

Children's Day at Farmers' Market

A recent edition at Inglewood Farmers' Market was geared toward the younger folks. There were some special fun activities in recognition of the Children's Day. There was face painting, as Cheltenham resident Katie Miller worked on a design for Danel Esprit, 5, of Brampton.

Youngsters at the Children's Day activities had the chance to try some different things, like hula hoops. Market volunteers Rebecca Jarvis and Makenzie Grima, both of Cheltenham, were showing everyone how it's done. Photos by Bill Rea