Extra facilities planned to collect storm debris

By Bill Rea

Caledon is going to have a spring tree round-up as usual, but it's not going to be usual in practice.

That's because so much work needs to be done to clean up in the aftermath of December's massive ice storm.

Public Works Director David Loveridge update Town councillors on the plans Tuesday.

He reminded councillors the storm was "fairly devastating," adding that at the time the bulk of the Town's efforts were aimed at keeping municipal facilities open and making sure the roads were clear and safe so the public and emergency vehicles could get through. The weather conditions made recovery and clean-up work almost impossible at the time, he said, so the priority was focused on dealing with the harsh winter issues, with an understanding there would be a big clean-up job later. Loveridge pointed out extensive damage is still evident in places like Cheltenham and Terra Cotta.

"I know I'm going out on a limb, but I think spring is here," Loveridge remarked, adding it's time to start thinking about the debris from the storm.

The work remaining to be done includes cleaning up and removing downed trees from road sides, parks and trails; overhead removal and pruning of trees on Town right-of-ways and other lands; getting rid of trees and debris from areas around bridges and culverts (he said a lot of that has already been done); and helping residents get downed trees off their properties and disposed of.

"I spent my weekend getting trees out of my yard," he told councillors.

In response, Loveridge said the Town has had crews out for about a month cleaning right-of-ways, as well as dealing with the bridges and culverts. "The bridges and culverts themselves are in pretty good condition," he said.

Staff from the parks and recreation department have been out cleaning up parks and trails, although Loveridge said they are in pretty good shape too, despite damage.

As well, he said Peel Region is running it's regular yard waste program, with extended hours for community recycling centres (CRC) to serve Caledon residents. The facility at 1795 Quarry Dr. (off McLaren Road near Caledon village) will be open regular hours from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays to Saturday, as well as four Sundays (April 27 and May 4, 11 and 18).

In addition, he said the Town will be running "geographic" drive-thru gathering points early next month to drop off tree debris. People brining in tree residue will also be able to collect free mulch. The plan is for these operations to be May 3 at Lino Marino Park

Explore what really makes people happy at Lifetree Café

Commonly held myths about happiness and life will be discussed at the next local session of Lifetree Café

It will be this coming Wednesday (April 30) from 7 to 8 p.m.

The program, entitled Life's Myths: What You Believe That's Wrong, will feature a filmed interview with Oliver Burkeman, author of The Antidote: Happiness for People Who Can't Stand Positive Thinking.

"There's a certain kind of positive thinking that actually has the opposite effect," commented Burkeman, who debunked common myths about what leads to happiness.

Admission to the session will be free. Snacks and beverages will be available. Lifetree Café is at St. James' Anglican Church, 6025 Old Church Rd., Caledon East.

Lifetree Café is a place where people gather for conversation about life and faith in a casual coffeehouse-type setting.

SouthFields Village celebrates Easter

There were plenty of fun-loving people out Saturday for the second annual SouthFields Village Easter Egg Hunt. While everyone was on the lookout for the eggs, there were other exciting activities. Ryann Lopez, 5, found herself in a sack race with the Easter Bunny. Matthew Meikle, 23 months, got a chance to practice his soccer skills. There were plenty of games going on. Erica Korolidis, 2, was trying her skill with this one.

Police warn everyone to beware of a Microsoft scam

Caledon OPP is warning residents about a Microsoft scam.

Scammers posing as Microsoft representatives have called Town of Caledon home owners to try and gain access to their computers and personal information by stating that their computers are infected with a virus.

Police warn that once access is granted, the resident observes the caller remotely access their banking information and personal files. The resident is unable to stop the gathering of further information due to the computer being locked by the caller.

Computer users are reminded, that unless they initiate the call, they should not allow anyone access to their computer. They should not give out personal, banking or credit card information to anyone unless they are sure of whom they are dealing with.

Police warn that scammers target people into installing malicious software that can capture sensitive information, including passwords, username, banking and credit card information.

There are some tips people can use to protect themselves.

• Change your passwords frequently.

• Remember that reputable agencies will not ask for this information unless you have initiated the call.

• Never download anti-virus software from a pop-up or link sent to you through an e-mail.

• Update your anti-virus software often and scan your computer for viruses regularly.

• Don't click on links or attachments in e-mails sent to you by someone you don't know.

• Turn on your browser's pop-up blocking feature.

• Never click on a pop up that claims your computer has a virus.

First Responders Day is next week

Next Thursday (May 1) has been proclaimed as First Responders Day in Caledon.

Town council Tuesday voted to have Mayor Marolyn Morrison sign the proclamation, in recognition that Caledon is regarded as one of the safest communities in North America due to the combined efforts of police, paramedics and firefighters.

"First responders keep out communities safe, our lives secure, our homes protected and improve the quality of live for all the people in our community," the motion passed by council stated.

Home broken into near Caledon East

Several rooms in a house on Cranston Drive, near Caledon East, were ransacked April 15.

Caledon OPP reports they were called to the scene shortly after 12:15 p.m., responding to an alarm. Once they got there, the noticed damage had been done to the front door.

The investigation revealed that the suspect(s) got into the house through the front door. Once inside, they ransacked several rooms and stole a brown mahogany jewelry box with contents.

Witnesses in the area report seeing a dark-coloured BMW in the area at the time of the break-in.

Police are reminding residents to contact the OPP Communications Centre immediately at 1-888-310-1122 to report any suspicious activity or suspicious vehicles in the area. Information such as suspect physical descriptions, suspect vehicles and direction of travel are useful tools for investigators.

Police are asking anyone with information about this break-in to contact them at 905-584-2241 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Charges as stolen vehicle recovered

A vehicle speeding though Caledon village April 5 resulted in two people being charged.

Caledon OPP reports an officer was conducting speed enforcement on Highway 10, just north of the village, when a southbound Nissan was seen moving at high speed; on the order of 113 km-h in a posted 80 zone. The officer tried to pull the vehicle over, but the driver tried to get away, driving on the shoulder and making an abrupt turn onto Mistywood Drive, before running away on foot.

Police confirmed the vehicle had been reported stolen from Brampton March 15.

Officers located the vehicle on Mistywood and found a passenger who was attempting to flee. She also apparently tried to mislead the investigation by providing false information to officers. Subsequently, the 18-year-old woman from Shelburne was arrested. A search of the area for the driver of the vehicle resulted in him being found at a local convenience store.

The 22-year-old Brampton man was charged with possession of property obtained by crime, flight while pursued by a peace officer, dangerous operation of a motor vehicle and Highway Traffic Act offences. The woman was charged with possession of property obtained by crime, obstructing a peace officer and a Highway Traffic Act offence.

Residents are being urged to help their neighbours clean up storm debris at 105 Valleywood Dr.; May 4 at Bolton's North Hill Park as well as at R.J.A. Potts Memorial Park at 125 Pembrook St. in Bolton; May 10 in the parking lot at Town Hall in Caledon East; and May 11 at the Lloyd Wilson Centennial Centre in Inglewood. Loveridge said these centre will be open from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. all those days, and he stressed cars lined up to get in at closing time will not be turned away.

He also said residents can bring tree debris and branches no matter the size. Bundling will not be required and there will be no restrictions on size. Loveridge added they will operate like a drive-thru, with Town staff unloading the material.

"Once you get them there, we will handle them for you," he said.

He also commented that it would be nice if the Town were able to go street-by-street collecting this debris, but they have to work with the staff and resources that are available. He did say that neighbours are encouraged to work together to get the trees to the drop-off sites.

Loveridge praised the cooperation that's been received from the Region, providing extra yard waste pick-up days as requested for Terra Cotta and Cheltenham (one is planned for this coming Monday — April 28) and opening the CRC the extra Sundays.

Loveridge said the hard part of the effort will be to get a coordinated approach, as well as getting the message out on what's available.

Much of that effort will be through the local media, although he also said there will be extensive use of social media, along with appropriate road signage being posted closer to the dates.

Loveridge also said the Town's annual tree program will have to be delayed until the end of summer so the clean-up can proceed and damage be assessed. Orders for trees will be taken through the Town's website, as well as from order forms available from municipal facilities. Orders will be taken starting in May and continue until the end of June. The trees will be delivered sometime after Labour Day.

Councillor Richard Whitehead pointed out a lot of people in his ward don't have access to trucks or chain saws, so they will need help. He suggested the volunteer firefighters in Mono Mills could be helpful. Whitehead also observed there should be no trouble in getting people to work together, but they will need to understand what they are doing and the best way to participate.

Councillor Gord McClure commented he's been getting calls about damage and debris in Cheltenham, Terra Cotta and Valleywood.

He also said the storm was "nature's pruning," adding trees need to be trimmed and pruned, and that people maybe understand that better now.

Councillor Richard Paterak said he's been trying to get the Region to increase weekend staff at the CRCs so people can get through faster. He was worried that people might get discouraged by long line-ups and start dumping debris on the side of roads.

Councillor Doug Beffort wondered how the idea of people helping their neighbours could be facilitated. He said this would be a great opportunity to show the colours of the community.

Whitehead also expressed concern over reports that people have been dragging downed branches off their properties and dropping them in ditches. He suspected that these people don't realize that's unwise because the ditches are part of the storm water management system. One big storm could result in jammed culverts and flooding.

Loveridge told him staff has been checking to make sure ditches are clear.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison pointed out one of the CRC Sundays is Mother's Day (May 11), and she asked if something could be done to reduce the inconvenience. Loveridge said he would look into it.

She was also concerned that there are trees in the Credit River, pointing out she sees them from the bridge on McLaughlin Road. She said a plan is needed, involving Credit Valley Conservation, to get them out. There was a slow melt this winter, but that might not be the case next year if the trees are still there, she warned.

Chance to be OPP commander for a day

Have you ever wanted to be the top cop in Caledon for a day?

Grade 5 students in town will have the chance as part of Police Week 2014, through the competition Caledon OPP is running.

Students are asked to submit a one-page essay on why they should be chosen to be Detachment Commander for the Day. During his/her tenure as Detachment Commander, the selected student will have the opportunity to spend time with Inspector Tim Melanson and learn how the Caledon Detachment operates on a daily basis.

Students are asked to submit their essay prior to May 7 to brenda.evans@ontario.ca or they can be dropped off the Detachment Office, at 15924 Innis Lake Rd.

UP FOR AUCTION

Caledon Community Services had plenty of items on the auction block recently at their ReUstore and Chez Thrift in Bolton. Darlene Abela of Chez Thrift was holding up some of the items while CCS Board Chair Carine Strong looked for bids.

Mayfield S.S. Winners of CHAD Unit Mural Competition

On Tuesday March 18th 2014 the Mayfield Art Competition unveiling was held at the Brampton Civic Hospital. Our murals were presented and three murals were chosen out of all the contest entries to be placed in the child and adolescent mental health (CHAD) unit of the hospital. The murals conveyed the message of hope. I was lucky to be chosen as one of the winners along with Jia Qi Li and Jaskiran Matharu. All three of us would stay after school whenever possible and paint, along with our art teachers Ms. Marie Burnett and Mr. Divitrios Kalogerakos, who constantly helped and guided us. Arielle Joseph, Chloe Robins and Jasmine Asiedu-Anguah were the runner-up winners with their designs and they also received awards.

At the ceremony, there were many motivational speeches made by the hospital staff, including words by Ken Mayhew (William Osler Health System Foundation) who welcomed and introduced everyone and Dr. Koczerginski (chief of psychiatry) who started the conversation about children's mental health. Youth mental health is a huge issue in Canada and many people are unaware of how serious it is. I found out that with proper support and care, mental health issues can be overcome or improved and I am so glad to know that our murals can help inspire someone who doesn't feel so great and show them that there are no obstacles in life that cannot be beaten. This is exactly what I was trying to convey in my mural which is the one with the brick wall being lifted, which symbolizes someone overcoming their biggest hardship in life and finding that behind the wall are many positive and inspirational words to help push them forward.

Our principal, Mr. Kent Armstrong gave a speech about how he is proud of us, followed by Ms. Burnett who explained the long journey of transforming our thumbnail drawings into four by six foot murals. We were given certificates and cheques of $250.00 each from Mr. Sukhwant Dhesy, branch manager of RBC.

This was an event I will not forget. I owe thanks to many; the Brampton Civic Hospital, including the Administrator Patricia Grabb, the Mayfield Teachers, Melanie Barrett and Jennifer Connor. Also, special thanks needs to be given to Stephanie Rambharos for helping me fix the proportions on my mural. There are also many friends, including Shea Bollers who need to be thanked for helping with the finishing touches. Last, but not least, I want to thank my Dad for taking time away from his busy schedule to help me transport the mural to and from school and for taking time to pick me up whenever I stayed late to work on it. I am proud to say the time and effort put into it was well worth it.

It's all about Teens at TEEN RANCH

Located in the hills of Caledon is Teen Ranch, a not-for-profit, inter-denominational Christian Sports Camp founded in 1967. The camp specializes in horses, ice hockey, and retreats made available to individuals, sports teams, school groups and retreat groups of many different kinds. The focus of the camp is to "provide challenge and give direction to the youth of our nation and the world through programs that encourage their physical, intellectual, social and spiritual development. By giving positive direction now, our work among kids becomes prevention rather than rehabilitation." (Teen Ranch Canada Facebook) Summer campers choose from horse riding, hockey, extreme adventure, soccer and BMX programs and although their paths cross while they are camping, their individual programs are focused for their specific sport.

"There are approximately 30 full-time staff year round," said Staff Development Coordinator Ann Stevens. "We also have teen volunteers on weekends and throughout the summer weeks."

"It was an experience I will never forget," said Meghann McGowan who attended Teen Ranch with her hockey team from Vaughan when she was 14 years old. The days were full with getting up early, hitting the ice hard and running through drills with a skilled hockey trainer, taking a break to eat and enjoy fun times and then back on the ice.

In the program there is a daily time out, to allow each individual a time to reflect and view life through the moralistic values of the Christian faith.

The ice rink, or The Ice Corral as it is known at the ranch, is an Olympic size indoor skating rink and meeting room which are used by the campers and the public.

McGowan and her team stayed in cabins located on the property and the skills they learned while attending Teen Ranch helped the team immensely that year.

The ranch is proud to say that many of their previous hockey guests have moved onto the NHL, OHL and some of the guest instructors have included NHL players: Mike Gartner, Paul Henderson, Ron Ellis, Laurie Boschman, Daryl Sittler, and John Paddock.

Teen Ranch also provides many events to the community. On Saturday April 19th they played host to a special Easter fun day with many events such as, an Easter egg hunt, pony rides, wall climbing, petting farm, ice skating and much more.

Outside of the horse camp, trail rides are also available at $40 for one hour. The ride will take you through the Caledon Hills by Teen Ranch Wranglers trained and associated with CHA, which is an organization dedicated to horsemanship safety. Each trail ride can take up to 18 riders, but the ranch reserves the right to cancel rides if safety is an issue with weather conditions.

Even though the Teen Ranch community is all about teens and their growth, they also offer family events, Mom and daughter and Father and son camps, and so much more. Find what interests you at www.teenranch.on.ca.

The First Robotics Team at Humberview Secondary

Humberview Secondary School in Bolton has a team that is going all the way. The Alpha Dogs - the Robotics Club that was formed in September, 2013.

AS A CLUB they registered for the FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology), an international high school competition where the robots from each school compete against each other.

They are a group of 40 students and 26 of those students are going to the World Robotics Championship in St. Louis Missouri being held from April 23 – 26 at the Edward Jones Dome. This year, 128 teams will be competing and Humberview's Alpha Dogs is one of them.

They are a rookie team, as the school has never had a Robotics club before. The team focuses on the technology of designing, constructing and operating robots.

The First Robotics Competition program allowed the high school students to build a robot from a kit that included the drive train, wheels and frame. They started the build in January of this year and they had six weeks to design it, build the structure and program it.

"During the building season, they worked on the Robot from 3:00 p.m. – 8:00 p.m. every day after school. They also put in a full day every Saturday and Sunday until it was finished," said Tibor Torontali, Humberview's Manufacturing Technology teacher.

Upon completion, the robot met the competition criteria of weighing 120 pounds (54 kg) and it stands nearly 4 feet tall. Humberview's robot can complete the task of throwing a ball in the air, throwing a ball over a truss and throwing a ball through a target six feet high.

After the build period, the robot is "bagged". This is a competition requirement. The team cannot touch the robot to make alterations to its programming; they can only demo it and reduce the weight of it. It takes five of the team members to demo the robot during a competition.

The team raised over $21,000 with the help of the community and FIRST Robotics. The money has helped the team with expenses that were incurred to build the robot as well as the cost of sending them to the World Competition in St. Louis.

The students on the team have also helped promote STEM education in Caledon at the elementary school level. Since 2009, the federal government has been providing funding for Youth in Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM). The purpose of this program was to help strengthen southern Ontario's position by helping young people pursue education and careers in the STEM fields.

The team has done well, earning a place at the world competition, but as Mr. Torontali states "It has increased their awareness of how valuable school is."

And that might be the most important lesson of all.

Town News

Notice of Application

Please be informed of a proposed development in your community

This is to inform you that KLM Planning Partners Inc., on behalf of Northstar Investment Inc. has submitted Draft Plan of Subdivision and Zoning By-law Amendment applications on the property outlined below for processing by the Town of Caledon. We welcome your comments on these proposed applications.

SUBJECT PROPERTY

Location: 12738 Kennedy Road and 12728 Kennedy Road
12654 Old Kennedy Road, Part of Lot 21, Concession 1, E.H.S.
West side of Old Kennedy Road, south of Old School Road, Southfields Community
within the Mayfield West Secondary Plan Area

Area: 10.18 Hectares (25.15 Acres)

Ward: 2

Applicant: KLM Planning Partners Inc. on behalf of Northstar Investment Inc.

Our File Number(s): 21T-14002C and RZ 14-03

Please visit the Town of Caledon website at www.caledon.ca or contact the Development Planner noted below at the Town of Caledon to obtain a copy of the location map.

PROPOSAL

The applicant is proposing to rezone the subject lands which are divided into two separate parcels, from Agricultural (A1) to Mixed Density Residential Exception 456 (RMD-456) in order to permit the development of a residential Draft Plan of Subdivision consisting of 109 single detached residential dwelling units, including a number of residential reserve lots proposed to be developed in conjunction with neighbouring lands. In addition, the plan includes 60 on-street freehold townhouse units and 33 medium density condominium townhouse units, as well as portions of a future neighbourhood park, school and segments of a greenway corridor.

LIST OF PLANS, REPORTS AND STUDIES

In accordance with Sections 6.2.1.6 and 6.2.17 of the Town's Official Plan, the following plans, reports and studies have been submitted in support of the application:

- Planning Rationale and Justification Report

Town of Caledon Employment Survey

Help inform and shape the future

During the period of May to August of this year the Town of Caledon, in partnership with the Region of Peel will be conducting the Town of Caledon Employment Survey.

The first of its kind for Caledon, this survey is a door-to-door survey of area businesses.

We strongly encourage your participation as the survey attempts to gather key business and employment information that is used to inform Regional and area municipal policy directions. The information is used for a variety of purposes, including:

- Monitoring local economic trends
- Forecasting infrastructure and hard service requirements
- Shaping municipal policy and comment on upper tier governments' formulation of new policy
- Analyzing and marketing local business sectors
- Creating business attraction and retention strategies

Please remember that a Peel Region employee will be visiting your business between May and August to conduct this survey.

HOME UNITED CHURCH PRESENTS MURDER AT WEDDING

Home United Church had a large crowd at the Brampton Fair Grounds recently for their annual murder mystery fundraiser. The play was entitled Becky Sue Gets Married, and Councillor Gord McClure, as father of the bride, also once again served as victim. Others appearing (some as suspects) were Vinnie Dusk, Disc Jockey DJ Sparkles (Rev. Margaret MacDonald), the groom's grandfather (Brian Neely), groom's father (Glen Keyes), groom's mother (Sherry Hunt), best man (Dave Snyder), the groom (Sascha Ellis), the bride (Erin Crawford-Ellis), maid of honour (Melanie Reinhart), bride's mother (Lynn Carr-Sumilas), murder victim McClure, bride's grandmother (Vickie Forsyth), master of ceremonies (Bonnie Neely), bride's Aunt Katie (Lisa Garbutt) and Aunt Kitty (Marsha Christie), Pastor Tommy (Tom Dolson) and Wedding Planner Lady Zha Zha (Betty Hanson).

Theatre Orangeville holding auditions for Romeo and Juliet

Theatre Orangeville has been around for 20 years and has supported some of the best theatrical artists from across Canada, such as Michael Burgess, Michael Therriault, Rod Beattie and Ted Follows, to name a few.

In addition to its world-class main stage productions, Theatre Orangeville has had great success with their youth programs.

"Our main stage is adult focused, while our academy is 100 per cent youth based," said Youth Program Coordinator Sharyn Woodbury.

The theatre has always had a commitment to youth, through the Youth Singers or Young Company groups, which provides drama and musical theatrical experiences geared to youth.

Theatre Orangeville also has a program called Exceptional Players, which is geared toward youth with disabilities or special needs.

The benefits of youth being involved in theatre are massive, but some of the obvious ones are:

- Youth involved in theatre naturally develop a clear sense of personal and group achievement.
- Develop a sense of belonging.
- Increases levels of confidence and self-esteem.
- Increases self discipline and commitment.
- Meet new friends and expands your comfort zone.
- Brings a general feeling of happiness through the fun of being part of a production.
- Improves the ability to express feelings, opinions and the means to articulate clearly and confidently.
- Provides a sense of empowerment.
- Provides a means of escape and relaxation.

The youth programs are available throughout the season, with after-school initiatives that start in the fall, and the summer program is a month-long experience where an audition is required to get in. There is a drama and a musical production and 25 budding actors are chosen for each. These programs are usually attended by youth who have serious intentions to the stage as their days are dedicated to rehearsing from 9 to 4 from Monday to Friday, with a final performance on the main stage for each production.

"All our youth programs are supported by professionals," Woodbury said.

Colin Simmons is directing this year's Romeo and Juliet, the Young Company drama production. Simmons is familiar with Theatre Orangeville, as he too was involved in the youth programs in the past.

"The kids look at him and think, I could do this," said Woodbury.

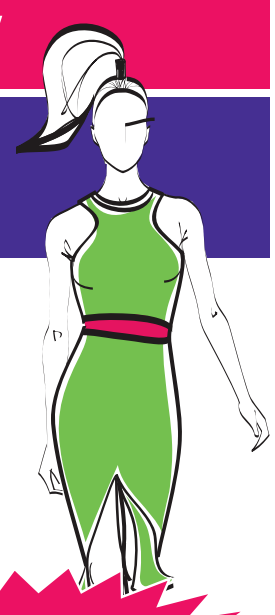

Simmons' existence inspires youth who participate in the program, as he has worked his way up through the ranks.

The audition for Romeo and Juliet is being held April 30, from 5 to 8 p.m. and is open to youth between the ages of 11 and 17. The rehearsals for the production will start July 2 through until July 24 with no rehearsals Sundays. The show dates for Romeo and Juliet are July 25 at 7 p.m., July 26 at 2 and 7 p.m., and July 27 at 2 p.m.

"There is a lot happening here," Woodbury said. "It is wonderful to see the youth develop and grow."

Yevgenia Casale getting into race for Town council seat

Yevgenia Casale has been making a statement in Caledon ever since she first stepped foot in town.

Now she's planning to add to it from the political side of things.

"Before 2010, I didn't even know Caledon existed, but as soon as we decided to call it home, I made it my mission to learn and share as much as possible about this beautiful town," Casale said.

Casale has announced she will be entering politics in this fall's municipal elections, seeking election as Ward 2's area representative of Caledon council.

"I fell in love from the instant I crossed Mayfield Road, but I also fell into confusion," she commented. "People were mentioning things like Terra Cotta, Cheltenham, Valleywood and Inglewood, like I was supposed to know what that meant. So I made sure I found out and that all my neighbours (all the folks moving into Mayfield West) found out, too."

Taking from the examples of Terra Cotta's annual bike race and Inglewood and Cheltenham's annual community days, Casale decided to develop a SouthFields Village Community day.

"When folks play together, it's easier for them to come together in times of adversity and that makes us all safer," she said.

But she needed a way to let a whole bunch of strangers know about it. She figured she'd put together a little community newsletter; Caledon Spectrum.

Over the next four years, her level of community involvement increased. Currently, she's chair of the SouthFields Village Public School Council for the second year in a row and earlier this month was honoured by the Town of Caledon with a Volunteer Citizen Recognition Award.

"I believe that the vast majority of the issues that people have with the Town of Caledon can be addressed with improved communication strategies and improved processes," Casale said. "I am deeply saddened by the reputation that the Town of Caledon has as being unfriendly toward business and the challenges that people routinely experience with respect to building permits. The unfortunate reality today is that businesses shy away from working with the Town. This needs to change."

"I am also very concerned when residents on the west side of town relay that they often feel forgotten and have to struggle to learn about the things that matter to them," she added.

Contest coming for federal Conservative nomination

By Bill Rea

It's more than a year before the next federal election, but politics at that level are heating up in Dufferin-Caledon.

Incumbent David Tilson has learned he's going to have to fight off a challenge if he wants the Conservative nomination in next year's vote.

Palgrave area resident Paul Hong has announced he will be seeking the nomination.

Hong, 34, is a former senior policy advisor to the Minister of Foreign Affairs, serving six years in that role under several ministers. In addition to his work at Foreign Affairs, Hong served for 13 years as a naval officer in the Canadian military. He was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant (Navy) in 2004. He also served as a military aide-de-camp to the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario. He is a graduate of the Royal Military College of Canada's Master of War Studies program and the Sea Cadet Program in Bolton.

He is also a lawyer by training, called to the Bar in 2007.

Among his volunteer activities, he served as Vice-Chair of the Board of Caledon Community Services, and Chair of the Board of the local St. John Ambulance branch. He was also an organist at Holy Family Church in Bolton and is a member of the Knights of Columbus. For his volunteer efforts, he was awarded a Caledon Volunteer and Citizen Achievement Award for Community and Social Services in 2006.

"I am running because I am grateful for the opportunities that this country and community have given to me," he said. "Public service is a duty, and I would be deeply honoured to serve in this new way, as your candidate."

"We must not assume that our riding will always be Conservative," he added. "With each election, opposition will get stronger, and we must not underestimate the Justin Trudeau Liberals."

"In Dufferin-Caledon, we have an opportunity to renew ourselves and to prepare to meet this challenge," Hong said. "But we need to act now. We need to ensure our Conservative team has candidates who can fight and win this election, and the elections to come, to keep Trudeau out of government, and to continue providing the strong, principled leadership Canada needs."

Hong said he has no animosity toward Tilson, adding he's volunteered on his campaigns.

"I like him on a personal level, and I respect him," he said.

"The time to renew the party is now," he added. "With a renewal of ideas, energy, and enthusiasm, Conservative members in Dufferin-Caledon can be ready to keep our riding blue. I believe my extensive experience on Parliament Hill, in the offices of Cabinet ministers, and experience in our community will enable me to lead that renewal and to deliver results for our community."

Tilson said he's not put out by the challenge for the nomination.

"I'm confident I've done a good job representing Dufferin-Caledon over the years," he said, adding he plans to seek the spot on the ticket for the election, expected in October 2015.

"I think it's healthy to have a review," he added. "I think the Conservative supporters will agree with me that I've done a good job."

Tilson has been MP since 2004. Prior to that, he was an MPP from 1990 to 2002.

Council proclaims Day of Mourning coming this Saturday

This Saturday (April 26) will recognized as the Day of Mourning in Caledon, in recognition of workers who have been killed and injured on the job.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison signed the proclamation Tuesday after Town council agreed to the request from the Canadian Labour Congress.

The motion passed by council noted the Town is committed to a safe and healthy workplace which ensures people are safe at all times while on the job.

We must remember accused have rights for a reason

We hear a lot these days about the victims of crime, and the need to see to it that they are taken care of and that their rights are respected.

Fair enough. Innocent victims of crime must be protected. And those responsible for the crimes have to answer for their acts.

But we live in what is supposed to be an enlightened society, which also makes sure the rights of those who are accused are respected. True, a lot of these people might seem to be not worth the bother. But then we get to those who face charges for offences they never committed. And then we have those who are sent to prison for something they didn't do.

No matter how hard some of us want to come down on criminals, or how much we care about the victim, the truth is no victim ever benefitted by having the wrong guy sent away.

That is why the weekend's passing of Rubin "Hurricane" Carter should not go unnoticed.

Mr. Carter was a middleweight boxing contender in his youth who in the 1960s had the misfortune to be convicted of three homicides. He spent some 19 years in prison before a federal judge in the United States ruled he had not received a fair trial. Mr. Carter was ordered released.

We would contend that Mr.Carter would have had every right to have left prison a bitter man. If any of us had gone through what he did, would we not have demanded to know who was going to restore the 19 years of life unjustly taken from us?

Mr. Carter was a different kind of man, who elected to use his experiences to try and prevent them from being repeated.

According to a CNN obituary, he said three years ago that prison gave him the opportunity to set aside the anger that made him a delinquent in his youth, and to see that his destiny might have rested in fighting for justice.

"Hatred and bitterness and anger only consume the vessel that contains them. It doesn't hurt another soul," he told CNN. "If I were to allow myself to continue to feel that anger and the bitterness of being a victim, I would have never survived prison itself. Prison can deal with anger; prison can deal with hatred because prison is about all those things. So I had to overcome those things."

We like to think that our criminal justice system does a good job. Most of us in this society would probably agree that it would be hard to find anything better in this world. But that certainly does not mean the system is perfect.

Mr. Carter is not an isolated case. There are others who have been sent to prison for murder, only to be released when it was determined they hadn't done it. Joining Mr. Carter are the likes of Guy Paul Morin, Robert Baltovich, Donald Marshall, Jr., David Milgaard, Steven Truscott and others. Truscott was even sentenced to death. The really scary part is the names listed here are among those we found out about. What about others we haven't heard about. How many of them are in prison for offences they didn't commit?

We admit it's hard to know the solution to this problem. People who are found guilty of serious crimes must certainly answer for them. But we, as a society, have an obligation to be careful, if for no other reason than it's the standard we have already set for ourselves.

Our Readers Write

We need a 'representative system'

Bill Rea, in his column "Strategic voting doesn't work" (April 10) lamented that a lot of people, for reasons he hasn't even tried to understand, are dumb enough not to vote.

I'll be glad to offer my version of an explanation.

A major contributing factor would certainly be our archaic, primitive first-past-the-post electoral system, which renders any vote, other than one for the ultimate winner, a lost vote and totally meaningless, except for statistics.

If neither of the two mainstream parties appeal to a voter, he knows beforehand that voting for a third or (perish the thought) a fourth candidate is a lost endeavor. So, why bother?

Don't get me wrong. I have not only been actively voting since becoming eligible in 1961, but also functioned many times as poll clerk and once as a DRO and party observer respectively.

But I do understand why people may be frustrated for lack of representation.

If we had representative government, not a single vote would be "lost." We may not have as many majority governments, but more coalitions which could save the taxpayers a whole lot of money that has been "blown away" by majority governments.

Think of the federal sponsorship scandal; billion-dollar Gun Registry for naught; Provincial e-Health; Ornge (Air Ambulance); Ontario Hydro/Hydro One; the frivolous gas plant expenses, which has added decades of debt to the taxpayers of this province.

Rare is the occasion when an "also-ran" overcomes the odds and finishes on top, such as the surprise Bob Rae got when his party won an election.

Other countries, with much less of a democratic history, have a real representative system which leaves out nobody.

Wulf Graunitz,
Palgrave

It happened today

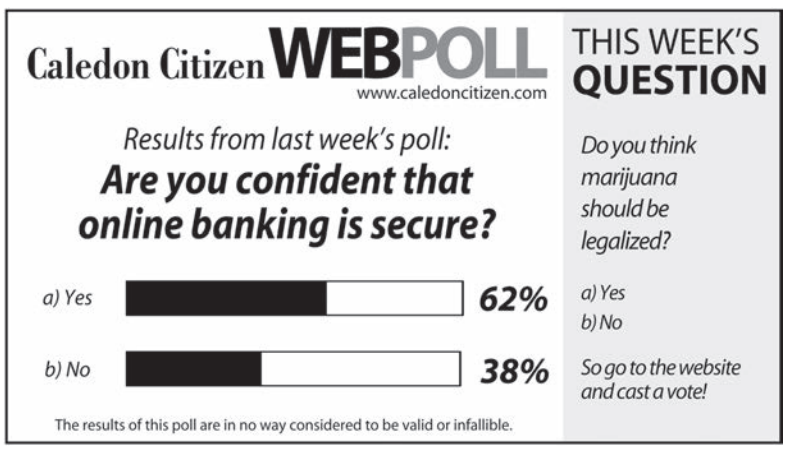

With his presidency in trouble, Jimmy Carter needed a really impressive accomplishment, and it was thought that Operation Eagle Claw might be the answer.

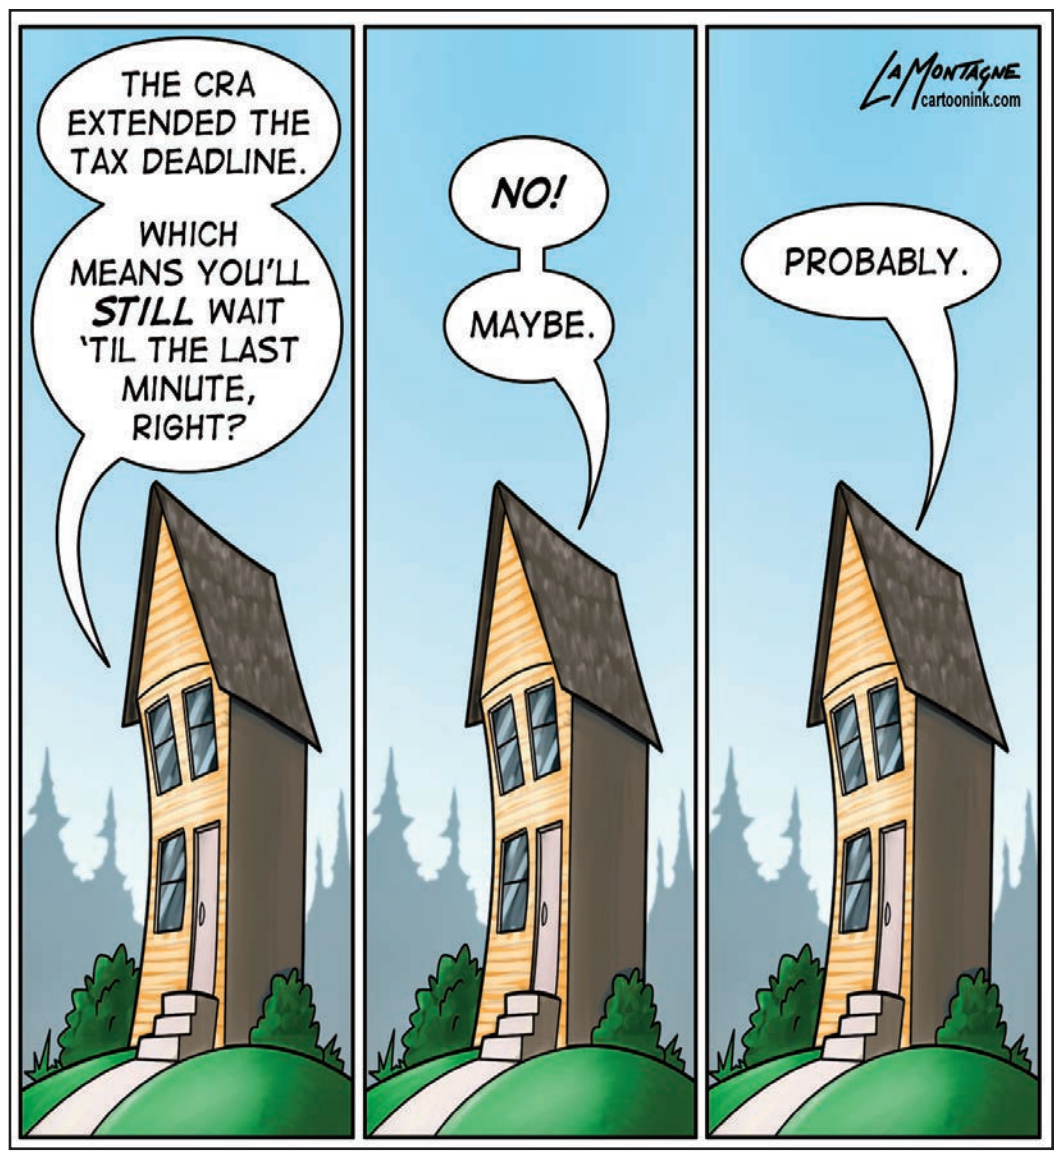

But it didn't work out that way.

Operation Eagle Claw was a bold plan to get the American hostages out of Iran. But problems developed and the decision was made to abort the mission. But as the Americans were pulling out, a helicopter crashed into an aircraft carrying fuel and troops. Eight American lives were lost.

There are many who believe that failure played a major role in Ronald Reagan's victory over Carter later that year.

It happened this day, April 24, 1980.

Clear case of over-reacting

"If there weren't any fools in the world, there wouldn't be any fun."
Nevil Shute

I heard about a really interesting story coming out of Portland, Oregon, last week.

At first, I thought the information coming from out west was an absurdity on the parts of those in charge over there. I still think it's absurd, but only in so much as it's a response to the absurdity of the world in which we live. Intelligent people will, of course, realize how nutty this all is. But bureaucracy usually employs practical people. My late father was a very practical man. He spent the last several years of his working life as a Provincial bureaucrat, and regarded it as the low point of his career.

And it is also a practical reality that stupidity is alive and well and living throughout human society. That means it has to be addressed, no matter how dumb it might be. Enter bureaucracy!

Bill Rea

Officials in Portland have announced that a water reservoir, which is part of a system that services some 900,000 people, is going to be drained (it might already have been drained by the time this appears in print). The amount of water that's going to be "lost" amounts to roughly enough to fill 2,000 average backyard swimming pools, according to one of the accounts I read. Needless to say, there are conservationists who are up in arms about this waste.

And what has prompted this move? Some 19-year-old kid is accused of having urinated into the reservoir.

They have to drain an entire water system just for that! And it seems to be based on the fact that they caught this joker in the act. What about the ones they didn't catch? Although I have no authoritative data on which to back up this assertion, I'm willing to bet that for every one they catch, at least 20 other men and boys have done a certain amount of "business" (you know what I mean) in the same spot. We males are like that.

I have lived through the time of "women's liberation," when members of the sex into which I was not born started demanding equal treatment and rights. There was an awful lot of justification to their arguments (I have to put these statements into print because my wife reads these columns and I don't like sleeping on the couch), but there is also a reality that we all have to face. There are certain things that members of one sex can do better than others. I was born a male, meaning I can't bear children, but I can excuse myself if nature calls, find a secluded area (preferably with a lot of trees) and address the issue (you know what I mean). I've done it a couple of times, although I'll grant not recently.

My father and I used to do a lot of fishing when I was a kid. The two of us would be out in a boat in the middle of a lake. When I was a little kid, there would be a haver sack with beer and Coke in the boat, and when I was a bigger kid, we didn't bother with the Coke (and yes, I know that was against the law – arrest me). There was always a can in the boat, mainly intended to be used for bailing if the boat sprung a leak, but it was normally used more to deal with other kinds of leaks (you know what I mean). The results, there in, went into the lake.

I was a Boy Scout many years ago (Trudeaumania had not quite run its course by that point), and did a certain amount of camping. Since it was an all-male environment, we used that certain method for putting out the camp fire at night (you know what I mean).

"It stinks," my Scoutmaster would say in the middle of the process, "but it's sure a good way to put out a fire."

It was, too. But only when one is dealing with very small fires.

I first heard about this story on the radio, with a commentator asking what they do about dogs and other animals doing certain things in the reservoir (you know what I mean). That's a very legitimate question, and there are others.

Just out of curiosity, how do officials in Oregon handle things when a goose flies over the reservoir and answers a call of nature, depositing the product (you know what I mean) into the drinking water? Geese do such things, you know? I pretended to grow up near Grenadier Pond in Toronto, and I do know that goose poop was a problem then, and it got worse as time went on. People loved to feed the geese, as well as the area ducks. It was not uncommon to have these feathered folks go door-to-door in the neighbourhood, knowing there was lots of free grub to be had. The hotel where I waited tables for a couple of years was just a couple of minutes walk away from the pond, and many were the times when parents would ask if we had any spare bread for their kids so they could go feed the ducks and geese. It was seldom a problem to scare up some rolls from the previous day (they were hard by that point, but the feathered folks rarely complained). We were always happy to oblige.

Things got to the point that Toronto officials had to put restrictions when it came to feeding the birds. Pity — the city lost something of a tourist attraction, but the reality was things were getting out of hand.

Was that the case in Portland? I don't think so.

One would presume (and if I lived in Portland, I would bloody well expect) that the water supply would go through some amount of processing between the time it's in the reservoir and the time it gets to my tap, simply because part of reality includes geese and other birds, as well as dogs, other wild animals and dumb 19-year-old kids.

On the other hand, I think I can appreciate where the authorities in Portland are coming from on this. My wife and I were talking about this the other night (municipal water supply issues sometimes come up during commercials), and Beth actually summed up the situation rather well with three words: "Too much knowledge."

People heard about what this dumb kid had done and many of them would have jumped to the conclusion that the whole water supply was contaminated, not even bothering to contemplate what a goose might have done earlier in the day. I think it was a classic case of the old line "What you don't know won't hurt you." But in this case, a lot of people knew. It wouldn't have hurt them, but there would have been no telling some of them that. I have been in the newspaper business long enough to know that there are a lot of people who, once they get an idea in their head, will cling to it, no matter what — even the stupid ideas.

And those public sector employees in Portland would have been obliged to react to the complaints, if for no other reason than they're paid to act (I wonder if Oregon has a Sunshine List?) That is the great burden of bureaucracy. Those people who occupy it don't get the luxury of picking and choosing the issues they address or the complaints they deal with. They have to handle all of them, including the stupid and frivolous ones.

So I don't think the situation in Portland has been handled properly, but it's been handled correctly, if that makes any sense.

Government continues its efforts to put victims of crime first

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

Victims of crime deserve to have a stronger, more effective voice in the criminal justice system.

For far too long, the scales of justice tipped in favor of criminals and neglected those who had been affected by their crimes. This is why our government has made it a priority to rebalance those scales and help ensure the rights of victims are respected throughout the criminal justice system.

As Prime Minister Stephen Harper noted, "Our government wants victims of crime across this country to know that we have listened to their concerns and that we are squarely on their side."

The landmark Canadian Victims Bill of Rights would help deliver on this commitment by permanently entrenching the rights of victims into a single document at the federal level — a first in Canadian history. Through this historic document, victims would be guaranteed the right to information, protection, participation and restitution.

Their right to information would ensure victims are made aware of available victim services and programs, as well as information relating to the investigation, prosecution and sentencing of the person who harmed them. Their right to protection would ensure the security and privacy of victims is considered at all stages of the criminal justice process — including measures to protect them from intimidation and retaliation — and provide victims with the ability to request their identity be protected from public disclosure.

At the same time, the right of a victim's participation in the criminal justice system would be also entrenched. This would establish their right to present a victim impact statement and ensure their views are considered at various stages of the criminal justice process.

Lastly, a victim's right to restitution would also be guaranteed as a part of this legislation. For certain offences, victims would have a right to seek financial compensation from their offender.

This important legislation builds on our government's strong record of supporting victims of crime. Previously, we delivered the Federal Victims Strategy and established a permanent advocate for victims through the Office of the Federal Ombudsman for Victims of Crime.

We have also invested more than $120 million into victim-oriented initiatives and provided in excess of $10 million to Child Advocacy Centres across the country to help young victims of crime.

Innocent victims of crime deserve to have clear, enforceable rights and protections in our criminal justice system. Through the Canadian Victims Bill of Rights, our government is making sure victims are treated with the respect and fairness that they deserve.

Jones' aggregate recycling bill closer to becoming law

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones' private member's bill, the Aggregate Recycling Promotion Act, recently passed at the Standing Committee on Finance and Economic Affairs. This is an important step in the legislative process, as the bill is now one final vote away from becoming law in Ontario.

"I am very pleased that Bill 56 was passed by the committee today," Jones declared. "Bill 56 received all party support at second reading, and the overwhelming majority of comments I receive on the bill are positive and come from a wide range of people and stakeholders."

If enacted, Bill 56 would allow contractors to incorporate recycled aggregates when bidding on construction projects paid for with public money. The bill was amended at the committee to exclude debris from the demolition of buildings from being included in Bill 56's scope. This amendment was tabled by Jones.

Jones' amendment defines "acceptable recycled aggregates" as being "aggregates that are not newly produced and that are not materials obtained from the demolition of a building."

Bill 56 was also amended so that the provisions of the bill only apply to the newly defined "acceptable recycled aggregates."

The bill has now been referred back to the Legislature for third reading. When the bill is called for third reading, it will be voted on a final time, and should it pass this vote, it would then receive Royal Proclamation and become law in Ontario.

As Government House Leader John Milloy has the sole discretion to schedule referred bills for third reading. Jones expressed hope he would do so with Bill 56.

"Bill 56 is good for the environment, it's good for business, and it's good government policy," Jones concluded. "I sincerely hope Minister Milloy schedules Bill 56 for third reading at the earliest possible opportunity."

Only fools stand in its way

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

Canadian rock singer Neil Young clearly twists his "facts" about the so-called dangers of the $7-billion Keystone pipeline project, but at least he has the guts to take a firm position.

Not so U.S. President Barrack Obama.

With one eye towards his anti-oil Democratic Party financial contributors – with the mid-term elections on the horizon – Obama announced this week he is extending the government comment period on the pipeline, a move guaranteed to move any decision beyond the Nov. 4 elections.

The thing has already been studied to death, and there's no question that the scare-mongering of the opponents has been shown to be dead wrong on almost all counts. Even the U.S. State Department, hardly a hotbed of pro-oil activists, has released the results of its long study and concluded the pipeline has more positive impacts than negatives going for it.

But Obama, alas, doesn't have the courage of his convictions. That is, assuming he has convictions beyond playing politics.

You'd think that with Russian strongman Valerie Putin moving in on the Ukraine – and in a position to cut off energy supplies for much of Europe (not to mention the anti-American positions in big oil producing countries such as Iran and Venezuela) – the U.S. would jump at the chance to get stable oil supplies from its friendly neighbor.

Indeed, testifying before a Senate committee on Friday, Obama's former national security advisor James Jones said oil is a powerful geopolitical weapon and killing Keystone would be a gift to Putin. Jones says he can't understand why the U.S. would spend billions and risk soldiers' to stabilize oil sources abroad, "then reject a piece of vital infrastructure at home."

The critics claim that Keystone would contribute massively to climate change. The facts show that whatever contribution it might make is a)- miniscule and b)-is less than it would be if the pipeline isn't built and the oil from Alberta continues to be shipped south (or anywhere else) by rail.

As for Ottawa's reaction to the latest politically motivated stall, Prime Minister Stephen Harper issued a formal statement saying, "We are disappointed that the politics continue to delay a decision on Keystone XL. This project will create tens of thousands of jobs on both sides of the border, will enhance the energy security of North America, has strong public support, and the U.S. State Department has, on multiple occasions, acknowledged it will be environmentally sound."

While Obama caters to the anti-oil fearmongers out there – who sometimes have a good point, but not on this project – even many members of his own party want him to approve it, fearing that his continued refusal to okay the popular project will cost them their seats in November. Indeed, a little more than a week ago, 11 Democratic senators urged Obama to okay the project by the end of May. That's not going to happen now.

And by the way, Keystone won't be a boon just to Alberta and the other western provinces. Ontario also stands to gain thousands of jobs and hundreds of millions in increased investment either directly or indirectly from the project, all of which makes one wonder why Premier Kathleen Wynne – who claims to be all about jobs, jobs, jobs – doesn't have anything to say about it.

The Conference Board of Canada has estimated that Ottawa's take from the oil sands between now and 2035 will be more than $45 billion, that's from a total tax spinoff of $80 billion.

It is true that in the long run – the very long run – fossil fuels are projected to become less dominant in the energy mix, but even so, they are expected to represent about 75 per cent of energy needs in 2035, so all those dreamers who think a few windmills and other high-cost alternatives can become big-time players are completely off the planet. It's not happening, plain and simple.

You don't have to like fossil fuels to realize that our economy is essentially built on them now and for the foreseeable future.

And therefore when there's a relatively cheap and reliable and politically safe sources such as the oil sands, only an abject fool would stand in the way of taking advantage of the situation.

And if the fool happens to be the U.S. president, well, as Jones told the Senate committee, Putin must be hoisting a glass to him in the Kremlin.

Easter Round Up at Teen Ranch

Teen Ranch on Highway 10 was a very busy place Saturday for the annual Easter Round Up. The fun activities included crafts, and these young folks were hard at work on theirs. Rachell Kirincic of Georgetown was watching her children Hayden, 4, and Madeline, 2, work on their creations while Kevin Dow of Orangeville was keeping an eye on the progress of Chloe, 4, and Kael, 2. There were also regular Easter Egg Hunts that attracted lots of attention.

Town hosting public session on provincial plan reviews

The Niagara Escarpment Plan (NEP), Oak Ridges Moraine Conservation Plan (ORMCP) and Greenbelt Plan are all up for review by the Province in 2015.

In preparation for these reviews, the Town of Caledon is conducting its own assessment of these plans.

Town planning staff would like to hear from Caledon residents, landowners and businesses, in advance of the provincial review, on how these provincial plans have changed the way they live, work and play in Caledon.

The Town is hosting an informative presentation and round-table discussion May 13 at Caledon Community Complex in Caledon East. It will run from 7 to 9:30 p.m, with an open house session from 6 to 7.

The review of these plans is important, as parts of Caledon lie within the Niagara Escarpment Plan, Oak Ridges Moraine Conservation Plan, and Greenbelt Plan.

The provincial review will work to address challenges, capitalize on opportunities, and ultimately seek to strengthen the effectiveness and relevance of these plans. The insight and input from residents is critical for us to capture a broad range of Caledon-specific perspectives on these three provincial plans.

Peel Federation of Agriculture wants input on planning documents

The Provincial government will soon be reviewing certain planning documents, such as the Niagara Escarpment legislation and plan, the Oak Ridges Moraine legislation, the Greenbelt plan and others.

The Peel Federation of Agriculture (PFA) wants to know how these documents are affecting rural and agricultural development, and they want to hear from both members and non-members. PFA is developing a response that will include illustrations of inconsistencies that challenge rural entrepreneurs when applying to expand, redevelop or otherwise modify their operations as part of the continuing evolution of the industry that supports the rural area of Peel Region.

"Duplication of regulatory authorities and overlap in jurisdiction has created a maze of bureaucracy that adds unnecessary cost through time delays, the need to hire professionals to do studies and more," commented David Lyons, chair of PFA's Property and Environment Committee. "The added costs will make some proposals and projects impossible to implement due to viability concerns. If Peel is to have a future as a significant contributor to the economic well-being of the region, it must have clear understandable and practical regulations that can be implemented without added cost."

Those who have examples of applications that have caused frustration with added cost due to delay, need for costly studies, or outright denial of the opportunity for proposals to move forward in the rural area, PFA needs to hear those stories. The federation will protect rights to privacy if requested, or will become an advocate if possible.

People are asked to forward their thoughts to PFA by email to peelfederationofagriculture@gmail.com or by phone to PFA Secretary at Danette Woodworth at 905-702-8783.

Ontario strengthens immunization requirements for next school year

Ontario is helping children and youth stay healthy by requiring their immunizations to be up to date before they return to school in September.

The province has updated the immunization requirements for the 2014-15 school year to include new mandatory immunizations and dose requirements that align with changes to Ontario's publicly-funded Immunization Program.

All students attending primary or secondary school this fall will need to have proof of immunization against three more diseases: meningococcal disease, whooping cough and (for children born in 2010 or later) chickenpox. This is in addition to updated dose requirements for tetanus, diphtheria, polio and mumps immunizations. Requirements for measles and rubella immunizations have not changed, according to a new release issued by the Province last week.

There has been concern lately over the number of cases of measles reported in Ontario. Peel Region's Associate Medical Officer of Health Dr. Eileen de Villa recently told Regional councillors that immunization is key to avoid getting the disease.

Parents should take the following steps to ensure that their children meet the new immunization requirements: Double-check with their doctor, nurse practitioner or local public health unit to make sure their children's immunization records are up to date; and make sure that their child's updated immunization record has been reported to their local public health unit.

Once the school year begins, parents will be contacted by the local public health unit if catch-up immunizations are required.

Following Ontario's Immunization Schedule and maintaining immunization records are important steps to prevent the spread of these diseases in the community, according to the news release. These diseases can spread easily in schools and can lead to serious health consequences especially in children, the elderly and people with weakened immune systems.

Protecting Ontarians from vaccine preventable diseases is part of the Ontario's Action Plan for Health Care to keep Ontario healthy. It is also part of the government's economic plan that is creating jobs for today and tomorrow by focusing on Ontario's greatest strengths - its people and strategic partnerships.

Thanks to vaccines, infectious diseases that were the leading cause of death worldwide 100 years ago are now the cause of less than five per cent of all deaths in Canada.

Vaccines for meningococcal disease, whooping cough and chickenpox are publicly funded and part of Ontario's routine immunization schedule. They are also consistent with current clinical guidelines for best protecting Ontario's children from disease.

The Province currently publicly funds 21 different (routine and non-routine) vaccines through its provincial immunization program that protect against 16 diseases.

Parents of children who require an immunization exemption should speak to their local public health unit. Children who are exempt from immunization are at increased risk and may be removed from school during a disease outbreak.

Dufferin-Peel director to receive OCSTA award

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board has announced that Director of Education John Kostoff is this year's recipient of the 2014 OCSTA Special Award.

This award is presented annually by the Ontario Catholic Schools Trustees Association (OCSTA) to an individual, other than a trustee, who has made a significant contribution to the Catholic education community in Ontario. The official presentation will take place at the OCSTA annual general meeting April 25.

"I can't think of a more worthy recipient of this award," Board Chair Mario Pascucci commented. "This award is an honour, not just for Mr. Kostoff, but for the entire Dufferin-Peel community and I speak for the entire board when I say that we are blessed to be able to work closely with an individual who has so clearly and consistently been one of the best in the business."

"I am more than honoured to receive this award," Kostoff said. "To stand among the luminaries who have received this award in the past is very humbling indeed and my sincere appreciation goes to those who thought me worthy to be among them."

"It is a privilege to serve this board and this community," he added.

Past recipients of the OCSTA Special Award include Cardinal Thomas Collins, former premier Bill Davis, Msgr. Dennis Murphy, James Mulligan, and a host of other high-profile individuals dating back to the award's inception in 1987.

Kostoff was nominated by the Board in recognition to the 37 years he's devoted to Catholic education, demonstrating outstanding leadership as a teacher, administrator, ambassador and advocate.

The Board also praised his leadership through numerous high profile challenges. "He has intuitively insisted upon, and has incorporated Catholic faith values in seeking and developing solutions to issues," the nomination stated.

Brewers looking for repeat for 2014

Five time champions back with powerhouse roster

By Brian Lockhart

After becoming the only team in the North Dufferin Baseball League's history to win five consecutive titles, the Bolton Brewers will be back on their home diamond at North Hill Park in Bolton this season in an attempt to claim the championship for the sixth year in a row.

The Brewers have signed up 22 players for the 2014 season, and they're going to need them all.

In addition to playing a full schedule in NDBL, the Brewers have again signed on with the Greater Toronto Baseball League (GTBL).

With 28 games in the NDBL regular season and 12 more with GTBL the squad will play 40 games before the playoffs.

"We have four new guys this season," said coach Mike Wallace. "We have three that jumped ship, (from other teams) and one new junior player that moved up."

The roster includes 13 players who will rotate pitching duties through the season.

The squad has already been practising, using indoor facilities around the region so they won't have too much rust to shake off when they get out on the turf.

"We had our first practice on Saturday (April 19)," Wallace said. "It's always a world of difference when you get outside. We do a lot of batting practice, work on the infield, and the pitchers do their own thing."

They're going to have to be in shape. They've got 10 games to play in the first week of competition, including a double-header against Nobleton opening day in May.

NDBL has 15 teams on the schedule in the Senior division this season. That's one up from last year, with the return of the squad from Orangeville — who have also changed their name.

The Orangeville team took last season off after failing to find enough players. This season, they are back with a new name — the Giants — and most likely a new uniform, as their previous duds were emblazened with their former sponsor's colours and logo.

The Bolton Dodgers will also be back this season and have 22 players listed on the roster.

Their home diamond is also at North Hill Park in Bolton with Wednesdays and Sundays being their days for home games.

The NDBL schedule will get underway May 3, when the Brewers travel to Nobleton to take on the Cornhuskers with a double-header to start off the season.

Game one is scheduled for 1 p.m, followed by game two at 3:30 p.m.

The Dodgers' season will kick off May 7, with a home game against the Angus Black Sox.

Game time is 8:30 p.m.

Bruce Trail Conservancy adds 232 acres to Conservation Corridor

More than 1,180 donors contributed $800,000 to create three new nature reserves along the Niagara Escarpment, a UNESCO World Biosphere Reserve.

Thanks to this collective effort, Silent Valley, Fairmount-Webwood Passage and Duntroon Crevice Heights are now all under the permanent protection of the Bruce Trail Conservancy (BTC), and funds are available to manage these and other lands and make them available to the public. The new nature reserves add 232 acres to the growing Bruce Trail Conservation Corridor.

In Ontario's increasingly urbanized landscape, BTC is working to ensure critical Niagara Escarpment landscape remains in its natural state for everyone to explore and enjoy in perpetuity. It's is one of Ontario's largest Land Trusts, and its work in conserving and preserving Escarpment land is of growing importance.

The three new nature reserves safeguard many unique natural features and species. The cold-water stream on Fairmount-Webwood Passage near Meaford supports many species of trout and other fish. This nature reserve also provides habitat for the Sharp-shinned Hawk, Cape May Warbler and a resident pair of Sandhill Cranes. Duntroon Crevice Heights, south of Collingwood, offers an impressive display of ancient cedars clinging to islands of rock within a labyrinth of deep Escarpment crevices. At 200 acres, Silent Valley, located east of Owen Sound, is the largest of the new reserves. It has a rich pioneer history and is home to geological and biological diversity that calls for exploration.

The success of BTC's campaign to raise $800,000 from its members and other supporters, without any government funding, is a testament to the value and importance people place on preserving the Niagara Escarpment's natural spaces and ensuring a permanent place for the Bruce Trail.

The campaign was launched in October with a $200,000 gift from the Gosling Foundation. Dr. Philip Gosling, a founder of the Bruce Trail, has demonstrated a longstanding and committed effort to further the mission of the BTC. In early February, the Hamlin Family Foundation provided the final $70,000 to fulfill the campaign's goal. The Hamlin Family Foundation donation was made in loving memory of Heather Hamlin, matriarch of the Hamlin clan. The family has been very involved in Scouting throughout their lives and the Bruce Trail has been central to their recreational pursuits. In addition to this gift, the Hamlin Family Foundation has contributed $77,000 towards the BTC's 2014 Trail Development and Maintenance program. Brian Hamlin spoke about the Foundation's gift.

"The Hamlin Family Foundation believes strongly in the BTC land acquisition strategy for the protection of the Bruce Trail in perpetuity," he said. "This gift is also a testament to the confidence our Foundation has in the BTC as a philanthropic vehicle for conservancy."

Volunteer recruitment now open for Pan Am/Parapan Am Games

Caledon residents who are eager to play a role in the upcoming Pan Am Games now have their chance.

The official online volunteer portal for the Toronto 2015 Pan Am/Parapan Am Games is now live at www.TORONTO2015.org/volunteer.

Presented by Chevrolet, the volunteer recruitment drive is searching for more than 20,000 amazing, passionate and skilled people, aged 16 and up, to make these Games truly great — including right here in Caledon, which will host Equestrian Dressage and Show Jumping in the summer of 2015 at the Caledon Equestrian Park.

"The residents of Caledon are known for their big hearts and spirit of volunteerism. Volunteers are what make us great," said Mayor Marolyn Morrison. "With the 2015 Pan Am/Parapan Am Games, we have a once-in-a-generation opportunity to showcase the Town of Caledon like never before. I encourage everyone to get involved and help show the world everything Caledon has to offer."

Exciting volunteer positions are available in 16 Ontario municipalities — from Welland to Minden Hills, Hamilton to Oshawa — in all areas of the Games, from anti-doping and medical services, protocol and the Games-time news service, to ticketing, venue management and ushers in venues. The Pan Am Games will take place July 10 to 26, 2015, while the Parapan Am Games will take place Aug. 7 to 15, 2015.

"Behind every amazing moment at the Toronto 2015 Games will be our volunteers," said Saäd Rafi, chief executive officer of the Toronto 2015 Pan Am/Parapan Am Games Organizing Committee (TO2015). "They will be the backbone, the ambassadors and the heart of the Games — they will represent the best of us."

The online volunteer application takes about 20 minutes to fill out and captures information about skills and experience, preferences and availability. Selected candidates will be asked to undergo interviews, starting in June 2014. Positions will be offered beginning September 2014 and continuing up to Games time.

"Through the volunteer program, individuals and communities across this country will be united by the shared goal of delivering Games that will make Canadians proud," said Bal Gosal, Minister of State (Sport). "That is just one of the many reasons our Government is pleased to support the Toronto 2015 Pan Am/Parapan Am Games."

In addition to an unforgettable experience, all volunteers will receive a keepsake uniform and training, as well as earn a volunteer certificate from the Province of Ontario, recognizing their Games training to help them stand out in today's job market.

"The government of Ontario is proud to provide education, experience and expertise for our 20,000 volunteers who will help host the largest international multi-sport Games held on Canadian soil," said Michael Chan, minister responsible for the Games. "The first of its kind in the province, the new volunteer certificate program and online gateway will foster a vibrant volunteer base that will help strengthen skill sets and leave a lasting legacy of volunteerism in Ontario long after the Games."

People urged to volunteer for 2015 Pan Am Games

By Bill Rea

There are some great volunteering opportunities associated with the upcoming Pan Am Games.

Olympic and Pan Am rower, and Volunteer Ambassador for the Games, Sarah Chaudbery was promoting the chances available recently. She spoke at the Town of Caledon's 2014 Volunteer and Citizen Achievement Awards ceremony.

The Orangeville native commented on her experiences at both the 2008 Olympics, in which she was part of the crew in an eight, and the 2011 Pan Am Games, where she was part of a Bronze-winning pair. She said that in both occasions, the work of the volunteers made major impressions on her.

Recalling the experience at the Beijing Olympics, Chaudbery said "there were literally rows and rows of volunteers."

She added one of her biggest memories was the opening ceremonies, and how volunteers led the way and helped manage things. The athletes themselves were placed in holding areas, waiting for their turn to march into the stadium. Volunteers were on hand, passing out water, and whatever else was needed.

Chaudbery also stressed it was obvious the volunteers were happy to be there.

The Pan Am games of 2011 is Guadalajara, she said, were like the Olympics, except the atmosphere was more intimate.

Chaudbery said she often tells people the coming Games are going to be big for the Greater Toronto Area (GTA), with some 7,500 athletes who will be there. She added that's more than were at the recent Winter Olympics in Sochi.

She added 18 of the sports at the Games will be Olympic qualifiers.

Chaudbery encouraged people to think about volunteering. "There are so many great things about being a volunteer," she declared, adding it will be a chance to be part of something that will be a major part of people's lives.

"It's going to be such an awesome time," she said. "The scale of the games is just going to be incredible."

Olympic and Pan Am athlete Sarah Chaudbery urges people to volunteer for the 2015 Games.

Eddie Friel talks destination development in Hills of Headwaters

By Katie Ryalen
On behalf of the Hills of Headwaters Tourism Association (HHTA)

Tourism guru Eddie Friel highlighted the importance of destination development in the tourism industry, and challenged the Hills of Headwaters to tell the stories of its history, heritage and culture.

The world has changed for the tourism sector. With the internet firmly established as the go-to resource for active and potential travellers, destination marketing organizations must reinvent themselves if they wish to remain relevant to the regional economies they are mandated to support.

At HHTA's recent annual tourism symposium, destination development was a major focus. Not only is it at the forefront of the association's ongoing tourism strategy, it is also the keynote topic Friel addressed.

"Place marketing is taking two things that are the same, then telling stories about one of those things that add value to it, and differentiates it from the other," Friel said.

But how does a sleepy and predominantly agricultural region like Hills of Headwaters, with Orangeville as its most urban centre and with an urban population of just less than 31,000, identify its place in the larger tourism landscape? And more important, he said, what does it have that differentiates it from its tourism-giant neighbour, Toronto?

"Marketing places is about the history, heritage and culture of a community," Friel explained. "Like the (Dufferin County) museum with its collection of things that are historic to this region . . . it's about the accumulated memories. They are the stories of this place."

Friel is notable for turning distressed and declining urban centres like Glasgow, Buffalo and Northern Ireland into premier tourism destinations. He's done this by encouraging communities to develop their destinations, to tell the stories that make these places unique.

In his keynote, he told the story of the Belfast Europa hotel, the most bombed hotel of the Northern Ireland conflict. Inspired by the refusal of hotel staff to shut down operations after its 35th bombing (at which time Friel was a guest there and had to be evacuated from his room), he maintained that every place has a story to tell, regardless of the challenges it may face in telling them.

"We cannot apologize for our communities," Friel insisted. "We have to contribute something. If external forces are putting barriers in your way, you must find a way to circumvent them."

Those barriers may be obvious in a place like Northern Ireland, where the decades-long violence left a scarred and traumatized community behind. But in rural places, like Hills of Headwaters, they are more subtle. The barriers in these places tend to be things like lack of funding, lack of infrastructure and lack of accessible information.

"Destination marketing organizations (DMOs) must manage how their assets are being utilized," Friel advocated. "You need to create the right infrastructure to appeal to visitors and deliver on the promises you make."

Place marketing may be a novel idea to individual tourism operators, but for HHTA which supports them, it is a significant aspect of the organization's current marketing efforts, particularly surrounding the coming 2015 Toronto Pan-American Games, in which the region will host a number of high-profile equine events.

"The Games themselves are not our primary focus," HHTA Executive Director Michele Harris observed. "They are only two weeks. But they give us the opportunity to showcase what we have here, and they provide us with a template for moving forward . . . We need to take advantage of the legacy of the Games, and to brand and position ourselves as Headwaters Horse Country."

Harris added that once visitors come for the Games, HHTA needs to figure out how to get them to stay.

Youth arrested

A young man was charged with a couple of offences April 7, including uttering threats.

Caledon OPP reports they were sent to an educational facility on Highway 10 shortly before 4 p.m. Their investigation revealed that a young person, who is a resident of the facility, had threatened to assault staff members. Officers also learned that the youth was bound by a probation order and an undertaking order with the same condition, to keep the peace and be of good behaviour.

As a result of the investigation, the youth was arrested and charged with uttering threats, breach of undertaking and breach of probation.

Upper Grand District School Board

High Expectations Promote Higher Achievement.

Manager of Financial Services

With a focus on service delivery and accountability, you will manage key financial functions of the Board including Accounts Payable, Accounts Receivable, Accounting, Grants, and School Generated Funds. You will be responsible for developing and leading the implementation of changes to improve internal controls, efficiency and effectiveness, transparency and accountability, strategic directions, policies and procedures, new industry standards, and legislative initiatives. Coordinating the preparation and delivery of the Board's annual audit and periodic financial internal and external reporting, you will plan and prepare all necessary financial reports, schedules, files, analysis, information, and reporting for all stakeholders as you ensure financial compliance with legislative and audit requirements. In addition to liaising with board staff, professionals, trustees and members of the public and providing financial advice and direction to all key system partners, you will hire, supervise, train, and conduct employee performance appraisals.

Your degree in Business Administration, Accounting, or a related field and recognized professional accounting designation are supported by seven years' progressively responsible business and accounting management experience. You have a solid knowledge of accounting concepts for Ontario school boards and ideally a comprehensive understanding of complex educational funding requirements. Computer literate, you have experience in change management and process reengineering as well as excellent communications, interpersonal, and organizational skills. With a proven record of effective results-driven leadership in a service oriented environment, you are an innovative leader with outstanding vision, project management, planning, and presentation abilities, as well as demonstrated skill in motivating and developing staff, team-building, problem-solving, negotiation, conflict resolution and decision making. Job Code 14AE04

Finance Analyst

Liaising with schools and departments, you will assist with and review established financial systems ensuring compliance with Board policies, plans and procedures, laws, and regulations. In addition to working on a variety of financial analyses in support of year- and month-end maintenance and reporting, you will assist with the preparation of working papers for audits, analyze complex variances, and ensure financial data accuracy and integrity.

With a degree or diploma in Business Administration, Finance, Accounting or a related discipline, you have a professional accounting designation or an equivalent combination of education and experience. Your three years' experience in financial analysis and financial statement preparation, preferably in the public sector, are enhanced by proficiency in the use of a variety of software tools, including Excel, Word, PowerPoint and website software. Self-motivated, results-oriented, creative, and flexible, you have excellent analytical, communication and interpersonal skills. Job Code 14AE03

Applications, including professional references and supporting educational and/or training documentation, are invited and must be submitted by email (PDF format), quoting the appropriate Job Code, to ae.jobs@ugdsb.on.ca by 4:00 p.m., May 5, 2014.

Accommodations are available during all phases of the recruitment process. Applicants need to make their needs known in advance to the Manager of Health, Safety and Disability.

Successful external candidates will be required to provide an original Criminal Record Check, including a Vulnerable Sector Screening, prior to the commencement of employment. Please note that the CRC must be dated within 6 months of the date of acceptance of employment. We thank all applicants and wish to advise only those selected for an interview will be contacted. We are an equal opportunity employer.

FORD, Dollie Lubach

She was intelligent and inquisitive - always learning and enriching the lives of all those around her. She loved to garden and care for her lawn and enjoyed watching her grandchildren swim and play on lazy, summer afternoons. She loved her dogs and cats deeply. She enjoyed travelling and rising early for sunrise walks on the beach on Hilton Head Island, South Carolina. She was independent, strong and fiercely proud of her family. She will always be loved and greatly missed.

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Dollie Ford of Caledon on April 8th, 2014 at Headwaters Hospital in Orangeville at the age of 76. Dollie is now reunited with her beloved husband and best friend, Fred Ford, of 57 years. Cherished and deeply loved mother of Fred Ford Jr. (Sue Buckley) of Cheltenham, Jeff Ford (Kelly Jennings) of Oakville, and Lindsay Ford Zanth (Guy Zanth) of Georgetown and the late twins Deirdre and Desiree. Loving Grandma of Hailey and Jake Zanth, Kate and Erin Ford, and Sophie, Fred, and Madelyn Ford. Dear daughter of the late William Lubach and Desiree Lubach. Loving sister of Gwen Kidd of Toronto and the late Janet Lapier. Dear sister-in-law of Audrey Morris, Ann Ford, and Joan Ford and the late Mary and Kent Yearly, William Ford, George Morris, Lorne Ford, and Cecil Ford. Fondly remembered by her nieces and nephews. The family would like to thank Dr. Ponke, Diane and Amy in Caledon and the nurses and doctors of Headwaters Health Care Centre for the care and compassion they provided for Dollie.

A private service will be held at a later date. If desired, memorial donations may be made to the Canadian Cancer Society. Arrangements entrusted to Dods & McNair Funeral Home & Chapel, 21 First St., Orangeville (519-941-1392). A tree will be planted in memory of Dollie in the Dods & McNair Memorial Forest at the Island Lake Conservation Area, Orangeville. A dedication service will be held on Sunday, September 14th, 2014 at 2:30 p.m. (Condolences may be offered to the family at www.dodsandmcnair.com)

Thank you - Bruce James Hanna

Sept 29, 1957 to March 16, 2014

Bruce, my partner, husband and the love of my life. Gone too suddenly, much too soon!

During the past few weeks I would have been lost without the love and support from my caring family and so many others. It is difficult to put into words how greateful I am. How and where does one begin to Thank everyone?

Thanks begin with the rapid and professional response from 911, firemen, ambulance attendants, police officers, emergency nurses and Dr. Szeto. All were compassionate in their work and assistance.

The caring attention at Dods & McNair Funeral Home & Chapel, the comforting reception area, delicious refreshments were apppreciated by all.

The heartfelt service of Rev. Sandra Abuja of the United Church.

Eulogies from Bruce's cousin Bert Hanna, delivered by Bruce's sister Audrey Hanna, of childhood memories; work history and tales from Jim Thomson of Thomson Terminals; and my sister Bonnie Palubiski with an overall view of our lives together.

Bruce was honoured by Pallbearers of his trucking family who carried him out on his final journey. A beautiful photo to "Highway to Heaven" provided by his nephew Travis Thompson. Thanks to Jim and Sally Thomson for bringing Bruce's customized Peterbilt #482 to the funeral home, to honour Bruce, who had 37 years safe driving. The final blast of the air horn was a final salute as Bruce went down the road for the last time.

I feel honoured by the tributes to the many organizations in Bruce's name, caring cards, expressions of sympathy, comforting food from friends and co-workers and uplifting calls.

A huge hug to my niece Nicole Thompson for her support at the hospital. Heartfelt thanks to my brother Don and Marjorie for comforting me at the hospital, opening their home before, during and following the funeral. Gratefully sister Betty Anne Fawcett took calls and made meals at home and sister Bonnie has stayed and supported me with hugs and secretarial duties. Sister-in-law Audrey presented me with a precious memorial book of Bruce, I will always treasure.

To anyone I have missed forgive me, but from the bottom of my heart I am grateful and overwhelmed by everything you have done to help me weather the storm.

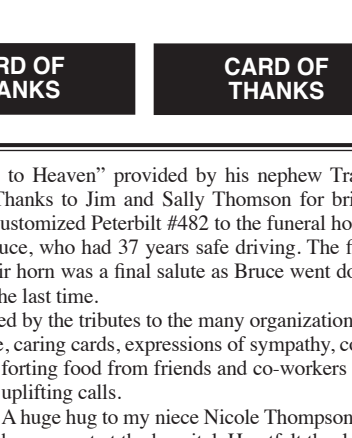

I know there will be better days ahead with your continued love and support.

Thank you to all, with sincerest appreciation and love.

Mrs. Brenda Hanna

Fire and Ice prominent at Alton Mill

The fifth annual Fire and Ice festival brought crowds out recently to the Alton Mill Arts Centre. The weekend included numerous artistic demonstrations and displays from some of the resident artists. Flower arranger Karen Cal of Inglewood put on this colourful demonstration.

Photos by Bill Rea

There was musical entertainment at the festival. Jazz and funk rock sounds were provided by the Shaw's Creek Band of Guelph, made up of Josiah Miller on keyboard, Matt Morgan on guitar, Isaac Grant on drums and Simon Pequegnat on bass.

There was a bright evening scene as artist Paul Morin ignited this pyramid sculpture as part of a musical event.
