Converting old school into museum?

By Bill Rea

Could the Caledon area use a museum, and is the old Alton Public School the place for it?

That's one of the issues that was discussed last Thursday at a community meeting hosted by Caledon Councillor Barb Shaughnessy. She said her fellow Ward 1 Councillor Doug Beffort sent regrets.

The old building has not seen much use since January 2014, when the new school opened just to the north.

"To me, empty buildings mean death," Shaughnessy told the roughly 25 people at the meeting. "They need to have life."

She also stated clearly that she was hoping for some brainstorming, with ideas being put forth on what to do with this building she called a "gem." She also said it won't be simple.

"A lot of work is needed to go into that building," she added.

There are also complications involved. The building is still owned by the Peel District School Board, and it shares a septic system and parking lot with the new school. And since the Town doesn't own it, Shaughnessy said Caledon council is not willing to put any money in it.

"She's an historical gem, and she offers so much to the community," she said, adding there's a "tremendous community tie to the old school."

"We have to come up with some ideas on what could happen with the school," she declared. "I want people to start thinking about what they want for their community."

Shaughnessy said Town CAO Mike Galloway had suggested she reach out to the community and get people to take up the challenge to find a use for the building.

"We need to come up with options," she remarked. "I need the village of Alton to take ownership of it."

Shaughnessy agreed it will take time to get anything done. The Town's budget process for 2017 is already too far along to get anything financed for next year. She also said such a project would have to be looked at from a number of perspectives, like engineering, environmental, planning, etc.

"We have to have buy-in from the community," she said.

One woman at the meeting observed that both Wellington and Dufferin Counties have

Small Business Summit can help prepare for the bigger leagues

Like baseball and October go together, so too does the annual celebration of all things business. October is National Small Business Month and what better time to take advantage of the many opportunities to maximize business expertise and potential for exposure than now? Many local communities are hosting events geared toward helping small businesses go to the next level, but the Small Business Summit, Oct. 20, is knocking it out of the park. It will be at Caledon Centre for Recreation and Wellness. There will be a show preview Oct. 19 from 5:30 to 8 p.m., with the Summit running the following day from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Featuring global leaders, innovators and business builders including Bill Walsh (Powerteam International), Claudia Harvey (On The Verge), Dr. Lance Secretan (The Secretan Center) and a whole team of experts in a variety of fields, the Small Business Summit is the World Series of business events. Described as a “game-changer,” the world-series analogy is perfect because the theme of the Small Business Summit is to “Think global/source local.” In addition to the guest speakers just mentioned, Canadian Entrepreneur of the Year Bassem Ghali (Green Lotus), will be there, as will Kim Speed (Purple Moon Creative), Justin Hartzman (Needles), Randy Drake (Randy Drake Team), Ryan Mitchell (Coach4CashFlow.com), Craig Dunkerley (Blackthorn Group), Bill Crawley (Metroland Media Group) and more. Onsite social media training will be provided by Christine Gnass, WSI, to provide small businesses with the same level of expertise their big competition already has on staff. The trade show floor will feature basically everything a small business owner/manager or entrepreneur needs to propel their business to next level: E-commerce, customized software, SEO tricks, legal and financing options, government support programs, digital advertising, managing social media, customer optimization coaching and work-life balance experts. Those who are ready to take their business to the next level and in the words of Bill Walsh “play big,” need to attend the opening Show Preview and hear Walsh’s keynote address: Success by Design: How Disruptive Innovation is Driving Massive Success. For information and tickets, visit www.thesmallbusinesssummit.ca

Most Board and Committee meetings are held in Brampton during the evening but they do, from time to time, move around to other communities within the LHIN. # Public input sought on GTA West Corridor review

By Bill Rea

The review of the Greater Toronto Area (GTA) West highway corridor is continuing, and input from the public is now being sought.

Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson reacted positively to the news, while Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones was more reserved.

The Ministry of Transportation suspended work on the environmental assessment (EA) of the corridor in December 2015 to conduct an internal review of the work undertaken since 2007, and ensure that the project still aligned with current government policy and emerging technologies.

To assist with the review, an advisory panel, made up of industry experts, was appointed. The panel consists of Gail Beggs as Chair, along with Rod Northey and Matthias Sweet.

Beggs is a former Deputy Minister with the Ontario Public Service, with extensive experience in environment and resource management public policy.

Northey is an environmental lawyer and partner in the Toronto office of Gowling WLG. He is in his 27th year of private practice, focusing on project approvals tied to the environment.

Sweet is an assistant professor at Ryerson University, with research interests in transportation policy, land use planning and urban economics.

The panel is working on a strategic assessment of potential alternative approaches to meeting future transportation demand and infrastructure needs for the efficient movement of traffic.

“Finally,” was Jones’s initial reaction to the news, pointing out it took a long time to get the names of the members of the panel. She even submitted a Freedom of Information request because she couldn’t get the names, “which didn’t sound very open or transparent to me.”

“Better late than never, I guess,” she added.

The panel has had the opportunity to review material dating back more than a decade, and is now seeking public input through a call for submissions, an online questionnaire and stakeholder consultations.

Municipalities, interested stakeholders and the public are invited to provide feedback. An online questionnaire will be available at www.gtawestreview.com, and questions or comments may also be submitted by email to gtawestreview@ontario.ca

“With new emerging technologies and the government’s commitment to help protect the environment and the Greenbelt, it is essential to have a forward-looking plan when it comes to dealing with congestion and transportation needs,” Transportation Minister Steven Del Duca observed.

Thompson pointed to recent comments from the Peel Federation of Agriculture. Representatives recently spoke at the public meeting regarding the Bolton Residential Expansion Study (BRES), held by Peel Region. Federation President Keith Garrett had stressed the need for an effective transportation network, adding a lot of the Federation’s members have been involved with the EA. If work there doesn’t proceed, he said there would be impacts.

“This is about getting on with life,” Federation Director and former Caledon Regional councillor David Lyons added.

“They’ve done their homework and research,” Thompson observed adding a lot of tax money has already gone into the EA and the work should be finished. “We all put a lot of money into this.”

Thompson also pointed out a lot of good information has come out of the EA study so far, which can be useful in the years to come.

“It’s a loss for us, the taxpayers, if they don’t finish it,” he said.

Jones observed the government has said the panel will be making recommendations by the end of the year.

She agreed it would be best if the work of the EA is completed.

“It doesn’t make sense to have the EA 80 per cent finished, and stop it,” she remarked.

But she’s not hopeful that will happen.

“If I were a betting person, I would say they’re going to stop it,” she commented.

“To be blunt, if they do that, they’re stopping it with no alternative.”

Community uses in old school could help Alton Library expand

museums. She also pointed out Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) in Brampton is some distance away for a lot of Caledon residents. The school could accommodate exhibits.

As well, she pointed out there have been expressions that the Alton branch of Caledon Public Library needs to expand. Last Thursday’s meeting was held in the community room at the library, but she said the library could expand into that room, with community space being found in the old school.

“I think a museum is an asset,” Shaughnessy said, although she added they would have to look into funding.

Another suggestion involved keeping the old school as an education facility, much the way the old Britannia School House was used. One woman observed elementary school students used to take annual field trips there to get some feeling for what schools used to be like.

One man commented the Town had budgeted money for a social centre in Alton, but it was never used. He also said Peel Region has promised sewers to Alton. The school board is waiting, but Regional council didn’t approve the project, and there was no reaction from local councillors.

He said the museum would be a good idea, adding there are ways to resolve the sewer issues. He also said the school board had agreed to sell the building to the Town for $1, once the sewers were in.

Shaughnessy also said the building is zoned institutional, and there would be a lot of requirements to meet to change that.

Heather Savage, manager of recreation for the Town, said the school board is anxious to see something done with the building too. If the Town is to take it on, there will have to be a solid business plan in order to get funding.

Shaughnessy said she would ask staff to start doing research, without making any commitment yet. And when the matter goes before council, she would want residents to be there to delegate.

“You’re my back-up team,” she declared. “The community has to be there, backing myself and Doug up.”

Fatal accident on Highway 9

A 30-year-old man of no fixed address was pronounced dead at the scene after a three-vehicle crash Tuesday on Highway 9.

Caledon OPP reports officers were called to the scene east of Heart Lake Road at about 4 p.m.

Their investigation indicated a Chevrolet Impala was travelling westbound when it apparently crossed the centre line and collided head-on with a flat-bed delivery truck. A Toyota Corolla was also involved.

The driver of the Impala, Derek Murray Fischer, was ejected from the car and was pronounced dead. The driver of the Toyota was transported by air ambulance to a trauma centre in Toronto. Police said the driver of the truck was just shaken up.

There were no passengers in any of the vehicles.

The road was closed until the early yesterday (Wednesday) morning while OPP’s Technical Collision Investigators assisted with the investigation.

The investigation is continuing.

CAR PRESENTED IN DRAW SUPPORTING BETHELL

Several people were out at Fines Ford Lincoln in Bolton last Wednesday for the presentation of the grand prize in the Bethell Hospice Foundation Caring for Our Community Lottery. Forks of the Credit area resident Peter Olar was accompanied by his wife Margaret as he accepted the keys to this 2016 Lincoln MKC SUV from Jeannette Vanden Heuvel, director of development for the foundation. Also on hand were Bob Fines, and Hospice volunteers Margalith Estierhuizen, Carol Walker and Maurice Smith. Olar said he bought the winning ticket at the draft banquet of the Caledon Oldies Hockey League, in which he's a goalie. Bill Doherty sold him the ticket. "I bought my ticket at the right time, I guess," he said. Vanden Heuvel said they sold more than $3,000 tickets. "We managed to meet our goal," she commented. "We're just thrilled."

Launch of second Greenbelt Photo Contest with McMichael

The Friends of the Greenbelt Foundation, the McMichael Canadian Art Collection and the Professional Photographers of Canada (PPOC) are teaming up again to launch a second photo contest to celebrate the proposed addition of 21 urban river valleys and seven coastal wetlands to Ontario's permanently protected Greenbelt. From the rivers that clean and protect the water, to the wetlands that are home to so many wild animals, to the lakes that invite people to relax and play, the water resources in Ontario's Greenbelt are vital to the future. This year, the Greenbelt Photo Contest invites photographers to share their favourite water moments, whether it's the scenic beauty of a waterfall in the Escarpment or a peaceful moment paddling on a still lake, or any of the many iterations and forms water takes in the Greenbelt. Amateur and professional photographers are invited to get snapping and submit their photos and view entries from other individuals electronically through an online web portal at www.greenbelt.ca/photo\_contest

Entries are already being accepted, with the deadline to submit entries Jan. 10, 2017. Winners will be announced in February. The winning photographs will be showcased at the esteemed McMichael Canadian Art Collection in Kleinburg before touring the Greenbelt as a travelling exhibit. Photo entries will be judged by a jury of professional photographers and creative employees from the three organizations sponsoring the contest.

Entries must be the property of the photographer on whose behalf the photo(s) are submitted and celebrate the watersheds and waterways that bring the Greenbelt to life. Photos can include recreational water activities, natural beauty or wildlife, and must adhere to contest rules and conditions.

"This photo contest has produced breathtaking results, and showcased the work of aspiring and accomplished photographers to new audiences," said Jean Chartrand, chair of the Ontario Region of the Professional Photographers of Canada. "Photography is an accessible way to showcase the beauty of the Greenbelt." "Being in the heart of the Greenbelt, the McMichael is committed to celebrating the connection between art and the natural world," said Rachel D'Oliveira, manager of art and special programs at McMichael. "This partnership with the Friends of the Greenbelt invites photographers to think about the importance of our water resources and share the beauty that can be found in the Greenbelt."

"Protecting our water resources is vital to the health and well being of the region," said Burkhard Mausburg, CEO of Friends of the Greenbelt Foundation. "This contest celebrates the steps the Province has taken to protect our water, and the photos will capture what is at stake when we talk about this vital resource."

SUPPORTING THE FIGHT AGAINST PTSD

No, these members of Caledon OPP were not lying down on the job recently. They had been nominated by their fellows at Nottawasaga OPP to do 22 pushups in support of efforts to raise awareness of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder among combat veterans, first responders, etc. Constable Stephanie Hammond said the number 22 is symbolic of the frequently repeated claim that 22 military veterans take their lives every day in the United States. “It’s a small gesture,” she said. The Caledon officers passed on the nomination to the Orillia detachment.

In 1986 a small group of local business people organized and incorporated the Caledon Chamber of Commerce. 30 years later this organization is still going strong as the dedicated voice of business in Caledon, representing business to all levels of government.

The Caledon Chamber of Commerce is a not for profit membership organization supported solely by membership and program proceeds.

Two strong programs owned and operated by the Chamber are the annual holiday event Stars in Stilettos and the Home and Lifestyle Show.

The Stars in Stilettos Gala was developed to celebrate the strong dedicated women who work in Caledon and who own businesses in Caledon. Each year this evening recognizes how the strong women employed in Caledon positively influence our community. Among a room full of her peers one woman will be recognized as the Business Woman of the Year. (nominations still open until November 3rd)

This year the Caledon Chamber of Commerce and the Stars in Stilettos committee members have decided to found and fundraise for the benefit of a new scholarship fund dedicated to assist Caledon students on their educational journey.

Why should the businesses become more involved in educational issues? It is because it is in the enlightened long-run self-interest of the business community to do so. If we want a brighter future, if we want higher rates of broad-based economic growth in this country – which will help support the prosperity of many businesses – we need to increase our labor force skills. The development of a scholarship will be a legacy to this holiday event which will have a lasting outcome.

The Caledon Home and Lifestyle Show is April 21 – 23 2017. The Caledon Chamber of Commerce has operated this event since their incorporation in 1986. As we celebrate 30 years of service to Caledon we are proud of the opportunities we have created to help businesses grow in our community. The Home Show continues to be an affordable event which offers measurable results. Before ‘shop local’ became a campaign your local Chamber stressed the need for businesses and residents to understand the strong interconnected outcomes of patronizing the businesses that support your community.

Want to participate? Join us at an event, sponsor a program, donate to the scholarship, be a vendor at the Gala or reserve a booth at the Home Show.

Trump and waning media clout

Only time will tell, but we'll be surprised to see a sharp dip in support for Donald Trump in the wake of his Democrat opponent, Hillary Clinton, winning editorial support from some right-wing dailies.

There likely was a time when editorial endorsements meant a lot for political candidates, and there's no doubt that some owners of media outlets still think they have lots of clout. However, recent experience suggests otherwise.

For example, it was just a year ago that Post Media chairman Paul Godfrey ordered all the chain's papers to support the re-election of the Stephen Harper-led Conservatives, and even The Globe and Mail published a strange editorial favouring the Tories, albeit while expressing hope they'd replace Harper as leader.

We all know now what happened in the election, and perhaps the most Godfrey can claim is that the editorials stemmed the Liberal tide and kept the Conservatives as the main opposition party with a solid 30 per cent voter support.

There's surely little doubt that North America's daily papers have a lot less clout than once was the case. Not only are there a lot fewer of them around these days, but those that remain have a lot fewer readers. And on top of that there's the role being played by social media and its tendency to avoid complex discussions.

Whatever the case, we'll be watching with some interest just what happens next month in some traditionally Republican states in which few, if any, of the dailies have endorsed Trump for president.

Since long before the advent of the Model T, the right-leaning Arizona Republic (once called the Republican) hadn't endorsed a Democrat for president. That all changed in the last weeks.

In its endorsement, the Republic called Clinton the "only choice" for voters.

It described Trump as "not conservative and . . . not qualified," adding, "That's why, for the first time in our history, The Arizona Republic will support a Democrat for president."

The editorial made a point-by-point case against Trump. He didn't have the temperament and regularly responded to criticism "with the petulance of verbal spit wads." His immigration ideas wouldn't work and are actually against the will of most people in Arizona, a state with a large Latino population. As well, he had shown no ability to control his words or actions, something that it found especially concerning when it comes to giving someone access to nuclear weapons.

Similarly, the conservative Cincinnati Enquirer declared, "It has to be Hillary Clinton," ending a nearly century-long tradition of endorsing Republicans. "Trump is a clear and present danger to our country," the paper wrote. "He has no history of governance that should engender any confidence from voters. Trump has no foreign policy experience, and the fact that he doesn't recognize it — instead insisting that, 'I know more about ISIS than the generals do' — is even more troubling."

Even in Texas, the Dallas Morning News called Clinton the "only one serious candidate on the presidential ballot" and the Houston Chronicle called Trump a "danger to the Republic" whose "erratic temperament, his dodgy business practices, his racism, his Putin-like strongman inclinations and faux-populist demagoguery, his contempt for the rule of law, his ignorance," disqualified him as a presidential candidate.

Will such comments have any effect? A 2011 study from the National Bureau of Economic research found that endorsements that break from a newspaper's typical leanings are powerful for voters, especially if the papers are traditionally conservative.

In the circumstances, a lot will depend on how many, if any, of the current Trump supporters, bother to read or listen.

Rotary Club of Palgrave's Weekly Rotary Minute

By Doug Nicholson

Rotary has its own priorities for most months of the year, as Rotarians probably have noticed while reading the Rotarian Magazine.

Observance of the first Rotary months began in July 1983 when special weeks were designated as special months.

October: Vocational Service Month.
November: The Rotary Foundation Month.
December: Family Month.
January: Rotary Awareness Month.
February: World understanding Month, and of course Rotary's Anniversary Feb 23.
March: Open for Club Activities.
April Magazine Month.
May: again open for Club Activities and Fellowship.
June: Rotary Fellowship Month.
July: Literacy Month.
August: Membership and Extension Month.
September: New Generations Month.

Rotary weeks include World Interact Week in November and World Rotaract Week in March.

A little Rotary trivia that you may not be aware of.

It happened today

It was one of the most famous battles of the War of 1812, and it turned out to be a triumph and a tragedy for the British and Canadian forces.

The Americans tried an invasion at Queenston Heights. Major General Isaac Brock knew they would make such an attempt, but didn't know exactly where it would take place. Once he knew, he raced to Queenston, rallied his troops and led the counter attack.

His prominence in the attack made him an easy target. The story is he was shot just above the heart and died almost instantly, but his troops eventually won the day.

The Battle of Queenston Heights and the death of General Brock took place this day, Oct. 13, 1812.

Clowning around

Clowns have been in the news a lot lately, and not in a terribly positive light.

Clowns are supposed to represent happiness and joviality. They have been around for centuries. There have been countless stories of Court Jesters who served monarchs. Their jobs were to offer amusement and a good laugh for their masters. I have read of Will Sommers, the fool who enjoyed an almost fraternal relationship with Henry VIII.

The stories we have been hearing of late involve people dressing up in clown costumes and lurking around schools in order to frighten children. There are others.

For a couple of years in the 1990s, there was a clown named Doink, who performed in the World Wrestling Federation. He was a bad guy.

I once (and only once) watched a movie called Killer Clowns, and the name of this picture tells you pretty much what the plot involved. The reason I only watched it only once is I generally have little time for horror movies, unless the acting is good or the plot is halfway intelligent. This film failed on both levels. The 1933 version of King Kong this most certainly was not.

There have been other stories of clowns being evil. I guess the can be considered the results of someone's creativity.

It is a fact that there are some people who are afraid of clowns. That condition even has a name, coulrophobia.

It shouldn't be too surprising. I have encountered it.

Many years ago, when I was covering my first occasion when the circus came to town, I was chatting with one of the clowns. I noticed he had been very tentative when it came to approaching children, and he explained that he had to be very careful when getting close to young kids, making sure not to frighten them.

I can understand that.

Clowns are supposed to be jolly people, but they way they're made up can make them look considerably different. Sometimes things that appear just a little different can be frightening for a child who simply doesn't know better. And just because there's nothing to be afraid off doesn't mean we should not appreciate the fear.

When I was very little, like I mean before I even went to school, I lived near what today is known as Bloor West Village in Toronto (if you're into trivia, that in time became the first BIA in Ontario). My mother used to do a lot of shopping along Bloor Street, dragging me along because, well that's what mothers did in those days. I remember there was one store along the route that had a mannequin in the window depicting a boy in a cowboy suit. I will go to my grave wondering why, but that mannequin scared the hell out of me.

When we walked by that store, I would either look down, or across the street. My mother was aware of my fears, and one day, in what I recall as being one of her parental boners, she picked me up as we were passing the store, and carried me to the front window, where the mannequin stood. I guess her plan was to try and show me there was nothing to be afraid of. But if the fear is irrational, why should rational behaviour be expected to work? All I remember of that incident is I freaked, screaming as loud as my little lungs would let me.

To my mother's credit, she never tried that procedure again.

And so it doesn't come as a big surprise to me that some people are afraid of clowns.

There has been an oil painting of a clown that has been part of my life since I was a kid. It was one of my father's most prized possessions.

He used to travel a lot to Europe on business in the 1960s, and spent much of his time in Paris. Being interested in art, he hung around Montmartre (in the shadow of the Sacré-Cœur) a lot, where artists congregate.

One evening, on his way to dinner, he spotted a painting of a clown. The face depicted a sad clown, and it was one of those portraits in which the eyes follow you, no matter from what angle you view it.

A picture of the clown appears here (no, not the bearded guy with the glasses — that's me).

My father approached the artist, and soon got into a haggling match. The artist was not about to back down, and my dad was not a man who caved easily.

They parted, and my father went off to eat. The problem was he couldn't eat because, as he explained with great gusto later in his life, some SOB was out there buying his painting (I used the acronym SOB because this is a community newspaper — be well assured my old man used the full monty). He paid for his half eaten meal, rushed back to Montmartre, found the painting was still there and bought it with no argument. In the years that followed, he often said it was a move he never regretted.

I think I was seven when that sad clown's face was first displayed in the living room of the house I occupied and it was a little disconcerting to walk into the room and know I was being watched. I wasn't frightened (this was a painting, not a mannequin), but I was mindful. And thus, when it was explained to me by a clown, I had no trouble understanding why some kids might be afraid.

My mother took charge of the clown when my father died 24 years ago this month, and 12 years later, when she passed away, it became part of the estate. My brother is somewhat more artistic than I, and I was fully expecting he would put in dibs for the clown. I was also ready to go along with it. Thus I was a little surprised when he insisted that I take it.

I'm finishing this column on my laptop, sitting at my kitchen table this Sunday morning. The clown is in the living room and looking at me as I type. I'm no longer apprehensive. It's just a clown.

Trudeau government imposes new tax on Canadians through carbon pricing

Hardworking Canadian taxpayers are, once again, going to feel the strain on their wallets with the Trudeau government's recent announcement of its intention to impose a "floor tax" on carbon pollution of $10 a tonne in 2018, rising to $50 a tonne by 2022.

The provinces and territories will be given the option of choosing between a cap-and-trade system or a carbon price-based system. If a province or territory fails to implement one of the systems by 2018, the Trudeau government will impose a price in that jurisdiction. Prime Minister Justin Trudeau claims that whatever approach is chosen, it will be revenue neutral for the federal government and that all revenues resulting from the system will remain in the respective province or territory. What he fails to see is that his plan will actually be a huge cost to Canadian taxpayers every year.

Prime Minister Trudeau came to power promising to usher in a new era of co-operative federalism. However, his recent announcement is not reflective of that promise to Canadians. He is using a heavy-handed approach to force the provinces and territories to impose a massive tax grab against their will. While there is bi-partisan support for the climate targets first proposed by Prime Minister Stephen Harper, a massive carbon tax grab on Canadians will not achieve our country's climate change goals.

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

The imposition of a "floor price" for carbon pollution is the wrong approach to Canada's climate change goals. This is one politician taking money from a family and giving it to another politician. It is a tax grab and it is not tax free. The Prime Minister's proposal will cost individual taxpayers thousands of dollars every year. It essentially becomes a massive new tax on consumers, which is the equivalent of 11.5 cents per litre on gasoline. The tax will increase the cost of everything, such as food, clothing, heating your home and so on. Canadian families are already

Government goes against position of the Auditor General

Last week, the Provincial government released an update to the legislature regarding the government's finances.

In their Public Accounts document, the government claimed the province's 2015-16 deficit is at $3.5 billion. However Ontario's Auditor General disagreed with the government's numbers and their accounting practices, stating the Province's 2015-16 deficit is actually $1.5 billion more than what the Liberal government claims.

Ontario's Auditor General is one of the nine independent officers of the legislature that provides oversight on the government's actions. One of the duties of the Auditor General is to review the government's financial accounts and transactions, and report back to the legislature on their findings to ensure public funds are not being misused. After every fiscal year, the government is required to table its financial accounts after the Auditor General has reviewed the finances and provided any commentary, within 180 days after the end of a fiscal year.

The Auditor General first raised concerns about the government's irregular accounting practices in June of this year and again in September. Unfortunately, the provincial government disagreed with the Auditor General's comments and circumvented the Auditor's authority by releasing the unaudited version of the government's finances. This is the first time in the province's history that a version of the Public Accounts documents has been released despite being unaudited. It's clear the government had no interest in listening to the Auditor's concerns. This is not the first time the Liberal government has disagreed with the Auditor General. In 2014, the government disagreed with the Auditor's concerns with the Province's Smart Meter system, claiming the Auditor doesn't understand the Province's electricity system, even though the Auditor worked for Manitoba Hydro for a decade.

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

In addition to circumventing the Auditor General, the government has stonewalled other independent officers of the legislature, including Ontario's Financial Accountability Officer (FAO). This summer, the FAO highlighted the government's unwillingness to provide information they are obligated to under the Financial Accountability Officer Act. In addition, the government has stripped away all independent oversight over the operations of Hydro One, including preventing the Auditor General from performing audits on Hydro One and its subsidiaries, as well as preventing the Ontario Ombudsman from investigating public complaints against its subsidiaries.

This government promised being open and transparent, but they are anything but that. This lack of openness and transparency constrains the duties of our officers of the legislature as well as both opposition parties, to hold the government accountable. The people of Ontario deserve better.

Habitat for Humanity in the community

I want to recognize the work taking place at Habitat for Humanity Canada and their local affiliates in the Greater Toronto Area (GTA) and Wellington, Dufferin, Guelph.

I am happy to see Habitat for Humanity GTA is proposing a new development in SouthFields that will see the construction of 10 townhouses and the planting of 12 trees across the development site.

Habitat for Humanity believes in helping families in need by building affordable housing with the help and support of local volunteers and community partners. Since 1985, Habitat for Humanity Canada has grown to become a robust organization that has helped the lives of more than 2,800 families across Canada. This is a great initiative for local individuals to partake in and help those in need of proper shelter.

Habitat for Humanity is accepting applications for home ownership for their new development in Caledon.

There is a three-step application process that requires an individual to review Habitat for Humanity's homeownership criteria, attend an information session where they will receive an application package to submit upon completion. For more information on Habitat for Humanity's application process, please visit www.habitatgta.ca/homeownership/homeownership-criteria/brampton-caledon.html

If you know someone who is in need of help and you believe is an ideal candidate for becoming a Habitat for Humanity homeowner, please encourage them to attend the upcoming information session Oct. 20 at Fortinos Community Room (35 Worthington Ave., Brampton, Ont. L7A 2Y7).

Another great way for individuals to help this important cause is to donate items from your home, such as furniture, lighting fixtures, appliances, tools and building materials among other items to your closest ReStore location. ReStores are building supply stores run by local Habitat for Humanity organizations that take-in and sell new and used household items and building materials. This initiative helps fund Habitat for Humanity projects through the revenue generated from ReStore. In addition, it promotes protecting the environment by accepting new, gently-used or customer returns that otherwise would end up in a landfill. There are close to 100 ReStore locations across Canada, including two in Dufferin-Caledon (in Orangeville and Bolton). If you are interested in learning more about ReStore, please visit www.habitat.ca/findarestore4235.php

It's initiatives like Habitat for Humanity that helps build a strong and vibrant community, and I encourage interested individuals to take part in this worthwhile cause.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

In addition to devoting over half of its entire Focus section for a loving article on just how terrific Sophie Gregoire Trudeau is — apparently aimed at those who have missed several previous promos about her — Saturday's Globe and Mail gave over the entire editorial page (minus a cartoon on the Blue Jays) to the equally wonderful notion from Prime Minister Justin Trudeau to impose a carbon tax on all Canadians, whether they want it or not.

Those neanderthals out there who do not think that a) — a carbon tax is not a tax; and b) — it won't do a bit of good to save the planet, are dismissed as "climate-change deniers," an offensive example of using a moral equivalency as if questioning the politicized "science" of climate is in the same category as those bigots who defiantly deny the Holocaust.

The Globe really should know better than to use such unsavory terminology to defame those who disagree with it, but one supposes they have become so enamoured of all things Trudeau that it likely didn't occur to them just how hurtful their words can be to a lot of upstanding and well-informed Canadians.

They even buy into the twisted logic of Trudeau and his accolades in politics, the media, academia and environmental circles, that a carbon tax is really not a tax at all. That's because, we're told, it is to be "revenue neutral." We've heard that song before.

But here's how the Globe explains why this particular tax is not a tax (they call it a "levy," as if there's a difference to those paying it, i.e. you).

"Yes, any extra tax, no matter how small, is deplorable if the levy is unnecessary, or the money wasted. But in the case of the carbon levy, every cent raised remains within the province. Each province can design its own system and use the money however it likes. Not one red cent has to go to Ottawa."

So what? Lots of taxes go to Queen's Park or City Hall, but they're still a tax. It's incredible to me that people use this old canard that because it's going to another level it's not you at this level who pays, it's those others who pay. Well they're the same people. Provincial taxpayers are also federal taxpayers and municipal taxpayers, for heaven's sake.

In any event, let us look at the argument about a "levy" being a good thing as long as it is necessary and not wasted.

The fact is, a carbon tax is a giant con, particularly at Trudeau's rate of $10 a tonne starting in 2018, rising to $50 in 2022, or from two cents per litre of gas to 11 cents a litre on top of the enormous federal and provincial taxes you already pay for gas.

It has been pointed out before, here and elsewhere, that Canada is such a minor player in the world of carbon emissions, that even if we completely shut our country down it wouldn't amount to a bleep in total carbon going into the atmosphere from human use.

The Liberals have adopted the Paris climate accord targets of reducing carbon emissions to about 30 per cent of what they were in 2005 (and what they remain at the moment) by 2030, a "target" they adopted from former prime minister Stephen Harper after having spent years ridiculing Harper because his "target" was too low to have any real impact. In any other field outside politics, that would be dismissed as hypocrisy. But there you have it.

In any event, even if you still pretend that Canada can have a real impact (while the big polluters in China, the U.S. and India continue to do nothing to reduce their mammoth carbon footprints) adding a few cents to gasoline, while raising lots of money for overspending provincial premiers to waste, is demonstrably ineffective in cutting back on gasoline usage.

How can we know this? Well, consider the fact that between 2000 and 2016, the price of gasoline in Canada virtually doubled but the demand for gasoline kept right on rising despite this. Yes, there are more cars and other vehicles now. But countless studies have shown people keep driving their cars even when prices go up.

Why? Because they need them to go to work, to school, shopping, delivering goods, heading out to the first tee at your local golf club and any number of reasons why people continue to drive.

That's not going to change. And a carbon tax is simply another in a long series of government money grabs; only this time it's cloaked in a phony moral story about saving the planet.

Please.

Councillor's job to listen

Regarding the exclamation by Councillor Gord McClure (Citizen, Oct. 6): "We've got two councillors blowing off wind and I'm sick of listening to it."

Unless McClure was voted in as dictator, it is his job to listen to diverse opinions of fellow councillors who act on behalf of their constituents. And if he is sick of it, he ought to do the right thing and relinquish his position.

Councillor has lost respect

Re: Town rejects motion to amend MZO (Caledon Citizen, Oct. 6)

To quote Gord McClure from the last Town council meeting: "We've got two councillors blowing off wind and I'm sick of listening to it."

It reminds me of when Howard Beale leaned out the window in the movie Network and shouted, "I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take this anymore!"

The two councillors to whom he was referring were Annette Groves and Barb Shaughnessy. They seem to have difficulty comprehending Town planning and the use of hydrogen fuel cells for clean transportation technology.

Now, I am one of Groves' constituents who does not take exception to McClure's comments. Whether it be the complete betrayal of fellow councillors and the Town planners in supporting Solmar's Option 6 in the Bolton Residential Expansion Study (BRES), or raising unfounded fears about the dangers of hydrogen fuel production, or her capitulation to support the pesticide industry in her first term, she has as a result lost all of my trust, respect and support. I have provided Councillor Groves, in the past and currently, with the most respected peer-reviewed information available on these issues but to no avail.

I also provided Councillor Shaughnessy with a hydrogen update, which she has apparently ignored.

Shaughnessy supported Groves' position and wondered when hydrogen fuel became a "normal use." Well, it came after all those hydrogen fuel cell studies that started in the 19th century that led to prototypes that were created in 1953 that led to the Apollo space missions that led to the moon landing in 1969. Japan was using hydrogen fuel cells for cars in 2005, and built the "hydrogen highway" which is a series of refueling stations for clean tech vehicles. California was the first state in North America to have hydrogen vehicles on the road. Major car companies like Ford, Dailmer, BMW, Renault, Toyota, Mercedes Benz and Chrysler, to name only a few, have been developing hydrogen fuel cell vehicles since the 1990s. The new normal.

Welcome to the 21st century.

Golden Hawks' winless streak reaches eight games

By Jake Courtepatte

It may be a long year for the Caledon Golden Hawks of the Provincial Junior Hockey League.

The team continues to grasp at victory, only to come up short at the end of 60 minutes.

The junior C club added two more losses es to a growing streak over the weekend, now having lost eight games in a row just before the one-quarter mark of the season.

On the road Friday night in Huntsville, the Hawks were up against an Otters team that has also struggled offensively early in the season. It was Caledon who got on the board first, when Hughie Sheppard buried a solo effort for his first junior hockey point.

A goaltending battle then ensued between Caledon's Jason Cumbo and Huntsville's Connor Christanson, before Cumbo's shutout was broken in the late stages of the second period. By the three minute mark of the final frame, Huntsville had added two more, for a 3-1 lead they took right to the final buzzer.

Cumbo made 26 stops on 29 shots, as Caledon outshot their opponent in each of the three periods.

Hosting Stayner in Sunday's weekly home game at Caledon East, the Hawks took swift advantage of the Siskins playing their backup goaltender rather than the undefeated Hayden Ford.

Veteran Kevin Pleasance opened the scoring at the midway mark of the first period, the only goal of the frame. The two teams exchanged power-play goals in the second, before Pleasance added his second of the game late in the period to take a 3-1 lead into the third.

However, Caledon fell apart defensively in the final 20 minutes, allowing four straight Stayner goals in a matter of 12 minutes. Pleasance countered with his hat trick goal in the final minute, before Stayner added an empty netter for a 6-4 win.

With two Schomberg Cougar wins over the weekend, the Hawks have been left behind to scrape the bottom of the Carruthers division basement. Their 1-8-0 record comes with an 0-4-0 record at home, leaving them four points behind the Cougars in last place in the eight-team division.

As expected, the Alliston Hornets continue to lead the charge, by virtue of their astounding 45 goals for compared to only 15 against in eight games. They are undefeated in those eight, a streak that runs 35 games into last year's GMOHL season — when the Hawks bested the Hornets Oct. 25.

Though nary a match against the reigning league champs for the next five weeks, Caledon will be forced to contend with a Siskins squad this Thursday who boast a 5-2-0 record and a similar stat line to Alliston. In only seven games this season, the Siskins have put up one more goal than the Hornets.

Interestingly enough, the Hawks and Siskins are the only two teams in the Carruthers division yet to win on home ice, despite Stayner's stellar record.

The Hawks are in Midland Friday to visit the Flyers (4-4-0), before returning home for their weekly match Sunday, when Midland visits Caledon East.

For stats, schedules and more information, visit www.jregoldenhawks.pointstreaksites.com

Caledon captain Nicholas McNutt plants himself in front of the Stayner net at the Caledon Community Complex Sunday. The Golden Hawks gave up four unanswered goals in a 6 - 4 loss to the Siskins.

360° Tire Service are Inglewood Ball Hockey champs

The 30th season of the Inglewood Ball Hockey League is now in the books, and 360° Tire Service are the champions.

They won all the marbles with a 6-3 doubling of George's Arena Sports.

The two teams spent most of the regular season scrapping it out for top spot in the standings, as did Mr. Handyman, who emerged on top when the campaign was finished. They were also on top in the post-season round-robin, but they were upset by George's the semifinals.

The Tire guys got their berth in the finals by edging Carney Plumbing 2-1.

Knights defend their North Dufferin Baseball title

A 4-1 win over the Orangeville Giants have crowned the New Lowell Knights as North Dufferin Baseball League champions for a second straight year. The champions hoisted the Strother Cup, needing all seven games in the series to bring down their opponents from Orangeville.

But before the Knights were able to claim the title, they had to defeat Orangeville, who had the series lead going into game six.

The Knights downed the Giants 8-2, scoring two runs early in the first inning, adding one in the second, two in the fourth and one each in the fifth, sixth and seventh.

Orangeville was able to tie the game after the first frame with two runs of their own, but were unable to capitalize, leaving eight runners stranded on base during the game.

Home runs were the highlight of the Knights' offense. Brandon Norrie homered twice, including a two-run shot. Steve Baldry hit one out of the park to score two and Todd Patton connected with a pitch in the seventh to the score the final run.

Sean Thompson doubled while Allan Brownridge, Sean Connor and Patton hit singles for the Knights.

Mitchell Pike doubled while Brett Chater and Drew Huerter each singled twice for the Giants. Ian MacIver and Daryl Bond recorded singles.

Brownridge pitched seven innings for the Knights, allowing two runs on seven hits. He walked two, hit two Orangeville batters and fanned six.

Nick Hodgson was on the Orangeville hill for five innings, giving up six runs on seven hits, walked one, hit one batter and struck out three.

Matt Drury came in for the sixth and seventh innings, allowing two runs on three hits and walked two Knights.

Action for the final game was a closer affair for the first two innings.

In the third, New Lowell manufactured a run executing a suicide squeeze from Chris Greer to bring in Jake Nicholson to score the first run. Greer was able to beat the throw to first base as well.

Orangeville tied the game in the fifth when Bond scored on a Chater double, but the Knights quickly answered in their half of the inning, scoring three on two home runs. With a runner on base Todd Gowan hit a two-run shot, with the next batter Patton hitting a solo shot to make the game 4-1.

The Knights had six hits, including the two home runs, a double from Thompson and Nicholson and singles from Greer and Norrie.

The Giants were limited to four hits with Bond connecting for two singles, Chater a double and Hodgson a single.

Baldry commanded the Knights' hill and pitched a complete game, allowing one run on four hits, walked two Giants and struck out three.

Chater pitched for Orangeville for five innings, giving up four runs on six hits, walked two and hit three Knights while striking out two.

Hodgson pitched the sixth inning unscathed.

In a post game presentation New Lowell's Gowan was named the most valuable player for the playoffs and received the Paul Carruthers Memorial Award from league president Chris Esson.

Pete Kinghan and Dale Lighthead accepted the Strother Cup from league secretary and series convenor Scott Anderson.

The Giants had moved into the lead of the series, winning two games against the defending champions New Lowell Knights the previous week 3-2 and 6-4.

A doubleheader was set up after rain the day before forced a second game in the series to be postponed. The two games were played at New Lowell's park with the Knights as home team in both.

The Knights scored first in game four with a run in the second inning. They would add their second in the fourth frame.

Orangeville plated two runs in the fourth and added the winning run in the fifth to take the game 3-2.

For Orangeville Chater and Huerter both singled twice with Mike Wallace, Drury and Hodgson contributing singles.

Thompson, Gowan, Norrie and Brownridge singled for the Knights with Dale Lighthead and Greer hitting two singles in the losing cause. Norrie also chipped in with a double.

Hodgson pitched a complete game, giving up two runs on nine hits, walking one Knight while hitting two.

Brownridge was on the mound for the Knights, allowing three runs on six hits, walking two with four strikeouts. Norrie relieved him in the seventh inning, giving up one hit while striking out one Giant.

In game five, the Giants opened the first inning with a run, which was quickly answered by New Lowell in their half scoring three.

In the third, Orangeville plated another run to bring the game within one. New Lowell's Connor hit a solo home run to maintain the two run lead in the bottom of the third.

The game was tied in the fourth inning after Chater hit a two-run home run, and the Giants added two more runs in the fifth to take the lead.

New Lowell was shut down for the last three innings losing 6-4.

Hits were recorded by Kevin Buck, Huerter, Derek Gordon, Bond, two from Pike and Wallace, and the home run from Chater.

Greer and Thompson both singled for the Knights with Thompson hitting a double. Patton and Norrie each hit two doubles and Connor homered.

Jesse Edmunds pitched one inning for the Giants, allowing three runs on three hits, walking three and striking out two. He was quickly replaced by Hodgson, who after throwing seven innings in the first game of the day, pitched another six innings giving up one run on five hits, two walks with one strikeout.

The Knights started Norrie on the rubber for four innings of play. He allowed four runs on six hits, walked five and struck out two.

Gowan pitched the remaining three frames, giving up two runs on three hits, walked one and hit one batter, while striking out five Giants.

The previous week saw the Knights take a 2-1 series lead in the series after a 15-1 victory over the Giants.

Only one game of the senior division championship series was played over that weekend after the New Lowell diamond was unplayable for the scheduled game due to rainy weather.

The contest was a one-sided affair, with the Knights scoring five runs in the first inning, including a three-run home run from Gowan. Another run was added in the second, two in the third and three in the fourth.

In the fifth frame, Patton brought three runs home on a shot that cleared the right-centre fence and the Knights added one more run in the sixth.

Orangeville scored their only run in the first inning.

The Knights pounded out 18 hits in the mercy ending six-inning game. In addition to the home runs from Gowan and Patton, Greer, Thompson and Connor all doubled in the game.

Singles went to Greer, Gowan, Connor, Trevor Martin, Brownridge and two each from Thompson, Norrie, Dan Holwell and Baldry.

Orangeville managed three hits, including a double by Gordon and singles from Huerter and Drury.

Baldry pitched all six innings for the Knights, allowing one run on three hits, walking two and hitting one batter. He recorded nine strikeouts.

The Giants used three pitchers during the contest, including starter Hodgson, who allowed eight runs on 11 hits, walked two and struck out two over his three innings. Edmunds pitched the fourth inning giving up three runs on three hits and striking out one Knight. Gordon finished the game allowing four runs on four hits, walking four and fanning one.
