SAP IS FLOWING THIS TIME OF YEAR

Terra Cotta Conservation Area has been a very popular place over the last couple of days with the Sugarbush Maple Syrup Festival. One of the fun activities is making chewy treats by combining syrup with ice. Kaylee Preece, 8, of Georgetown and her brother Brady, 6, were having lots of fun doing just that Monday. Turn to page A4 for more scenes of the sap flowing.

SouthFields residents hope something can be done about plant

By Bill Rea

Members of the SouthFields Village Residents' Group are getting some legal advice for dealing with the Monarch Plastics development.

Monarch Plastics Ltd. (MPL) is planning to build a large factory in the area, and since the project does not involve a rezoning or amendment to Caledon's Official Plan, there's really no perscribed mechanism for gathering public input. It will be about 316,000 square feet and will manufacture plastic bottles of various types.

The bottles will be transported to various locations to be filled. No filling will take place at the plant. The process at the plant will take inert plastic pellets and form them into bottles.

The plant is slated to go on the north side of Highway 410 near Kennedy Road, south of Abbotside Way.

The issue came up at last Thursday's meeting of the residents' group.

Eddie Garland told the crowd the residents formed a task force in light of the last meeting of the group, which took place in November. At that time, there were some details offered by representatives of the company, and it was clear a lot of residents were hearing about it for the first time.

Garland said there have been a number of meetings since the task force was formed.

"We were repeatedly told there was nothing we could do," he said. "It's a done deal."

But he also said the group pooled their funds and met with lawyers from the firm Willms and Shier, and they have said there are still public avenues available.

Garland told the meeting this proposed new facility will require environmental certification from the Ministry of the Environment, and that would involve the possibility of appeal. He said the company has to go through this process before the plant can open and operate.

Further action involving lawyers will come at a cost, Garland warned, telling the group there will be fund-raising efforts.

He pointed out the lands being eyed for the plant were zoned for industrial before any of the nearby houses were built. He added the task force has been looking into ways to tighten the definitions of prestige industrial.

"We're not looking to get into any legal battled," he said, adding they're trying to follow the processes that are available to them.

Jim Dillon, Training and Employment Specialist from 5th Wheel Training Institute.

Jobs Caledon features 5th Wheel Training Institute next Thursday

With the busy spring construction season approaching and the demand for drivers being at an all-time high, now is an ideal opportunity to train to become a heavy equipment operator and/or an AZ driver.

Jobs Caledon will host Jim Dillon, training and employment specialist, from 5th Wheel Training Institute, March 26 from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

It will be at the at the Royal Courtyards in Bolton.

Dillon will provide an overview of 5th Wheel construction, servicing and transportation programs. He will also discuss the "Look Who's Hiring" online feature at 5th Wheel Training Institute that provides updated listings of current job postings in trucking, heavy equipment operating and servicing.

Since 1985, 5th Wheel Training Institute has been dedicated to providing individuals from across Canada with the skills and certification that meet employer requirements for entry-level equipment operators for the construction and transportation industry.

The institute has been providing quality and up-to-date programs that get people to work for more than 30 years.

"By attending our presentation, participants will learn of special training packages currently being offered and learn about our all-inclusive on-site training centres with no charge accommodation included," Dillon said.

Book a seat by contacting Jobs Caledon at 905-584-2300, ext. 200 or jobs@ccs4u.org

The Jobs Caledon Employment Resource Centre is funded by Employment Ontario and is one of the many initiatives operated by Caledon Community Services (CCS). As a community-impact organization, CCS supports residents of Caledon and surrounding communities. The main office of CCS is at 18 King St. East in the Royal Courtyards, Bolton. Crombie to head review of Moraine and Greenbelt plans

Former Toronto mayor David Crombie will be heading up an expert panel dealing with the reviews of the Oak Ridges Moraine, Niagara Escarpment and Greenbelt plans.

And there have been lots of positive comments to the move.

"He's known as the perfect mayor of Toronto," Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson commented.

"He's an extremely good listener," Thompson added. "Let's hope he's listening loud and clear."

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones said she had no issue with Crombie's appointment, but wondered what a former Toronto mayor would know about matters like the Oak Ridges Moraine or Greenbelt.

She also said she would want some clear indication that the process will be open and transparent, while actually looking at how different the three plans are and try to make them consistent.

"When these plans were first introduced over 10 years ago, they represented the leading edge in conservation planning and protection of our invaluable land and water resources," commented Debbe Crandall, policy advisor for Save the Oak Ridges Moraine (STORM) Coalition. "This review positions the province to re-commit to a strong environmental agenda by strengthening these plans and eliminating policy gaps that have emerged, with the goal of leaving a protected landscape for the next generation of Ontarians."

"We are pleased to see the government has enlisted someone with such a strong track record. We expect this panel to help ensure a fair and transparent public review process," said Joyce Chau, executive director of EcoSpark. "Our partnership will be active throughout the review to engage Ontarians and demonstrate the incredible public support for the moraine and Greenbelt."

A key feature of this area is the moraine, a 160-kilometre long landform stretching from Caledon and the Niagara Escarpment in the west to the Trent River system in the east. The moraine, together with the Niagara Escarpment and Protected Countryside, comprise Ontario's Greenbelt; more than 720,000 hectares of protected natural habitat, productive agricultural lands and unique rural communities.

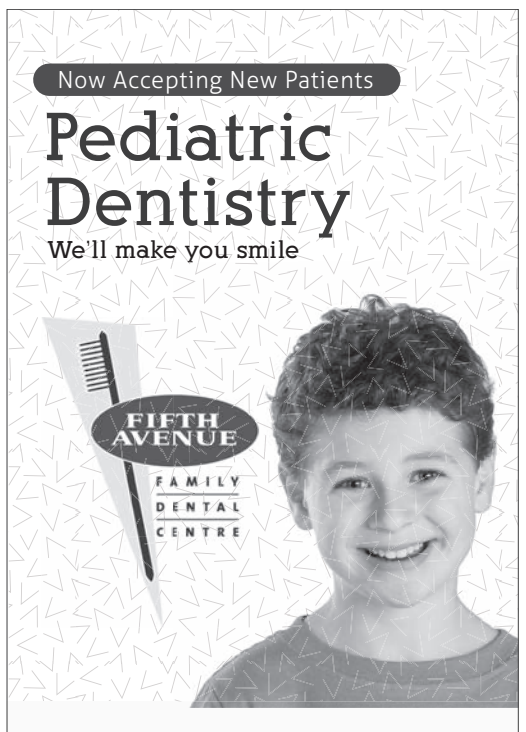

"The moraine provides countless benefits to communities at no cost," observed Joshua Wise, Greenway Program manager at Ontario Nature. "It stores and filters our water, helps to control floods, regulates climate, and provides habitat for wildlife as well as places for outdoor recreation."

The reviews are seen as an opportunity to make sure these plans remain true to their intent — the ongoing protection, enhancement and restoration of southern Ontario's natural heritage.

"This review of the plans provides an opportunity to address activities like the dumping of contaminated soil, unmonitored water takings and sprawling developments that were approved more than a decade ago and still threaten this landscape," observed Josh Garfinkel, senior campaigner at Earthroots.

"Our groups are working with community members to make sure a strong grassroots voice is heard throughout the review."

Lots of fun things to do while the sap is flowing

There's is plenty of activity these days at Terra Cotta Conservation area as the sap is flowing for the Sugarbush Maple Syrup Festival. Shawn Verge, an operations manager with Credit Valley Conservation, was explaining some of the workings of the sap shack to visitors Monday.

Monday, being the first day of March break was a busy time, and there was a brisk business at the pancake breakfast. Credit Valley Conservation CAO Deb Martin-Downs and Councillor Johanna Downey were handling some of the flipping chores.

Mayor Allan Thompson and Erin Councillor John Brennan were pressed into service mixing the batter.

The sap was filling these pails attached to trees. Holly Chalmers of Hamilton was making sure Ryder, 2, got a good look Saturday.

People taking in the Sugarbush festival got to practise some of the chores that were routine many years ago Donald Robertson of Brampton and his grandson Chase Vilone-Wilson, 4, made short work sawing this tree Saturday.

Regional councillors get update on cart-based garbage collection

By Bill Rea

There are still a lot of questions out there regarding the cart-based garbage collection coming soon to Peel Region.

There's really not that much to be concerned about, according to Peel's Director of Waste Management Norman Lee.

Lee recently made a lengthy presentation to Regional councillors on what's in the works.

Bi-weekly cart-based collection is due to come into effect in January 2016.

Council approved that in April 2013 after a pilot projectthe previous year. Lee said there have been about 10 updates to council.

"Its going to be a tough slog in the first weeks of 2016," Lee observed, as he outlined the changes that are due to come in.

While household organics will still be collected weekly, garbage and recycling will be collected every other week — Garbage will be picked up one week, and recycling the next. Blue boxes will be eliminated, to be replaced with larger garbage, recycling and organics carts, with residents receiving their carts sometime in the fall. As well, many residents will see their collection day change.

Lee said Peel's 3R programs (reduce, reuse, recycle) have compared favourably with programs in other municipalities in the Greater Toronto Area (GTA), but that is not the case with the Green Bin program for organics. Participation has been lagging, and he said that's why the weekly organic collection is slated to continue. He also said many people currently put their organic waste in the garbage.

A couple of alternatives to bi-weekly collection were considered, including increased user fees, reduced bag limits, increased bylaw enforcement, etc. Bi-weekly collection was found to have the greatest potential for increasing diversion. "It would also result in lower cost, reduced GHG (green house gas) emissions and fewer injuries," Lee observed.

Council, in November 2011, approved the pilot project involving more than 5,800 households in four separate collection areas (including part of Ward 1 in Caledon). Lee said the concerns raised at the time involved people finding space to store the carts, smells from diapers and pet waste, the ability of seniors to maneuver their carts, dealing with long driveways in rural areas, etc.

"None of these were found to be major issues," he said.

He also said it took a couple of cycles for people to get the hang of the system, but once they did, there were few issues with the carts. Lee added most people indicated they were able to easily adapt to bi-weekly collection, and the majority thought it was a good idea. There were also improved diversion rates.

"At the end of the pilot, the residents in the cart areas didn't want to give back the carts," Lee observed.

A couple of other conclusions from the pilot showed that people wanted some choice of the size of cart they use (there was no choice in the pilot) and there should be some "walk-up" service to help people with mobility issues.

Lee said the region has been divided into three zones, with different collection contract for each. The contract for the northern portion, including all of Caledon and much of north Brampton, was awarded to Emterra Group.

The new system will start the first week of January 2016. Lee said the current phase involves cart selection, which needs to be done by the end of March, with carts being delivered in the fall. He added the Region is working on creating wide-spread awareness of the upcoming changes. Things are going well when it comes to engaging residents in selecting their carts. In addition to mailings, advertisements, mobile signs, etc., Lee said there have been 26 open houses all over the region. There have also been lobby displays throughout Peel and information available at many facilities.

There are still a couple of concerns being raised.

One of them involved the use of the March of Progress graphic to promote the program. There have been some complaints that it was offensive (a naked man is depicted), but Lee said its use was put before focus groups, and it was given a high ranking. He said it's based on an "iconic image" that's been around since 1965, and it was not deemed offensive.

"It has done its job," he said.

There have also been concerns raised that there is no phone number to call for information. Lee explained they are trying to engage some 310,000 households, so they're trying to move people toward digital.

How to Sell High: Avoid these Three Mistakes When Selling Your Home or Land in the Caledon Area

CALEDON - When you decide to sell your LAND or HOME, setting your asking price is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. Depending on how a buyer is made aware of your LAND or HOME, price is often the first thing he or she sees, and many homes are discarded by prospective buyers as not being in the appropriate price range before they're even given a chance of showing.

Your asking price is often your home's "first impression", and if you want to realize the most money you can for your home, it's imperative that you make a good first impression.

This is not as easy as it sounds, and pricing strategy should not be taken lightly. Pricing too high can be as costly to a homeseller as pricing too low. Taking a look at what homes in your neighborhood have sold for is only a small part of the process, and on it's own is not nearly enough to help you make the best decision. A recently study, which compiles 10 years of industry research, has resulted in a new special reportentitled"HOMESELLERSandLAND OWNERS: How to Get the Price You Want (and Need)". This report will help you understand pricing strategy from three different angles. When taken together, this information will help you price your home to not only sell, but sell for the price you want.

Writer and Director Nick Marciano (far right) watches as Director of Photography Tony Morrone shoots a scene in Gabe's Country Bake Shoppe in Caledon East Saturday night. The actors in the foreground are David J. Parisian and Paul Ebejer, with with Brian Bordignon and Peter Frangella at the table to the rear.

Film scene shot in Caledon East

By Bill Rea

David is a good man, but he doesn't know he's spent seven years raising a child of God.

Once he learns what has been going on, he tries to get the child back.

That's the premise behind the film David's Child. Director Nick Marciano, formerly of Bolton, is bringing his own book to the screen, and the plan is to have it out by the end of the year.

Marciano, who now lives in Hockley Valley, said the film is about David (played by David J. Parisian), an author who was looking forward to becoming a father when his eight-and-a-half months pregnant wife was tragically killed, but he's told the unborn baby survived. In reality the baby died.

"God replaces the dead child with one of his angels," Marciano said.

David spends the next seven years raising the child as his own, but then submits to temptation.

"God takes the child back from him," Marciano said. "It's about his struggles to get God to give the child back to him."

David eventually encounters Mr. Wright (Peter Frangella), who deals with people who have had spiritual experiences.

They encounter each other in a café, and the scene was filmed Saturday night at Gabe's Country Bake Shoppe in Caledon East.

Proprietor Gabe Giraldi said Marciano is a regular customer who approached him a couple of months ago about shooting a café-setting scene in his establishment.

Marciano also said subsequent scenes will be shot at a church and general store in Hockley.

This is Marciano's third feature film. The first was shot in Bolton about 20 years ago, entitled Shepherd Boys. The other was called Lee's Offering, and was filmed in 2006.

He said it's sometimes hard to raise money for movies without the backing of some kind of government group. The book David's Child was published in a Bible Belt area of Kansas.

He added someone read the book and put up money because of its spiritual content.

Teens charged in robbery investigation

Two young men from Caledon, aged 14 and 17, have been charged after a Caledon OPP investigation into a March 5 theft in a Bolton parking lot.

Police said the victim had made arrangements to purchase a cell phone from a private vendor. The young person was directed to meet the seller in the parking lot on Queensgate Boulevard. As the victim approached the seller's vehicle, he handed over cash at which time the driver drove off with the money. The victim was uninjured.

The two boys were charged with robbery, and the older youth was also charged with dangerous operation of a motor vehicle.

Chamber Concert series presents pianist Imre Pátkai

Caledon Chamber Concerts presents its next performance March 21, featuring pianist Imre Pátkai.

The program will consist of works by Beethoven and Liszt.

Born in Budapest in 1973, Pátkai took his first piano lesson at the age of six. Three years later, he continued at Kispest Music School. In 1985, he was accepted to study at the Preparatory School of the Franz Liszt Music Academy (Budapest). By that time, he had performed in several cities in Hungary and abroad.

In 1989, he was invited to the United States to attend the Young Artist Piano Program at Tanglewood Music Center (Lenox, Mass.) for three summers.

Pátkai has given concerts with several Hungarian orchestras, such as BM Danube Symphony Orchestra, Savaria Symphony Orchestra and the Hungarian State Orchestra. He has been a guest artist in the concert halls of Vienna, Gottingen, Jena, Helsinki, London, New York and Boston. He regularly performs both as a soloist and a chamber-musician. His artistic activity covers a wide range of piano recitals, chamber-music evenings, orchestral concerts, choir accompaniment and continuo-playing.

Pátkai's teaching career includes a 10-year term as assistant lecturer at the Music Department of the Eotvos Lorand University (ELTE) Faculty of Humanities, and teaching at the Teacher Training College of the Franz Liszt Music Academy as well. Currently he is pursuing a Doctor of Musical Arts (DMA) at the University of North Texas.

The concert will be at St. James' Anglican Church, Caledon East at 8 p.m. Tickets are $30 for adults and $15 for students 16 years and younger and may be purchased in advance at Forster's Book Garden, Howard the Butcher and Book-Lore. Tickets will also be available at the door the night of the concert.

For more information call 905-880-2445.

MADAWASKA QUARTET PERFORMS

The latest offering of the Caledon Chamber Concerts series featured the Madawaska Quartet, presenting a program that included works by Mozart, Ervin Schuloff and Bedrich Smetana. The quartet includes Amita Walsh on Violin, Sarah Fraser-Raff on violin, Anna Redekop on viola and Amber Ghent on cello.

The art of literacy is at PAMA this week

The Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) and the Region of Peel have partnered to create The Art of Literacy, a children's art exhibit that will be on display at PAMA until tomorrow (Friday). The artwork displayed in this exhibit is a collection of work from families who are using the Region of Peel's Family Literacy Calendar which supports literacy development for families in their daily life.

"We are very proud of this exhibit as it demonstrates the various aspects of literacy and stresses the importance of early learning and development," said Sonia Pace, director of Children's Services Operations and Community Partnerships with the Region. "In addition to this great learning opportunity for families, we are very honoured to feature these 50 children and their wonderful works of art."

The Region is committed to creating a culture of literacy within the community and hopes this exhibit inspires families to make the most of all learning opportunities presented throughout daily life that support literacy development with children.

"Literacy is an essential foundational skill, however 42 per cent of adults in Ontario do not have the literacy skills they need for home, work and life," Pace said. "This affects all aspects of our community which is why it is so important to begin literacy development from a very young age."

Members of the community are invited to PAMA this March Break to view the exhibit and learn more about how to incorporate literacy into their homes.

"PAMA promotes various types of learning through our exhibitions and programs and The Art of Literacy is a perfect example of how broad the topic of literacy extends," PAMA Manager Marty Brent commented. "We are pleased to feature works from families in our community as they explore learning and development through art."

For more information about family literacy programs and activities offered by the Region throughout the year, visit peelregion.ca/literacy

Orangeville Library and Theatre Orangeville present an evening with Trevor Cole

Trevor Cole has written three acclaimed novels.

The national best-seller Practical Jean was short-listed for the Writer's Trust Fiction Prize and won the 2011 Leacock Medal for Humour. His first novel, Norman Bray in the Performance of His Life, published in 2004, garnered enormous acclaim. It appeared on the Maclean's bestseller list, was adapted for radio and audio book and was short-listed for a Governor General's Literary Award. It now takes its turn on stage at Theatre Orangeville as a world premiere drama of absurd proportions from April 9 to 26.

Meet author/playwright Cole April 9 from 6:30 to 7:30 pm at the Mill Street Branch of the Orangeville Public Library. This is a free event.

Rush tickets are available at the Theatre Orangeville door for the 8 p.m. performance of Norman Bray In The Performance Of His Life. Tickets can also be purchased in advance to guarantee availability and seat selection.

The regular ticket price is $35, and the rush ticket price is $20 (cash only, 20 minutes prior to performance time).

For more information call 519-942-3423 or 1-800-424-1295.

Theatre Orangeville is a professional Theatre Company in the historic Orangeville Town Hall Opera House at 87 Broadway, Orangeville.

Fish fry coming to Bolton United

The congregation of Bolton United Church will be hosting a Fish Fry Dinner April 11, from 4:30 to 7 p.m. at the church on Nancy Street, across from the Post Office.

The fish is freshly caught in Georgian Bay and cooked in a light batter, minutes before it is served. White Fish is the catch of the day and will be served with a complete meal, including pie and beverages.

The cost will be $15 for adults, $6 for children six to 12 years and free for those younger than five. Hot dogs will be served for children who prefer that menu.

Tickets will be sold at the door only.

For further information, contact Sandra at the church office at 905-857-2615 or office@boltonunitedchurch.com

Starting cart collection in winter could cause problems, councillors fear

He added a phone number is now available.

People who don't choose a cart size by the end of march will have one selected for them. There will be the chance to change carts after a 90-day trial, but there will be a fee charged. Lee said the idea behind the fee is to avoid frequent or hasty exchanges, as well as to cover the costs the Region would be put to. He added the fee has not yet been set, but staff is proposing $25.

"If people end up with a default cart, they're not going to go that far wrong," he said.

Mississauga Councillor Karen Ras suggested there be a grace period before the fee is assessed. She commented people would have to go through a few cycles before they get the hang of the program.

In Toronto, waste management costs are covered by user fees, but Lee said there are no plans to do that in Peel.

Some people have been wondering where their carts can be stored. Lee pointed out they will be replacing existing boxes, adding they could be put in garages, beside houses or in backyards.

The carts will be coming with a 10 year warranty. If one is lost or stolen, people should contact the Region and they will be replaced at no charge.

Caledon Councillor Annette Groves wondered about diapers and pet waste, commenting she understood York Region has a program to deal with them. Lee said he would have to check that, adding they are put in Green Bins in Toronto, but they have the technology there to deal with it.

Mississauga Councillor Pat Saito was concerned about problems putting out carts in winter, commenting January is a bad time to start the program.

Mississauga Councillor Nando Iannicca agreed, warning there could be a bad snow storm the first week of January. "You picked a pretty vulnerable time," he told Lee.

Lee countered they had thought about starting it in October, but warned the collection contracts are due to expire Dec. 31 and they couldn't get them extended.

"It's an adjustment, but I think it works fine," Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson said.

Comment on Town's Refuse and Debris Bylaw

The community is invited to attend an open house to be held by Town of Caledon staff to consider the general provisions of the proposed amendments to the Town's Refuse and Debris Bylaw.

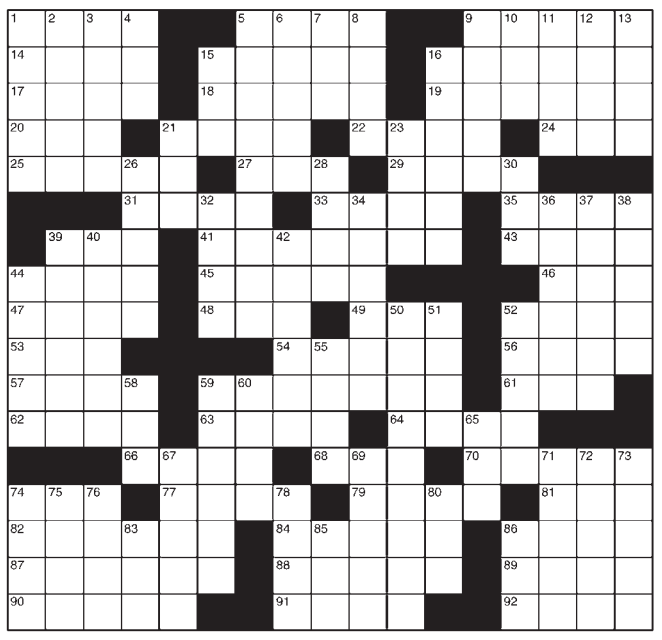

It will be March 31, starting at 7 p.m. in the cafe at Town Hall, 6311 Old Church Rd. in Caledon East.

The general provisions of the proposed amendments include clarifying littering prohibitions, regulating placement of newspapers and handbills on property so as not to become litter and the possibility of regulating clothing donation bins.

For further information, contact Leo Butko, manager of regulatory and inspection services, at 905-584-2272, ext. 4256 or via e-mail at leo.butko@caledon.ca

Distracted about to surpass impaired driving deaths for seventh year

As OPP get ready to conduct public education and targeted enforcement for its annual distracted driving campaign, it has already reported 12 distracted driving-related deaths so far this year.

Collision data for 2015 is shaping up to see a seventh consecutive year in which inattentive driving surpasses impaired driving as a causal factor in the fatal collisions OPP investigate. Both of these fatality categories are dangerous, preventable driving behaviours that result in the senseless loss of life on Ontario roads every year.

OPP collision data reveals that driver inattention was a causal factor in 12 of this year's 51 fatal collisions to date. In five of those incidents, it was the driver who was inattentive who died. In two incidents, the driver who died did nothing wrong and was driving properly at the time of the collision. Three of the incidents involved a pedestrian being struck by a vehicle. Nine of the deceased were males, three were females and their ages range from 33 to 88.

"Distracted driving is a danger to all road users," commented Chief Superintendent Chuck Cox, commander of the OPP Highway Safety Division. "Fortunately, these same road users are in a position to help put a stop to it. We want to see everyone develop and maintain a complete intolerance for distracted driving and make it the socially unacceptable driving behaviour that it should be."

What can you do to help?

- Be mindful that distracted driving poses a significant threat to the well-being of your family and friends.
- Start conversations about distracted driving with your family, your friends, your colleagues and shed the negative light on it that it deserves.
- If you are in a vehicle being driven by someone who is driving while distracted, always speak up. Be firm and say, "Enough! Too many people are dying because of distracted driving. It needs to stop and you need to stop." Make this your new attitude every a day.
- If you see someone driving in a dangerous manner while driving distracted, call 9-1-1 to report them.
- Be self-disciplined every time you get behind the wheel; do not allow yourself to be distracted in any way while you are driving.

CAR SEAT CLINIC

Auxiliary officers of Caledon OPP recently held the latest in their series of child car seat clinics at the fire hall in Bolton. Auxiliary Constable Troy Reddington was helping Carol and Gord Miller of Bolton install a seat for their grandchild. The next clinic will be March 24 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the fire hall at 28 Ann Street in Bolton. It will be by appointment only. For more information and to book an appointment, call 905-584-2241.

Police not soliciting funds for community bear program

OPP is very proud to have a number of key partnerships in place throughout the province that benefit the communities.

Recently, the Norfolk County OPP Detachment received a number of inquiries from residents asking about police related organizations calling to solicit funds for teddy bears.

While many officers are involved in worthy charities on their personal time, OPP is advising the public that it does not solicit funds from members of the public for its Community Bear Program or any other OPP program. The OPP's Community Bear Program is sponsored by Aviva Canada Inc. Through the sponsorship, Aviva Canada Inc. provides OPP officers with black and white teddy bears which OPP officers give to traumatized children they encounter when they respond to incidents such as motor vehicle collisions.

The OPP is reminding people to verify the legitimacy of any organization that calls to solicit funds from the public. For information on how to spot a scam and make sure you do not become a victim, go to www.opp.ca and click on Fraud Prevention on the Resources page. For information on the OPP Community Bear Program, go to www.opp.ca and click on Community Bear Program on the Resources page.

Not much support for photo radar from Queen's Park

By Bill Rea

York Regional councillors are asking the provincial government to consider letting the bring back photo radar, but it looks like that's not going to get very far.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones reported that Transportation Minister Steven Del Duca had shot down the request before officials in York even had a chance to make it.

"If I were the Region of York, I'm not sure I would waste the paper," Jones said.

And if she were the Minister of Transportation, Jones said she wouldn't be much more enthused about the program, commenting there are lots of other ways to make roads safer.

"Photo radar would not be at the top of my list," she said.

Photo radar works by having cameras mounted in unmarked vehicles at the side of the road, taking pictures of cars that are speeding. Copies of the pictures are sent to the owner of the offending car, along with a ticket.

Jones wasn't convinced that receiving a picture and ticket in the mail makes roads safer.

"I think there's a pretty strong motivator when you get pulled over by one of Ontario's finest," she said.

But Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson thought it might be worth looking at, especially in problem areas like Caledon village, Cheltenham and SouthFields Village.

"Great idea if we could make it happen," he said. "It could be a great help to the police."

Caledon Central to host 50th anniversary in April

Caledon Central Public School will celebrate its 50th anniversary April 25 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Come join in this celebration, and reminisce and renew old acquaintances with former students and staff.

Classrooms will be dedicated to display memorabilia from each decade from the 1960s to the present.

Refreshments will be sold by the Caledon Optimists as a fundraiser for this group. Keepsake items will also be for sale.

To get one's name on the guest list, email penny.maltman@peelsb.com

The anniversary committee is also looking for old school/classroom photos and other memorabilia pertaining to Caledon Central to loan or copy.

Feel free to pass this information along to former students and teachers who attended this school from1965.

Organizers would also like to hear from anyone who recognizes faces in this photo, which was taken at the opening ceremonies of the school in December 1965.

Those who can help out are asked to contact Penny Maltman at 519-927-5231.

Recognize any faces in this photo taken at the Opening of Caledon Central School in December 1965? Organizers of the 50th anniversary celebrations want to hear from you.

Clover over shamrocks

By John Arnott

I am surprised to learn that not only are there are more than 300 species of clover, but because this common plant is found worldwide, it is not known where it originated.

Although the majority of clover species claim the Northern Hemisphere as home, there are clovers found in Africa and South America that are not found elsewhere. Clover flowers can be white, rose, pink mauve or yellow.

This member of the pea family (leguminous) has annual, biennial or perennial species.

Most of which have three leaves, giving it its botanical name trifolium from the Latin tres for three and folium for leaf and its other common name trefoil. However, there are clovers that have five, six or seven leaves, not to mention the lucky four-leaved one.

The most common species in our area are t. repens—(creeping) or white clover and t. pratense (meadow) or red clover. These are among the clovers cultivated as fodder for farm animals. Clover is popular because it grows abundantly in a variety of soils and climates, regrows after mowing, is nutritious and palatable for livestock, takes nitrogen from the air and through its roots deposits it in the soil where it acts as a fertilizer and reduces the need for synthetic fertilizers and can be ploughed under as green compost.

Today this plant suffers from what agriculturists call "clover sickness," which is very much related to the dramatic decline in honeybee and bumblebee populations, as these endangered insects are the chief pollinators of clovers around the globe.

Now what has put me in clover mode?

March 17 was St. Patrick's Day and shamrocks are very much in mind. So what are shamrocks? Well there is really no such plant as a shamrock! The Gaelic speaking Irish called clover semair and young clover semairog from which other Gaelic words for clover including shamrote and scothshemrach (flowering clover) are connected.

Thus shamrocks are just clover.

Of course the story of how St. Patrick (403-461AD) used the three leaved clover to explain the difficult concept of the Trinity—God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost (Spirit), sometimes referred to as the Three in One, to the Irish Celts he converted to Christianity is well known. And for centuries, the clover or shamrock has been a symbol of this British-born saint, but it wasn't until the 18th century that this plant began to be recognized as symbol of Ireland.

Would you be surprised to know the harp, not the shamrock, is the national symbol of Ireland (it appears on the Canadian coat of arms) and blue, not green, is Ireland's national colour!

Bolton and District Horticultural Society looking for members

Did you know that the United Nations' goal is to plant one billion trees worldwide each year?

As part of the United Nations Billion Tree Campaign, Ontario is committed to plant 50 million trees by 2025.

The goal of the 50 Million Tree Program is to sequester carbon; enhance and diversify southern Ontario's landscape; increase adaptive capacity to withstand climate change; moderate local climate by providing shade, moderating temperature extremes and reducing the effects of storms; increase wildlife habitat; increase soil and water conservation, and provide local economic opportunities.

Locally, you can support this initiative by becoming a member of the Bolton and District Horticultural Society. BDHS has been the instigator of several major tree planting projects in Bolton over the past 20 years, investing more than $316,000 in planting projects such as Bolton Mill Park (221 trees), Dick's Dam Park (192 trees), Sunkist Woods (110 potted trees and shrubs) and Taylorwood (600 potted trees and shrubs). In 2014, 35 large native trees were planted in Foundry Park to replace ash trees lost to the Emerald Ash Borer.

Why not join your local horticultural society this year and support local environmental and conservation projects? BDHS members get free admission to the BDHS Horticultural Speakers Series where they receive information about best practices in gardening to protect health and landscape investments. Members are eligible for discounts at local nurseries and tree care companies.

BDHS's first meeting of 2015 will start at 7:30 p.m. March 17 at the Caledon Seniors Recreation Centre, 7 Rotarian Way, Bolton. Annual membership is $20 single and $30 for a family.

Visit our new mobile-friendly website www.boltonhort.info for more information.

It happened today

He spent most of his life as an explorer, traversing the Carrying Place trail that runs through nearby King Township, and eventually exploring the Mississippi River.

But there's considerable doubt as to what kind of leader he was, and that was demonstrated by the fact he was shot and killed by his own men.

Rene-Robert Cavelier, Sieur de La Salle died this day, March 19, 1687.

There were a couple of stories over the last week or so that caught my eye, and they were related, inasmuch as they involve the motoring public.

It was reported that the government in British Columbia is planning to crack down on drivers who hog the passing lane, and give police more power to hand out tickets.

This is a topic the strikes home to me, since "improper choice of lanes" was one of the items cited some 40 years ago when the examiner told me I had flunked my driver's test. I've had worse days.

The rule is, as I learned the hard way that day, is you're supposed to keep right except to pass.

Now that's all well in normal circumstances, although there are certain realities that come into play. For example, if one is planning to turn left in the near future, one had better get into the left lane. And when driving in an urban area, one is frequently obliged to move into the passing lane when the moving is good.

Bill Rea

A rule like this would be a little hard to enforce, I would think, in urban areas. But things are probably different on 400-series highways in Ontario.

I drive to Muskoka maybe a dozen times per year, meaning a lot of driving on the Highway 400 extension, which starts just north of Barrie (I've never driven far enough to learn how far north it goes). The extension is two lanes each way, as far as I have explored, and I have never run into trouble with slow-moving traffic holding things up. It is also a fact that I have seldom run into heavy traffic on that road, and have never seen problems with people hogging the passing lane.

And what would be the speed factors when hogging comes into effect?

The speed limit (construction zones notwithstanding) on the extension is 100 km-h. True, very few people drive at that speed at optimum conditions. There have been times I've set the cruise control at 110, and watched traffic fly by me. So 120 often seem the appropriate speed, although that's exceeding the maximum limit by 20. And at what point do the cops start taking action? Technically, if you're doing 101, you're in violation of the law,

Although there seems to be little push in Ontario to put forth the measures that authorities in B.C. are proposing, I think I could go along with it, but there would have to be some changes in the way things are done.

For one thing, the speed limit would have to be raised to 120 km-h. It shouldn't be that great an adjustment, since experience tells me that's the speed most people drive anyway.

The other part is to bring back photo radar, one the very few good things the Bob Rae government did for Ontario. That would have to have to come with a couple of provisos. The main one being that the legislation reinstating photo radar would have to clearly stipulate at what point it could be utilized. Issuing tickets at 20 km-h over that new posted limit would make sense, but that could certainly be open to discussion.

The point is anyone who knows me knows very well that I am a very strong advocate of photo radar.

And that brings us to the other story.

There's a movement in York Region to get photo radar restored. And from what I have been told, both the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives at Queen's Park are not prepared to allow it. Does that mean I have to vote NDP in the next provincial election?

Let us get a few basic facts straight. Photo radar was in effect for a while in the mid-1990s, and it drew a lot of anger.

There were some who argued that while it might be effective when it came to curbing speeding, it did nothing to prevent other sins of the road like tailgating.

Well excuse me, but photo radar wasn't designed to address tailgaters, distracted drivers, illegal parkers or those who drive cars that are ugly. Aspirin will not cure cancer, but I've heard of no movement to ban aspirin on account of that. Photo radar was designed and implemented to address speeders, so let it.

There were also those who charged that photo radar was a cash grab. Indeed it was, and it was my kind of cash grab. That is because the contributions to the Provincial coffers from the program were voluntary.

You see, during the mid to late 1990s, I worked in the east end of Toronto. That meant I had to drive 400-series highways every day photo radar was in effect. Since I elected not to speed excessively, I never paid a dime to that particular cause. I didn't obey the speed limit religiously (who does?), but I didn't impede traffic either. I drove at appropriate speeds and kept my money in my bank account. I happily let the speed demons add to the Provincial government's income, in the hope (probably naïve, considering it was an NDP government) that it might reduce my tax burden.

The government takes tax dollars for certain things our kindergarten teachers told us not to do. I used to smoke, so I paid lots of extra money on taxes for the tobacco I burned. I take a drink, therefore I pay a certain amount of extra tax every time I visit LCBO. Both activities are considered sins, although they represent perfectly legal activities, at least for those who have reached a certain age. At what age does the law permit you or me to speed?

Another argument against photo radar, and one that really annoys me, is the one that people take things more seriously when a cop pulls them over than they do if they get a ticket in the mail some weeks later. That part is true. Having been pulled over a couple of times over the years for speeding, I can tell you the feeling you get in the pit of your stomach when you realize the cop means you is very far from pleasant. But don't police officers have other things to do?

I attend a lot of meetings of ratepayer groups, as well as public meetings regarding subdivisions and the like. People constantly complain about the speeds at which motorists drive through developed areas like school zones, etc. But there are also complaints about vandalism, theft, trespassing, break-ins, etc. It is a fact that a police officer trying to nab speeders is not likely to be doing much to prevent other crimes, and police often say (with very little argument from politicians) that they don't have the resources to be everywhere and do everything. One would think anything that helps deal with speeders and leave police free to do other things would be a big benefit.

So, who's arguing against that?

Annual Home Shows coming soon to the riding

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

The spring home show season is upon us, as we start to enjoy warmer weather and our thoughts turn to gardening and home improvement plans.

The Orangeville Lions Home and Garden Show and the Caledon Home and Lifestyle Show are terrific events to visit to help you with those plans and they are conveniently located in our own community.

The Lions Home and Garden Show is hosted by the Orangeville Lions Club. This year's show will be taking place from March 27 to 29 at the Orangeville Fairgrounds, 247090 Side Road 5, Mono. Both admission and parking are free, and all proceeds from the show allow the Orangeville Lions Club to continue their outstanding work in our community.

You and your family can explore 220 booths supported by 150 vendors at the Lions Home and Garden Show. There will be a wide range of products and services covering all your spring project plans, including home improvement, renovations, gardening, landscaping, heating, air conditioning and local real estate. You can also find valuable information booths on local services and local artisans. A highlight of the show is the Orangeville Lions Food Booth which offers hamburgers, hot dogs, sausage on a bun and their very popular French fries. For more information on the show, please visit www.orangevillelions.org

The second home show of the season here in Dufferin-Caledon is the Caledon Home and Lifestyle Show. This show is hosted by the Caledon Chamber of Commerce and will be taking place from April 24 to 26 at the Albion-Bolton Community Centre, 150 Queen St. South in Bolton.

Visitors to the Caledon Home and Lifestyle Show can find everything to tackle spring renovating, decorating and landscaping projects with more than 80 exhibitors and speakers available. There are many exciting, new features in the works for this year's show, including Ask the Experts, which provides visitors with the opportunity to receive one-on-one advice from industry experts in design and décor, renovation, and landscaping; a Pet Zone, complete with the latest products and accessories for the four-legged members of the family; fashion shows; entertainment; as well as a salute to the upcoming Toronto 2015 Pan Am/Parapan American Games. A barbecue will be available throughout the weekend. For more information on the show, please visit www.caledonhomeshow.com or www.caledonchamber.com.

I will have an exhibitor booth at both home shows. I invite you to drop by to visit me and to pick up information I will have available on federal government programs and services.

The Orangeville Lions Home and Garden Show and the Caledon Home and Lifestyle Show promise to have something for everyone and for every spring project you may be contemplating. A visit to these home shows is a wonderful way to kick off the spring season.

Government working at keeping Canada's economy strong

Canadians know that 2015 will be filled with many challenges and opportunities.

Our government, like Canadians, is focused on the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead. Indeed, we are focused on the future and on delivering real results that build on our record of economic and financial security, creating and protecting jobs, lowering taxes for families and keeping Canada and Canadians safe in a dangerous and uncertain world.

Around the world, the economic news has not been good and the global economy continues to be plagued by uncertainty. However, the measure of any good government is not how it achieves success in times of stability and peace, but how it succeeds in times of adversity.

In 2008, when we faced the greatest period of global economic instability in a generation, our government reacted by fostering the best job creation record and maintaining the best debt-to-GDP ratio in the G7. Furthermore, with more than one million jobs created since the depths of the recession, our record is clear: Canada is continuing to move in the right direction.

We're focused on building on that record of success and securing economic opportunities now and for future generations.

Our government has successfully delivered the most ambitious trade agenda in Canadian history through our Global Markets Action Plan. Through our plan, we have expanded the number of countries that have free trade agreements with Canada from five to 43; including a deal with the world's largest economy, the European Union, and Canada's first free trade agreement in the Asia-Pacific market with South Korea. By expanding Canada's trade, we are helping companies grow and create jobs, while injecting billions into our economy each year.

Our government also recognizes that investing in improved roads, bridges, and public transportation will help ensure our communities keep moving and our economy keeps growing. This is why we're delivering the largest federal investment in job-creating infrastructure in Canadian history, the new Building Canada Plan.

What's more, our government is delivering on these commitments without having to raise taxes on hard-working Canadians and families. In fact, we've cut taxes over 180 times, bringing the federal tax burden down to its lowest level in a generation.

Our low-tax plan is also putting more money back into the pockets of hard-working families through a number of enhanced and expanded programs, including the Universal Child Care Benefit and Children's Fitness Tax Credit. Indeed, we are now increasing the Universal Child Care Benefit to $1,920 per year for children under six, and we're delivering a new benefit of $720 per year per child aged six through 17. We also enhanced the Children's Fitness Tax Credit, doubling the amount parents can claim for enrolling their children in sports activities to $1,000 and making it refundable.

We've also introduced the new Family Tax Cut, saving families up to $2,000 per year by treating parents with different income levels more fairly.

Together, these measures will help make life easier for hard-working families.

We're also poised to deliver a balanced budget, helping ensure Canada's finances stay strong and that we don't burden our children and grandchildren with debt.

So while the global economic news remains uncertain, Canada will continue to push forward. Under the leadership of Prime Minister Stephen Harper, our government is continuing the task of building a better, stronger Canada. It is a task that won't come easy, but one that will take the leadership and the determination to seize the opportunities that lie ahead.

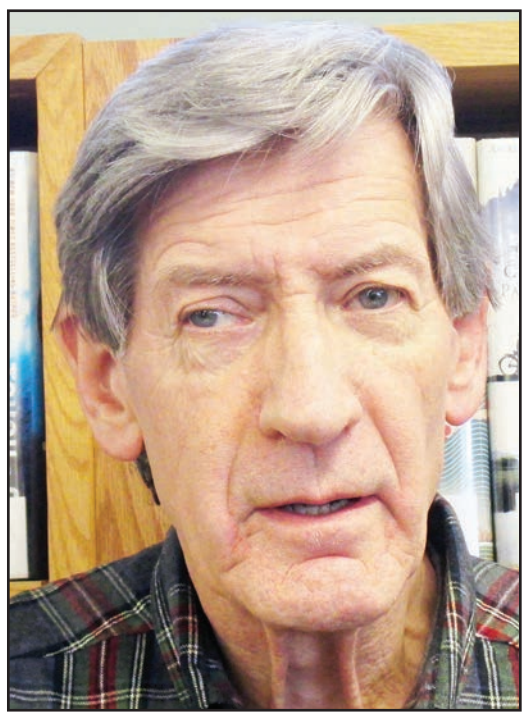

We will not rest until the job is done.

Why don't you do it?

By Hugh Marchand

You know how it goes?

You're working on a routine task. You have done it many times before, so you're good at it. You may even enjoy doing it. You can do it without thinking. So your mind wanders and it lands on an event you read about in the paper, or you saw on TV, or it twittered its way to you. Whichever, but you have a "What If?" moment.

Hugh Marchand

"What if he had got into the cab with her, instead of . . . ?" Or "What if she had forgotten to flip the switch?"

And before you know it, the story is writing itself in your head. You smile to yourself because you like it. You like your story as much as if you had read it. But it's your story, and you say to yourself, "I should write it." And that is when you come back to earth.

Your mind goes back, way back, to high school essays you didn't want to write because you thought the subject was boring or dumb or that you didn't have enough time to do it with everything else going on. But you had no choice. You had to write the darned essay and getting your ideas out of your head onto paper was so hard.

But now it is different. This is your story, it's not boring and you like it. You would like to write it — if you can. You can! You have just removed the barriers to doing so. What you need is the camaraderie of people like yourself who wish to write. Write fiction, non-fiction, poetry, in full length or short story form, in memoires or histories. Whatever, and you also need the encouragement of people who have already taken the plunge and love to write.

So you have another "What If" moment. What if I could find such a forum? A place where my frail ego won't be crushed as I nervously present my work and instead find friends who will help me grow my skills?

Luckily for you, we have in Caledon, this sprawling town bigger than half a dozen countries, a superb library that, in four of its seven branches, hosts a total of five chapters of its Writers' Ink program. These chapters meet regularly throughout the year and are open to anyone who writes or wants to. Members share and discuss their work; help and encourage each other to develop or hone their skills and gain the confidence to do so.

So, go on. Take the plunge, get your hopes, dreams, memories and fantasies down in writing.

It's a real and ongoing danger

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

My old golfing buddy Bert is 97 now and living in an apartment for veterans. He still plays golf once or twice a week in the season.

Bert, who is Jewish, spent most of his life in Toronto, growing up in the 1920s and 30s in what was then a heavily Jewish area around Bathurst and Bloor, and going to school with the famous Wayne and Shuster comic duo.

He's the kind of guy who exudes happiness wherever he goes. He likes to say of his golfing, for example, that he's had bad games but never had a bad day on the golf course.

Bert doesn't dwell on the bad stuff, but he does have some memories of the old, pre-war Toronto that aren't pleasant. He remembers going to Cherry Beach with some friends and seeing a sign "No Jews." He remembers similar signs – and attitudes – from that time but marvels in how far we've come in what really isn't that long a time.

I was thinking of Bert the other day when Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau accused Prime Minister Stephen Harper of practising the "politics of fear" – something Liberals are experts in (remember their vicious attacks on Tories and Reform for their so-called "hidden agenda" for example?)

Bert is not a Tory – never was – but would laugh at the notion that a piece of legislation aimed at terrorists would drag us back into the dark side of his youth.

Trudeau – attacking Harper's Anti-Terrorism Act of 2015 – says Harper is deliberately blurring the line "between a real security threat and simple prejudice."

He went on to say he's possibly leading us back to older times when, among other things, Canada refused to allow a boatload of Jewish survivors land in this country.

"Leading this country should mean you bring Canadians together. You do not divide them against one another," said Trudeau.

His hubris here is so breathless – even for a Liberal – it's hard to know where to begin.

Trudeau portrayed himself as a champion of liberty – and was roundly applauded by the usual cheerleaders in the media – and yet, this is the man who, without so much as a how-de-do announced that anybody who disagrees with his pro-abortion stance is not welcome in his party. Period. Full stop.

He is a man who can, with a straight face, paint a horrendous picture of the kind of Canada he says Harper is building with his response to the terrorism threat, yet at the same time – unlike, to his credit, NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair – plans to vote FOR the legislation. Amazing, don't you think?

This phony theme of deliberately confusing legitimate dissent with genuine terrorism was on full display on the weekend in a series of festivals of outrage staged – with only moderate attendance – at various spots across the country.

Mind you, there's been a lot of crazy talk about this from all sides of the political aisles – including the Tories – but the fact is, like it or not, the jihadist "war on Canada" that Harper talks about is real. We've already had some deadly examples – and numerous other planned attacks have been foiled – and the jihadist themselves have made it clear that Canada is on their A-list of targets. Only a fool would chose to ignore the threat.

It is true that governments can go too far in clamping down on legitimate dissent, but obviously Trudeau, despite his inflammatory rhetoric, doesn't think the current bill does. If he did, he wouldn't be voting for it?

Or would he?

And despite all the best ongoing efforts of the Harper haters out there, a massive public opinion poll by Ekos shows that Canadians are quite supportive of Harper's efforts on the terrorism file. Overall, Canadians favored Bill C-51 by 56-42 percent. They were even more supportive of the current military mission in Afghanistan (which the Liberals and NDP opposed), favoring it by 60-33 percent, and on the question of extending the mission beyond the current deadline, those polled gave it the thumbs up by a 54-38 margin.

Clearly, most Canadians can see past the scare-mongering from the critics and recognize that, although it's unfortunate, the current jihadist campaign represents a real and ongoing danger against us, against our way of life, against everything we hold dear.

Pretending it isn't so will not make it go away.

And attacking it with your left hand while voting for it with your right just won't wash outside a deeply partisan core.

Caledon Community Services is here for your business too

As a multi-service, community impact organization, Caledon Community Services (CCS) has an array of services and resources for local businesses.

The Employment and Development Division of CCS provides many services to the local business community. Connecting job seekers and entrepreneurs to the local labour market is a prime focus for the Jobs Caledon Employment Services, Caledon Small Business Enterprise Centre, LIFE for Youth and LINC Language instruction programs.

Funded by Employment Ontario, Jobs Caledon has been working closely with the Caledon business community for many years. As part of the Youth Jobs Strategy, Jobs Caledon helps facilitate the Youth Employment Fund. In 2014-2015, local Caledon businesses received more than $120,000 in salary subsidies by providing youth with on-the-job training. Additionally, non-youth placements have provided more than $40,000 in wage subsidies.

Jobs Caledon is now delivering the new Canada-Ontario Job Grant (COJG). The COJG provides direct financial support for employers — small, medium and large businesses to deliver short–term training to existing and new employees. Funding for this program is provided by the Government of Canada and details can be found on the CCS website at es.ccs4u.org

"We recognize that for Caledon employers their workforce is their most valuable asset," Director of Employment and Development Cathy Perennec McLean observed. "CCS offers employers a variety of resources that support their business. We are focused on helping the Caledon business sector strengthen its assets and build its employee teams."

CCS also provides other employee assistance: Counseling for employees going through challenging times; language instruction for employees facing language barriers; assistance for employees with physical disabilities requiring mobility aids to get to work; financial aid for employees meeting eligibility criteria; and free income tax preparation for eligible individuals.

Looking to engage employees in the community? CCS helps plan team-building volunteer days and use its facilities to host meetings and/or team-building activities. Employers can also take the opportunity to donate used office/business furniture as a way to be eco-friendly.

CCS supports all of Caledon and they really mean business. Use the staffing supports, assistance with business development, employee assistance, community engagement and promotional and advertising opportunities.

Canada takes second in $100,000 Wellington Nations' Cup

The Canadian Show Jumping Team of Tiffany Foster, Eric Lamaze, Ian Millar and Jonathon Millar placed second in the $100,000 CSIO4* Nations' Cup, presented by Kingsland Equestrian, recently at the Winter Equestrian Festival in Wellington, Florida.

A total of nine countries contested the $100,000 Nations' Cup, including Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Colombia, France, Ireland, Mexico, the United States and Venezuela. Canada entered as the defending champions, having celebrated its sixth victory in the Wellington Nations' Cup in 2014.

At the end of the first round, Canada was sitting third with a total of eight faults. The United States led the way with a perfect score of zero. Such was their strength that the first three riders on course — Todd Minikus, Candice King and Margie Engle, all posted clear rounds, giving anchor rider McLain Ward the luxury of not having to jump. Venezuela, increasingly gaining strength on the world stage, was counting four faults for second position.

Tension continued to build as the second round progressed. Following a brilliant clear in the opening round, Canada's lead-off rider Foster, 30, of Vancouver, B.C., had four faults in the second round. Riding Tripple X III, a 13-year-old Anglo European stallion owned by Artisan Farms LLC, Foster had a rail at the Artisan Farms vertical at fence six, set just past the ingate.

Jonathon Millar, 40, of Perth, Ontario, posted matching scores of four and four in the first and second rounds. In the first round, he and Calvin Klein, an 11-year-old Swedish Warmblood gelding owned by Millar Brooke Farm, had the back rail of the 'b' element of the double combination set at fence five, immediately following the open water.

In the second round, the pair successfully rode that difficult line only to incur a rail at the Spycoast liverpool at fence seven.

Coco Bongo made his Nations' Cup debut under 2008 Olympic Champion Lamaze, 46, of Schomberg. While the pair surprisingly faulted at the open water in the first round, they would make no such mistake in round two, posting a perfect score of zero. A 10-year-old Rheinlander stallion, Coco Bongo is now the 10th horse owned by Andy and Carlene Ziegler's Artisan Farms LLC to represent Canada in Nations' Cup competition.

Making his 127th Nations' Cup appearance, Ian Millar, 68, of Perth, was riding in the anchor position for Team Canada. Riding Dixson, a 12-year-old Belgian Warmblood gelding owned by Susan and Ariel Grange, Millar posted the drop score of eight faults in the first round.

In the second round, Millar needed to jump clear to keep Canada ahead of the Irish.

Thriving off the pressure, the 10-time Olympian delivered a perfect performance, reminding the audience why he is considered a legend in the sport.

While Canada was able to post a two-round final score of 12 faults, the United States simply could not be caught. With only eight faults picked up in the second round, it was enough for an American win without Ward having to jump.

Canada was able to hold off the Irish, who placed third with a total of 16 faults, followed by Venezuela in fourth with 20 faults. Mexico took fifth position with 28 faults while France rounded out the top six with 30 faults. Brazil, Argentina and Colombia failed to be among the top six countries that qualified for the second round.

For Canadian Show Jumping Team chef d'equipe Mark Laskin, Canada's second-placed performance marked a step up from two weeks ago when Canada tied for third in the $200,000 Furusiyya Nations' Cup in Ocala, Florida.

"We could have just as easily had a couple double clean performances," remarked Laskin of Langley, B.C. "Eric's horse, which he hasn't ridden that long, barely had the water, and he made the correction in the second round. Tiffany could have just as easily been double clear. Jonathon was a little unlucky with both of his fences and just as easily could have been clean, too. He's solid and jumped really well."

Having Lamaze and Ian Millar riding for Team Canada is always an advantage for Laskin.

"It is always great for me to have two of the best riders ever sitting in the third and fourth position," said Laskin.

"When the chips are down, they are going to come through; we can almost put it in the bank. For Ian, knowing that he needs a clear to improve our position gives him that extra motivation. I think that's what he lives for. He is just an amazing rider."

Alas, the United States signalled their intention to win right from the start by posting three clears in the opening round and leaving their anchor rider on the bench.

"The U.S. was right on form; they had their nose out in front to win and we just couldn't catch up," noted Laskin. "We were second out of nine teams with the Americans really on their game. They were not missing a beat on their home turf."

With six wins apiece, Canada and the United States are now tied for the most wins in the Wellington Nations' Cup since its inception in 2002.

The next Nations' Cup event on the calendar for the Canadian Show Jumping Team takes place April 23 to 26 in Coapexpan, Mexico, where Canada is the defending champion.

It is also the second of three North American qualifying events in the North and Central America and Caribbean League for the Furusiyya Nations' Cup Final in Barcelona, Spain.

The top two teams in the League earn an invitation to the Furusiyya Nations' Cup Final in Barcelona, Spain, from September 24 to 27. In 2014, Canada finished second in the Final in Barcelona.

HUMBERVIEW WRESTLERS WIN MEDALS

The Humberview Huskies wrestling team travelled to Turner Fenton Secondary School to compete at the 2015 Region of Peel Wrestling Championship Feb. 19. The Huskies completed against 10 other schools from all over Peel. Humberview brought a team of eight wrestlers, Nicole French, Adajiah Wilson, Danielle Berno, Ryan Steh, A.J. Wilson, Vivik Daini, Thomas Moody and Liam James. This year's competition was tough, with only four Husky wrestlers making the podium. French and Adajiah Wilson brought home the gold medals. Berno earned a silver for Humberview and Daini placed sixth in his weight class. Steh and James earned fourth and fifth place finishes at Junior ROPSSA. The girls will be heading to Windsor to compete at the provincial level of OFFSSA wrestling championships. Seen here are Berno, Mr. Allan, Adajiah Wilson and French.

ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

Name: FREESTYLE RELAY TEAM
School: MAYFIELD SECONDARY SCHOOL

There's usually just one Athlete chosen per school, but officials at Mayfield had trouble making up their minds, so they named the four-by-100 freestyle swim team, made up of Ashley Riddall and Kira Eggengoor, who away from school swim for the Dorado Stars, and Hannah Longpre and Jessie Ye, who compete with Cobra Swim Club in Brampton. They finished third at OFSAA March 3 with a time of 4:14.62.

Name: NOAH BRENNAN
School: ROBERT F. HALL CATHOLIC SECONDARY SCHOOL

The 17-year-old was a power forward on the senior boys' basketball team, and he also plays centre back on the indoor soccer team, which recently competed at the Tournament of Champions. "We exceeded expectations," he said. He's planning to play outdoor soccer in the spring. Away from school, he's a rep player in Brampton Youth Soccer. The Grade 12 student lives in Mono with his parents Ed and Brenda Brennan.

Name: JOCELYN COULOMBE
School: ST. MICHAEL CATHOLIC SECONDARY SCHOOL

This Grade 10 student contributed her talents playing middle for the junior girls' volleyball team, which made it to the playoffs. She's also active in indoor ultimate Frisbee, field hockey and tennis. Away from school, she plays centre at the midget house league level in the Caledon Coyotes organization. The 15-year-old lives in Bolton with her parents Karen and Robert Coulombe.

Name: EAMON MUNRO
School: HUMBERVIEW SECONDARY SCHOOL

The 18-year-old has been showing his prowess as an archer, particularly in the Olympic Recurve class. He recently shot 450 out of a possible 600 at OFSAA, putting him in the top 150 on Ontario in the school system. Away from school, he used to play house league hockey in Bolton. The Grade 12 student lives in Bolton with his parents Ross Munro and Gemma Duley.

Inglewood Ball Hockey League gearing up for 19th season

As spring draws closer, the Inglewood Ball Hockey League (IBHL) is getting ready for the 2015 season.

This season, IBHL is expanding its horizons and going to a co-ed league. And with this change, league founder Brian Dunn stated that "we welcome the opportunity to get more individuals involved in this great sport and the challenges that the expansion brings with it as we strive to be the best at what we do and continue to bring this fun sport to the community of Caledon."

There are still spots for individuals and teams for this season. Teams consist of 15 players and one goalie maximum. Games are played Tuesdays and Thursdays from late April until early August.

Remember this is an adult league, both men and women (all players must be at least 18, turing 18 this calendar year). It is competitive, but all skill levels are welcome and everyone is there for a good time.

Those who are interested in getting involved in the community and getting some exercise in the summer, IBHL is the place to be. Those who are just interested in supporting this community staple can take advantage of opportunities for businesses to be linked to the IBHL website, which had more than a half a million hits last year alone.

Feel free to contact the league at ibhl@ibhl.ca or on the web at www.ibhl.ca

Tilson announces investment in recreational fisheries project

The government of Canada has partnered with the Halton-Peel Woodlands and Wildlife Stewardship to undertake tree planting improvements along Caledon Creek.

Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson recently highlighted the government's investment in the Caledon Creek tree-planting program. Through the Recreational Fisheries Conservation Partnerships Program (RFCPP), the Stewardship will receive up to $5,500 to support the conservation of fish habitat in Caledon. The Stewardship will improve brook trout habitat through riparian plantings along stream courses that have been previously degraded.

As part of the National Conservation Plan, RFCPP was created to restore Canada's waterways and to ensure sustainability and ongoing productivity of recreational fisheries. Given its success in ensuring a more coordinated approach to conservation efforts across the country, and high demand, the government increased the investment in the Economic Action Plan 2014 to a total of $25 million.

The Halton-Peel Woodlands and Wildlife Stewardship will contribute to the conservation and restoration of the country's natural environment and help connect Canadians to the rich natural heritage. Under the third round of the Recreational Fisheries Conservation Partnerships Program, up to $1.28 million has been made available for 14 projects in Ontario.

Since the launch of the program, more than $18 million has already been committed to in excess of 300 projects across Canada. Under the first round, the program awarded $5.9 million to 94 projects. In the second round, the program committed up to $5.5 million to 128 projects. The third round will see up to $6.8 million committed for more than 80 projects to be undertaken between 2014 and 2016. The fourth round of funding applications is now closed. Successful projects will be announced shortly.

"The Recreational Fisheries Conservation Partnerships Program allows our government to support an important economic sector while also ensuring sustainable fisheries," observed Minister of Fisheries and Oceans Minister Gail Shea. "Our government is proud to support their work that will benefit Canadian communities for years to come."

"Hard-working organizations like the Halton-Peel Woodlands and Wildlife Stewardship are the foundation of the Recreational Fisheries Conservation Partnerships Program," Tilson commented. "Our government will continue to advocate for recreational fishing, an important economic activity which contributes billions to our economy and is a part of our heritage. Together with our like-minded partners, we recognize the importance of protecting and restoring fishing habitat for generations to come."

Town supporting new NEC policy

The Niagara Escarpment Commission (NEC) is looking at changing its policies to allow heritage homes to be moved to developed lots, and Caledon council likes the idea.

Council recently approved a motion of support for the proposal.

The motion stated the Town and the Niagara Escarpment Plan both support the idea of second residences on lots where the first home is a designated heritage building.

The proposed policy would allow heritage homes to be moved to developed lots if it can be determined there would be no negative environmental or scenic impacts, and there would be no problems created for neighbours.

Mayor Allan Thompson was directed by council to write a letter of support to NEC, and copies of the motion are to go to Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones and Peel Region.

Students asked to take 'moment of silence' in crossing streets

By Tabitha Wells

Area students are being asked to take a 'Moment of Silence' from their smartphones and personal sized technology when crossing the streets.

A survey, conducted in partnership between Parachute (a national safety charity) and FedEx Express Canada, found that more that 51 per cent of the 510 teens surveyed had either come close to being hit or have been hit by a vehicle while walking.

The survey, which was conducted online in early November, targeted teens between the ages of 13 and 18 and asked questions regarding their pedestrian safety — not just the actions of others, but their own actions as well.

According to the survey, the largest two factors that led to incidents or near misses were caused because the driver wasn't paying attention (72 per cent) or the driver was going too fast (30 per cent).

Only 20 per cent of incidents were reported by teens surveyed as a result of them not looking first, and eight per cent because they were distracted by their phone, music or another communication device.

"These numbers remind us that we need to educate Canadians on pedestrian and driver safety, including at intersections," said Parachute's President and CEO Louise Logan. "It's simple, make road safety part of the conversation and remember to take a moment of silence and pay attention, whether on foot or in a vehicle."

Parachute is moving forward with a national awareness initiative that encourages Canadians to commit to taking a Moment of Silence by putting down devices and removing headphones when crossing the street. The campaign was created in memory of the thousands of young pedestrians who are either killed or injured across Canada each year.

Part of the campaign includes a video statement from Ned Levitt, a Canadian man whose daughter was killed at the age of 18 in a pedestrian/motor vehicle accident. He recounts in the short clip how Stacey had gone for a run to blow off some steam after a hard day, and because of her headphones, wasn't aware of an oncoming vehicle as she stepped out into the road.

"Losing someone you love before their time is always painful," he said in the video. "But the pain of losing someone you love more than life itself, dying at the ridiculously young age of 18, just barely a woman with her whole life ahead of her and love and hopes for her future locked within her heart, that is truly beyond words."

Stacey was struck by that vehicle and died, before having a chance to graduate high school, go to college, or achieve any of the other milestones her parents had planned to celebrate with her throughout her life.

"The years of agony were made that much worse because it did not need to happen, it was preventable," Levitt said. "Stacey was immortal — at least to me — because I never thought I would be alive the day that she died."

He added that while the pain of losing his daughter will never subside, if it remains as nothing more than pain, it is also worth nothing, benefitting no one.

"If I take that pain and use it to help others see more clearly, the connection between their actions or inactions, and injury and death that is preventable — oftentimes easily preventable — then I honour Stacey and salvage something positive and important from her tragic death," he said.

According to statistics acquired by Parachute in their studies, on average, 30 child pedestrians are killed and 2,412 are injured every year in Canada. That means that statistically, a child pedestrian is either killed or injured once every three hours across the country. In the most recent data collected, between 2010-2011, 376 youth were injured, and 36 were killed as pedestrians.

The vast majority of incidents, according to the survey, occur between 3 and 6 p.m., when drivers are on their way home from work and children and teens are travelling back home from school or after school programs.

"We all play a role in keeping our children and teens safe while they walk in their communities," said Lisa Lisson, president of FedEx Express Canada. "At FedEx Express, we put safety above all, both in the workplace and in the communities in which we operate. Our drivers know the importance of being extra alert around school and pedestrian crossings, since these are the most important stops they make each day."

Over the last decade, FedEx has funded Parachute to help deliver a program called Walk This Way, a nationwide campaign aimed at reminding both parents and drivers about road safety, and helping to ensure kids can walk safely both to and from school, from a friend's house, or anywhere else in their neighbourhood.

The Moment of Silence campaign falls under this initiative, and is aimed at helping children, youth, drivers and parents learn to understand how they can help prevent such incidents from occurring. Levitt has added his voice to the campaign, sharing Stacey's story and encouraging students and drivers to be more proactive towards their own safety.

"I speak to you today to challenge you — and Stacey challenges you — to take responsibility for your own safety, to be aware of your surroundings, to not allow anything to distract you while walking or driving, and not allow anything to impair your senses or judgment," Levitt said. "But most of all, to teach your family and friends safety and be the role model they need."

For more information on survey results, as well as additional tips for pedestrian and driver safety, visit the campaign website at www.parachutecanada.org/mentofsilence

Keep this March break safe

With March break here, Caledon OPP are reminding motorists to be extra vigilant as they travel throughout the communities, highways and roadways.

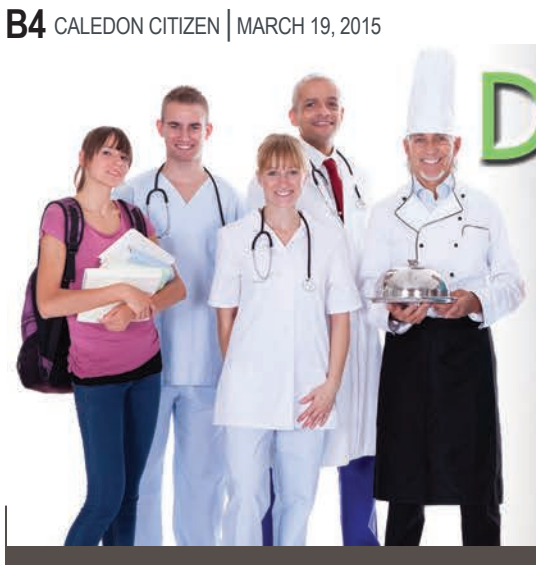

During this time, statistics have shown an increase of motorists on roads as people travel. Police are asking drivers to use extra patience and caution to arrive safely at their destinations.

Furthermore, citizens will notice an increase in the number of children and teenagers on the streets and in the communities this week. Be cognizant of their presence so that they can enjoy their well-deserved break.

Citizens are also asked to continue to be a viable part of neighbour safety and to report any suspicious activities to police.

REID FARM MARKET – Potatoes, Yams, Leeks, Carrots and more! 4th line Mono, north of Highway 9. www.reidspotatoes.com.

MEN'S CUSTOM BLUE SAPPHIRE & 10ct white gold ring, 3.76 ct. over half an ounce! A real one-of-a-kind beauty. Custom made white gold and sapphire men's ring. This is a very nice, substantial piece, weighing in at 16.2 grams of polished and satin-finished 10kt white gold. That's more than half an ounce of gold! While heavy, it's not bulky or massive, but quite attractive. The main stone is a rectangular step cut genuine blue sapphire, 3.56 carats. It's a very dark stone, but graded as VS clarity. The two side genuine sapphires total .20 points. This is a unique high-end ring, for that special person who loves sapphires (September birthstone). Seldom worn. Size 10. Appraised at $3,000. Appraisal will be included for the winner. This is a great, unique gift (or spoil yourself), a real head-turner. A sacrifice at $1,200. Email for photos: mpavilons@rogers.com.

IN MEMORIAM

MERVIN BARTLEY MASON

January 19, 1924 - March 24, 2014

In memory of our Dear Father, Grandfather and Great-Grandfather Mervin Mason.

One year has passed since that sad day.

It broke our hearts to lose you, however you did not go alone, for part of us went with you the day God called you home.

Although the world will still turn and change from day to day, the precious memories of you will never fade away.

Now that your wife Marie is again by your side may you both watch over us each and everyday.

We hope that this message filled with so much love will somehow find its way to you in heaven above.

It's to let you know dear Dad/Grandpa that although you are now at rest you'll live forever in our hearts for you were the very best.

Love always and forever missed,

Daughter Dale & Husband Mark
Granddaughter Kelly & Husband Reno
Grandson Scott & Wife Erin and the Great Grandchildren

CARD OF THANKS

A GRATEFUL AND SATISFIED customer: I want to thank Brian Assal for his outstanding service. He assured me that he could make dentures that would fit and hold with my implants. In just three weeks, he made the most comfortable and beautiful dentures. His skills and attention to details are amazing! I do know and feel the difference. For years I have struggled with my dentures. I had three sets in total, not one was proper. My confidence was shattered. With my new dentures from Brian Assal, I can finally eat and smile with confidence! Thank you.
