

Get ready for Caledon Day June 15

The sixth annual Caledon Day is just a couple of weeks away.

It will be June 15, and it promises to be a day full of live performances, local entertainment and fun-filled activities for all ages.

This year's festivities will run from 2 to 11 p.m. and will be headlined by Canadian music sensation David Wilcox, who will perform from 8:30 to 10 p.m. Other entertainment will include performances by Toronto band iPod Shuffle, Belly Dance Troup, local talent and more.

A wide range of activities will be available throughout the day, including food and product vendors, kids' zone, David Arrigo and the Toronto 2015 Pan Am and Para Pan Am Games Activation Team, car and motorcycle show, dog demos, teen lounge with best-selling author Kelley Armstrong, senior's passport, silent auction, beer garden, U14 Tournament Round cup, sports zone and fun run, followed by grand finale fireworks at 10.

Since 2008, the Town has hosted the annual Caledon Day event, attracting more than 26,000 visitors from the local community and throughout southern Ontario to celebrate Caledon's rich and unique heritage, history and diversity. Caledon Day has grown from a small local fair to a large-scale community festival that is now regarded as Caledon's biggest family event.

All performances and activities during the day are free of charge.
