Mayor Thompson confirms extension of "vital" GO Transit service in Bolton

Written By JULIA LLOYD

Caledon Mayor Allan Thompson confirmed on Wednesday evening that Metrolinx has agreed to a temporary extension of GO Transit services in Bolton.

In a release distributed to media shortly after 5 p.m. the Caledon Mayor, who made the announcement alongside Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones, stated the short-term reprieve would be well received by local residents, who were frantic after Metrolinx announced it would discontinue its 38 and 38A bus routes as of Saturday (June 29).

"This is a vitally important service in Caledon," said Mayor Thompson. "Whether for school, or business, to get to work or to a medical appointment, for many Caledon residents this is their only mode of transportation to and from the GTA."

He added, "We look forward to working with Metrolinx to find a long-term solution that helps us meet the needs of our residents."

Local MPP Jones was equally excited about the announcement.

"This is great news for Dufferin-Caledon and all those who rely on GO Transit out of Bolton to access the Metrolinx system. The two bus routes will provide relief for all residents, from students to seniors, during their daily commutes," Ms. Jones said.

It was revealed that Metrolinx would be providing additional details shortly regarding the exact timing and frequency of the routes.

Kevin Weatherbee withdraws from D-C nomination race

Written By MIKE BAKER

There was another dramatic twist in the seemingly never-ending saga surrounding the Dufferin-Caledon Conservative nomination last week when Kevin Weatherbee, the runner-up in the original vote held back in March and a perceived front-runner this time around, announced he was removing himself from consideration.

In a release to local Conservative Party members, Mr. Weatherbee noted he had come to the "immensely difficult decision" not to run during this second process due to several concerns he has with the new nomination, which the Citizen can confirm has been scheduled for July 31.

Reflecting on the past three months, Mr. Weatherbee maintained his belief that he is the "rightful winner" of the original nomination vote, where he received 468 votes from local Conservative members.

"Three months ago our party held a nomination race so that we, the local members of the Conservative Party in Dufferin-Caledon, could select our candidate for the upcoming fall federal election," Mr. Weatherbee wrote. "Despite Ottawa party officials deciding to schedule the vote right up against the March Break holiday, over 1,500 members came out and voted… I was extremely proud and humbled by the significant number of members who came out to support me personally in the race."

While the announced winner on the night, Harzadan Singh Khattra, was later disqualified by the National Candidate Selection Committee, Mr. Weatherbee has maintained the original nomination, ran and controlled by the Conservative's head office, should be respected and the "will of the voters" honoured.

"Dufferin-Caledon members voted in an election that the central party organized, planned, oversaw and directed. Though Harzadan Khattra received the most votes on March 19, Barb Shaughnessy appealed the result to the party. Based on the contents of Barb Shaughnessy's appeal, the party chose to disqualify Harzadan Khattra without any elaboration as to why," Mr. Weatherbee stated.

He added, "Since Harzadan Khattra was no longer eligible to be the candidate, of the three remaining eligible candidates I had the most votes, and thus I should by all rights be our party's candidate."

Following 49 days of silence, Conservative Party of Canada Executive Director Dustin Van Vugt announced, on June 13, that a new nomination would take place in Dufferin-Caledon. It was a move that caught most in the local riding off guard, with many expecting the Party to award the nomination to Mr. Weatherbee.

At a local board meeting held at Innis Glen Farm on June 17, Dave Dillon, Conservative Regional Organizer for Southwestern Ontario, confirmed the nomination would be open to new nominees, while those involved in the previous process would have to be re-approved should they wish to run again.

Barb Shaughnessy and Jeremy Williams have both confirmed to the Citizen they plan to seek the nomination once again, while Kyle Seeback, a former one-term Brampton MP, has declared his intention to run in what he calls his home riding.

Mr. Seeback, who also holds a seat on the Dufferin-Caledon Conservative Association board, was present at last week's meeting at Innis Glen Farm. There, he was involved in several votes relating to the scheduling of a new AGM and the formation of a new nomination committee. It was determined, by Mr. Dillon, that since Mr. Seeback was not yet a confirmed candidate, he wasn't required to declare a conflict of interest and recuse himself from voting.

While the vote over the nomination committee was, largely, unanimous, the vote relating to scheduling a new AGM was not. Mr. Seeback's vote ensured a motion to hold a quick AGM, sometime before July 17, failed 10 to 9. The primary purpose of the AGM is to select a new board. Eventually, the board voted in favour of holding off on scheduling the AGM until the Party has a confirmed candidate in the riding.

While Mr. Weatherbee made note of this in his withdrawal speech, he chose not to criticize Mr. Seeback, Mr. Dillon, or the board. When speaking to the Citizen early last week, Mr. Weatherbee did, however, admit his faith in the Party under its current leadership was wavering.

"It is completely disheartening when one candidate, who didn't run before, who appears to have everything ready and seemed to know the vote was going to come, has left the rest of us at a clear disadvantage," Mr. Weatherbee said. "As this process has gone on, every day, more and more, I doubt the ability of the party to handle this process."

After spending the best part of two years preparing himself and campaigning to replace retiring MP David Tilson, Mr. Weatherbee says he has come to peace with his decision to step away from the nomination. However, as a lifelong Conservative and former president of the local board, he indicated he will still be involved, in some way, in Dufferin-Caledon.

"I will continue to volunteer and be engaged around our amazing riding, and am excited to see what the future holds," Mr. Weatherbee said. "I am optimistic that regardless of what our differences may be, when we join together as friends and neighbours honestly, respectfully, and in the spirit of fairness, and strive to build better communities and a better, more fair nation that respects taxpayers and focuses on delivering real results for Canadians, there's nothing we can't accomplish."

A second Dufferin-Caledon Conservative nomination has been scheduled for July 31. The federal election will be held on Oct. 21.

Metrolinx to reconsider cancellation of two Bolton GO Transit bus routes

During Tuesday night's meeting of Caledon Council, Mayor Allan Thompson was hopeful of finding a solution that would see the 38 and 38A bus routes continue to operate from Bolton.

At that meeting, Caledon Council received a report from Dominic Pallotta, manager and project administrator at Go Transit, who said he spoke with Metrolinx and got them to revisit the cancelation and consider reduced service.

"I believe things are a little bit more encouraging today than they were two days ago," said Pallotta

The report showed detrimental numbers pertaining to the importance of the bus routes to Caledon residents.

"I conducted a survey a week ago and about 40 per cent of people who use the service are from Caledon," said Pallotta.

The survey revealed that 74 per cent of people from Caledon who use those bus routes, as of right now, have no alternative option if the routes are cancelled.

With almost half of the ridership on the 38 and 38A being Caledon residents, the cancelation would leave those residents stranded — especially if over half don't have another way of getting to their destination.

The survey revealed that, in Caledon and Bolton, residents own an average of two vehicles. Some people were asked about their alternative commute options and some said a car. But in Pallotta's report only 16 per cent of people considered car-pooling.

As well, he mentioned that if residents did choose to commute with the use of a car, it would affect the Town of Caledon's car traffic, which could become a concern down the road.

Many riders have been very loyal to the Metrolinx service. The report showed that 14.5 per cent of riders having been using GO Transit for over 10 years.

"Kind of unfortunate, a lot of them are a bit upset that some of that loyalty wasn't shared the other way," said Pallotta.

Caledon-based therapist joins Team Canada at Summer Universiade

Written By JULIA LLOYD

This summer one of Caledon's own athletic therapists, Andrea Prieur, was selected to serve as the chief therapist at the 30th World University Games, to be held in Naples, Italy next month.

Prieur is a certified athletic therapist and co-owner of Core Solutions Physio and Wellness, located in Caledon East and Schomberg. She lives in Caledon with her husband and three sons and is the head therapist for all varsity teams at York University in Toronto.

"This is a huge honour because only one person gets chosen out of not only thousands of certified athletic therapists, but also all of the sport physio people who are certified sport physiotherapists," said Prieur.

The games are being held in Italy, the country where they were initiated way back in 1959. The games are being held from July 2 to 14. Prieur left yesterday to set up the Canadian polyclinic and prepare the athletes for their upcoming competitions.

Both the medical and therapy teams are volunteer positiosn for the World University Games, however Prieur indicated it was an honour to even be considered by the organizing committee.

Prieur was chosen as chief athletic therapist because of her "amazing" resume. She is a member of the Canadian Athletic Therapists Association and was an athletic therapist at the last two summer Olympics, held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil in 2016 and London, England in 2012.

She has also been a volunteer for a number of other major sporting events, having held positions at the 1997 Pan Am Games, 2014 Commonwealth Games and the 2007, 2009 University Games.

Due to her volunteer experience, Prieur has travelled all over the world.

"You know what? Every location we go to is absolutely unique and has great experiences. So, you heard all the bad things about going to Rio in 2016? We didn't have one bad experience," she said.

Even in places like Turkey and Serbia, where the political climate has been volatile in recent years, the games are escalated to a higher level so that everyone enjoys the experience, explained Prieur.

"Everything about the people, the places we get to visit, the people we get to work with, and the game volunteers locally, they want you to have the best experience ever, so everyone's so willing to help, and they try to do the best they can no matter what sort of statute they are," said Prieur.

The athletes that get chosen applied to be on certain sport teams through an application process, or sometimes they will take a whole university team if they win a national or provincial title.

"The organizers do want across-Canada representation, so they do often host a larger sort of competition that people can apply, and you know, they'll actually try out for these teams," said Prieur.

> "Every location we go to is absolutely unique and has great experiences. So, you heard all the bad things about going to Rio in 2016? We didn't have one bad experience.
>
> Andrea Prieur
> Certified Athletic Therapist

As a young kid, Prieur was constantly involved in sports like hockey, baseball and basketball.

One year she tore the ACL ligament in her knee. She was inspired by one of the people who helped her get through athletic rehab, and was instrumental in getting her back into sport.

When she graduated high school, Prieur went to the University of Ottawa for her undergrad in kinesiology, which is the study of the mechanic of body movements.

After her undergrad she then went to get her certificate in athletic therapy at York University.

York University and Sheridan College are the only two accredited institutions for athletic therapy in Ontario.

Prieur will serve as the athletic therapist for 12 different Canadian teams at the 30th iteration of the World University Games. For more information, visit www.fisu.net.

Mount Wolfe Farms kicks off summer with first 'Solabration'

Written By KIRA WRONSKA DORWARD

A CAUSE FOR SOLABRATION: More than a dozen people were on hand to celebrate Mount Wolfe Farm's first ever summer Solabration. The idea for the event came from UK ecologist-turned Caledon resident Jim Jones, who has a long history with Celtic traditions and druidism. Operations at the farm are now in full flow, with produce available for purchase every Saturday at the Bolton Farmer's Market.

This year's summer "Solabration" marked the first recognition of the summer equinox at Mount Wolfe Farms, especially grateful this year to have reached the milestone.

It seems there were many causes for celebration aside from the longest day of the year. It was also a prelude to Mount Wolfe's Open Farm Day, as well as being a day full of beautiful sunshine in which to celebrate the earth's tilt towards the sun, after a wet and disappointing spring.

"This year we have experienced, along with everyone else in the Caledon area, a very cold, wet, ad late coming spring" said Sheilagh Crandall, mother of Farm Manager Sarah Dolamore, who also lives on the farm. "And so, though we should feel ensconced in the summer season, it's just starting to feel like summer today. Luckily, our fields are high and dry, and so we haven't had that soggy weather that many of the farmers in the lowlands have experienced."

The idea for the solstice celebration came from UK ecologist-turned Caledon resident Jim Jones, who has a long history with Celtic traditions and druidism. He thought it would be an excellent way to celebrate the start of the new seasons. Mount Wolfe had their first organized event last December 21st for the winter equinox.

For the event that took place on Friday June 21, friends and the Crandall clan gathered at the farm, bringing potluck and folk tales from different traditions to share amongst themselves around the traditional bonfire.

Toronto resident Martin Showell made the trip up to Caledon to share some of his research into the original inhabitants of the land, the Mississauga's of the New Credit and other groups. As well as the summer solstice, June 21 was also National Indigenous Day, the values of which hold particular significance for the people at Mount Wolfe.

"I love the farm," said Showell. "I love what they're doing here…very in tune with First Nation's people. Nurturing Mother Earth so she can nurture us. The community has supported the farm [and] it's time we start changing the way we are doing things and acknowledge the people who were here before this."

In that spirit, Uschi Sinn from Aurora brought strawberries to share, and related the symbolism behind strawberries in Ojibwe culture, something she became interested in after her Ojibwe grandson was adopted into the family from foster care. In Ojibwe culture, the heart shaped berry is linked to healers and thinkers. Only a herbalist gifted with and keeping up a high standard of inner power could expect the plant being to reveal his own healing power; only then the plant would allow the herbalist to confer his or her inner curative power upon the plant itself.

Palgrave resident Diana Janosik-Wronski made and brought the traditional Latvian Janis Day cheese and bread. The cheese, made only on this day in Latvian culture, is a round shape and symbolizes the sun. The saffron bread kringle is made for any kind of celebration in Latvia.

In Latvian tradition, Janis Day is the biggest celebration of the year. The roots of this go back to a time before Christianization of the Baltic in the thirteenth century, when paganism had (and still does have) strong roots with the indigenous peoples of Livonia (Latvia).

Now that summer has officially begun, Mount Wolfe Farm is in full swing of operations. They will be selling their produce at the Bolton Farmer's Market every Saturday beginning at 8 a.m., as well as showcasing workshops from the Ontario Rural Skills Network, including spoon carving demonstrations.

Workshops on scything and blacksmithing are also coming up. More information about the Ontario Rural Skills Workshop can be found by contacting info@ontariorural-skillsnetwork.com, or calling 647-217-5530. Mount Wolfe will also have a farm stall presence later in the summer at the Davis Sunflower Festival.

Farm Manager Sarah Dolamore also encourages the public to volunteer at the farm to learn skills, and can be contacted at 519-400-9213 or info@mountwolfefarm.com.

As for fall festivities, Fall Farm Fest will be taking place again this year to celebrate the harvest, and will include farm-related activities and demonstrations. "It's an opportunity to spend a beautiful few hours in the countryside," sums up Dolamore.

Second annual Celebrate Your Awesome a hit with local community

Written By BRIAN LOCKHART

It was all about being inclusive at the Celebrate Your Awesome event held on Mill Street in Orangeville last Saturday, June 22.

The street was shut down for this annual festival that featured a variety of bands, vendors, entertainment, and more than a few colourfully dressed people.

The event also featured two drag shows later in the day.

Celebrate Your Awesome is the brainchild of organizer Jim Waddington, who put together a committee a couple of years ago when he thought it was time Orangeville needed this type of event.

He approached several local people and they all agreed to get on board and make it happen.

"Three years ago my brain said it's time to have one of these, so I carefully selected a committee," Mr. Waddington explained. "It's a committee of eight people and they're very very good. They put this together and I just kind of go 'awesome.' We started it two years ago and first sat down at the Mill Street Pub, and I said 'guys, this is why I assemble you here. I would like to do this. Are you in?' And they said 'definitely. When do we start?'"

For now, the event fits nicely onto Mill Street – a street that is routinely used for public events as it is convenient and doesn't restrict traffic flow when it is closed off. If the event continues to grow, they may have to move to a larger area.

"The full name is Celebrate Your Awesome, Pride and Diversity Day in Dufferin," Mr. Waddington explained. "Today is to make it an inclusive event where all people, no matter what their race, colour, sexual orientation – we're here to celebrate. We are highlighting pride of course. We are building a community of acceptance. And as opposed to a parade, we opted to have an actual festival. Parades are an hour or two long, then everyone goes to a party somewhere. This starts at 1:00 p.m and goes right through to 10:00 p.m. We have two drag shows today. The one at 5:00 p.m. is more family oriented."

The event lived up to its name and drew a crowd of diverse people from groups of friends in colourful clothing to families with strollers.

$36 million Bolton Camp on schedule, will be 'regional hub' for community

Written By JULIA LLOYD

Residents of Dufferin-Caledon will soon begin to see Bolton Camp transform into the dream project envisioned for the town.

"Imagine a town square where you come together with your neighbours, your community members, to share experiences that range in everything from farmers markets to art and culture enterprises or activities to local sporting events," said Daryl Gray, director, education and training at Toronto Region Conservation Authority (TRCA).

On Tues. June 25, Gray delivered an update to Council members that ensured the renewal of the land, as well as an update on the ongoing construction to the re-envisioned Bolton Camp.

In 2011, TRCA purchased the property and began building on the existing cultural landscape and developing a plan to re-purpose the site as an outdoor community hub.

"Engaging community members in activities that advance their own health and wellness, bring them together, start to address the notion of building better communities and giving you, as well as this municipality, a place to come together and share experiences," said Gray.

There are three main campuses to the new Bolton Camp. The first one is the sports and recreation area, which will be centered around the baseball diamond. Up by the upper camp to the right side is the arts and culture complex, and lastly a social innovative centre, which is centered around the old dining facility.

"One of the things the Town is very excited for is the pool," said regional coun. Annette Groves. "Is there a final date for when that will be completed?"

Gray confirmed with Council that the pool is scheduled to open in 2021.

Work carried out at the site right now, Gray says, is mostly structural. The water and wastewater is going to be installed in the next eight months with support from the Region of Peel.

"We have applications for the Town here for some of the work that we're planning on doing around the new entrance, as well as the bridge, the roads and parking lot," explained Gray. "Those are all the key infrastructure pieces that will enable the future of program involvement on the site."

Right now the project is in phase one, "site servicing." Phase two "the hub," is where the baseball diamond is and where the pool will be. Phase three "the hive," is the construction of the dining hall, cookery and pop-up spaces. And phase four, "the commons," will consist of the arts and culture facility and the Blue Sky café.

The cost of the total project is roughly $36.6 million, however it is being partially funded by the Region of Peel, the provincial and federal governments, along with funding from TRCA.

The Jays Care Foundation funded the baseball diamond for accessible baseball for all. And the project was just given $1 million from the Canadian Tire Jump Start Program.

Bolton Camp has already had some great success stories, starting with the baseball program that has many kids enrolled already and is a big hit for community members.

Girls Can Too, is the first program that they developed on-site, starting in 2014 with high school students from Peel Region. The initiative has helped to break barriers for young women, who previously didn't consider volunteering in the construction industry. The program has helped to build confidence by working with women on site cleanup, the restoration of buildings and habitat restoration,

The final program that has been successful is the Indigenous Youth Program. That particular initiative is focused on First Nation communities to help Indigenous youth find employment in the environment sector. The program has seen those involved participate in designing elements of Bolton Camp that reflect their particular communities.

The ultimate goal for the project, according to Gray, is to make a completely accessible and diverse community space for Dufferin-Caledon.

Caledon East and District Historical Society June Meeting: "When Women Won Back the Vote"
Time: Wednesday, 26 June 2019 from 19:30-21:00
Location: St. James Anglican Church, Caledon East
6025 Old Church Road, Caledon East, Ontario L7C 1H8
In the role of the suffragette, Pauline Grondin will speak to you about the history of womens' votes in the past and the suffragettes' determination to embrace the notion of voting rights for wives and mothers in the future.
In 1809 an eighty year old widow in Quebec was the first woman of record to cast a vote. There were others throughout the early years of Canada who cast ballots before it was declared a crime to do so in 1851.
With their dignity and respect in peril the suffragettes continued the fight together and eventually won back the vote for women.
With the creation of the Toronto Women's Literacy Club in 1876, later to become the Women's Suffrage Society in 1883, the women rallied their forces together to embrace the notion of voting rights to better fulfil women's social roles as wives and mothers.
Members and students, free. Visitors- $5.

Enjoy an evening outside dabbling in watercolours with Caledon Public Library (CPL) during their program, En Plein Air, on Friday, June 21, 7 – 9 p.m. at Albion Hills Community Farm, 16555 Humber Station Road in Caledon East.
For ages 18 plus, artist and writer, Shelly Ives-Sargent will be guiding participants through a watercolour painting, teaching tips and tricks along the way. Registration is required with a $25 fee per person. Painting materials will be provided. The workshop will take place rain or shine as there is an indoor facility onsite.
"Watercolour painting offers so many opportunities for creative self-expression. Sign up for this relaxed watercolour workshop with Caledon Public Library and you will get a chance to review a few techniques before choosing your subject and settling in to explore your creative side," said Shelly Ives-Sargent.
Shelly is a longtime area resident who works for a Caledon non-profit agency dedicated to strengthening families. She is happiest when being creative and strives to live a green life, shop and eat locally, and support those who support others in her community.
Register today at your local branch or at caledon.library.on.ca for this 19th-centruy French style of painting outdoors in the open air!

Giant Hogweed: Be Careful!

Giant Hogweed is an invasive plant that has been found in many parts of Ontario. If sap touches skin or eyes, it could have harmful health effects.

WHAT DOES IT LOOK LIKE?

Giant Hogweed looks similar to cow parsnip or queen anne's lace and can be about 4.5 to 6 meters tall. The plant has hollow stems with dark reddish-purple splotches and coarse white hair, leaves as wide as 1.5 meters with hairs on the underside, flattened oval shaped fruit, and small white flowers in the summer.

WHAT SHOULD I DO IF I COME IN CONTACT WITH IT?

If clear watery sap from the plant's stem or hair touches your skin or eyes:

- Wash the affected areas immediately
- Avoid touching your eyes
- Stay out of the sun for at least 48 hours
- Seek medical attention

WHAT SHOULD YOU DO IF YOU FIND HOGWEED ON YOUR PROPERTY?

Property owners are responsible for the removal of giant hogweed on private property. It is recommended that you hire a lawn care professional to remove it. If you do decide to remove the plant yourself, contact the Region of Peel at 905.791.9499 or visit peelregion.ca to obtain information about the safe removal and disposal.

WHAT SHOULD YOU DO IF YOU FIND HOGWEED ON PUBLIC PROPERTY?

If you spot hogweed on public property (a conservation area, along a highway or roadway), please contact Service Caledon at 905.584.2272 x.7750 or info@caledon.ca.

For more information about hogweed, visit the Ontario Invasive Plant Council ontarioinvasiveplants.ca or call 705.741.5400.

Final Property Taxes Due

Pay by July 4 and September 5 to avoid late payment charges

DON'T HAVE YOUR BILL?

Final property tax bills have been mailed. If you haven't received yours, please call us at 905.584.2272 x.7750. Failure to receive a tax bill does not excuse a taxpayer from responsibility for payment nor relieve the taxpayer from liability to pay penalties and interest.

DO YOU OWN A NEWLY BUILT HOME?

Visit caledon.ca/tax for information on "supplementary" tax bills for new homes.

MISS THE DEADLINE?

Late payment charges are applied one day following the due date and on the first day of each following month while property taxes are outstanding.

Widening Driveways

Your driveway consists of all the hard and level surfaces on your property that can be parked on by a motor vehicle. This includes paved walkways, interlocking brick or concrete borders and curbs. There are restrictions on how wide your driveway can be based on the size of your property. These restrictions exist for several reasons: ensure proper drainage, keep appropriate ratio between permeable and impermeable surfaces, and maintain an appropriate community standard.

If you wish to widen your driveway in excess of the permitted width, you must first contact the Town as a minor variance may be required. A permit may also be required if you are cutting the curb or widening the boulevard portion of your driveway. The boulevard is the land located between the road and the sidewalk. Keep in mind that if you alter the grade of your property for any reason and it has a negative effect on your neighbour's property, you may be held responsible.

Please contact the Town if you have any questions about the permitted width of your driveway by phone at 905.584.2272 or by email to zoning@caledon.ca.

Canada Day Fireworks

Town of Caledon Fire & Emergency Services would like to remind homeowners about their responsibilities for setting off fireworks so that the celebration can be enjoyed safely by everyone.

Please note: The Town strictly prohibits fireworks on public property (parks, roads, sidewalks). On private property, however, fireworks may be set off -- but only on Canada Day. Discharging fireworks on any other day contravenes our by-laws and is subject to a fine.

Be Safe!

- Keep sparklers away from children.
- Appoint a responsible person to be in charge.
- Carefully read and follow the label directions on fireworks packaging.
- Always keep a water hose or pail of water close by when discharging fireworks.
- Discharge fireworks well away from buildings, trees and dry grass.
- Keep onlookers a safe distance away.
- Light only one firework at a time and only when they are on the ground. Never try to light a firework in your hand or relight dud fireworks.
- If someone gets burned, run cool water over the wound for three to five minutes and seek medical attention if necessary.
- Watch children carefully and always be vigilant.

Canada Day (July 1) Holiday Closures

The following is a list of facility closures:

- All libraries
- All recreation facilities
- Animal Shelter
- POA Court
- Town Hall
- Fire & Emergency Services administration office

Backyard Chickens

In Caledon chickens can be kept in residential areas. Before you cross that road remember:

- They're not pets AND they require a lot of work to feed, water and clean up after. Yes, they produce manure and, well, that stuff not only smells, it has to be got rid of properly.
- Roosters aren't allowed (it's a girls-only club). But even so the hens can be noisy.
- If you think housing prices are expensive, a spacious chicken coop and enclosed run-in area with proper setbacks from your neighbour isn't cheap either.
- They can attract predators (raccoons, hawks, skunks, foxes). You may have to call the vet, too, as they can get sick.
- You cannot slaughter or euthanize hens on a residential property, either. They must be disposed of by a veterinarian or a licensed deadstock operator.
- And if they aren't properly cared for, the Town can investigate and take action accordingly.

With all this in mind our by-law is pretty strict about what's required. We want to make sure the hens are well cared for, your neighbours are respected and public health is protected.

If you have questions or concerns call Animal Services at 905.584.2272 x.4698, email us at animal.services@caledon.ca or visit caledon.ca/hens.

Husky Injection Molding Systems kicks off summer with annual BBQ

Written By JULIA LLOYD

Canadian Olympic figure skating medalist Joannie Rochette was in Bolton on June 20 to help celebrate the Husky Injection Molding Systems Ltd., annual summer barbeque.

"This annual event helps celebrate and thank our employees for all their hard work through out the year," said Allison Karavos, marketing and communications at Husky.

Husky is a worldwide company and is lead supplier of injection molding equipment and services to the plastics industry, according to the company website. The company's range of equipment includes machines, molds, hot runners, auxiliaries and integrated systems. They also provide added service, such as preform development, factory planning, and system integration and complete asset management.

The barbeque took place between noon and 1 p.m. with a massive all-you-can-eat barbeque, featuring BBQ short ribs, halal meat, naan and many different types of salads.

Everything was set up on Husky 's campus and featured locally sourced food from Sodexo, a food company that has catered in Husky's cafeterias for the last 22 years.

Environmental Health and Safety coordinator Karen Brar has been working at the main Husky campus in Caledon for the last 18 years.

"My coworkers and I look forward to this event every year," said Brar.

The event started as an employee appreciation and eventually grew into a bigger celebration with music and special Canadian guests, such as Joannie Rochette and Rick Hanson (the special guest in 2018), explained Sheryl Briggs, manager at Sodexo, Husky's food service.

Briggs has been an employee at Husky for 25 years and still loves her job as much as she did when she first started.

"It is such a big campus, the BBQ helps get people together who don't normally see each other on a day to day basis," said Briggs. "And, to eat good food. I run the food service and it is the best food service around."

Kerri Delmedico, wellness co-ordinator at Husky, said there are five main buildings and 1,196 full-time employees on this campus.

The main Husky campus is located here in Caledon. A Canadian company, the firm also boasts three international campuses, with one each in the Vermont, United States, Luxembourg and Shanghai, China.

Immortality could be within our grasp

by Mark Pavilons

"Surely God would not have created such a being as man, with an ability to grasp the infinite, to exist only for a day! No, no, man was made for immortality."
Abraham Lincoln

Human beings have pondered immortality since our brains were capable of deep thoughts.

The band Queen asked the question "who wants to live forever ... when love must die."

Stephen King espoused that each life "makes its own imitation of immortality."

Of course, many religions indicate that we will have everlasting life after our time here on earth is over.

Death, according to Peter Pan, will be "an awfully big adventure."

For centuries, humans have been trying to prolong life and cheat death. Today, modern medicine has advanced to the point where our lifespans have increased and living upwards of 120 may very well be commonplace within the next decade.

Since we can't cheat death or prevent the inevitable just yet, how do we achieve a bit of immortality? Well, we may just be able to maintain our essence, again thanks to modern technology.

There have been numerous science fiction tales centred around uploading a person's consciousness into a computer, android or similar device. Okay, floating around the memory core of a laptop may not be the ideal situation, but if our "soul" is saved to the desktop of everlasting life, won't that do?

Okay, I'm taking a "giant leap for mankind" here, or maybe not.

The big trick is trying to condense our massive brain power into something more manageable.

Our brains contain close to 90 billion neurons and we have more synapse connections than stars in the Milky Way. It's not just our brain power and capacity, but our lump of fatty tissue is always changing, making new connections and learning every second of every day. Unlike our computers, there does not seem to be a maximum capacity for our brains.

Nevertheless scientists believe it's theoretically possible to upload and download our memories. We've taken theory to reality countless times over our history. Air travel was considered crazy 100 years ago and space travel was considered fantasy just 60 years ago. Our smart phones are only 10 years old and only a few years ago, electric cars were still on the drawing board.

The practical applications are limitless. Putting our immortality aside, think about giving vivid memories, dreams and experiences to those in vegetative states. What about transferring life experiences to young, bright university students? How about uploading wisdom and common sense to every politician around the globe? Could everyone become a musical virtuoso with the flick of a switch?

Why stop there? What if we could connect every human brain on the planet? Okay, this Internet of the human brain concept may seem a bit far-fetched, but I am an eternal optimist.

Back to Honest Abe's quote. Why do we have such massive, complicated brains if we don't use them? Is it part of a yet-unknown evolutionary process? Is it to prepare us for the possibilities? Are there secrets hidden in our brains that will one day become activated when the time is right?

I suppose in order to "evolve" and one day reach immortality, we all have to agree on a few things. And one of them is to identify just what our consciousness is. Can you explain it to someone if they asked you? Countless PhDs have spent their lives trying to answer this one.

It's really all that we are, and includes everything from tip to toe – our knowledge, emotions, senses, sights, sounds, tastes, how beach sand feels between our toes and the smell of sour milk. It's the good and the bad, from belly button lint to marriage and raising children. It's the way we sneeze and laugh.

According to David Chalmers in his 1994 paper, the "hard problem" is finding out how consciousness occurs in the right arrangement of brain matter. It's sort of like this: a physics genius may know every equation of how mass and gravity interacts, but we don't know why.

But lovable TV character Sheldon Cooper was on to something because to understand the "whys" we have to have a grasp on relativity, quantum mechanics and string theory.

Maybe humans aren't smart enough. But aren't our brains immensely capable?

Solving the whole "consciousness" thingy requires that we separate ourselves, stand back and take an objective approach. But we can't.

Perhaps we'll just leave all that up to the legal experts hired to sort out the whole "transfer of consciousness" contracts of the future.

Just how far off are we?

A new company called Humai hopes transfer people's consciousness into a new, artificial body. The company's CEO says his team will resurrect their first human within 30 years.

"We're using artificial intelligence and nanotechnology to store data of conversational styles, behavioural patterns, thought processes and information about how your body functions from the inside-out.

"This data will be coded into multiple sensor technologies, which will be built into an artificial body with the brain of a deceased human. Using cloning technology, we will restore the brain as it matures."

Can you imagine putting your brain into another container, giving you the freedom to life another lifetime? Heck, I could use a body upgrade!

There are skeptics, who say the technology to extract thoughts and ideas out of an organ made of living tissue is nowhere near anything we have yet.

Notice the word "yet." Hope and optimism are so human that I pray these qualities find themselves in our immortal lives.

Hope to see you on the other side one day!

Editorial

Was it the mayors or the polls?

WHAT WAS IT that caused Premier Doug Ford to announce late last month that the government is reversing its decision to make retroactive funding cuts on municipal public health, ground ambulance and child care programs?

Was it really the widespread opposition to those cuts, particularly by the province's mayors, or was it more likely some recent opinion polls, one of which showed Ontario's leaderless Liberals having almost as much support today as the 40.5 per cent that propelled the Progressive Conservatives into a massive majority of seats in the legislature. That poll put Liberal support at about 39 per cent, with the New Democrats more popular than the governing Tories and the Green Party at 11 per cent.

Another poll showed that Mr. Ford's favourability rating had fallen below that of former premier Kathleen Wynne's at the end of her tenure, while Liberal voters say that John Tory was their preferred choice to lead the Ontario Liberal Party. (A Tory leading the Grits? Really!)

The latter results came from polling by Mainstreet Research involving 996 Ontarians between May 21 and 22.

"More and more Ontarians are turning away from Doug Ford as his support is collapsing," said Quito Maggi, President and CEO of Mainstreet Research. "We have never seen an imcumbent premier reach these depths in popular opinion with barely a year into his mandate."

Premier Ford had a net favourability rating of –53.5 percent. By comparison, Ms. Wynne's net favourability rating stood at –35.3 percent on April 30th, 2018. All the other party leaders fared much better. NDP leader Andrea Horwath's net rating was +20.3 percent, interim Liberal leader John Fraser's was +7.4 percent, and Green Party leader Mike Schreiner has a net rating of +11.4 percent.

The premier and Municipal Affairs Minister Steve Clark stated on May 27 that they had spoken to mayors across Ontario and came to the conclusion that the province should maintain funding for this year.

"Every mayor I talked to said they can find savings, so that's the good news, but they said they needed more runway," Mr. Ford said. "We're willing to work with them, give them more runway, and this will be a win-win for the taxpayers across Ontario."

Commenting on the provincial announcement, Mayor Tory said that he appreciated the challenges the government faces in getting its budget deficit under control. "However, this must be done in a prudent, collaborative manner that does not impact the vital services that people in Toronto rely on each and every day. This can only be done if we work together."

The mayors had argued that it was profoundly unfair to expect them to find retroactive savings after their annual budgets had already been passed.

Asked if the poor polling numbers had prompted his change of heart, Mr. Ford said he had been up and down in the polls before and voters would have a clear choice in the next provincial election (in 1922).

In the circumstances, it will be interesting to see whether all or most of the funding cuts will be imposed next year, particularly when it becomes obvious that in most cases the municipalities will be forced to raise property taxes to compensate for the loss of provincial grants.

And if that is indeed the case, who can say that higher property taxes are somehow preferable to higher provincial taxes on large corporations and wealthy individuals?

As we see it, the big problem facing Ford & Co. is that they cling to a belief that their policies are favoured by most of the electorate.

The reality is that when it comes to the climate change, health care and social services, all three opposition parties, supported by six of 10 voters, have similar policies and are thus critical of the Tories' platform.

Engage Canada, aka Enrage Canada

As a business owner for the past 38 years, the last thing I will ever do, because it will end any and all chances of getting the client I am prospecting to sign up with me, is to be critical of the competition.

It is low, unprofessional, unethical, and just wrong. If I think my company is that good, I have to portray that confidence to any potential client, tell them why they should sign me up, not be an armchair quarterback and critique. And, as I see these very aggressive Fear Mongering adds on TV by someone called 'Engage Canada', which I suspect is another way of spelling NDP.

I will not call the posted number because I know I will then get calls from them regularly. If Engage Canada thinks Andrew Sheer is on the wrong track, propose a better one and then identify yourself. Throwing anyone under the buss with no alternatives is very low and unprofessional. And that group behind it will never get my vote. NEVER !

Ethiopia: Abiy the Lucky

GWYNNE DYER
OUR WORLD TODAY

Ethiopia's Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed is a very lucky man. He has survived three attempts to kill or overthrow him in the past year.

Last June he escaped unhurt in a grenade attack that killed one and wounded scores at a political rally. In October his office in the capital, Addis Ababa, was surrounded by angry soldiers who threatened to kill him over low pay, but he talked them down. And last Saturday he emerged unscathed from an attempted military coup.

It was a very serious attempt. In the capital, General Se'are Mekonnen was shot dead by his own bodyguard, as was another general who was visiting his home. Abiy had made Se'are the chief of staff of the Ethiopian army, a controversial appointment, only a year ago.

At the same time another of Abiy's appointees, Ambachew Mekonnen, the governor of the key Amhara region, was murdered together with his top adviser in the region's capital, Bahir Dar. It was clearly a quite broad plot, but its coordination must have been off. Police are still rounding up suspected plotters, and Abiy Ahmed was still prime minister on Monday.

That is a very good thing, because Abiy Ahmed is Ethiopia's best chance of breaking the cycle of tyrannies that has blighted its modern history. It is Africa's second-biggest country (102 million people) and one of the world's fastest-growing economies, but its politics has been cursed.

In the past century it has gone from a medieval monarchy to rule by foreign fascists (it was conquered by Mussolini's Italy in the 1930s), and then back to an only slightly less medieval tyranny for another thirty years – until a Marxist-led military coup in 1974.

The 'Derg' junta murdered the emperor and half a million other Ethiopians – mostly the better educated ones – in a 'Red Terror' that fell short of the Khmer Rouge's 'killing fields', but not by much. Then, after almost two decades, the Soviet Union collapsed, the foreign aid to the Communists stopped, and the Reds were overthrown in their turn in 1991.

The victor that time was a coalition of ethnic rebel groups, militarised and brutalised by a long guerilla war against the Derg, who slid quickly into the seats of power and remained there comfortably until last year. The political killings declined, but the tyranny they protected did not – until suddenly, last year, they handed the whole mess over to Abiy Ahmed.

They did so because the mess was getting out of hand. Ethiopia is a very complicated country: four major ethnic groups, all of which have fought each other in the course of the country's long history, and a litter of smaller ethnic groups as well. The country is also divided between a Christian majority and a big Muslim minority.

To make matters worse, one of the larger et

Abiy is certainly a 'child of the Party', which he joined at 15, but he is a reformer who can be all things to all people. His father was Muslim, his mother was Christian. As an Oromo, he comes from the lowest rungs of the Ethiopian ethnic pecking order. (No Oromo has ever held such high office before.) He is fluent in Afaan Oromo, Amharic, Tigrinya and English. And he is a very modern man.

He knew he had to move fast, so he immediately ended the state of emergency and changed almost all the senior military commanders. He appointed a cabinet that was half-female, plus women as president and as head of the Supreme Court.

He released thousands of political prisoners. He freed the media, made the leader of an opposition party head of the Electoral Board, and put her in charge of organising free elections in 2020.

He made peace and re-opened the border with Eritrea after 20 years of hot and cold war. He has done pretty well everything he could think of, and he did it in little over a year. And yet he is still in a very precarious position

.It could not be otherwise. He is trying to free a big, complex, traumatised country from a century of dreadful history, and the odds, of course, are against him.

But he's not down yet.

When neighbourhood's watch

SHERALYN ROMAN
TALK CALEDON

You've seen the signs, posted near the entrance of a community – a watchful eye (or groups of eyes and/or people) with an inclusive, "warm and friendly" sounding message stating you are now entering "A Neighbourhood Watch Community." It's supposed to make you feel secure. Like "back in the day" when neighbours watched out for one another because it was the right thing to do. Don't get me wrong, it still is. But what happens when neighborhoods watch too much? What happens when they share on social media too much? Sometimes, when neighborhoods watch – suspicion, rumour and a disproportionate amount of blame on a particular group or demographic are wrongly placed on the altar of "truth."

Neighbourhood Watch came about originally, in the US, largely as the result of a horrific crime that took place while upwards of 12 witnesses were nearby and did nothing to stop it or call police. Its purpose is meant to engage "an organized group of civilians devoted to crime and vandalism prevention within a neighbourhood. The aim of neighbourhood watch includes educating residents of a community on security and safety and achieving safe and secure neighbourhoods." Police actively discourage folks from interfering or attempting to stop a crime in progress but instead encourage us to keep an eye out and report concerns immediately. In a front page article, back in 2008, I wrote about the topic of petty crime and vandalism in one particular Caledon community where residents had expressed this was an ongoing concern but police had only responded to seven incidents. That's because seven was all that was ever reported to them. At that time, police advised residents to adopt a "call and we will come" approach, telling residents that they can only respond appropriately if they are informed about concerns. Neighbourhood Watch in that sense can assist police with doing their job and that's a good thing.

My issue today, with the exponential rise in the use of and reliance upon on social media (a lot sure has changed since that story was first published) as a tool for sharing information, is that police are once again sometimes being left out of the equation and a form of vigilantism is taking their place. What I see on various community group pages are postings that seem to disproportionately target specific ethnic, race or cultural groups when it comes to complaints about behaviours. Recent examples included the posting of a vehicle make, model and license plate number with a description of the lone male occupant as a "person of colour" except that's not the wording the poster used. Not only did it refer to him in a specific manner but having now seen several of these types of posts in a variety of community groups, but not once having seen a post about a suspicious Caucasian, I can't help but be concerned about what this means in terms of racial profiling. Of even more concern, the number of people that commented within minutes – many making outrageously negative comments about both the "suspicious" person and the person who posted - was ridiculous. On another group, actual pictures of young adults, clearly under the age of 16, taken by a doorbell camera were posted with inflammatory language and suggestions about what these kids were "up to?" Turns out – for the record – they were delivering flyers. In still another example, a picture – with the licence plate clearly showing – of a vehicle parked "suspiciously" in front of someone's home was shared widely on a community group page before someone else questioned the moral and ethical privacy violations of doing so. Meanwhile, as I sat working in my home office one day, just a few doors down from my home a house was broken into and no one saw or heard a thing – myself included I'm ashamed to say. Perhaps everyone was too busy taking pictures and posting them on facebook chat groups to notice that a real crime was taking place?

Neighbourhood Watch works and works well in communities where folks do what they are supposed to do – call police if they see what they believe to be suspicious activity. Quite a few years ago our family had a troubling experience with a white van trolling our neighbourhood. We didn't take a picture because frankly, we didn't pause long enough to do so. What we did do was immediately call the OPP. It's their job to determine what's suspicious and what is not. It's their job to put out a public safety notification if in fact the white van was problematic (it was) and not just some poor individual that was in the neighbourhood making a service repair call. Neighbourhood Watch facebook groups can (and should) share that kind of public safety notice. It's a great way to spread informed news to the community. What they shouldn't be sharing is personal information, plate numbers, pictures of anyone (especially minors) and inflammatory or suggestive language that encourages inflammatory responses. That serves no purpose at all and merely confuses suspicion with truth.

Our Readers Write

Who has seen the wane?

Two matters that occurred last week that deserve further commentary – one reported on in your Editorial –of June 20/19 ("A Chance at Redemption") and the other – the cancellation of Canada Day celebrations at Queens Park by the Ford Government.

In the first matter – the current state of the local Dufferin-Caledon CPC Riding Association and their distressing Candidate Nomination Process, the Citizen suggests that a division among members and discontent with the national CPC Party exists; further that the national executive of the party has little faith in the local candidates for nomination, and this is "a shame." To this, I could not agree more.

Indeed, the fracture and malaise of the local Riding Association is microcosmic of what appears to be occurring nationally. Ahead in the polls, the party has had to dismiss nominated candidates across the country, struggles with a strong challenge from the People's Party (with a leader, Maxime Bernier, who was clearly the preference among most Conservatives two years ago), and besaddled with an underwhelming and awkward leader in Andrew Scheer. Yes, this is a shame for Conservatives.

The rancour and strife amongst Dufferin- Caledon Conservatives would seem to reflect a national shame. Despite apparent strong campaigns from several contenders, the local CPC will be left with no nominated candidate until August, while strong local Liberal, Green and (most concerning for Conservatives) People's Party candidates will flourish. They will have the summer to debate, door-knock, eat rubber-chicken and convince Dufferin-Caledon voters of their worth, while the local CPC continues to debase itself, struggling to find an identity. It would seem likely that many local conservative voters will be drawn to the persuasive allure of Maxime Bernier's leadership and a compelling local candidate in Chad Ransom, while the grand old Conservative party is riven by internal discord and petty hatreds. How far they appear to have slipped from the unity of purpose delivered by David Tilson. Local Conservatives must be weighing the alternatives for October 21st. Yes, this is a shame for Conservatives.

In the second matter - conservatism in Ontario seems fraught with the dangers of Doug Ford, whose Government this week, cancelled Canada Day ceremonies at Queens Park. I'll say that again for those who may have missed the historical significance - the Party responsible for the Confederation of Canada 152 years ago, has cancelled Canada Day celebrations in Toronto – the Capital of Upper Canada. With no good reason given for the cancellation, it beggars belief how our local Progressive Conservative MPP (and senior member of the Ford Cabinet) Sylvia Jones could condone such a move. With a five-month holiday now undertaken by the Ford Government, it is curious why there was no room for a Queens Park Ceremony on July 1st – are they busy? Local Conservative voters might be inclined to question the commitment of their government to the celebration of history in their provincial capital on Canada Day. Government sources suggest the money saved by cancelling the festivities is being redirected to free admission at beer-tents, theme parks and carnivals on the long weekend. So while Ms Jones enjoys BBQ sausage and free beer at FordFest this June 22nd weekend, one might ask the Minister how alcohol, roller-coasters and water-slide attractions appropriately acknowledges our history.

The Citizen Editorial sees 'a chance for redemption' among Conservatives in Dufferin-Caldeon. Yet I suspect many conservatives are too deeply troubled by the state of the Party and must be considering switching allegiance to the People's Party on Election day. A sure-footed reporter, and members of an informed-citizenry might see some connection between the humiliation of the local Federal Conservatives, and the embarrassing leadership of the Provincial Conservatives. Such is the state of 'shame' for local Conservatives. "Redemption" might be the least of their worries….

Caledon OPP continuing to investigate several local incidents

Written By JULIA LLOYD

On Friday June 21, Officers were dispatched to Willoughby Road, north of Beech Grove Side Road responding to an ATV collision involving injuries..

The driver of the ATV was a 40-year-old male from the Town of Caledon. He sustained life-threatening injuries in the collision and was transported via air ambulance to a trauma centre.

There will be an investigation and Collision Reconstructionist from the OPP Central Region Traffic Incident Management Enforcement team will be assisting. The injured driver was not wearing a helmet at the time of the collision.

The OPP would like to remind all community members who have off-road and all-terrain vehicles to wear the proper protective equipment.

Anyone who may have witnessed the collision is asked to contact OPP Caledon Detachment at (905) 584-2241.

Motor vehicle theft

On Wednesday June 19 uniformed officers responded to theft from motor in the area of Cedargrove Road and Harvestmoon Drive in the Town of Caledon.

The officers located the suspects on the scene. As a result of the investigation two suspects were charged. Nicholas Singh a 18-year-old of Caledon has been charged with, theft under $5000, possession of schedule IV substance, possession of property obtained by crime under $5000 and fail to comply with sentence.

The other suspect is a 17-year-old and the OPP will not be releasing his name to the public. However, he was charged with theft under $5000, possession of property obtained by crime under $5000, possession of schedule I substance and seek or obtain a schedule IV substance.

The Caledon OPP would like to remind the public to watch for suspicious people or activity in the neighbourhood, deter potential criminals and ensure outside lights work, lock doors and close the windows of your vehicle, park in well-lit areas and hide any valuables or secure them by bringing them inside.

Caledon OPP reminds residents to keep a lid on it

Officers from Caledon Detachment OPP responded to several motor vehicle collisions over the last weekend, where cyclists and an all-terrain vehicle (ATV) rider sustained life-altering head injuries as a result of not wearing a helmet.

Studies have shown that wearing an approved helmet significantly reduces the risk of injury should a mishap occur. The law currently requires children under the age of 18 to wear a helmet. For safety reasons, the OPP recommends that all cyclists wear helmets

Cuts, bruises, and even broken bones will heal, but damage to your brain can be permanent. Even a low-speed fall can result in serious head injury. Many such devastating injuries can be prevented by wearing a helmet.

A helmet should be:

- Snug - it does not slide from side-to-side or front-to-back;
- Level - it is square on top of your head, covering the top of the forehead. It does not tilt in any direction;
- Stable - the chinstrap keeps the helmet from rocking in any direction; Chinstraps should be replaced if any part of the buckle breaks. Otherwise, a helmet may fly off in an accident, and
- Bright - choose a helmet that motorists will see.

Don't leave your life on the road. Wear a helmet.

Parks not the place for toy gun play

Since Friday, June 21, 2019, officers from Caledon Detachment OPP responded to several reports of youth playing with what appeared to be guns in public parks within the town of Caledon.

In each case officers quickly responded and investigated the incidents which turned out to involve toy air guns, not real firearms. As a result of the investigations, the involved youths from Caledon were cautioned and released to their parents.

Residents should be aware that the possession and use of any type of firearm, including a toy air gun, is strictly prohibited in Caledon parks or anywhere within the Town of Caledon except on private property and in accordance with applicable By-Laws and firearms regulations.

The OPP would like to remind that some toy guns are designed to look like real-life models of firearms and they may not be readily identifiable to the public or police as being toys ! and not real firearms. This can cause concern for both police and members of the public.

This is a picture of toy guns involved in one of the incidents recently investigated by police next to a real firearm, can you tell the difference between the real and fake gun?

Officers step up speeding enforcement

Since Tuesday, June 18, 2019, officers from the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) Caledon Detachment stopped and charged the drivers of several vehicles for driving at excessively high-speeds within the Town of Caledon:

- On Tuesday, June 18, 2019, at about 9:10 a.m., a 37-year-old male driver of Guelph, was observed operating a motor vehicle at a high rate of speed in the area of Highway 410 and Valleywood Boulevard. The officer activated the radar registering a speed of 130 km/h in a posted 80 km/h zone;
- On the same day, at approximately 10:09 a.m., another motorist, a 22-year-old male of York, was observed operating his vehicle at 142 km/h in a posted 90 km/h zone in the area of Highway 410 South of Kennedy Road;
- As the officer was dealing with the above violator while in a police vehicle with activated emergency lights, another motorist passed the cruiser at 136 km/h without moving over to the left lane. A 50-year-old male of Pickering, was charged with Speeding and Fail to Slow Down and Proceed with Caution for Emergency Vehicle;
- On Saturday, June 22, 2019, at about 8:08 a.m., a 53-year-old male driver of North York, was observed operating a vehicle at 100 km/h in a posted 50 km/h zone on Highway 10 and Chester Drive in the town of Caledon;
- On the same day, at about 10:24 a.m., a 43-year-old male driver of Markham, was observed operating a motorcycle at 145 km/h in a posted 90 km/h zone on Highway 410 North of Mayfield Road;
- On Sunday, June 23, 2019, at about 11:23 a.m., a 37-year-old male motorist of Etobicoke, was observed operating a motorcycle at 117 km/h in a posted 60 km/h zone in the area of Mayfield Road and Snellview Boulevard.
- On Monday, June 24, 2019, at about 1:27 p.m., a 25-year-old driver, was observed operating a motor vehicle at 131 km/h in a 60 km/h zone in the area of Horseshoe Hill Road and Escarpment Side Road.

All of the above drivers were charged with Racing, received an immediate seven-day driver's license suspension and had their vehicles impounded for a seven days.

Speeding is a choice. The consequences of speeding are not. Slow down.

Multi-vehicle collision results in life threatening injuries

Officers from the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) Caledon Detachment are investigating a multi-vehicle collision that occurred on Mayfield Road, in the Town of Caledon.

On Wednesday, June 26, 2019 at approximately 1:42pm, the OPP responded to the call of a multi-vehicle collision on eastbound Mayfield Road between Humber Station Road and Coleraine Drive.

As a result of the collision one of the involved drivers, a 79 year old male from Caledon, sustained life threatening injuries and was transported to a trauma centre.

There were a total of five vehicles involved in the collision, including two transport trucks.

Collision Reconstructionists from the OPP Central Region Traffic Incident Management and Enforcement Team are assisting with the investigation. Mayfield Road between Humber Station Road and Coleraine Drive will be closed for the investigation. Motorists are asked to avoid the area until the investigation is complete and the road is re-opened.

Anyone who may have witnessed the collision is being asked to contact the OPP Caledon Detachment - (905) 584-2241.

Jo Phoenix and Neville Worsnop: Century Church Theatre 20 years on

Written By CONSTANCE SCRAFIELD

"The 20th Anniversary of the Erin Arts Foundation - The Board of Directors of the Erin Arts Foundation, past and present, are proud to recognize Neville Worsnop and Jo Phoenix for their dedication, commitment and tireless effort for bringing quality theatre to Hillsburgh, Erin and the surrounding community. Through their combined leadership, Century Church Theatre has virtually become a beacon for the arts."

This is the tribute on the plaque presented to Mr. Worsnop and Ms Phoenix, at the Gala to celebrate the anniversary on June 1, this year. Praise indeed.

Neville Worsnop told the Citizen, "Jo wept and I was gob-smacked by the plaque."

He continued by telling us a little of his personal history, "I played my first part in a church production when I was 14. I went to a hotel school in Blackpool, at 16, too young to work in licensed premises. So, I started part-time theatre college in Blackpool, while I was at the Blackpool hotel school."

They were located quite close to each other. In the course of the three years in which Mr. Worsnop studied at both, he participated in "Nine productions ...nine plays, doing the lighting, assistant Stage Manager, pyro technics, when it was still allowed for Journeys End. That was revived last year in the West End [London].

"Then, I was conscripted to join the army as a commissioned, then regular officer in the catering corps; then, in Nottingham, at a place that had a theatre. I was able to work with the commanding officer's wife, who was the theatre's director at that time. By then, I was hooked.

"I loved doing farce. I think it's important to us that the audience have fun but it's also important that the actors have fun."

A three week stint with a local repertory company followed that.

However, "when I got married the first time, I was ten years without doing any theatre. I came to Canada in 1968 and got involved in community theatre right away. I was one of the founding members of Peel Pantomime Players. With the Georgetown theatre, I directed and played in productions too."

Having met and married, Mr. Worsnop and Ms Phoenix, "were moving from Acton to Hillsburgh and found there is a local theatre in the high school. So, we were driving back from a trip to Indianapolis, talking about theatre and I said, Why don't we form an arts foundation that would include live theatre? So, we did.

"The then mayor of Erin, Rob Finley, suggested we get in touch with the trustees of the Hillsburgh community church and ask if we could use their basement for rehearsals without charge. While we had to walk through the church to get to the basement, I kept thinking 'what a wonderful performance space the church would provide'. The trustees agreed that we could do what we needed to make it a performance space. What you saw [the stage on which the production that evening, Will You Still Love Me in the Morning was performed] was the result of 15 years work.

As for Jo Phoenix, who directed the play, "When I was in a theatre in London [England], I thought theatre was something you watched. So, when we did come up here I started to watch Neville and began to get involved."

A bit of her history, "I was an educator; I was a consultant for Peel Board [of Education]. I wrote a number of books on methodology – they don't do teach spelling – I was trying to prevent the future from happening."

She continued, "That was my real life: the writing became a full time job. When I married Neville, he retired and he came along with me to a few workshops that I was giving."

WORTHY RECIPIENTS: Neville Worsnop, holding the plaque from the Erin Arts Foundation, and Jo Phoenix showing the list of all the plays that have been produced at Century Church Theatre, founded the arts foundation and the theatre 20 years ago.

"Neville was the road manager. I was writing workshops on teaching, in the States, the UK, all across Canada, Alaska and, even, Singapore, for 20 years. So , we spent a lot of time in the car thinking about what else we could do. We still went to England.

"The problem is that everyone thinks they're an educator because they went to school," she commented wryly.

"Soon, though, it was less work and more theatre. It's very nice that Neville and I can do this together. Retirement activities that we share, with golf some of the time."

As for time off, "There isn't a lot of time in between seasons. I'm directing Quartet [opening September 6, 2019] and, today, we had auditions for Sleeping Beauty.

"The Board is now seriously looking at the next season, for 20/21. Neville takes the lead; there's a reading committee; I look at plays from a directing point of view. We create a short list of plays and the Board makes a decision about what goes together. "Doing all that, for the middle play – we leave that to somebody else. We get away in the winter, for a month."

"We like to think that our production values are as good as anybody," commented Mr. Worsnop, "That's what we strive for, to do the best we can do.

"I would like it to go on for the next twenty years. We will leave it in good condition. One thing we find with the youngsters, once they get to college, they tend to leave and go away and, once they leave college, they have a family. It's a challenge to find young people. It's something that one has to consider in choosing theatre. We all want to go to the theatre to be entertained."

The backbone of community theatre is the volunteers, who run it entirely, "We have to start backing away so that other people start taking over."

They agreed, "Our ambition is just to continue and get better. We're very well equipped now and I have designed a revolve for the stage."

Practicality matters so much: "All our sets we take apart and put together again – some of it we're deciding to replace."

For anyone who would like to become involved with a community theatre, he invited them, "Come along; see what we do; see what involves your time, your energy; what do you want to do to satisfy yourself and see what you can do? A community theatre is a group of people who want to be together – parachutists – happy to have them along."

From Ms Phoenix, "Above all, we chose things that are going to be entertaining – we like to see that people are leaving the theatre smiling."

Headwaters hospital honours three individuals, one group at AGM

Written By MIKE BAKER

Headwaters Health Care Centre (HHCC) honoured three individuals and one community team at its Annual General Meeting last Tuesday (June 18) for their incredible service and commitment to our local hospital.

In what was its milestone 20th year, the annual Dr. David Scott Award was shared between Dr. Gordon Willans, who spent the majority of his career practicing at Dufferin-area hospitals, and Tom Reid, long-time chief of the Dufferin County Paramedic Services.

Also on offer was the annual Chairperson's Award, which was offered to Eileen Dahl, a volunteer patient family adviser at HHCC, and the Jennifer Widbur Memorial Hockey Tournament Organizing Committee, who, over the past 12 years, have managed to raise over $650,000 in support of cancer care at the local hospital.

The Dr. David Scott Award recognizes individuals or groups who have gone above and beyond to improve the overall health and wellness of the Dufferin-Caledon community, and promote links between the hospital and community. The annual Headwaters Chairperson's Award similarly honours those with ties to the hospital who help the facility in its attempts to provide quality care to local residents.

Dr. Willans, Mr. Reid, Ms. Dahl and a team of representatives from the Jennifer Widbur tournament committee were on hand on Tuesday to formally accept their awards.

Tom Reid - Dr. David Scott Award

Tom Reid is a lifelong resident of Shelburne who has devoted his entire 35-year career to paramedic services in the community. He is known as an exemplary leader, innovative thinker, compassionate professional and a driving force in shaping and supporting the paramedic profession in Ontario.

Locally, he has led the development and implementation of Advanced Care Paramedic Program for Dufferin County, advancing paramedicine in the region through the implementation of electronic reporting, and bringing on the newest trends in the industry such as the use of power stretchers. Mr. Reis was also instrumental in the development of the Dufferin Situation Table, and in offering free CPR courses throughout Dufferin County.

Listed as one of Mr. Reid's most impactful accomplishments is the development of a Community Paramedicine Program, which enables advanced training for paramedics to provide effective care to patients with complex care needs in their home.

"Tom has been an integral leader in local health care in Dufferin County for many years. Tom's vision of having better access for all through facilitation, integration and coordination of service delivery shows his understanding of not only the issues at hand, but also an appreciation of the hard work put in by all involved," said outgoing HHCC Board Chair Louise Kindree.

Dr. Gordon Willans - Dr. David Scott Award

Dr. Gordon Willans was instrumental in the bid to construct what is now Headwaters Health Care Centre in 1997. He worked as an internist for over four decades, providing care described by colleagues and patients as nothing short of exemplary. He was a trusted colleague of Dr. David Scott. His dedication to patients, community and health care in Ontario, a HHCC media release states, is truly significant.

"The Dr. David Scott Award was created to honour a man who cared passionately about his community, who served over a long career exemplified by the highest standards of practice and leadership," Ms. Kindree stated. "One might think Dr. Gord Willans was a protégé of Dr. Scott, but theirs was a meeting of two men who shared a vision of their community, a passion and a commitment to give to that community and the skills and leadership to achieve that passion."

Eileen Dahl - Annual Chairperson's Award

Eileen Dahl is a registered psychotherapist and certified spiritual care professional, educator, speaker and independent resilience researcher. She has dedicated significant effort as the volunteer chair of the Central West Palliative Care Network Patient and Family Advisory Council, and as a volunteer patient family advisor to HHCC.

She also founded and moderates two Facebook groups that are empowering patients around the world with information and peer support connections. She has recently taken on a leadership role supporting the development of the Hills of Headwaters Ontario Health Team.

"Eileen has a strong belief in educating people to be resilient and is not afraid to ask tough questions of herself and others," Ms. Kindree said. "She is leading new ways to include the patient's voice in how we think about, and deliver, local health care."

Jennifer Widbur Memorial Hockey Tournament Organizing Committee - Annual Chairperson's Award

The Jennifer Widbur Memorial Hockey Tournament Organizing Committee was made up of Al Widbur, Carey Widbur, Corrie Downey, Jana Prentice, Barb Elgie, Susan Haire, Crystal Lucas, Bonnie DeLaat, Mike DeLaat and Linda Widbur, the team has come together to host the hugely successful tournament, in memory of Jennifer Widbur, a young hockey mom who lost her battle with cancer in 2007, for the past 12 years.

The tournament has raised more than $650,000 in support of cancer care at HHCC, along with other cancer and hockey related organizations over the past decade. With support from the Shelburne and Honeywood communities, the annual three-day tournament for teams of women over 30 has proven to be a sitting tribute to Jennifer leading to improved health care services in the community.

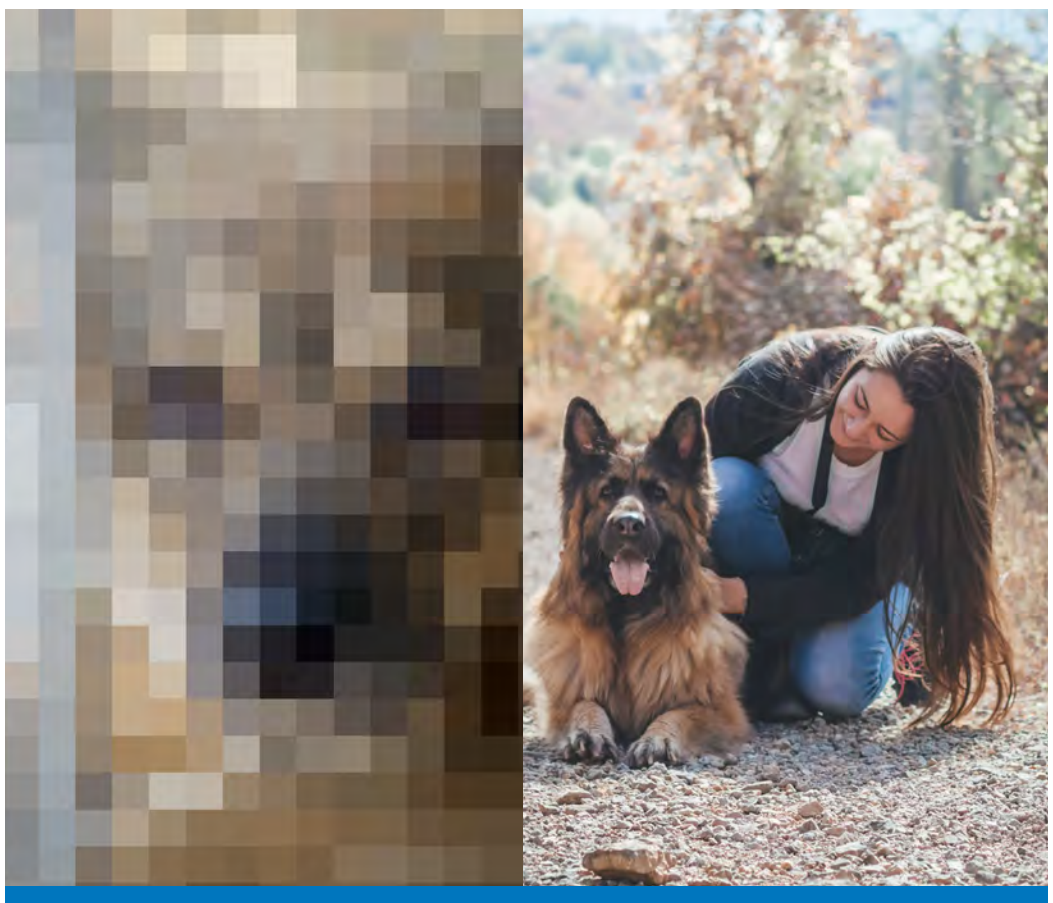

Donations from the tournament have supported the expanded Oncology Program in the new Ambulatory Care Centre at HHCC, and helped purchase the hospital's first digital mammography unit.

Before.

After.
Don't make us show you Before.

We have worked diligently to protect animals for 145 years in Ontario. And now, more than ever, we are committed to animal well-being in communities across the province with services like mobile spay/neuter clinics, community-based animal wellness days, animal transfer and rescue, adopt-a-thons and humane education.

The Ontario government is responsible for enforcing provincial animal welfare legislation, which is the right thing to do. We will support them and law enforcement to make sure animals in Ontario are protected. Last year we resolved over 23,000 calls from concerned citizens, and we will continue to make sure the right resources and professionals are in place and ready to respond. Because we're here for animals. And for you.

"Soak up the summer rays and help create better days for Caledon kids" by Chrissy Jarvie, Communications Lead

I've lived in Caledon all my life and I know that there are some myths about our wonderful community. I wanted to clear up a few questions I'm often asked:

No, I've never owned a horse, but I know how to ride.
No, I don't live on a multimillion dollar farm, but I've always had a roof over my head.
No, I don't spend all my time shopping and dining in luxury locals, but I've never been without clothes or food.

Yes, I am one of the lucky ones, but I know not everyone is as fortunate as I, not even here in Caledon. That's why I'm asking you to support Caledon Community Services' Kidz in Caledon campaign.

Poverty can look like many different things and sometimes it can be hidden. At CCS we hear heartbreaking stories of struggle every day.

A stay-at-home mom flees an abusive relationship that has left physical and emotional scars on her and her two young children now needs to find a way to support her family. A single dad is injured in a workplace accident and can no longer work. A parent or caregiver faces the impossible choice between paying rent and bills or buying groceries.

It's clear that there's a need in Caledon and that children are at the heart – that's why Kidz in Caledon is so important. This summer, you have the power to do something special for a Caledon child, simply by making a donation.

Your donation transforms into healthy, nutritious food and snacks that help fuel health and fun. It transforms into opportunities for children to experience the summer every child deserves, by sending them to camps or supervised recreational activities. (Trust me when I tell you, the smiles on their faces when they have these life changing experiences is enough to light up the biggest room.)

Your donation does all this and more but without you it won't happen. Please donate today and through Kidz in Caledon, you'll change hundreds of young lives this summer!

3 ways to donate: visit www.ccs4u.org and click "Donate", mail your cheque to our main office (address is listed on our website under "Contact Us") or over the phone by calling 905-584-2300 ext. 260.

REAL ESTATE PROFESSIONAL of the Month

SHANNON TURNBULL
PRINCIPAL BROKER
The Mortgage Centre

Written By KIRA WRONSKA DORWARD

Shannon Turnbull has been a veteran of mortgage brokering in Bolton for the past three decades. Having grown up and observed her entire career in the town, she is at home in every sense with what she does, running The Mortgage Centre at 43 Queen Street North. With fifteen agents working alongside her, Turnbull avows that "we pride ourselves on our customer service. We put the client first, always", even if that means turning down business for the best interests of their customer.

The motto of Mortgage Centre is "service, knowledge, options." Since their opening in 2006, their agents have consistently and successfully procured the best deals for their clients in mortgages, refinancing, and renewals, the latter for which they charge no fee to switch to between institutions. "We do not charge for our services," says Turnbull, "unless the person does not qualify in the regular route of banking and we cannot find a solution, and then we find alternatives."

Mortgage Centre agents provide the same service as any bank, but with a far greater knowledge of the marketplace, giving them unlimited options for finding their clients the best rates and deals by providing a boutique service.

In a regular bank, there is often a lot of personnel shuffle from branch to branch, part-time employees, and turnover. That's not the case with the Mortgage Centre, where "there's no movement. If we're here, we're here", and a customer deals with one agent from start to finish.

"We know a product across the realm," continues Turnbull. "You're getting a different knowledge base [than you would with a bank]. We are shopping a product from a variety of lenders." A single bank may provide you with the best option they have, "but they don't know what's best for you across the board. We can provide discounted rates at the competition level."

"Right now," continued Turnbull, "rates in the past couple of months have dropped significantly lower than they were in 2018. We have promotions going on all the time, feel free to give us a call and find out. We have a secured loan for any purpose, up to $30,000, at an only 8.99 percent interest rate."

Emerging trends that are shaping real estate in 2019

Each year, the Urban Land Institute and PwC present the Emerging Trends in Real Estate report, providing the industry with insight into emerging themes and forces that will shape the next 12 months across North America.

This year, the report focused on three main themes; reinvent, rebalance and rethink, all centred around the uncertainty facing housing as fast-paced technological and social change transforms how people are living and working.

Reinvent

As Andrew Warren of PwC pointed out, in 2004, 70 per cent of respondents in the real estate sector thought tech would have no impact in the way real estate operates. Today, the industry is realizing it was wrong.

One major but not typically considered advancement is construction technology. When we think of property tech, we generally think of the sleek and flashy like virtual tours, smart home options and monitoring. As construction and trade shortages have a major impact on the speed at which homes are delivered, investing in construction technology can fill in the gaps to have a positive impact all the way through the home building journey.

The good news? Investments in technology are up 41 per cent, which means industry leaders are realizing that if they don't embrace tech, they'll be left behind. This means better homes, condos and service for homebuyers.

How to Sell Your Caledon Home for the Price You Want & Need

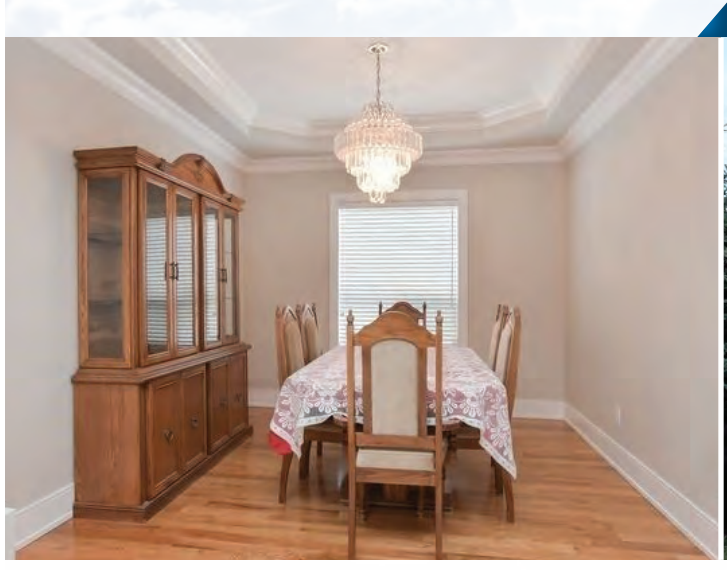

CALEDON - When you decide to sell your home, setting your asking price is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. Depending on how a buyer is made aware of your home, price is often the first thing he or she sees, and many homes are discarded by prospective buyers as not being in the appropriate price range before they're even given a chance of showing.

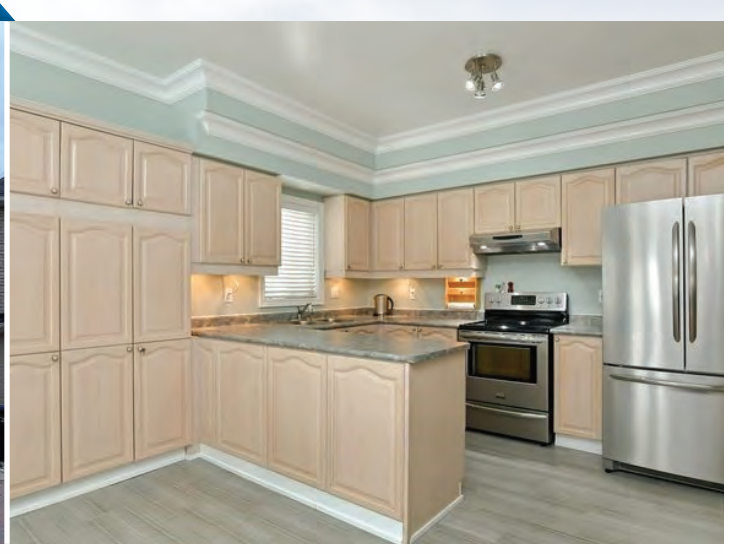

Your asking price is often your home's "first impression", and if you want to realize the most money you can for your home, it's imperative that you make a good first impression.

This is not as easy as it sounds, and pricing strategy should not be taken lightly. Pricing too high can be as costly to a homeseller as pricing too low. Taking a look at what homes in your neighbourhood have sold for is only a small part of the process, and on it's own is not nearly enough to help you make the best decision. A recent study, which compiles 10 years of industry research, has resulted in a new special report entitled "Homesellers: How to Get the Price You Want (and Need)". This report will help you understand pricing strategy from three different angles. When taken together, this information will help you price your home to not only sell, but sell for the price you want.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your FREE copy of this report call toll-free 1-855-782-3460 and enter ID# 2016. You can call any time, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Get your free special report NOW to learn how to price your home to your maximum financial advantage.

REAL ESTATE IN CALEDON

Emerging trends that are helping to shape real estate industry in 2019

Rebalance

Rebalance has a lot to do with what the real estate market can do to better serve you, the homeowner. As land prices, interest, government fees and timelines, labour shortages and tariffs make development more expensive, builders and developers are rethinking their development models and investments to be able to deliver an affordable, well-built product that meets the current demands.

Particular for Toronto, redevelopment and infill development will play a huge role in the urban core's affordability outlook. Another way technology is helping the industry to better itself, data analytics will allow companies to dig into large volumes of information and pull out actionable intelligence, responding to what people want and finding innovated solutions to get us there.

Rethink

The industry has accepted that "it's time to move beyond efforts to limit demand by looking at the supply side of the equation and reexamining government interventions." There is no question here that the government's role is a key consideration, particularly in the Ontario housing market where government policy dictates the speed and volume of the housing construction process. What works in Toronto's downtown won't help in Hamilton. An open dialogue between different levels of government, homeowners, builders and developers has to be considered so that real solutions can be discussed.

Until then, what's happening? The consequences of not properly planning for future housing needs may be severe. As the proportion of household income needed to service the costs of a single-family homes grows, downtown areas are at risk of millennials abandoning the urban core for the suburbs in search of more affordable housing, and then eventually leaving popular regions altogether.

Other Insights

The talk wrapped up with a panel discussion with some of the leading players in our industry today. A few gems from that discussion were from Cheryl Shindruk, Executive Vice President of Land Development at Geranium and George Carras, Founder and CEO of R-Labs Canada. In their option, a few key considerations and possible solutions to upcoming concerns are:

1. Talent: "We need to turn to our education institutions to close the skills gap in labour (advances in technology will help this as well)."

2. Demographic trends: "We need to be prepared for the two major landslides that will dictate housing needs in the near future, the Baby Boomers retiring and downsizing and the Millennials starting families and looking for larger homes."

3. The role of government: "Even if the industry is embracing technology, the intrinsic link between government and real estate means we need government agencies and policies to also catch up with new advances in technology to really make a difference."

4. Climate change: "Increases in natural disasters and the costs and housing loss involved is a consideration we can no longer afford to ignore. It will play a real role in our future and we need to be prepared. A market that's showing leadership in this realm is Houston. In spring 2018, Houston's city council made the first changes to flood regulations in ten years, requiring new construction and retrofits to be two feet above the 500-year floodplain."

Bolton Brewers snap mini slump with big win over Mansfield Cubs

Written By JAKE COURTEPATTE

Some heavy bats were to thank for the Bolton Brewers on Sunday afternoon, who were able to snap their first two-game losing streak of the season with a whooping of the Mansfield Cubs.

The North Dufferin Baseball League club posted a six-run first inning at Mansfield Community Park, never looking back in a 16 – 5 victory.

Chris Fafalios and Trent Barwick made the biggest splashes at the plate for the Brewers, each sending their first home runs of the 2019 season out of the park. Barwick was able to cross the plate for all three of his at-bats, as was the heavy-hitting Mike Wallace.

On the mound for the win was Tyler Hawkins, who spread all five of his opponents' runs throughout his six innings of work for his second win of the season. With the game out of reach by the seventh and final frame, Nick Pettinaro came in to clean up in relief of Hawkins, giving up a pair of hits though ultimately allowing no damage.

The win proved crucial for a team jockeying for position in a tightly-packed race near the top of the NDBL standings, sending the Brewers to a record of 11 – 5. They sit tied with the Ivy Leafs for second place, but are looking at the Clearview Orioles in the rearview mirror who are just one point behind.

The New Lowell Knights remain at the pinnacle of the league with just one loss to account for at the midway point of the season.

Heading into the final month of the NDBL's regular season, the Brewers will be looking to take advantage of a doubleheader with the lowly Clarksburg Blues on July 3, who have managed just three wins so far this year.

The next home game at North Hill Park in Bolton will go July 10 in hosting the Barrie Angels.

Canadian actor Gerry Dee getting ready to tee up at Osprey Valley Open

Written By JAKE COURTEPATTE

Actor, stand-up comedian, golf nut.

Famed Canadian Gerry Dee will take to the course at TPC Toronto at Osprey Valley in Caledon the second weekend of July, for the annual Osprey Valley Open.

"I'm really excited to play in the Osprey Valley Open this year and play alongside so many incredibly talented professionals who will be the next stars on the PGA Tour," said Dee, who recently finished his 20th anniversary tour of his stand-up comedy in cities around the country. "I have so much respect for the professional game and hopefully I can help provide increased exposure for the players and the Osprey Valley Open to show how talented they really are at this level."

The sixth stop on the PGA Canada Tour schedule, the Osprey Valley Open added the star as a sponsor's exemption, pitting the longtime golfer against a talented field.

Osprey Valley Open Tournament Director Brad Parkins said the club was "ecstatic" to have Dee join the event.

"Gerry is a name that people recognize across Canada for his hilarious comedy work, but he's also a skilled player," said Parkins. "…we look forward to having some fun with Gerry during the week, raising some awareness for the Osprey Valley Open and TPC Toronto and introducing more fans to the Mackenzie Tour in our second year."

Though the addition of Dee to the schedule may come to some as a publicity stunt, Dee's skills on the course are not to be trifled with: though his CBC sitcom "Mr. D" ran for a successful seven seasons, Dee has managed to keep his golf game up to speed by entering in amateur tournaments throughout the summer months.

He currently boasts a 5.4 handicap as a member of The National GC of Canada, and qualified for the Ontario Amateur tournament in 1999.

Also announced as a sponsor's exemption this week was James Allenby, who grew up in nearby Orangeville, and will be taking part in the tournament for the second straight year.

Renowned local horse breeder Gus Schickedanz passes away aged 90

Written By MARK PAVILONS

Renowned Canadian horse owner and breeder Gustav "Gus" Schickedanz passed away June 17 at his Schomberg Farm. He was 90.

Earlier this spring, Schickedanz received the coveted E.P. Taylor Award of merit from the Jockey Club of Canada at the Sovereign Awards ceremony.

Schickedanz was inducted into the Canadian Horse Racing Hall of Fame in 2009 as a "builder."

Schickedanz bred and raced multiple winners, including Wando, an 11-time winner from 23 career starts. Wando was the 2003 Canadian Triple Crown winner and Horse of the Year. Wando earned more than $2.5 million.

King Mayor Steve Pellegrini said Schomberg Farm is an institution in King and "Gus was a true gentleman. He will be deeply missed and I offer sincerest condolences to his family and friends."

Councillor Bill Cober has known Gus since he was a teenager.

"I was fortunate to know him and was always impressed and influenced with his humility and hard working approach. As a teenager delivering lumber to the farm or cottage Gus would always help to unload the truck and take time to talk and offer some words of wisdom. Gus made significant contributions throughout society during his lifetime and will be missed."

Polo for Hearts celebrates milestone 40th anniversary event

Written By JAKE COURTEPATTE

The scenic Toronto Polo Club was the venue for one of the region's swankiest events on Saturday, hosting the annual Polo for Heart.

Raising funds for the Southlake Foundation, horses and humans alike reveled in a bright summer's day to come together for a good cause.

Equestrian enthusiasts from across Southern Ontario who converge on the grounds annually for a weekend of high-fashion, fine food, and the sport of kings are among the area's elite: though at its core, the main focus of attendees and volunteers alike is charity.

In fact, an incredible $6-million plus has been raised over the event's 39 years to help fund heart disease and stroke treatment and research.

"It's helped us do all kinds of innovative work," said Susan Mullin, President and CEO of Southlake Regional Health Centre, the recipient of the funds. "We've had a couple of 'world- firsts' at Southlake, thanks to Polo for Heart in part."

York Regional Police, the Canadian Cowgirls, and internationally renowned polo players entertained a packed house of attendees, donned with the most audacious of hats and dressed to the nines.

"The money raised at Polo for Heart helps Heart & Stroke pursue our mission to prevent heart disease and stroke, save lives and promote recovery for everyone across the country," said Avril Goffredo, CEO Ontario & Nunavut, Heart & Stroke. "We know there's still much work to be done because every five minutes, someone in Canada is lost to heart disease, stroke and related conditions.

"We are grateful for the support of Polo For Heart over so many years as they help us fund research and promote awareness, and we've thrilled to join them to celebrate their 40th anniversary."

"Polo for Heart has been a long-time supporter of Southlake and over the years has made a tremendous impact for tens of thousands of patients served through our Regional Cardiac Care Program, the third largest in Ontario," said Mullin. "Southlake serves cardiac patients from York Region to as far north as Muskoka. We simply could not do it without this kind of support that is crucial in helping us keep up with changing technology continue providing leading-edge care. We are excited and proud to be part of Polo for Heart once again this year, celebrating their 40th anniversary event."

Saturday's big day succeeded Thursday night's opener, dubbed "Polo Under the Stars", where guests took to the pitch for a gourmet dinner and a pair of international polo matches, all while serenaded by Juno nominee George St. Kitts.

Thursday's festivities also featured a best hat contest judged by CTV's The Social's Melissa Grelo, and David Dunkley of David Dunkley Fine Millinery, who is the official milliner of Polo for Heart.

Every seven minutes, someone in Canada dies from heart disease and stroke. An estimated 1.6 million more are living with the devastating effects of these diseases, while nine in ten Canadians have at least one risk factor, such as high blood pressure, obesity, tobacco use, lack of physical activity, and diabetes.

Over 10,000 cardiac patients are treated at Southlake each year.

OBITUARIES | OBITUARIES

ROOME, Patricia Jean (nee Lawrance)

Peacefully, surrounded by family, at Headwaters Health Care Centre on Thursday, June 20 2019, in her 87th year. Predeceased by her previous husband Ken Otley, father of her two children William (Carol) and Christine. Beloved wife of nearly 34 years to William Roome. Cherished "Mimi" to her grandchildren Bryan (Angela), Nicole (Paul), Caitlin (Rui) and Robert (Melanie). Loving great-grandmother to Connor, Anabella, Shiloh and Maximus. Patricia will be remembered by many other relatives and friends. Pat was born and raised in London, Ontario, the only child to her parents Rhoda and Alex. Some of her fondest memories of her time in London included getting her first job as a switchboard operator for the Bell Telephone Company and getting her degree in music from Western University, with which she taught piano. Patricia would eventually join the Army Reserves and become a drill-sergeant - a skill that would later prove useful for keeping her children and grandchildren from misbehaving too much. Years later Pat joined the Avon cosmetics company, where she had a very successful career as a sales representative, sitting on the President's Council for many years.
The path of her life was far from simple, but every turn on the way lead her to becoming the wonderful wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother that she was – our Mimi.
As per Patricia's wishes, cremation has taken place. There will be a private gathering for family at a later date, following an interment in her family plot at Woodland Cemetery in London.
A tree will be planted in memory of Patricia in the Dods & McNair Memorial Forest at the Island Lake Conservation Area, Orangeville. The annual dedication service will be held on Sunday, September 8, 2019 at 2:30 p.m.
Condolences may be offered to the family at www.dodsandmcnair.com

VAN BEEK, Edith (nee Cheever)

1934 - 2019

Brampton, ON - Edith (Cheever) Van Beek passed away peacefully Friday, June 14, 2019. She was born in New Bedford, Mass. USA, the oldest of 3 children of Wilbur and Edith Cheever.
After attending Lexington High School, she attended Lesley College and then got her masters from Columbia U. and began teaching elementary school, which she did the rest of her career. Edith also spent a few years in Tanzania, Africa helping start a college there. Here she met Johannes Van Beek. They were married in 1967. In 1968 they emigrated to Canada. Edith continued teaching in the Peel Region. Edith also became an accomplished poet and writer. She had 4 books published between 1982 and 2000.
Edith was predeceased by a brother, David Cheever. Edith is survived by a brother, Wilbur Cheever of Freeport, Maine, USA.
Respecting Edith's request no service will take place.
A tree will be planted in memory of Edith in the Dods & McNair Memorial Forest at the Island Lake Conservation Area, Orangeville. The annual dedication service will be held on Sunday, September 8, 2019 at 2:30 p.m.

In Loving Memory of Donald Lockhart Tower

March 28, 1943 - June 16, 2019 in his 76th year

Donald took his flight to be with the Lord at his home in Ayton with his girls by his side. The world lost a good man in Don Tower but God received a great man. He was the loving husband of Sheryl Tower (Baker) for 57 years. He will be sadly missed but forever remembered by his daughters Casey Tower and Darvey Liedtke (Danny); his grandchildren Jessee Masaro (Steve) and Jared Liedtke (Melissa); and his foster children Steven, William and many other foster children. He will also be remembered by many family members and friends. Donny was born and raised in Amherst, Nova Scotia. He moved to Toronto at a very young age where he made a life for himself and met his wife Sheryl. Donny was a jack of all trades. In his life he was a plant manager, supervisor and drove a delivery milk truck to the orphanage. He moved his family to Grand Valley where he farmed for many years. His passion at that time was horse racing and running a trout farm. One of his many acts of kindness was during the Grand Valley Tornado he rescued a family from their home. Following that they moved to Ayton to what would be their Haven. Now known as Shamadon Resort, this was home for Dad. He managed the park for many years until he retired. They described him "as a man of integrity, full of laughter, a wonderful listener, a shoulder to lean on but most of all, the true face of what Shamadon represents...Family!"

We can think of many wonderful words to describe our father but knowing him he would say "keep it simple" so we will. The word that stands out in our minds is Hero. He took on the task of caring for our mother for the past 8 years, who was diagnosed with Vascular Dementia. His dedication and commitment was beyond words. Our father was a teacher of all things. His method was simple. He taught by example. At any age when faced with a dilemma we find ourselves coming back to one simple question. What would Dad do? Our father was strong in body, spirit and in commitment he was self made and self reliant. These words were ever so true for Dad, a man who let nothing stop him from living life to the fullest. Even in his last hours of life he still made everyone laugh.

Dear Dad:

"God took you in his loving arms
He saw you needed rest
His garden must be beautiful
For he only takes the best"

May you take comfort in knowing there is one more angel above us.

In lieu of flowers, he would ask you to appreciate and embrace nature of all kinds. That you spend time with your children, take a walk, rescue an animal, or help someone in need. If you wish to make a donation you can make it to Procyon Wildlife www.procyonwildlife.com.

We would like to extend our thanks and appreciation to all the Medical Services. A very special thanks to Steve and Minnie Sham, Patrick, Trevor, Sharon, Dawn and Eddie. We could not have done this without you at our side, for that we are truly blessed.

A Celebration of Life/Horseshoe Tournament for Don Tower will be held at Shamadon Resort, 231764 Concession 2 WGR, R.R.3, Ayton (West Grey) on Saturday, September 7, 2019. If you wish to play horseshoes start is at 12:45 p.m. Anyone not wanting to play horseshoes, the gathering will follow the tournament at 3:30 p.m. for a potluck. Please call to RSVP by July 29th 1-519-928-5287. All family and friends will be welcomed.

Online condolences may be made at www.greybrucecremation.com.

WE DON'T BREW OUR BEER FOR THE AWARDS.

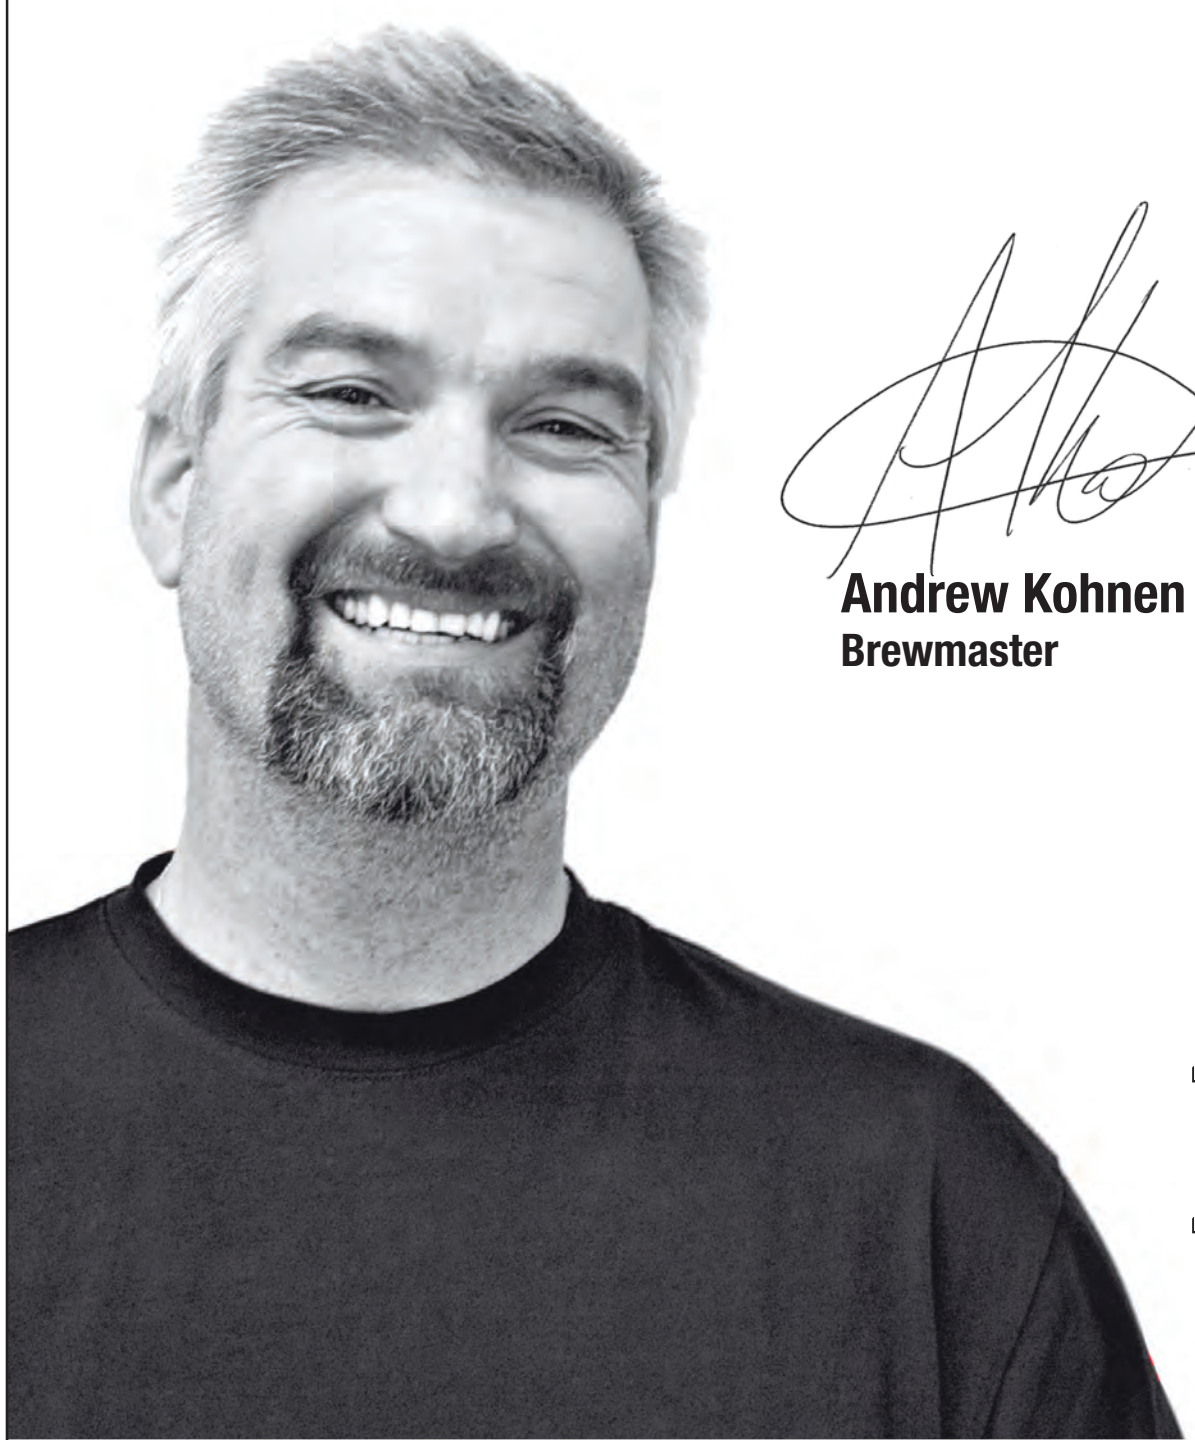

BUT HE DOES!

Our brewmaster, Andrew Kohnen, threw away a successful career in logistics to pursue his dream of reconnecting with the brewing roots of his family. This carried him to the UK's prestigious Brewlab in Sunderland, England, where he procured the alchemy that would drive his signature brewing style.

He took what he could from there and ventured to Scotland, Cornwall, and ultimately to Krefeld, Germany, working in the same brewery that had belonged to his ancestors. He came home to Canada for Hockley.

You could call it dumb, but we call it destiny.
