Munriya and Bahni Atwal hold their new baby brother Yuvraj.

Caledon's population has started growing for 2015

By Bill Rea

Bhupinder and Preetanjan Atwal of Caledon East were expecting an addition to their family Jan. 1.

The little guy was a couple of days late, arriving Jan. 3. But as near as can be determined, Yuvraj Atwal is the first baby born in Caledon in 2015.

It's a boy after two girls," his father remarked.

Yuvraj arrived at 4:45 p.m. at Headwaters Health Care Centre, weighing in at seven pounds, 10 ounces. His two big sisters are Munriya, 4, and Bahni, who's a year and a half old.

Mr. Atwal said there is no particular significance to the name they've given his son, calling it a "fairly traditional Punjabi name."

"He's absolutely healthy," he added. ""He eats like a champ and sleeps like a champ."

He's got lots of family in the area as all four of his grandparents live in Caledon. They are Balwinder and Kulvir Atwal, and Manmohan and Daljit Grewal.

"He's a good sleeper," his mother confirmed. "He's a very good kid."

He was a little late, but it was still a bit of a surprise," she added.

Both parents agreed having a baby so early in the New Year was nice, but Mr. Atwal pointed out there are two sides to the issue.

"We were kind of double minded," he observed. "If he came in December, he would start school earlier, and if he came in January, he'd be the biggest kid in class."

Quote of the week

"The beauty of this coming to Macville is for the first time, Caledon students will have the opportunity to go to a SciTech program that's in Caledon."

Trustee Stan Cameron, talking about the coming SciTech program to Macville.

Town looking at increasing its tax share by 4.72 per cent

By Bill Rea

It's still early days, but as things stand now, Caledon resident could be looking at a two per cent hike this year in the their total municipal tax bill.

Town staff gave councillors their first presentation on the proposed 2015 budget Tuesday. It calls for a $74.8 million in spending, which is an increase of about $2.8 million over last year's budget. To finance that will require an increase of 4.72 per cent to the Town's portion of the property tax bill.

The Town, as a lower-tier municipality, has the job of collecting the taxes for Peel Region, as well as the local school board.

Treasurer Peggy Tollett said the Town's share last year amounted to about 36 per cent of the total tax bill, with about 33 per cent going to the Region and 31 per cent toward education.

Chief Financial Officer Fuwing Wong said the combined increase for Caledon residents will likely be about two per cent. He said that's based on the Region increasing its share of taxes by 1.9 per cent (the Region has not yet had any formal budget presentations) and an assumption that the education rates will not change.

Learn about the real estate business at Jobs Caledon

Have you ever thought about a career in real estate, but weren't sure how to start?

Jobs Caledon and the Small Business Enterprise Centre will feature a special presentation by one of Caledon's top real estate agents, Bill Parnaby of The Bill Parnaby Team at Royal LePage. It will be next Thursday (Jan. 22) at the Royal Courtyards in Bolton. The talk is slated to run from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Parnaby will be discussing the steps to consider when pursuing a career in the real estate industry, including educational requirements, time frames, brokerages and organized associations, as well as speaking about what makes a great realtor.

As an experienced real estate agent, Parnaby has been in the industry for more than 20 years, working in Caledon and surrounding areas. His real estate business is 99.9 per cent residentially-based, and many of his clients are repeat customers or they have been referred. Parnaby has been ranked in the top one per cent of realtors for Royal LePage in Canada and within the Top 10 realtors in Ontario.

"Come and learn about all the secrets you ever wanted to know about real estate and more!" he said.

SciTech program coming to Macville

By Bill Rea

Science represents a wave of the future, with many young students anxious to learn more about it.

The Peel District School Board is ready with its SciTech program for Grade 6 students, and Macville Public School is going to be where it's taught for students in Caledon and parts of north Brampton.

The program is slated to start at Macville in September. The plan is to provide an interactive approach to learning about science and technology.

Macville Principal Kelly Kawabe said it's going to be a regional program open to any student currently in Grade 5.

Those who are interested in more information are invited to an information night planned for next Thursday (Jan. 22) at Humberview Secondary School in Bolton. It will run from 7 until 9 p.m.

Kawabe said Macville is an ideal location for this program for a number of reasons, including the fact they have an outdoor classroom, which she said is "very science based."

"We're adding to it every year," she remarked, pointing out they now have a rocks and minerals unit in the curriculum.

Superintendent of Schools Joy Uniac agreed, pointing to the surrounding forests and farms.

"This is such a perfect property for that," she remarked, adding Kawabe and her staff were enthused.

"We really just moved forward ever since."

Trustee Stan Cameron, Caledon's representative on the Board, said there are three schools in Peel offering the program, with the other two in Brampton and Mississauga.

"The beauty of this coming to Macville is for the first time, Caledon students will have the opportunity to go to a SciTech program that's in Caledon," he commented.

He also said the school has the space and staff "to bring things home."

"It's a much-needed program in our area," he added.

Kawabe said applications for the program will open Jan. 23, and close Feb. 6. It will start with two classes, meaning openings for 56 students.

Cameron added it's open to students currently in other boards. "We would welcome all applicants because we welcome the world," he observed.

The program is offered at Centennial Senior Public School in Brampton, and Kawabe said there were about 450 applicants last year. That meant there was a screening process, which looked at such things as marks and learning skills.

The plan is to attract young people who are creative and who enjoy problem solving. It will start with Grade 6 this coming school year, with students passing through to Grades 7 and 8

There's already a lot of interest.

"The phone's been ringing off the hook," Kawabe declared. "The parents are really, really keen. There's definitely a high demand."

Kawabe said they are in the process of acquiring the equipment that will be needed.

They are hoping to have a robotics component, working with the program at Humberview, and there are hopes to integrate music into technology. "That's a passion of mine," she said.

She also said parents are concerned about extra-curricular activities. She said SciTech students will be able to take part in sports teams, as well as the band program, "which is something unique for such a small school.

There will be a $40 application fee (non-refundable), and the students who are selected will be an annual $200 fee to cover program costs.

Although there will only be 56 students in the program, Uniac stressed the who school will benefit from the equipment and the enhancements from the program.

Kawabe added the materials and staff expertise will enhance the curriculum for the rest of the school, "bringing up the level for all the students."

For more information on the program, go to http://schools.peelschools.org/1466/Pages/default.aspx/ or call the school at (905) 857-3448.

Council expected to approve Town's budget March 3

Those rates are set by the Province, and Tollett said that figure likely won't be known until April or May.

She added the 1.9 per cent increase from the Region seems reliable at this point.

"That's just what they're working for right now," she said.

Wong told councillors an overall increase of two per cent would mean an additional $82.32 to the annual tax bill for a Caledon property assessed at $480,000.

Tollett told councillors the process toward a balanced budget started with the base 2014 budget, that called for $72 million in spending and revenue.

Some additional expenditures were factored in, such as inflation and increases in employee compensation, but there have been savings and efficiencies found as well. The result was base spending is slated to increase by only about $50,000.

There were also unavoidable budget increases that had previously been approved and impacted on expenditures, to the tune of a little more than $250,000, as well as decreases in certain sources of revenue.

There is also assessment growth to be considered. Wong said it's going to impact the budget to the tune of about $1.3 million.

He also explained that about three years passes between the issuing of a building permit and that development actually resulting in taxes. As well, he said that development involves incremental increases in the services required for roads, recreation, libraries, etc.

"What you're telling me is money starts to roll in for the next council, and not for us," Councillor Doug Beffort joked.

Wong also said the Town is working on a fund to repair and replace capital assets. That fund has been growing for some years. He said it was about $3.4 million in 2009, but is budgeted at $12.3 million this year. The target is $20 million.

A couple of the line items in the proposed budget came in for some question from councillors.

There are proposals to create a position for a general programmer in Caledon East, to be paid for from a fund that was set up from savings from the closing of Caledon Central Pool. Beffort pointed out that was meant to be a fund for facilities on the west side of town.

Councillor Barb Shaughnessy agreed the fund was set up for a facility in northwest Caledon. "It did not say to a person in Caledon East," she said.

"It's not just a budget promise," she added. "We've got to build some faith in the community."

There are also proposals for an assistant to council and a communications coordinator for council. The proposed 2015 allocation for the communication coordinator is $94,430.

"That's a lot of money," Councillor Annette Groves commented, adding it would be hard to justify.

Mayor Allan Thompson pointed out there is a demand for council to do more to get its message out. "We have to reach people differently," he declared.

The budget proposals will be presented at a special council meeting this coming Wednesday (Jan. 21) in the council chambers at Town Hall, starting at 7 p.m. The various Town departments will be making presentations to council Feb. 2 and 3.

Final approval of the budget is planned for March 3.

"The big challenge is we just do not have enough employment base here in Caledon," Thompson commented after Tuesday's meeting. "We're into municipal services and we're trying to deliver it the best we can for our taxpayers."

Cost for policing will drop in 2015

By Bill Rea

A revised billing method for OPP service in Caledon is expected to cut costs by about $112,000 in the coming year.

That point was made recently in the proposals for Caledon OPP's 2015 budget, which was recently presented to Caledon council.

The staff report that went to council stated there will be a reduction in costs, but not service levels.

Town CAO Doug Barnes reminded councillors policing services are provided by Peel Region, and the provisions in Caledon are based on an agreement to have OPP in town. The Town can endorse the police budget, but it has to go to the Region for approval.

He added the cost to the taxpayers is reflected in the portion of their taxes that go to the Region, not the Town.

The staff report stated the Province has put a new OPP billing model into effect, starting in January. It consists of base services, and calls for service.

Town Treasurer Peggy Tollett told councillors under the new formula that 60.1 per cent will be for base service. She said that means all costs associated with the core operations, which are calculated at a rate of $200.15 per property (residential and commercial) throughout the province. The remaining 39.9 per cent addresses costs that are usually reactive, such criminal code offences. She said each service call is weighted according the how much of the officer's time is needed to deal with it. They also use a rolling four-year average to come up with a number of callers for the municipality.

There are plans for 27 enhancement positions at the detachment (23 in uniform and four civilian)to focus on the Community Response, Street Crime and Traffic Units.

Tollett also said they are budgetting for some $320,000 in grants from the Province, although she said those grants are under review.

Caledon re-appoints Town Crier

By Bill Rea

Andrew Welch remains the official Town Crier for the Town of Caledon.

Caledon council recently voted to extend his contract without comment.

The Alton resident was appointed Town Crier in 2011.

The staff report to council stated the Crier's role is ceremonial, opening public events, etc., in his garb from the 18th century.

Welch's contract with the Town provides for a fee of $150 per event, with an annual maximum of $750.

He is a member of the Ontario Guild of Town Criers, and he actively competes, placing fifth in the Guild's Provincial Championship.He was also first at the Marshville Heritage Festival Town Crier Competition in 2013. He is also the Town Crier for Erin, and the staff report said he attends a number of events for which he is not reimbursed.

"Mr. Welch has represented the Town at various events in both an official and unofficial capacity, and has done so is a professional and respectable manner," the report stated.

Festive RIDE numbers up in Caledon this year

In a media release issued Jan. 7, the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) reported their disappointment in impaired charges and "warn-range" suspensions from the previous year.

The 2014-2015 Festive Reduce Impaired Driving Everywhere (RIDE) campaign ran from Nov. 24 to Jan. 2, and during that time the OPP laid 593 impaired driving charges and issued 485 suspensions throughout the province.

Last year, Caledon OPP initiated 89 RIDE checks which resulted in 10 impaired driving charges, 12 three-day suspensions and one seven-day suspension. During the recent Festive RIDE campaign, Caledon officers initiated 163 RIDE checks, charged 22 people with impaired driving, driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in their systems or refusing to provide a breath sample, and they issued 31 three, seven or 30-day suspensions. Officers initiating RIDE further reported locating drivers under the influence or in possession of controlled substances.

"With the development of a dedicated RIDE team and the participation of each officer, we were successful in significantly increasing the amount of RIDE checks, number of impaired drivers and suspensions," commented Inspector Tim Melanson, detachment commander. "Officers from the Caledon Detachment will continue to conduct RIDE checks throughout the year and to work collaboratively with community stakeholders, such as Home-James. Road Safety is a shared responsibility through awareness, education and enforcement initiatives."

Police would again like to thank residents and visitors to the area who helped carry out a successful campaign by not drinking and driving, not letting family and friends drive while impaired by drugs or alcohol and for calling 9-1-1 to report suspected impaired drivers.

Stunt driving charge laid against woman

A 21-year-old Brampton woman faces charges after a Jan. 9 stunt driving incident on Highway 10.

Caledon OPP reports a traffic unit officer was conducting speed enforcement shortly after noon and spotted a Dodge Caravan doing 116 km-h in a posted 60 zone. The woman was charged with racing a motor vehicle. The vehicle was impounded for seven days.

PARAMEDICS HELP FIGHT BREAST CANCER

Peel Region Paramedics donated $4,348.05 to the Canadian Breast Cancer Foundation (CBCF) Jan. 7. Proceeds were raised through the sale of pink epaulettes that paramedics wore throughout October in support of breast cancer awareness month and CBCF's goal of creating a future without breast cancer. Seen here are Paramedic Kaley Jevnikar, Paramedic Jody Kernichan, CBCF's Vice-President of Development Anthony Miceli and Peel Regional Paramedic Services Chief Peter Dundas.

Intoxicated man arrested

A 30-year-old Caledon man is facing charges after a Jan. 2 break-in in the area of Innis Lake Road and Castlederg Sideroad.

Caledon OPP reports they were called out to look into a report of a suspicious man who was walking on the road and appeared to be intoxicated. There were concerns for his well-being as he was not easily visible to traffic.

While officers were in the area, further reports were received of a possibly intoxicated male who was found in a garage by the home owners and seen fleeing the property. Descriptions of the male and direction of travel assisted officers in locating the male. He was arrested by the officers and was found to be in possession of items taken from the home.

The man was charged with break and enter, trespassing at night and intoxication in a public place.

Volunteer MBC launches new series on Rogers TV Peel

Volunteer MBC, in partnership with Rogers TV Peel, has been provided with the opportunity to promote volunteerism and to put the spotlight on volunteers, community service organizations, and the programs and services provided by the Volunteer Centre.

This is via a special 13-part series entitled "i care…i volunteer."

The series began airing last week in Brampton and Mississauga. It will air in Caledon starting tomorrow (Friday) on cable channel 63.

"i care...i volunteer" was pre-recorded and includes staff members from Volunteer MBC, 27 staff from community service organizations who are members of the Volunteer Centre and 38 volunteers who joined as guests to share their "volunteer stories."

Hosted by Jackie Vieira and Alima Hotakie, volunteer hosts at Rogers TV Peel, each 30-minute episode features a specific theme about volunteering and provides reflections on the impact that volunteers have made on the community and on local community service organizations. In addition, a key message shared on all episodes is how individuals can get involved as volunteers by contacting their local Volunteer Centre.

Volunteer MBC offers a referral and matching service for volunteer placement within the community for all ages. This service can be accessed through consultation by email, in-person consultation at any one of the centre's three locations (Caledon, Brampton or Mississauga), or by searching through the centre's on-line volunteer opportunity database.

"We are so grateful to Rogers TV's volunteers and staff for this incredible opportunity to promote and support volunteerism in an effort to connect all people in Peel to meaningful volunteer roles in their communities," commented Volunteer MBC Executive Director Carine Strong.

"Rogers TV supports volunteering in our community," Jake Dheer, senior operations manager for Peel Region, observed. "In fact, as the local community channel, Rogers TV Peel works with over 300 local volunteers who help put together community television programming that informs, entertains and engages Peel citizens. It's a privilege to work with Volunteer MBC to profile their great work and the contributions of volunteers."

"i care…i volunteer" would not have been possible without the support of the Rogers TV Peel production team to include Producer and Technical Producer Marissa Corrigan and Producer Wasim Parkar, along with numerous Rogers TV Peel volunteers who assisted during the pre-recordings which took place at Rogers' Brampton studio.

The air time for the first episode of the series, Introduction to Volunteer MBC and how to search for a volunteer role, on Caledon cable channel 63 will be at a later date. The second episode, Volunteering for Seniors and Older Adults, will be tomorrow (Friday) at 4 p.m. and Saturday at 4:30 p.m. The third episode, Volunteering for Newcomers, will air Jan. 23 at 4 p.m., and the fourth episode, Corporate/Team Volunteering, will be seen Jan. 30 at 4 p.m. and Jan. 31 at 4:30 p.m.

Air dates for episodes in February will be announced shortly.

Rea to address historical society

Caledon Citizen Editor Bill Rea will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Caledon East Historical Society Jan. 28.

He will be speaking about his observations of community media over the past 30 years.

The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. at St. James' Anglican Church in Caledon East.

Admission is $5 for visitors and students get in free.

Register children for kindergarten

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic School Board will be holding registration for kindergarten this month at all of its elementary schools.

Registration for the 2015-16 school year, will be held Jan. 26 from 7 to 9 p.m. (Jan. 27 is the snow date) and Jan. 28, 29 and 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Dufferin-Peel offers the full-day kindergarten program in all 123 of its schools. Registration materials will be available on the board website (http://www.dpcdsb.org) and in the schools. Parents/guardians are to register their child in person at their designated Catholic school. Contact the planning department at 905-890-0708 ext. 24440 to find the nearest school.

The following documents are required for registration: Proof of age of the child (birth certificate or passport), original Roman Catholic baptismal certificate or baptismal certificate from an Eastern Church in full communion with the Holy See of Rome.

If the child has not been baptized, and the parent/guardian is a baptized Roman Catholic or has been baptized in an Eastern Church, the parent/guardian must bring their own baptismal certificate. The board will also require updated immunization records, proof of Canadian citizenship or permanent resident status, proof of home address (two of either property tax bill, current utility bill, real estate document or Government of Canada issued forms), emergency rural address numbers for identifying property, if applicable (residents of Caledon and Dufferin County), proof of English separate school support (may be done at the time of registration by completing an application for the direction of school support and/or a separate school lease agreement available at the school) and education records, if available

Admissions are open to Catholic children and children of Catholic parents. Kindergarten students must be at least four years of age by Dec. 31, 2015.

For more information, parents/guardians should contact their local Catholic school, visit the board website or call the Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board at 905-890-1221.

Car seat clinic Jan. 27

Caledon OPP Auxiliary officers will be hosting their next Child Car Seat Clinic Jan. 27.

It will run from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Bolton Fire Station, at 28 Ann St.

The clinic will be by-appointment only. Call 905-584-2241 to book an appointment.

Belfountain residents weren't pleased with what was planned for their roads

July

Great weather July 1 made for great Canada Day celebrations throughout Caledon.

Peel Region staff started looking at designating Airport Road as a memorial highway to honour veterans and peacekeepers.

The idea had been put forth in June by Mayor Marolyn Morrison, who has two sons in the military who have done tours in Afghanistan, said she was pleased to see things progressing. In fact, she said there were going to be discussions with officials in Dufferin and Simcoe Counties to see about extending the designation of the road north to Highway 89.

Although the plan was to apply the special designation to the road, Morrison said she understood there are no plans to change the official name, meaning people on the road wouldn't be obliged to change their mailing addresses.

"It's not going to change the name from Airport Road," she stressed. "It's just going to be the Veterans' Memorial Highway."

She added it will be basically the same concept as The Highway of Heroes, which comprises a stretch of Highway 401.

Lots of fun was had at the annual Cheltenham Day celebration.

* * * * * * *

The third annual CaledonStock, in support of Cystic Fibrosis research, attracted a large crowd to the home of Steve Anderson. The event marked the fourth anniversary of his niece Hattie Dunstan receiving a double lung transplant.

The annual Cheltenham Day attracted lots of people who came out for the fun. It was a hot day, so a great way to cool off was to enter the annual Tube Race in the Credit River.

In light of the June electoral defeat, Tim Hudak stepped aside as leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party, and Simcoe-Grey MPP Jim Wilson was elected interim leader by his fellow Caucus members.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones was named to remain as PC Caucus Chair under Wilson's leadership.

"I think Jim will do a great job as interim leader of the party," Jones said. "He has extensive experience both in government and the opposition."

The Town had been working on getting two plots of land in Bolton classified for employment, and in July they heard from the public.

One point that was raised a couple of times at the public information meeting involved some confusion that the two areas are some distance apart. One is on the north hill of the village, at the northeast corner of Regional Road 50 and Columbia Way. The other is a much larger parcel that takes in most of the west side of Coleraine Drive in the southern part of Bolton. Some wondered why they weren't being treated as separate matters.

It was still a work in progress, but things were definitely progressing, with less than a year to go before Caledon Equestrian Park was to host events in the 2015 Pan American Games.

The occasion was marked by a countdown event.

"Welcome to this absolutely phenomenal site," declared Mayor Marolyn Morrison.

"This would not be here today, if not for Marolyn," remarked former premier David Peterson, TO2015 board chair. "Now we have something that's absolutely world-class."

Improvements planned by Peel Region for the roads in and around Belfountain did not come as good news to some local residents.

In fact, officials of Belfountain Community Organization (BCO) were collecting signatures on a petition.

The study took in Bush Street and Old Main Street in the hamlet, as well as Mississauga Road to the south, Olde Base Line Road and Winston Churchill Boulevard.

The recommendations included the installation of sidewalks at various areas on the streets in the hamlet.

BCO President Jenni Le Forestier said they collected 338 signatures over two days, and the efforts were going to continue.

"We are quite concerned about how this could severely impact Belfountain," she said. "This whole project was supposed to be for students going to Belfountain School and the Conservation Area." Le Forestier pointed out a lot of tourists travel to Belfountain to take in the natural area landscape, along with other attractions.

"We don't think this Regional road project is taking into account any of those things," she said.

The Scouting movement in Bolton added two top recipients to the Duke of Edinburgh's Award program.

Palgrave resident Alexander Court and Harry Hautot of Bolton, both members of the 1st Bolton Scout Group, were presented with their Gold Awards of Achievement from Gov. Gen. David Johnson. They were accompanied by Scout Leaders Karen Matson and Steve Vickers who counselled them during the program.

August

Civic Holiday came, and with it the 10th annual Tour de Terra Cotta. Scores of cyclists took to the course, in support of various worthy causes, including Caledon Meals on Wheels, Terra Cotta Community Hall and Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Peel.

About 60 people went out for a walk one Thursday evening, along the main runway at Brampton Flight Centre.

The event was the Light Up the Runway Walk in support of Bethell Hospice in Inglewood.

Caledon councillors were wrestling with the question as to whether the production of medicinal marijuana was an industrial or agricultural land use.

They eventually reached the position to consider it industrial.

The Town staff recommendation to council included provisions for establishing such operations in other areas with a site-specific rezoning.

Crowds were out for the annual fun-filled Midnight Madness in Bolton, put on by the local Business Improvement Area.

Caledon had two representatives at the annual Ambassador of the Fairs competition at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. Representatives from 63 agricultural societies from throughout Ontario were on hand competing for the title. Patrick Forster was representing the Caledon Agricultural Society and Jeanette Burnside was there on behalf of the Albion and Bolton Agricultural Society. The competition was won by Jodie Hooker, from Dundalk and District Agricultural Society.

This year, the Ontario Summer Games (OSG) were held in Windsor from Aug. 7 to 10.

Caledon sent two archers to the Ontario Summer Games (OSG) in Windsor — Hayley Maskell, 15, and Lyla Stevens Woo, 16, and Maskell came home with a bronze medal.

The crowd was big around Terra Cotta Inn for the third annual Chase the Dream motorcycle show and fundraiser.

The event was in support of Chase Galea, a local young man who has cerebral palsy and hearing loss. The funds raised from the event go toward trust fund that's been set up to provide him with a better life.

The people in charge of managing the Cheltenham Badlands thought creating a parking lot nearby would solve some of their concerns.

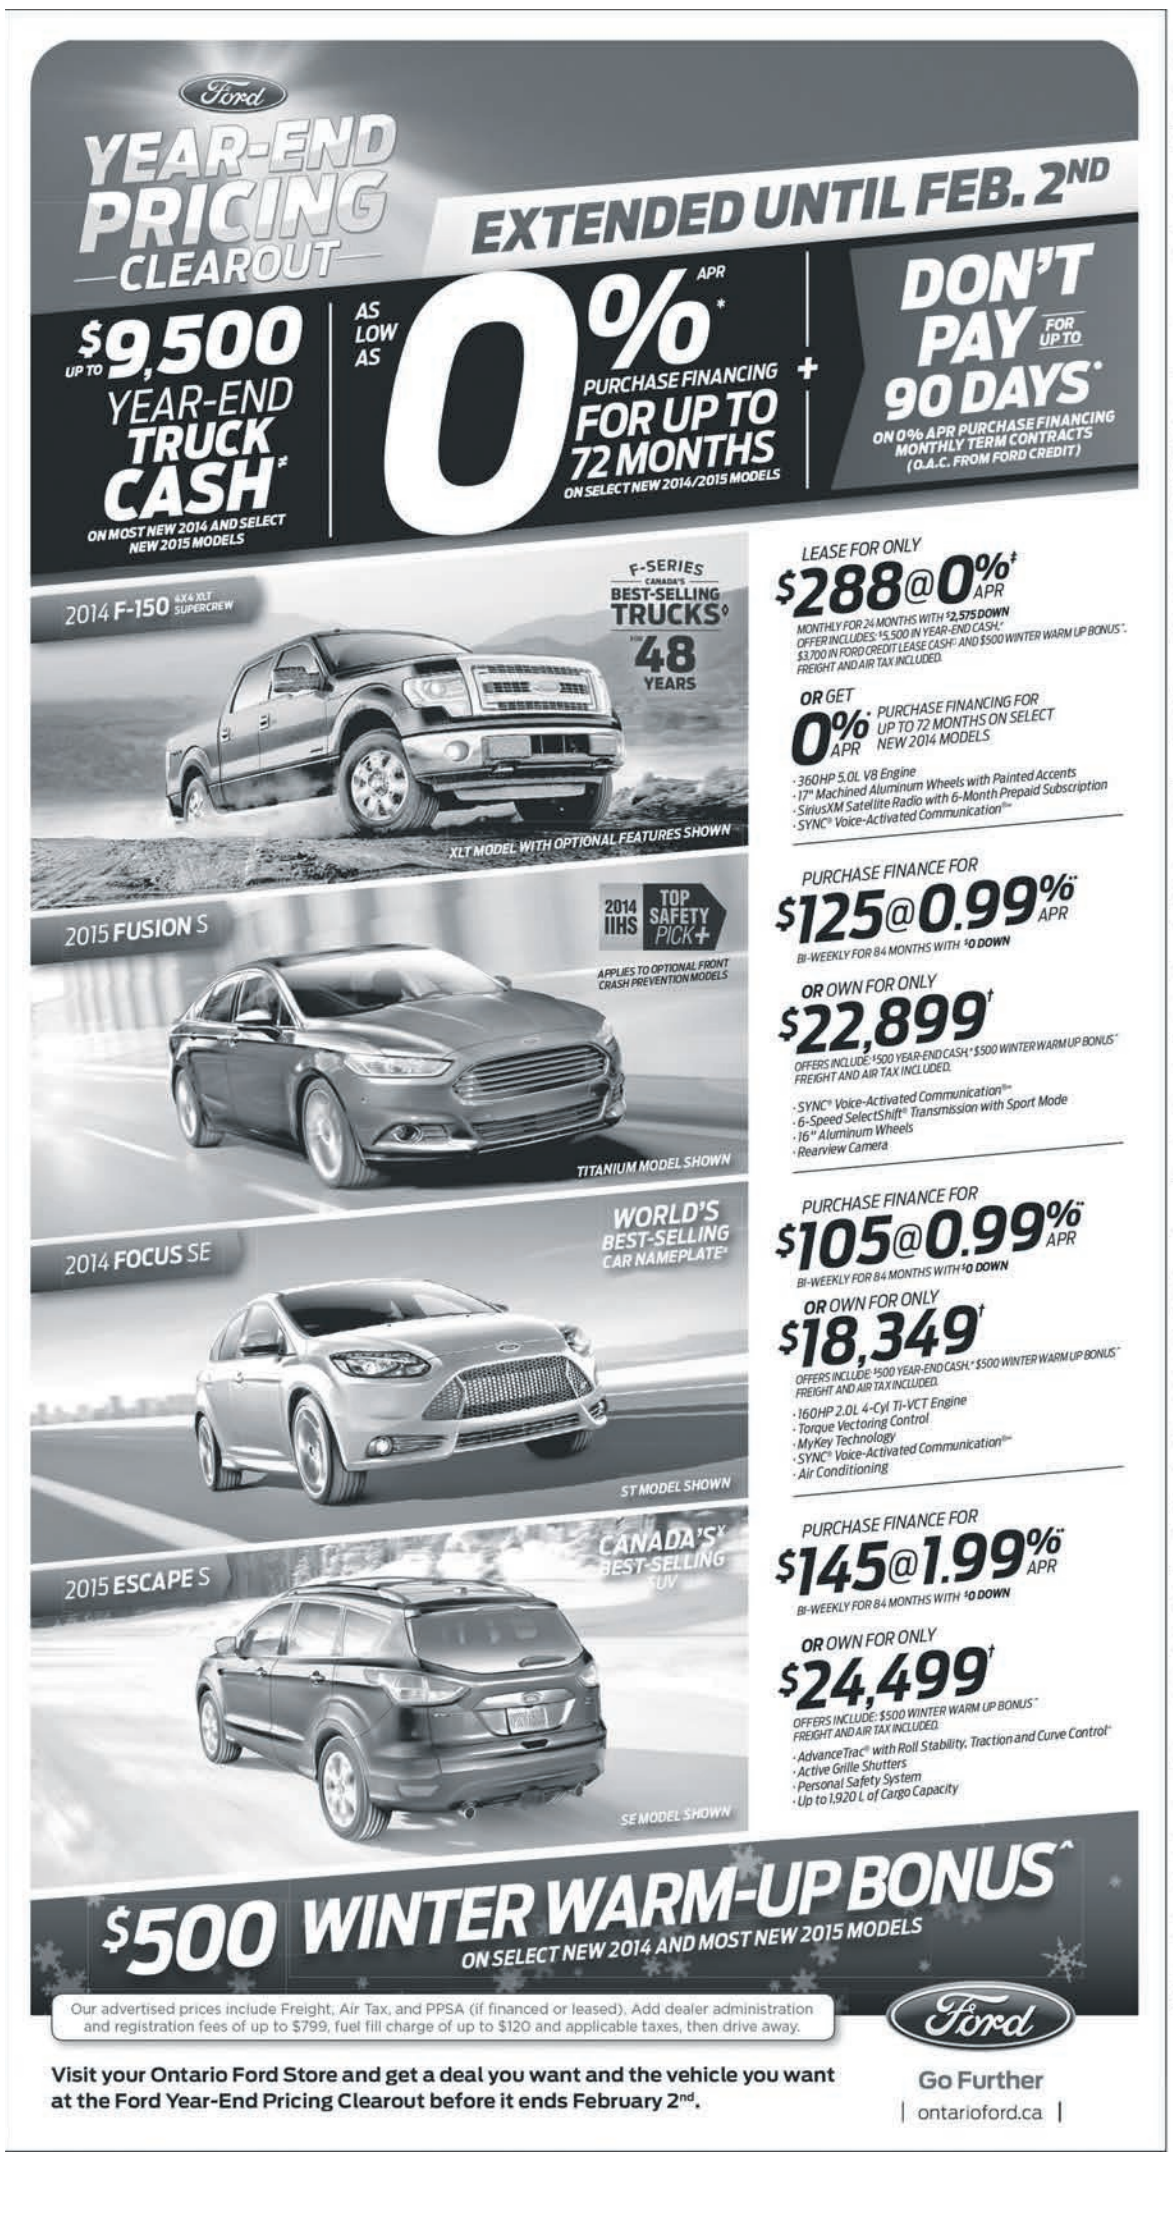

But they soon realized they were going to have trouble selling that idea to the people who live in the area.

About 30 of them were out for a community meeting, and many of them were very vocal that they didn't want a parking lot.

Caledon OPP hosted its annual Youth Leadership Camp in August, enabling local young people to spend a week with officers, getting an idea of what police life is like, while performing various projects in the community. The Campers were put to work cleaning up graffiti in certain places. These folks were working under Highway 410.

Vulnerable Persons Registry

Caledon Fire & Emergency Services offers special assistance to residents with disabilities when an emergency occurs. Should you or a resident in your household require special assistance and would like to have your name, address and information placed on our Registry, please visit the Town's Website at www.caledon.ca/vpr or contact the Town at 905.584.2272 x.4303 to have a form mailed to you. This will ensure, the event of an emergency situation, that respondents are better equipped to assist you.

Frequently Asked Questions About the Program

What type of emergency situations is this registration for?

Registering for the Vulnerable Persons Registry is to help fire emergency personnel in case of emergencies where fire personnel are dispatched. Emergency calls for police and/or ambulance are not applicable to this Registry.

Should I register for the Program if I reside in a registered residential support unit (group home), social housing unit and/or seniors supportive housing?

Individuals living in any type of registered social or supportive housing unit shall contact the Administration Office of the housing complex in which they reside, and advise them they require assistance to evacuate during an emergency evacuation of the building. This information should be included in the approved Fire Safety Plan for the building, and include personal information and location of persons requiring assistance, as well as the emergency procedures to be used in case of fire.

Who has access to the registry?

Personnel retained for Fire Emergency communication dispatch require access to the information to perform their duties. There are strict regulations with respect to accessing and disseminating information.

Will I be notified when the annual renewal is required?

The renewals are the sole responsibility of the vulnerable person or his/her guardian. It may be helpful to re-register for the program during the month of your birthday.

Office Hours worth every minute at Blackhorse

By Anne Ritchie

A colorful kaleidoscope of characters greets the viewer in Norm Foster's Office Hours, a show that leaves Blackhorse Village Players audiences thoroughly entertained by the antics in six lively workplaces.

You'll find a broken down and eager beaver movie producer and an overweight jockey, dual roles played by Blackhorse veteran and multi-talented Vince Ursini. Versatility matches talent for this fine actor, and there's more to come.

Morris Durante gleams like a multifaceted diamond in three roles. It may be a diamond in the rough philanderer, a polished salesman who could sell to every member of the audience before the play is done or a reporter whose latest news feature is an attack on himself. Durante makes the play a memorable experience.

Cheryl Phillips, as a very blonde and wronged wife, is as believable as the somewhat scatterbrained psychiatrist she portrays in the final scenes. Both will leave you laughing.

Newcomer Braden Wright jumps in to the fray and makes a powerful splash, be he the washed up American actor or a handsome race track owner who sings Sinatra and truly has the voice to match.

Then there's Jordan Baker, playing not only the one-armed man who fell victim to a news studio, but the frustrated lawyer sharing a volatile secret with parents (Ginny and Ivor Cathcart), whose performances double the fun of the evening.

Add the fresh talents of Susan Jalbert, capably playing down to earth producer and a determined Elizabeth Coulter as a boss no one wants to have and it all spells success for The Blackhorse Village Players.

The offices merge and link like the workings of a kaleidoscope and up pop stories of the wake of a race horse, a racy book author and hilarious hidden meanings of trips to Venice, all contributing to a wonderful evening arranged by Director and Producer Margaret Phillips. With more than 40 years experience at Blackhorse, she individually merits a standing ovation. With assistant director Conor Phillips and stage manager Victoria Tokarski they create an evening you won't want to miss.

Office Hours plays Fridays and Saturdays until Jan. 24, Thursday, Jan. 22, and Sunday matinees. Call 905-880-5002 for ticket information.

The Blackhorse Village Players production of the comedy Office Hours by Norm Foster is currently being performed. The cast consists of Braden Wright, Susan Jalbert, Vince Ursini, Elizabeth Coulter, Jordan Baker, Morris Durante, Ginny Cathcart, Ivor Cathcart, Cheryl Phillips. In Office Hours, it's a Friday afternoon in the big city and, in six different offices, six different stories are unfolding at the same time. However, they are all connected somehow, from the figure skater on the ledge to the novelist in the closet.

Café Caledon welcomes all

Café Caledon is a new, exciting venture which has grown from previous experience with Lifetree Café.

Organizers have been trying various formats for cafés and have concluded that one that encourages group conversations in a less-structured, relaxed atmosphere is the one that works best. People from the community have indicated a preference for this type of café, where the focus is on conversation and the subjects are of current interest.

Café Caledon will take place in the usual casual coffeehouse setting, with free admission, and snacks and beverages being available. It will meet the first and third Wednesday of the month from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The Café will still be in the St. James Church Building, at 6025 Old Church Rd. in Caledon East. There is lots of parking at the back of the building.

Jan. 21, the topic will be Atheism; What atheists believe (or don't believe) and why.

The programs for subsequent café meetings will have a varied range of subjects. Examples of what's in the works are What We Need to Know about the Tar Sands Project and Gluten-Free Diets — Fad or Necessity.

Questions about Café Caledon may be directed to Mark Tiller at 905-584-8506 or mark.cafecaledon@gmail.com

Bolton Brewers were frustrated in their bid for a sixth consecutive title

Concerns had been circulating, but Caledon's former Heritage Resource Officer confirmed there are no humans buried on lands under construction for the new round-about in Bolton.

Bolton resident Heather Broadbent said there had been an archeological dig on the site last year, and she said she knew remnants of a cabin were found there, as well as evidence that people had lived there around the mid-1800s. But there was no sign that people had ever been buried there; native or otherwise.

Broadbent made the observation in light of rumours that there had been a native burial ground.

"Absolutely no native burial site was found there," she declared.

There were hopes that the Bolton Brewers would be able to win their sixth North Dufferin Baseball League championship in a row, but it was not to be.

They were frustrated in four games in the best-of-five playoff series by the Ivy Leafs.

"It's been the first time in a number of years that anyone has been able to stop the Bolton Brewers," said Leafs' Vance White. "That's not to take anything away from the Brewers. They worked hard all year, and they've got a great team."

Bolton's playoff batting simply could not mirror their regular season output, averaging only 4.5 runs per game.

"You could tell we just hit a funk scoring runs," said Coach Mike Wallace. "You're not going to win too many games like that."

Terra Cotta resident Julia Thompson was named the Peel-Dufferin Queen of the Furrow by the local Plowmen's Association.

Residents opposing to the proposed parking lot for the Cheltenham Badlands site got Caledon/council on side.

Council passed a motion calling on Mayor Morrison to send a letter to Premier Kathleen Wynne asking her government to fully fund the Cheltenham Badlands Management Plan.

Later in the month, Peel Regional council announced it would be stepping back from its plans to build a parking lot.

"It's parked for the time being," Councillor Thompson remarked after the meeting.

There were a few tears, but plenty of celebration as King's College School marked its 20th anniversary.

"It was 20 years ago that we started this enterprise," commented Barbara Lord, founder and principal of the facility on The Gore Road. "I feel that all the alumni and all the current students are all my children."

Bob Knuckey, 66, of Alton, captured the world championship in the male 65-69 age group at the 2014 Subaru Ironman 70.3 World Championship triathlon in Mont-Tremblant, Quebec.

Knuckey completed the 70.3 mile endurance event — encompassing a 1.2-mile swim in Tremblant Lake, followed by a 56-mile bicycle ride through the Laurentian Mountains and finally a 13.1-mile run that finishes in the Tremblant resorts pedestrian village — in 5:10:34 (swim — 32:17; bike — 2:44:37; run — 1:46:18), beating out the top athletes in his age group in an event that featured competitors from 49 U.S. states and 87 countries around the world.

The future of Peel Region's artificial water fluoridation program came up and it was decided to leave it to the next Regional council.

Brampton Councillor John Sprovieri had put forth a motion to have discussion on the matter reopened and to establish a working group of councillors and staff to get experts from both sides of the issue. But in the end, councillors decided to simply defer the matter.

That came after some lengthy discussion, at which things sometimes got heated.

Regional Chair and CEO Emil Kolb had to order that one woman be removed from the council chamber after she tried to shout down Caledon Councillor Richard Paterak while he advocated listening to the Region's medical staff.

"Shame on you all!" the woman shouted. "You belong in jail! You're a bunch of murderers. Who the hell do you think you are? You're a bunch of lunatics!"

About 50 people were on hand late in the month for a meeting hosted by the Belfountain Community Organization (BCO) to discuss their opposition to plans for Peel Region for roads in and around the hamlet.

People at the meeting also filled out ballots on what they wanted to see done with the local streetscape. BCO President Jenni Le Forestier reported that the assembly voted 98 per cent in favour of the natural, rural landscape, with the other two per cent abstaining.

Participants were out in force in Bolton and Palgrave for the annual Terry Fox Run.

The last Thursday of the month saw the last meeting of the term for Peel Regional council, meaning it was the last meeting for Mayor Marolyn Morrison and Regional Chair Emil Kolb.

"It has always been amazing to me how well we have worked together," Kolb told his colleagues at the conclusion of the meeting, adding that has been the case with councils past and present.

"I wanted to just really thank you all for the great gift you have given me to be chair for all of these years," he added, also thanking the residents and businesses of Peel, as well as the staff of the Region.

Morrison also expressed her thanks to Kolb, as well as her council colleagues and staff.

She also urged the councillors who are hoping to remain after the elections not to get so removed from the public that people will say they don't listen, and told them to make sure they keep the Region financially viable.

"Don't ever let anyone push, bully or intimidate you," she concluded. "You do what's right for your municipality."

October

As the municipal election campaign drew into its final weeks, foes of the massive Canadian Tire development in Bolton's industrial area were still active.

About 30 were out for a meeting that was a combination information session and pep rally.

Things heated up with about a week to go, when a story in the Toronto Star stated a pilot project, in which hydrogen was to be used as a green fuel source, may be used at the massive development.

In response to the story, Canadian Tire announced it would be backing off the pilot project.

Town officials didn't think it was a big deal.

Fire Chief David Forfar said use of hydrogen is nothing new, adding a lot of buses in Toronto run on hydrogen, meaning there has to be a large storage facility to service them.

"The whole thing's a non-issue," he said.

There were a couple of surprises election night, but not in the mayor's race.

Councillor Allan Thompson, 53, collected 7,822 votes (good for 48.48 per cent of the total) in the five-way race to take the Brass Ring of Caledon politics. Former councillor Ian Sinclair was second with 3091 (19.16 per cent), followed by Gary Cascone with 2,898 (17.96 per cent) and former councillor Nancy Stewart with 2,199 (13.63 per cent). Bolton resident George Niras had registered to run, but stopped his campaign with a couple of weeks to go. His name remained on the ballot, however, and he collected 123 votes.

The new mayor learned he was going to be accompanied to the Regional council table by some new faces from Caledon.

Johanna Downey took the seat as Ward

See 'Frightening' on page 10

Palgrave Public School student Gradon Knox learned there are certain rewards to raising money. He was the top junior school fundraiser in the Terry Fox Run, and his reward was being given the honour of plunking this pie in the face of Principal Julia Breen.

There was a lot of ice water flowing in the Ice Bucket Challenge to raise awareness for Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS), also known as Lou Gehrig's disease. Council candidates Nick deBoer and Jennifer Innis took part.

2's representative on Regional council, the seat Thompson vacated to run for mayor. In Ward 1, Barb Shaughnessy defeated veteran incumbent Richard Paterak. In Wards 3 and 4, Jennifer Innis topped veteran Richard Whitehead. And in a close contest in Ward 5, Annette Groves frustrated Patti Foley's bid for a second term as Regional rep by just 79 votes.

As far as the area council races were concerned, it was a good night for the incumbents. Doug Beffort, Gord McClure, Nick deBoer and Rob Mezzapelli were all returned for another term.

Frank Di Cosola was returned for another term as trustee for Caledon and Dufferin County on the Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board.

Mayor Morrison was accompanied by Sligo Hill resident Helen Hamilton and representatives of the Caledon heritage community for the unveiling of the sign marking the location of the hamlet, and offering some of the history.

The fight against the proposed parking lot near the Cheltenham Badlands gained some more momentum.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones presented the petition to the Legislature at Queen's Park, calling on the "government to fully fund the Cheltenham Badlands Management Plan, which includes but is not limited to the fencing of the geological feature; viewing platform; boardwalks; perimeter fencing(s); trail maintenance and other accessory requirements as part of a complete and approved management plan."

Historic Alton Mill had some new features constructed on their site.

They included a new wall at the edge of the parking area, a decorative cairn, a bench and sign post. And they were all made completely from stone, courtesy of the Dry Stone Walling Association of Canada.

The event was Stonefest 2014, a gathering of professional wallers and walling enthusiasts.

Over the last 50 years, a lot of lives had been touched by both Albion Hills Conservation Area and the Albion Hills Field Centre.

A Thursday in October was a time for celebrating 50 years of outdoor education at the field centre.

There were a number of dignitaries on hand for the celebration, along with people with memories of their time at the facility, and students from Palgrave Public School.

Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson reported things had been pretty scary in the middle of what was thought to have been a terrorist attack on Parliament Hill.

According to published reports, a single gunman, identified as Michael Zehaf-Bibeau, 32, shot and killed Cpl. Nathan Cirillo, 24, as he stood guard at the National War Memorial, then entered the Parliament Buildings, where shooting erupted.

Tilson reported all three political parties were in their regular weekly caucus meetings that Wednesday morning.

"We all heard about 30 gun shots, just outside our door," Tilson said. "Needless to say, we were all terrified. It was a very scary time."

"We had no idea if there was one person out in the hall or 10 people out in the hall," he recalled.

November

It was time for retirement parties.

There was a packed house at the Pearson Convention Centre to wish Peel Region Chair Emil Kolb and his wife Beryle best wishes for the future.

A couple of weeks later, it was Mayor Morrison's turn, and there were few empty seats at the Royal Ambassador as the Caledon community thanked her for her years of service.

"Marolyn has made a major contribution," outgoing Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion commented. "Your mayor has preserved Caledon. She stood her ground and been strong."

* * * * * * *

Caledon Councillor Richard Paterak, who was unsuccessful in his re-election bid in October, announced he was considering running for Regional Chair.

"I enjoy the work," he added. "I have a lot of things at the Region I'm very interested in."

Later in the month, Paterak announced he would not be seeking the job.

"I believe the Regional council is in the mood for somebody not from Caledon," Paterak commented.

Mayfield Secondary School student Rose Ramsarran worked hard to get to the World Taekwondo championships in Mexico, and it all paid off for her. She competed in both the Junior Girls Individual and Team divisions. After an exhausting day, Rose stepped on to the podium for the Individual Division to receive the Bronze. She is the first junior girl of Indian decent ever to be sent by Taekwondo Canada to the World Championships, and is the first girl ever to receive a medal for Canada in the Junior Patterns Division.

Propose bottle manufacturing factory causes anger in SouthFields Village

The Johnston Family of Centreville Creek Road have spent years making contributions to the local agricultural scene, as well as to the community.

Those contributions were recognized in November as Paul and Betty Johnston and their family were named Peel's Farm Family of the Year.

There had been considerable talk of a community common area as a centrepiece in SouthFields Village.

The talk became reality as the ribbon was cut for Village Blue.

Lafarge Canada is looking to expand its operation near Caledon village, and was trying to keep the public up to date.

The company hosted an open house at Caledon Village Place, at which the plans were explained. There was not too much in the way of opposition, although some officials indicated they wanted to hear more.

Monarch Plastics Ltd. (MPL) is planning to build a large factory in SouthFields Village, but a lot of residents are upset at the prospect.

They were given some details at the quarterly meeting of the SouthFields Village Residents' Group, and that sent the packed house into a virtual uproar.

Mike Clark of Leeswood construction, the firm that will be building the facility, was on hand with some information, and he found himself facing a very angry reception, as did Mayor Allan Thompson and Councillors Johanna Downey and Gord McClure.

Kenneth Bokor, team member with the residents' group, said the site for the plant is already zoned for prestige industrial. He added no application has gone before the Town yet.

He also pointed out that since there's no rezoning or amendment to the Town's Official Plan being sought, there will be no requirement to hold a public information meeting. Bokor also said Clark was not required to be at the meeting.

"No one expected a mammoth industrial building there," one woman charged, adding it was being presented to residents as a done deal.

"Don't put in this application because the community doesn't want the building here," one woman called out to Clark.

Two roundabouts instead of one were now being proposed for Airport Road.

Peel Region was working on a municipal class environmental assessment study on improvements to the stretch of road between King Street and Mayfield Road.

One of the roundabouts is planned as a way to align the intersections with Healey Road and Old School Road. The other one is being eyed for the intersection with King Street.

Marolyn Morrison and her husband John were marched into her tribute by the Caledon Fire and Emergency Services Honour Guard.

December

Veteran Mississauga Councillor Frank Dale was elected the fourth Chair of the Region of Peel the first week of December.

Dale, 62, was first elected to Mississauga City council in 1988 and was re-elected to his seventh term as representative for Ward 4 in October.

* * * * * * *

The election of the new Regional Chair was accompanied by calls to have the position filled by someone elected at large.

Brampton Mayor Linda Jeffrey brought the issue up, calling the current process "flawed."

Family Transition Place and Caledon Public Library held a candlelight vigil to mark the National Day of Remembrance and Action on Violence Against Women, in recognition of the 25th anniversary of the horrific murders of 14 young women at l'École Polytechnique de Montréal. They died because they were women.

"On this day 25 years ago, 14 women were going about their last normal day on earth," said Norah Kennedy, executive director of Family Transition Place. "We can only imagine what their lives might have held — what the world has missed by not having their voices their brains. None of these women ever had the chance. December 6, 1989, should have been another normal day. It wasn't. It was far from normal."

Are there ghosts haunting the Caledon Townhall Theatre?

A group of paranormal researchers from The Searchers Group checked the building out, and they left the very strong impression that there are presences that might not be normally accounted for.

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board re-elected Mississauga Trustee Mario Pascucci as chair for the coming year. And Frank Di Cosola, trustee for Caledon and Dufferin County, was elected vice chair.

Di Cosola was handily re-elected to his trustee's post in October, taking 2,813 of the votes cast (good for 51.7 per cent), to 1,913 votes for Krystina De Rose, a legislative assistant at Queen's Park, (35.16 per cent) and 715 for Tony Meglio, a skilled tradesman and union representative with the Toronto Transit Commission (13.14 per cent).

The Town of Caledon got out of the farmers' market business, as it was announced that the Boltoin Business Improvement Area (BIA) would take on the running of the Market in Bolton.

BIA President Jimmy Pountney said it was a cooperative effort between the Town and BIA to bring this about, and he also praised to contributions of Pastor Jeff Enns of Bolton Alliance Church for helping with the volunteer component.

"It's not really the Town's kind of job to run farmers' market things like that," he remarked.

Lots to think about, as federal election nears

Beleaguered Minister Julian Fantino has been removed from his Veterans' Affairs portfolio; Prime Minister Stephen Harper actually had a sit-down session with Premier Kathleen Wynne and we eagerly expected lots of goodies announced in the coming months from Ottawa.

Yes, we would hazard a guess that there's a federal election in the offing.

The law, which Harper put through, states there has to be an election this fall, since the last general canvass at the federal level was in 2011.

It is a fairly safe bet that Harper is hopeful that Canadians will give him another majority government to lead, while the opposition parties are equally hopeful that's not going to happen. And the fact is it's too early to make bold predictions on what's going to be running through voters' minds in the month to come.

It is true that the economy has done rather well over the last couple of years. Harper may or may not be responsible for that, although from what we know of politicians, he's likely to take as many bows as he can.

But is the economy going to be doing as well some months from now? The price people pay to put gas in their cars has been dropping lately. To many of us, this is good news, but there's always a downside to just about any story. We're hearing more and more rumblings that these low prices are going to be serious bad news for the economy of Alberta. And we would guess that Alberta plays a big role in any plans and hopes Harper has.

The value of the Canadian dollar has been dropping with gas prices at the pumps. That may or may not be a bad thing, depending on the financial realities closest to you. But it could well be an election issue.

There are other matters that are likely to be on the minds of Canadians as the year progresses.

The recent acts of terrorism have not directly impacted Canada, but one never knows. And as we learned with the shootings on Parliament Hill just a couple of months ago, things can change very quickly. Whether the person responsible for this incident was a terrorist is debatable, but Canada could find itself just as vulnerable as France if terrorists looking this way mean business.

People might soon be more fearful for their personal security, and that could be an issue come election time.

Lots of other issues could come into play.

There are some people who might not have confidence in their government. There has been talk of people who fear the government might be getting too aggressive and invasive when it comes to individual liberty and privacy. There are probably some Canadians who miss the penny.

There have also been suggestions that Harper might not wait until the fall, but call the election early, taking advantage of his current popularity, rather than wait until October, when things might have changed. Assuming he tries such a move, it will be interesting to see how the voters react, especially since Harper has always been a proponent of fixed election dates. How much of that issue might he be forced to eat? And how prepared would the opposition parties be to serve it to him?

And the national political dynamics come into play this time around.

True, Harper won a majority in 2011. But he was up against an ineffectual Liberal leader in the person of Michael Ignatieff and an inspirational NDP leader in the person of the late Jack Layton. Neither leader is going to be around to contest things in 2015, which means Harper could well be looking at an entirely different scenario.

Protect your privacy

Why would our government want to pass Peter MacKay's Online Spying Bill C-13?

This bill would enable authorities to invade the private lives of any Canadian citizen, without any monitoring or guidelines? Does the government really believe all of its citizens are potential threats?

It would give telecom providers incentives for "snitching" on their own customers without facing any repercussions? No legal recourse means a free for all when it comes to our information.

And it would prevent victims of these invasions of privacy from even being informed? This is an clear advance toward totalitarian rule.

We know that 73 per cent of Canadians oppose Bill C-13, with just 15 per cent approving. There is huge opposition across all regions, age groups, genders and income levels. Even Conservatives oppose Bill C-13 by 62 per cent to 24.

The Harper government is misleading Canadians when it says Bill C-13 is about cyberbullying. This bill includes vastly more powers than the few pages about cyberbullying would warrant. It's clear that the government is running scared of Canadians, including thousands of its own supporters who are speaking out against online spying since it recently cut Parliamentary debate on C-13 short. This bill was rushed through the House of Commons and will soon be voted on by the Senate. We trust that the Senate will see the huge negative impact this will have on our entire democracy. Canadians know that the Supreme Court of Canada recently ruled that warrantless government requests for private information are unconstitutional. Why would the government, through this bill C-13 effectively encourage unconstitutional behaviour except to suppress dissent?

I encourage Canadians to learn more about how we can work together to safeguard our privacy at OurPrivacy.ca

How low can the price go?

This being my fist column of 2015, I think I'll do some reflecting back a couple of years.

What were you doing July 3, 1999? Take your time as you throttle your thoughts back more than 15 years. It was a Saturday, if that's any help (I had to look that up on a perpetual calendar, if it makes you feel any better).

I had not quite been married a year at that point. The first anniversary for Beth and myself was a couple of weeks away. I was still editing community newspapers in eastern part of Toronto, working for a company that had less than six months to go before it went under, and it's possible that I found myself doing something job-related that day (I've been a workaholic for a long time, you know?)

But there is one thing I absolutely know I did that day some 15 and a half years ago, because I have the documentation in front of me.

I got gas for my car, which was brand new at the time. It was a Saturn, and I had had it less than a month to that point. It was the fifth time I filled the tank.

Bill Rea

Alas, one's memory fails as one gets old, so I can't tell you where I tanked up. I do know there was a gas station in the area of Gerrard Street East and Pape Avenue in Toronto that was just a little outside of my professional stomping grounds. Its appeal dealt with the price they charged for gas, which was frequently about two cents per litre less than the going rate at other stations with which I was familiar.

It's been many years since I've been in the area, so I don't even know if the station is still there.

And the price I paid for each of the 34.52 litres I pumped into my new tank that day was 49.2 cents.

When was the last time you paid that rate at a gas pump? The reason why I consider it sort of remarkable was it was the last time I paid less than 50 cents for a litre.

Those were the days.

Although I accepted, at the time, the obvious economic reality that the price of things normally increase over time, I remember clinging for a very long while to the hope that a litre would drop back where it belonged, like at less than half a buck. But life does have a tendency to be annoying (one of the reasons why they have newspapers).

Within a month, I found myself paying 60 cents per litre. I remember as that threshold approached, vowing that there was no way I would pay such exorbitant rates. I'd stop driving if I had to. There was only so far that I would let inflation drive me.

History records, of course, that the price of gas passed 60 cents per litre in due time, and went past 70 and even 80 while I was still driving the Saturn. I went along with it because, like everyone else, I had no choice.

I drove that car for about five and a half years. I had been hoping to get another year out of it. I probably could have, despite the fact I had put about 360,000 kilometres on it and it was definitely showing its age. Alas, my mother passed away in the fall of 2004, leaving behind a condo full of furniture, a cuckoo clock (which hangs on the living room wall of my house) and an eight-year-old Toyota Camry with less than 33,000 kilometres on it, among other things. The car she and my dad shared until his death 12 years earlier had given out, so the Camry was the first and only car she ever bought on her own. It is a fact my mom did not drive much, but she wanted a car at hand in case she needed it. My brother drove it home for her from the dealership. And within a week, she extended to me an offer to take it for a spin. I subsequently learned that I actually drove it before she did.

It was also a fact that the Camry was sitting in her condo parking spot some months after she died, while my brother and I were sorting out the estate. He had recently acquired a new set of wheels (actually a new used set of wheels), and he also knew the Saturn's days were numbered, so he urged me to take the Camry as part of my share of the inheritance.

"It goes like stink," he commented as part of his pitch.

I went through the necessary, prolonged procedures to transfer ownership of the Camry from my mother's estate to my name. I even had to produce a copy of my late father's death certificate (Mom never updated her will after he died, so he was still listed as main beneficiary).

Thus the Saturn was history. I filled its tank for the last time May 6, 2005, paying 84.7 cents for each of the 42.37 litres I bought that day.

I have a habit, probably a bad one, of letting the tank drain almost to empty before gassing up. The result was I bought gas for that Saturn 577 times, putting in a total of 21,892.59 litres into the tank. The average litre over those five and a half years cost 69.75 cents (incidentally, I'm such a tightwad that I never spring for premium — I always buy the cheap stuff).

Isn't that all interesting?

Now reflect on what the price of gas is today.

I filled the tank of my current car, a 2008 Ford Fusion, Friday, paying 89.9 cents per litre. It was the 433rd time I had filled the tank, and thus far, I have paid 116.2 cents for the average litre. The first time I gassed it up was Feb. 15, 2009, paying 82.6 cents for each and every one of those 57.08 litres I pumped into the tank.

In case you're wondering where I get all these figures from, I have always kept track of gas mileage since I bought my first car almost 30 years ago. The information comes in handy at tax time. I also figure that if I see a sudden, unexplainable change in my fuel consumption, it's probably an indication that something needs to be checked out on the auto.

And yes, many, many people have told me I really need to get a life.

We've now come into a period when the prices we pay at the pumps seem to be almost in free fall. People like me, who drive a great deal, must surely think this is good news. Yet for some reason, I keep reading and hearing a lot of negative reaction. There are fears the petroleum industry is going to take a major hit because of the dropping prices.

I think we should all realize that when it comes to the economy, just about everything runs in cycles, be it the markets, prices for various goods, etc.

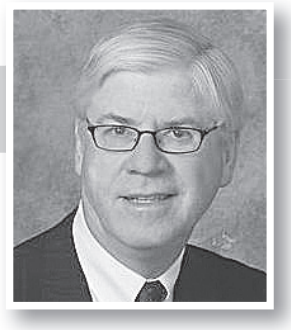

Besides, as I observed above, economic reality should tell us that prices of just about everything eventually go up, especially if there's a demand. And I don't think we're going to see the demand for gasoline disappear any time soon.

So for the moment at least, the price of gas is low enough that I can actually afford to drive. It's going to take a certain amount of financial analysis to convince me that's bad news.

Building on improvements to Canada's caregiver program

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

Canada's caregiver program allows Canadian families to recruit foreign nationals to live and work in their homes to provide care for children, elderly persons and persons with disabilities, when there is a shortage of Canadians available to fill the position.

Our government values the contributions that caregivers make to Canadian families and the economy. Following extensive consultations with caregivers, our government is responding to their concerns with significant improvements to the caregiver program, while also working to ensure that Canadians always have the first chance at available jobs.

In recent years, our government has already delivered important improvements to the caregiver program, including making open work permits available to live-in caregivers immediately upon applying for permanent residence, increasing the amount of time available for a caregiver to complete the work requirement, adopting a standardized employment contract for live-in caregivers, and arranging emergency processing for new work permits in cases where caregivers have been abused by their employer.

And now, our government is building on these improvements.

We are removing the requirement that foreign nationals live in the home of their employer. This will help better protect caregivers from vulnerable situations, including uncompensated overtime, poor working conditions, or worse. In addition, the live-in requirement for foreign caregivers has kept caregiver wages low, hindering opportunities for Canadian caregivers. By removing this requirement, this will help boost caregiver wages and result in greater opportunities for Canadian caregivers.

Our government's improvements to the caregiver program will also enhance the efficiency of the permanent residence application process for caregivers. To address the backlog of caregiver applications, we nearly doubled permanent resident admission levels for caregivers in 2014 and continue to ramp up the processing of applications.

Furthermore, to ensure that going forward permanent residence applications are processed within six months, we are launching the Caring for Children Pathway and Caring for People with High Medical Needs Pathway programs. Following the completion of the application's requirements, these programs will help reunite caregivers who have spouses and children at home more rapidly.

Our government is proud to support caregivers who deliver important support to Canadian families. We are reforming the caregiver program to improve processing times for permanent residence, reunite caregivers with their families, and protect caregivers from potential abuse.

Ontario Public Service internships help people get started

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

Internships are a great way to gain experience, especially for current and recent university college graduates.

Many of those who have recently graduated from post-secondary education are finding it more challenging to obtain jobs in Ontario in their respective field of study. One of the often cited reasons for this is the fact that many employers require you to have some relevant work experience.

The Ontario Public Service has a wide array of opportunities for youth and young professionals.

The Ontario Public Service offers both co-op placements within the public service, summer jobs and internships in various ministries. If you are trying to find a summer job that relates to your studies, the Ontario Public Service hires more than 5,000 students for a whole host of jobs in various fields of study across the province.

One of the internships the Ontario Public Service offers is the opportunity to do your articling at the Ministry of the Attorney General. The Ministry hires around 100 articling students and provides them the opportunity to article and specialize in different fields of law.

Another great program the Ontario Public Service offers is the Ontario Internship Program. For those who want to obtain relevant experience in the public service, the Ontario Internship Program may be the right program for you. The internship begins in July 2015 and will last for one year. The Ontario Internship Program will provide the opportunity for two individuals to develop and hone their skills in the Ontario Public Service. This internship will offer the chance to work within a ministry, or government agency, in various fields of studies. These fields could be communications, human resources, labour relations, policy development, program service delivery, or business and financial planning.

To apply for the Ontario Internship Program, you must have earned a degree, diploma or postgraduate certificate within the last two years (May 2013 to June 2015). The deadline to apply for the program is 12 p.m. Jan. 21.

If you have a keen interest in Ontario politics, the Ontario Legislature Internship Program (OLIP) is a great opportunity to learn the workings of Ontario's provincial parliament. The 10-month internship will begin in mid-October 2015 at Queen's Park. Interns gain valuable experience and knowledge of how Ontario provincial politics works. Interns will have the chance to work for a government MPP and for an opposition MPP. Another great benefit of OLIP is the opportunity to travel to other Legislatures and see how the parliamentary system works in other jurisdictions. To apply for the program, you must have earned a degree from a Canadian University and have interest in learning Ontario politics. The deadline for applications is Feb. 28.

If you are interested in applying to an internship, summer job for the Ontario government, and or have further questions about the Ontario Public Service, please feel free to contact my office at 1-800-265-1603.

Pre-budget consultations deadline is Jan. 30

Every year, in the run-up to the provincial budget, the Standing Committee on Finance and Economic Affairs (SCOFEA) conducts public pre-budget consultations across Ontario.

The point of these consultations is to give the public an opportunity to present the issues they believe should be addressed in the upcoming budget. The committee will travel to seven locations across the province for eight days, to listen to a wide range of individuals and organizations on what priorities the provincial government should be addressing.

This is a great opportunity to for individuals to voice their opinions, concerns or recommendations on what should be included in the upcoming 2015 provincial budget. This is important because after the committee has completed the scheduled public hearings, a report is drafted that may provide a list of recommendations based on the public consultations.

Once the report is finalized, it will be sent to the Minister of Finance for consideration for the budget. This report may also include a summary of the recommendations, opinions or concerns heard by the committee during the public consultation process.

While some presentations are made in person to the committee, many more are written submissions that are sent to the committee. Written submissions are just as viable for consideration as those done in person.

I encourage anyone interested to submit their concerns, opinions or recommendations to the committee. This is an opportune time for public participation as everyone has a vested interested in what should be included in the upcoming provincial budget.

The deadline for written submissions is Jan. 30 at 5 p.m. If you have any further questions about the pre-budget consultations, or would like to make a submission, please contact the Clerk of the committee Katch Koch at 416-325-3526 or by email at kkoch@ola.org.

Please be sure to CC my office on your email at sylvia.jonesco@pc.ola.org so I can be sure the Clerk receives your submission.

On the right side of history

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

As French police had all those terrorist thugs surrounded last week at two separate locations, I was thinking, perhaps unkindly, they should send Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau and NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair in just to talk things over with them.

And, while they were reasoning with these killers, they could perhaps offer a basket of fruit or fresh blankets as a token of their apparent belief that sweetness and hugs, i.e. appeasement, will win this battle as opposed to Prime Minister Harper's preferred route of hitting back with force.

You'll recall the late Jack Layton's Hallmark-worthy deathbed letter declaring "hope is stronger than fear," a sentiment which both Trudeau and Mulcair have often cited, and a philosophy which may indeed work in some circumstances but not – absolutely not – work when you're dealing with the current plaque of radical Islamic terrorists.

In October, for example, when Harper committed Canadian CF-18 bombers to the fight against ISIS, both opposition leaders were calling for non-combat training as well as medical and humanitarian aid (things we were already doing there), as if these radical fundamentalists are actually interested in any of that.

You'll recall Trudeau's grade-school level quip about "Rather than, you know, trying to whip out our CF-18s and show them how big they are," a potent example of Trudeau's complete lack of gravitas, among other things.

Trudeau also blasted Harper for his plans to strip Canadians with dual citizenship of their Canadian citizenship if they go overseas to fight with ISIS, complaining "That goes against the principle that has made Canada great – that a Canadian is a Canadian is a Canadian."

He may be talking about that less these days with news that the French terrorists, French citizens that they were, did exactly that, flying abroad to Yemen and/or Syria for terrorist training before being allowed back into their "home" country to create murder and mayhem over a series of cartoons which insulted their faith.

Some may remember the one-time British prime minister Neville Chamberlain who, regardless of everything else he accomplished in a long political career, is mostly remembered for coming back from signing a deal with Adolph Hitler and waving the document around declaring "Peace in our time."

Well, we all know how that turned out. You can play the appeasement card all you want, but some people aren't the least bit interested in appeasing you. Hitler was one. So too was Stalin. And the current crop of Islamic radicals fit right in there with their belief that if you don't subscribed absolutely to their view then you are the infidel and deserve death. Period. End of story.

The reality of this should have awakened all Canadians when, late last year, there were two incidents of terrorists killing Canadian servicemen – one in Quebec, the other in Ottawa.

The Liberals and the NDP – along with much of the mainstream media – have tended to pooh-pooh the notion that all of these attacks – including a more recent one in Australia – are simply "lone wolves" acting upon their own addled view of the world and really shouldn't be classified as "terrorism" the way Harper is doing. (It's become impossible to argue that in the Paris murders, since it is now clear that these thugs were acting directly under the aegis of Al Qaeda).

Fact is, these terrible incidents are a direct result of the murderous propagandizing from radical Islamic clerics and military groups. It is true, absolutely, that the majority of Muslims are not part of this.

But it is equally true that in our current climate, nearly all the ongoing terrorism flows from one branch or another of the same poisoned chalice.

Even after Harper responded to the Paris massacre by declaring that these radical Islamists have "declared war" upon us, some critics accused him of overstating the issue. I mean, really.

While it seems a tad crass to bring politics into it – and I'm not suggesting any of the three leaders involved here are simply playing raw politics on this issue – there is no doubt, given the ongoing terrorist attacks (and the reasonable expectation of more to come)) that Harper is on the right side of history when it comes time later this year for voters to head to the polls.

There are, of course, many other issues on the table, some helping Harper, some hurting. But on this one, he's on the side of the angels.

Or, as former U.S. President Ronald Reagan once said, "Freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction. We didn't pass it on to our children in the bloodstream. It must be fought for, protected, and handed on for them to do the same …:

Environmental Assessment Study

Notice of Completion - Additional Water Supply Capacity for Caledon East

The Study
The Region of Peel has identified the need for additional water supply capacity in Caledon East in accordance with the Region of Peel Water and Wastewater Master Plan Update (2007). Additional supply and a connection to the existing water distribution system are required to support approved growth through 2031.

The Process
The Class EA Study objective was to assess several alternatives and identify a solution to provide additional water supply capacity in Caledon East. The Class EA process includes public and review agency consultation, evaluation of alternatives, assessment of the impacts of any proposed activities, and an identification of reasonable measures to reduce any adverse impacts.

Preferred Alternative
The preferred alternative identified through the completion of the Class EA is to construct a new production well (CE4A) with a rated capacity of 1,515 L/min. on the site of existing production well CE4 and to use existing infrastructure to connect new production well to the Caledon East water system. Subject to comments received as a result of this Notice, and the receipt of necessary approvals, the Region of Peel intends to proceed with the design and construction of this project.

30-Day Review Period
The Project File is available for review at the following locations and available online at peelregion.ca/pw/water/environ-assess/cale-east-water-supply.htm:

Region of Peel

Golden Hawks outlasted by Terriers in marathon shootout

By Jake Courtepatte

The Junior C Caledon Golden Hawks found themselves exhausting their offensive weapons Sunday, in a game where neither goaltender wanted to give up the extra point.

After giving up a two-goal lead Friday to the Alliston Hornets to lose 3-2, the Caledon squad were looking to rebound against a team much more relevant to them in GMOHL standings.

The weekly Sunday night game had the Hawks matched up against the Orillia Terriers, nipping at the Hawks' heels for a bye to the quarter-finals in the playoff picture.

Despite a low-scoring affair, the back-and–forth action had the arena in Caledon East buzzing by the end.

Orillia dominated the play in the first 10 minutes, applying strong offensive pressure relieved only by the Hawks continuously icing the puck.

They did not register a shot on net until midway through the first period.

Their opportunity came when forward Ben Ardis chased a puck into the offensive corner, taking a hard hit from behind into the boards that resulted in a game misconduct and a Caledon powerplay.

On the advantage, Christian Burel fed Christian Mariconda a pass from the corner to the top of the circle, and Mariconda would make no mistake sending a wrister over the Orillia goaltender's glove.

The goal seemed to spark the home team, as minutes later defenceman Alex Palumbo made a nice diving play to stop a Terrier breakaway.

Goaltender James Cyfko was solid, stopping all 21 shots he faced in the first period.

He continued to keep his team in the game in the second, making back-to-back glove saves five minutes in to maintain the one-goal lead.

However he broke after nearly 30 shots on net, beaten by a blind backhand that went through his five-hole to tie the game.

Caledon's best chance of the second period was a Nicholas McNutt breakaway. But his deke to the forehand went wide of the net.

Strong goaltending at both ends kept the third period scoreless, and overtime solved nothing.

The Hawks moved to a shootout for just the second time this season, a tiebreaker that they were 1–0 on so far.

After all six starting shooters were denied, including a Derek Czech shot off the post, the shootout moved to a sudden-death format.

Mitchell Hall had to score after Orillia's fifth shooter put one past Cyfko, and score he did. He capitalized with a nice wrist shot that found the top corner.

McNutt found the Hawks in a do-or-die situation again as the seventh shooter, mimicking his Orillia counterpart by going five-hole for the goal.

Finally, on the 10th shooter, Cody Forgione could not match an Orillia goal as his low snap-shot was denied by the keeper. The Terriers took the game in shootout by a score of 2-1.

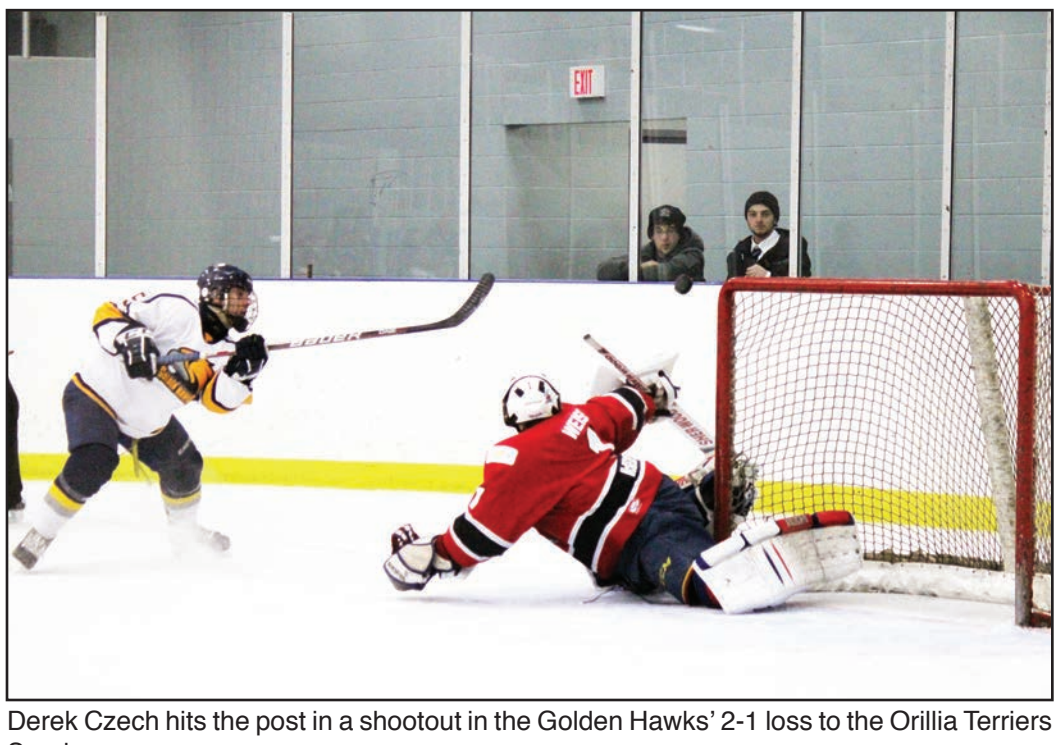

The Hawks are in tough with only six games left in the regular season schedule, as they face the top two teams in the GMOHL this week.

They head to Stayner to take on the Siskins tonight (Thursday), before looking to even the season score with the Terriers on the road Saturday.

Ending the week is a home match up against the first-place Hornets Sunday.

Puck drop for that game is 7 p.m. at Caledon East.

Derek Czech hits the post in a shootout in the Golden Hawks' 2-1 loss to the Orillia Terriers Sunday.

Annual Hockey Night for Headwaters Jan. 24

Members of the community are invited to join hospital staff, family and friends at Teen Ranch Ice Corral, to cheer on the local "health care heroes" as they go head-to-head on the ice, all in the name of fundraising.

This third annual event, presented by Precise ParkLink and organized by a small committee of hospital staff members, is in support of the Headwaters Health Care Foundation's $16 million Commitment to Care Campaign. It was created by staff as an opportunity for hospital employees to have some offsite fun with one another and show their support for both their workplace and their community hospital.

"We had such great success with our two past events that we just had to do it again!" commented event chair John Roberto. "Between ticket sales and bake sale proceeds, we donated just over $5,000 to the Foundation in 2014. We'd like to match, if not beat that this year."

The puck drops at 8 p.m. for the first game: Staff vs. Staff, highlighting mixed co-ed teams made up of players from all areas of the hospital. That will be immediately followed by the Headwaters Physicians as they battle it out against the Dufferin County Ambulance team.

Tickets can be purchased for $5 each or $20 per family (maximum of five members) at the door beginning at 7 p.m. at Teen Ranch Ice Corral. Come early, shop the bake sale, and grab a hot drink courtesy of Tim Hortons.

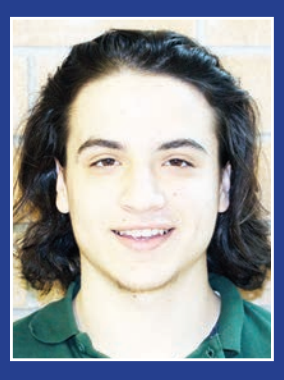

To donate a prize or item for the bake sale, contact committee member Patty at pnapran@headwatershealth.ca

The Grade 10 student lives n bolton with his grandparents Maria and Peter Conte. His parents are Rhonda and Rob.

Upsets alow teams to move up in men's standings

Jiffy Lube Oilers used a balanced attack to edge George's Arena Sports 4-3 last Monday at Don Sheardown Memorial Arena in a Caledon Senior Hockey League game.

In other CSHL action, Rutherford Global Logistics reclaimed first place from Bolton Chiropractic Centre by downing the Bone-twisters 8-5 and Yale Industrial Trucks clipped Fines Ford Lincoln 6-3 to close in on the pack.

Jan. 5

Jiffy Lube 4, George's 3

Nine players from Jiffy Lube made the score sheet in the win.

Luch Pinarello provided a goal and an assist while Tony Dinis, Marty Madensky and Mike McNamara scored the other goals. Jim Moyer chipped in two assists with singles from Rich Petrie, team sponsor Brian Fetterly, Robert Masutti and Dom Orazio.

Ron Sampson, Rick Geiger, Maurizo Giorgio and Bill Moyer scored for George's. Joe Lamkin had two assists while Jim Rogers and Dave Livingston had one each.

Rutherford 8, Bolton Chiropractic 5

Jim Horan led the Rutherford attack with four goals and one assist.

Bernie Tisdale scored a goal and added two assists while Ted Callighen notched four assists. Peter Coghill and James Heenan each had a goal and an assist. Bob McHardy scored the other goal. Dom Spignasi was in brackets twice while Gary Hoxey and Dave Boyd had single assists.

Rick Agar was the big shooter for the Chiropractors with two goals and an as-

McHardy scored a goal and picked up an assist for Rutherford. Heenan had the other goal with Bob Smith and Spignasi contributing single assists.

Fines Ford 8, George's 3

Team rep Kerr was the spark plug for Fines with three goals and two assists. Labine notched two goals and one assist while Davis scored once and added two assists. Rod Sinclair had a goal and an assist with Pitsadiotis scoring the other goal. Gazzolla had two assists with singles going to McKay, Gasparini and Gibson.

Bret Smith led George's with a goal and an assist while Giorgio and Greg MacIssac scored the other goals. Geiger, Farrow and Dave Smith each had an assist.

CHAMBER CHECK IN

CALEDON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

How Do We Move Forward In 2015?

We heard "The Chamber Matters" from every candidate during election debates last October.

We agree!

Now how do we, together, move forward on developing (and most importantly, implementing) the issues, programs and practices that are priorities for 2015?

Your Chamber is extremely excited to move forward on multiple fronts with the support and participation of the Town of Caledon, led with the enthusiastic endorsement of the Mayor and Council.

The Chamber has a call to action to its members. Business is invited to participate through the organization of the Chamber on various relevant committees and associations'. Our members will take every opportunity to shape our community – especially when it involves business - through active volunteerism.

The Chamber stated in the last issue of the Check-In that its mission is to assist business success across Caledon. Within the municipality we will continue to offer and create business opportunities at a cost that encourages participation and reflects a return on investment. While the Chamber has a direct connection to communicate the details of each opportunity to its membership we will improve how we connect with those not yet connected. We encourage your independent check-in with the Chamber at www.caledonchamber.com for details on a regular basis. Yes, you are invited!

No report on the Chamber activity would be complete without an update on our advocacy work.

Advocacy is nothing more than being aware of how trends are effecting business and how we can work with decision-makers to improve the quality of opportunities.

In Caledon we have been concerned with the Hwy 50 corridor businesses and conditions that have contributed to multiple closures. We are equally concerned about lower taxes, public transit, roads, budget deficits and department overspending at the municipal level. The Chamber will continue to raise its concerns and its solutions to Council.

At the provincial and federal levels our Chamber's voice is active through its membership at the Ontario and Canadian Chambers of Commerce (OCC/CCC). We are reporting on important issues such as the Ontario Pension Plan and are aligned with the OCC on its position. Economic issues connected to national and global platforms are monitored locally by us through the CCC and we always have opportunity to contribute annually at the conference.

Below you will see a list of new and renewing members. We ask that you consider supporting the good businesses that support your community. We also send out a thank-you to the advertisers that border this monthly message, these businesses make this connection possible. "Working together in Caledon" is more than a slogan to us.

Check the website for upcoming events and be sure to reserve the date of the 2015 Caledon Home & Lifestyle Show April 24, 25, & 26. Contracts to participate as a vendor are now available.

Dana Roxanne Googh
December 21, 2005

In loving memory of a beloved wife

Do you know how much I miss you?
Do you remember how much I cared?
Do you see the emptiness in my heart
From your world way up there?

I miss your arms around me,
Your blue eyes and that smile
Are memories that stir my soul
And keep my heart alive.

I remember how good life used to be
Your warm and gentle hand in mine
The simple ways you cared for me
And memories that become more precious with time.

Always loved

van HAASTRECHT, John Peter Jr.
Peacefully entered into eternal rest at Hospice of Charleston, on Thursday, January 8, 2015, John Peter van Haastrecht, Jr., of Bolton, Ontario in his 72nd year, beloved husband for 46 years of his loving wife Elizabeth "Beth"

Bryan van Haastrecht, of Bolton, and Edisto Beach, South Carolina. Loving father of John (Katrina) van Haastrecht, III, North Augusta, South Carolina; Trina (Kent) Turberville, James Island, South Carolina. Cherished grandfather of Taylor, Bailey, Chance and Madison van Haastrecht; Bryce and Lucius Turberville. Dear brother of Betty Aldridge, Ottawa, Ontario; Peter (Linda) van Haastrecht, Trenton, Ontario; brothers-in-law, Arthur Bryan, Augusta, Georgia; David (Linda) Bryan, Lexington, South Carolina; Bill (Ann) Bryan and a sister-in-law, Marie (Tom) Martin, all of North Augusta, South Carolina. He was predeceased by brother-in-law, Dick Aldridge and sister-in-law, Beth Bryan.
John was born on June 14, 1943, in the Netherlands, a son of the late Elisabeth and John Peter van Haastrecht, Sr. He graduated from the Royal Military College in Kingston, Ontario with a Bachelor of Science degree and served as a pilot in the Royal Canadian Navy. Upon retiring from the military, he entered into real estate development where he excelled with A.E. LePage, Kelley and Associates, and was President of Campeau Corporation. He started Devan Properties which was later bought out by Morguard REIT where he was CEO and then went independent with his own company Vanreal Ltd. In addition to his business activities, John served on the board of the Royal Military College Foundation and is a past President; he was a member of the Board and the Audit Committee of Partners Real Estate Investment Trust and member of Board of North America Development Ltd. He recently attained the designation of Chartered Director from the DeGroote School of Business at McMaster University. John was presented the Queen's Diamond Jubilee Medal by the Minister of National Defense for being a leading donator and booster of the Royal Military College. John was a man who worked hard, loved his family, loved to travel with his wife and their grandchildren. He was always up to accepting a challenge whether it was marathon bike rides or climbing Mt. Shasta to raise money for his college. He enjoyed a good glass of wine and conversation and was always open minded to all points of view. He was extremely giving and very supportive of his community.
The family received their friends at the Egan Funeral Home, 203 Queen Street S. (Hwy. 50), Bolton (905-857-2213) Tuesday evening 5 – 7 o'clock. Funeral service was held in the chapel on Wednesday, January 14 at 3 o'clock. Interment Laurel Hill Cemetery, Bolton. Family received family and friends after the burial at a reception at Glen Eagle Golf Club, 153731 Peel Regional Road 50, Bolton L7E 3H9. In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Salvation Army, 2 Overlea Blvd., Toronto M4H 1P4 (http://satruck.org) or the National Pancreatic Cancer Canada Foundation, 30 Concourse Gate, Unit 27, Ottawa K2E 7V7 (http://www.pancreaticcancercanada.ca). Condolences for the family may be offered at www.EganFuneralHome.com
