Fundraiser launched to help child who lost his mother

Written By JOSHUA SANTOS

A GoFundMe memorial fund has been set up to help bring a child to Bolton after he lost his mother.

Shelley Anderson was a single mother living on a farm in the Durban area of South Africa with her 12-year-old son, Christian. She lost her life from a ruptured bleeding ulcer on March 19. She was 46-years-old. Her son, Christian, is all alone.

"Shelley was a therapist and drug addictions councillor," said Jennifer Gillespie, Anderson's mother and Christian's grandmother. "She was a loving, caring person who offered many free consultations to those who could not afford to pay for them. Her greatest love was her son Christian, who people said they were more like buddies than mother and son. She was a single mother from when Christian was a year old. She has never received any support from his father so life has been tough."

Gillespie said Anderson also loved animals, rescuing many dogs and horses over the years to re-home them. She received recognition for her work in South African press, where she was doing equine assisted psychotherapy at an animal farm.

Anderson was a sister to two brothers, one of whom, Mark was attacked in a robbery at his company just one month ago and is in the hospital suffering from brain damage from which he many never recover from. Gillespie, in the fundraiser page, said Christian has been stunned and confounded by the loss of his mother and severe injury to his uncle.

"Christian has been so brave and wrote a touching piece for his mother's funeral," said Gillespie. "At first, he believed she would suddenly come back, and he had a hard time sleeping. He is more settled now as he is with friends."

IN NEED: Christian Anderson poses with his mother Shelley Anderson in a submitted photo. Shelley died of a ruptured bleeding ulcer. Christian's grandmother, Jennifer Gillespie, wants to bring Christian to Bolton to further pursue his education.

Gillespie has lived in Bolton for 22 years and worked at the Caledon Public Library as a reference librarian for 17 years.

The campaign has raised $5,940 by 34 people in 22 days, with a goal of $50,000, as of press time. Gillespie started the fund to bring Christian to Canada and continue his education.

"Shelley wanted Christian to go to university and pursue his dreams in helping animals around the world and we ask anyone who is able or willing to assist in making his dream a reality to do so," said Gillespie. "Shelley wanted her son to grow up to be a strong person who helped others just as she did over the many years of her short life."

Gillespie said Christian is being cared by a woman who runs the farm in South Africa, which is an animal rescue sanctuary where Anderson performed her equine therapy lessons.

"She is the most amazing girl," said Gillespie. "She has adopted one of Christian's beloved dogs who he sleeps with every night and it has been a great comfort. Christian is sight impaired, only 10% vision in one eye so he needs special care."

She had the idea to start the fundraiser after a friend, at the library, told her about the option of starting a campaign.

"Angela has been in constant communication with me and has been a great comfort during these long days," said Gillespie. "Both her work friends and family have do-

Bolton Flood victims aggravated with municipal authorities

Written By KIRA WRONSKA DORWARD

Not since Hurricane Hazel has Bolton seen such a destructive natural disaster as the March 2019 flood.

However, the events of March 14th, when the Humber River, previously frozen solid, overflowed its banks, crested over a retaining wall, and seeped onto the properties and into the houses of residents, was a disaster utterly preventable. Had officials done their jobs. The subsequent destruction of property and disruption of these people's lives is an outcome lying entirely at the feet of a Town and Region that failed to do its duty and due diligence. This is their story.

The wine is flowing at Stratengers as Tracey Lehman, her partner Mike Wallace, and a neighbour wishing to remain anonymous, tell me of their harrowing experience. These are just three people and two families affected by last month's events. More victims arrive to share their stories, in addition to the delegation of volunteers, Sherri Brioschi, Mira Budd, and Marion Upshall, who have spear-headed the efforts to organize and help the survivors of Bolton's flood. Having spent the previous evening at Town Council explaining the situation and asking for the Town's help, this delegation reached out to the Citizen to share events from the resident's point of view.

> "It was not handled well. The people involved [residents and first responders] were awesome... but the basic thing is nobody communicated well. - Tracey Lehman

In total, this delegation represents seven families that they know of that have been affected by the Great Flood.

The story actually begins in February of this year. "There was obvious concern about the river," says Lehman. "Numerous calls were made to the Town and the TRCA (Toronto Regional Conservation Authority), and they did nothing. Contrary to what the Mayor says, this does not happen every year."

Yvonne McCabe, a resident of King Street East, had called the TRCA as early as February 5th. "I was here and I was going away, and I was concerned that it would flood while I was away." McCabe, whose kitchen window faces the river, could see the unusual height of the river, about two feet before it would crest over the John Street retaining wall, and the ice jamming twenty feet from her house and onto her property. She was told by the TRCA representative that her concerns would be "passed on", and McCabe left for her holiday. During her absence, neighbours texted her photos of the alarmingly high-water level. Another neighbour made a call to the region as well, stating "the river behind my house was frozen solid. Which has never happened in the eleven years I've lived here." Residents were told by the TRCA that concerns about trees and natural fish habitation prevented the region from blasting the ice build-up with machines, as other regions like Halton Hills and Vaughan had done. So, the ice remained. However, with the next thaw in mid-March "all hell broke loose," as McCabe puts it.

AFTERMATH: James Street residents Cheyenne, left, Mike Wallace and Tracey Lehman were among many people upset with the way municipal authorities handled the flood emergency.

On March 13th and 14th, the TRCA had issued flood warnings. In Bolton's Valley, the mild weather had resulted in the breaking up of the frozen river. Residents monitoring the situation became concerned around mid-day, and attempted to contact the Town, who then stated that it was the Region's responsibility. A call made to the TRCA resulted in a message that staff was out to lunch and to leave a message. When the call was returned, the TRCA said they would send a representative out on the following Monday.

By approximately 3:30 pm, the water began to pool in the corners of Willow and James streets. By 4:15, it had begun to flow into the intersection from the storm drains. At 4:38, Tracey Lehman phoned the Town, and after initially not receiving an answer, phoned again only to be flipped over to the nightline, again with no answer. After not being able to reach the Town, Lehman called the regional line twice before being connected to a live representative, who then issued her a work order number.

In the midst of all this administrative efficiency, she watched as "the water on the west side of Humberlea let go. When the ice came down, it had nowhere to go…the ice was too thick on the river and it just went everywhere. In the meantime, the OPP and Region came around with a big pump, turned around, and said there was nothing they could do."

They then left without explanation.

By six pm, with water bubbling up from the storm drains and creeping up the driveways, first responders began to appear on scene. Evacuation began around 8:30, and close to midnight all residents were told to leave. "There was nowhere the first night," said Lehman's neighbour, who ended up paying for her room at The Hampton Inn, she says eventually her credit cards maxed out during the duration of her stay, first ignorant of then unable to get on the list of flood victims who had their accommodation paid for by the Town (to a certain extent). "They just told us to 'get'. We didn't know there was an evacuation centre until the next day."

Many people, depending on which first responder they spoke to, were unaware of the evacuation and command centres being set up at the Recreation and Wellness Centre, where one had to register on this list to be recognized as a flood victim. Many residents, like Lehman and her husband, went to stay with family and friends after receiving little to no guidance from officials who did not know much more themselves. "If you didn't get on the list- which meant going to the evacuation centre- it meant you didn't exist."

One resident was told that her address did not exist, and although she spoke to four separate fire fighters, was given no information and was subsequently missed three times on this list.

For safety, first responders began turning off the gas and power to houses affected by the flooding, which further impeded efforts at communication. "Although the Town thinks they were communicating" summarizes Lehman, "we had no radio, we had no tv, we certainly didn't have access to the website to find out what the flip was going on."

The next morning, Tracey Lehman and

Fundraisers held to help Bolton Flood Victims

Written By KIRA WRONSKA DORWARD

Time for us to come together, Caledon.

Caledon is known for its community outreach and support, and if ever people were in need, it is the victims of March's flood in downtown Bolton as they attempt to put back their homes and lives in the near future.

Already, the community has tried with the flurry of donations of items during a drive organized by Ward 5 Regional Coun. Annette Groves and Ward 5 Area Coun. Tony Rosa from March 27 to 30 at 4 Holland Dr. in Bolton, thanks to Sandy Gregorio who provided access to the building.

"People have been extremely generous with lots of donations dropped," commented Mr. Rosa. "Hopefully it will make a difference in the lives of people who are struggling with the aftermath of this flood."

Efforts are ongoing, and the volunteers are now in the process of sorting the current donations, which were parcelled up based on the requests of victims' families who came forward expressing their needs.

Currently, donations are still being accepted at Caledon Community Services, and interested parties can drop off their donations to EVOLVE in Bolton. Among donation items of particular interest are household items, linens, toiletries, tools, and small furniture. To make private arrangements, please email Groves and Rosa at Annette.groves@caledon.ca and tony.rosa@caledon.ca.

Volunteers are also operating a GoFundMe page at www.gofundme.com/bolton-flood-residents-fund. Although affected residents were successful in an application to the provincial government for funds, these funds are both inadequate to cover the many expenses of rebuilding homes, as well as being unavailable until after residents submit invoices for reimbursement in what could be months or years down the line.

"Although some residents may have flood insurance others do not and although we as a community may not be able to raise funds to help with that, we can certainly try to help with the day to day necessities," said Mira Budd, the creator of the page and one of the resident volunteers.

"Marion Upshall, Sherry Brioschi and I have gathered a list of families with no insurance for a total of 8 families with no insurance," said Budd. "We will give each of those families $300.00 each and the rest we will keep until June 15th as we will be going door to door to see if there are any others. If no more families with no insurance or renting come forward at that time the rest of the money will be divided evenly among the original 10 families. I will be withdrawing the money and giving it to the families via certified cheque."

Hoping to raise a minimum of $20,000, Budd commented that "if half of Caledon gives even $5, that would be a huge help… there's a number of residents who don't have the overland insurance, there are so many incurred costs, and they need to put money upfront. We also want them to know that the community cares, and we're behind them… we know some people who lost everything-everything was damaged and destroyed. I was overwhelmed by the number of things these people are going to need, looking at the damage. We need to help these people, it's heart-breaking."

Another fundraiser in the form of a potluck event with raffle prizes (including gift baskets, gift cards, and audio equipment) as well as a 50/50 draw will be held at Sammy's Grill (15 Allan Dr.) on April 27 from six until 11:30 pm. Attendees are asked to bring a potluck item if they are able with an entrance donation of $5, with all proceeds going towards the flood victims.

If you are unable to attend, but would like to donate a prize, please contact Marion Wyatt Upshall or Ashley Burns at the event page (https://www.facebook.com/events/2288433874760230/ or search Bolton Flood Fundraiser) directly by April 20th to arrange pick up/drop off. If you would like to make a cash donation, please visit the GoFundMe page.

Vic Thapar intents to run as Dufferin-Caledon Liberal Party nomination

Written By JOSHUA SANTOS

Vic Thapar is seeking the Dufferin-Caledon Liberal Party nomination in the fall federal election.

"Our issues and concerns are not being raised in Ottawa by our long-time federal representator (MP David Tilson)," said Thapar. "He has not focused on Dufferin-Caledon."

Thapar previously ran during the Orangeville municipal election where he did not secure a seat with 1490 votes. He said, during that time, residents discussed concerns about all levels of government.

"They don't see you running for council," said Thapar. "They talked about everything."

Thapar said he is still in the vetting process to run as a candidate but he had no problem voicing his support for the Liberals Party.

Thapar said the Liberals are the only party that represents every person. He said they care about the quality of life, fairness and make families and healthcare a priority.

"This party represents the middle class and lower-class people, which we mostly are," said Thapar. "I believe this is the time to make a change and make things happen."

He did not shy away from discussing the Conservatives saying they represent the business and high class community.

Thapar was born in India, where he received his medical degree. He worked as a general physician there, but is not licensed to work in Canada.

He previously worked with the Government of Alberta in their department of employment and immigration.

As a department supervisor for Home Depot in Orangeville, he said he talks to all kind of people who discuss a wide range of issues. He said he always wanted to help people by representing Dufferin-Caledon, properly.

He said residents discussed the idea of mandatory mental health services for all Canadians, enhanced veteran affairs programs and more daycares and help for those fleeing prosecution from other countries.

Thapar previously worked with Bob Gordanier during his Liberal provincial election campaign. They were up against Progressive Conservatives incumbent Sylvia Jones and Green Party candidate Laura Campbell. Thapar said it was a good opportunity for him to understand the Liberals Party.

"I knew Bob since, I'll say about 2013, and I have been in touch with him," said Thapar. "When the election came, I was fully dedicated with him. I went door-to-door campaigning and advocating for him.

Thapar said he would represent Dufferin-Caledon well because he is very outspoken,

"If you bring any concerns to me or any issues you're facing, I will never be afraid to put them on the table," said Thapar. "What ever the concerns are, how much help I can be, I always bring them to the table so as a whole unit, we can discuss what can be done and what we can do for our people of Dufferin-Caledon."

A nomination meeting to select the newest candidate for the federal liberals has not been announced by the Dufferin-Caledon Liberal Riding Association.

Banking advisor celebrates 45 years at RBC

Written By JOSHUA SANTOS

A special celebration was held at RBC Bolton as Katharine Barson marked 45 years with the company on Tuesday, April 16.

"It's a little hard to believe, for sure," said Barson. "Time flies. It doesn't seem like 45 years, at all. I started when I was 17, right from school and I have been with RBC ever since."

A giant commemorative 45 balloon filled an area of the branch with smaller blue and gold RBC balloons surrounding it. A complementary coffee and cake was offered to customers and a lunch was provided to staff workers. There was also a guest book to sign and share congratulatory words to Barson.

Barson works as a banking advisor at the Bolton branch. She helps people achieve their financial goals in life from mortgages, investments and anything they require.

"It's the satisfaction of seeing clients achieve what they came in to do," said Barson. "Right now, I have clients that I opened their bank accounts when they were children and now they're bringing back their family to me also. That's a great milestone."

She has lived in town for 33 years and has fond memories of the now-defunct Bolton north branch.

"Everybody has been great," said Barson. "I was down at the Bolton north branch for almost, 30 years, and now that's closed and it was like a family there."

Barson said she never thought about leaving RBC. She says the company has treated her like family.

"RBC has always been there, through the worst times, deaths in the family, good times, the birth of my children, they've always been corporative in giving me the time that I need to do things," said Barson.

The company has given her the opportunity to advance her career and even decline offers and do what she was trained to do.

"I worked with many great people, throughout my career, some of them are not with us anymore, however It's always been like a family to me," Barson said.

She has a lot of clients that she has known for the past 30 years in Bolton. They have kept a relationship with her throughout the years. Some of those people would end up working for RBC.

"My children have their own careers," said Barson. "However, I had a lot of people that've met that joined RBC, that I met as clients and now they're employees. RBC has always been open. RBC continues to be active in the community with recruiting."

Barson has also been active in the community representing RBC through various community initiatives.

ANNIVERSARY: Katharine (Kathy) Barson, middle, poses with her RBC Bolton colleagues as she celebrates 45 years with the company

"The whole branch, usually does it, not me in particular but I have done Meals on Wheels for 25 years and represented RBC through that," said Barson.

With 45 years now in the books, Barson is not sure what the next couple of years have in store for her. She just plans to continue working.

"As long as they'll have me," said Barson We'll see. I may leave in a couple of years or I may not. I don't know. There's no plan right now."

Lawyer presented with lifetime achievement award

Written By JOSHUA SANTOS

L. Murray Eades was named recipient of the 2019 Lifetime Achievement Award presented by the Peel Law Association.

"I never even thought about myself in that way," said Eades. "I did not know about it until about a week or so before the presentation. I was flabbergasted, because it was something I never even contemplated," said Eades.

Eades began his practice in Toronto, where he worked in two firms before establishing his own practice and then moved to Mississauga. After 60 years as a lawyer, Eades retired as of Dec. 31 2018.

"I have practiced since 1959," said Eades. "Most of that time I was practicing as a sole practitioner. I had a pretty interesting career for a single lawyer."

Eades became an authority on transportation law as part of his extensive corporate and commercial practice, and represented United Van Lines since 1962.

"Fairly early on in my practice, United Van Lines needed to change counsel and they spoke with the accounting firm that dealt with them at the time, and the accountants gave them my name as someone who was young and enthusiastic," said Eades.

"At that time, United Van Lines was quite small. It had been incorporated only in the late '50s. They weren't in a position to be looking for a big law firm. Now of course, they're number one in their industry."

The retired lawyer said he had a very broad-based practice that took him back and forth across Canada, the United States, Europe and China.

He highlights his association with United Van Lines, his status within the transport law area and representation of families for over three-generations as milestones in his career.

"A lot of the individual families that I represented were small business people," said Eades. "In corporate and commercial law, it fit in within their business needs. I did not practice in the area of family law, but in the other needs of the family, if they were buying or selling property or doing wills or, when someone died, working on their estate. Most

The Town of Caledon is looking to hire a climate change specialist.

The specialist will be responsible for supporting, monitoring and implementing the Town of Caledon's climate change adaption and mitigation strategies.

"The climate change specialist position has been an existing role within the energy and environment division, since 2014, which will support ongoing and new energy and environment projects," said Parm Chohan, communications advisor for the Town of Caledon. "The successful candidate will largely focus on updating the Town's Climate Change Adaptation and Mitigation Strategies in 2019 and 2020.

The specialist also be involved in community initiatives to increase adaptive capacity to extreme and changing weather patterns and reduce community greenhouse gas emission.

The Town was recently among 26 other Canadian municipalities to complete the Partners for Climate Protection program, a five-step milestone program through the Federation of Canadian Municipalities for local action planning on greenhouse gas emission.

The Town's Climate Change Task Force developed a Community Climate Change Action Plan (CCAP). The CCAP will include actions and strategies for reducing community-wide greenhouse gas emissions and improving the adaptive capacity and resiliency of the community to cope with and adapt to the local impacts of climate change, according to the Town.

"The specialist will assist in updating the existing plan, which will include strategies to further mitigate the contributions to climate change, reduce greenhouse gas emissions, and identify opportunities to adapt and improve resiliency to a changing climate," said Chohan.

The CCAP looks into transportation, green development, energy, schools, agriculture, community awareness, tree planting and naturalization, waste, local food and long-term actions. They found community transportation represented 37 per cent of total emissions, followed by energy usage from residential buildings at 21 per cent and energy usage from commercial buildings at 16 per cent.

This role will also be responsible for facilitating the community climate change action plan," said Chohen. "The key to the success of this plan update and the long-term implementation will be partnerships and ownership from external agencies, residents, businesses, not for profit groups and other important stakeholders.

The specialist will also prepare and submit grant applications to leverage federal and provincial funding to implement climate change adaptation and mitigation projects, according to the Town.

The Town is looking for a candidate with three to five years related experience in environmental management and community-based climate change mitigation and adaption. They also must have demonstrated knowledge of federal and provincial climate change policies and legislation, among many other required skills.

Michael McCreary and Roland Kirouac - an evening inside their heads

Written By CONSTANCE SCRAFIELD

When the travelers come home, their success stories in their pockets, it is a great thing to sit and listen to them. This was so with a packed house at Theatre Orangeville earlier this week, when Michael McCreary and Roland Kirouac brought those stories to us, with their new books.

They are interestingly contrasting and similar to each other. Mr. McCreary is in his twenties and Mr. Kirouac is in his eighties. Michael is autistic; Roland comes from an abusive childhood. Both have achieved success, in spite of it all, with their personal passions as performers, artists in their fields.

Both men have recently published their memoirs.

Michael's book is Funny, You Don't Look Autistic.

Roland's book is A Message from A Fool.

As much a book of a fascinating portrayal of his life so far, Funny, You Don't Look Autistic is, almost, a how-to book. Michael has provided a much needed, much appreciated book about being autistic from his side of the spectrum.

It outlines his determination to muddle through the obtuseness of the neurotypical – those folk who are not autistic, to hone his understanding of what is going on around him and to turn his personal take on autism into comedy. With comedy, he is carving out his life as a stand up comedian.

He leads his reader through his own life and times, from his use of language as a tiny child – lines from movies – to his first jokes at elementary school, to his cross Canada tour. Travelling with his father from coast to coast, Michael's take on the audiences and his own part in their entertainment is sometimes very funny and, sometimes, real food for thought.

What he does, is teach us, the neurotypical, what is autistic, as it applies to him. He gives us some insight to the probable similarities with others in the Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD). Keeping this in mind, he assures the reader that every autistic person is an individual and that autism is a characteristic, not a character. It is simply a part of who a person is, not the whole person.

BOOK SINGING: Roland Kirouac, with former student, Debbie Collins, at the book signing after acting their books at Theatre Orangeville this week

The evening was billed as "Books on Stage, A Evening of Entertainment and A Book Launch with a Difference." It was all that and more but it would have been hard to anticipate the format and, as a evening at the theatre, it may very well have been a one-off. The gentlemen acted out their books, instead of the usual presentation (also very entertaining) of readings and conversation.

A stand up comic, Michael did just that, regale the audience with some of the stories in the book, some about his mother and other stories that are not in the book. He kept us laughing and clapping for his part in the show.

An interlude to change the props on the stage and we welcomed Roland Kirouac to the platform.

Imagine that you can't remember any of your birthdays before your 15thbirthday. On that specific day, you are walking home, to an abusive home with a deaf, beaten mother and a brutal alcoholic father, when suddenly you stop. Just there, on that spot, which is just a spot with no significance until this very second and, in that second, your life is transformed by the revelation that comes to you, by the message from a non corporal fool.

This is the beginning of Roland Kirouac's presentation of A Message from a Fool, through which he danced all the time, a graceful, flowing ballet, with his story telling to match, that kept us completely in his grasp. His passion, his pain, his tremendous joy.

His revelation directed him to his love of dance. A mild way of saying it: he was devoted to dance. It took away his pain and the paucity of his life. Since he was 12 years old, he used to go to the local dance hall, to watch where the men came to dance with the "Best Ladies." They moved and swayed and the men lifted the ladies up high in the dances. The boy, Roland, looked on with growing intensity and desire to be one of them. He watched their feet, their moves; he copied them and learned from them surreptitiously until he too could dance.

There was no turning back once the ideas started to fill his head. That he would leave the sad, impoverished life for the lights, beautiful dancing partners and his new life of being the "golden boy" has been a lifelong wonder to him.

He became, additionally to a dancer, a choreographer, Artistic Director and Entertainer. His list of achievements and accolades is long and distinguished.

This evening was, as have been all the authors' events at the theatre, a collaboration between BookLore and Theatre Orangeville.

Said Nancy Frater, owner and co-founder of BookLore, about to celebrate 30 years of business and at the same location, "We have had many famous authors here – Peter Gzowski, Pierre Burton, Margaret Atwood, to name a few, – but this evening is different. This evening is local!"

The proceeds from the evening were in favour of the Orangeville Wolves, the special needs hockey team with which Michael had played as a youngster. Also, to support the youth programs with Theatre Orangeville.

Funny, You Don't Look Autistic, by Michael McCreary and Message from a Fool, by Roland Kirouac are both available at BookLore.

BUSINESS in Caledon

Business profile: Gourmandissimo

Gourmandissimo is a small inviting shop in Caledon East offering big taste, high quality and excellence in all that they do -- from catering and wedding planning to grab-and-go meals. We sat down with owners Gilles and Adriana Roche to discuss their business journey, lessons learned and their devotion to community.

Tell me about the business.

We opened in 1999. Gilles is a chef and I'm a pastry chef. Our food is all made from scratch and as locally-sourced as possible. In the shop we have pastries, baked goods, chocolate confections and ready-made meals such as soups, pot pies and gourmet-prepared meals. We also carry a selection of local food products like honey and maple syrup.

We have a licensed space upstairs for about 40 people, The Bartlett Room, which can be used for catered meetings or events. We also host wine-pairing dinner nights.

The busiest part of our business is the catering. It's more than just the food, we offer full design and event organization services. We cater a lot of weddings, 35 last year. We are fully booked for weddings this year and booking into 2020.

Our original thought when we came to Caledon was that we would open a restaurant and event space, but the catering was in such demand. Back in 2006 we accepted an offer from the Best Western in Orangeville to partner with them as their exclusive caterers; the restaurant was put on hold.

We have 4 full-time staff plus the two of us and many part-timers; with events we employ up to 30.

> "Our original thought when we came to Caledon was that we would open a restaurant and event space, but the catering was in such demand - Adriana.

FAMILY VENTURE: Gilles and Adriana owned a restaurant on Bay Street for over eight years in Toronto but decided to leave the city and settle down in Caledon after their son was born.

We also take on quite a few co-op students. Gilles takes the time to train and mentor every one of them. Several students have gone on to become quite successful chefs.

What does Gourmandissimo mean?

Gilles is French and I'm Italian. Gourmand is French, "a connoisseur of good food" and -issimo is Italian, "utmost, to the highest grade".

Have both of you always been in the food industry?

Adriana: Gilles grew up and trained as a chef in Monte Carlo – he has cooked for royalty. Did you know there's a culinary Olympics? – Gilles was in that when he was in Switzerland and won a silver medal; it is a very big deal.

There was a whole world before he met me [laughs].

I was working in Movenpick hoping to make my way to Geneva and Gilles was in Geneva hoping to make his way west to Toronto.

Gilles: This is the beauty of being a chef, if you want to go somewhere you can. I had options to go elsewhere but I chose Toronto. I wanted to come to Canada mostly because of the French language, thinking it may be easier to settle… then realized they don't really speak French in Toronto. But it is easier here than in the United States. My thought at the time was that I would work on my English there for a year and then go to the States, but… [looking at Adriana]

How did you meet, and end up in Caledon?

Adriana: We were working in the same restaurant; I could speak English, French and Italian so there was a good connection. We got married within two years. We stayed in Toronto and owned a restaurant on Bay Street for over eight years. After our first son was born we decided to leave the city and settle down in a smaller community, which brought us north.

We ended up in Caledon; we rented a place in Palgrave. We looked at various restaurant properties, made an offer on one but the deal fell through. So, there we were with no jobs and a one-year old baby.

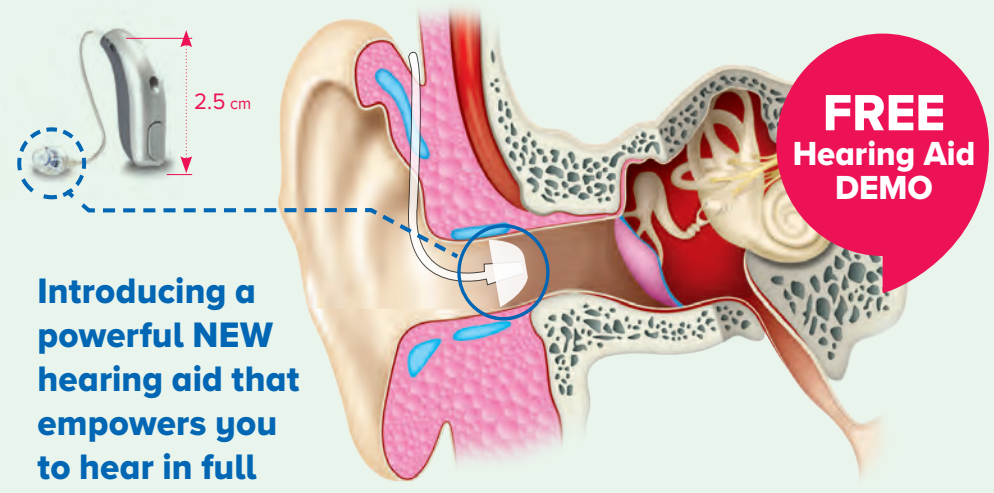

To keep himself busy, Gilles started working with my cousin who is a local contractor. He has always liked working with his hands. Our landlords had a strong connection with Theatre Orangeville and we started helping them out with their fundraising. On weekends we would still cater to our old clients in downtown Toronto.

Carbon tax pressure is on

There seems to be a stand-out issue leading up to every federal election.

The Liberals focused on 'Real Change' emphasising electoral reform and recreational cannabis in 2016, while the Conservatives focused on 'Proven leadership for a strong Canada' discussing taxes and a prosperous economy.

Among the political fire that ensued, the Liberals won a majority government with 39.5 per cent of the vote defeating the reigning Conservatives after a multitude of years at the helm, who obtained 31.9 per cent of ballots. The Liberals did not win without controversies, however.

The Economist reported the Conservatives had an issue of the public wearing of the niqab, leading to many thinking of it as 'Muslim-bashing'. This caused a storm on social media as NDP and Liberal supporters alike voice their discontent with Conservatives. It's uncertain whether or not this led to many supporting other parties, but in the end the Liberals took over government.

With the 2019 federal election coming up, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has once again declared his intent to attain his job with Conservatives Leader Andrew Scheer chasing his tail.

This time an issue seems to be about the carbon tax.

The battle over federal carbon tax intensified as Ontario's challenge hits the courtroom, the campaign trail and at the gas pumps.

The Ontario Court of Appeal heard the opening argument of the Progressive Conservative government's challenge of the federal carbon price law, according to the Toronto Star.

Lawyers representing the Ontario government argued the carbon tax, which came into effect just two weeks ago, has been an economy killer and should be struck down as an unconstitutional expansion of federal powers.

The Liberals have said the policy falls within their jurisdiction and is a responsible way to fight climate change.

Ontario, among Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and New Brunswick have declined to create their own carbon-pricing regime. Alberta joined when the NDP were defeated by the United Conservative Party on Tuesday, cancelling their provincial carbon price.

In Ontario, the Progressive Conservatives are forcing gas stations to past government-issued stickers, which warn of the costs of the federal carbon tax, to pumps across the province of face step fines.

The sticker shows the federal carbon tax adding 4.4 cents per litre to the price of gas now, rising to 11 cents a litre in 2022, according to the CBC.

Individuals could be fined up to $500 each day, or up to $1,000 a day for subsequent offences while corporations could be fined up to $5,000 a day, or up to $10,000 a day for subsequent offences.

The first thing Premier Ford did when he took office was cancel the province's cap-and-trade regime, replacing it with their own 'Made in Ontario' plan. Evidentially, the Federal Government abolished that and replaced it with their own carbon levy.

Carbon pricing is a charged political issue in Canada. Scheer went on record with numerous media reports slamming the tax, saying he'll repeal it if elected.

The debate for a carbon tax can take many tolls. Some may say it needs to be a global issue, as much pollution comes from Asia while some note people will continue to drive, farmers will work less, residents would be pinching every penny they have and companies will continue to leave Canada.

On the other hand, some may note that all revenues from the levy will be returned to taxpayers, many of whom may receive more than they pay through rebates.

While we may have to do our part as Canadians to protect our environment, is a carbon tax the right answer?

Just like the SNC Lavalin Affair, the Carbon Tax will be an issue that Conservatives will continue to use in campaign slogans and brochures as the 2019 federal election draws near.

Just what would you ask God Almighty?

by Mark Pavilons

"Where can we go to find God if we cannot see Him in our own hearts and in every living being."

– Swami Vivekananda

Not all of us have faith or strongly believe in the Almighty.

But for many, God is as real as the raindrops on the tulips that welcome us every spring.

The legendary Bob Marley wrote that his hand was made strong by the hand of the Almighty. He also spent a lot of time "jammin in the name of the Lord."

A movie on Netflix raised some really interesting questions for yours truly, since the theme is right up my alley.

"An Interview With God," by director Perry Lang, is presented as a rather simple

Q & A with the big guy. A troubled journalist has many issues to work out, but he's always had "faith," and that's brought to bear when the interview of a lifetime presents itself. Yes, an interview with God himself.

David Strathairn plays God in this entertaining film. It's purposely vague yet compelling at the same time. No concrete answers are provided, but there are still many hints at what's important in God's eyes. But yes, there are answers to inquiries such as "does Satan exist?" and "why do bad things happen to good people?"

Being a journalist, I've often wondered what historic figure I'd love to meet and interview. Of course, Jesus springs to mind as first and foremost. But there would be a heck of a language barrier. Just where would I learn ancient Aramaic?

I don't think there's an app for that, yet!

There are so many famous and infamous characters throughout our jaded history who would be so very interesting to speak with. From joining Ernest Hemingway for a drink in Key West, to discussing politics with JFK, the subjects are endless.

Back to the Most High.

For me, there's little interest in past events, and obvious questions of God's power, existence and handiwork. It's all around us.

For me, humankind's beginnings, while fascinating from a historic perspective, are well documented. There's more than enough reading material to keep one busy for months.

What I would want to know is something no religious text can definitely guarantee. What waits for us in the great beyond? What memories will I retain and what senses will I experience. Just what will I do for all eternity?

It's possible that none of these things would be relevant. Who needs a sense of smell if you are one with the universe? What's there to touch when you are in all places, at all times, across all galaxies?

I would have to think long and hard about the questions I posed to the All Knowing. Then again, he would anticipate them, right?

Some of us have formal and informal conversations with the Creator on a regular basis. Praying is a very personal thing.

In his book, "Conversations With God: An Uncommon Dialogue," Neal Walsh addresses some really pertinent questions.

God created perfection in us and the world around us, he noted. And he didn't simply walk away from us after Jesus came for a brief visit.

The author also contends there's no such thing as "coincidence," since we are in control of our actions and the results. "For you are the creator of your own reality, and life can show up in no other way for you than the way in which you think it will."

In loving relationships, our better halves don't "complete us," but rather we share our "completeness" with one another.

"The laws are very simple: 1. Thought is creative. 2. Fear attracts like energy.

3. Love is all there is."

Heaven, according to Walsh, is here, now, all around us.

We all know that life is filled with challenges and hurdles. That's part of the learning experience. I'm not sure why we shelter and protect our children from experiencing these road blocks – they're necessary for personal growth.

Walsh said knowing there will be tough times is part of life. We shouldn't avoid them, but rather welcome them, and cultivate a method of finding the silver linings, or the opportunities in the problems that await. These opportunities, he says, will help us determine who we really are.

There are no guarantees in life, and it has been designed that way, Walsh attests. We can't "rehearse" for a script that's already been written. "Life by its nature cannot have guarantees, or its whole purpose is thwarted."

Here's a key to life, in my opinion. Walsh suggests we live our lives without expectations and the need for specific results. This is freedom; the God-given freedom of choice.

The singer Prince said every day is a blessing from God "and I consider it a new beginning."

In a way, he was right. For those who've seen sunrises or sunsets in majestic places around the globe, you can see the beauty and power of it all. The universe is not a collection of coincidences, but a finely tuned mechanism.

Very few of us get the chance to look back at our home world from space.

Astronauts who've experienced it note it goes beyond science and nature; it's almost spiritual.

RCAF pilot John Magee once wrote that when he flew and reached incredible heights, he put out his hand "and touched the face of God."

Wonder and curiosity are two of our most interesting qualities as human beings.

And so is faith.

Always keep a notebook by the bedside, I say. You never know when you'll need it!

Transit is important to a mother

I recently had a particularly interesting conversation with a Caledon resident, let's call her Sandy. She informed me how vital accessible transportation was to her elderly mom who also lives in Caledon. She explained how her mom uses CCS' accessible buses to get to seniors' group events weekly in addition to many standing medical appointments. Sandy's mom is currently going through chemotherapy and CCS makes sure she gets to and fro for each of her appointments. These rides, as well as the ones to leisure activities, make an enormous difference in her mom's life. They also make a difference in Sandy's life; I never underestimate the importance of supporting caregivers! CCS transportation services are a godsend for Sandy and her mom. Sandy has only one family vehicle and without the CCS rides, her mom would be housebound seven days a week. Sandy's story is not uncommon, CCS hears often how much of a lifeline our transportation program is for hundreds of people in Caledon. Truly, Sandy and her mom are not unlike so many in our community who need support.

If you can't get around in Caledon you're in trouble. I encourage our community's leaders to do something now. I appreciate the Master Transportation Plan is being developed by the Town of Caledon, it's been in the works for a few years and one day will be a solid blueprint for Caledon transportation services. In the meantime, I see the immense challenges here and now in the lives of seniors and people with disabilities when they can't get around. I volunteer for an organization that provides services. We don't like waiting for solutions when our most vulnerable residents are in some trouble today and there is every reason to respond now. Planning and preparing is good. But while we're waiting, I believe it's worthwhile to support our most vulnerable community residents now. That's what Caledon is all about.

Resident concerned with 'secret' aggregate summit

Re: Residents protest 'secret' aggregate summit, April 4.

It is not surprising that the Ford government is trying to do and end run around protections put in place to regulate the aggregate industry. This industry is already treated with excessive leniency; mined below the water table when license said no – oops! don't want to pay for rehabilitation of a spent pit – unload it and walk away. Got some extra fill (contaminated or not) that you need to get rid of? Put it in your pit and don't worry, no one is going to ask about permits. The amount of tax paid by this industry is also lacking.

To insist as they do in their Securing Access report that significant woodlands can be replaced and enhanced on the landscape with no negative impact and that woodlands are a renewable resource is ludicrous. A mature forest takes 100+ years to grow, never mind the destruction of flora and fauna inhabiting it. That is just one alarm bell. There is the monumentally serious issue of our ground water which unfettered below water table mining and contaminated fill depositing are extreme threats. Everything about this meeting should scare the crap out of people. Bill 66 – Schedule 10 all over again.

Budget 2019: Thoughtful, measured, forward looking, safety and security

SYLVIA JONES
MPP DUFFERIN - CALEDON

The Ontario Government has been hard at work preparing a budget that will be thoughtful, measured and forward looking. In the afternoon of April 11th, the provincial Budget for 2019 will be introduced. It will clearly outline our plan to restore fiscal balance in a responsible and sustainable manner. We will protect what matters most – health care, education and other critical public services. Budget 2019 will continue to build on the 200 initiatives our government has implemented over the last 9 months, making Ontario open for business and always putting people first.

After 15 years of the previous government's fiscal mismanagement and high taxes, our government has put money back in people's pockets. We cancelled the cap-and-trade carbon tax, saving businesses $880 million this year, and $260 a year for each household. We introduced the most progressive income tax cut for low-income workers in a generation – the Low-Income Individual and Families Tax Credit.

The interest payment on Ontario's debt is the fourth largest spending line in the budget, after health care, education, and social services. Every dollar spent on interest means one less dollar going to our hospitals, schools, and critical infrastructure.

Budget 2019 will be measured and thoughtful. We will not balance the budget at the expense of our critical programs, nor by making life harder for families in Dufferin-Caledon and Ontario by raising taxes. In fact, Budget 2019 will continue to strengthen public safety, ensure the security of Ontarians and protect essential services in this province, including our public health care and education systems. Our government puts people at the centre of every government decision.

Nine short months ago, our government immediately set out to address the fiscal imbalance. Whether it was reforming OHIP+ or removing underused landlines and fax machines in ministry offices, we found immediate ways to reduce costs and make programs and services more efficient and people-focused. By December 31st, we lowered Ontario's inherited deficit from $15 billion to $13.5 billion. Since June, we've added 132,000 net new jobs as a direct result of our government's policies.

Our government has remained focused on what's important to Ontarians, beginning with the need to restore accountability, sustainability and trust in government. We have continued to restore confidence in Ontario's finances and reducing the debt burden, while protecting critical public services. Budget 2019 will build on our progress to make Ontario the best place to do business, where jobs and prosperity can reach every corner of our province.

Budget? What Budget?

SHERALYN ROMAN
SHARED THOUGHTS

By the time we go to press we'll be in the throes of the first major budget announcement of the Progressive Conservative government here in Ontario and what is everyone talking about? Tailgating! A party? This is what we are talking about in advance of budget day? Can you say distraction? I've got to hand it to Mr. Ford he sure knows how to draw attention away from the major issues – indeed crisis – currently facing Ontarians. You know, the little things like drastic cuts to education that will only have a very minor impact on our future. (Yes, if you don't know me by now I am being very sarcastic.) Like the classic "bait and switch" technique used during the election when all we were all talking about was "buck a beer", Mr. Ford has managed, with just one announcement, to distract us poor common folk from the major issues of the day, encouraging us instead to talk about getting drunk and eating lots of charred food at an outdoor venue. Sounds like the kind of parties the Ford's used to host back in the day don't you think?

My concerns around tailgating are twofold. One – distraction from the issues at hand and two – drunk driving. To quote an oft used phrase, while "the government has no place in the bedrooms of the nation," they do have a place in patrolling our major roads and highways and taking on the responsibility of helping protect ALL of us from the FEW of us who still choose to drink and drive. I'd like to think we are all responsible enough to party at the foot of our cars without incident but some of us won't be and that's a problem for everyone. Additionally, distraction. Did I mention that already? These last few days have been spent talking about nothing but tailgating instead of issues like climate change, carbon taxes and cuts to education. You all remember, I hope, that a massive rally took place on April 6th protesting the enormous changes to our education system? Are we still talking about that? I've seen (and shared) some of the rumblings on social media but it seems like many folks have moved on. It's spring! Let's drink beer! Buck a beer, out of the trunk of the car! (Sounds like what some people I know did in high school to me. Perhaps Doug is simply looking to relive his "glory year" - Grade 11 wasn't it?)

Can we please get back to the real issues? I know there are many deserving of our attention but education has to be top of the list or close to it. This is our future. The kinds of cuts we're facing now will impact students and teachers immediately and for generations to come. Taking away supports for autism spectrum children potentially limits their future opportunities. Changing the structure of full day kindergarten (and who provides leadership in that environment) after millions has just been spent on implementing it, is both costly and questionable. Asking Teachers to manage classrooms of 35 and 40 students is just outrageous. If there is a parent amongst you who hasn't thrown your hands up in despair managing just one teenager at home then you aren't parenting right. It's hard work. Now add 39 more to the mix – and try teaching them something like physics or Shakespeare. Good luck.

Asking Teachers and our Boards of Education to do more with less will also impact special programming and extra-curricular activities. I was a "band nerd." (I'm not suggesting band members are nerds but that is what my husband used to call me.) I'm proud I was in the band. You know what being a band nerd got me? Exposure to musical theatre, to the opera, to Roy Thompson Hall and to a wide range of concerts and experiences I would never have otherwise been able to attend. Trips to New York City, to Florida and all around the province of Ontario to compete, to learn and to grow. These were amazing experiences that broadened the mind.

What about the kids who are not destined for University. We own a Tool and Die related business, have done for the past 20+ years. My husband was introduced to this skilled trade by taking machine shop in high school. He apprenticed, worked hard and now owns a successful business. You know what we can't do? Hire someone like him. There are no programs in schools, no "machine shops" and what precious few SHSM programs that currently exist are exactly the kinds of programs that might face extinction under the Ford government. These cuts aren't just about autism and special needs – much as those children and families desperately need help – they are also about investing in our future for skilled trades, for kids who learn differently – for kids who don't want a post-secondary degree. They are about Teachers trying to reach and connect with those kids so they don't feel defeated and drop out but instead are inspired to see a different future for themselves.

Please don't take the bait. Buck a beer wasn't the issue during the election and tailgating isn't the issue now. Drunk driving seems, if anything, to be on the rise with York Region officers recently expressing shock that they are still pulling over so many impaired drivers even after their region experienced the most public (and horrific) drunk driving case in recent years. Cheap beer and the ability to drink it near your car, outside a major sporting event, certainly won't improve those statistics. Let's talk about education instead. Let's talk about what really matters – future generations and their future potential.

Child lost his mother and his uncle has severe brain damage

The plan is to bring Christian to Canada in September. He is now without parents or anyone that can take care of him permanently in South Africa.

"Unfortunately, his only uncle there was attacked in his office building two months ago and has been left brain damaged so we are dealing with that as well as Shelley's sudden death," said Gillespie. "Things have however been very difficult as the police regarded Shelley's death as suspicious. She lived on an isolated farm, in the beginning. The house was cordoned off and no documents could be removed so her will and Christian's passport have not been located."

Insurance will not cover all expenses for flood victims

husband Mike Wallace drove to Home Depot, where they rented a pump and bought galoshes. "We were back at the house by eight am…the water was so high, I had to be careful that it didn't go past my boots. We had to be so careful because there was ice underneath," says Lehman.

"At 10 am, I walked out on my driveway to see how far I could walk before the water hit [the top of] my boots. At the corner of King and James, the Mayor and other officials were standing around, and no one was getting their feet wet or telling us there's an evacuation centre," Wallace supplied. "The Mayor told me, 'the next time this happens, call 911, not the town.'"

By 11 am, the water had begun to recede. However, that left residents with the tasks of turning the hydro back on (up to $800 at their own expense, with Enercare not operating until the following Monday), pumping out what was left of the water, and surveying the damage to their property. Calls made to insurance companies were met with disappointing results about what would be covered, especially as only one affected resident had the "overland" flood insurance necessary for this sort of catastrophe (which, as one person pointed out, you have to specifically ask your broker for), and some residents had previously been told they could not be insured at all because of their property's proximity to the river.

"This has been a cluster of miscommunications," sums up Lehman. "That's what this has really been. It was not handled well. The people involved [residents and first responders] were awesome…but the basic thing is nobody communicated well. For me, it looks like I might get 90% of a new furnace, and that's it. I've done the math on this, and at the end of the day, I might get $2800 back [from insurance and the province]. And it's going to cost up to $20-40 000 to redo the basement."

In the aftermath of what was an utterly foreseeable and preventable catastrophe, these members of our community are left to literally pick up the pieces and figure out next steps.

A delegation has already gone in front of Council on March 26th to ask that an emergency preparedness handbook be created to deal with such future situations with step-by-step procedures, permit fees for reconstruction be waved and fast-tracked, and have the province approve funds to be distributed among flood victims to pay for damages. However, not only do damages need to be initially repaired at cost to the victim who will be later reimbursed, but the allotments are laughably short of what is actually needed to cover the full array of costs incurred by this totally preventable natural disaster. As of this date, no resident meeting has been arranged, as one was following the explosion in Caledon Village in February, and there is still no post-command centre, which Councillor Ian Sinclair has pointed out to Council.

After the ice storm of Christmas 2013, a contingency plan had been in place for such future occurrences. However, the plan was only valid for a year. In an area that is a designated flood plain, the TRCA and the Town should have been paying their due diligence to an impending situation and taking the concerns of their constituents seriously.

With so many questions raised about how the events of March 14 came to be, Sherri Broschi asks, "I think that the one question always in my mind is how does that process of chain of command work?"

"If they [the TRCA] had've done on Wednesday, Thursday, or Friday what they did on the Saturday [March 15], this wouldn't have happened," says Lehman. "This was totally preventable. They sat on their hands…this is going to set us back years, a lifetime."

Going forward, delegation organizer Marion Upshall tries to remain positive. "We still have a lot of work to do. The community has been fantastic…but there is much more to come."

Delegation leader Sherri Brioschi had the final word. "There was absolutely no excuse for what happened. The Town and the Conservation Authority…it would not have happened if they had gotten off their butts and done what they needed to do. Shame on the Town, and double shame on the Conservation Authority."

of my clients were in some kind of business."

Eades was nominated for the award by his colleagues at Lawrences, the Brampton law firm where Murray moved his law practice before retiring. Among other things, they state that he distinguished himself as a preeminent counsel and contributed significantly to the Peel community, including serving on the Board of Directors of the Mississauga Hospital from 1965 to 1979, and as Chair of that Board from 1972 to 1974.

In nominating Murray, Ed Upenieks and Michael Luchenski, two of the Partner at Lawrences, note Murray's ability to recount legal cases in great detail, while providing humorous anecdotes.

"It is difficult to fathom how active Murray continues to be," they said in a joint statement. He is an ageless wonder, the Energizer Bunny, of his generation. Yet he remains, in all that he does, the perfect gentleman, the trusted advisor to his longstanding clients and their children and grandchildren, and forever a proud Canadian."

"Our firm was fortunate to have Murray join our firm in 2017 as our senior counsel. From the way he interacted with our lawyers, clerks, staff and summer students, we witnessed first-hand Murray's love of the law and pride in being a member of the legal profession. He is a lawyer who considers law to be a profession and not a business."

Eades spent much of his life in Peel Region, specifically in the Belfountain area. Eades closed his own office in July 2017.

"I realized that I had passed my best before date," said Eades.

He then moved out to Lawrences in Brampton serving as counsel. He encourages his former clients to reach out to Michael Luchenski, Co-Managing Partner at Lawrences, for ongoing legal services. "I was there to provide advice and support to lawyers and clients," said Eades. "My own clients would be served in the context of a larger firm."

"I selected Lawrences simply because they have been one of the most prominent firms in Peel since 1924," said Eades. "They have been around as long as I have been practicing. I had dealt with them from time to time and the lawyers I had dealt with, had similar approaches to the practice as I had, which would mean my clients would be well served."

Eades was born and raised in Toronto completing Grade 13 at Port Credit High School. He attained his Bachelor of Arts in 1954, his Doctor of Jurisprudence in 1957, and his Bachelor of Laws in 1959, all from the University of Toronto. He received his call to the Ontario Bar in 1959.

Paddle, bike, run in the 13th annual Moraine Adventure Relay Race

An exciting team event and fundraiser for the Oak Ridges Trail Association, begins at Rice Lake and finishes in King City. The Moraine Adventure Relay Race will be held Saturday, June 8.

The event engages 500 canoeists, runners and trail cyclists in relay stages covering 160 kilometres of beautiful Oak Ridges Moraine trail. It is appealing to everyone from veteran adventure racers to active recreational athletes looking for a brand new challenge or wanting to push themselves further.

Participating in the Adventure Relay is a great team-building exercise, and emphasizes the importance of physical activity to overall health.

As the annual fundraiser for the Oak Ridges Trail Association, proceeds from team entries and sponsorships goes towards improving signage, boardwalks and maintenance equipment used to keep the trail clear and safe for all users. The 300-kilometre Oak Ridges Trail helps protect the critical integrity of the Oak

Ridges Moraine. Spanning Caledon, King, Aurora, Richmond Hill,

Whitchurch-Stouffville, Uxbridge, Scugog, Clarington, Hope/Hamilton and

Northumberland, the Moraine acts as an aquifer providing drinking water to over 250,000 people and is the watershed for 65 rivers.

Organizers are looking for Ontario residents and companies to create and register recreational, corporate or elite teams to compete in the event. Many teams are formed by neighbours and friends in communities all across the Moraine. There are also opportunities to make a donation or participate in the sponsorship program.

This fun and exciting event has two races – the full relay and the half relay.

The Full Relay is an exhilarating 160-kilometre relay race, divided into 14 stages, including canoeing, biking and running legs. It is an amazing experience for Elite, Recreational and Corporate teams.

The route runs from Rice Lake in the east across forest trails and country roads to the finish line at Seneca College, King City. Teams range from 2 to 15 members, depending on how many racers choose to do multiple stages.

The Half Relay is the last 80 kilometres of the Full Relay, divided into 7 stages, including biking and running legs. This race is available to

Recreational and Corporate teams. The route runs from Purple Woods Conservation

Area in the east to the finish line at Seneca College, King City. Teams range from 1 to 7 members, depending on how many racers choose to do multiple stages.

The Oak Ridges Trail Association (ORTA) was formed in 1992. It is a volunteer-based charitable hiking organization with a mandate to build and maintain a public hiking trail system on the Oak Ridges Moraine, off-road where possible. Additionally our mandate charges us with the responsibility of protecting the integrity of the moraine through trail development, maintenance, and increased awareness. To those ends we offer guided hikes of all difficulties and lengths, weekdays and weekends.

Register today and participate in the annual Moraine Adventure Relay Race and support this great cause. Enjoy early bird registration up to April 30. To register a team, make a donation or to sponsor a part of the race, please go to http://www.oakridgestrail.org/adventure-relay/, call Michele at 905-833-6600 or

Jiffy Lube Oilers are playoff champions

April 15, 2019

In a wild game that saw all the action in the final three minutes and overtime, the Jiffy Lube Oilers emerged as the playoff champions in the Caledon Senior Hockey League.

Jiffy Lube, which advanced to Monday's final thanks to a tiebreaker after squeaking through the round-robin playoff, edged Heart Lake Insurance 3-2 in overtime at the Caledon East arena. It was a tough loss for Heart Lake, which went undefeated in the round-robin while Jiffy Lube was 3-2.

That concluded the playing portion of the CSHL season. The league will celebrate another good year with its annual banquet Friday, May 3 at Glen Eagle Golf Club, dancing to the sounds of New Hollywood.

Scott Drouillard was the overtime hero for Jiffy Lube when his shot somehow trickled through Heart Lake goaltender Pat DiFrancesco's pads for the winning goal. That ended a goaltending duel between DiFrancesco and Jiffy Lube's Larry Tyndall, who came in as an injury replacement in the round robin and backstopped the Grease Monkeys to the final.

It was quite a finish for Jiffy Lube, a team that lamented its terrible puck-luck all season long. But on this night, a couple of key bounces went their way to pull the championship out of a hat.

When the game wound down to the final three minutes of the third period the score was tied 1-1. By this point, Tyndall had kept the Oilers in the game despite five Heart Lake power plays.

Tim Sinclair, who was the driving force for Heart Lake, had the Insurance Boys goal while Jim Kutchera was the scorer for Jiffy Lube.

With two minutes and 21 seconds left in the third period, Sinclair scored his second goal of the game to give Heart Lake a 2-1 lead. Then Jiffy Lube pulled Tyndall for an extra skater but had to survive a close call to get to overtime.

Heart Lake's Bill Doherty, who set up Sinclair's first goal, managed to get a clear shot at the empty net. The puck slowly slid toward the empty net as the Oilers watched helplessly. At the last second the puck curled and hit the inside post. Somehow it bounced away from the goal line.

The Oilers took the rare lucky bounce and rushed down the ice. Victor Marrelli, the Oilers' leading scorer in both the regular season and the playoffs moved in on DiFrancesco and took a great backhand shot. The puck hit the far post but once again the hockey gods were with Jiffy Lube, as it slid across the goal line, hit the other post and just trickled ny, fabulous silent auction capped off by terrific dancing performances and lessons. We are so grateful to Hockley Valley Resort for their ongoing friendship and support.

"We are honoured to have shared the spotlight that night with Bethell Hospice, as the charities benefitting from this stellar evening out," said Kennedy. "The funds raised at this event will help us ensure that those reaching out for help from any of our many services will continue to receive it – and will support our mission to educate about the importance of healthy relationships in the ongoing struggle to end violence against women. Thank you, Hockley Valley Resort."

Jeannette Vanden Heuvel, executive director of Bethell Hospice Foundation discussed their relationship with the resort.

"Hockley Valley Resort has been a valued ally of Bethell Hospice Foundation for many years, and we are so pleased to have been a recipient of their generosity once again," said Vanden Heuvel. "Dinner & Dancing Date Night was a great event, and it was clear how much the guests enjoyed themselves. Thank you to everyone at Hockley Valley Resort for believing in the importance of Bethell Hospice in our community.

Ken Murray, general manager of Hockley Valley Resort was thrilled to raise more funds than they did last year. He said they try to change the theme up every year, and this year the attendees loved the theme.

"We had couples, friends and tables of girlfriends all participating in the Date Night theme, it was great," said Murrary. "We are proud to be handing over these much-needed funds to our two local charities, and we applaud them for what they do for our community."

We kept driving by this place and ended up buying it. It was a lot of work, we renovated the house in the back - it was a shack… low ceilings and short doorways – Gilles couldn't even fit in the place [laughs]. We gutted this building and added the extension to the back. It was supposed to be our stepping stone, but we got comfortable with the neighbourhood and our children – now three of them -- were settled into schools. Hard to believe this year will mark 20 years that we have been open.

How did you grow your business?

Adriana: We were new to the neighbourhood, didn't really have any connections and I had enjoyed my dealings with the theatre the past year. Volunteering has always been a big part of my life, so I just started joining various committees and supporting local organizations, the Orangeville Theatre, Peace Ranch, Headwaters Hospital …. We donated a lot of our services and food. You can pay a lot of money for print advertising or you could just get your food in front of people. It gave back both ways.

Gilles: And social media has changed things, too. There was no Facebook then – so you had to get out and network in person.

Adriana: When we opened here I was still wholesaling downtown Toronto with my baked goods for a few years. I would finish an order and Gilles would deliver it in the middle of the night. We were so busy back then doing wholesale, catering, our retail store and the growing family.

We worked seven days a week. Lucky for us, we love what we do and lived so close to work! We were also fortunate to meet many wonderful people who helped us with the kids along the way.

What gives you the most satisfaction about having a business in Caledon?

Gilles: It's a small neighbourhood; You become friends with your customers. We find people here to be very down to earth regardless of how affluent they are. People treat you well.

Adriana: We are very grateful. People are lovely. My job is always unique. When I can go to someone's farm and they are holding a family wedding on the site which has been in the family for generations, it's special. And there are so many fantastic venues in the area like that.

You are obviously very busy. How do you find the time to volunteer? Why is it important to you?

Adriana: I grew up in a "small" area within Toronto in little Italy, but we always gave back. It's how we were raised. It's part of the reason we came here to feel like we were part of a community again.

Gilles: my parents helped many people, part of our weekends growing up was always about giving back. Whatever you put out comes back to you.

How do you like working together?

Adriana: We have been married 29 years this May – which is a big accomplishment considering we work together [laughs].

Gilles: We spend so much time together it's more like a 50-year marriage [laughing].

Adriana: There's a lot of compromises; we complement each other well.

What's the best advice you can give about operating a business?

Gilles: Don't spend what you don't have. Keep it simple and grow slowly.

Adriana: Work hard, be dedicated and be passionate, but go to school, get proper training and do a business course. You have to know both aspects to be successful. Get to know your business. I took accounting, business, and wine courses. I did flowers in the beginning; my parents had a flower shop. Gilles is quite handy at fixing things, building and repairs, besides being an awesome chef!

Gilles: Do as much as you can yourself – paying someone else for every little thing costs too much.

What do you find most challenging about being in business?

Adriana: Definitely staffing. It's part of the reason we decided not to have a restaurant – you need experienced, reliable staff. It's not all about us, without a great extended team it is too challenging. I am very grateful for the staff that have helped us along the way.

Are you still growing the business? What does your next chapter look like?

Adriana: It depends on our family. It looks like our son may be interested in culinary. Keep it simple, sure, but I still look at properties or venues …. Not sure Gilles is onside with that [laughing and looking at Gilles].

Gilles: We do like to travel and have been fortunate do some when we can.

Adriana: We did make an offer on another place for a restaurant, but the timing didn't work out. Things happen for a reason – so many other great opportunities have come our way since that time. I'm so grateful and I'm learning to be content with that.

Gilles: We don't see changing much more than what we are doing.

We have been approached with restaurant opportunities, but it's a different lifestyle – it's unpredictable, food ordering is a challenge, it's difficult – you give up all your weekends and nights. I prefer the control of catering.

Adriana: I love baking, I talk about retiring and baking. My plate is pretty full so I can't do all the baking myself here anymore, but I still do the wedding cakes, and some of the fancier pastries. If I had the time I'd be baking a lot more and experimenting with new, healthier options. I would also love to empower children to learn to cook from farm to table.

What are your most memorable moments?

Gilles: There are lots.

Adriana: We did a wedding on a tree farm – the guests were in the barn, we were in a tent and there was a tornado close by, the tent was moving, things were flying, a massive tree came down a few feet from the tent… we couldn't believe it - the guests were oblivious to the conditions outside – but it passed and we were able to get it all cleaned up and everyone their meals. In catering the show must go on!

We'll never forget that.

Who knew that this type of business could be so dangerous!

one-minute left and send the game into overtime.

Then, one minute into overtime, Drouillard crossed the Heart Lake blue line and fired a shot at DiFrancesco, the CSHL's leading goaltender all season. Again, fortune smiled on Jiffy Lube and the puck just slid over the goal line for the win.

Drouillard finished with a goal and an assist while Marrelli had a goal and two helpers. John Pitsadiotis and Rob Ianno had single assists for Jiffy Lube.

In the bronze-medal game, the Grit Bagmen took a 3-2 decision from Yale Industrial Trucks.

2019 GMC SIERRA

The highly anticipated next generation light pickup truck

It is the next generation of this popular light duty pickup truck and the automotive world is taking notice.

THE FOURTH GENERATION 2019 GMC SIERRA 1500 is lighter and has improved fuel economy and overall performance.

Engineers have redesigned the Sierra to be all the truck you could ever want, and then some.

Beautifully sculpted on the outside, the bold GMC chrome font grille and bumper along with an aggressive front end design blend with smooth body contours and an aerodynamic silhouette to create one of the best looking pickups on the road.

One of the most talked about features of the new Sierra is the six-function MultiPro tailgate. This innovative features offers six distinct functions designed to improve loading, unloading, and allow easier access to the cargo box.

A standard corner step rear bumper allows for easy access and standard LED cargo bed lighting provides illumination when working after dark.

Inside, the next generation Sierra elevates your driving experience with comfortable seating that provides a commanding view of the area around you.

The cabin has been created with quality materials and all controls are well placed and within easy reach for the person behind the wheel. A leather wrapped steering wheel, chrome trim accents, and purposeful interior lighting add to the experience of taking the Sierra on the road.

Passengers will be surprised at how quiet the ride is. With new sound absorbing technology in the dash and carpet and inlaid, triple-sealed doors, outside noise is reduced to a bare minimum.

There is extra storage space in the rear compartment and fold-up rear seats provide plenty of extra cargo area when you need to transport bulky items rather than people.

The main console infotainment system puts you in control with a customizable multi-colour touch-screen display that you can pair with your Iphone.

When it comes to driver assist technology, the Sierra is loaded with available choices.

Driver assist functions include a standard Rear Vision Camera, and available Lane Change Alert with Side Blind Zone Alert, Lane Keep Assist with Lane Departure Warning, Low Speed Forward Automatic Braking, and Rear Cross Traffic Alert.

If you spend a lot of time pulling a trailer or boat, the available ProGrade Trailering System helps you get on your way safely.

The pre-departure checklist lets you know when the trailer is hitched and securely mounted, and gives you built in help that confirms you are ready to travel.

With a standard 5.3 L, EcoTec3 V8 engine and 8-speed transmission, the Sierra has the power and torque to meet your trailering needs.

With six standard airbags, you are surrounded with features designed to keep you and your passengers safe.

The standard StabiliTrak electronic stability control system with traction control helps your vehicle maximize both efficiency and stability on any road conditions.

The all new 2019 GMC Sierra was built to be rugged and durable while maximizing convenience and driver and passenger comfort.

Motoring Moment

SEBRING, FL, RACE ON MAR. 13/19

RESULTS - Qualified 3rd. Finished 6th. I started, teammate Michael Lewis finished the race.

HIGHLIGHTS - Best Qualifying for the new Veloster N TCR yet. 3rd on grid.

We ran as high as 2nd up to the pit stop half way through the race.

The team received a penalty for "assistance from behind the wall" during the pit stop. It was an innocent penalty but we had to serve a drive thru which dropped us from 3rd to 8th.

Michael drove back to 6th which is where we ended up. The car showed some strong pace throughout the race. The car handled the bumps extremely well and performed flawlessly throughout the event. It's such a nice car to drive!

Our sister car finished in 4th. After their 5th finish at Daytona they are second in the championship.

Michael and I have some ground to make up but we have the lion share of the season still in front of us and plenty can happen! We are confident we can get ourselves back in the hunt for the championship.

Our next race is early May at Mid Ohio.

Pickup Truck History

Country singer, Garth Brooks' song: "Ain't going down 'til the sun comes up... Going 'round the world in a pickup truck."

A PICKUP TRUCK IS A LIGHT DUTY TRUCK having an enclosed cab and an open cargo area with low sides and tailgate. Once a work tool with very few creature comforts, but in the 1950s consumers began purchasing pickups for lifestyle reasons rather than utilitarian reasons. By the 1990s less than 15 percent of owners reported use in work as the pickup truck's primary purpose.

Now in North America, the pickup is mostly used like a passenger car. Canadian sales of light vehicles rose by 4.6 per cent in 2017, cracking 2 million units for the first time, thanks to record strength in truck sales. Sales of light trucks rose by 8.7 per cent year-over-year to reach almost 1.4 million vehicles. However, passenger car sales slipped by 3.4 per cent last year to come in at 639,823. As of Dec. 5/17, the top 3 selling vehicles are (in order): Ford F-150; Chev Silverado 1500, & Ram 1500. Note: all trucks!

I'm guessing, the very first pickups, were built by handymen (Red Green?), who took a "retired" car, and cut the original 4 passenger body. Then, they made it a 2 passenger, and added a box.

In 1896, Gottlieb Daimler (now Mercedes Benz) invented the first pickup truck that he marketed as a horseless wagon with a whopping 4 horsepower, 2 cylinder (1.1 Litre) engine. Dubbed vehicle no. 42, it was advertised that the crude vehicle could carry up to 3300 pounds.

Most of the initial North American car manufactures, sub-contracted the bodies, to coach builders. The manufactures offered bare bone chassis, and the the customer could choose the pickup body.

During World War II, the U. S. government halted the production of privately owned pickup trucks. The "Big 3" (GM, Ford, & Chrysler) all built various vehicles for the war effort. Dodge designed a 6 wheel drive truck. Ford built several prototype 3/4-ton military vehicles, including this forward-control four-wheel-drive cargo truck. GM of Canada built Chev 3 ton, 4x2 trucks. They were used by the famous Long Range Desert Group in North Africa.

Car-like smooth-sided fenderless trucks were introduced, such as the Chevrolet Fleetside, and El Camino; the Dodge Sweptline; and Ford's Styleside, and Ranchero. Pickups began to feature comfort items like power options and air conditioning. Regular cabs trucks became more passenger oriented with the introduction of club cabs and crew cabs.

The US government's 1973 Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) policy set higher fuel economy requirements for cars than pickups. CAFE created a loophole for manufacturers, thus the promotion of the truck-based SUV. The gas guzzler tax, taxed fuel-inefficient cars while exempting pickup trucks, further distorted the market in favour of pickups.

In 1978, the fastest thing out of Detroit, wasn't a Corvette, Camaro, or Mustang. It was a Dodge pickup: The Lil' Red Express! They were powered by a 360 CID/5.9 Litre V8 with a 4 barrel carb. 225 horsepower.

MY OWN PICKUP TRUCK EXPERIENCES

As a kid, my late Grandparent's best friend, was in the roofing business. At his Washago, ON cottage, I recall his "Silver Moss" green, Mercury M-Series (Ford F-Series cousin) pickup. It had Twin I-Beam front suspension. It was probably a in-line 6 cylinder; "3 on the Tree" manual transmission, standard steering and brakes; metal dashboard; manual roll-up windows, and no radio. It did have (homemade?) racks over the box. It was a NO frills, work truck!

My parents bought a "compact"1969 Dodge Dart Swinger, with a Slant 6. They paid $2945. That year they could have bought a full-size pickup, for about the same amount. You can't do that today! The average sedan is $30,000, and the average pickup is $50 grand. Some are over $100k!

As a teen, I worked (part time) as a gas jockey. The Shell Oil garage owner had a yellow 1969 Chev C/10 step-side pick up. It was a 250 CID/4.0 Litre, inline 6. It was "plain-Jane," too. It had the power to do burn-outs! Now, it's rumoured that step-sides will make a comeback. Everything old...is new again...

In 2007, I bought my 1st pickup. It was a 2004 Dodge Dakota. I loved the quad cab's size! 2 years ago, I retired it. I bought a 2010 Chev Silverado. Good truck, but too big for my needs. Next time, I'll go smaller.

Last year, my son bought a huge 2015 Toyota Tundra Crewmax. Limo operators would envy that back seat!

My favourite looking pickup? 1949-1952 Chev/GMC 3100, in "Jupiter Green."

Really, pickups today, are really "luxury cars with a box/bed." They're not your Grandfather's pickup!

TIRE JUNCTION

Your one stop place for truck tires

As the warm weather arrives, truck enthusiasts are making sure they have the right rubber on their vehicles to ensure optimum performance on the road for the summer months.

Whether you use your truck as a daily driver or an off-road adventure vehicle, Amar Uppal at Tire Junction in Bolton can advise you on the right tires to meet your needs and driving conditions.

Choosing the right tire can make all the difference when it comes to safety on the road.

Tire Junction carries a full line of truck tires up to and including the 3500 series of heavy-duty pickup trucks.

Truck tires are inherently different from regular car tires. Built to withstand a heavier load, truck tires generally use a six to ten ply configuration compared to car tires which have a four to five ply construction.

Engineered to stand up to more rigorous use, truck tires have stronger sidewalls designed to support the load of a heavy cargo.

"We do quarter ton, half ton, up to 3500's," explained Mr. Uppal. "Trucks tires are specially made to be anywhere from a six ply up to a ten ply. There are all-terrain tires, highway tires, even mud terrain tire.

People who like all-terrain tires have a tendency to go off-road with their trucks. On highway tires the tread patterns are a lot closer so when you are at higher speeds they are a lot quieter. Truck tires can carry a higher payload and take more of a beating. The tread is deeper on the all-terrain tires. We carry all the major brands."

With the weather warming up, it is a busy time at Tire Junction with many drivers now switching back to summer tires. The shop carries a huge variety of tires for all vehicles and if they don't have a particular tire in stock, they can get it.

"The difference between summer tires and winter tires is the compound on a winter tire is softer – it grabs the snow better," Mr. Uppal explained. "Summer tires are designed for warmer weather. We install tires from a smaller 15-inch up to 22-inch tires. We carry a lot of different brands."

Tire Junction also carries custom truck rims so you can personalize your vehicle.

"You can come in and we'll show you the different makes and models and you can decide what you want. A lot people want a nice alloy, chrome, or polished rim to make their truck stand out."

The auto shop at Tire Junction is a full service facility that handles all types of repairs.

With a qualified and friendly staff, they can advise you on the best type of tire for your truck.

After being in the industry for almost 40 years, Mr. Uppal is an expert on tires for all vehicles and is knowledgeable about all tire brands and how they perform.

You can visit on-line at www.tire-junction.ca to see a list of services and brands of tires.

Visit the Tire Junction at 11221 Highway 50, at the intersection of Mayfield Rd. and Albion Vaughan Rd. in Bolton when you need service and see the great selection of tires for your truck or car.

R1T All-Electric Truck
Five-passenger pickup that delivers unmatched capability, efficiency, utility and performance.

RIVIAN
bets future on electric adventure vehicles

R1T All-Electric Truck
Five-passenger pickup that delivers unmatched capability, efficiency, utility and performance.

R1T All-Electric Truck Frunk

Is the future of adventure vehicles trending towards electric power?

Time will tell as Rivian, an American electric vehicle manufacturer, debuted its all-electric R1T pickup and R1S SUV on the automotive market recently.

Apparently retail giant Amazon has a lot faith in these new vehicles and has invested $700 million into the company.

Both vehicles were premiered at the the Los Angeles Auto Show in November of 2018.

Rivian was founded in 2009 and went through several name changes before settling on their current moniker.

Originally the company planned to build a car with gas mileage of up to 60 miles per gallon, or 3.92 litres per 100 km, but never produced the vehicle after announcing they were switching focus to autonomous electric vehicles in 2011.

Rivian relocated its headquarters from Florida to Michigan, then purchased a production ready manufacturing plant that was formerly owned by Mitsubishi.

The R1T is a five-passenger pickup truck. The R1S is a seven-passenger SUV.

It is claimed that the vehicles have a range of up to over 400 miles (708 km) on a full electric charge.

The battery is designed for fast charging with charging rates of up to 160 kW, which enables around 200 miles of range to be added in 30 minutes of charging.

Promising impressive performance both on and off-road, the company has released some figures that have caught the interest of auto enthusiasts.

Rivian vehicles feature a quad-motor system that delivers 147 kW with precise torque control to each wheel enabling active torque vectoring and maximum performance from high-speed cornering to low-speed rock crawling.

The R1T can go from 0-60 in three seconds and can hit 100 mph in less than seven seconds.

The company claims the powertrain and chassis combination allows for a tow rating of 11,000 lbs.

Designed with outdoor adventure in mind, the R1T was built to take advantage of extra space allowed by the smaller electric motors. A Gear Tunnel is located below the cab and extends across the width of the vehicle to allow for extra space for long items.

The foundation of the R1T and R1S is a skateboard type platform that packages the battery pack, drive units, suspension, braking and thermal system all below wheel height allowing for more space above for passengers and gear.

When it comes to technology, Rivian is focusing on autonomous driving. The new vehicles will com equipped with several features geared toward autonomous operation.

R1T All-Electric Truck Interior

Included is a 'level 3 hands-off wheel and eyes off road' capability.

Rivian is developing it's connected platform from scratch to allow full control over vehicle hardware and software,

A look at the exterior reveals both vehicles are nicely designed with smooth lines and a high clearance for off road all-weather driving.

Notable is the lack of a front grille. With no reason for a radiator and air flow, the front end of both vehicles has a smooth shape with uniquely styled front headlights.

Rivian is currently accepting pre-orders for these vehicles but they aren't on the road yet.

Deliveries are scheduled to being late in 2020.

Driver assist functions include Honda Lane Watch Blind Spot Display, Collision Mitigation Braking System, Forward Collision Warning, Lane Departure Warning, Road Departure Warning, Lane Keeping Assist, and Adaptive Cruise Control.

A remote engine starter is standard on all models.

When it comes to power, the Ridgeline has more than enough for both highway driving and those times where the pavement ends and the fun begins.

The standard 3.4 L, 24-valve, direct injection, SOHC, i-VTEC V6 engine puts out 280 horsepower with 262 lb.-ft of torque while maintaining maximum fuel economy. The powertrain is completed with a 6-speed automatic transmission.

That combination allows you to tow up to 5,000 lbs.

With fully independent front and rear suspension, driving on less than perfect road conditions allows the truck to get a better handle on the road for a smoother ride.

The Traction Management System lets you select between snow, sand, and mud modes to help you adapt to driving conditions.

The 2019 Honda Ridgeline mid-size pickup truck provides durability, convenience, and rugged capability while maintaining a refined and stylish exterior that looks as good at the work site as it does on any city street.

Tips for Light Truck Tire Shoppers

Are you in the market for new rubber to replace your worn light truck tires? If so, there's some critical information you should keep top of mind.

Foremost, remember that the ability to bear weight is the defining distinction when considering tires made for light trucks (LT). When conducting your tire research, keep your particular vehicle's weight and the load you're expecting it to carry - or haul – at the very forefront.

Michelin's fitment guide reminds users: "Sizing for light truck tires takes the performance requirements of the vehicle, and the tires, into account." Reading the sidewall markings of your tire is, therefore, a very good place to start. If the "LT" marking precedes the tire's size markings (e.g. LT235/70R16), then you should be looking for a replacement tire that also bears this marking, rather than a P-Metric marking (e.g. P235/70R16). In the latter instance, P stands for passenger.

P-metric tires are installed on vehicles primarily used to carry passengers including cars, station wagons, sport utility vehicles and even light duty pickup trucks. Their load capacity is based on an engineering formula which takes into account their physical size (the volume of space for air inside the tire) and the amount of air pressure (how tightly the air molecules are compressed). All P-metric sizes are based on the formula for load. Euro metric and P-metric tires in the same size (i.e. P215/65R16 and 215/65R16) are equivalent in their dimensions with just slight differences in their load capacity calculations and inflation pressure tables.

Light truck tires, on the other hand, have evolved along with the expanded applications of trucks and vans that have grown to be multi-purpose vehicles, which consumers use for work, for recreation or as passenger vehicles.

There are two primary light truck tire sizing systems: Light Truck Metric and Light Truck High Flotation. The first mirrors the P-Metric system for passenger tires. Light truck high flotation tires have evolved as lower aspect ratio tires became more popular on light trucks. The combination of lower aspect ratios and high flotation yielded better traction on sand and soft soil found in off-road situations. BFGoodrich Tires offers a helpful online FAQ with further details on how to read your sidewall at https://www.bfgoodrich.ca/en/faq-page.html.

The LT designation indicates that the tire is constructed to be more durable, generally with a tougher sidewall; and that the tire is suitable to be driven on a wider range of terrains, including rougher ones than those passenger tires normally travel. Road surface of where you expect to travel notably plays a significant factor in defining what you need from your LT tires to provide the ride comfort, resilience, mileage, and on-road mannerisms - such as silence - that you as a driver might prize most.

You should also validate your vehicle owner's manual to make sure that you're respecting the manufacturer's recommendations.

The BFGoodrich® All-Terrain T/A® KO2 tire hit the market with strong success in 2014 and has known some traction in Canada. Consumers using the same set of light truck tires both off and on the road as they highway drive for family purposes but need to accommodate off-road drives to work – or play – sites, may find this tire to be worth considering.

2020 JEEP GLADIATOR

From rugged reliability to awesome power

There's nothing quite as rugged as a Jeep. This iconic brand is known world wide by their shape alone and this year there is an exciting new entry in the Jeep line-up – the Gladiator.

This is the much anticipated new entry from Jeep that has been referred to as 100 per cent Jeep and 100 per cent truck.

The brand new 2020 Jeep Gladiator enters the automotive market as Jeep's first ever pickup truck.

Make no mistake about it, this truck comes with the legendary Jeep 4x4 capability to take you off the beaten path with the strength and room to take your toys with you.

The new Gladiator has the distinction of the being the only open-air pickup truck out there. For the ultimate open air freedom you can take off the top, fold down the windshield, and remove all four doors.

The Gladiator is available in three trim levels – the Sport S, the Overland, and the Rubicon.

The Sport S and the Overland come with standard 17-inch wheels while the Rubicon is equipped with massive 33-inch tires for any terrain and that provides an incredible 11.1 inches of ground clearance.

When you take the load less travelled, as Jeep owners are known to do, you can take along your bigger toys thanks to best-in-class towing and payload capacities.

The Gladiator can tow up to 7,650 lbs, and can handle a payload of up to 1,600 lbs.

You'll know you're in a Jeep when you take your place behind the wheel. As rugged as it is, the Jeep doesn't sacrifice comfort or technology.

With well designed wrap around seats the Gladiator is engineered to keep you comfortable even when you go off road.

With an 8.4-inch touchscreen with Apple CarPlay and Android Auto, and available Bluetooth, you can stay connected to the world – even when it seems you're a world away.

The all new 2020 Jeep Gladiator provides everything you expect in a Jeep with the convenience of a pickup truck.

2019 RAM 1500

IT'S NOT TOO OFTEN you see 'all new' when it comes to automotive design, but this year the 2019 RAM 1500 can make that claim as the all new version of the popular pickup truck makes its appearance.

The result is a rough and ready vehicle that has so impressed the automotive world it was named Mototrend's 2019 North American Truck of the Year.

Along with an updated exterior styling the Ram is 225 lbs. lighter than it's predecessor despite being a larger vehicle.

On the outside, there's no mistaking the RAM.

From it's distinctive and bold new front grille and chrome bumper to Best-in-Class aerodynamic design, the 2019 RAM commands any street or highway.

The exterior is finished with 18-inch aluminum wheels.

When it comes to power, the RAM comes with a standard 3.6 L, Pentastar V6, that produces 305 horsepower and is mated with an 8-speed automatic transmission.

You can step up to the 5.7 L, HEMI VVT V8 with 8-speed automatic transmission.

The new 2019 RAM is lighter, longer, and can tow and haul more payload both in the bed and while towing.

With a towing capacity of up to 12,750 lbs., and a maximum payload of up to 2,300 lbs., the RAM easily handles heavy and large loads.

A wider truck bed delivers a larger cargo bed volume and is easily accessible.

With six trim levels available – each with their own unique features - there is a truck that meets the needs of every driver.

Taking your place behind the wheel, you will experience a ride and comfort level like no other pickup on the road. With plenty of room and a wide cabin with well designed seating, you will always be comfortable – even on long road trips.

The interior has been designed with attention given to the smallest details highlighted with real wood and leather accents.

Passengers will enjoy the best-in-class rear seat leg room and rear seat ventilation.

When it comes to technology you will stay connected to the world though the main console which allows you to use your Iphone to listen to music, make calls, send and receive messages, and get directions from the Uconnect multimedia centre.

With the available 12-inch touchscreen, you have access to navigation and surround-view camera that uses strategically placed back-up cameras to heighten vehicle safety by providing a bird's eye view of your surroundings, assisting you while parking and reversing.

Available driver assist functions include Blind-Spot Monitoring, Forward Collision Warning, and Adaptive Cruise Control.

The all new 2019 RAM was named Truck of the Year for a good reason – it has it all.

The new RAM 1500 delivers capability, performance, and driver and passenger comfort like no other pickup truck on the road.
