

Baffo's in Bolton is closed

By Bill Rea

Baffo's Pizza and Pasta in Bolton is closed, but proprietor Aldo Buccioni said he's hoping to get things going again.

A Bailiff Notice posted on the front door of the Bolton restaurant and eatery last week, stating the landlord of the Queen Street North property "has taken distress against your goods and chattels."

Buccioni said he ran into trouble with taxes that were owing, and the government seized his accounts.

He added he's trying to restructure.

"We're trying to make it right," he said. "We're making a valiant effort."

Baffo's used to operate from a location on Chapel Street in Bolton before moving to its present site in November 2010. During the summer, it opened a Bistro Bar on the ground floor.

Buccioni said he's been hearing a lot of good wishes from people in the community during this time.

"You know when you have friends," he said. "They're wishing the best for you. This is when you know how rich you really are."