

Comic Expo attracts enthusiasts to the library

There was lots of activity Saturday at the Albion-Bolton branch of Caledon Public Library, as they were hosting their first ever Comic Expo. There were a host of interactive activities for them to try, as well as some educational components. Larissa Lammers, 7, from Bolton was working on creating her own cartoon, assisted by library volunteer Theresa Nagele.

Cartoonist Mike Cope was running classes on the art.

There were plenty of costumes, inspired by various cartoon figures. Maia Spatone won the class for those 12 and younger, dressed as Indiana Jones. Maia was flanked by brothers Gianluca, dressed as Mario, and Alessio, dressed as Roblox Man. Photos by Bill Rea
