HAPPY 150TH, CANADA!

This flag flew on the Peace Tower in Ottawa July 1, 1992, and it currently adorns the back of Belfountain General Store.

Peace Tower flag on display in Belfountain

By Bill Rea

The spirit of Canada Day is very evident in Belfountain, especially at the rear of the General Store.

A large Canadian Flag is on display, and store proprietor (and former local MP) Garth Turner says there's quite a story behind it, including the fact it was flying from the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill July 1, 1992, which was the 125th anniversary of Confederation.

He said it started in 1991, during Canada's involvement in the Gulf War, when an Orangeville disc jockey named Ross Carlin was seeking a good recording of O Canada which he could play on his morning show as a sign of patriotism. He was unable to find one, and appealed to Turner, who was his MP at the time, for help.

Carlin's idea was to have the country's major musicians get together to record a top-quality version of the national anthem.

Turner, in 1993, authored a book entitled Just What the Hell is Going on in Ottawa?, in which he devoted several pages to the story of "the revitalization of O Canada."

He stated there was considerable interest and moral support for the project, but they were having trouble finding financing for the project.

"The call to Carlin's local MP was a final shot in the dark," Turner wrote.

He added he was able to find corporate sponsors over the next six months to finance the project, as well as a commitment for a TV special. It also attracted the talents of such prominent musicians as Gino Vanelli, Randy Bachman, Tommy Hunter, Rita MacNeil and Paul Janz. Similar efforts were also put forth for a symphonic version of O Canada.

Schools and radio stations all over the country received copies of the anthem.

Dufferin-Caledon Liberals looking toward next federal campaign

By Bill Rea

It's more than two years until the next federal election, but Liberals in Dufferin-Caledon are already working on strategies to take the riding that has traditionally be held by Conservatives.

Part of the plan involves a series of public forums to communicate with the membership and others, and the Dufferin-Caledon Federal Liberal Association held the first of those sessions last Thursday night in Mono Mills.

"We're starting a new era in this association," President George denHaan said to roughly 15 people who were on hand.

He said the association is operating with a new constitution and executive, and the plan is these sessions will be part of the innovations. He also said there will be a focus on enhancing the membership.

Andre Priede is in charge of operations for the association, and he said that covers things like election readiness. That will include the collection of necessary data, training volunteers and defining what he called an interface strategy, and he said they are working on defining that.

He also pointed out they have to set out timeline priorities, starting with the 2019 election and working back. With more than two years to go, he observed there's little point in training people how to go door-to-door at this stage.

Priede also said they have a group in place looking at differentiating between federal and provincial policies. As well, he said there are people in the association analyzing the results of the last election. They are also going to have to get used to handling social media tools like Facebook.

In addition, Priede said they need to get better at reaching out to the growing population in the riding, and having people find out more about the party.

Director Michael Forbes said he has been working on proportional swing models, which he said provides snap shots on the riding, as well as what victory could look like. They are also studying various areas of the riding, comparing how the vote patterns compared to the Ontario average.

When it comes to areas of strength, Forbes said the Liberals were strong in the downtown and southern areas of Orangeville.

"It's a mixed bag" in Bolton, he said, commenting the north hill area was strongly Conservative, while in the village core, there were Tory and Grit strongholds right next to each other. That will require more analysis.

He also said the Liberals were strong in the north half a Shelburne, and less so to the south.

Ed Crewson, the candidate in the 2015 campaign, is policy chair, and he addressed several issues concerning the environment, citing comments from former American president Barack Obama that "climate change is the greatest threat facing humanity."

The effects have already been felt, he added, through such events as forest fires, droughts, floods, etc. These events have had other impacts, including on insurance costs. He pointed to the claims resulting from the fires in Fort McMurray, Alberta, and closer to home, the flood damage in Toronto caused by heavy rains in July 2013.

"We're all going to pay the cost of climate change," Crewson warned.

Canada's plan to deal with climate change started in 2016 when First Ministers met in Vancouver and produced the Vancouver Declaration, which was to serve as a guide to the creation of a Canadian framework for clean growth and climate change. The first Ministers also recognized the importance of the targets set in the Paris Agreement the previous year. That agreement was looking at bringing global emissions to close to zero by the second half of the 21st century.

Crewson pointed out the Conservative government of Stephen Harper had agreed to lower annual greenhouse gas emission by 67 megatonnes by 2020 and by 200 megatonnes by 2030. But he said the emissions kept climbing.

The framework the Liberals are working on would set a minimum carbon price across the country of $10 per tonne next year, rising by $10 per year until 2022. Crewson said it's expected that emissions will decrease as prices go up and industry practices and consumer behaviour evolve.

Forbes said there is already polling data on this carbon tax.

"It was far more positive than you would think," he observed, adding it received majority support in Alberta. The main opposition, he said, seems to be coming from editorial boards of newspapers.

The evening also included some observations on new Conservative Leader Andrew Scheer, who denHaan said is sometimes referred to as "Harper with a smile."

He also pointed out Harper had a lot to deal with, such as facts conflicting with Conservative policy. He said the party was only able to work with a domineering and controlling person in charge.

Looking at the local situation, denHaan couldn't say if Conservative incumbent David Tilson will run again in 2019, but he was confident Tilson will be opposed if he seeks the nomination.

Heading into the next election, denHaan said the Tories will have a financial advantage.

"They outfund us every month," he said. "That's a dangerous thing."

Several corporate sponsors are helping to finance the Canada Day festivities at Albion Hills Conservation Area. Albion Hills Supervisor Jay Clark (left) and Councillor Jennifer Innis (third from right) were on hand last week to accept contributions from Stephanie Coutinho of Brookfield Residential, Shakir Rehmatullah of Flato Developments Inc, Doug Miller of Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, Mitch Ferris of James Dick Construction and Dino Ferri of Argo Land Development.

Canadian Tire in Bolton is a major sponsor of the event. Store owner Andrea Marshall (middle) presented a contribution to Jay Clark and Martina Saverino, chair of the Caledon Canada Day committee.

Celebrating Canada’s 150th Birthday!

Befitting the fact that Canada Day 2017 marks a major milestone in the country’s history, there are many special events that have been planned to help celebrate the occasion.

True, Canada Day does come every year, but the 150th anniversary of Confederation is something that requires some special observances, and perhaps a bit of reflection. And there is much to reflect upon; both events that have happened in the past, and continue to this day.

Canadians have been responsible for a number of achievement, be they the discovery of insulin, the taking of Vimy Ridge, the liberation of the Netherlands or countless other examples.

A number of events are planned in the area to mark Canada Day this coming Saturday. Some of them are listed below.

Take some time Saturday to get out a celebrate this country of ours. Many of us were born here, and many others chose to come here. But there’s no denying we all know a good thing when we have it.

CALENDAR of EVENTS

Canada Day celbration in Kettleby
King Township’s only Canada Day celebration will be taking place in Kettleby. It will start at 4 p.m. and conclude with a fireworks display at 10.

As Canada celebrates the 150th Anniversary of Confederation across the country I can't help but feel we are surrounded by history. A lot has happened in 150 years and we have continued to transform as a nation. Our beautiful country has vast geography, diverse cultures and vibrant communities unlike any other nation. This milestone as an opportunity to reflect on what it means to be Canadian, our rich history and our shared values.

We have many reasons to be proud as we celebrate this national milestone.

Caledon OPP will run Youth Leadership program

The Youth Leadership Program, the annual week-long program involving local young people and run by Caledon OPP, received a boost recently from the Optimist Club of Caledon. The club made a $750 contribution to the program. Optimists Wayne Livingston and Susan Montgomery made the presentation to Sergeant Marcus Sanderson and Constables Tamara Schubert and Joe Brisebois.

Caledon OPP will soon be looking for future community leaders. Officers from the detachment will be hosting their annual Youth Leadership Program from Aug. 1 to 4 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. During this time, students will be provided the opportunity to engage in a variety of community activities while interacting with Caledon OPP officers and fellow students. Those interested in applying to the program must be a student between Grades 9 and 12, display a strong work ethic, be a team player, and possess a desire to contribute to their community in a meaningful way. Youths will be afforded the opportunity to partake in coordinated activities that contribute to and enhance the Town of Caledon and community agencies by participating in various tasks and activities related to leadership and team building, crime-prevention initiatives and supporting community agencies. Under direct guidance and supervision of OPP officers, they will be introduced to a wide variety of community service duties. Applicants will be required to submit an OPP permission form signed by their parent or guardian, along with a brief essay (roughly 250 to 500 words) written by the applicant outlining reasons for the interest in the program and identifying what the applicant has to offer. OPP permission forms are available at the front desk of the Caledon OPP detachment and at Caledon secondary schools. Return the permission form and essay attached to the detachment, to the attention of Constable Tamara Schubert, no later than July 1. Successful applicants will earn a sense of satisfaction from being able to give back to their community and attain 40 hours of community work as a part of their requirement for successful completion of high school. For more information regarding the program, feel free to contact Schubert at tamara.schubert@opp.ca

Notice of Intention to Designate

TAKE NOTICE that the Council for The Corporation of the Town of Caledon intends to designate the following property as being of cultural heritage value or interest under Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.18:

Mack's Park, 10 Credit Street

PLAN CAL20 LOTS 4-10, 14, 31, 35-37, 41; BLKS A-C & MILL BLK; RP 43R20002 PTS 1, 2; Town of Caledon; Regional Municipality of Peel

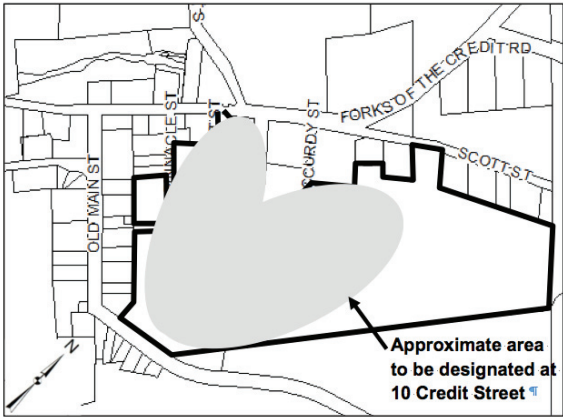

Mack's Park, within the Belfountain Conservation Area, has been a defining feature of the village of Belfountain for over a century. The park has attracted thousands of visitors to its unique blend of a natural setting enhanced by landscape design.

Charles Wilson Mack and his wife Addie chose this site on the Credit River for their summer home in 1909. The property soon acquired the moniker "Mack's Park". In stark contrast to the area's nineteenth-century uses for water-powered milling and quarrying, the Macks beautified the site in the English Picturesque style with the help of local resident Samuel Western Brock. The park was open to the public and became a regional summer destination for day visitors and others who built cottages in Belfountain.

While Mack's bungalow, two cottages and wooden structures have vanished, a significant number of other features from Mack's Park remain, including the dam, the grotto, stone terraces and stone steps, the tiered stone fountain, and the suspension footbridge.

Further information regarding the heritage attributes and designation of this property is available in the Heritage Resource Office at the Town of Caledon Town Hall.

Any person may, within thirty days of the publication of this notice, send by registered mail or deliver to the Clerk notice of his or her objection to the proposed designation, together with a statement of the reasons for the objection and all relevant facts. If a notice of objection is received, the Council for The Corporation of the Town of Caledon will refer the matter to the Conservation Review Board for a hearing and report.

OPP will be looking for speeders over holiday

Ontario Provincial Police are pointing to speeding drivers as the main cause of road fatalities so far this year, with the death toll in this category 76 per cent higher than this time last year. As of June 26, speeding has been linked with 30 road deaths on OPP-patrolled roads, compared to 17 in 2016. Excessive speed continues to threaten the safety of other road users with more than 1,400 charges so far this year laid by the OPP against drivers clocked at 50 km/h or more over the posted speed limit. During the Canada Day long weekend, OPP officers throughout the province will set their sights on speeding and all other forms of aggressive driving. These behaviours include following too close, unsafe passing and lane changes, failing to yield right-of-way, road rage and other dangerous, high-risk driving behaviours. "For some drivers, instances of speeding and other forms of aggressive driving are frequent and for others, they are part of their everyday driving behaviour," OPP Deputy Commissioner Brad Blair observed. "Last year, our officers laid more than 240,000 speeding charges against drivers who took the lives of other road users into their own hands." "Aggressive driving-related deaths have dramatically increased in Ontario in the last year," Community Safety and Correctional Services Minister Marie-France Lalonde added. "We all have a responsibility to ensure our roads are safe. This long weekend, remember to slow down, drive safely and respect your fellow motorists." "Even one life lost to reckless or dangerous driving is one life too many," Transportation Minister Steven Del Duca commented. "Excessive speeding is completely unacceptable and I urge everyone travelling on the roads this Canada Day long weekend to slow down and stay safe." "We take our work with our enforcement and other road safety partners to save more lives seriously and remind everyone of the real-life consequences of street racing — all drivers who put others on the road at risk by driving aggressively — could face a jail term of up to six months, fines of up to $10,000 and prolonged licence suspension upon conviction," he added.

Man charged with drug trafficking

A 29-year-old man from Bolton was charged with drug-related offences May 25. Caledon OPP reports officers from the Street crime unit pulled over a black 2008 BMW on Coleraine Drive following a trafficking investigation into the driver. He was arrested and charged with trafficking a Schedule I substance (cocaine) and possession for the purpose of trafficking. Police added a search warrant was executed at the suspect's home, and that led to additional charges of possession of a Schedule II substance for the purpose of trafficking (less than three kilograms), possession of a Schedule I substance for the purpose of trafficking and possession of property obtained by crime over $5,000.

Arts & Entertainment

Celebrate food, wine and art in July at Alton Mill

It promises to be delicious, decadent and cutting edge, and it's going to be entertaining.

Like a lovely meal paired with the perfect beverage, the highly anticipated Wine and Food Festival at Alton Mill will pair 25 Mill artists with talented regional chefs.

Beer, cider, wine and spirit companies will add to the fun atmosphere, creating a dynamic culinary and art tourism experience.

Whisking together fine food and fine art at the venue, the award-winning Wine and Food Festival takes place July 22 from noon to 6 p.m. Celebrating its eighth year, this festival is a must-do for all foodies.

The focus will be on the world-class talent, in both fields, located right within the region. During the day, guests

(and their taste buds) will be entertained by outdoor culinary competitions, led by the region's top chefs and restaurants. Visitors can make their way indoors to enjoy gourmet food tastings at stations throughout the Mill exquisitely prepared by local chefs — in each studio, find different styles of art as well as a different palate pleaser for the taste buds. Sprinkled around the grounds, visitors can discover wine, spirit and beer samples from partners in the region while shopping for works of art being showcased by Mill resident artists. Let creativity bubble over by taking part in art demos or do-it-yourself in a mini workshop.

Experience the Mill's charm and architecture at every corner. Unwind and come to a simmer by listening to fantastic music. The Wine and Food Festival is about a taste of place, a sense of community and great company. Marinate in the sun and enjoy local, Canadian and international artists, all day long.

The Wine and Food Festival at Alton Mill is both a celebration of local artistic and culinary talents, and a fundraiser for the Alton Millpond Rehabilitation Project. Proceeds from the event will go toward the Millpond project; a community-based endeavor to improve the water quality and fish habitat of Shaw's Creek.

Advance tickets are $25 and are available online and at Gallery Gemma in the Mill, or $35 at the door.

'Love letter' to Tom Thomson and Canada

The McMichael Canadian Art Collection presents a major exhibition featuring the works of one of Ontario's greatest painters, Tom Thomson, and feminist art pioneer Joyce Wieland.

Passion Over Reason: Tom Thomson and Joyce Wieland, will open to the public this Canada Day, followed by a special weekend festival starting July 8, which will mark the centennial of Tom Thomson's death. This commemorative exhibition, debuting for the nation's 150th birthday, runs until Nov. 19, and spans four galleries at the McMichael.

Thomson, a contemporary of the Group of Seven whose love for nature is demonstrated through his landscape paintings, died mysteriously on Canoe Lake at the early age of 39.

Passion Over Reason takes a critical approach to Canada's fascination with Thomson, his status as a cult figure of masculine mystique, and the mystery and mythology of his life story that has cast a virile, woodsy painter as the embodiment of quiet, Canadian resilience. Taking cues from the eye of Wieland, who imbued her vision of Thomson and Canada with overt femininity, love and sex, Passion Over Reason confirms what Wieland pointed to in the 1970s: Thomson is Canada.

"Consider this exhibition to be a love letter to Tom Thomson and Canada — two subjects at the core of this sesquicentennial year — and a conversation between masterworks by Thomson and Wieland," McMichael's Chief Curator Dr. Sarah Stanners said.

The McMichael will display nearly all its rich holdings of Thomson works alongside those of Wieland, who expressed her fascination with Thomson and love for Canada through her masterwork quilts, drawings, paintings, photographs, and her films The Far Shore, which will screen in the McMichael's Theatre, and Reason Over Passion, which will show on continuous loop within the exhibition space.

The title of the exhibition is a deliberate reversal of former Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's oft-quoted personal motto, "Reason over passion."

The exhibition also includes a series of commissioned artworks by established Canadian artist Zachari Logan, who will be at work in the Tom Thomson Shack from June 26 to July 8.

The McMichael is also offering an exciting lineup of special programming and festivals inspired by Ontario 150 and the centenary death of Thomson. Visit mcmichael.com for more information.

The McMichael Canadian Art Collection is at 10365 Islington Ave. in Kleinburg.

This art wasn't for the birds at Alton Mill

The artistic creativity of several Grade 9 students at Mayfield Secondary School was on display recently for the show entitled The Birds are Back in Town. With the assistance of artist C.J. Shelton, and using birds of prey as models, they came up with their own watercolour creations that were on display at Alton Mill Arts Centre. "They did a great job," Mayfield art teacher Marie Burnett declared. Kelyn Young said she was trying to convey an image of an owl on something grand.

Free admission at PAMA to celebrate Peel and Canada 150

Peel 150: Stories of Canada opens at the Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) June 29; just in time for Canada's 150th birthday July 1.

The County of Peel (now Region of Peel) and the Peel County Courthouse and Jail at PAMA, are also celebrating their 150th. Come out for the free kick-off celebration tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 9 p.m.

"We are excited to honour Peel and Canadian history and want to encourage our community to explore and learn through free general admission for July and August," Manager Marty Brent said.

In planning the exhibition Peel 150: Stories of Canada, PAMA asked hundreds of visitors: "What does Canada mean to you?"

People's love for their country came through strongly in the themes of truth, peace, home, community, land, creativity and innovation. Inspired by these themes, PAMA staff has used the rich artifact, archival and art collections, as well as works borrowed from artists, to create this jam-packed exhibition.

"Canada's history is remarkable, poignant and often quite troubling," Jim Leonard, regional archivist at PAMA, said. "Our opportunity, as one of Canada's few combined museums, art galleries and archives, is to see how we could use our exceptional collections to tell some of the stories of Canada through a Peel-specific lens. The Archives team was very excited to participate in this very special collaborative exhibition."

In this year of revisiting the past, it is essential to stop and to consider the meaning of Canada's history as a nation and as a community. And to recognize that Indigenous people with varied and rich cultures have lived here for more than 10,000 years, long before the arrival of Europeans. As PAMA Museum Curator Annemarie Hagan said, "The history of Canada includes the painful and difficult history of settler colonialism which includes treaties, the Indian Act, and Residential Schools. This past still resonates strongly today and presents us with the challenges and opportunities of reconciliation."

The beautiful and haunting paintings of Indigenous artist James Simon Mishibinijima are woven throughout the exhibition. His art interprets the tragic impacts of the residential school system on his mother and many generations. This element of the Canada 150 project is one step in a national quest for truth and reconciliation. As well, Mishibinijima's paintings explore the guiding strength and wisdom of the seven grandfather teachings.

"These immutable qualities of character: courage, honesty, humility, love, truth, respect, and wisdom; act as foundational principles of integrity and sources of strength that we can turn to today to find truth and reconciliation," PAMA Art Gallery Curator Tom Smart observed.

Visitors to PAMA will be able to see an exhibition which features a huge Victory Bond flag awarded to Chinguacousy Township in 1918 (and recently conserved by the Canadian Conservation Institute) and a mock-up of the cockpit of the Avro Arrow created by Avro engineers in the 1950s, both from the PAMA collection. The exhibition includes selected pieces from PAMA's exciting art collection, among them historical landscapes of the Peel Region, an incredible sketchbook from artist Tom Thomson, sculptures, large abstract paintings and small format prints and drawings. As well as enjoying the hundreds of artifacts, documents, images, and artwork, this exhibition will provide visitors with touchscreens where they can dig deep to learn more, hands-on activities for kids and adults, and a chance to have their say about their wishes for the future.

In addition to tonight's free kick-off event, there will be a special curator tour and talk July 9 from 2 to 3:30 p.m., and a family fun day July 15 from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

PAMA is a place to explore and learn about Peel Region's culture and heritage, as well as use conversation, questions and stories to help make new and fascinating connections to the surrounding community.

Operated by the Region of Peel, PAMA is at 9 Wellington St. E. in Brampton. Visit pama.peelregion.ca to learn more.

Don't forget safety over Canada Day

Barbecuing is one of the great pleasures of summer and Caledon Fire and Emergency Services wants to make sure everyone enjoys the season safely.

"Before you fire up that barbecue, check the tank and hose for leaks," Chief Fire Prevention Officer Dave Pelayo said. "Remember that barbecues are for outdoor use only. Using a barbecue indoors can create carbon monoxide — an odourless, colourless, poisonous gas — and breathing in carbon monoxide is extremely harmful."

Grill Safely

- Do not leave barbecue grills unattended.
- Always make sure the gas grill lid is open before lighting it.
- Barbecue grills should be placed well away from the home, deck railings and out from under eaves and overhanging branches.
- Keep children and pets at least three feet away from the grill area.
- If someone is burned, run cool water over the wound for three to five minutes and seek medical attention if necessary.

Fireworks

During Canada Day celebrations, fireworks may only be set off July 1 and only on private property. Setting off of fireworks on public property, parks, roads or sidewalks is strictly prohibited.

Retailers can only sell fireworks during the 10 days prior to Canada Day, starting June 21. All retailers must purchase a permit prior to selling any type of fireworks, which can be picked up at Caledon Fire and Emergency Services, 6211 Old Church Rd, Caledon East, at a cost of $179.

Fireworks Safety Tips

- Keep sparklers away from children. Hot sparklers can burn.
- Appoint a responsible person to be in charge.
- Carefully read and follow the directions on fireworks packaging.
- Always keep a hose or pail of water close by when discharging fireworks.
- Place discharged fireworks in a bucket full of water, well away from buildings, and combustible materials such as garbage, trees, or dry grass.

There’s good reason for Canadians to celebrate

A lot has happened since 1867, but seldom has there been a time like today for Canadians to celebrate.

In this week’s issue of the Orangeville Sun 150 years ago, editor John Foley invited the community to get out and celebrate “Dominion Day,” although the term more generally used then was Confederation Day.

Both terms have long since faded into disuse, but we find it interesting that our politicians convinced their British colleagues to call the country formed by the British North America Act the Dominion of Canada rather than something like the United Colonies of Canada. After all, the BNA Act did not create a nation with “dominion also from sea to sea” (as the King James version of the Bible put it), but merely created a country with four provinces (Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick). But clearly there was an aspiration, which was realized four years later with the entry of British Columbia.

Interestingly, papers of the day suggest there were few celebrations of the 50th anniversary, thanks to the fact that in 1917 we were mired in a seemingly endless world war. And even the Centenary in 1967 was marred by a separatist movement in Quebec aided somewhat by a visit of French President Charles De Gaulle and his shouting, “Vive le Québec libre,” that June.

Today, Canada is surely more unified than it was 50 years ago, perhaps thanks in part to the fact the country has had four Quebecers as prime ministers in 40 of those 50 years (Pierre Trudeau, Brian Mulroney, Jean Chrétien and now Justin Trudeau).

And our political climate these days is far calmer than just about anywhere else in the world, to the point where we see the current federal government getting help from two (Progressive) Conservative prime ministers — Mulroney for the pending trade negotiations with the Trump administration, and Kim Campbell to head up the selection process for Supreme Court of Canada judges. Although we have two strong opposition parties in the Conservatives and New Democrats, the issues being raised must seem relatively petty by comparison with those in both Britain and the United States, thanks to Brexit and the conduct of both Donald Trump in the White House and the Republicans in Congress.

There surely is cause for celebration in the fact Canadians have enjoyed a publicly funded universal health care system for nearly half a century and now witness the spectre of a Republican version of health care that will see 22 million lose affordable health insurance while that country’s wealthiest enjoy huge tax cuts.

And as we see it, there’s just as much cause to celebrate Canada’s success in bringing in at least 40,000 refugees from the Middle East at a time when the door has been slammed shut to them south of the border on the specious grounds that some terrorists might pose as refugees and gain entry to the U.S. despite the most thorough vetting processes imaginable.

Another cause for celebration is our possession of a judicial system that should be the envy of the world.

We could not imagine the Supreme Court of Canada ever doing anything like what the Republican-dominated U.S. Supreme Court did this week, in sanctioning a travel ban imposed by presidential edict, despite the excuse for it having long disappeared.

The edict barring admission to the U.S. of residents of six mainly Muslim countries was supposedly designed to give the Trump administration time to improve vetting procedures for both ordinary visitors and refugees. The travel ban was to last 90 days and the ban on refugees 120 days, ending May 27. The court ruling has now sanctioned bans lasting at least another three months.

Could anything of the sort happen here? We surely hope not.

Too many jokes go too far

It worries me that we will have to put up with a certain amount of foolishness inspired by American President Donald Trump for the better part of the next four years, if not the better part of the next eight years.

The latest incident occurred last week when Johnny Depp made a sick and stupid “joke,” asking, according to accounts I have read, “When was the last time an actor assassinated a president?”

Most people are aware, of course, that actor John Wilkes Booth assassinated Abraham Lincoln in 1865. Is that really an appropriate subject about which to be making jokes?

When there is an assassination or attempted assassination just about anywhere in the world, people in the western hemisphere get upset. In October 1981, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was assassinated, and there was much mourning, including in this part of the world. I remember talking to my father, who seldom allowed himself to get too wrapped up in international affairs, the evening of Sadat’s death, and his commenting that it was a sad day. I agreed.

Earlier that year, Pope John Paul II was wounded in an assassination attempt, and there was much worrying throughout the world, including in the United States.

Americans react very strongly to the idea of assassinations abroad, so they are certainly going to get very uptight at the thought of such an act at home, and Depp should have realized that. People who are old enough to remember the assassination of John F. Kennedy (I’m in that group) know very well there was a universal sick feeling in just about everyone’s stomach at the time. And those people who were still around in March 1981 felt similar flashbacks when they heard Ronald Reagan had been shot.

And we are also living in a time in which people are worried about terrorists, and individual fanatics committing random acts of violence. We’re hearing about them just about every day. And they have been going on for some time. There were many innocent, sublime people who just happened to be going about their business in the World Trade Centre early in the morning of Sept. 11, 2001, and there have been plenty of other examples since then. These occurrences have become too common for the authorities to just shrug off. They have had too many examples all over the world, including on Parliament Hill in the fall of 2014, and in England much more recently.

The point is clear. There are some things that too many people take too seriously to make jokes about.

Donald Trump has been the inspiration of a lot of jocular talk, which could qualify as appropriate, inappropriate or questionable.

There have been a lot of jokes at his expense, but that goes with the job he successfully sought last year. Alec Baldwin is revving an already successful career with his imitations on Saturday Night Live, and lots of other comedians are making hay at his expense. There’s nothing wrong with that. Indeed, as I indicated above, that goes with the territory. In fact, I believe that one thing a successful politician needs is a thick hide and a sense of humour. And if they’re going to be in a position of power in what is supposed to be a free society, they had better get used to the idea that they are going to be the butt of lots of jokes. As far as the comedians are concerned, they’re fair game. It’s one of the prices they have to pay for the nice lodgings they get to occupy while they’re in office.

But some jokes go too far, and making fun out of threatening a man’s life is going too far.

The problem is this was not the first example of such suggestions being made. Indeed, I was hearing them as early as the morning after Trump was elected in November. I heard from people wondering how long it would be before someone tried taking a shot at him. There have been a number of celebrities who have found themselves in hot water for making remarks aimed in that general direction.

It is true that Depp has issued an apology for his remarks, and I believe that apology should be accepted, although I fear there are going to be a lot of people who make him carry that baggage for some time. I don’t believe there is anyone reading these words who has not been guilty in the last week of making an inappropriate remark. If we want to be forgiving for such indiscretions, we had better be prepared to do some forgiving ourselves. I believe the Lord’s Prayer addresses that issue rather concisely.

But comments like these are a little too serious to just shrug off by assuming someone is trying to be funny. The United States Secret Service, the agency which is charged with protecting the President, his family and host of other people, can’t just ignore these things. A possible threat to the President’s safety is a serious matter, especially since there are a lot of people in this world who would really like to see harm come to Trump. Terrorists who take a bow when they kill innocents in London or Manchester would not stop if they got a chance at the President.

Of course, part of the problem is there are a lot of people who are not pleased with the fact that Trump is President. That little bit of reality doesn’t fill me with delight either, but facts are facts. The guy won the election, and he’s likely to be in office at least until January 2020, if not until January 2024. If he won one election, it means he can win two. The rest of the world just has to get used to the idea.

Trump is no Truman

Regarding the June 22 article by Claire Hoy on Donald Trump and Harry Truman:

His attempt to compare the 33rd President of the U.S.A. with the 45th is an exercise in futility. Harry Truman would be rolling over in his grave if he thought that his election victory would associate him with Donald Trump in any small way.

The buck may have stopped with Truman, but Trump keeps passing it off to anyone he can. Sorry Claire, but The Donald is a misogynist, narcissistic megalomaniac and anyone who enables him shares the burden of guilt. And that includes you.

Government’s national security legislation a setback for public safety

Canadians want to be reassured that their government has taken the appropriate steps to ensure we are as safe and secure within our own borders as possible, especially given the recent attacks in Europe and other parts of the world.

Our previous Conservative government made safety and security a priority by taking decisive action. However, the current Liberal government recently tabled Bill C-59, an act respecting national security matters in the House of Commons, which considerably weakens the ability of national security agencies to help ensure the safety and security of Canadians. It’s a step in the wrong direction for Canada that only serves the purpose of maintaining an ill-advised campaign promise.

Bill C-59, which was introduced in the House of Commons June 20, replaces the Security Intelligence Review Committee and the Commissioner of the Communications Security Establishment with a new National Security and Intelligence Review Agency. It creates the position of the Intelligence Commissioner to provide day-to-day oversight of national security activities. It limits the Canadian Security Intelligence Service’s ability to reduce terrorist threats. It limits the ability of government departments to share data amongst themselves to protect national security. It removes the offence of advocating and promoting terrorism offences in general and raises the threshold for obtaining a terrorism peace bond and recognizance with conditions.

David Tilson

MP Dufferin-Caledon

The introduction of this national security legislation by the current Liberal government weakens Canada’s national security agencies and their ability to keep Canadians safe. It demonstrates the current government does not take public safety seriously. In the days after horrific terror attacks in Europe and the day after a Canadian was convicted of attempting to leave Canada to join ISIS, the current government is watering down provisions that help law enforcement keep Canadians safe. In taking this action, they are making it more difficult for law enforcement and security agencies to prevent attacks on Canadian soil. In fact, these changes set our laws back from the sad lessons learned from the murder of Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent in Quebec.

The actions by the current Liberal government are incomprehensible. Instead of cracking down on radicalization, the current government is actually creating loopholes that those who seek to radicalize our youth can exploit. Moreover, in the last Parliament, both Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness Minister Ralph Goodale voted in favour of Bill C-51, the Anti-terrorism Act, 2015. This recent move toward weakening public safety can only be explained as the current government attempting to keep an ill-advised campaign promise.

The Conservative Official Opposition takes ensuring the safety of Canadians seriously. This is why our previous government brought Canada’s national security laws into the 21st century and in line with our allies. While our allies are all taking measures to strengthen national security, this legislation actually removes the ability of Canada’s intelligence service to reduce terrorist threats.

Sadly, in the last six months, Canadians have witnessed acts of terrorism on our soil with the brutal killing at a mosque in Quebec, as well as a number of attacks in recent weeks in Europe and other parts of the world. The threat of terrorism is real and Bill C-59 is naïve and irresponsible. The current Liberal government’s misguided approach to national security will put the safety and security of Canadians at risk. Canadians deserve better from their government.

Celebrate Canada’s 150 in Dufferin-Caledon

July 1 marks Canada’s 150th birthday.

It will be an historic weekend to celebrate our history and look forward to our future. Communities and organizations across Dufferin-Caledon have embraced the Canada 150 spirit and are hosting events throughout the riding.

Downey’s Farm on Heart Lake Road in Caledon is hosting their Canada Day Celebrations and Strawberry Festival from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. They will be serving pancakes topped with their famous strawberries and whipped cream and there are plenty of activities for the kids, like pony rides, farm animals and you can pick your own delicious fresh strawberries.

You and your family can also go to the Caledon Fairgrounds for the Caledon Day Strawberry Festival, organized by the Caledon Agricultural Society. The event runs from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be free birthday cake and balloons at noon to mark the opening ceremony.

Mouthy minority silences politicians

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

The late great Yankees’ catcher Yogi Berra said it best: “It’s déjà vu all over again.”

Or, like the classic Bill Murray comedy, it’s Groundhog Day forever.

Every time government succumbs to one lobby or another and brings in new legislation, it faithfully promises to look after the legitimate interests of people who, often for deeply-held moral beliefs, have serious concerns.

Yet, through a combination of unelected activist judges, continued pressure from special interest groups, and widespread support from the media, those whose views are not in synch with the new realities inevitably get trampled upon.

Examples abound. Recall when Ontario first introduced the one-sided Ontario Human Rights Commission, for example, with the solemn promise that the unelected and committed commissioners would be restricted to issues affecting housing and employment. Well, that didn’t last long. There is barely an element in our lives where the human rights apparatus haven’t injected themselves into, thanks to a system where the old idea of innocence until proven guilty has been literally turned on its head.

In another area, after the Supreme Court ruled that the law covering abortion was unconstitutional — and ordered Parliament to redraft it — Brian Mulroney’s government took a stab at it, which lost on a tie vote (because Mulroney wouldn’t allow his ministers to vote their conscience, and the ministers opted for a car and driver over what they professed they believed in), Canada became the only democracy in the world without any abortion restrictions whatsoever. None.

Worse. Not only have politicians been too frightened by the mouthy minority and their champions in the media to take another run at it —despite polls consistently showing most Canadians think there should be some limits on abortion, particularly after the first term — an elected politician can’t even discuss the issue or utter the word “abortion” without being shamed by the twitter universe, the mainstream media, and other politicians. Not to mention to well-financed pro-abortion activists out there, who falsely paint any discussion of the rights of the unborn as an unwarranted attack on women, even though polls, for what they worth, show that women are as inclined to favor limited restrictions on abortion as men are.

You can also enjoy an all-day strawberry breakfast, a classic car show, a village craft show and more.

The Town of Orangeville has organized a Canada Day full of fun family activities at the Alder Street Arena from noon to 5 p.m. There will be a free family swim sponsored by the Rotary Club of Orangeville, face painting and a dog show. In the evening, the Town’s activities shift to Island Lake with ax throwing, local food and music, capped off by Ontario’s College of Physicians and Surgeons (CPSO), you may recall, issued a 2008 policy statement — currently under review — which, as National Post columnist Barbara Kay aptly described it, was designed to threaten doctors who, for moral reasons won’t perform abortions, “with aggressive Human Rights Commission retaliation for failing to co-operate with abortion provision or referrals.” This, despite the fact, there is no shortage of doctors quite willing to perform abortions on demand.

The same dictatorial policies are currently at play in a recent case before the Ontario Superior Court where five doctors and three physicians’ organizations want the CPSO to soften its official policy and give doctors the constitutional right to refuse what is neatly called “medical aid in dying” (MAID), a polite way of describing government-sanctioned death by doctor.

Again, when the issue of euthanasia was being debated, those with legitimate moral concerns were assured that (like abortion) no doctor would be forced to stick a needle into a patient and kill them. Well, predictably, that didn’t last long. A decision in this case is expected later this year.

Funny thing. Social activists — who continually call for inclusiveness, but are never willing to include those who don’t agree with them — conveniently ignore the fact that some of the countries they love to point to as examples of socialist Utopia, such as Norway and Denmark, in fact allow exceptions for conscientious objectors, yet have no difficulty delivering the services in question.

Then there’s Sweden. As Kay points out, “If the CPSO were a country, it would be Sweden.” She tells the tale of Swedish midwife Ellinor Grimmark, a devout Christian, who was professionally black-listed there for her pro-life beliefs. Despite the fact Sweden is desperately short of midwives, she was denied the right to practise (and even offered professional counselling to “overcome” her Christian views). In January, a Swedish television segment described her as emblematic of “a global wave of oppression against women.” She was forced to move to Norway, where she is allowed to practise and at the same time hold true to her own moral code, with no harm whatsoever to the system of abortions there.

Next time a politician tells you that you can stay true to yourself — kind of like Barack Obama assuring Americans they could keep their doctors and enjoy lower health fees — don’t believe them.

If you’re looking for truth, searching Parliament or the Legislatures is the wrong place to find it.

fireworks. The opening ceremonies are at 5:30 p.m. and activities run until the fireworks at dusk.

The Orangeville Legion is also celebrating Canada Day. It is an opportunity to remember those who served our country and remember those whose sacrifices allow us to live in a free and prosperous Canada. The event runs from noon to 7 p.m. and includes an outdoor barbecue, face painting and children’s activities.

Fiddle Park in Shelburne will play host to Shelburne’s Canada Day Celebrations, organized by the Town of Shelburne, County of Dufferin and the Kinsmen Club. The event will run from 3 to 11 p.m. with live bands, face painting, food and fireworks.

Rotary Club of Palgrave’s Weekly Rotary Minute

By Jim Firth

The Rotary Club of Palgrave wrapped up another successful Wines of the World at the Caledon Equestrian Park June 24.

For our 20th year of hosting this event, the excitement of Canada’s upcoming 150th birthday was on display. This is one of the largest events we put on as the Palgrave Rotary Club and three great things happen because of this event.

First; we are pleased to be able to host a large community gathering like this. Many of you who attend renew acquaintance with your neighbours and many of you invite friends from the city to come and explore Caledon. Everywhere you go during the night, people young and old are engaged in animated conversations and making new friends.

Second; Wines of the World brings in the skills and community spirit of all of our Rotarians and friends of Rotary. We marvel at the capabilities of each you who help make this event a success. Starting with the specialized planning,

Canada Day celebration planned for Kettleby

King Township’s only celebration of Canada Day is taking place in Kettleby, and is shaping up to be a celebration fit for royalty to mark the 150th anniversary of Confederation.

The historic hamlet itself is marking its 175th birthday, and Kettleby’s beautiful stone Christ Church is turning 125 this year. It goes without saying that settlement of the area predates these milestones by many years, and organizers are excited and proud to announce that the Manitou M kwa Singers of the Mississauga of the Credit First Nation that lived in the area for centuries, are going to officially open the festivities and perform on the main stage.

In addition to this important and entertaining group, there is a wonderful lineup of actors and musicians slated to take the stage all afternoon and into the evening. If hanging out at the beer tent and enjoying the kids’ play and a wide variety of music is not your bag, there is plenty else on offer. Food vendors, a marketing and logistics skills brought forth to the countless volunteer hours needed to pull off Wines of the World. This event would not be the success without you and our local business sponsors. We are blessed to live in a talented and generous community.

Finally; 100 per cent of the proceeds from Wines of the World go to supporting our annual giving programs of youth, community and international. From your contributions at Wines of the World, we are able to give back to those most in need.

Rotary was founded on the ideals of helping others (Service Above Self) and this is exemplified each and every year at Wines of the World.

Make sure you thank our sponsors (go to www.rotarywow.com to see the full list) and thank you for helping to make this a great evening. Happy Canada Day and see you in 2018.

craft show and demonstrations, a slew of old fashioned games and sports, face painting, historic tours, field entertainment and a spectacular fireworks display are just a few of the activities that will keep all well amused from 4 p.m. on.

So instead of drumming on the steering wheel in frustration as you inch to (or from) the cottage, come on down to the banks of Kettleby Creek and celebrate Canada Day in style in a happy and hassle free environment filled with your friends and neighbours. There’s lots of parking and no entry fee thanks in part to the Township of King, the government of Canada and the Kettleby Village Association, along with a series of corporate sponsors who have donated funds to make this all happen. There will be handicapped parking adjacent to the grounds, as well as a parking lot shuttle bus for those unable to walk to the grounds, all to ensure the everyone can attend the event of a lifetime.

First Cheers Caledon generated

For an inaugural event, last Friday's Cheers Caledon was a big success. It's estimated that 1,200 people attended to sample some locally brewed beer and cider, and have a good time in the process. Mayor Allan Thompson was on hand to welcome everyone to Cheers Caledon, accompanied by Caledon Councillors Jennifer Innis, Johanna Downey, Barb Shaughnessy, Gord McClure and Nick de Boer, as well as Councillor Michael Palleschi of Brampton.

WATCH OUT FOR PEDESTRIANS — ALL PEDESTRIANS

This is a time of year when many groups and individuals go out for a stroll along various local roads, and motorists have to watching out for them. A rather large group was crossing Albion Vaughan Road, near the intersection with Commercial Road last Monday afternoon, and several vehicles were backed for a couple of minutes as they passed.

Eritrean refugee family has finally come to a new home

By Constance Scrafield

Refugees arrive to safety and from dangers in many ways, very few of which are easy.

A married couple landed at Pearson Airport and were brought to Orangeville recently after a gruelling five years of waiting in Khartoum, Sudan after fleeing their homes in Eritrea.

While, for the past several years, the focus of the world has been on Syria, it is painful and hard to remember that there is similar suffering in many other countries and regions in the world. Eritrea, a small country on the northeast coast of Africa, has been named by the United Nations as having the worst human rights record in the world — which is saying a great deal. In addition, the country has been in conflict with neighbouring Ethiopia for years, which always causes chaos and losses for all concerned.

So, it was a real thrill to be on the spot, at the home of the Burnside family on Mono's Second Line, to welcome Yohana and Tuem Teweld coming from Eritrea — at last.

Years ago, Kiflom Wehleab, once he escaped from Eritrea, came to Canada and, having earned his engineering degree, worked for R. J. Burnside and Associates Limited in Orangeville and got to know the Burnside family. At one point, he went back to the Middle East to meet his wife-to-be, was kidnapped in Yemen, ransomed, got married in Bahrain and returned to Canada with his new wife, all with the help of the Burnside.

Then began the process of getting his brother Mesfin out of Eritrea. He, with his wife Fesseha, had managed to escape and to live through five years in Yemen, waiting and worrying for their papers to clear them to come here.

They made it, and Mesfin now cleans windows for a living and Fesseha does some cleaning, but they have three growing girls and a new baby.

"You wouldn't believe how hard they work," said Bob Burnside.

Fesseha's brother Tuem and his wife Yohana arrived after another five-year ordeal of paper work that finally came to a happy conclusion.

Mr. Burnside wanted everyone to know that Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson was very helpful in the concluding of this exercise. " . . . and Sandra, who works in the office, was really helpful about keeping us informed and re-assuring us that things were in the works," he said. "Although — can you believe it — at one time, they (Canadian officials) actually lost the file!"

Once the process with the Canadian government was in hand, Tuem and Yohana got married and became another part of the process.

The two of them made their perilous way out of Eritrea into Sudan ("Imagine, if you're fleeing to Sudan, how bad things must be," Mr. Burnside commented).

However, although they arrived to a UN "camp" in Sudan, they didn't stay there. Tuem and Yohana made their way to Khartoum, where they could keep in touch with the people here. As well, Tuem could work as a barber for a little money to feed themselves.

Lessons in being a refugee: if your medical papers go to Egypt for processing, it can take two years; but if the papers go to Italy, where they care for matters more seriously, it may only take four months.

All this generosity for this family has been extended privately by Bob and Nancy Burnside and Sharon and Holger Larsen.

"It started with Mesfin's brother," Mr. Burnside said. "When you get to know people and have some involvement in their lives — one by one. It means so much to Fesseha to have her brother here."

"We saw there was a need and they are our friends," Mr. Larsen added. "So, we just wanted to help."

It was a beautiful spring late afternoon. There was the chatter of children being given their dinner in the kitchen.

Yohana and Tuem sat on the couch with his sister, Fesseha, so happy and, quite admittedly, somewhat overwhelmed with the years of waiting and then suddenly, flying out of Khartoum to Cairo, to take the long flight to Pearson Airport: coming, in fact, out of the desert to this green and pleasant land. Now, they will live in Shelburne with Mesfin and Fesseha and begin their new lives.

Goodness knows when they last slept quietly and without fear.

This is what it is all about: this freedom to sleep without fear. No wonder they are anxious to work hard and do well.

It was a fun time at Inglewood Day

The Inglewood community came out last Saturday to mark the annual Inglewood Day festivities. As usual, the celebrations started with a parade along the main street of the hamlet. It was led by Andrea Moore and Dan O'Reilly of the Inglewood Schoolhouse Performers.

As the 150th anniversary of Canada fast approaches, many people were waving the flags of the occasion, including Oliver Valteau, nine months, who was visiting his cousin Madeline, 2.

There was plenty of colour represented in this float in the parade.

Michael Chabot AdventureMania was driving young folks around the grounds on this train.

There were plenty of contests at Inglewood Day. Ben Michael, 6, of Inglewood was trying to guess how many cookies were in this cookie jar.

Photos by Bill Rea

One interesting attraction was this Zorb Ball, which was brought to the festivities by Michael Chabot AdventureMania. Zachery Pesic, 4, of Brampton was trying to figure out how to get it where he wanted it.

There were a lot of representatives of Inglewood Minor Softball on hand to march in the parade.

Bandits make it tough for Warriors, Bulldogs in defeat

By Jake Courtepatte

A potential first round matching of the OJCLL playoffs between the Caledon Bandits and Six Nations Warriors could be interesting, if last Tuesday night was any indication.

The last place Bandits hosted the first place Warriors at Caledon East in their second meeting of the year, a match that on paper looked extremely one-sided.

It was actually Caledon that got on the board first, and second, surprising the Warriors with two goals within the first three minutes off the sticks of Darcy Tainsh and Dimitri Meszaros.

Six Nations bounced back with three unanswered markers of their own, but it was Caledon that held a 6-4 lead heading to the locker room.

Both sides exchanged three goals apiece in the second period, with Spencer Wood scoring twice to complete a hat trick.

Going up 10-7 with an early third-period goal from Jonathon Ferguson, Caledon squandered the lead with another three-goal effort from the Warriors, before regaining it with just less than five minutes left on the clock.

Six Nations tied it up a minute later, took the lead with just more than three minutes to go, and never looked back, handing the Bandits a heartbreaking 12-11 loss.

Having to quickly regroup for a road game the following day, the Bandits faced another tough opponent in the Halton Hills Bulldogs last Wednesday night.

Down by one heading into the third in a back-and-forth contest, Josh MacIsaac and Wood were able to pull Caledon close, though Halton added three of their own in an eventual 12-10 final score.

Wood notched his second hat trick in as many games, while Ferguson and Scott Edwards added three points of their own.

Caledon wrapped up their regular season schedule Tuesday in a game against the Oakville Buzz (results not known at press time). Playoff schedules are yet to be finalized.

Brewers hit a winning streak

By Jake Courtepatte

Chalk up three in a row for the Bolton Brewers.

The AA ball club won both games of a doubleheader last Thursday with the Alliston Athletics, their only action after another rainy week.

Alliston was able to get on the board in the first inning of the first game before a six-run second by the Brewers, thanks to a string of hits.

Both sides played evenly for the remainder of the game with Bolton cruising to a 9-5 victory.

Mike Blackwood earned the win on the mound, going four and a third innings while allowing just three hits and two earned runs.

Nick Pattinaro and Greg Keenan split the rest of the work.

The Bolton squad showed no signs of slowing down for the second half of the doubleheader, managing a whopping 18 hits in a 13-2 stomping.

Brett Bond, Brendan Lyons, Daniel Accardo and Trent Barwick each smashed a double in the game, while Blackwood legged out a triple, with the majority of the offence coming in the seventh and final inning.

Pattinaro and Keenan once again took to the hill, with Pattinaro earning the win thanks to a five-hit, two-run four innings of work.

Both Sunday and Monday's scheduled games were postponed due to weather.

The Brewers' streak of good play has vaulted them up to fifth place in the North Dufferin Baseball League standings, holding onto a record of 9-3-1.

Their run total of 113 is also the highest in the league, 10 more than the league-leading Orangeville Giants.

The two power hitting squads will meet Friday night in Orangeville for a first pitch time of 7 p.m.

Next weekend also marks the league's annual All-Star Game, played at Tiffin Park in Midland.

The Brewers are one of three teams to send three players to represent the East division, with Accardo, Tyler Milton and Luis Ortiz getting the nod.

Annual Inside Ride a success at Mayfield School

By Bill Rea
Students, staff and supporters spent a couple of hours recently riding exercise bikes in the gym at Mayfield Secondary School.
The event was the annual Inside Ride, put on by the Coast to Coast Against Cancer Foundation, and it raised more than $14,000 to fight childhood cancer and help with after-care treatment.
This year's event was dedicated to Kevin Paschalis, 16, a Grade 11 student at Mayfield who's been diagnosed with Hodgkin's lymphoma and was starting his last cycle of chemotherapy at the Hospital for Sick Children.

"He's got wonderful friends," his mother Jennifer, who was on hand for the event, declared. "As a cancer patient, that's all you can ask for."
Kevin's friend John Milkovich called the activity "an amazing event," stressing this year's edition comes close to home.
"He's a tough, strong Mayfield athlete," he said of Kevin. "I'm humbled by his courage and strength."

These students called their team Sink or Swim. The members are Julia Ungereanu, Juliet Boam, Kady Wellman, Kate Panzica, Piper Westlake and (on the bike) Angelyna Truong.

Team Canada consisted of Aiden Taylor, Hannah Longpre, Nathan Woods, Cole McNicol (on the bike), Kristin Seymour and Lindsay Appleton.

Maghan Scholz, Kira Klymciw, Stephanie Bisram, Jessica Marbella (on the bike), Jasmine Rana and Alexa DeJesus made up Team Guacamole.

These were The Incredibles. They consisted of Paisley Morrison, Alyssa Halls, Abbey Politeski, Aleshia Desilva W (on the bike), Esthe Cosgrove and Grace Paiva.

Liliana Scatozza, Bethney Namugera and Isabel Wojewoda will be representing Canada at the World Dance Championships in Mazowiecka, Poland in December.

Local dancers to represent Canada at World Championships in Poland

Several local dancers auditioned and have made it to the largest and most prestigious of all dance competitions — The World Dance Championships, this year will be held in Mazowiecka, Poland in December.

Selected to represent Canada are Bolton residents Bethney Namugera, Liliana Scatozza and Isabel Wojewoda, all who currently train on the competitive team at Sondra's Tri-Dance Company. All three young ladies currently attend St. Michael Catholic Secondary School in Bolton.

While most teens are doing other activities during the summer, this very talented youth group gladly give up their summer holidays as well as their weekends to train for this exciting experience and a chance to represent Canada on the World Stage.

Since there is no government support for Team Canada Dance, each member must raise their own funds to attend the World Championships. The young dancers are seeking the community support. Those who are able to help sponsor their experience are asked to contact Sondra's Tri-Dance at 905 857-9980 or visit www.tridance.com to send a direct message. All proceeds will go directly to their travel and registration expenses.

International Dance Organization Vice-President and Sports Director Fiona Johnson Kocjancic stated that the International Dance Organization promotes dancers as the true athletes that they are. In many European countries, dance is considered a sport.

The International Dance Organization has more than 250 thousand member dancers from six continents. This exciting World Championship format is Olympic Style, with only one Gold, Silver and Bronze being presented on the Podium with the World Champions National Anthem being played as the top three medalist flags are raised.

Team Canada Dance National Director Bonnie Dyer stated that Canada has been quite successful in all dance disciplines at the World Championships and this is mainly due to the high standard of training that local studios offer.

"It is also great to see the best of the best in Canada that come from various studios all working together as one team with one goal," she added, "and that is to represent Canada."

"Madiha's Story: Calling Caledon Home"

by Cassandra Briscoe, CCS Volunteer

From Pakistan, to Germany, to Toronto, Madiha and her family have finally found their home in Caledon.

Twenty-two year old Madiha has been living in Caledon for almost two years, and wouldn't change it for the world.

Although it is not as diverse as cities like Frankfurt or Toronto, Caledon welcomed her family with open arms and gave Madiha's parents the sense of belonging they had been searching for.

"People in Caledon are so friendly and welcoming. We were nervous at first, as we weren't sure what to expect. Even though my mother wears a hijab, she feels respected and comfortable around Caledon," Madiha said.

Madiha's parents are registered for LINC (Language Instruction for Newcomers to Canada) classes that CCS offers to adult immigrants. These classes provide necessary resources for immigrants to grasp the English language, giving them the opportunity to learn and excel in the working world.

Madiha on the other hand, had no problem learning the language herself. Having lived in three different countries over a 22 year period, Madiha is fluent in four languages. She first learned her mother-tongue of Urdu and Punjabi, which is the language she speaks to her mother and father.

Moving to Germany with her family at a young age, she quickly became fluent in German, residing in the European country for 12 years and completing most of her school years there. Her family then moved to Canada for a chance at an even better life, with more job opportunities to provide for their family.

Moving to a new country, leaving behind your friends, and not knowing a single word in English provided a challenge, but it was a challenge Madiha and the rest of her family accepted graciously.

"You have to explore new things to see what you like", Madiha said. "My parents are very open to new experiences and that's how I try to be.

Studying to be a teacher now, Madiha wants to help other children the way her teachers helped her. She tries to focus on the positive people who have inspired her experiences; like people at CCS who have helped her parents learn English and teachers, neighbours and community members who have given her family so much. Caledon's charm all comes down to the people who make it such a warm and welcoming place to call home.

How Do You See It?

Car show Sunday at Fines
The weather wasn't very cooperative, but Sunday's All Ford Show, presented by the Ontario Mustang Club and Fines Ford Lincoln, went ahead despite the rain. Proceeds from the event went to Caledon Meals on Wheels. The day included displays of some vintage automobiles, including this 1954 Ford Custom, which was shown by Doug and Joan MacLeod of Caledon East. "It's a pleasure to drive," he said.

Mario Vella of Stouffville said he's owned this 1949 Mercury Pick-up for 14 years, restoring it from scratch.
