Equestrian park gets a good workout

Jordan MacPherson Claims $35,000 Grand Prix

By Bill Rea

Captain Canada probably put it best Saturday.

"The only thing better than winning is watching you student win."

Those were the words of Olympic medalist Ian Millar after he was just squeezed out of first place in Saturday's $35,000 CSI2* RAM Equestrian Grand Prix at Caledon Equestrian Park. He was bested by his student Jordan MacPherson of Toronto.

It also provided a good test for the Palgrave facility. It's run by Equestrian Management Group (EMG), which is busy with the efforts to get the park ready to host the equestrian events at the 2015 Pan Am Games.

Millar said he was pretty impressed with what he's seen so far.

"I'm so proud of what the EMG Group is doing," he declared. "This is going to be the best facility that I've ever seen at the Pan Ams."

"That's what we're shooting for," commented EMG Managing Partner Craig Collis. "That's the point."

Millar is also enthused at the plan for indoor arena facilities at the site. That will mean indoor events can be held locally leading up to the Royal Winter Fair in the fall.

"With that flexibility, it's a game-changer," Millar declared.

Five riders were able to pass the test set by two-time Olympic course designer Leopoldo Palacios of Venezuela, successfully negotiating the first round track to advance to the all-deciding jump-off. There was almost a sixth. Beth Underhill of Schomberg turned in a clear round, but took a fraction of a second too long to do it, ending up with one time fault with her entry, Viggo.

Millar, a 10-time Olympian, led off by guiding his 2012 London Olympic mount Star Power to a second clear round in a time of 36.70 seconds. His early lead would be short-lived, however, as his student MacPherson followed with Piccobello du Val de Geer, her partner of the past three years. A fast pace and tight turns soon saw MacPherson flying through the timers in 34.50 seconds, slicing more than two full seconds off Millar's time.

"Ian went before me and set the track," said MacPherson, 23. "I watched him go, and knew what I had to do - pick up the pace, and keep going!"

MacPherson was nervous as three riders were still to follow. Colombia's Roberto Teran was on the pace until two rails fell near the end of the shortened track to leave him fifth in the overall standings with Tam Tam Hero, owned by ARK Partners. Jill Henselwood, Millar's silver medal

Some impressive academic averages at Caledon schools

By Nick Fernandes

The school year just ended produced a lot of high-performing students, and Caledon was well represented in that group.

The local high schools recently released the list of the top students in their respective Classes of '13.

Elise Huet was at the top of the class at Mayfield Secondary School with a 96.3 per cent average, and Ian Waudby Smith completed his program at Humberview Secondary School with 96.8 per cent.

As impressive as that sounds, the Peel District School Board reports five students have graduated this year from Turner Fenton Secondary School with 100 per cent averages.

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board also recently released the names of the top scholars at their various high schools. Caledon's own winners were Romeo Segota, who finished Grade 12 with an average of 93.50 per cent at St. Michael Catholic Secondary School in Bolton, and Julia McArthur competed her program at Robert F. Hall Catholic Secondary School with an average of 93 per cent.

Gaining the accolade was exciting for all the students.

"Towards the end of my schedule, I got really busy" Huet commented. "But I was working hard and it's exciting to see that pay off."

Hard work, of course, is the key to success according to these bright students, but other things can be just as critical to academic performance. Smith spoke about enjoying the work he was given, and choosing subjects that interested him personally, such as mathematics and physics.

"Basically, I never intended to over work myself" he said, never fearing doing that when working at subjects in which he was interested. "I took the courses I liked and enjoyed what I was doing. It was a lot easier to work hard."

For herself, Huet said she relied on organization to help her stay on top.

"Keeping a balanced schedule, good time management, make everything fit into a busy schedule," she said.

She identified regular extra-curriculars as an obstacle to this approach, and thanked her teachers for letting her work around it.

"With ski trips, I missed a lot of school, so I warned them beforehand so they can give me the work."

"It's an honor" said Segota. "It finally makes me feel like my hard work has paid off and it's being recognized."

Both of these students attribute their success to hard work and focus. "I worked really hard," McArthur said. "Just putting forth my best effort in everything."

She advised future students not to "settle for less than what you're capable of and you'll start getting the grades you want."

Segota gave special thanks to his friends and family, voicing how important it is to have a good support network to back up one's work ethic. He also stressed confidence as an asset.

"Don't second guess yourself," he said, advising others to be "confident and you know what you want you want" as a way to lessen the stress of heavy schoolwork.

Huet said she plans to go to the University of Guelph for engineering to get training and find out what she wants to do with her talents. While Smith plans to study at Waterloo in a systems design course that will give him training in software, mechanical, and electrical design. He wishes to do something entrepreneurial with his life. "I want to get involved in things that are new and emerging." he said, aspiring to be involved in coming technological changes. McArthur plans to go to the Brescia College of Leadership at Western University to pursue her interests in law and politics. Segota simply wants to work for the summer, before attending the Schulich School of Business at York, although he also wants to do something different with life eventually. A trip to Europe is on his mind.

By Nick Fernandes

New advancements in audio-visual technology can lead to the better functioning of government, at least according to a presentation given to Caledon council recently.

It was by the Town's Office of Purchasing and Risk Management, which put forth a report on several technologies and equipment that they propose should be installed in the council chambers.

There are indeed deficiencies in the current chamber set-up according to members of council. Mostly regarding the microphones and their sound pickup capability.

"A lot of the time you can't hear this guy because he's soft spoken," Councilor Allan Thompson said of Councillor Richard Whitehead, who sits directly to his left in the chambers. "We should have a range to adjust for voices."

The proposed upgrade package not only includes improvements to microphones, but a number of other additions intended to streamline council proceedings.

These include visual recognition for councillors who wish to speak, priority and next-in-line buttons, and an electronic timer and flat panel displays, which combined would help the chairperson and observers keep better track of who's speaking, who is next to speak, and for how long.

Though enhanced microphones and acoustics are something the council voice approval for, some of the other proposed upgrades they were less confident about.

"In Regional council, we have a lot of bells and whistles there," said Councillor Richard Paterak. "We don't use them much, whenever someone says 'Let's use them,' they get voted down."

He also suggested the use of clip-on microphones for delegations to make things more convenient and give a more natural sound. This proposal was opposed by Mayor Marolyn Morrison, who said she would "absolutely refuse" to have normal delegations use clip-on mics, because of the possibility they might not always face the council when they're supposed to be addressing them.

"I don't think we need the creme de la creme." the Mayor said.

Though some ideas, such as better sound and speaker recognition were well received, council was not receptive to the projected $450,000 cost for the full suite of upgrades. Especially since the capability for the current microphones to be extended was discovered during the session.

Region finds positive mosquito pool in Bolton

Peel Public Health reports a mosquito pool in Bolton has tested positive for West Nile Virus (WNV).

The positive-testing batch was collected in a trap in the area of King Street and Deer Valley Road.

This is the first positive-testing pool found this year in Caledon and is one of six found in Peel. Three of those were in the area of Kennedy Road and Queen Street in Brampton and two others were in Mississauga. As of July 27, there have been no confirmed human cases of WNV in the region

The adult mosquito surveillance program started June 10. Adult mosquitoes are being collected weekly from mosquito traps at 31 fixed locations throughout the region until late September. To date, 311 mosquito batches have been tested with the six positive results.

The Region received 17 stagnant water reports from residents during the week ending July 27.

The larviciding program started May 30 and will continue until Sept. 30. Larviciding involves applying environmentally-friendly products to reduce mosquito larvae (immature mosquitoes) living in stagnant water. The products are applied to municipal catch basins and selected sites on public property.

The second round of larviciding began in south Mississauga July 17. Crews have been working in north Mississauga and were expected to move into Brampton by the end of last week. The second round is indicated by a white dot on the catch basin grate. It takes three weeks to complete a round of larviciding. There will be three rounds of roadside catch basin larviciding this year.

Larviciding of catch basins in the green spaces of parks in Peel has started. The treatment of surface water sites on public lands is ongoing.

To date, there are 22 WNV-positive mosquito batches in Ontario: the six in Peel, four in Durham, two each in Halton and Hamilton, and one each in Chatham-Kent, Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, Leeds-Grenville and Lanark District, Middlesex London, Niagara, Perth District, Toronto and Windsor-Essex. There has been one probable human case of WNV reported in Huron County. Nationally, there have been 31 WNV-positive mosquito batches: the 22 in Ontario, five in Saskatchewan, three in Manitoba and one in Quebec. There are no human cases of WNV illness reported outside of Ontario.

As of July 27, there have been 31 human cases of WNV in the United States, including seven in each of Mississippi and South Dakota, and five in Nevada.

Residents can help reduce the number of mosquitoes around their homes by eliminating stagnant water on the property, and by following these tips:

- Empty or dispose of containers that can hold water, such as old tires, wheelbarrows, barrels, pails, toys and recycling bins.
- Turn over wading pools when they are not in use, remove water that collects on pool covers and make sure the pool's pump is circulating.
- Change water in birdbaths weekly.
- Clear leaves and twigs from eavestroughs.

For more tips, visit www.peelbugbite.ca

The Region will continue to provide information on Lyme disease and Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE) at www.peelbugbite.ca

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care also has information about Lyme disease on their website, www.ontario.ca/lyme

Police have safety tips for pedestrians and motorists

With the summer here, Caledon OPP is promoting pedestrian and motorist safety tips to residents.

They said it's unfortunate that in collisions involving pedestrians and motorists, it is the pedestrian who suffers the most. It is the responsibility of the both the driver and the pedestrian to ensure each other's safety.

Pedestrian Safety Tips

• Do not wear anything that reduces your vision or hearing ability; this includes any electronic device or wearing a hood or earmuffs.

• Stop, look, listen and think. Follow these four steps before stepping onto the road.

• Don't assume the vehicle will be able to stop. In wet and slippery weather conditions, a car might have difficulty stopping or could be experiencing mechanical problems. If you have the right of way, don't step onto the roadway until the vehicle comes to a complete stop.

• Cross at marked crosswalks or traffic lights, not in the middle of the street or between parked cars.

• If the "Don't Walk" signal begins to flash or once the light has turned yellow, do not cross.

• Watch for traffic turning at intersections or entering and leaving driveways; scan over your shoulder for turning vehicles.

• Wear bright or light-coloured clothing, or reflective strips, when walking in dusk or darkness.

• Make eye contact with drivers when crossing busy streets and continue to watch out for traffic the entire time you are in the crosswalk.

• Avoid walking in traffic where there are no sidewalks or crosswalks. If you have to walk on a road that has no sidewalks, walk facing traffic.

Motorist Safety Tips

• Obey traffic signals.

• Yield to pedestrians that are on the roadway.

• Expect the unexpected — a vehicle stopping in a lane beside you may be yielding to a pedestrian crossing the road.

• Never operate a motor vehicle while distracted.

• Remember, stay alert and slow down on residential street and through school zones.

Breaking the law can be costly. Fines for offences at pedestrian crossings and at crosswalks where there are traffic signals are $150 and three demerit points. All fines are doubled ($300) in Community Safety Zones near schools and public areas.

Parent or Caregiver Safety Tips

• Teach and reinforce the proper techniques for crossing the road safely with a child.

• Stress the importance of walking on the inside of the sidewalk, or where there are no sidewalks, as far away as possible from the travelled portion of the road.

• Remind children to stop before the edge of a sidewalk, driveways and where there are no curbs.

• If children need to use an electronic device such as a phone, make sure they stop walking and find a safe area to talk. Teach kids to look up and pay extra attention when using headphones and to remove them when crossing the street.

Junior firefighters blaze through training camp

The week-long program allowed children seven to 12 to work closely with professional firefighters to learn about fire safety and other aspects of the job; all while having fun.

Throughout the program, the campers received hands-on training in fire safety and prevention alongside Public Education Officer Gillian Boyd and Firefighter Darryl Thompson of Caledon Fire and Emergency Services. Campers learned about preventing fires, home escape planning and the importance of having working smoke alarms. Some of the other activities included extricating a vehicle using the jaws of life, properly using fire hoses and extinguishers and executing a fire evacuation. At the end of the week, the junior firefighters competed in an exciting Combat Challenge that tested the skills and knowledge they learned throughout their camp experience.

Caledon's Junior Firefighter Camp started in 2008 and the week-long programs are offered once in July and again in August. The second camp session runs from Aug. 12 to 16.

For more information or to register for the camp, contact the Town of Caledon's Recreation Department at 905-584-2272, ext. 4235.

Sirens for Life is today

Once again this summer, Caledon OPP, Caledon Fire and Emergency Services and Peel Regional Paramedic Services will band together to go above and beyond the call of duty.

Caledon's emergency services will partner with Canadian Blood Services once again at the "Sirens for Life" blood donor challenge today (Thursday).

Residents are welcomed to support their local emergency services and help save lives by giving blood at the Caledon Community Complex from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.

For more information or to book an appointment, visit www.blood.ca or call 1-888-2-DONATE (1-888-236-6283).

Charged fleeing police

Caledon OPP reports they were contacted by a citizen shortly after 7 p.m. about a possible impaired driver, which they eventually found in the area of Castlederg Sideroad and Duffy's Lane. Officers tried to get the vehicle to stop, but the driver took off. They eventually discovered that the vehicle had ended up in a ditch and the driver fled on foot.

Extra patrols were called out, and a man was eventually found in the area of Regional Road 50 and Old Church Road.

He was charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle, driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in his system and flight from police. His licence was suspended on the spot, and his vehicle was impounded for seven days.

Millar saw 'synergy' between horse and rider in Saturday's event teammate at the 2008 Beijing Olympics, was clear but a time of 38 seconds saw her finish in fourth with New Idol Z, a nine-year-old grey Zangersheide mare owned by Juniper Farms. Ainsley Vince of Burlington was the final challenger, but a time of 37.89 seconds with her grey mare, Darling, left her third in the final placings for The Darling Group.

Millar said he's riden 14-year-old Belgian Warmblood mare, as has his daughter Amy. But it quickly became clear there was a synergy between MacPherson and the horse.

"We thought she'd be a fantastic horse for Jordan," he remarked. "This horse was better for Jordan than anyone else."

Jay Hayes from Orangeville had taken top spot the previous week in the $20,000 Ram Equestrian Grand Prix at Palgrave on Riva, but they didn't have the same good fortune Saturday. One railing came down during their round, and with four jump[ing faults, they had to settle for seventh place.

Chris Sorensen of Caledon had two mounts in the event. He picked up four jumping faults on Wriomf to come in ninth, behind Vince on Frieda. Sorensen also competed on Bobby, but they knocked down two railing for eight faults and a 12th place finish.

Belfountain resident Yann Candele was competing aboard Carolla Z, and they finished in 11th place with four faults.

Caledon resident Chris Sorensen was guiding Wriomf over this jump, one of two mounts he had entered Saturday.

Survey points to Peel's ethnic diversity

By Nick Fernandes

Peel has proven to be one of the most culturally and ethnically diverse regions of Ontario, as of the new results for the voluntary National Household Survey that replaced the national census.

Due to this, the survey may not be entirely representative of Peel's 1.3 million people.

More than half of Peel's current population have identified themselves as immigrants, with the percentage being slightly higher than that of Toronto. Half of the more recent immigrants to Peel reportedly hail from India. This amounts to more than 50 per cent of Peel's population being part of a visible minority. The Household Survey also collected information on religious identity, in which nearly 90 per cent identified themselves as religious. Less than 60 per cent of this group said they were Christian, followed by a 10th claiming no religious affiliation, and then Muslims, Sikhs, and Hindus, with Peels Sikh population being the highest in the Greater Toronto Area (GTA).

In terms of employment, a little more than 90 per cent of Peel's population over the age of 15 is part of the labour force, similar to the rate for the entire GTA. Of this sample, over 80 per cent use personal transport to get to their places of work, while a little over a 10th use public transport and the rest walk or cycle.

Melville White Church will be on display for Doors Open

Belfountain Heritage Society and Melville White Church will be hosting events next weekend in recognition of Doors Open.

Hills of Headwaters Tourism Association reported encaustic artist Deborah Danforth will be showing her beeswax and acrylic creations, while putting on demonstrations of Impasto Modelling Wax Saturday (Aug. 17) at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

As well, Belfountain clay artist Wendy Mitchell-Burke will be demonstrating clay sculpture and potter's wheel throughout the day.

Sunday (Aug. 18) will feature First Nations artisan and educator Naomi Smith, who will be presenting a slide show on local habitation of First Nations people in the area at 11 a.m., as well as 1 and 3 p.m.

There will also be a visual journey of historical native beadwork, examining the role of beads as a forum for adaptation, survival and creative expression of the Northeast and Woodland Native groups of this region. In the early days of settlement, non-natives continued to be enchanted by such things. This natural curiosity cultivated a way of survival for Native people through the creation, trade and sale of beadwork throughout Canada.

Other local attractions that will be part of the Doors Open feature for the weekend will be Alton Mill with guided and self-guided tours taking place both Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tours will focus on the history of the Mill, as well as the work to repurpose the space from its industrial days to its current use as an arts and cultural hub.

Old Caledon Township Hall will also be part of the tour. Built in the summer of 1875 to serve as a courthouse and hall, the Church of England and Grange No. 174 used it as a meeting place. It is remembered as a social centre where many dances, showers, euchre matches and public meetings were held. It now houses the Caledon Townhall Players. The hall, at 18365 Hurontario St. in Caledon village, will be open for tours with speakers Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Other sites on the tour will include Dufferin County Museum and Archives at the corner of Airport Road and Highway 89, Orangeville Public Library, Orangeville Town Hall Opera House, Shelburne Town Hall, St. Mark's Anglican Church in Mono and Westminster United Church in Orangeville.

Five days of fiddling around at championships

Sponsored by the Rotary Club of Shelburne, the event will feature Canada's top fiddlers in competition for thousands of dollars in prizes. Community events in conjunction with the Canadian Open Old Time Fiddle Championship include camping, a giant fiddle parade, an open air market, Saturday afternoon Cape Ceol fiddle and stepdance show, fiddle jam sessions, concert by Everything Fitz with special guests Nate Douglas and Emily Flack, beer garden, Battle of the Bands, non-denominational church service, 24-hour meals and entertainment at the Legion, and community pork barbecue. Local bands, That 60s Show and Glory Days (Bruce Springsteen tribute), will perform at the Entertainment Gardens.

The Canadian Open Old Time Fiddle Championship starts with the playdowns tomorrow (Friday at 1 and 7 p.m. at the Centre Dufferin Recreation Complex (Shelburne arena). Classes that will compete in the afternoon include the young (nine and under, 12 and under) and the young at heart (56 and over). The evening will feature the remaining classes.

The contest finals will happen Saturday (Aug. 10) at 6 p.m. with the best fiddlers competing for more than $17,000 in prizes. The evening will also feature entertainment by the Black Family, as well as the judges' showcase. The judges for this year's competition are renowned fiddlers Ian Hamilton, Brian Hebert and Doug McNaughton.

The Black Family consists of 10 children ranging in age from five to 21. They have made music a large part of their family life. Their music has taken them to many small towns in Ontario. Their music, ranging from old-time fiddle tunes to vocal favorites from years past, has added many happy times, memories and laughter to their family life. They are sure to get your toes tapping and your hands clapping!

Today (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m., the Rotary Club will be pleased to welcome Everything Fitz, a six-piece family band featuring four of Canada's finest young musicians. With roots in the Canadian old-time fiddle tradition and Ottawa Valley step dancing, their high energy stage show combines a variety of musical styles — everything from traditional jigs and reels, bluegrass, swing, Celtic and gospel to novelty numbers and choreographed dance routines.

The group features Julie Fitzgerald, the 2009 Canadian Grandmasters Fiddle Champion and 2010 Canadian Grandmasters and Canadian Open winner, as well as her brother Tom, who won both the 2012 Canadian Open Fiddle Championship as well as the Canadian Grandmasters.

The family group will be joined by special guests Emily Flack and Nate Douglas. Emily, a multi-talented performer has been a guest artist with Leahy and Natalie MacMaster and will provide vocal numbers as well as piano and step dancing. Nate is a graduate of the music programs at Western University and Humber College. He is a much sought-after guitar player and recently toured with Natalie MacMaster.

Read digital magazines through public library

Caledon Public Library has announced its newest resource, digital magazines.

As of May, more than 80 magazine titles will be available free to anyone with a valid Caledon Public Library card.

This new e-resource will feature such popular magazines as Canadian Living, Consumer Reports, Elle, Men's Health, Maclean's and Rolling Stone; in other words, something for everyone. Readers can easily search for what they are passionate about, share with friends and save.

"No more waiting to check out the latest issue," commented Chief Librarian Bill Manson, "all the subscriptions are available 24/7 with simultaneous access, so multiple people can access the same issue at the same time."

Digital magazines can be read online from any computer, tablets or smartphones, or with the Zinio app on any Apple and Android devices.

"Another bonus is that the issues never have to be returned, so no overdue fines," Manson added.

As well, patrons can still clip from their favourite magazines without any guilt, and the Library doesn't have to worry about printed copies getting lost, damaged or destroyed.

For more information about this addition to the library's e-resources collection, drop by any branch or visit the website a caledon.library.on.ca

Local equestrians hosting summer of spectacular show jumping

By Jordan Nunziato

Hayes Co., the group of horse enthusiasts based in Mono known for hosting some of the top horse show jumping tournaments in North America, will be hosting yet another exciting event at the Orangeville Fairgrounds (OAS Centre) from Aug. 14 to 18.

It will be the CSI2* Orangeville International.

Ainsley Hayes, executive director of Hayes Co., is excited to be able to showcase local talent at this most prestigious event.

"The CSI2* designation is from the International Equestrian Federation, which is the top governing body of our sport. It's a big deal," she said.

The tournament runs for five days, Wednesday through Sunday. Hayes said that the biggest day is the CSI2* $50,000 Zucarlos Grand Prix Sunday, which is presented by Kubota Canada and Stewarts Equipment.

"It's called the Zucarlos Grand Prix because it's being held in memory of my father's 1992 Barcelona Olympics horse, Zucarlos," she said. "He passed away this year, a couple of months ago. He was 32. He lived a long and good life, but that's our way to help remember him and celebrate his life."

The $25,000 Hayes Co. Open Welcome will kick off the event Aug. 16 at 4 p.m. with a splash.

The $10,000 Highland Meadows Modified Grand Prix will entertain spectators Saturday, starting at 2 p.m.

Following the Grand Prix will be the $5,000 Canadian Hunter Derby.

"That's the Hunters, which is judged on grace and performance," Hayes said. "This is a little bit more of a challenging class because the jumps are more natural obstacles. It's a cool class to watch. It's longer than a normal Hunter class."

Also Sunday, before the Grand Prix, the Nationwide Auto Warranty 'Win a Car' series will be take place.

"A Kia will be presented to a junior rider, someone under the age of 18, who wins the series," Hayes said, adding that it's not a lease, and they get to actually keep the vehicle. "It's a series that's been going on since May, and they get a car."

"It's a pretty unprecedented move in North America," she added. "Last year we gave away two cars."

Saturday and Sunday, among the variety of events, a kids' zone will be available, which will include miniature ponies, bouncy castles and face painting.

"As well, we have boutiques that are not just for horse people," Hayes commented. "There's jewelry, there's clothing and there's different boutiques that come."

"It's for the horse lover and non-lover alike," she added.

There will be a VIP tent which anyone may purchase tickets for to view the various events.

"The VIP tent is preferred seating," Hayes observed. "It's a catered luncheon and bar. It's a nice relaxed atmosphere for people to come in, sit down and enjoy (the tournament). The VIP tent is premium seating."

There will also be a beer tent with cider and beer tasting events.

Admission is free Wednesday and Thursday. Friday and Saturday is $5 per person and Sunday is $10.

Admission is free for children six and younger.

Don't forget drowning is preventable

If the headline to this piece seems familiar, there's a good reason.

We used those exact words a little more than a year ago. We were coming out of a weekend last July in which three young people died in two separate tragedies in Ontario, an they took place a couple of days after a little girl had drowned near Montreal.

And now it seems we are reliving this all over again, in light of last week's tragedy that claimed the life of a little girl in Vaughan.

The loss is tragic, and also senseless, because incidents like these can be prevented. But in order to do that, it takes vigilance, and a clear understanding of just how fast these situations can develop.

The grieving mother of a young child who drowned last year summed it up well; "It happened so fast."

How very right she was! As we stressed a year ago, it doesn't take long at all.

In a matter of just a couple of seconds, a child playing near water, be it on the side of a pool, on a dock or just wading, can suddenly be in serious trouble with next to no warning. And children who suddenly find themselves under water don't scream or make noise. There can easily be nothing to raise an alarm until it's too late.

Some of us have actually seen such occurrences, such as a child who's been standing on the steps in a pool, having a good time, deciding to go back into the water for a bit more fun without telling anyone, and going down one step too many. Some of us have been in situations like that, and they have ended happily. It causes nightmares to think what happens when there's no adult around to raise the alarm.

In light of the tragedies we wrote about last year, there were a number of useful suggestions offered by various authorities, like the Office of the Chief Coroner of Ontario, The Royal Life Saving Society Canada, etc. A lot of these recommendations really involved little more than using common sense, and they also appreciated the reality that it's not just children who are at risk.

Learning to swim is one of the recommendations that was made, along with making sure that people wear a lifejacket or a personal flotation device when on the water, even if one is a strong swimmer, as fatigue can set in very quickly. And naturally, adults should closely supervise children at all times around water.

But the consequences involved here are not simple. There is a heavy reality involved, and the real tragedy is it could well happen again, with no warning at all.

Our Readers Write

Thank-you on behalf of C3

So many uniquely supportive people live and thrive in our town and without them, Caledon would not be nearly as great a place to live.

Recently, two of my athletes (Andrew Yorke of Caledon East and Taylor Reid of Inglewood) and I were recognized at the Town's Volunteer and Sports Recognition Evening.

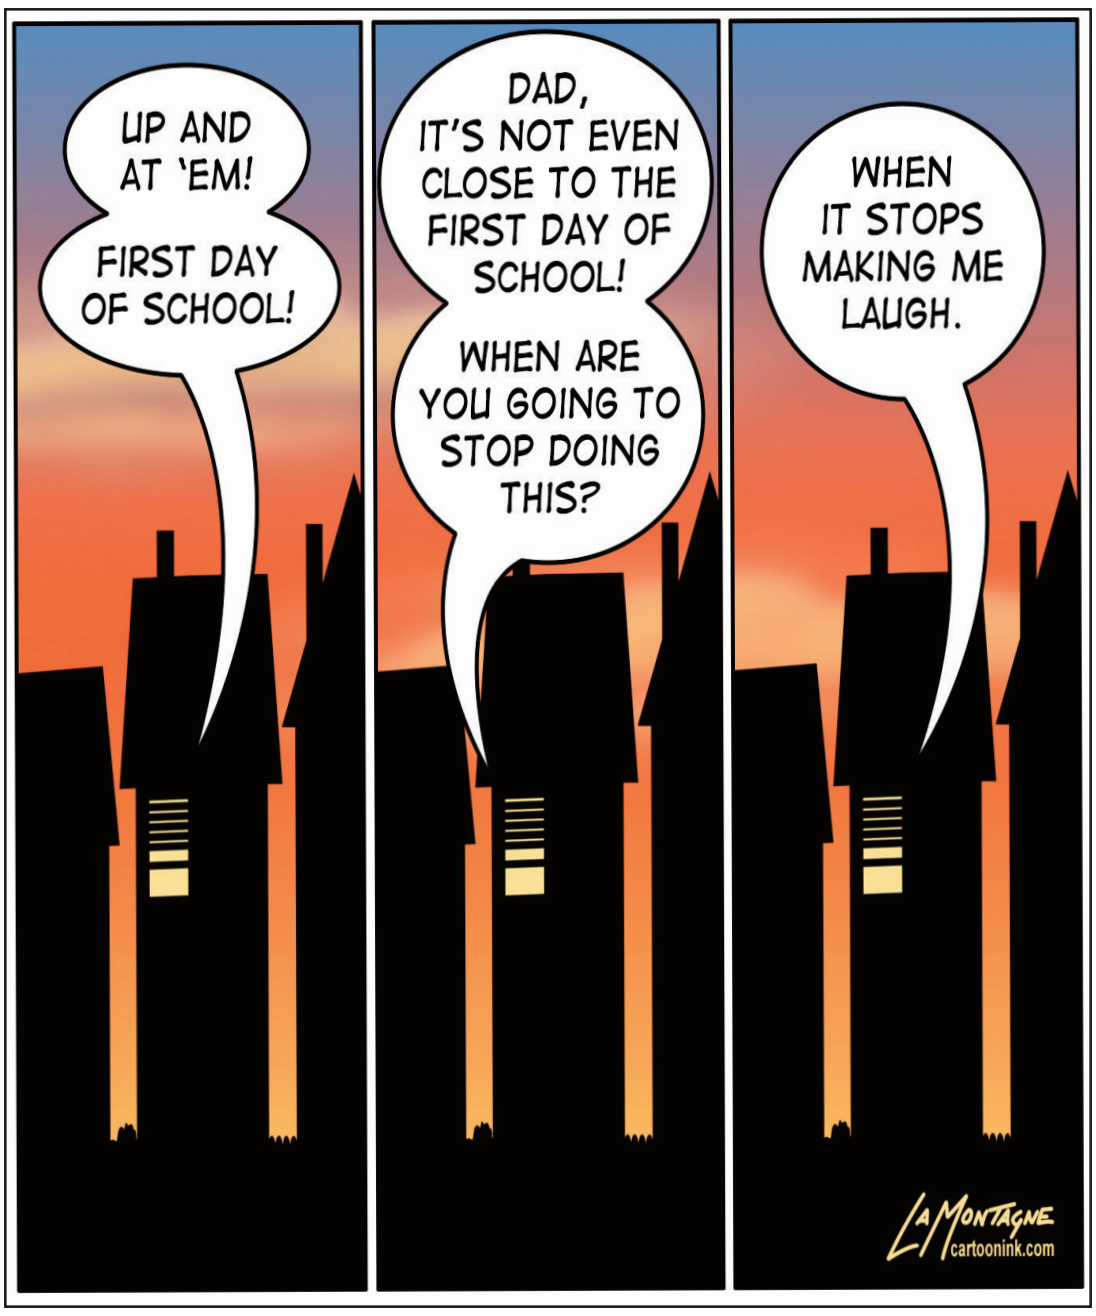

On behalf of Andrew, Taylor and myself, I want to thank the Town of Caledon Recreation Department for such a great evening and for the very generous recognition. Andrew and Taylor are just two of the amazing elite C3 athletes who have worked tirelessly over the past decade to become internationally recognized sportsmen. They do pride to their families, their past high schools and to the Town of Caledon. You will see more from them and their C3 teammates in weeks and years to come.

I can say unconditionally that without the great support of hundreds of Caledon volunteers, that C3 could not host the amazing races (Kids of Steel and Fall Run Festival) and without those events, our young athletes would not have anywhere to get a start.

Special thanks to the C3 board, to race director Stewart Barclay and to Kinetico, Royal Containers and Benson Steel. Without these three amazing companies my athletes and I would not have been able to excel.

Keep on supporting Caledon athletes, events and businesses.

You have say on what gets in

Bill Rea

I think people could be forgiven for wondering if the sickos out there get a little too much attention in the media.

If they do, then I guess I could be classified as being part of the problem for writing about it here, but I'll do it anyway.

Take last Thursday (Aug. 1). The front page of the Toronto Sun featured a picture of notorious school-girl murderer and serial rapist Paul Bernardo. I think like many people, I recognized who was in the picture before I even bothered to read why he was in the news again.

The Sun is one of the local daily papers I usually buy every morning, and this day was no exception. I confess my curiosity got the better of me, so I sat down to read the story as soon as I returned to my office with the papers (I got myself a cup of coffee before the reading, respecting that there are priorities in life).

Like many of you, I learned that Bernardo was applying to be transferred to a medium security prison, as opposed to the maximum-security accommodations he's been enjoying in the soon-to-be-closed Kingston Penitentiary.

There were follow-up stories in a couple of papers the following day, quoting people who might have some influence in the matter who were saying that Bernardo might as well forget it. And then I saw a column in Saturday's Sun, praising the prospect of his request being denied.

As little use as I have for a guy like Bernardo, I have no problems with him making such requests, or applying for adjustments in his accommodations. He can ask for anything he likes, and the reason I don't think any of us should get our knickers in a twist is because we all know what the answer will be for most of the requests.

My readings last week informed me Bernardo will be eligible to apply for parole in 2020. Apply away, Paul! Knock yourself out! You and I are not likely to bump into each other on a sidewalk any time in this century (or the next couple, for that matter).

I remember reading an account of his existence in prison many years ago, not long after he was sent away for life. The story even included the dimensions of his cell, and a wee bit of measuring estimates with my eyes told me his cell was roughly the same size as the bathroom of the apartment in which I was living at the time. Realizing that the equivalent of my bathroom was likely to be this guy's world for the rest of his days was kind of symbolic and actually rather satisfying.

So if he wants to ask for adjustments in the type of facility he's held in, let him ask.

But the fact that a request was deemed front-page news was a little up-setting for some people. The matter was even briefly discussed in the office last Thursday, with a couple of negative comments being tossed in.

Whatever some of us might think about giving this guy so much attention, the reality is he sells newspapers, a point which I take credit for making in the course of the office conversation.

And I can see one positive coming from all this attention. His notoriety is so strong that he's going to have a hard time ever getting parole. So maybe seeing him on the front page occasionally has some advantages.

When I saw the headline in the morning, I figured the story would dominate talk radio for the day, and it did. But not as much as one might have expected. One reason for that, I think, was the amount of play and air time given to Ariel Castro. He's the piece of garbage who held three women captive in his Cleveland home for about 10 years. He was sentenced last Thursday life in prison, and another 1,000 years was tacked on for good measure. I hope someone is put in charge of counting to 1,000.

There was a lot of talk about that, when commentators weren't talking about Bernardo.

One point that was made repeatedly dealt with the amount of time Castro was given to address the court at his sentencing. I have heard various estimates on how long he spoke, ranging from 20 to 40 minutes, with some commentators suggesting there should be limits on how long a person in that position should be permitted to hog a microphone.

I guess I could have heard portions of his address, if I had been so inclined, either through the likes of CNN or even on the internet. It's possible I could have caught the whole thing, had I been interested. The fact is I really wasn't interested. Oh yeah, I listened to accounts and portions of his comments on the radio as I was driving home that night, and read accounts in the papers the next day. No matter how long he yakked, it is obvious Castro devoted the bulk of the time being absurd.

So I can understand why some observers would be upset at the amount of time Castro took up to be stupid, but my inclination would be to let him rant, especially since this would be the last public statement we're ever likely to hear from the guy. I think we all have better things to do than judicially muzzling perverts in the middle of their final statements. Let him talk, then lock him up. That's the wise way to deal with things.

The problem is I suspect this is not the last we're going to hear from this guy. He'll manage to get into the news again, as surely as Bernardo does.

The fact that Bernardo can make news so easily is not something I'm inclined to blame him for, apart from the fact that it's the crimes he committed that maintains his prominence.

I have heard people accuse Bernardo and his former wife Karla Homolka of being publicity hounds, but I have never believed it. Although I am aware of many occasions in which one of them have made headlines (last Thursday being the most recent example) I am not aware of any occasion when either of them sought media attention. Quite the contrary, I believe it's the media that looks for excuses to put them into the public eye, and the reason for that is simple to explain.

Like I pointed out to my colleagues in the office last week, Bernardo sells newspapers, whether we like it or not.

That has always been the case, has it not?

People still pay attention to what goes on with Charles Manson and his followers, if for no other reason than they're interested.

I guess part of the media's job is reporting on things that people are interested in. It doesn't matter if there's any sensible reason for them to be interested.

As I often tell people, the day this world starts making sense, there'll be no further use for newspapers, and I'll be out of work.

I'll have you all know I'm still employed.

Caledon's trail systems are there for everyone to enjoy

Mayor's Report

By Marolyn Morrison

The Town of Caledon features more than 65 parks and has access to 260 kilometres of trails.

Our interconnected trailway system is second-to-none in Ontario and our own Caledon Trailway is more than 35 km long. In 1989, the Town purchased a section of an abandoned railway and in 1994, work began to create what is now known as the Caledon Trailway; a natural trail system that promotes the enjoyment and appreciation of our community's unique cultural and natural features. The trail bisects all major landscape features in Caledon: the Humber and Credit Rivers, the Oak Ridges Moraine and the Niagara Escarpment. Stationlands Park can be found in Caledon East (the site of the Trans Canada Trail pavilion), and the trail also passes through Palgrave, Cheltenham and Inglewood. Caledon's Trans Canada Trail pavilion was the first of its kind in Canada, built in 1996. The park also features a pond and Caledon's Walk of Fame.

There are a number of trails in Caledon, including the Bruce Trail, a hiking trail following the Niagara Escarpment from Niagara to Tobermory; the Humber Valley Heritage Trail, a hiking trail from Bolton to Palgrave, along the scenic Humber River; the Oak Ridges Trail, 10 km of this trail is in Caledon, and it links with the Caledon Trailway just outside of Palgrave; and the Grand Valley Trail, with six km of this trail in Caledon, starting in Alton and going east to Lake Erie to name just a few.

An up-to-date, interactive map of the Caledon Trailway and the many other trailways is available on the Town's website (www.caledon.ca).

The Caledon Trailway can be used by pedestrians, horseback riders, cyclists and cross-country skiers. Cyclists must give pedestrians the right of way and access on the trail. Pedestrians and cyclists must yield to horses and riders. All pets are to be on a leash and of course, the stoop and scoop rule applies. As the trailway abuts private property, we ask you to be courteous at all times and respect private property by ensuring you remain on the trail.

Because our trails are kept in a natural state, they are not maintained during the winter and unauthorized motor vehicles are not permitted at any time on any off-road trail within the Town of Caledon. We ask you to report parks and trail maintenance concerns and vandalism to the Parks and Recreation Department at 905-584-2272, ext. 4248.

There are so many options for people of all ages to enjoy outdoor recreation and I encourage you to make the great outdoors a part of your active lifestyle.

New option for Old Age Security now available

Ottawa Journal

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

Many of us are benefiting from worldwide advances in health, fitness and science, and as a result, Canadians are living longer.

This reality presents all kinds of choices and adjustments, from personal decisions about careers and retirement, to the need for governments to develop and amend policies and programs.

People today are taking many different paths to retirement and some seniors are choosing to work longer. To improve flexibility and choice in retirement planning, the government of Canada announced the new voluntary deferral option for the Old Age Security (OAS) pension.

As of July 1, Canadians now have the option to voluntarily defer their OAS pension for up to five years in exchange for a higher monthly amount. For every month they delay receipt of their OAS pension, they will receive an increased monthly benefit of 0.6 per cent per month, up to a maximum of 36 per cent at age 70.

People can defer their OAS pension for as little as one month or as much as 60 months. For example, if you were to turn 65 today and decided to delay receiving your OAS pension for one year, your monthly amount would increase by 7.2 per cent (0.6 per cent times 12 months).

People should consider their personal situations when deciding when to start receiving their OAS pension, including their financial status, life expectancy, and wants and needs. It is important to note that if people delay their OAS pension, they will not be eligible to receive the Guaranteed Income Supplement and their spouse or common-law partner will not be eligible to receive the Allowance until their OAS pension begins.

For more information on voluntary deferral and how it may affect your retirement plans, visit our website at www.servicecanada.gc.ca/oaschanges

Partnership program helps get wandering dementia patients home

To alleviate stress and offer peace of mind, the Canadian MedicAlert Foundation has teamed up with the Alzheimer Society of Canada to launch the MedicAlert Safely Home program.

This program is aimed at quickly identifying those who are lost and assist in a safe return home.

Summer is a time for vacations and spending more time outdoors, but it's also a time to be extra vigilant for people who are caring for someone with Alzheimer's or some other form of dementia. People with dementia can become lost, often without warning, and have no idea how to get home. This can be a frightening experience for the lost person and their families.

Available nationwide, the program is designed to quickly identify those who are lost and assist in a safe return home.

"This new program is an essential resource for keeping people with dementia safe." observed Alzheimer Society of Canada CEO Mimi Lowi-Young. "Registering with the program is an important step family members can take in supporting people with dementia who are at risk of wandering and becoming lost. By collaborating with Canadian MedicAlert Foundation, we're answering a need which will become even more critical as our population ages and more Canadians develop this disease."

MedicAlert Safely Home members select a MedicAlert ID to wear at all times. Through a unique 24/7 emergency hotline, inscribed on the ID, first responders are granted immediate access to that person's complete medical profile, as well as emergency contact information. When a member with Alzheimer's disease or other dementia is found — even if they're unable to answer basic personal questions like where they live — MedicAlert will provide critical information and immediately notify emergency contacts.

"Anyone living with Alzheimer's disease should have a MedicAlert membership," Canadian MedicAlert Foundation CEO Robert Ridge said. "In addition to helping ensure that people with dementia can find their way safely home, the sophisticated MedicAlert database stores full medical information, including what medications they are taking, information about allergies or conditions and a record of their medical history."

Ridge added that all other reasons aside, registering for the program provides families and caregivers with invaluable peace of mind, knowing that those in their care are as safe as possible.

Julie Foley, whose husband Lowell has Alzheimer's disease, agreed.

"There is still no cure for Alzheimer's disease, so safety is absolutely essential," she said. "It's one of the first things we discussed when my husband was diagnosed. This new program is an easy and subtle support which provides both of us reassurance. Every minute counts."

Anyone registered in the MedicAlert Safely Home program will have all the benefits of a full MedicAlert membership, including:

- Fully customized lifesaving IDs a team of MedicAlert medical editing professionals works with the family member to ensure that the information engraved on the back of the ID is as relevant and informative as possible.
- The unique 24/7 emergency hotline that gives first responder immediate access to the person's detailed MedicAlert profile.
- Immediate family and emergency contact information.

MedicAlert Safely Home membership is $60 for one year and includes a free MedicAlert "Blue" ID for first-time registrants that's exclusive to people living with dementia. As a registered charity, MedicAlert also offers alternate payment programs, such as prepaid options and for those who cannot afford a membership, a subsidy program.

National Affairs

First, a little political history.

In 1969, in the face of the record-breaking, uninterrupted 43-year history of Tory rule in Ontario, an unknown Anglican archdeacon named Kenneth Bolton stunned the political world by winning a by-election in the riding of Middlesex South for – of all parties – the NDP.

This was a riding that had been solidly Tory, seemingly forever, and was on the outskirts of London, home to the popular premier John Robarts, a man who had cruised to yet another easy majority government just two years earlier. The Tories had expected a cakewalk, but didn't get it.

As you'd expect, NDP officials were jubilant on election night and offered the by-election as evidence that they were on the march and the Tories were in trouble.

But just two years later, under new Tory premier Bill Davis, the Tories won an even bigger majority – the biggest in Ontario history up to that time – and Bolton was easily defeated by the Tories in Middlesex South.

Which brings us, as you may have guessed, to last week's five Ontario by-elections, where the ruling Liberals, clearly in political trouble, lost three of the five ridings they had held, giving up two to the NDP and one to the Tories.

NDP Leader Andrea Horvath, much like 1969 NDP leader Donald MacDonald, proclaimed that her party's strong showing bodes well for her party's future and is an ill wind for both the Tories and the Liberals. We'll see.

There is little doubt that the Liberals are suffering from the fallout of a series of scandals under former premier Dalton McGuinty. It is true, as current Premier Kathleen Wynne has said, that by-elections are often an easy chance for people to send a message, since they know their vote will not change the government makeup from one party to another.

And it is equally true that historically speaking, the NDP does better in by-elections than they do in general elections because it allows them to focus their union organizations on a few ridings rather than have to spread them out across the entire province.

But it is also true that the Liberals hadn't lost a by-election in a riding they had held since 2007. Last Thursday they lost three of them, two of which had been held by powerful cabinet ministers.

As for Hudak, he had to be happy to see Toronto's deputy mayor Doug Holyday give his party a long-sought foothold in Toronto, but it was a mixed bag for him, given the fact that public opinion polls – which continue to be way off base in election after election – had the Tories leading in two other ridings.

Hudak is clearly less popular than his party is, a situation which is the exact reverse for Wynne. Granted, leaders don't have to be loved to win – and many popular leaders haven't won – but it wouldn't hurt the Tories if Hudak decided at some point to get a personality transplant and appear a tad more humane and humorous to people.

In Etobicoke-Lakeshore, where Toronto Mayor Rob Ford openly campaigned for Holyday against Toronto councillor Peter Milczyn, the provincial Liberals were outraged over Ford's efforts. The day before the election, Transportation Minister Glen Murray – a former Winnipeg mayor who should know better – thundered, "A provincial election is none of the mayor's business."

Really? Surely elections are everybody's business. Anyway, Wynne and some of her ministers had no hesitation in knocking Ford when the Toronto Star and others were caught up in a feeding frenzy to paint the mayor as unfit to govern. But I guess Murray thinks it's okay for them to comment on City Hall, but not okay for City Hall to comment on Queen's Park. And odd view of free speech, don't you think?

Another humorous aspect of the Etobicoke-Lakeshore race was that Milczyn, the Liberal, constantly referred to Holyday as running for the Hudak-Harris team. That's Mike Harris, of course, the former Tory premier who has been out of office for 10 years. Even when he was in office, Hudak, a relative newcomer at the time, held a couple of minor cabinet posts. He was hardly a major player.

Wynne, on the other hand, was a senior minister for McGuinty. She clearly knew all about the gas plant boondoggle – particularly as deputy leader of the party's last election campaign – and, despite her empty rhetoric about a "new" Liberal government, she's stuck with the McGuinty brush.

So there you have it. Five by-elections are done. The opposition can't do much until a Throne Speech or budget next Spring, so Wynne's minority government continues to limp along. The only real impact of the by-elections is that the results make the opposition parties more keen for a general election and give the Liberals more pause.

Either way, that's not such a bad thing.

28-7 win over Orangeville

Express Varsity team captures OMFL Championship

By Brian Lockhart

It was a stellar season that saw the TNT Express Varsity team suffer only one loss while steam rolling through the league and winning seven games.

The team capped it Sunday with a 28-7 win over the Orangeville Outlaws to capture the Ontario Minor Football League championship.

Their impressive season included a 65-6 semifinal win over the Cambridge Lions.

The Express entered the final game as a first-place team, having scored 259 points for the season while allowing only 61.

They opened the scoring in the first quarter with a long pass from quarterback Andrew Tee to receiver Colin Hall who ran down the sideline to score.

The game was tied at seven when the Orangeville squad made it to the one-yard line then scored on the next play.

A second Express TD late in the half gave the TNT squad a seven-point lead when a successful convert gave them the extra point.

Running back Brian Palmer scored in the second half on a wild run through the pack and the convert gave the Express a 21-7 lead heading into the fourth quarter.

The final blow came with just 38 seconds left when Hall notched his second touchdown of the game on another long pass that carried him through to the end zone.

"The wind played a big factor, it took away the passing game," said Express head coach Mario Addorisio. "It was a great game, we had a solid team. They played hard right to the end. We did what we thought we could do, we knew we could run the ball, and we did run the ball very well."

This is the third time in four years that Addorisio has lead the team to the final game. The varsity division has only been around for four years and the Express has made it to the final three times, also winning the title in the 2011 season.

They lost last season in the final, but the return this year made the victory even sweeter.

"Last year wasn't our year. We weren't even supposed to be in the championship," said Express Varsity quarterback Andrew Tee. "This year, I felt it. There is something about the team, there's something about the chemistry. We ran the same play a lot, but what ever is working, it's working. As long as we're winning, it doesn't really matter. Whether we're passing or running, it doesn't matter to me."

Tee has been with the Express for five years, working his way up through the divisions. He's still eligible for one more year at the varsity level.

The win says a lot for the Express organization, who is drawing from a relatively small area compared to some of the teams in the OMFL who have larger population centres.

The team has a dedicated coaching staff and a skilled roster of players who dug down deep and produced the results to bring the championship cup home.

Pole vaulting is still a relatively new sport in this area, but things received a boost July 6 with 310 Running's Outdoor Pole Vault Classic.

It was held at Humberview Secondary School in Bolton.

Alysha Newman has been coming to Bolton to train with 310 Running coaches Zdenek Krykorka and Doug Wood since she arrived home from her freshman year at Eastern Michigan University. She was at the July 6 event, where she cleared an incredible 4.31 metres. With this jump, Newman is now ranked sixth in the world among junior vaulters.

She was among more than 50 vaulters of all ages who travelled to Bolton to compete in the largest all-comers pole vault meet in Canada.

The club operates out of a facility on Nixon Road in Bolton, under the tutelage of Caledon East resident Wood. He said they have been operating under the wing of Scott Skimming of 310 Running. "We've kind of piggy-backed on his infrastructure," he said.

Wood was a national record holder in the pole vault, clearing 5.65 metres. He competed for Canada in the 1992 Olympics.

Wood said pole vaulting is an obscure and expensive sport.

He said there was a girl in Orangeville who was interested in giving it a try, but no programs locally available. He was able to get some of the trades people he knew through his work in the construction industry (he's a construction superintendent in Toronto) to put up some money to get things going. He added the landing pit they use costs about $20,000.

"High schools can't afford to have the proper equipment," Wood observed.

Wood said he got interested in pole vaulting when he was in Grade 10 and never lost interest. "It's impossible to walk away from something when you get better ever time you do it," he said.

Joseph Famulari of 310 Running was putting everything he had into this vault.
