Council looking at 2.7 per cent blended tax hike

By Bill Rea

The Town has started its deliberations for the 2017 budget, and as things now stand, taxpayers are looking at an overall tax increase of 2.7 per cent.

That could still change, as the scheduled date for the approval of the budget is still more than a month away.

Town staff Tuesday presented councillors with their budget proposals, which call for an increase of 4.68 per cent in the Town's share of the property tax bill.

As a lower-tier municipality, the Town is responsible for collecting taxes for Peel Region, as well as the local school boards. According to information supplied by the Town's Finance and Infrastructure Services Department, the Town kept only 42.5 of the money it collected in 2016 from residential taxpayers. The Region got 36.2 per cent and the school boards took the other 21.3 per cent.

Acting treasurer Heather Haire told councillors staff was proceeding on the assumption the Regional budget, which is due for passage next month, will include a tax increase of 2.02 per cent, and they're assuming education taxes will remain unchanged. Based on those assumptions, Haire said they have concluded the overall tax hike will be 2.7 per cent.

That means $124.63 will be added to the tax bill of the average home in Caledon assessed at $522,000.

And yesterday (Wednesday) from Mayor Allan Thompson said the news could have been a lot worse for taxpayers, based on what was previously suggested. "I think we've come a long way from what was first proposed," he commented, adding the initially proposed tax increase was almost double what staff presented Tuesday — "Just shy of 10 (per cent)."

Bill coming to elect Regional Chair?

By Bill Rea

The notion of electing regional chairs at large has been discussed at some length in the past, but it now seems the Province might be ready to step in and settle the issue.

The Citizen learned early yesterday (Wednesday) from Mayor Allan Thompson that there was a plan to introduce legislation at Queen's Park later that day that would call for the election of the chairs of all regions, and that would take effect for the start of the next term, due to commence late in 2018. There had been no confirmation of such a bill at press time.

"I have a very reliable source," Thompson said.

Town offering lots of chances to comment on budget

He said something like that would have been a considerable burden for people on fixed incomes, considering the high price of hydro these days. They had to consider what residents can afford.

“Nobody likes tax increases,” Thompson observed, but he added the municipalities aren’t getting help from the Province, while there might be some assistance coming from the federal government. “We have to deal with what the reality is.”

“There’s no fat coming with what’s being proposed,” he added. “I think staff has done a really good job of getting it whittled down.”

Haire pointed out there are a number of pressures on the budget, including inflation, which staff assumed would be 1.7 per cent for the purposes of preparing the budget. There is also increased staffing costs, with cost of living adjustments to salaries and negotiated wage settlements. There are also costs associated with growth, requiring more staff and equipment to maintain a level of service and operate new facilities related to recreation and fire.

There are also complications associated with capital infrastructure and the fact some of it is aging

As well, there are debt issues. The Town is planning to debenture some $4.1 million to pay for the enhanced roads program.

There are plans to increase some fees, which are expected to bring in about $70,000 more in revenue. Haire also said staff has found some service delivery efficiencies, which should result in about $912,000 in savings.

The proposed operating budget currently calls for about $85 million in spending, meaning additional funding of roughly $1.85 million is required.

As well, Haire announced the tax-funded capital program for the coming year is expected to cost around $14.8 million, representing a increase of about $1.3 million.

“The Town of Caledon’s proposed 2017 budget provides the foundation to continue to build and maintain a strong and prosperous Caledon,” Thompson commented. “We are looking forward to engaging with our residents to talk more about this budget at our Coffee with Council sessions throughout the community and at the budget open house at Town Hall.”

The Town will be hosting an open house

Nov. 23 at Town Hall in Caledon East, starting at 7 p.m. Town staff from each department will be available in an open house forum for one-on-one discussion. Small group or individual discussions are a great way to get involved and understand details of projects that will guide Town activities.

There are also Coffee with Council sessions in the works. This is an opportunity to have a conversation with the Mayor and councillors on municipal matters, including the budget.

Sessions are planned for Nov. 18 at Mayfield Recreation Centre from 5 to 7 p.m.; Nov. 19 at Lloyd Wilson Arena from 9 to 11 a.m., and Caledon Centre for Recreation and Wellness from 1 to 3 p.m.; and

TRUCKS DAMAGED IN FIRE

Caledon fire crews from five different stations were called out early last Wednesday to deal with a fire on Perdue Court in Tullamore. The call was received at 6:45 a.m. Caledon Fire and Emergency Services reports that on arrival, fire crews found four highway tractors (trucks) heavily involved with fire up against the building at a trucking firm. OPP, Peel EMS and Peel Spills were on scene due to a large amount of diesel fuel that got into the storm drains on the property. There was no damage to the building and no injuries.

Serious collision on Mayfield Road

Caledon OPP is investigating a serious collision Saturday morning that sent a man to a trauma centre in Toronto with serious injuries.

Caledon OPP reports they were called out shortly after 6:30 a.m. to a location on Mayfield Road, between Chinguacousy and Creditview Roads.

The preliminary investigation revealed that three vehicles were involved. Caledon Fire and Emergency Services and Peel Emergency Services were both on scene to assist.

The male driver of a grey Honda CRV was transported by air ambulance to a Toronto trauma centre. The driver of a black Dodge Caravan was transported to an area hospital with minor injuries.

Police investigate theft from vehicle

Caledon OPP are currently investigating the theft of a Ford pick-up truck from a car dealership in town.

Police report they were dispatched Nov. 12 to a dealership on Regional Road 50 in Bolton at about 1:30 p.m. Employees reported that a black 2010 Ford F-150 pick-up truck with a dealership plate of 355DPZ had just been stolen.

According to witnesses, the suspect attended the business to inquire about trucks for sale. After exiting the business, the suspect then stole an unattended pick-up from the parking lot and fled. A witness reported a black Ford F-150 being driven erratically from the dealership on Regional Road 50.

The suspect is described as white male, in his early 20s, with black Nike sweatpants, black Nike shoes, black hoodie with a white undershirt, and a black flat brimmed baseball cap with no specific emblem on the front, although there is a silver sticker on the top brim. He was wearing glasses with a one-inch chin beard that does not come over his upper lips, reddish ginger hair and blue eyes. He is approximately five feet 10 with a slim build.

Police believe the suspect may have been on foot in the Bolton area prior to the theft and are asking anyone who may have seen him or anyone with information about this theft to contact them at 905-584-2241 or the Provincial Communications Centre at 1-888-310-1122.

Fire prevention week open houses

The recent Fire Prevention Week saw lots of activity at several fire halls in Caledon. The staff at the Alton hall had a big crowd out for an open house and pancake breakfast. Clara Bennett, 2, of Alton was pretty pleased with this helmet she received. She was showing it off for her mother Victoria. There were fun things to try at the open house at the Palgrave Fire Hall. Firefighter Eric Gravenish was helping Thomas Spencer, 6, aim this hose at a target while his brothers George, 2, and Henry, 4, looked on.

Volunteers needed for HomeJames for another year

The Holidays are upon us, and so is the season for celebrating; sometimes to excess.

That's where HomeJames comes in.

HomeJames is a service which people can call if they think they may have had too much to drink and are not fit to drive. A team of volunteers is dispatched to collect the driver and passengers, and get them and their vehicle to their destination. Although this is a free service, voluntary contributions are always gratefully received.

The service depends on volunteers.

The roots of HomeJames-Caledon goes back nine years as a chapter of Quebec-based Operation Red Nose before being transformed into the Caledon chapter of the Community Designated Drivers Association, a registered, Ontario non-profit organization created by Stan Janes and like minded individuals in Chatham, Ontario.

Its founding sponsors included Bolton Rotary, Palgrave Rotary, Bolton Lions, Bolton Kinsmen, the Town of Caledon, the Ontario Provincial Police and every new car dealership in Caledon.

The program starts tomorrow (Friday) night, and will run every Friday and Saturday night until Dec. 23 (taking Christmas Eve off). It will also be operating Dec. 30 and 31. The aim is to ensure safe passage home to any driver and passengers who may feel their security at risk as the result of driver impairment, however caused.

Over the years, HomeJames has evolved into an organization which now requires more than 130 volunteers deployed as call takers, dispatchers, drivers and communicators, now backed by a new, sophisticated, computerized SmartPhone communication system utilizing contemporary emergency services dispatching techniques. It's expected that by 4 a.m. Jan. 1, HomeJames will have delivered as many as 1,500 drivers and their passengers safely to their homes during its 2016 season.

The challenge has always been to attract a sufficient number of volunteers and sponsors to meet the demands for HomeJames services. For a second year, with the help of Tim Hortons, HomeJames will stage vehicles in various locations within Caledon and its immediate neighbourhoods to reduce average service times to less than 40 minutes per call. Cars will be staged in Bolton, Caledon East, Palgrave, Caledon village and West Caledon, each occupied by two drivers and a navigator.

The first driver operates the client car to deliver its driver and the passengers safely home in the client's vehicle. The navigator will utilize the new HomeJames SmartPhone dispatch system to ensure efficient trip co-ordination while the second driver follows in a shuttle vehicle provided by each of Caledon's new car dealerships or Enterprise car rentals.

In its first eight years, more than 6,500 people have shared this community service. And, on nights during which HomeJames has operated, the OPP report no serious traffic collisions involving serious injury or death caused by impaired driving in the Caledon area.

Tilson ready to wait and see what Trump will do

By Bill Rea

Last week's election of Donald Trump as the next President of the United States has many people concerned, but Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson is willing to see how events play out.

The Republican Trump defeated his Democratic rival Hillary Clinton. Clinton was more than 650,000 votes ahead, according to figures from CNN, but Trump defeated her in the crucial Electoral College.

"It was certainly one of the most controversial presidential races that the planet has ever seen," Tilson remarked Monday.

He added he was reluctant to comment on what the new president might do, pointing out Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has said he's prepared to meet with Trump to discuss things like the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

"Mr. Trump said some very strong things in the campaign that could affect Canada," Tilson said, adding Clinton did too, pointing out a lot of things are said in the heat of a campaign. "I'm reluctant to diss him."

He added the U.S. has always been a good ally of Canada, and he hopes that will continue.

Tilson did say he was surprised at how decisive Trump's victory was last week. "He didn't just win," Tilson observed. "He walloped her!"

He also pointed out the polls and media got it wrong.

"It shows the division in the United States," he remarked.

Tilson also said the results show a lot of dislike for Clinton. According to media accounts he's seen, it looks like a lot of Democrats didn't vote.

"Whether that was anti-Clinton or anti-both-of-them, I just don't know."

PUBLIC INFORMATION CENTRE #1

Class Environmental Assessments for Dominion Street

THE STUDY:

The Corporation of the Town of Caledon has initiated a Municipal Class Environmental Assessment (EA) and preliminary design, including an assessment of alternatives and long-term solutions for improving access to Dominion Street.

Within the Study Area, Dominion Street consists of a rural two-lane roadway and a single lane bridge providing sole access to residential dwellings located on Dominion Street. Features of the Study Area include the Dominion Street bridge and a section of the Credit River. The Study Area also encompasses a segment of the Forks of the Credit Provincial Park.

The study is being undertaken to investigate a number of potential alternative solutions focussed on the improvement of access to Dominion Street based on the current and future utilization of the Dominion Street bridge.

PROCESS:

The study will be conducted in accordance with the planning and design process for "Schedule C" projects, as outlined in the Municipal Engineers Association "Municipal Class Environmental Assessment," (October 2000, as amended in 2015) and the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry (MNRF) Class EA for Provincial Parks and Conservation Reserves (September 2004, as amended in 2015), as approved under the Ontario Environmental Assessment Act. The Class EA process includes public/external agency consultation, an evaluation of alternative solutions and alternative design concepts, an assessment of potential impacts associated with proposed improvements and development of measures to mitigate identified impacts. Upon completion of the study, an Environmental Study Report (ESR) will be prepared and made available for public review and comment.

PUBLIC CONSULTATION:

Public consultation is a vital component of the Class EA process. As such, the first of two Public Information Centres (PIC) is being held to receive your input, comments and/or concerns on the study. The PIC will have an open house format where information about the study, existing conditions and the preliminary alternative solutions will be displayed. Representatives from the Town of Caledon and the consulting team will be available to answer questions and discuss the details of the study.

There are some local connections to the Group of Seven.

F. H. Varley was a frequent visitor to Belfountain. He stayed with friend and fellow artist Jessie Crosbie in one of the cottages that used to populate Belfountain Conservation Park, formerly known as Mack Park. Largely recognized as his muse, Crosbie's portrait adorns the cover of Katerina Atanassova's book, F.H. Varley-Portraits into the Light.

When Signe and Robert McMichael moved from Kleinburg to their Belfountain home overlooking the Forks of the Credit valley in 1981, they had no idea that their backyard held the vantage point from where A.J. Casson painted Credit Forks more than 40 years earlier before the home was built?

Orangeville bell ringers are bound for Minneapolis

By Mike Pickford

A pair of local bell ringers will be flying down to Minneapolis, Minnesota this week-end to participate in a unique world record attempt at the Mall of America.

Shirley Jemmett and Barbara Peaker have long held a passion for bell ringing. The duo makes up a significant part of the Bells of Westminster — an ensemble based at Orangeville’s Westminster United Church that plays at numerous events and conventions across the community on an annual basis.

Earlier this year, the Bells of Westminster were invited to attend The Big Ring in Minneapolis. Hosted by the Handbell Musicians of America, in collaboration with the Salvation Army and Mall of America, the association was hoping to attract 700 handbell players from across the continent to try to break the world record for most handbell performers playing in one location.

“As soon as we heard, we knew instantly that we had to go,” Jemmett said. “It’s an incredible opportunity for this . . . I’ve been the Director at the Bells of Westminster for 21 years and nothing like this has ever happened before, so we were excited to be able to accept the invitation and register for the event.”

“The biggest event I’ve ever been a part of before was with the Ontario Guild of Handbell Ringers,” Peaker added. “They hold a biennial festival every couple of years, but even with that there’s maybe 350 ringers at most at the event. To be playing as part of a 700-person choir is going to be quite the experience.”

Jemmett and Peaker will travel to Minneapolis tomorrow (Friday) with The Big Ring taking place the next day. The duo said they would have loved to see more of the choir’s 10-person team join them at the world record attempt, but a combination of receiving the invitation late, travel expenses and uncooperative work schedules meant they were the only two able to make the trip.

The 700-strong choir will perform two pieces at the performance — Carol of the Bells and Silver Bells.

“These pieces were specially commissioned for The Big Ring, so it’s going to be a really good opportunity for us to perform down there, I’m really looking forward to it,” Peaker told the Citizen.

Both Jemmett and Peaker are seasoned handbell players with years of experience both playing and directing programs within the local community. As well as acting as assistant director at the Bells of Westminster, Peaker is the Director of the bell choir in Alliston and also helps to lead a children’s choir in Orangeville. They’re hoping to see more people get involved with the local bell choir.

“The bell is a unique instrument. It’s not something that you hear every day,” Peaker said. “It’s not like a band or a singing choir — it really takes a whole team of people to make performing possible. If you’re missing one singer in a singing choir, that’s fine, but if you’re missing a ringer in a bell choir you’re specifically taking away notes that can no longer be used. It’s almost the ultimate team sport.”

“And it’s not particularly difficult to learn,” she added. “We’re able to start people right away, even if they don’t have any prior music experience. As long as you know your ABCs and can count to four, that’s all we need.”

“We’re definitely hoping to drum up some interest in the local area,” Jemmett commented. “We have a great group of players right now, but it would be nice to have a few more. This is something that husbands and wives, children and grandkids can all do together. The instruments themselves are very user-friendly and to top it all off, it’s great fun.”

The Bells of Westminster meet at Westminster United Church every Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Headwaters Tourism and Spirit Tree earn provincial recognition as award finalists

The Ontario Tourism Marketing Partnership Corporation (OTMPC), along with the Tourism Industry Association of Ontario (TIAO) and the Culinary Tourism Alliance (CTA), announced last month the finalists for the 2016 Ontario Tourism Awards of Excellence.

The small Ontario destination marketing organization, representing Caledon, as well as Dufferin County and the Towns of Erin, Mono and Shelburne, has been named a finalist in four categories: Tourism Marketing Campaign Under $25,000 for the Headwaters: Where Ontario Gets Real brand launch; Tourism Print Collateral Award for the Headwaters 2015 Four-Season Visitors’ Guide; Tourism Innovator of the Year for the Headwaters Parade of Horses; and Travel Media Photography Award — John Church (cover photography for Headwaters 2015 Glow, Snow & Go Guide).

Headwaters Tourism has also announced that one of the region’s premier tourism businesses, Spirit Tree Estate Cidery, has been named a finalist in the Ontario Culinary Tourism Event of the Year category for their Family Day Wasailing Festival.

The awards are presented annually to celebrate success and are an opportunity to recognize those who have made significant contributions to Ontario’s tourism industry.

“Headwaters Tourism continues to raise the bar for what small destination marketing organizations can do to promote the exceptional tourism experiences available in rural areas of this province,” Headwaters Tourism’s Board Chair Stacey Coupland said. “With a shared vision for what makes ‘Headwaters, Where Ontario Gets Real’, we are proud to work collaboratively and in alignment with our municipalities, partners and tourism stakeholders to leverage scarce resources for collective impact.”

“Our Headwaters story is special and we are proud to share our story with visitors who are excited to meet our people and discover the best of rural Ontario,” Coupland added. “Being recognized as Ontario Tourism Awards of Excellence finalists is affirmation that what we’re doing in Headwaters is working. Congratulations to everyone involved in bringing us to this stage — it was truly a collaborative effort, and we’re honoured to be recognized at the provincial level.”

This recognition comes on the heels of Headwaters Tourism also recently being named a finalist for two major Canadian Tourism Awards by the Tourism Industry Association of Canada: Marketing Campaign of the Year and Tourism In-

CVC marks years of youth community service

Ten years of community service is a something local youth can be proud of. Credit Valley Conservation (CVC) and Credit Valley Conservation Foundation (CVCF) marked the 10th anniversary of its Conservation Youth Corps program (CYC) recently in Mississauga. The event was held to celebrate 10 years of accomplishments and community support through the youth environmental program.

In attendance were members from the CVC and CVCF's Board of Directors, sponsors of the program, community partners and some of this year's CYC student volunteers.

"In 2006, at the urging of our former CAO, Rae Horst, we started the conversation with our partners about the need for youth programming," CVC Deputy CAO and Director of Watershed Transformation Mike Puddister commented. "We were committed to connecting youth with the environment. Our goal was to offer an environmental learning experience for 200 students during the summer and plant 10,000 trees."

The CYC program began in the summer of 2007 with the support of the Region of Peel. The program aligned with municipal and provincial government priorities for healthy communities.

It started with partners throughout the Credit River watershed who combined to provide community service, engage high school students looking for volunteer hours and address climate change.

Youth volunteers spend one week in the summer working in a crew of seven. They participate in various conservation activities such as tree plantings, trail maintenance, invasive species removal, stream restoration and electro-fishing.

The program offers students an opportunity to earn volunteer hours, develop new and different life skills and network with other students.

The success of CYC led to two more CVC programs that encourage youth participation. Branch Out is a program that enhances science and geography curriculum and offers students the chance to participate in hands-on local environmental restoration. The Front-line program offers an opportunity for youth to develop leadership skills as environmental champions.

Nearly 2,200 students have joined the CYC week-long summer program, with another 10,000 volunteers participating in Branch Out. These students have contributed 84,000 hours of work through 1,800 workdays over the past decade. This is equal to five full-time staff each year the program has operated.

Through partnerships with land-owners and supporters, these students planted more than 54,000 trees over the 10 years to help fight climate change. Students have also removed more than 1,000 bags of invasive species, like garlic mustard, honeysuckle and buck-thorn. All this work has taken place on 149 different properties.

"Today we celebrate all the accomplishments and hard work achieved over the past 10 years through the dedication of our many partners, students and donors," Puddister commented. "Of course this program would not be possible without the continued support and hard work from the CVC Foundation. We thank the Foundation Board and staff for all their support over the lifetime of this program."

Each year CVCF commits to raise $125,000 in support of CYC. Since 2006, they have contributed approximately $1.1 million. CVCF has hosted 11 Conservation Galas and eight Canoe the Credit events in support of the CYC program.

"We are so proud of what has been accomplished over the past 10 years of the program," CVCF Executive Director Terri LeRoux declared. "We have had the privilege of seeing students participate in meaningful work that is making a difference in our community. The support of our donors and sponsors has been the key to the success of the program. Without their continued support the program would not exist."

The CYC program has been successful over the years due to the support of donors and sponsors which include the Region of Peel, Enersource, Shell Fuelling Change, TD FEF, Enbridge, CRH, Canon-Evergreen Take Root, George Weston Limited, RBC Foundation, Brampton and Caledon Community Foundation, ECHO Foundation, PPG Canada Inc., Pratt and Whitney Canada, Suncor Energy and Telus Corporation.

Editorial

More elected officials not an evil

It looks like Toronto City council is going to be expanded by a couple of members for the 2018 municipal elections. There are many who are saying this is a bad move, but we have no problems with it. The nice thing is it flies in the face of that foolish and often pushed argument that reducing the number of elected officials is going to save taxpayers like us a lot of money. Well, that would probably be true in the short term, but the remaining councillors will soon expect better salaries to reflect their increased workloads, not to mention support staff, additions to their expense accounts, etc. At best, the savings to the taxpayers are minimal. And what about the impact on local democracy, both in terms of representation and participation? In many major cities, like Toronto, the elected positions are open to all, as long as they can afford to seek them. In most cases, these people are obliged to raise large sums of money in order to finance races that have a realistic chance of success. It is also often the case that they have to give up their regular jobs, or at least put their careers on hold, during the time they're involved in this level of public service. How many people can afford to do that? That question is especially valid when one considers there is no such thing as tenure when one is an elected official. True, there are some people who seem to make careers of holding elected office, but the reality is an elected official is just one election night away from being unemployed. Not a very attractive prospect on which to gamble a career in another field. Of course, Toronto is a one-tier municipality. It used to have two levels of government, until then Premier Mike Harris decided to abolish the Metro level and amalgamate the six lower-tier municipalities into one big city. Prior to that, many councillors in these smaller places were considered part-time, meaning they still kept their regular jobs. One of the benefits of that is it made it much easier for people to get involved in the political system without risking undue financial hardships. Thus the talent pool was deeper. We can't think of a thing wrong with that. That's the situation we currently have in Caledon. It means some of the councillors have the ability to discharge their municipal duties while holding down other occupations, be it running a farm or fighting fires. They still bring their skill sets and day-to-day experiences to the table. There are some who would do away with such arrangements, arguing they are too expensive. They may cost some more, but they are more representative, not to mention democratic. As we've said before, democracy was meant to be many things, and dirt cheap is not one of them.

Our Readers Write
People were out at Cenotaph Friday

Once again there was a quiet, non-denominational service of "quiet reflection, thanksgiving and remembrance" attended by about 60 people at the heritage designated, Bolton Cenotaph at 11 a.m. Nov. 11. Three years ago, there were about 40 disappointed people when there was no attending minister or small formal service. After one telephone call, Rev. Riscylla Walsh Shaw was in attendance last year and this year Rev. Ruth Anne Ward (both of Christ Church Anglican) led a short, but meaningful, service for those in attendance. I am sure we are all very grateful for their support on this important day. It should be noted that Rev. Shaw is now the Bishop Elect of the very large Diocese of Trent-Durham. We all wish her well in that new post.

2. We are connected to people — around the world — who take action and make wonderful things happen.
3. Rotary Foundation turns 100-years-strong next year with more than $3 billion spent on programs and projects around the world in that time.
4. Membership is evolving and becoming more flexible as lives change and time becomes a precious commodity.
5. Science says Rotarians (aka those who volunteer) are healthier and happier (Gallup-Healthways Well-Being Index).
6. Our work to support peace and end conflict is making the world a better place — one person at a time.
7. Locally, in Caledon, we support our community organizations including (but not limited to) Caledon Parent-Child Centre, Caledon Meals on Wheels, Scouts and Girl Guides, Family Transition Place, Bethell Hospice, the Vera Davis Centre, White Birch Adult Day Program, Caledon Community Kitchen . . . And we could go on and on . . . Please visit www.rotaryclubofpalgrave.com for more information on our Club and all the wonderful ways you could get involved!

It happened today

There were many memorable quotes that came out of the Unites States during the Watergate period, and there's still some debate as to how true they were. President Richard Nixon is credited with many of these quotes, including his assertion "I'm not a crook!" That one was delivered this day, Nov. 17, 1973.

Time to give Trump a chance

There is a good lesson to be taken from last Tuesday's presidential election in the United States. Never, ever take my political predictions seriously, no matter how brilliant and insightful they might seem. I own up to the fact that I predicted Donald Trump had no chance of winning the election, and I have been saying that for about a year now. In the early days, I said his candidacy was a curiosity. I called him a clown in this spot in the paper, and maintained his running for president was little more than a source of amusement and entertainment. If by some miracle he got the Republican nomination, I asserted he didn't have a chance of moving into the White House. And yet, there he is, about to move in to the Executive Mansion in Washington in January (Jan. 20 is the day he's to be sworn in). This is not the first time I have put my predictions on the record. During my first stint with the Citizen, I went out on a limb with predictions on the 1991 municipal elections, and the limb broke, something the late Richard Whitehead never let me live down. In fact he went a little overboard. He would say I called every race wrong, and that's not true. I accurately predicted the election of then councillors Carol Seglins, David Hughes and Dick Pallett. As for the other shots I called, I try not to think about them. I did pick Hillary Clinton to win last week's election. I was following the polls the last couple of days of the campaign, state-by-state. Although it was clear that Trump had momentum, I didn't think he could pull it off. I was actually expecting him to take Florida, and probably North Carolina, but I figured Pennsylvania would stay in the Democrat column. I wasn't worried about Michigan or Wisconsin. "Hillary's going to do it," I responded to anyone who asked me last Tuesday, and believed it as I sat down at home to watch CNN. I was feeling confident in my predictions well into the evening. States were going one way or another, but there was nothing that was a surprise. Florida going to Trump was the first really crucial call, but that was one I was expecting. I was a little taken aback at the major production CNN made of Clinton winning in California. Good heavens! That was expected. I don't think even Trump thought he was going to take that state. By midnight, Trump was ahead in most of the aforementioned crucial states, and I had a heavy day at work coming up. I went to bed, feeling a little depressed. My gut was telling me where all this was going.

I woke up at about 5:30 and briefly went on my computer. It took about 20 seconds to get the info I required. I take a certain amount of comfort in the knowledge that I wasn't the only one who called it wrong. Which leads to an obvious question; namely "Why?" It is clear there is a lot of anger south of the border. There was a really interesting segment on 60 Minutes last Sunday night, with 23 angry and impatient people making heated points about who they were going to vote against. Expanding that country-wide, it seems a lot of Americans voted against candidates, as opposed to voting for anyone. And according to figures I've heard, about 46 per cent of the American electorate didn't vote at all. Some day, some one might be able to explain that figure to me.

There is anger, but I'm puzzled at just what it is people are mad at. True, things are not perfect. They never are. But the economy has done reasonably well over the last couple of years. There have been no major international debacles that have caused embarrassment. So I'm having trouble understanding the cause of all this anger that Trump successfully tapped in to. Accepting that, it also became clear in the days after the election that the anger is still there. There were people out in various American cities last Wednesday night protesting the election results. There were chants of the "Not my president" and "Reject this president-elect" variety. I haven't heard slogans like that since the megacity protests of the 1990s in Toronto. I read about these protests on the internet late in the evening, and my initial reaction was one of puzzlement, as well as a little anger on my own part. The man, after all, has only won an election, so what exactly are people angry about.

It reminded me of 1995, when Mike Harris became premier. I was in the press gallery at the legislature the day his first cabinet was sworn in, and my strongest memory of that experience was the roars from all the protesters on the front lawn at Queen's Park. The sound easily penetrated the walls, and I kept reminding myself that Harris had simply won an election, and was preparing to do nothing more than try to implement the platform on which he had successfully run. And I'm hard pressed to think of any elected leader who did a better job than Harris of keeping the promises he made; even the bad ones.

True, there is some question as to whether Trump is qualified for the job. That has been on my mind a lot too over the last couple of months. The solution is simple. If you don't think a candidate is qualified for the job he or she is seeking, don't vote for that person. And if that candidate gets elected, live with it. That's nothing new in a democracy. Have none of you ever seen the election of someone you voted against? I didn't vote to have Kathleen Wynne elected premier, but she got the job and I accept that. There'll be another election soon enough. It's going to be part of Trump's job in the next four years to try and bridge the gap between these polarized factions in his country. Indeed, I think that will be a main test of his competency. But those on both sides are going to have to want to come together. That will certainly take some time. I thought he made a decent start with his acceptance speech. He was dignified and respectful. In fact, I thought he started looking . . . well . . . presidential. I pondered why he couldn't have shown that kind of class during the campaign. I wonder if he can maintain it. I thought Clinton's concession address was pretty good too, although it should have been delivered about nine hours earlier. There were many people who worked hard for her. They deserved to hear something that night. I know she was disappointed, but such situations are part of her occupation. If she couldn't react appropriately to such a set back, how well would she have done as president when it came to dealing with a crisis? It's time to give Trump a chance to show what he can do. His fitness for the office is no longer an issue. That matter was settled last Tuesday

Morneau's Fiscal Update confirms what Canadian have already known

Finance Minister Bill Morneau presented the 2016 Fall Economic Statement Nov. 1.

This statement outlines the current Liberal government's economic and fiscal projections for the next five years.

As expected, the Minister's report re-confirmed what Canadians have known for months — the current government's growth plan isn't delivering results. It also wasn't a surprise for Canadians that the current Liberal government's response to this is to spend more money, create more federal agencies, and impose more tax hikes on Canadian workers, taxpaying families and Canada's job creators.

In his fiscal update, Minister Morneau and the current Liberal government downgraded their forecasts for economic growth. Finance officials confirm that GDP growth will be lower compared to the projections in Budget 2016 (from 1.4 per cent to 1.2 per cent in 2016 and from 2.2 per cent to 2.0 per cent in 2017). These figures follow the report from the Parliamentary Budget Officer that showed job creation over the past year was half what it was over the previous five years and that there has been no net new full-time jobs.

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

The Fall Economic Statement also shows the current Liberal government is on track to run higher deficits by borrowing $31.8 billion more than planned over the next five years. Weaker economic growth can be attributed to $24.8 billion of the new deficits, but the remaining $7 billion arises from unbudgeted spending and other policy decisions, including the enhanced Canada Pension Plan (CPP). The current government still included the enhanced CPP in its spending even though internal documents from Finance Canada show that officials advised Minister Morneau that higher CPP premiums will reduce job growth until 2035. The CPP tax hike, as well as the carbon tax this government will be imposing will cost Canadian families thousands of dollars every year.

The fiscal update outlines the second phase of the current government's infrastructure plan that will now cost $81 billion over 11 years, up from $48 billion outlined in Budget 2016 with most of the money only available in later years. This spending includes $15 billion to capitalize the new Canada Infrastructure Bank, which takes money away from Canadian communities. It also remains unclear what problem the Bank is trying to solve. If it's to encourage private financing, Public-Private Partnerships (PPP) Canada already exists and could be enhanced as needed.

Minister Morneau's fiscal update also includes spending of $218 million over five years to establish the Invest in Canada Hub, which aims to attract global investment and jobs. It will employ a new, dedicated sales force and will work with trade commissioners and municipal and provincial governments to make the case for global companies to come to Canada. This measure may assist the process of setting up shop in Canada; however, it has little impact on the underlying case for doing business in Canada.

The recent Fall Economic Statement is a clear sign to Canadians that the Liberal economic plan has failed and Canadians are paying for it. Economic growth has been downgraded, fewer full-time jobs are available, and deficits are mounting. The only solution the current Liberal government offers in the recent fiscal update to address these problems is to borrow and spend more. They fail to recognize that spending more taxpayer dollars on their failed plan means that Canadians will be burdened with even more debt and higher taxes.

Ontario budget watchdog disagrees with government's fiscal outlook

The Ontario government presented the Fall Economic Statement Nov. 14 which provides an update regarding Ontario's finances since the 2016 Budget.

In their update, the government continues to claim they will be eliminating the Province's deficit by 2017-18 and remain balanced in 2018-19.

However, Ontario's Financial Accountability Officer (FAO) says otherwise. The FAO released an update about Ontario's economic and fiscal outlook Nov. 3, and warned the government will not be able to eliminate the Province's deficit by their projected date. Rather the Province is headed for many years of deficits and an uncontrollable increases to the debt.

For years, my Progressive Conservative caucus colleagues and I have said that the government doesn't have a revenue problem, but a spending problem. This is confirmed by in the FAO's report. It noted that the government received higher revenues last fiscal year, but the government is adding an additional $3.75 billion in spending due to new commitments. Coupled with a weaker economic outlook for the province, the FAO believes that unless the government comes up with new ways to raise revenue or cut spending, they will be unable to eliminate the Province's deficit.

FROM QUEEN'S PARK
Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

Instead of balancing the budget, the FAO believes there will be a $2.6 billion deficit in 2017-18. In addition, the FAO expects the deficit to grow to $3.7 billion by 2020-21. As a result, Ontario's net debt will increase to a record total of $370 billion by 2020-21. As the FAO noted, this is more than he had forecasted back in spring. Even after using $800 million from the one-time sale of government assets and $600 million from contingency funds in an attempt to balance the budget by 2017-18, I am concerned the government will raise taxes even further, sell-off more government assets or continue cutting frontline services to achieve their goal.

With the rising cost of hydro, low economic growth and a decline in full-time employment, and an ever growing debt, Ontarians continue to pay the price for this government's 13 years of fiscal manipulation. It's clear this government doesn't have a plan to get Ontario back on track and make life easier and affordable for Ontarians.

Good design matters

By Ryan Boyington
Graphic and Web Designer
Strategic Initiatives Department
Town of Caledon

Every business — whether small or large — has a public image.

From your business card to your website, design matters.

Graphic design is the presentation of ideas and information in a clear, visually-engaging manner. People gravitate to well-designed presentations and communications. Poor graphic design can have disastrous consequences for your message, product or brand. Good design, however, adds credibility, inspires trustworthiness and makes communicating your message much more powerful.

Some insider tips

Good design is more than just pretty pictures. It's strategy!

Good graphic design can help simplify and humanize complex communications. Design strategy communicates an organization's objectives in a meaningful way that moves design beyond just aesthetics. Good graphic design is simple, compelling and inspires action. Tip: Sometimes less really is more. Strive for simple language and clean layouts.

Colour matters

Colour is an important element of graphic design. Colour can be applied to any element, changing it dramatically. It can be used to make an image stand out, to show linked text on a website, and to evoke emotion. Experienced graphic designers know how to combine expertise with colour theory. Tip: Colour can work against you sometimes. For example, red letters on a black background are difficult to read. Try to choose colours that complement each other.

The psychology of typography

Font selection should never be an arbitrary process. There is an inherent psychology associated with fonts. Every font communicates to us on both a conscious and subconscious level. Designers don't think of typography as simply headlines and body copy. They use it as strategic design element. Tip: Don't overload your design with too many different typefaces.

Good web design equals design + usability + accessibility

Responsive web design is critical because mobile traffic now accounts for more than half of total internet traffic. Did you know that if your website is not considered mobile friendly it could appear lower in Google results when searched for from a mobile device? The web is a rapidly changing landscape and designers in this space must keep pace with these changes. Tip: Go surfing. Find sites that look great on your phone and on your desktop. Let your favourites become the foundation for your site.

Layout - a skilled balancing act

The primary objective of any page you design, whether it's for a printed brochure or the latest web app, is to communicate information clearly and effectively to the audience. Skilled designers will know how to apply layout grids, focal points, rule of thirds, white space, hierarchy, scale, contrast and harmony for design success. Tip: White space is your friend. Don't feel compelled to fill every inch of space with words or pictures. There is power in letting your content breathe in whitespace on the page.

The value of visual communications

More people remember what they "see and read" and "see and hear" far more than what they just read or hear. Effective graphic design can be applied through all visual avenues to enhance and improve your marketing and communications.

Engage. Inform. Persuade with good graphic design

Jones' legislation to end genetic discrimination passes key vote

Bill 30 — The Human Rights Code Amendment Act (Genetic Characteristics), co-sponsored by Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones, passed second reading in the legislature recently, bringing it one step closer to becoming law.

"I am happy to see Bill 30 receive the necessary support so we can protect a person's rights, including their genetic characteristics," Jones said.

"Currently, individuals who undergo genetic testing can be compelled by insurance companies and employers to disclose their results and may be denied employment or insurance because of their genetic characteristics," she added. "Some individuals are getting tests without knowing the risks. On the other hand, individuals who know the risks and fear being discriminated choose not to participate in tests for clinic research."

Jones stressed the importance of protecting the rights of people, and that includes their genetic characteristics.

The bill was introduced by Eglington-Lawrence MPP Mike Colle.

"If passed, Bill 30 will incorporate genetic characteristics into the Human Rights Code as a prohibited ground of discrimination," Jones said. "It's time for the law to catch up with science and bring an end to genetic discrimination in Ontario."

A defeat for the elite

NATIONAL AFFAIRS
Claire Hoy

They still don't get it.

So secure in their superior smugness, pretty much the entire U.S. political-academic-media-entertainment elite had already popped open the champagne and were simply waiting to see how much their heroine, Hillary Clinton, would win the election by.

But a funny thing happened on the way to the White House. Almost 60 million voters, regularly maligned by the collective Establishment as beneath contempt and unworthy citizens — "deplorables," to cite Clinton herself — decided that between two seriously flawed candidates, they'd rather take a chance with Donald Trump.

And so it is that the most improbable presidential candidate in U.S. history actually won, and the losers continue to smear those who had the unmitigated gall to vote for him.

In what has become a typical reaction from a shocked pro-Clinton media, Toronto Star columnist Rosie DiManno, the day after the vote, wrote of Trump's victory:

"This is indeed a conspiracy — of racists and reactionaries, white supremacists, misogynists, Islamophobes and xenophobes, isolationists, sexual scavengers, haters."

And, oh yes, just to underscore the point, most of the losers are also quick to point out that Trump's victory is due to — dare we say it? — angry white voters.

Since more than 60 per cent of Americans are white (and I suspect they're not all angry) it means that the majority of Clinton's supporters were also white. But obviously there are the angelic white people, i.e. Democrats, and the evil white people, i.e. Trump voters. In their eyes as well, there is simply no rational way to explain the 30 per cent of Hispanics who voted Trump, a higher percentage than the last two socially acceptable failed Republican presidential hopefuls. But there you have it.

I'm glad I didn't have to choose, and I suspect many voters on both sides were firmly squeezing their noses as they voted. Had I voted it would have reluctantly been Trump. Why? To keep Clinton from liberalizing the Supreme Court.

But somebody had to win, and if the losers really are as wonderful as they believe themselves to be, they would accept the fact that the vote from an out-of-work coal miner in West Virginia is every bit as valid as a multimillionaire movie star from Hollywood.

It's called democracy. And instead of the losers continuing to march in the streets waving banners proclaiming "Not my President," — when, in fact, he soon will be — they should stop maligning the millions of Americans who voted Trump (including more than 40 per cent of American women voters, by the way) and start working toward fixing what ails their country.

But many of them are so arrogant, so self-important, they simply can not bring themselves to admit that despite their tireless efforts to turn Trump into a monster and his supporters into snarling bigots, they failed.

It can't be their shortcomings or the shortcomings of their candidate that sealed the deal. So it must be that the winners are idiots, which is pretty much what the Star's Heather Mallick wrote in her column crediting the complete collapse of the U.S. education system for Trump's win. After all, no thinking person could ever vote for Trump. So they must be stupid, eh?

And so it goes. Those accustomed to getting their own way, to huddling in safe spaces and rushing to a counsellor at the first sign of ill fortune, are convinced that the end of time has arrived and America is doomed.

Few seem prepared to admit it, but in his Post column last week Conrad Black published what he called a "powerful mea culpa" by Will Rahn of CBS against the "unbearable smugness" of the media, including himself.

"Had Hillary Clinton won, there'd be a winking 'we did it' feeling in the press . . . we were brave and saved the republic . . . Trump knew what he was doing when he invited his crowds to jeer and hiss reporters covering him. They hate us. And can you blame them? Journalists love mocking Trump supporters . . . We diagnose them as racists in the way Dark Age clerics confused medical problems with demonic possession. Journalists at our worst, see ourselves as a priestly cast, we believe we have access to a greater truth . . ."

Yes, there is a lot of hate out there. But from where I sit, most of it is coming from the Clinton side, the self-declared champions of freedom, truth and democracy; people who truly believe that as long as you agree with them you are a good person. But if you disagree, well, you're a disgrace to humanity. Or worse.

They lost, but they still haven't gained any humility or the courage to admit that their routine dismissal of the lesser-classes were the building blocks for Trump's unlikely triumph.

A healthy crowd of close to 500 people made their way to the Orangeville Fairgrounds last Saturday night to experience the “one of a kind” first-ever Guy Fawkes Bonfire Night Celebration.

Recognized as the only official event of its kind in Ontario, Bonfire Night, as it is affectionately known across the pond in the U.K., pays homage to the failed Gunpowder Plot of 1605, which saw British rebel Guy Fawkes and a group of 12 other men attempt to blow up the British Houses of Parliament and assassinate King James I.

Failing in their attempt, Fawkes was caught at the scene of the plot and subsequently charged with high treason. He was hung, drawn and quartered for his part in the plot. On the night the Gunpowder Plot was foiled — Nov. 5 — bonfires were set alight across Britain to celebrate the safety of King James.

Bringing the annual event to life in Canada following more than 12 months of planning and preparation, local residents Elaine Capes and Sharon Edmonds were “delighted” with the turnout and overall response their Bonfire Celebration received.

“We were completely blown away by just how many people we had out on the day,” Capes told the Citizen. “We had 250 tickets sold the day of and another 240 coming through the gates over the course of the event, so this was huge.”

Starting at 4 p.m. and running until 8

The St. Cornelius School Council will be holding the fifth annual Christmas Market Place Nov. 26.

It will be at the school on Innis Lake Road, just north of Old Church Road in Caledon East from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There will be more than 40 specialty vendors offering Christmas gift ideas, as well as other unique services. There will also be Christmas trees for sale from Davis Feed and Farm Supply.

Santa Claus will be paying a visit, as well as some super heroes, and folks will be able to have their pictures taken with them.

The school choir will be performing from 11:30 to 12:30, and there will also be a penny raffle and silent auction.

p.m., those in attendance were treated to a large bonfire and professional fireworks display over the course of the evening. While there were many locals on hand at the celebration, there were many others that had traveled a fair distance to experience the unique event.

Among those was Mississauga resident Shahab Peer. After watching the movie V for Vendetta — a loosely-based modern take on the Gunpowder Plot — a number of years ago, Peer had developed an interest in the history behind Guy Fawkes and Bonfire Night. He'd previously spent several years searching for public parties and celebrations on the big night to no avail.

"I was so excited when I found out about this event, I knew right away that I wanted to come and check it out," Peer, dressed in a traditional Guy Fawkes costume complete with mask, told the Citizen. "This was something that resonated with me after watching the movie and so I was interested in seeing what the event is all about."

British citizen Duncan Terry traveled from Cobourg with his wife and three kids in an attempt to teach them a little bit about English culture and history.

“Bonfire Night is a completely mystery to my family because they didn’t grow up with it like I did,” Terry said. “I just remember the nights stood around the fire talking with your neighbours and just having fun. It was great. This was well worth the trip — it was just like being back in the U.K. You’ve got the big bonfire, friendly people and some fireworks. It was a great night.”

Cates and Edmonds are already planning for next year's event, with a date of Nov. 4 already pencilled in for the second-annual Guy Fawkes Bonfire Night Celebration.

“Put it on your calendars,” Edmonds said. “We’re already planning for next year. We’re taking in all the feedback we’ve received and we’re going to do what we can to make this bigger and better next year.”

“We said it before and we’ll say it again, this is what we want Orangeville to be known for,” she added. “Judging by the number of people we had out for our very first year, there’s a real want there for this type of celebration. As long as there is a want, we’re going to keep on putting it together. Watch out for next year — It’s going to be quite the party.”

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones has called on the Premier and her government to provide sustainable funding to autism and special needs service providers such as Yes I Can Nursery School.

"On October 3rd, I had the opportunity to visit Yes I Can Nursery School with my leader Patrick Brown," Jones commented. "We heard from the school that they would no longer receive funding from the Ministry of Education."

tion.

"The government has finally agreed to meet with Yes I Can, and it is imperative they offer sustainable funding to Yes I Can so they can continue providing the tremendous supports for children with autism and special needs," Jones added. "The reality is, if this funding is not restored, Yes I Can Nursery School has two choices: eliminate the programs and services or ask parents who have children with special needs to pay more. If the government believes it's okay for parents to pay because their child has a special need, that is simply unacceptable."

9 p.m.
aledon

"The Premier needs to show she understands how important Yes I Can Nursery School is to her community and reinstate their funding," Jones said.

Osler celebrates the end of construction on Peel Memorial with Minister Eric Hoskins, local MPPs and other dignitaries

William Osler Health System recently celebrated the most momentous milestone to date in the journey toward the opening of the new Peel Memorial Centre for Integrated Health and Wellness. Joined by Health and Long-Term Care Minister Eric Hoskins and other dignitaries and donors, Osler recognized the end of construction on the new outpatient hospital, and looked ahead to the public opening in February 2017.

“The substantial completion milestone of the new Peel Memorial means we are now closer to completing this project,” Brampton West MPP Vic Dhillon commented. “Once the new state-of-the-art Peel Memorial outpatient hospital opens in a few months from now, the community can look forward to a new kind of health care facility; one that not only treats illness and injuries, but also helps people stay well.”

Peel Memorial will focus on treatment of patients who do not require an overnight stay in hospital. It will offer an extensive number of specialty and day clinics, health services and programs focused on the unique needs of seniors, children, people requiring mental health services, and individuals living with chronic conditions such as diabetes or asthma.

“This is an exciting time for the people of Brampton and the surrounding area,” Osler Board Chair Vanita Varma said. “The new Peel Memorial is giving us a chance to lead the way in the province, serving as a state-of-the-art outpatient hospital that will meet the increasing health care needs of our families, while changing our health system by focusing on health, wellness and prevention of illness and chronic disease.”

The main service areas at the new Peel Memorial include:

- An Urgent Care Centre — open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., every day, and staffed by emergency-trained physicians and staff.
- Outpatient Procedures/Day Surgery — including cataract and arthroscopic surgery, and minor gynaecology procedures.
- Chronic Disease Management — education and support to help people with chronic health issues (such as diabetes, cardiovascular or kidney disease) to manage their condition.
- Community Mental Health and Addictions Services — including an eating disorders clinic, addictions counselling and seniors’ behavioural support.
- Specialized clinics — for prenatal education, maternal and newborn care, gynaecological and obstetrical services, and services for children and adolescents.
- Seniors’ Wellness — geriatric assessment clinics, preventative care and rehabilitation services, all focused on maintaining independence.
- Diagnostic Services — including x-ray, mammography, ultrasound, CT scans, bone mineral density tests and laboratory services.
- A Dialysis Unit — with the capacity to accommodate up to 36 patients a day.

“A new and innovative approach to the delivery of health care services, Peel Memorial Centre for Integrated Health and Wellness truly represents the vision and support of an entire community,” Central West Local Health Integration Network (LHIN) Chair Maria Britto commented.

Peel Memorial celebrates $1 million contribution

A $1-million donation to the new Peel Memorial Centre for Integrated Health and Wellness from Magna International was announced recently.

The gift was made in front of Magna employees, local dignitaries and hospital staff at Magna’s location on Steeles Avenue East in Brampton, just eight kilometres from the new Peel Memorial. Recently completed and opening to the public in February 2017, Peel Memorial will be a new kind of health care facility — one that treats illness and injuries and also helps people stay well, manage their illness or disease, and learn about healthy living.

“We are deeply grateful for Magna’s support of Peel Memorial. They are a true corporate leader whose actions will improve the lives of those who live and work in our growing community by ensuring access to the very best care close to home,” William Osler Health System Foundation President and CEO Ken Mayhew commented.

The donation is part of Osler Foundation’s larger $100 million You Have the Power Campaign, which includes important redevelopment and renewal projects at each of Osler’s three sites.

Brampton Mayor Linda Jeffrey extended

“Today is their day. Today is about those who will benefit from the offerings of this impressive new facility.”

At Peel Memorial, partnerships with other leading health organizations and complementary health providers will make it easier for patients to get the care they need, when and where they need it most. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Peel Memorial’s Urgent Care Centre will alleviate pressures on the emergency department at Brampton Civic Hospital and provide patients with a more convenient alternative.

“Fighting for healthcare in Brampton has been part of my DNA for more than 12 years,” said Brampton Mayor Linda Jeffrey. “It has been a really long journey and I am proud to have been a part of this project from its infancy to completion.”

With the first phase of the project focusing on outpatient-based care, the second and an overlapping partnership phase at Peel will add inpatient beds and provides for even greater access to services. With Peel directly connected ed thanks to Magna for its support.

“Peel Memorial is a major asset for Brampton and would not have been possible without donors like Magna helping to build and, now, equip the facility,” she said. “I am proud to live in a city that inspires such tremendous giving from its corporate partners.”

Peel Memorial is home to the new Magna International Diagnostic Imaging Unit, named in recognition of Magna’s extraordinary investment, which was designated to the purchase of two digital radiography (X-ray) units. More than 54,000 radiography, mammography, ultrasound, CT and bone mineral density exams are expected to take place in this unit annually.

“Magna is committed to helping organizations in the communities where our employees live and work,” Magna Executive Vice President and Chief Human Resources Officer Marc Neeb said. “We are pleased to be able to contribute to the health of families in Brampton by supporting this much-needed diagnostic imaging technology.”

Bolton resident in line for lottery windfall

A Bolton man is among a group of 18 residents of the Greater Toronto Area and Simcoe County who are about to share a nice lottery jackpot.

Wayne Smith was one of 18 people holding a ticket that collected a second prize in the Aug. 6 Lotto 649 draw. The ticket holders are due to split a prize of $131,732.20.

As one of the group members is related to an employee at an Ontario Lottery and Gaming Corporation (OLG) retail location, this prize falls within OLG’s definition of an “insider win.”

As of Oct. 28, this prize claim has completed the first step of a two-step “insider wins” process, which is an independent prize claim review by a third-party, working in partnership with OLG’s regulator, the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario (AGCO).

To complete the process, this prize will be held for a 30-day waiting period in order for OLG to publicize the win. If there are no additional claims on this prize, it will be paid to the claimants Nov. 26.

The ticket was purchased at Daisy Mart on Cottrelle Boulevard in Brampton.

Golden Hawks bitten by Terriers to end their winning streak

By Jake Courtepatte

The Caledon Golden Hawks first winning streak of the season came to an end Sunday at the hands of the Orillia Terriers in Caledon East.

Coming off back-to-back wins, the club's first two since winning their season opener back in September, Caledon's offensive approach fell short in a 3-2 effort.

The score remained deadlocked at zero for most of the opening period, before Caledon's Jason Cumbo was beaten by Orillia's Kyle Fischer.

Kevin Pleasance scored his seventh of the year early in the middle frame, adding to the breakout year the defenceman is having in his third season as a Hawk.

Both teams traded a goal apiece before second intermission, Caledon's off the stick of Jeffrey Ohashi, for a 2-2 tie.

It was Orillia's Jake Shaw who scored the game winner with less than seven minutes to go in the third period, allowing his team to hold onto the lead for the remainder of the game.

Shaw has been a key component of the Orillia offence, having previously led the Terriers in scoring in 2013-14 before two years of junior B hockey. Since rejoining the Terriers this season, the Coldwater native has scored 28 points in 17 games, good for the top 10 in the league in scoring.

Caledon captain Nicholas McNutt, who assisted on Ohashi's second period goal, leads the Hawks at a point-per-game pace through 19 matches.

The standings remain largely untouched at the end of the ninth week of the season, with Caledon remaining eighth out of the eight-team Carruthers division with a record of 3-15-1. Their closest opponent, the Penetang Kings, remain six points up on the Hawks after two losses over the weekend.

The Alliston Hornets remain the team to beat, followed closely by the Stayner Siskins, with both teams combining for only four losses in total this season.

Up next for the Hawks is a battle with the Hornets on the road, who were proven to be human in a loss to the Schomberg Cougars over the weekend. Alliston was unbeaten through 18 games this season prior to the loss.

The division's first and last place teams will duke it out at New Tecumseth Rec Centre Friday in the start of a busy weekend for the Hawks. They then visit the Terriers in Orillia Saturday. They have three wins against the Hawks already this season.

Sunday's weekly home game closes out the weekend with a tilt between the Hawks and the Kings, with their last contest going in the Hawks' favour in early November.

Puck drop is set for 6:30 p.m. at Caledon East.

KIDS' FARMING CLUB WRAPS UP

The last day for the Kids' Farming Club at the Albion Hills Community Farm took place recently. Farm Leader Adrienne Sultana was assisting Makayla Cherry, 6, of Palgrave and Emma Van Lim Berg, 7, of the Palgrave area with their work. The program has been so successful, there are plans to run a spring session starting in May. More information and registration information will be on the Farm's website at www.albionhillscommunityfarm.org

Rotary collecting hockey equipment

The Rotary Club of Palgrave is joining forces with Rotarians in Etobicoke to collect gently used hockey equipment to send to First Nations young people in remote northern Ontario communities.

The clubs were involved in this collection last year, and they were able send equipment to two schools in northern Ontario. Rotarian Susan Hicks said last year's efforts were very successful, and they're hoping for better things this year.

She reported she has arranged with the Caledon Community Complex to accept drop-offs at the Customer Service office, which is on the left as people walk in. This means there are two drop-off locations. The other is at the barn of Rotarian Bernie Rochon at 17350 Highway 50 (use sliding door entrance). Items can be dropped off until Dec. 15.

Hicks said there were eight pallets of equipment sent north last year to two schools. The target this year is at least five schools which are part of the Ring of Fire. The Ring consists of 17 schools in northern Ontario that are off-grid and fly-in only.

"We have reached out to other local Rotary clubs that we are hoping will hold their own drive, and then we will pick it up, sort it, and then ship it up north," she said. "With Rotary working together, it should be a great success."

For more information, contact Hicks at 416-417-4479.

IN MEMORIAM

STEWART, Dorothy A.
In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away November 18th, 2000.

*Two bright eyes,
A tender smile,
A tender heart that knew no guile,
Doe's trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other bright,
If sick or suffering one she knew,
Some gentle act of love she'd do,
No thought of self,
But of the other,
I know He said,
"Well done, dear Mother"*

See Ya! Peter

In loving memory of a dear brother who passed away November 23rd, 2009.

*God called him home,
It was His will,

That grief can call its own.*
