the property," his wife added. "They did such a good job."

She also said a lot of heavy machinery was required to do the work, but one going to look at the site now would see no indication that such equipment had been there.

Mrs. Clarkson also observed there had been marshland there, but it has been replaced by a running stream.

Dr. Clarkson observed the water is "undoubtedly cleaner now."

Mrs. Clarkson said there are apparently little fish there now, although she said she hasn't seen them yet.

A tile drain was installed on the site in the early 1970s. It was eight to 10 feet under the ground. It was made of concrete, and Dr. Clarkson said it was broken and serving no good purpose. They worked with CVC to have the drain and associated fill removed to restore the flowing water.

Dr. Clarkson said his father Grant farmed the property in the 1970s and '80s. He was also a mechanical engineer who chaired the local conservation authority. He added his cousin was former Caledon mayor John Clarkson.

Mrs. Clarkson said this is the first year after the construction was completed, adding it will take about three years for the project to mature.

She also said they are looking forward to seeing what birds stop there in their spring migration.

The Bruce Trail Conservancy was another recipient of an award last Friday. This was in honour of the Conservancy's unique and lasting conservation work over the past 50 years.

"These exceptional individuals, organizations, and communities are champions of our past and architects of our future," Dowdeswell commented during the ceremony. "On behalf of a grateful province, I thank them for their exemplary achievements in conserving the best of Ontario from which we may learn and mature."

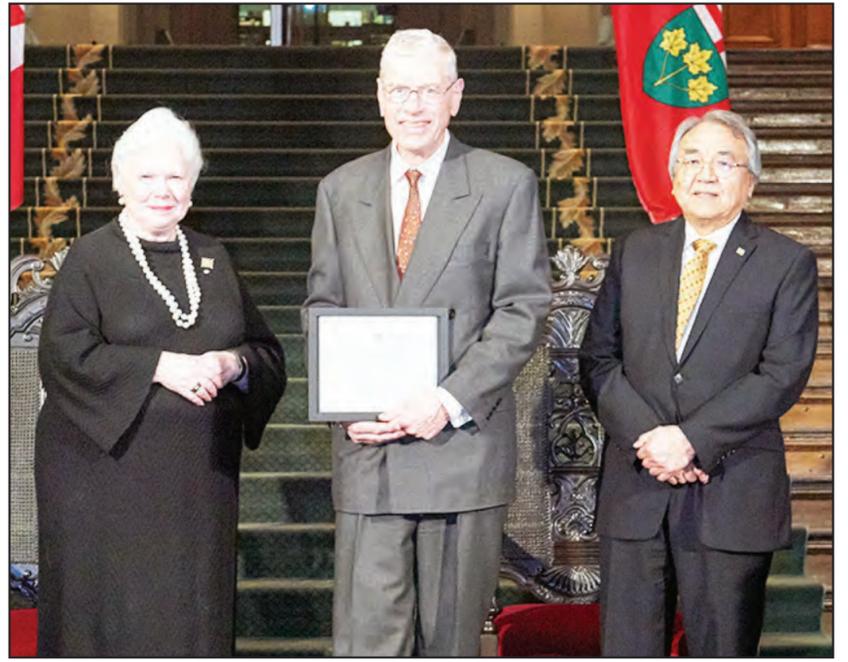

Bruce Trail Conservancy Board Vice-Chair John Grandy, who accepted the award, reflected on its significance.

"For over 50 years, the Bruce Trail Conservancy has been committed to protecting the natural land along the Niagara Escarpment," he said. "The Bruce Trail and the tremendous conservation work done by the Bruce Trail Conservancy results from the dedication of volunteers, landowners, members, donors and communities, and we are pleased to see this exceptional commitment recognized."

David Clarkson stands over some of the work that contributed to the restoration of the cold-water stream on his property.

Don't let safety on the farm grind your gears

Throughout the past century, much has evolved in the agricultural industry — and this is most obvious when looking at the machinery that farmers count on to make their day-to-day tasks easier.

From power steering in tractors to all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) becoming an industry staple, every new or improved bit of machinery has come with its own special set of preventive safety measures and guidelines.

Considering the fact that farms often double as a workplace and a home, Canada Safety Council has noted it's not uncommon for farming to become a family business — a side effect that can make the job more effective, but can also prove to be that much more devastating in the event of fatality.

To mark National Farm Safety Week (March 14 to 20), the Canada Safety Council is offering safety tips around machinery, including best practices, preventive measures and, with these, a reminder that shortcuts should never be taken when discussing safety.

"The agricultural sector is an important one whose role in Canada can't be overstated," said Jack Smith, president of the Canada Safety Council. "The job often entails the use of sharp, blunt and heavy machinery. It's only through proper training, education and preventative maintenance that these tools can be used safely, and it's the farmer's responsibility to ensure their proper use at all times."

Agricultural fatalities are on the decline, relatively speaking. According to Canadian Agricultural Injury Reporting, the average of fatalities between 2002 and 2012 (the most recent year where data is available) was approximately 30 fatalities less than the running average from 1990-2001. Although the overall trend is encouraging, 2012 still saw 60 agriculture-related fatalities — an unacceptable figure, as far as the Safety Council is concerned.

Unsurprisingly, machinery dominated as the major cause of fatalities between 2003 and 2012, with 70 per cent of fatalities being attributed to machine rollovers, run overs, entanglement in moving machinery parts or other machinery-related causes.

What can farmers do to keep themselves and their families away from harm?

The best tool for any farmer hoping to run machinery is the owner's manual. Machines are typically designed with safety in mind and are perfectly safe to use, assuming correct maintenance and operation.

An inspection of the machine prior to operation can sometimes reveal otherwise unnoticed safety concerns, including leaking air or hydraulic lines, removed machine guards or obstructed emergency stop switches. Make it a regular habit to do a walk-around of all machines prior to use. A walk-around can also help if there are any small children, as they may be playing behind a vehicle that's to back up.

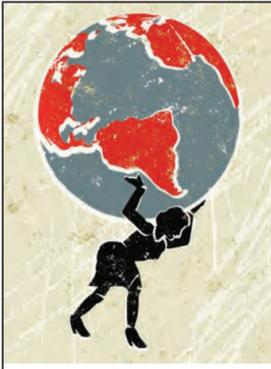

Other tips include wearing personal protective equipment, when required, on the job. Goggles, safety shoes and leather gloves are all potentially lifesaving in some circumstances. Avoid wearing any loose-fitting clothing, jewelry, hairstyles or anything that could get caught on moving parts. To that end, stay away from moving parts at all times. If there's something caught in a moving part, make sure to turn off the machine and remove the keys from the ignition before performing maintenance.

If parking a machine on a slope, make sure to block it. Fifty per cent of all run over fatalities between 2002 and 2012 were individuals who were struck by an unmanned machine.

Exercise caution and judgment when operating a machine close to the edge of a ditch, slope or field. This is the most frequent cause of machine rollovers.

Perform preventive maintenance on a regular basis, making sure the machine is properly lubricated, adjusted and has no parts in need of adjustment or repair.

Farming can be a dangerous industry, but an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Prioritize safety and training for family and workers. Consider signing them up for the Canada Safety Council's ATV rider training course to give them a leg up on proper use of these machines: <https://canadasafetycouncil.org/product/atv-rider-course/>

OPP investigate road spill

Caledon OPP are looking into a large amount of garbage that was reportedly dumped Monday on Boston Mills Road, east of Creditview Road.

Police report they were contacted by the Town of Caledon regarding "a significant quantity of garbage bags" that were in a ditch. They added there was a strong smell of a chemical that was detected coming from the bags.

Police, along with personnel from Caledon Fire and Emergency Services and Peel Region were all involved in the investigation. The road was closed from about 11:20 a.m. to 7 p.m. In the end, 72 garbage bags of waste were removed and disposed of in a safe manner by a licensed hazardous materials disposal contractor. There was no risk to the public and no evacuation of the area was required.

Police are requesting that if members of the public come across similar occurrences, they should not touch material, but contact police as soon as possible.

If anyone has information in relation to this investigation they are encouraged to contact 905-594-2241 or Peel Crime Stoppers.

Break-in suspect arrested at scene

A 25-year-old man from Brampton is facing a number of charges after a break-in Feb. 6 in the area of Inglewood.

Caledon OPP reports they were informed shortly after 6 a.m. of a break-in that was in progress at a home on King Street, west of Highway 10. When officers arrived, they found a suspect inside the victim's vehicle which was in the garage.

The man was arrested without incident. Further investigation indicated he was responsible for additional thefts from motor vehicles, as well as break and enters.

He was charged with five counts of possession property obtained by crime under $5,000, breaking and entering a place to commit an indictable offence, two counts of possession property obtained by crime over $5,000, two counts of theft of motor vehicle, three counts of trespassing at night, two counts of mischief under $5,000, and break into a dwelling to commit an indictable offence.

Andrew Nowell running for Ontario Trillium Party in Dufferin-Caledon

By Bil Rea

The Trillium Party of Ontario is going to be represented in Dufferin-Caledon in this year's provincial election.

Melancthon resident Andrew Nowell has announced he will be carrying the party's colours in the coming campaign.

He said this will be his first venture into the political arena, but he has become involved with his local landowners' association, and began working on issues dealing with the local farming community.

"It kind of started from there," he said.

Nowell, 54, and his wife have three grown children and one grandson. They currently live on a horse farm with their extended family of rescued horses, ponies and llamas.

He also commented that he likes the direction Trillium seems to be taking.

"I really, truly thought they were going to be the party of the people," he remarked, "rather than for the leaders, which at times seem to have their own agendas."

He also stated there is growing unrest with the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives.

"People of Ontario are looking for something different," he said. "There is a chance the Trillium Party will grow during this election."

Nowell said he's been a member of the party for about a month. He commented that he heard about it through a neighbour, and was intrigued when he met Elizabeth Marshall, who is the Trillium candidate in Bruce-Grey-Owen Sound. That prompted him to look into the party in more detail.

Nowell spent most of his teen years in the Lindsay area, and joined the local Army Cadet corps, eventually joining the Canadian Forces and spending time in the regular army before joining the reserve as an officer with the Cadet Instructors Cadre (CIC), working to mentor and coach youth. He retired from CIC as a Captain with 24 years total service in the military.

He has spent his career in workplace safety. In his various roles, his goal was to improve safety conditions for workers, being a voice for the rights of the worker, and building a strong safety culture.

Yard waste collection starts in Peel

Residents of urban areas in Caledon, as well as Brampton and Mississauga, are advised that yard waste collection starts the week of March 12.

Residents in rural areas of Caledon will have their yard waste picked up designated Fridays.

Residents are encouraged to visit peelregion.ca/waste and use When Does It Go to check their waste management calendar or download their schedule to a personal electronic device.

Yard waste must be at the curb by 7 a.m. on a resident's collection day. It should be placed in acceptable bins, containers and/or bags.

A bin or container used for yard waste collection must be:

- clearly labelled "yard waste,"

- rigid and reusable with handles that are attached or molded to the exterior,
- smaller than 60 centimetres (24 inches) wide and 95 centimetres (38 inches) high, and, less than 20 kilograms (44 pounds), when full.

A Kraft brown paper bag used for yard waste collection must:

- support a maximum weight of 20 kilograms (44 pounds) when lifted, without tearing,
- securely close when full, and,
- be smaller than 66 centimetres (26 inches) wide and 90 centimetres (35 inches) high.

Residents can use their old garbage container or blue/grey box to set out yard waste for collection. All repurposed containers must be in good condition and clearly labelled "yard waste" to be collected.

Jones called on new Minister to fix long-term care woes

By Bill Rea

Oak Ridges — Markham MPP Dr. Helena Jaczek was in her first full day as Minister of Health and Long-Term Care when she had to start fielding opposition questions.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones was among who kept the new Minister on her feet during Question Period in the legislature last Tuesday.

Jaczek had been minister of Community and Social Services until last Monday, when Health and Long-Term Care Minister Dr. Eric Hoskins announced he was resigning his cabinet post and his seat immediately. Jaczek was appointed his successor.

"Welcome to day one," Jones called out to Jaczek as she started her questioning, calling on the new Minister to address the failure to provide adequate long-term care for seniors.

The example Jones cited dealt with the family of a 93-year-old Belfountain man who have been trying to find care for him. He has been forced to travel for three hours to find a long-term care placement in London.

"Something needs to be done to help the seniors of Ontario to live out the rest of their lives in dignity in a facility that is able to deal with their needs," Jones quoted the man's daughter as saying.

"Why is this government failing to provide the care that Ontario seniors deserve?" Jones asked the Minister, according to Hansard.

"Certainly, when we hear of stories as the member of Dufferin-Caledon has related, we're obviously extremely sympathetic," Jaczek replied. "We know that we need to ensure that people live out their lives in dignity and in safety."

She added the government has announced the addition of some 5,000 more long-term-care beds over the next four years.

"This is something that will be tailored to individual communities through the application process," she said. "The first tranche of this is coming to a conclusion very, very shortly."

Golf tournament funds presented to Bolton Camp

By Bill Rea

Caledon Council's annual Golf Tournament, held in September, raised more than $100,000, and Bolton Camp received a good chunk of that.

Councillors gathered recently to present a cheque for $91,300 to Toronto and Region Conservation Authority (TRCA) to be used toward the Reimagining of Bolton Camp.

The 2017 edition of the tournament saw the funds raised for the community pass the $1 million mark over the years.

The tournament was held once again at Osprey Valley Golf Club near Alton, and Mayor Allan Thompson expressed appreciation for the support and partnership with the club over the last 14 years.

Councillor Jennifer Innis, who was chair of the tournament committee, thanked her colleagues for their support.

She also said the primary beneficiary of this year's tournament was special to her because she sits on the TRCA Board. Having the money go to the Bolton Camp will help the facility's "great potential" both for the community and the broader region.

Innis also thanked the businesses that helped sponsor the tournament.

"We're never short of sponsors, which I think says something," she remarked.

The Council contribution will help to fulfill one of the most vital elements of Bolton Camp — the renovation of "The Hub," a 4,000 square foot building constructed in 1975 that can accommodate more than 300 users. It will become a central gathering space for the community and will ensure that TRCA can continue to meet the needs of the rapidly growing area.

"On behalf of my Council colleagues I'm so proud of this investment in the Reimagining of Bolton Camp," Innis said. "The Hub is a key component of the project and will help transform the site into a community cultural hub to meet the growing needs of our community and help bring our region together."

"We really greatly value our relationship with the Town," TRCA's new CEO John MacKenzie said at last week's cheque presentation.

He also commented on the "exciting initiative" to create a community cultural hub on the camp property.

"It's a great use of community space," he said. "It's going to be an amazing place to learn and share."

"So many great things have already happened," he added. "Incredible things are going to occur here."

Worthy causes considered

"We have some large-ticket items here," he remarked, adding he wouldn't want to see the secondary recipients getting squeezed.

Councillor Doug Beffort agreed with the need to keep some money back to help secondary recipients.

Councillor Barb Shaughnessy observed it took a lot of work to put these applications together. She wondered if some of these outfits would be eligible for Trillium grants from the Province, adding they maybe should be told there might be other sources of money.

She also voiced reluctance to sending the money to national organizations, such as Habitat for Humanity. She said groups like this have large fundraising teams. She also said the Town gave Habitat a break on development charges on its previous project in Caledon.

As well, Shaughnessy pointed out CCS has a fundraising team, as she was interested in focusing attention on a smaller organization.

She was also intrigued by the application from National Wildlife Centre.

"It's a tourism opportunity and an education opportunity," she remarked.

"What is the benefit to the community?" Mezzapelli asked.

He also pointed to the Raising the Roof application, pointing out it's related to finding housing for young adults with disabilities.

"This is a housing stock that does not exist in Caledon," he observed.

Mezzapelli also saw merit in the CCS application, wondering if the agency would be able to make do with $75,000 rather than the $100,000 it was seeking. He pointed out the population in Caledon is getting older, and there is a growing need for transportation services.

He also acknowledged the National Wildlife Centre is trying to address a real need in the area.

Councillor Jennifer Innis agreed there should be more emphasis on capital projects, as opposed to operational.

She expressed a certain partiality to the National Wildlife Centre application, observing they are working through TRCA to find a site for their facility. She also pointed out they are currently operating out of two mobile units.

"It's a great organization," she declared. "It's something that's definitely needed."

But she also pointed out the agency hasn't secured land yet.

"It's a chicken-and-egg scenario," she said.

Innis also said she was drawn to the application of Raising the Roof, pointing out it's in her ward and is also working in partnership with TRCA.

"Everybody is chipping in to make this home a reality," she observed.

Shaughnessy was concerned there wasn't more details on Raising the Roof's budget, when it comes to renovation costs.

Mayor Allan Thompson said he was impressed with the detailed application submitted by Great War Flying Museum.

"I always like to reward people for good homework," he remarked.

He added he understood what Raising the Roof wants to do, but he too was concerned about missing details.

Councillor Johanna Downey, who was chairing the meeting, agreed all the applicants were "very worthy," but she personally thought the museum had a more fulsome application. She also pointed out school groups visit the museum, and things are cramped there.

"It's one or the other," Innis remarked, pointing out they could support the tourism potential at the museum, or help house vulnerable people. "I'm going to go with my heart on this one."

Pharmacare should be affordable here

A half-century has passed since Canada followed Britain and other industrialized countries in providing universal medicare for its residents.

But until now, our Provincially operated health care plans don't include universal drug plans.

In Ontario, for instance, we do have a new plan, dubbed OHIP-plus, that gives anyone younger than 25 free access to some 4,400 prescription drugs, and we've long since have a drug plan for those older than 65 which requires seniors to pay $100 annually before having access to any prescription drug for a token $6.11. But those between 25 and 65 who don't have a drug plan through employment have no protection against soaring drug costs.

That's why the federal government is finally committed to coming up with some form of universal "pharmacare," and has appointed Dr. Eric Hoskins to head up "an Advisory Council on the Implementation of National Pharmacare."

Until recently Ontario's health minister, Hoskins will take charge of a body which federal Finance Minister Bill Morneau said in his recent budget speech will have "a mandate to study, evaluate, and ultimately recommend options on a path forward on pharmacare that puts Canadians first."

Explaining the government's plan, the minister said that currently "at least one in 10 Canadians cannot afford the prescription drugs they need. Every year, over a million Canadians are forced to give up food and heat in order to afford their medicines, and those who can afford to pay for their medication face some of the highest costs in the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD)."

Since tabling the budget, the Minister has faced accusations that he is in a "perceived conflict of interest" on the newly promised national pharmacare program because of his previous ties to Morneau Shepell, a pension and benefits consulting firm.

Those accusations followed remarks he made suggesting that the government is merely looking for a "strategy . . . that deals with the gaps and that doesn't throw out the system we currently have."

Those remarks were remarkably similar to the position taken by the Ontario government in the 1960s when it and Alberta initially opposed the advent of universal medicare.

Bowing to pressure from the private insurance industry, the government of Premier John Robarts in 1966 came up with a scheme to "fill the gaps." Called the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan (OMSIP), it made medical services available to anyone not covered by private insurers.

It didn't take long for the government to discover that the private insurers wound up covering all the healthy Ontarians and OMSIP got stuck with everyone else. The result in 1969 was OHIP (the Ontario Health Insurance Plan) which supplanted the private plans and covers everyone.

Morneau and Health Minister Ginette Petitpas Taylor insist that the government intends to "listen to experts." The health minister said the Hoskins report, due in the spring of 2019, will bring forward "recommendations" to be considered along with a report expected soon from a Commons health committee that has studied the issue for two years.

If the Advisory Council looks at what has been done elsewhere, it will find that few, if any, countries provide free prescription drugs to everyone. Even under England's public health system, most people pay £8.60 (about $15) each time or buy a pre-paid certificate for a set time period. (Free drugs are available for those over 60 or under 16, as well as pregnant women and those on social assistance.)

If the government opts for something similar to Ontario's current plan for seniors, the net cost to taxpayers of a universal pharmacare program should be relatively modest.

Ticket prices no big deal

One news item last week that didn't get nearly the play I was expecting was that the price of tickets to take in a Toronto Maple Leaf Game is going to be increasing.

That means if you want seats in the lower bowl at the Air Canada Centre, you're going to be parting with $270, and that's for one ticket. If you're planning on taking a date, that means . . . er . . . do the arithmetic. My wife and I could blow one-third of our annual entertainment budget in one night by going to the game, and only have places to park our individual carcasses to show for it. No food or drink has been yet consumed.

Now it seems you can also score tickets in the upper bowl for a little less than $100 a head, but that's still a chunk of change. And what if you want to take your kids to the game?

This all boils down to something that very few of us can afford, although it might be nice to dream about.

While I might give my head a shake at the thought of ticket prices going up, it's not something I'm complaining about. I was brought up essentially to be a capitalist, meaning I understand the concept of letting the market decide certain things, like prices.

It is a fact that tickets to Leaf games have been a hot ticket for more than 60 years. Getting into the games has always been an expensive proposition, yet few are the empty seats one has ever seen at ACC, or Maple Leaf Gardens prior to that. Despite the prices, they are still able to fill the stands. That means the market can handle higher prices.

I have been to a few Leaf games over the 60 years I have been alive, but not many. In most of the cases, a friend of a friend had surplus tickets, and I got into the Carlton Street Cashbox (although I have been inside ACC a couple of times, I have yet take in a Leaf game there).

There were two years when I was a little kid when my father was able to score tickets to Saturday night games in early and mid-February, just happening to coincide with the birthdays of my brother and myself. But he was only able to get two tickets per game. No matter, I got to two of them, and got to see the great Gordie Howe in action. Very few complaints from this corner.

I got to the odd game in the years that followed, often as a result of tickets suddenly appearing seemingly from nowhere. There were lots of memorable experiences. True, the Leafs lost the first game I attended, 6-3 to Chicago, but if memory serves, that was the last time I had to personally watch my heroes suffer loss. There were a couple other intros to the adult world for an impressionable kid, There was one game in the late '60s that my parents and brother attended.

The Leafs beat the hell out of the Minnesota North Stars. The real entertainment was from a guy seated in the end Blues who brought his bagpipes. He was part of a very rowdy gang sitting in that section, and they were clearing having a blast. I remember my mother trying to explain some of the nuances of adult behaviour to her offspring. It was a couple of years before I appreciated that most of these guys would have had flasks in their jacket pockets. It was also a couple of years before I felt sympathy for what those poor guys probably had to go through the next morning.

I was in high school the last time I attended a Leaf game. It was Nov. 27, 1976. I remember the date well because it was the day before the Grey Cup game, which was played in Toronto that year. Ottawa beat Saskatchewan in the big game.

I had been lucky to have parents with season's tickets for the Toronto Argonauts, which they sometimes couldn't use, so a friend of mine from school (his name was Rob) would join me for the odd match. In time, Rob came into tickets for a Leaf game. I didn't bother asking how. One of the nice things I learned about being a teen is parents will sometimes finance much of the social life. I didn't mind a bit.

The timing of the last Leaf game I took in left a lot to be desired. I spent most of that day in bed, battling the flu. But the fact was getting tickets was a rare event, so there was no way I was going to let a simple biological malfunction get in the way.

And since it was Grey Cup weekend, there were lots of football fans taking in the local hockey action that Saturday evening. Rob and I had a couple of very loud louts, probably from Regina, sitting right behind us. They had a good time. We all watched the Leafs beat Boston 4-2.

That was more than 40 years ago. The reason I haven't attended a game since is I couldn't afford it, and I still can't. But there are a lot of people out there who can, which is why the seats are always filled.

And it is also a fact that the Leafs, along with the other clubs, need to make money. Auston Matthews and his mates don't just give their services away. They charge a lot for what they do (largely because they can charge a lot) so the Maple Leaf organization has to come up with the money to pay them. That's where the fans come in.

It bothers me a little. Part of me is of the opinion that every kid living in this part of the world who is also a Leaf fan should be able to get to see their heroes play the odd time, or at least once. But is it also not the case that the very rarity is what makes it all so valuable?

It happened today

Both men were on top of their game.

Neither had been defeated professionally, and each man had a legitimate claim to proclaim himself heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

Muhammad Ali had been champion, but the various boxing authorities defrocked him because he refused to be drafted into the United States Armed Forces. That created a vacancy at the top, and Joe Frazier proved that he was the best man around to fill it.

The question of who belonged at the top had to be settled, and the only place that could be done was in the ring.

The fight was known at the time as the Fight of the Century, and while the match had a clear winner, the question of who was the greater fighter can probably draw a spirited debate to this day.

Frazier beat Ali in a unanimous decision the Fight of the Century this day, March 8, 1971.

Budget 2018 fails middle-class Canadians

The current Liberal government tabled its third budget in the House of Commons Feb. 27.

A strong global economy provided an excellent opportunity for Prime Minister Justin Trudeau to deliver results for Canadians in this budget. However, he instead chose the path of failing middle-class Canadians, women and business operators, who are the very people he claims to be supporting, while also increasing taxes and piling on more national debt.

Canadians are rightfully concerned that the deficit for this fiscal year is $18 billion, which is three times higher than what Prime Minister Trudeau promised during the 2015 election. The budget isn't projected to be in balance again until 2045, which means these additional deficits will add $450 billion to Canada's national debt over the next 27 years. Borrowing on Canada's future isn't free — someone has to pay for it and that someone is the hardworking Canadian taxpayer.

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

Sadly, more than 90 per cent of Canadian families are paying more in taxes and after this budget. The current Liberal government also introduced new tax hikes on local business owners and their employees. This is in addition to the national carbon tax, higher CPP premiums, and scrapped tax breaks for families and workers.

The Prime Minister and his Liberal government's economic policies fail to make a difference in the lives of Canadians. Spending $35 billion on a new infrastructure bank helps wealthy investors, not Canadians who want shorter commutes;

$1 billion for "Superclusters" helps big corporations, not Canadians struggling to find work; and $2 billion for foreign aid, but little for our veterans who the Prime Minister says are asking for too much while he fights them in court. Much of what has been presented to Canadians in Budget 2018 amounts to very expensive lip service. The unfortunate reality is that after almost three years of Justin Trudeau, never has a Prime Minister spent so much to achieve so little.

We, the Official Opposition, in stark contrast to the current Liberal government, are focused on bringing forward solutions that put hardworking Canadians before government. We've done this by introducing legislation that supports young families, new parents and persons with disabilities, all of whom are hurt the most by the current government's policies; introducing legislation that provides more transparency about how taxpayer money is spent; and we will support policies that create jobs and grow our economy, including the Trans Mountain Pipeline and a new free trade agreement with the United Kingdom.

Prime Minister Trudeau and his Liberal government are good at making promises; however, they aren't so good at keeping them. The Prime Minister's record to date makes it very difficult for Canadians to believe him when he says he wants to help the middle class. Budget 2018 fails Canadians by putting government before people. We Conservatives will always put hardworking Canadians and their interests first.

Share your long-term care stories with us

After 14 years of inadequate funding for home care and long-term care, I regularly hear from residents of Dufferin-Caledon who are seeking help in either finding a bed in a long-term-care home or accessing a personal support worker.

Last week, I asked the Minister of Health and Long-Term Care about the story of a local family whose father was forced to go to London to find a long-term care placement, three hours away from his friends and family. Stories like this are far too common and many other residents tell me that the government has failed to provide the service that families and seniors deserve.

Seniors are the fastest growing demographic in Canada and Statistics Canada shows that seniors will make up 23 per cent of the population within the next 15 years. Caring for our seniors through long-term care homes is something the government should take pride in, yet wait times for long-term care in Ontario continue to grow. There are 30,000 seniors waiting for access to a long-term care bed, and the list is expected to grow to 50,000 people in the next six years. In our community, there are more than 800 people on the waitlist for long-term care beds. Also, 30,000 of the province's long-term care beds have not been rebuilt to modern standards.

In November 2017, the Central West Local Health Integration Network (LHIN) released statistics on the average wait time to find a placement in long-term-care facilities in Dufferin-Caledon. According to Central West LHIN, the Avalon Retirement Centre waiting list is 360 days. The Dufferin Oaks Home waiting list is 481 days. King Nursing Home has a 348-day wait. Shelburne Residence is 352 days and Vera M. Davis stands at 662 days. The consequence of the long waitlist put incredible stress on family members who are trying to find placement for their loved ones.

The Independent non-partisan Auditor General's 2015 report stated that for every dollar that is supposed to be spent on home care, 39 cents goes to administration instead of front-line services. The shortage in long-term-care creates a backlog in our hospitals as individuals who should be in a long-term care facility are forced to stay in a hospital bed until a long-term care bed becomes available. The Liberal government has failed to adequately invest in long-term care, leaving hundreds of seniors behind.

The Ontario Progressive Conservative Caucus and I know that more needs to be done to build long-term care beds and improve home care in the province of Ontario. Rotary Club of Palgrave's Weekly Rotary Minute

By Janet Clark

I just returned from Mexico where I had the privilege of administering the polio vaccine to a number of children in a remote village in the Sonora District.

The Mexican government organizes two vaccination campaigns per year so that all children under five maintain up-to-date vaccinations, even though their parents may move frequently around the country to obtain farm work. All in all, the volunteer Rotarians who participated in this year's campaign administered 250 vaccines (two drops by mouth).

As part of this year's trip, we also toured the Caborca Hospital Family Kitchen. Six Clubs in our District 7080, including the Rotary Clubs of Palgrave and Bolton, raised funds to purchase all the equipment for an industrial kitchen in the Caborca Hospital for families who would otherwise not be able to afford to eat when visiting in-patients. These families must travel great distances to visit patients and economically, they are simply not in a position to purchase prepared food on these visits. Through the efforts of the Caborca Rotary Club, the kitchen equipment was installed. The hospital pays for the staff and the Auxiliary donates the food so that the families can have healthy food at no cost far from home.

The Rotary Club of Palgrave is actively supporting a number of international initiatives like the Caborca kitchen, such as the Guatemala Schools Project, and a fresh Water Project in Africa. These projects are jointly run with local Rotary clubs on site to oversee everything. This way, we can be assured that every dollar we donate to our international project gets spent on the project itself.

Employers needed in CCS Transitions program

The Caledon Citizen carried an article Sept. 22, 2016, entitled "Lack of supports forcing those with developmental disabilities into crisis," and Caledon Community Services (CCS) stepped up to address this need that we had a growing awareness of for some time right here in our community.

Now it's an opportunity for employers to "step up" and make a difference.

Last week, one of our managers submitted paperwork to terminate the employment of a part-time staff member. Let's call him Michael. Termination of employment is rarely easy. And all employers cite "confidentiality" as a reason for not going on the record to talk about it. Employers and employees part ways, doo-doo happens, jobs end.

This particular termination was coming for a while. CCS wanted to part ways with Michael. We had been telling him this for a couple months. He fought tooth and nail to keep his job. But we were also pretty firm in our view: Michael's employment with CCS needed to be terminated. So what's his story?

Michael had a difficult time leaving CCS. And CCS had a difficult time seeing him move on. Michael was a fantastic team member. He was everything we could have asked for. Incredible customer service, dedicated, he liked to learn and improve, hardworking.

Even so, this termination was celebrated. We celebrated Michael as our employee and also as a client for an employer-subsidy program we offer called Transitions. This program is designed to help adults with disabilities find great jobs with great local employers.

Michael landed an excellent job with a great Caledon business. He starts next week. CCS is supporting the employer with a generous subsidy and on-site coaching by our Transitions staff. The employer is committed to Michael finding his place on their team. Michael is excited. He's going to be a rock solid employee. And CCS is all in with our training subsidy and support for both employer and employee.

King community loses one of its cornerstones, Paul Olsen

By Mark Pavilonis

The King community is mourning the loss of one of its biggest supporters.

Paul Olsen, volunteer and founder of Brookdale Treeland Nursery, passed away unexpectedly March 3 at home. He was just shy of his 74th birthday.

Mr. Olsen was hard at work, as usual, at the Nobleton United Church's Pasta Dinner Friday evening. He served as MC and handed out some prizes to guests. He died at home early Saturday morning.

The Nobleton Lions Club said they are "deeply saddened by the loss of one of our own. Lion Paul Olsen has been a great friend and a truly outstanding member of our community."

Mayor Steve Pellegrini said it was "a great loss for our community. You made King a better place!"

In fact, Mr. Olsen was named King's Citizen of the Year in 2015.

Mr. Olsen was a strong supporter and 50-year member of the Nobleton Lions, and had embraced the annual Purina Walk for Dog Guides fundraiser. He'd been involved in the Nobleton United Church and secured a grant to help the church's accessibility. He volunteered for several Township committees and through BTN, and had been an annual sponsor of the Schomberg Fair.

Councillor Linda Pabst knew Mr. Olsen for more than 40 years, and said he was the first to encourage her to run for office more than 24 years ago.

"He was one of the most amazing mentors," she said. He was the greatest community supporter of all, and a true friend, who was always just a phone call away."

Mr. Olsen was chair of the Board of Nobleton United Church. He not only conducted meetings of the board, he organized a group of neighbouring United churches to come together to plan special events. The most notable was held in the old Schomberg Arena with former Moderator Bruce McLeod to celebrate the 85th anniversary of the United Church of Canada in 2010.

Mr. Olsen was also very involved with the creation of the curling facility at the Trisan Centre. He made a presentation to Council during the planning stages of the Trisan Centre.

He was instrumental in getting the approval for the construction of a curling facility in King. He was a founding member of the King Curling Club and was an active member of the Tuesday and Thursday Mixed Recreational Leagues.

He was the beloved husband of Linda, much loved father of Peter (Jennifer), Jeffrey (Carol) and Diane (Roddy) and Papa to Mitchell, Dean, Evelyn, Cedric, Ava, Mia, Andrea and Nathan.

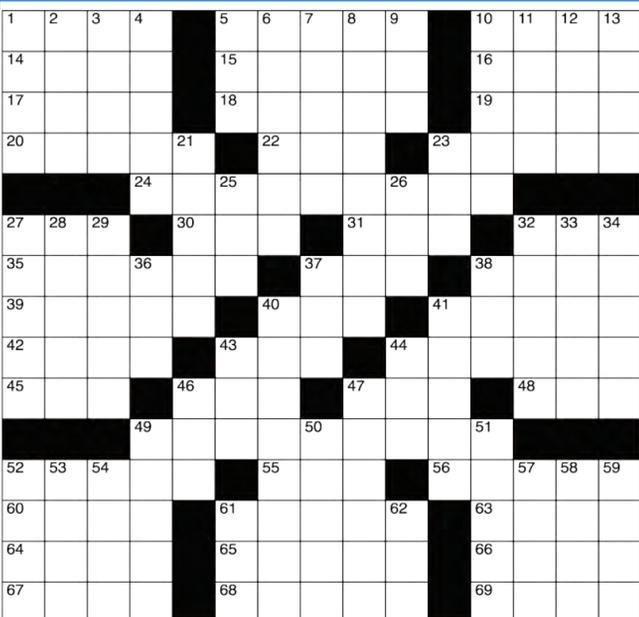

Mr. Olsen founded Brookdale Treeland Nurseries in 1977, humbly starting his dream with a pick up truck, a shovel and a heart full of determination. Through many years of hard work and smart moves, he built the company to be one of the largest growers in Canada with locations throughout the country. He inspired many young entrepreneurs within the industry to take risks and bet on themselves and became a founding member and President of both Landscape Ontario and Canadian Nursery Trades Association.

Services for Mr. Olsen will be today (Thursday) at Holy Family Church, 60 Allan Dr., Bolton, at noon, officiated by Rev. Carol Ann Chapman. That will be followed by cremation.

If desired, memorial donations may be made to the Nobleton Lions Club or Nobleton United Church. Condolences for the family may be offered at www.EganFuneralHome.com

2017 a 'banner year' for Headwaters, says HHC foundation's Nicole Hand

By Mike Pickford

It was a big 12 months for Headwaters Health Care Centre.

With the unveiling of its new $14 million ambulatory care unit in the fall and a multi-million-dollar renovation project to open up a third operating room currently under way, there is a lot to be excited about at the local hospital.

For years, much of the facility upgrades and major equipment purchases at the hospital have been made possible thanks to the work of the Headwaters Health Care Foundation (HHCF). Since the facility's opening 20 years ago, the Foundation has brought in millions of dollars to help the hospital deliver on its mantra to bring quality care close to home.

Speaking to the Citizen last week, HHCF Annual Giving Manager Nicole Hand noted 2017 had been a "banner year" for the organization. While final numbers are still being calculated, Hand gave every indication it had been a record-breaking year for the foundation.

She said 2017 had "been one heck of a year on so many fronts."

"Our new ambulatory care centre has been a wonderful addition to the hospital," she declared. "It's the first major upgrade since this facility was constructed in 1997 and allows us to increase our capacity for service, which is very exciting."

"Then, from a fundraising standpoint, we've been absolutely blown away," she added. "Our community never ceases to amaze us as far as their generosity goes."

The foundation granted more than $2 million to the hospital in 2016 and hopes to announce it has done as much in 2017. The final total for the year will be boosted by more than $511,000 raked in through the foundation's five signature events — its Radiothon, annual Hospital Gala, Take a Hike for Headwaters, Headwaters Golf Classic and Tour de Headwaters. Fitting in alongside other fundraisers, such as the Headwaters House Tour, and Angel Campaign, which has so far brought in $134,000, Hand stated one can very quickly see how and where the community makes a difference at the facility.

With 2018 now here, the Foundation has released its schedule for the year, highlighting its signature events. First up is the second annual Radiothon, taking place April 4. With it being run in conjunction with local radio station 101.5 myFM, Hand is hoping to raise $15,000 through the event.

Headwaters Goes Hollywood the very next month, as the foundation presents its 21st annual Hospital Gala May 5. After celebrating an unprecedented windfall of $308,000 from its Shake, Rattle and Roll gala last time out, the Foundation is looking forward to what it hopes will be another milestone in 2018.

"We're very excited about this year's event," Hand said. "We'll be getting a preliminary list from the hospital in February, stating what equipment they need this year. I'm confident we'll have another successful gala to help get our hospital the equipment it needs."

The second annual Take a Hike for Headwaters will return to Lyric Pond in Mulmur June 2. Having raised $22,000 through its inaugural event, Hand is hoping for another successful year in 2018.

The incredibly popular Headwaters Golf Classic is back for a third consecutive year. Taking place at Devil's Pulpit Golf Course in Caledon July 10, the day-long event will bring 144 golfers together to help raise funds for the hospital. Last year's offering brought in a net total of $124,000.

The fifth and final signature event put on and solely run by the foundation will be the fourth annual Tour de Headwaters. Taking place in Inglewood Sept. 15, the event will see more than 200 riders come together for a great cause.

"We're very excited about our 2018 schedule," Hand said. "Our goal this year is to ensure we grant at least $2 million to the hospital. We're confident it's going to be another big year for Headwaters Health Care Centre."

For more information on the foundation, or to enquire about getting involved in any fundraising idea or opportunity with the organization, contact Hand at 519-941-2702 ext. 2309, or via email at nhand@headwatershealth.ca

The Transitions program has reached its yearly target of people to serve. This target is set by the funder, the provincial government. This proves without a doubt that the need is here in Caledon.

There's a problem though. We haven't been able to find enough local employers, even though we have the cash to support their payroll and on-site training for their eager new employee. The deal on this funding is pretty basic: Use it or lose it. If we don't spend the money, it'll be reallocated to another Ontario community. And once reallocated, it won't return to Caledon.

So here's a shout-out to the Town of Caledon and its many worksites; to local employers large and small; and to local community organizations: We've got great employees for you! If you have a yearning to use your workplace as a supportive launch pad for someone's career growth, please reach the Transitions Program Manager Maureen Tymkow at 905-951-2300.

She's waiting for your call. She's got some top-notch employees. And she's only too happy to help you fill your employment positions with dedicated and loyal employees with retention rates that will knock your socks off. It makes great business sense.

Be a local workplace that steps up for Caledon residents with disabilities. Be in their corner and they'll pay you back in spades.

Golden Hawks eliminated in six games by Hornets

By Jake Courtepatte

As is the case year after year, the power and experience of the Alliston Hornets overwhelmed their opponents, beating out the Caledon Golden Hawks in the Carruther's semifinal Saturday.

While the Golden Hawks' season may have officially ended Saturday, they earn a victory as the closest to taking the Hornets to the brink in three seasons.

The Hawks lasted six games against the Hornets in a playoff round, a feat no team has accomplished since the 2014-15 season.

They had a chance to put the series to bed after going up three games to one in the best-of-seven series, when game five moved back to Alliston's New Tecumseth Rec Centre.

On the brink of elimination, Caledon took a commanding 5-1 lead in the third on the backs of goals from Mathiau Young, Jeffery Ohashi, Tyler Whitten, and a pair from Matt Magliozzi.

Aidan Langlois, who was stellar through a 14-save second period, gave up a pair of late goals before the final buzzer as Caledon breathed a sigh of relief in a 5-4 win.

Once again, facing a do-or-die situation in game six, Magliozzi put his team on the board first with the only goal of the first period.

Yet the Alliston offence roared back with four of their own, shutting out the Hawks the rest of the way and sending them to the off-season with a 4-1 score.

Despite the series loss, the Hawks accomplished their most successful season to date, finishing third in league standings while reaching the second round for the second time.

It was also a monumental turnaround from a disastrous 2016-17 season, doubling their points from 24 to 48.

For the second straight year, the Hornets will meet with the top-seeded Stayner Siskins in the Carruthers division final, after the Siskins beat out the Penetang Kings in six games as well.

Each series this post-season saw the higher seeded team emerge the victor.

The reigning champion Hornets took the title in six games last season, as well as the previous two.

Hawks still in running for OMHA titles

By Jake Courtepatte

And then there were two.

Only a pair of Caledon Hawks teams remain in the marathon chase for a provincial title, with both the atom AE and minor peewee AA Hawks still standing.

The atom AE's had their first-to-six-points series tied up Sunday with a 3-0 shutout at the hands of the Grimsby Kings, after taking the first game on the road 5-2.

Reaching the semifinals on a run that included an undefeated round robin, followed by a five-game defeat of the Guelph Gryphons in the OMHA quarter-finals, they return to action Friday for the next game.

The minor peewee AA Hawks have their work cut out for them after dropping the first two games of their semifinal series with the Milton Winterhawks, though a 3-2 third game win has given the team some life.

The pair of losses were the first of their post-season, racking up nine straight wins since action began in early January.

Game four goes tonight (Thursday) in Caledon East.

WE DON'T BREW OUR BEER FOR THE AWARDS.

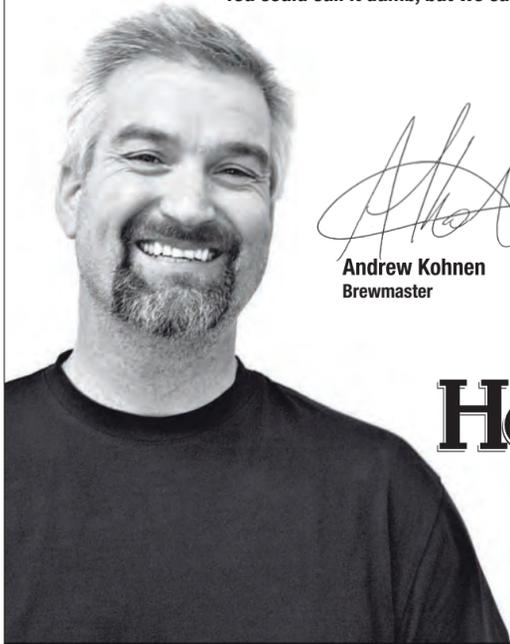

BUT HE DOES!

Our brewmaster, Andrew Kohnen, threw away a successful career in logistics to pursue his dream of reconnecting with the brewing roots of his family. This carried him to the UK's prestigious Brewlab in Sunderland, England, where he procured the alchemy that would drive his signature brewing style.

He took what he could from there and ventured to Scotland, Cornwall, and ultimately to Krefeld, Germany, working in the same brewery that had belonged to his ancestors. He came home to Canada for Hockley.
