

Brampton Flight Centre hosts free career seminar

The Brampton Flight Centre (BFC) invites everyone interested in aviation careers to take part in a free afternoon seminar about programs offered and how to become an airline pilot April 18, from 2 to 4 p.m.

BFC offers multiple options for students to achieve their Commercial Pilot Licence. Parents are also encouraged to attend the information session along with their son or daughter. The event highlights BFC's commercial programs, including new Integrated Airline Transport Pilot Licence, a four-year degree partnership program with Sheridan College and the one-year diploma program. The information session will also include a Q and A period to answer questions and concerns on becoming a professional pilot.

"The Brampton Flight Centre is dedicated to inspiring our kids and young adults in our local communities to realize their potential and pursue careers in aviation," a BFC spokesperson said. "Students will experience BFC's state-of-the-art flight school, meet with certified flight instructors and will discover the latest career opportunities in aviation."

BFC offers a totally immersive experience in a fun and relaxed environment that combines the love of flight with learning.

Pre-registration is required. Reserve a spot by contacting Judy Piccioni at 905-838-1400 ext. 248, or by emailing to admissions@bramfly.com
