

More charges after You Tube video leads to suspects

A 34-year-old Caledon man is facing more charges after a home was broken into March 31.

During the course of their investigation, Caledon OPP received multiple tips from the public as to the identity of the suspects, thanks to a You Tube video posted online of the surveillance footage from the incident. As a result, police were able to arrest and charge the males caught on camera.

As a result of search warrants executed by Caledon OPP's Street Crime Unit, the one accused has additionally been charged with possession of a prohibited device or ammunition, careless storage of a firearm, having a prohibited device or ammunition, unauthorized possession of a firearm, 10 counts of possession of credit card data, nine counts of possession of a credit card, five counts of identity documents, three counts of possession of firearm or ammunition contrary to a prohibition order and two counts of unauthorized possession of a prohibited or restricted firearm.

Caledon OPP would like to thank all those who contacted police with information as to the identity of the people involved in the incident. Never underestimate the power of a phone call to police. It is with the public's assistance that the police can help victims of crime and hold lawbreakers accountable for their actions.
