Black Health & Social Services Hub expected to open next year following Provincial support

BY BROCK WEIR

Peel's Black Health & Social Services Hub is expected to open next summer following a cash infusion by the Provincial government of $25 million.

Envisioned as a full-service location for "Black individuals and families to conveniently access health care and social services in one place, close to home," the support for the hub was announced Wednesday, September 13, by Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones, Deputy Premier and Minister of Health.

"Our government is building a better-connected health care system centred on the needs of all patients and families, no matter where they live," said Jones in a statement. "Our investment in a new Black health hub is an important step in ensuring we have a health care system that makes it easier for diverse communities to connect to the care they need close to home."

Added Anna Greenberg, Executive Lead (Equity, Inclusion, Diversity and Anti-Racism), Ontario Health: "The creation of the Peel Black Health & Social Services Hub is a pivotal development in advancing the Black Health Plan and in ensuring the province is supporting community-led, evidence-based innovations to improve access, experiences, and outcomes for Black populations.

Bolton Fall Fair celebrates 165 years next weekend with new rodeo and more

BY BROCK WEIR

Bolton's venerable Fall Fair will present four days of autumn family fun and agricultural showcases next weekend.

Taking place at the Albion Bolton Fairgrounds, located at 150 Queen Street South, Bolton, the Bolton Fall Fair opens Thursday, September 21, and runs through Sunday, September 24.

Fair-goers can expect the traditional and time-tested attractions of a midway, demolition derby, petting zoo, and more, but new this year will be the Rawhide Rodeo, and a Barn Dance featuring live music from Hillbilly Martini.

"A new event happening this year for the very first time, is the Rawhide Rodeo brought to you by Stewart's Equipment, taking place on Friday at 6:30 p.m. and Saturday at 11 a.m.," say organizers.

Cairn of Peace, landmark of Plowing legacy, marks 60th anniversary

BY ANNE THOMPSON

Each and every day, thousands of motorists travel through Caledon Village on Highway 10 and there are probably very few alive today who know or remember that it was along this busy stretch of highway that the World once flocked.

They came by the thousands for a plowing trifecta—an International Plowing Match, a Canadian Plowing Match and a World Plowing Match.

150,000 in fact, according to the newspaper clippings reporting on the success of the World Plowing Match held on the 1,700-acre farm of Conn Smythe's, one of the Caledon Walk of Fame recipients.

And today, tucked ever so discreetly off to the side of this busy thoroughfare in the heart of the Village is the only remaining reminder of that remarkable event that put Caledon on the world stage—a Cairn of Peace.

Ten years earlier, the very first world Plowing Match was held in Cobourg and the organizing committee wanted to establish a permanent means of commemorating the important event.

The idea of a cairn dedicated to peace was the brainchild of Imperial Oil Limited's J.D. Thomas, who made the suggestion with the hope the idea would be continued by each successive host country.

While the very first cairn was unveiled in Cobourg about two years after the event it was crafted in a traditional design of local stone affixed with a cast iron plough on top. At that time the hope was that all successive cairns would be fashioned in the same design, but instead each host country has developed their own unique design to personalize and commemorate their site.

However, one design feature introduced by Great Britain the following year in 1956 did find favour among successive hosts.

That particular cairn included a block of native stone from each of the competing countries, a concept that has become a permanent feature for all future Cairn designs.

According to God Speed the Plow, a historical account written by John Fennell, a former Secretary Manager of the Ontario Plowmen's Association (OPA), a tablet of granite measuring 16 cm by 8 cm and engraved with the name of their country on it is brought each year to the contest to be built into the host cairn.

In this way, an actual physical part of every competing country is left behind on the host nation's soil, "to remain there forever in a single structure emblematic of the fellowship of common interest symbolized by the humble plow."

Since then, the unveiling of the Cairn of Peace has been an important part of each annual World Plowing Match.

In 1963 the World Plowing Match made a return appearance to Canadian soil and it was the design by the Swiss team of Alfred Knecht and John Berchtold of Brampton that was chosen by the Canadian Plowing Council from amongst the six designs under consideration.

The eight-foot, two-ton concrete globe was backgrounded by the beautiful Credit stone with the 18 native stone insignias supplied by the 18 competition nations and the insignia of the World Plowing Organization (WPO) embedded on the surface. All of the other materials were from within the then County of Peel.

The Cairn of Peace was unveiled in Caledon on Saturday, October 12, 1963, but at the suggestion of Conn Smythe after the match it was moved by its designers and builders Knecht and Berchtold from its initial installation site in the centre of Tented City to its permanent site in front of the then-new Caledon Township offices.

The inscription reads: This Cairn of Peace commemorates the 11th World Ploughing Contest held on the Conn Smythe Farms, Caledon, October 10 & 11, 1963. Similar Cairns arising around the world promote peace and plenty. May this Cairn truly be a memorial to peace and goodwill among nations.

"Another new event taking place on Friday night is a Barn Dance with live music from Hillbilly Martini.

"Many of your Fall Fair favourites are back this year, including the Demolition Derby Saturday evening starting at 7 p.m. Also returning is Global Pet Foods Super Dogs Shows throughout the weekend – you will not want to miss the skills of these dogs.

"It wouldn't be a fair, without the midway, open all weekend, beginning Thursday night for Toonie Rides. There will be lots of free activities, included with the price of admission. This includes but is not limited to: Tiger Paws Petting Zoo, Ag Learning Kids Zone, Pony Rides, Buskers, live bands, face painting and balloon animals, Anna and Elsa Meet and Greet, and Paw Patrol Meet and Greet. You will not want to miss out on all of this excitement."

In messages included as part of the Fair's program, the significance of the milestone anniversary was underscored by Mayor Annette Groves on behalf of Council.

"On behalf of the Town of Caledon, thank you to the Albion and Bolton Agricultural Society for your ongoing commitment to bringing together our community and preserving the rural traditions of Caledon," she said. "We also thank the many volunteers who spend months preparing for this community event. We proudly celebrate the 165th anniversary of the Bolton Fall Fair; its memorable history and promising future for generations to come."

Added Robert Matson, President of the 2023 Albion & Bolton Agricultural Society: "Each year, our dedicated volunteers put on the Albion Bolton Truck and Tractor Pull and the Albion Bolton Fall Fair. Our events celebrate all our community offers and provide exhibitions, demonstrations and competitions promoting agriculture. Even if you've been every year of your life, we assure you that you will always find a new experience at our events.

"We would also invite you to look at the classes and specials for this 165th year of our fair! Whether you are planting a garden for the first time, passing on the family quilting tradition, or just learning your ABCs, there is something for you to enter at the Fair. With the theme of 'Potatoes, Pumpkins, and Pies – Oh My,' we are eager to see what you bring to the table. We encourage you to mark your calendars and join us for our special events. Whether you come for the food, the music or the rides, you will surely have a wonderful time. We look forward to seeing you all there!"

REWARD FOR INFORMATION IN ALLISTON MURDER CASE

One year later, the investigation continues into the murder of 38-year-old Sibel Duzguner (nee Yirtici) with a $50,000 reward announced as her family appeals for the missing piece of information to find her killer(s).

"On August 26, 2022, shortly before 6:30 a.m., members of the Nottawasaga Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) and emergency services responded to reports of gunshots at a residence on Kidd Crescent in Alliston," say Police. "Sibel Duzguner, who was 38 years of age at the time, was located outside the residence with apparent gunshot wounds and transported to hospital, where she was pronounced deceased.

"The investigation has revealed that as Sibel got into her car to leave for work that morning, a vehicle drove up to her residence and an unknown suspect fired gunshots into her vehicle at approximately 6:25 a.m., fatally injuring her. The suspect(s) drove off in their vehicle."

The search continues to locate the vehicle of interest, described as a grey 2011-2012 Volkswagen Jetta, which was observed in the area of Kidd Crescent shortly before the shooting.

Anyone who may have observed the vehicle prior to and/or during the time of the incident is asked to contact police.

"It is believed that the shooting was targeted and not random or a case of mistaken identity. Investigators have continued to follow up on tips and information provided by the public and together with Sibel's family, are appealing for anyone with any information, no matter how minor, to come forward.

"Sibel is described by her family as a loving mother of three with a strong connection to the local Turkish and Muslim communities. Sibel immigrated to Canada from Turkiye in 2003 with big dreams. She worked hard to integrate herself into her Canadian life, recently purchasing her own home and her own car, and planning to remarry. Sibel leaves behind her children, who lived with her in Canada, and her family in Turkiye, including six siblings and her father."

Anyone who was in the neighbourhood of Kidd Crescent between 5:30 a.m. and 6:30 a.m. on August 26, 2022, has surveillance video or dashcam or any information in relation to this investigation is asked to contact police. Any minor detail may be the key piece to this investigation.

The Government of the Province of Ontario is now offering a $50,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person(s) responsible for the murder of Sibel Duzguner.

OPP Central Region Crime Units continue the investigation under the direction of the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch, with assistance from the OPP Forensic Identification Services and in collaboration with the Office of the Chief Coroner for Ontario.

Anyone with information is asked to contact the OPP through a dedicated tip line at 1-844-677-9407 or the OPP non-emergency number at 1-888-310-1122. Information can also be reported anonymously to Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477) or crimestoppers.ca.

ARMED ROBBERY INVESTIGATION

Members of the Caledon Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) are investigating a robbery at a private residence.

"On September 11, 2023, shortly after midnight, officers responded to a report of a robbery at a residential home on Heather Street, in the Town of Caledon," say Police. "It was reported that three suspects forcefully entered the house and demanded a variety of items while brandishing a knife. Property was stolen, including currency and a 2019 black Acura MDX with Ontario license plate number CYPP 068. No injuries were sustained as a result of this incident."

The investigation is ongoing by the Caledon Major Crime Unit, with the assistance from the OPP Forensic Identification Unit (FIS).

Investigators believe this is a targeted incident and there are no threats to public safety. Anyone with any information, including dash cam footage of the area at that time, should contact the Caledon OPP at 905-584-2241 or toll-free at 1-888-310-1122. You can also provide information anonymously by contacting Peel Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477) or online at www.peelcrimestoppers.ca. When you contact Crime Stoppers, you stay anonymous and you never have to testify.

IMPAIRED CHARGES

Officers from the Caledon Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) have charged two drivers with impaired operation in one evening.

"On September 4, 2023, shortly after 10:00 p.m., an officer on patrol on King Street in Bolton stopped a vehicle for Highway Traffic Act violations," say Police. "During the investigation, grounds were formed that the driver was operating a motor vehicle while their ability was impaired by alcohol."

As a result, Jaskaran Singh, 24, of Caledon, was charged with:

- Operation while impaired - blood alcohol concentration (80 plus);
- Drive vehicle with cannabis readily available;
- Driver fail to properly wear seatbelt.

The charges have not been proven.

"Shortly thereafter, at approximately midnight, Caledon OPP received two traffic complaints from concerned citizens over the manner a vehicle was being operated on Airport Road. Officers located the vehicle and stopped it. The investigation led officers to arrest the driver since grounds were formed that the vehicle was being operated while their ability was impaired by alcohol."

As a result, Zoltan Lakatos, 50, of Etobicoke, was charged with:

- Operation while impaired – alcohol;
- Operation while impaired - blood alcohol concentration (80 plus).

The charges have not been proven.

Both accused are scheduled to appear at the Ontario Court of Justice in Orangeville on September 21, 2023, to answer to the charges. Their driver's licences were suspended for 90 days, and the vehicles impounded for 14.

"Caledon OPP would like to take this opportunity to thank the member of the public who placed the call to police. The report may have saved a life. Motorists are reminded that no amount of alcohol or drugs in your system is safe when driving. If you plan on drinking or consuming drugs, plan to not drive. Instead, arrange for a designated driver, take a taxi or public transit, or come up with another plan that takes impaired driving out of the picture. If you suspect that someone is driving while impaired by alcohol or drugs, it is important to call 9-1-1 to report it.

"You can also provide information anonymously by contacting Peel Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477) or online at www.peelcrimestoppers.ca. When you contact Crime Stoppers, you stay anonymous, and you never have to testify."

For more information about the penalties of driving impaired, visit: www.ontario.ca/page/impaired-driving.

DRUG AND WEAPONS CHARGES

The Nottawasaga Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) has arrested and charged two adult males with several weapons and drug related charges.

"On September 6, 2023 officers from the Nottawasaga detachment entered into an investigation which lead to the seizure of a loaded firearm, 10.5oz of cocaine, 1000 Xanax pills, 811 grams of marijuana, and ammunition were seized," say Police.

As a result of a police investigation, members of the Nottawasaga OPP have laid 13 charges against Sebastian Robinson-Villarroel, 20, from Essa, related to weapon and drug offences.

The charges have not been proven.

Additionally, Kieran Jordan, 19, from New Tecumseth, faces eight charges linked to weapons, drugs and failing to comply with a prohibition order.

The charges have not been proven.

Both were held pending a bail hearing.

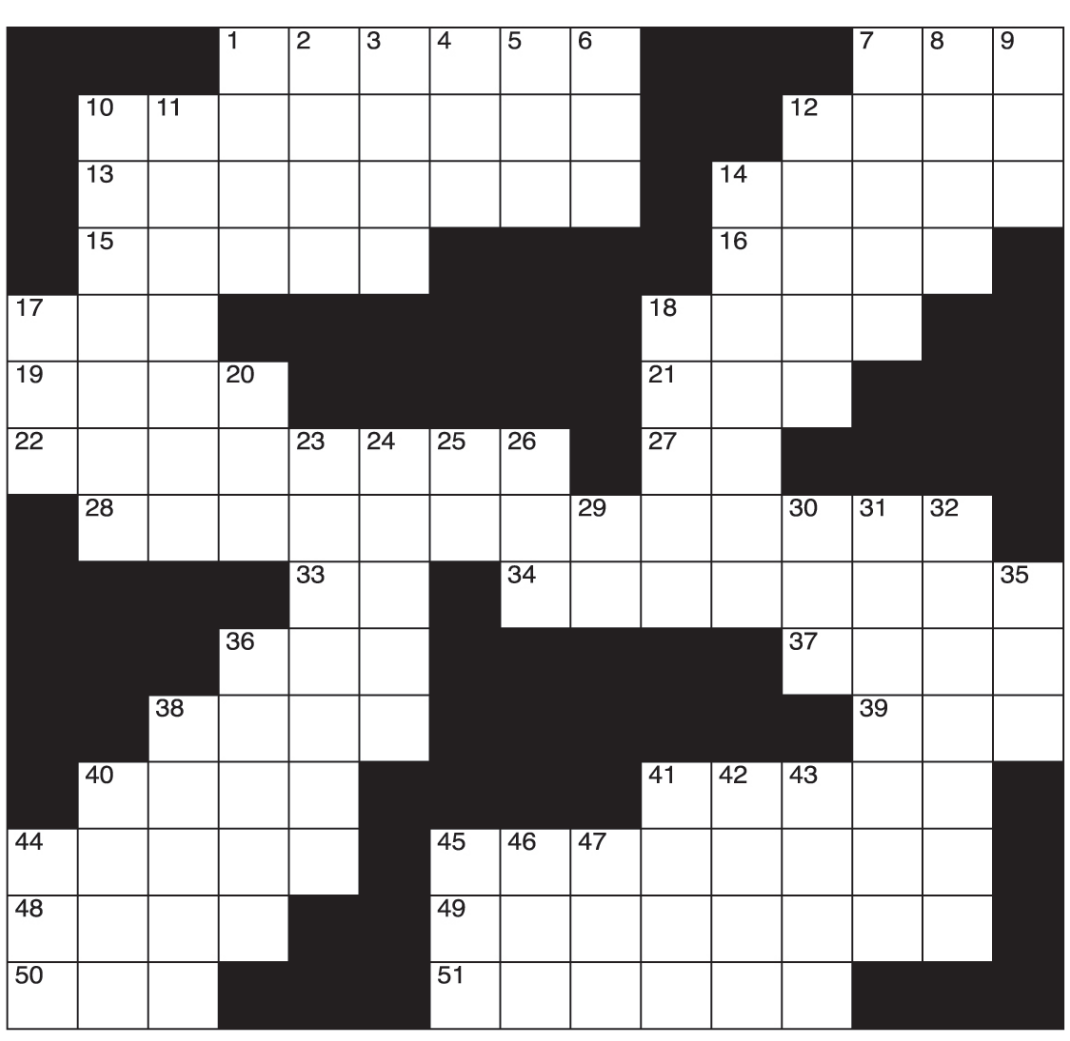

If you have any information about crime in our community, please contact the OPP at 1-888-310-1122. You can also call Crime Stoppers anonymously at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477) or submit your information online at www.crimestopperssdm.com. Crime Stoppers does not subscribe to call display, and you will remain anonymous. You will not testify in court and your information may lead to a cash reward of up to $2,000.

Bolton to benefit from increased connectivity to high-speed internet

BY MARK PAVILONS

More than $219 million in combined federal and provincial funding for Rogers will help bring high-speed internet access to more than 66,000 households in over 300 Ontario communities, including over 600 Indigenous households.

Bolton will get the enhanced service.

The government believes that all Canadians need access to reliable high-speed internet, no matter where they live. The governments of Canada and Ontario are taking action to bring high-speed internet access to unserved and underserved communities across Ontario.

The projects are part of an existing partnership between Ontario and Canada. On July 29, 2021, the governments announced a Canada-Ontario broadband partnership to support large-scale, fibre-based projects that will provide high-speed internet access to more than 280,000 households across the province.

This historic agreement was made possible by a joint federal-provincial investment totalling more than $1.2 billion.

This recent funding builds on the federal government's progress toward ensuring that 98 per cent of Canadians have access to high-speed internet by 2026, and 100 per cent by 2030.

The announcement also brings the Government of Ontario closer to achieving its goal of bringing reliable high-speed internet access to every community in the province by the end of 2025.

"We all know that internet is no longer a luxury –it's a necessity. Today's announcement is a significant milestone for internet connectivity in rural Ontario. Working with Rogers, we will help connect more than 66,000 underserved households in over 300 rural communities in Ontario, including over 600 Indigenous households. Our government will continue to work side by side with our partners to achieve our connectivity targets and ensure that every Canadian, no matter where they live, has access to high-speed internet," said Gudie Hutchings, Minister of Rural Economic Development and Minister responsible for the Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency.

"This investment is critical to ensuring that people and businesses alike can access high-speed internet when and where they need it. This initiative is another step forward as we fulfill our government's connectivity commitment by 2025," added Lisa Thompson, Ontario's Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs.

"Access to reliable high-speed internet is critical for residents in Ontario today to stay connected with friends and family, and for businesses to operate and grow. We are proud to invest with the Government of Canada and the Government of Ontario to bring high-speed fibre internet access to more than 66,000 households across southern Ontario, part of our coast-to-coast wireline network," said Ron McKenzie, Chief Technology and Information Officer, Rogers Communications Inc.

Canada's Connectivity Strategy aims to provide all Canadians with access to internet speeds of at least 50 megabits per second (Mbps) download/10 Mbps upload.

The Universal Broadband Fund is a $3.225 billion investment by the Government of Canada designed to help provide high-speed internet access to 98 per cent of Canadians by 2026 and achieve the national target of 100 per cent access by 2030.

Today, 93.5 per cent of Canadian households have access to high-speed internet, compared to just 79 per cent in 2014.

The Ontario government is investing nearly $4 billion to bring access to reliable high-speed internet to every community across the province by the end of 2025.

As of August 2023, Ontario has finalized agreements totalling more than $2.3 billion for nearly 200 high-speed internet and cellular projects that will bring access to more than 500,000 homes and businesses across the province.

Earlier this year, Ontario launched a new interactive online map that shows where provincially funded high-speed internet projects are planned, are currently under way or have been recently completed. Ontarians can use the map to learn about projects in their area and find out where high-speed internet service is currently available.

In 2021, Ontario passed the Supporting Broadband and Infrastructure Expansion Act, 2021 to help speed up construction of high-speed internet projects. To build upon this legislation, the Ontario government also passed the Getting Ontario Connected Act, 2022, which further reduces barriers, duplication and delays.

Town recruiting for Fire Chief

Looking for a position that involves continuous service improvement, strategic planning, leading a team of fire service professionals while providing key safety programs and services to the community? The Town of Caledon is recruiting for the position of Director of Fire and Emergency Services/Fire Chief.

Reporting directly to the Chief Administrative Officer, this role is responsible for the organization, operation and administration of the Fire Department and Community Emergency Management Program. The Fire Chief through leadership and strategic direction will establish plans, programs, budgets, policy and procedures, by-laws and other legislation which affect the Department's operation. The position is also responsible for the management, including supervision, and evaluation of staff and for providing technical advice on fire protection and prevention matters to all Town departments.

This position as part of the Senior Leadership Team, plays a key role in the implementation of the Town's strategic plan and the management of corporate goals, priorities and actions plans consistent with Council policies ensuring that all services are delivered efficiently, effectively and responsibly.

Region of Peel
working with you

NOTICE OF PUBLIC INFORMATION CENTRE NO. 2 - Schedule C Class EA
West Caledon Storage Facility and Transmission Main

Background:

The Region of Peel completed the 2020 Water and Wastewater Master Plan for the Lake-based Systems which identified the need to construct a new pressure zone 7 water storage and transmission main infrastructure for West Caledon. This Municipal Class Environmental Assessment (EA) was initiated to support this recommendation by developing, evaluating, and selecting a preferred storage facility and transmission main route to service the projected growth within the study area to 2051.

Process:

The study follows a Schedule C Class EA process including:

- Holding public and agency stakeholder engagement meetings
- Providing a solution that best meets the needs of existing and future servicing areas
- Investigating alternative long-term servicing strategies, routes, and design concepts
- Supporting the phased implementation of the preferred plan
- Confirming the preferred plan including routes, storage sites, design, and schedule

Your Input is Important:

Public Information Centre (PIC) No. 1 was held on November 9th, 2022 and presented the study objectives, Class EA process and the evaluation and selection of the focus area for the new storage facility. PIC materials can be found on the project website below.
https://www.peelregion.ca/public-works/environmental-assessments/caledon/west-caledon-storage-facility.asp

Two additional PICs are planned for this project.

PIC No. 2
Date and Time: Wednesday, September 20th, 2023 from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.
Location: Margaret Dunn Valleywood Library and Community Room, 20 Snelcrest Drive, Caledon, ON L7C 1B5

PIC No. 2 will outline the evaluation of the solution alternatives within the Infrastructure Focus Area, discuss the findings as per the Technical Discipline Studies, and present the selected preliminary preferred servicing solution including the location of the storage facility and transmission main alignment. Information will be presented on display boards and staff will be available to answer any questions and discuss the next steps in the study process. The final PIC (PIC No. 3) is planned for Spring 2024 and will be published at a later date.

Famed equestrian, realtor Moffat Dunlap passes away

BY MARK PAVILONS

A medal-winning equestrian, and real estate professional, Moffat Dunlap, has passed away.

The well-known and respected King resident left an unrivalled legacy in the equestrian and real estate fields.

His King-based firm specializes in luxury country properties across the GTA, and in particular, King and Caledon.

Moffat Dunlap Real Estate Limited has been licensed in the real estate industry for more than 45 years. Since 1972, Moffat owned and operated his own independent firm, specializing in the purchase and sale of country properties in the Greater Toronto Area.

Moffat Dunlap is well known throughout the Canadian horse and farm community, having been a 20-year member of the show jumping team of the Canadian Equestrian Team (a Team Bronze Medal winner at the 1967 Pan-American Games and Team Gold Medal winner at the 1970 World Championships).

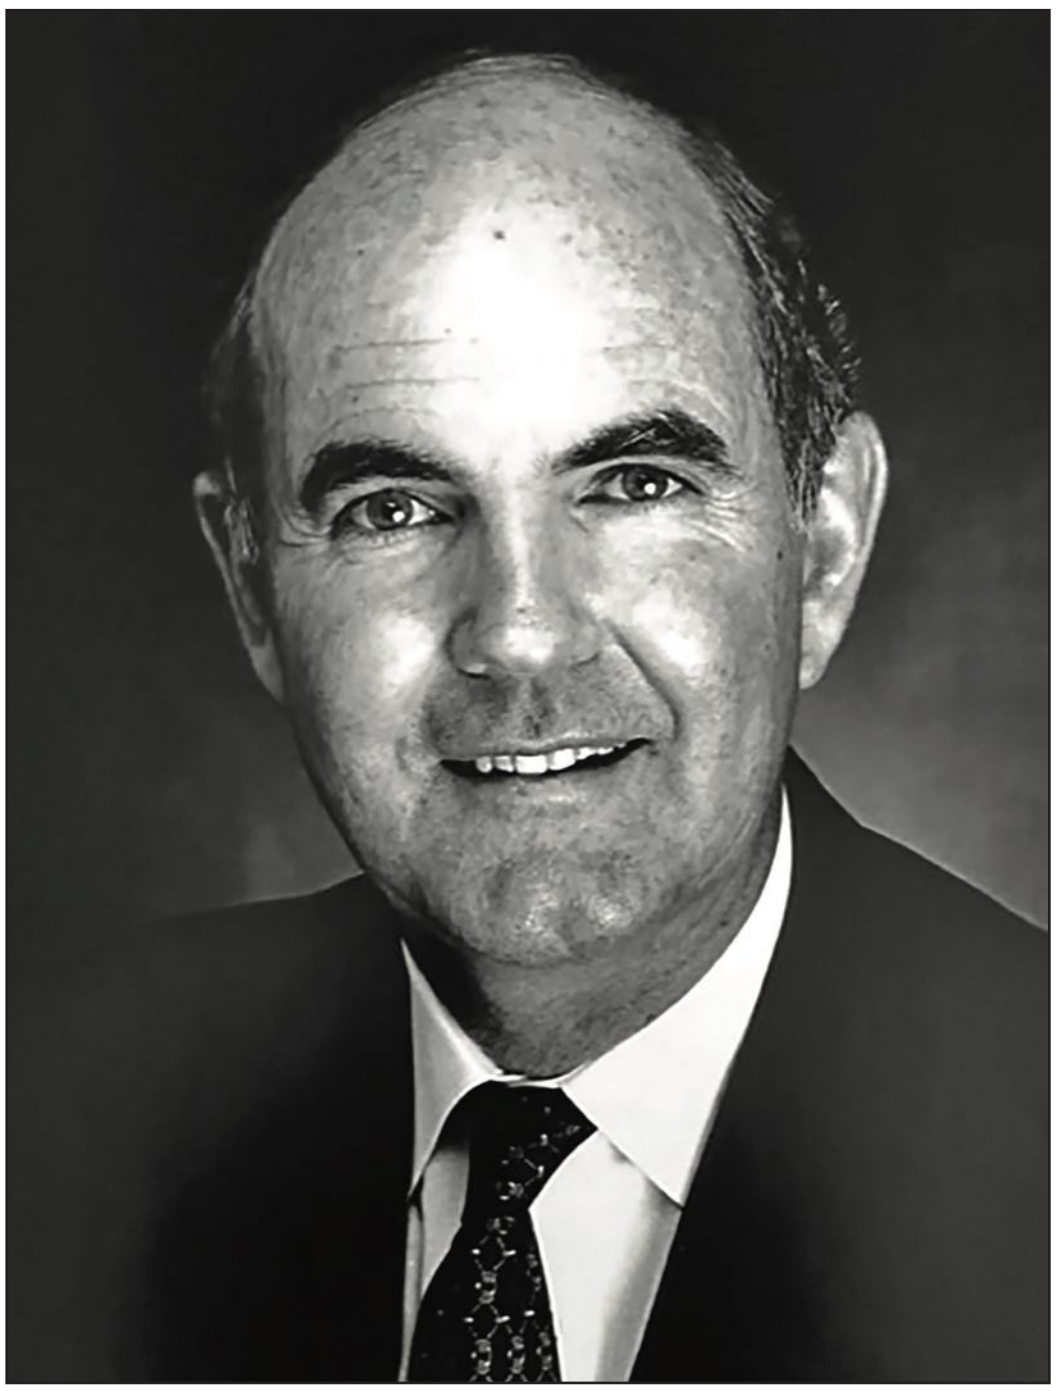

He served on many boards and management committees; a former director and Jumping Team Chairman of the Canadian Equestrian team over the Los Angeles Olympic Games; a past Director of the Canadian Pony Club; the Canadian Horse Council; the Canadian Horse Shows Association; the Horseman's Benevolent and Protective Association.

He was an Honourary Director of the Canadian Therapeutic Riding Association and a Director, former Horse Show Chairman and a Past President of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair.

Moffat was inducted into the Jump Canada Hall of Fame in 2015. According to Jump Canada, his life-long commitment to show jumping, his generosity towards his teammates, and his dedication to the continued improvement of Canada's hunter/jumper industry made him a "true builder of the sport."

"Strong, yet quiet, Moffat instilled a sense of trust in those he worked with, and developed a reputation for always being good to his word," Jump Canada noted during his induction.

Moffat was also co-founder of King's independent school, The Country Day School, which today boasts an enrolment of 725 students.

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

The idea to start The Country Day School was the topic of a 1971 dinner conversation between Moffat Dunlap, the late Margo Bindhardt, Edmond G. Eberts and the late Daphne Eberts. All were in agreement that King Township was in need of a co-ed private elementary school. Moffat and Margo enrolled their two children, Louise and John, the year the School opened. Moffat's youngest daughters, Daphne and Allie, also attended CDS starting in the late 1980s.

"The Country Day School community is profoundly saddened to hear the news of the passing of our Co-Founder, Mr. Moffat Dunlap. Moffat was a driving force behind starting our school, serving as one of the original trustees and as Chairman of the CDS Foundation for years. He sent all four of his children to CDS; two starting the year the school opened in 1972. CDS benefited immensely from Moffat's guidance and knowledge of the King real estate market, especially in negotiating the lease of the original property in the early days. His passing is an incredible loss not only to our community, but all of King and the Canadian Equestrian community. The Dunlap name will live on forever in the hallways and classrooms of CDS and proudly adorns one of our four houses – Dunlap House," said John Liggett, Head of School.

Moffat also worked on the purchase of land and subsequent rezoning for Canada's Wonderland for the owner, Taft Broadcasting of Cincinnati, Ohio in the 1970s. He helped with the sale of Eaton Hall to become Seneca College's King Campus and rezoning for the King Ranch Health Spa (now Kingbridge), designed and built to be a world class facility.

In Caledon, Moffat helped with the land assembly and rezoning of the Devil's Pulpit Golf Course and in Aurora, assembled lands for the world headquarters of Magna International.

Moffat also was involved in the management and sale of Glenville Farms, a 700-acre agricultural show place in King. He was also involved in the sale of Green Meadows, the famed Leslie Street estate of the late J.A. (Bud) McDougald, one of Canada's captains of industry.

Moffat acted as the Koffler family's advisor and agent when their property, Joker's Hill (890 acres), was gifted to the University of Toronto – the largest single gift the University has ever received.

His firm is a member of Provincial and National Real Estate Boards and Associations (Toronto Real Estate Board, Ontario Real Estate Association and the Canadian Real Estate Association). The firm and its associates are well regarded in the community and offer a very high level of experience and commitment to their clients.

Moffat graduated from Upper Canada College (Toronto) and the University of Western Ontario (London, ON). He also served on the Equine Advisory Board at both Humber and Seneca Colleges; was a member of the capital fund raising team at the Princess Margaret Hospital and the Southlake Regional Health Centre Foundation and co-chairman of The York Region Police Appreciation Committee. Moffat was a member of the Toronto Club for over 40 years.

"Beer, it's the best damn drink in the world."

Cheers to Jack Nicholson

EcoCaledon putting focus on saving energy at home for third phase of enviro-challenge

Event being held on September 30 at Albion Bolton Community Centre

BY ZACHARY ROMAN
LOCAL JOURNALISM
INITIATIVE REPORTER

An upcoming event will show Caledon residents how they can help the environment at home.

From 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on September 30, EcoCaledon will host a "Reducing Your Home Energy Footprint" event at the Albion Bolton Community Centre (150 Queen Street South).

The event is the third out of four events to be held in EcoCaledon's year-long enviro-challenge.

Launched on May 6, the enviro-challenge encourages Caledon residents to take action to reduce their impact on the environment. Participants in the event have the opportunity to earn recognition and win prizes, all while reducing their impact on the environment.

The September 30 event will showcase all kinds of ways people can save energy at home, from small and simple actions to large home retrofits.

In attendance at the event will be numerous experts across multiple sectors, including: the Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, to talk about its Green Homes program; the Town of Caledon, to talk about its Peel Residential Energy program; Polaron, to talk about residential solar panels; and Linked Home, to talk about heating and cooling.

There will also be Caledon residents who have made energy-efficient changes to their homes who will share what the process was like.

Lucrezia Chiappetta, co-chair of EcoCaledon, said it will be great for people to have the chance to talk to people who have been through these experiences already.

Enbridge's municipal energy solutions team will be at the event to chat about the Enbridge Home Efficiency Rebate and the Federal Greener Homes Grant application process.

Chiappetta explained with experts set up all around the room at the Albion Bolton Community Centre, the event is kind of like "speed networking" and residents can come and chat to whoever they would like to right away.

She said some simple ways people can save energy at home include ensuring lights are turned off; unplugging unused appliances and chargers; and replacing old light bulbs with more efficient LED bulbs.

Chiappetta said another great way to save energy at home is to use an energy-efficient thermostat. On an eco-setting, she said a system will either heat or cool to try to keep a home within the eco temperatures range (a few degrees off the average temperature).

"Even those couple of degrees can make a big difference in your energy use," said Chiappetta. "It's one of the easiest and most passive ways that people can be contributing to energy conservation."

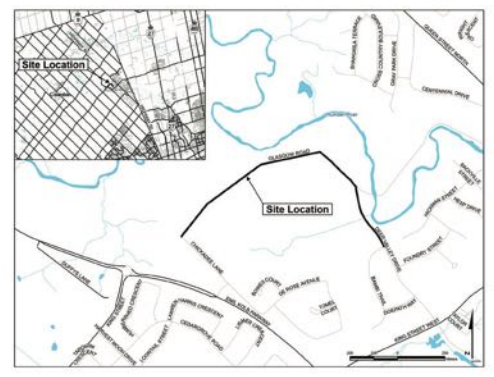

Forced air heat pumps are another great way to help the environment, said Chiappetta. These pumps can pull heat out of the cold outdoor air and transfer it inside in the winter; and, in summer they can pull heat out of the home to cool it.

MUNICIPAL CLASS ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT STUDY
GLASGOW ROAD FROM CHICKADEE LANE TO DEER VALLEY DRIVE AND DEER VALLEY DRIVE TO BAMBI TRAIL

THE STUDY

In response to continued population growth and increased wear and tear on existing infrastructure through increased traffic, development, new infrastructure, and increased expectations as to the type and quality of services the Town provides, the Town of Caledon has identified the need for improvements to Glasgow Road, from Chickadee Lane to Deer Valley Drive. Through subsequent review of the original study area and discussions with the Town, the study area and limits of the preliminary design have been extended to include an additional 300 m of Deer Valley Drive, from Glasgow Road to Bambi Trail, to address a missing link in the Town's active transportation network. The active transportation facility will provide better pedestrian and cyclist connectivity, enhance bicycle and pedestrian travel, and ultimately improve livability in communities.

The project was initiated as a Schedule "A+" Municipal Class Environmental Assessment, however, has since been elevated to a Schedule "B" project in accordance with the Municipal Class Environmental Assessment (October 2000, as amended in 2007, 2011 & 2015). As such, public and technical agency consultation will play a key role in developing the study recommendations. The purpose of this Schedule "B" Municipal Class Environmental Assessment is to identify the required improvements to the roadway, enhance safety, improve traffic operations, and better accommodate pedestrians and cyclists.

ONLINE PUBLIC INFORMATION SESSION

The purpose of this notice is to invite interested stakeholders to participate in an online Public Information Centre (PIC) #2. A notice was previously sent on January 12th, 2023 to provide notification of Public Information Centre #1 that was held in January 2023.

We invite you to join us for an Online Public Information Centre (PIC) #2 via WebEx webinar. The webinar will allow the project team to share information and receive input from the public on the study to date, including the problem/opportunity, existing conditions, and the recommended plan. The PIC material will be made available for review and comment from September 21 to October 23, 2023.

Procedural By-law Review

The Town of Caledon is reviewing its rules on how Council and Committee meetings run (Procedural By-law). A key part of the review is to collect input from the community on how to improve meetings. The bylaw is updated every few years with the last full review done in 2015.

Tell us how can we improve our council meetings

Through this review, we hope to:

- improve the meeting experience for all, including Council and Committee members, the public, presenters and delegates;
- ensure decision making is effective; reflect changes to technology, including the hybrid meeting model; and
- incorporate changes in legislation and other best practices.

BROCK WEIR
BROCK'S BANTER

Journey, destination and everything in between

It seems like everybody is in a hurry these days.

Yes, I realize that's hardly a ground-breaking observation; after all, people have had the same beef since time began to be measured.

Many are the old movies and TV shows where a recent arrival to North America from some vague-sounding "Old Country" – usually minimally-described part of Europe – observes (or, more often, complains) about the pace of life in their new homeland compared to what they left behind.

But has anything really changed?

Based on my own personal experiences, I'd venture a guess that it has, but if you asked me to put my finger on the particulars it might prove more of a challenge.

Maybe it's not the hurried pace itself, but rather what seems to be the increasing desire to forego the journey in favour of getting directly to the destination.

Witness Labour Day weekend at the start of this month.

This year, as it has been since the holiday's inception, Labour Day was hailed as the last weekend of Summer with people kicking themselves into overdrive to make the most out of the time that remained – seemingly carefree that there were almost four weeks of summer left on the calendar to enjoy.

It is less of an end-of-season feeling than a shift to the back-to-reality mindset, but it seemed like such a waste to write off what was and truly is the balance of the summer.

As much as we collectively look forward to the warmer months, we're increasingly eager to while it away as well. Yet, at the same time, we're also eager to get it started.

Victoria Day, of course, is celebrated by many as the unofficial kick-off to summer despite there being nearly a month left of spring before the Solstice arrives in our hemisphere. Few people profess to look forward to the winter months – bemoaning the snow and ice that is part and parcel of the Canadian experience has been a proud part of our heritage since before Confederation – but even now some of us are counting down to December 25 and everything the holiday season has to offer.

Consumerism, of course, plays a part in that as those who stand to make a buck from the seasonal excitement ramp up urgency and eagerness to get as many people as possible on side, but most are willing participants in the mayhem. One only has to look at the Black Friday nonsense in the States, a phenomenon where people are willing to trample over each other for a discounted Dustbuster, and our own homegrown phenomena of Cyber Monday and our fabled Boxing Day door crashers, to get a flavour.

Then there's the trope that sticks with us throughout the summer that would have us believe parents the continent-over are just counting down the days of summer – dog days or otherwise – until they can get their kids out of their hair, out of their house, and back into schools as soon as humanly possible.

There's nothing wrong with keeping your eyes on the future, but it's never a good idea to do so at the expense of the present.

I say this as time management issues are near the front of my mind.

I'm not sure how many of you are in the same boat, it feels as though time is moving much faster now than it did prior to the global pandemic.

Most of us have settled into what we used to describe as our "new normal" reasonably well, and I think I did reasonably well, too, but it no longer feels there are enough hours in the day to accomplish what was once a relative walk in the park.

Despite my workload having stabilized outside of our near-collective must-work-at-home era, it feels like quitting time is getting later and later. It used to be nice to hit the gym after work to clear the head, but more often these days office time is outlasting the motivation and being on a treadmill past midnight doesn't seem like an attractive option. Nor does, truth be told, being there before 6 a.m. the next day to make up for lost time.

I know, I know, that one's on me.

Around this time of year, prior to 2020, my schedule would be jam-packed with trips into the city for the Toronto International Film Festival – yet, somehow, time for more than one or two films per fest doesn't exist anymore.

Community wide, events that form the hallmark of our neighbourhood calendars each year, are coming at a pace faster and more furious than ever before. There used to be a good amount of breathing room between each, allowing each to have its moment in the spotlight, but now the pace seems ever so more relentless.

Maybe it's just me, but maybe not. Also increasing are the number of times I hear, "Is it that time of year already?" or "I can't believe it's been a year since…" – and I'm sure you can fill in the blank.

Perhaps a driving force behind this sensation is the increasing desire for instant gratification.

We're living in a world where a photo you've snapped on your travels can be instantly beamed to your friends and, if has that elusive "It" factor to make it go viral, around the globe, along with all the kudos that can be collected.

It's an environment where there's a desire to be first out of the gate with any number of things, regardless of quality.

In the case of news, as we have seen in so many forums thanks to the 24-hour news cycle, there can be the desire to break a story first rather than having all the facts at your disposal.

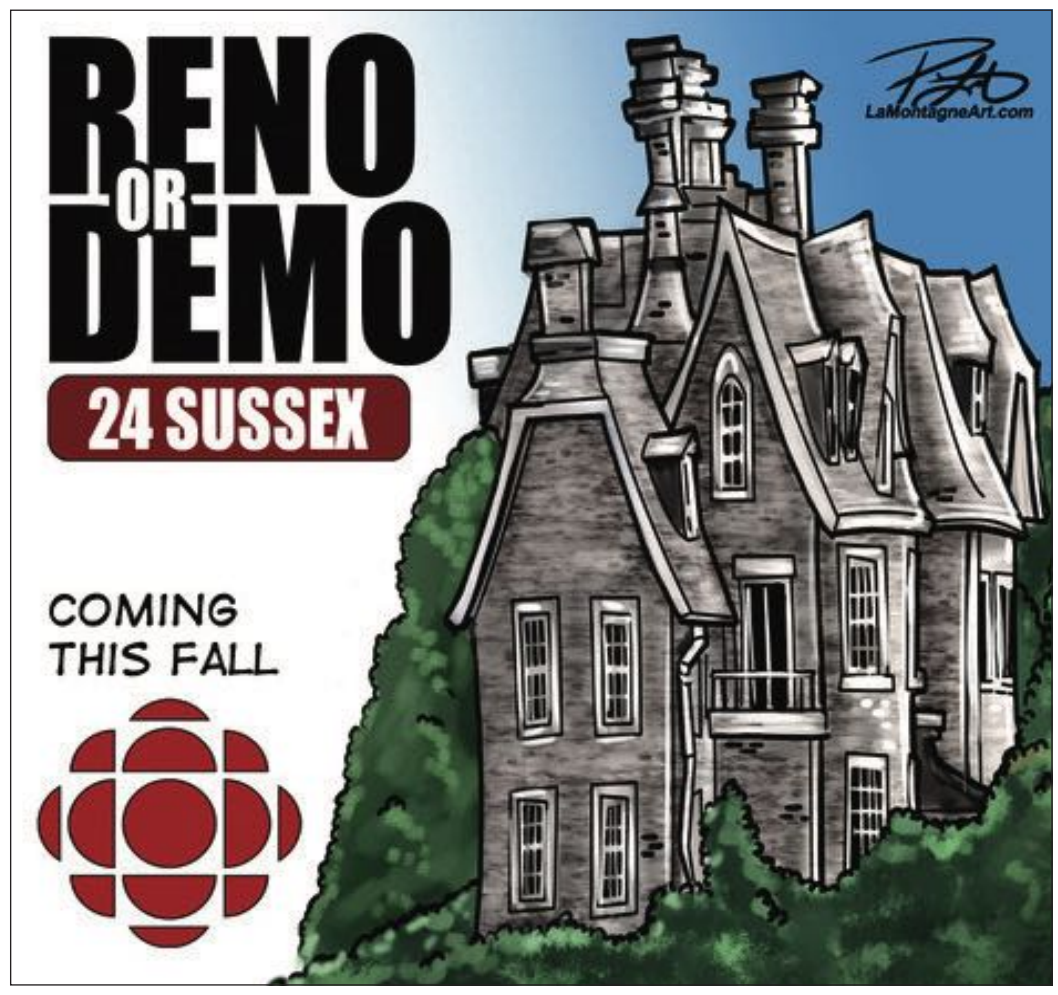

It's a climate where there's a certain social cachet to be the first to forge a new path, buy a new product, cross a fashionable destination off an ever-growing bucket list, or, in the case of TIFF, see a would-be hit (or miss) before the rest of the world can have that pleasure in a local movie theatre.

But, in this quest, however admirable the specifics might be, we seem to be looking forward to the passage of time or, worse, looking for ways to "kill time" on the journey toward the destination.

But the destination is just as important.

My own experience with the rapid passage of time might not be everyone's, but whatever your journey might be to your destination of choice, take advantage of the moment while you can.

Otherwise, you might feel short-changed at the end.

Canadian employees looking for more purpose

by Mark Pavilons

It's been said the reward for a job well done is that you get to do even more!

When you're surrounded by people who share a passionate commitment around a common purpose, anything is possible, according to Howard Schultz.

He also said that if you don't love what you're doing with unbridled passion and enthusiasm, you're not going to succeed when you hit obstacles.

On that point, many of us "older" workers have been there, or are there.

After decades of honing our skills and trying to make a difference in our work, we sometimes get stale, slow a bit and lose some of that umph.

So, the key is to look at the work, approach it a bit differently, and make it enjoyable by finding even the tiniest smidgen of joy and fun.

It's there, waiting to be uncovered. Believe me.

After more than a decade of writing about issues at King Council, I still try to use my empathy and passion to create clear, understandable articles on issues that impact residents.

It may not impact me directly, but as a father, husband, homeowner and dog owner, I can likely find a lot of things I have in common with most taxpayers.

A survey I came across examined Canadians' perceptions, hopes and desires regarding the ever-evolving workplace, finding that people are seeking more intrinsic value and greater sense of purpose in their work than before the pandemic.

Commissioned by First Onsite Property Restoration, Canada's leading property restoration company, the workplace values survey of more than 1,500 Canadian adults found that three-quarters of Canadians would like to work in an industry where they are helping people.

87 per cent of Canadians feel employee wellbeing is a human right. Women are considerably more likely to feel this way than men (92%-82%).

75 per cent of Canadians feel hybrid working is here to stay. Women are considerably more likely to feel this way than men (81%-70%).

75 per cent of Canadians would like to work in an industry where they are helping people.

Almost half of Canadians (48%) desire a greater sense of purpose in their work than before the pandemic.

41 per cent of Canadians feel they lack options for purposeful employment.

23 per cent of Canadians plan to quit or change jobs in 2023. Younger adults, aged 18-34 (at 34%) are far more likely to feel this way than those aged 35-54 (19%) and those aged 55+ (13%).

"A few things are clear from our survey. Many Canadian employees are concerned about finding meaning in what they do for work," said Brian Hughes, Vice President of Human Resources for First Onsite Property Restoration. "It's increasingly important for HR leaders to focus on individual wellbeing and ensuring employees and managers are in the right resilient headspace. As the world and businesses change, workforces need ways to deal with high stress situations and evolve to be adaptable and effective."

The survey revealed that employee wellbeing is a "human right" and most are adamant that hybrid working is here to stay.

A majority of respondents feel their workplace treats them like a "whole person," rather than just an employee. That's great to hear.

"If there is one thing the pandemic has taught us, it is the human desire to live more meaningful and enriched lives," said Hughes. "It is about finding the why in everything – from work life to personal life. This goes beyond traditional salary and benefits and includes helping employees learn to find their purpose, which in the long run, creates stronger organizations and bolsters employee retention."

"The way you get meaning into your life is to devote yourself to loving others, devote yourself to your community around you, and devote yourself to creating something that gives you purpose and meaning," said Mitch Albom.

I think as we age we do become a bit wiser and get a better understanding of the big picture. And that picture includes family, leisure time, health and just enjoying the little things. There are so many micro-moments each day that bring a smile to our faces, it's simply amazing. If we collected all of those in a jar, they would overflow in no time.

Following my treatment for prostate cancer, you would think I had some sort of epiphany or miracle moment of clarity. No such luck.

Sure, I thanked God and my lucky stars that I made it through all the hurdles. I still have a purpose, and I didn't come this far to only come this far.

I want to go further.

While some journalists get "stale," I have found that my writing has actually improved in the last decade at the Weekly Sentinel.

And the people I have met, well there simply aren't enough kind words to describe the friends and acquaintances I have made. And the number of well wishes attest to King's sense of community and how they look after one another.

In many ways, my role as editor of the Weekly Sentinel is not "work," but a way of life, a pursuit of knowledge and spreading awareness. How cool is that?

I will leave you with words from Martin Luther King, Jr.:

"Whatever your life's work is, do it well. A man should do his job so well that the living, the dead, and the unborn could do it no better."

Hiding in plain sight

BRIAN LOCKHART
FROM THE SECOND ROW

If you were hosting a party in your home, and the doorbell rang to reveal two people you didn't know, that looked like they were of questionable character, and said they were there for the party, would you invite them in?

Would you have two strangers in your house without knowing who there were, what they really wanted, and not knowing anything about them? What if you knew they were both local career criminals who were wanted by police?

I'll bet you would politely tell them it was a private party, close the door, and hope they go away.

Our national party seems be getting crashed.

The Globe and Mail has uncovered reports that federal authorities in Canada have issued arrest warrants for three hundred foreign criminals deemed to be a danger to the public. These people include sex offenders and people convicted of violent crimes, according to the Canada Border Services.

They are also trying to track down more than 37,000 foreigners who may pose a flight risk, may not voluntarily agree to be questioned or attend an immigration hearing, or who may pose a danger to the public. That number is the size of a small city, and those people are out there.

The figures provided, come three years after the Auditor General raised serious concerns that the border agency had already lost track of a large number of foreign nations facing deportation, including dangerous criminals.

The reports says that of last month, there were 37,326 active immigration arrest warrants, of which 33,032 were to remove people from the country, including 306 people who are a danger to the public.

The report quotes the border service as saying it is "strongly committed to ensuring the safety and security of Canadians," and that tracking down and deporting people guilt of criminal offences is a priority.

Well, apparently it isn't a priority because if it was, there wouldn't be so many criminals walking free on our streets. There are thousands of these people on our streets and the government has no idea where they are.

How is this even possible? If a Canadian decides to drive to Florida for a winter vacation and is stopped for a check at the border and it is realized they have a DUI arrest from years earlier, that alone will stop you from visiting Disney World. If you have a valid passport, a driver's license or some other type of identification, you're on record somewhere.

How is it the police can find out you have a warrant just by going on their in-car computer, but a serious criminal continues to evade authorities by not leaving a trail?

These criminals aren't just hiding and going unnoticed. They are staying somewhere and being helped by other people.

The federal government's policies on immigration have become a joke. The ridiculous scenario of people walking across the border into Quebec over a period of a couple of years, while RCMP officers carried their luggage for them, sent out a signal that getting into Canada is easy, and no one cares about your past.

People were arriving with no documents, unvetted, no sponsorship, no ties to this country at all, and were simply disappearing.

These criminals who are missing must have some means of support. Even the friends who are sheltering them aren't going to do it for free and pay their expenses.

If they are working, they are on radar somewhere. If they are working under the table for cash, their employer knows something is wrong. If they are on some kind of social assistance, they receive money somewhere.

People who commit crimes of violence do so, because they are violent. I had a neighbour who just had that tendency. He's had several driving while impaired charges, has been in jail several times for assault, including the last time for aggravated assault where he stabbed a man in the throat and spent two years locked up. You would think that would cure him.

Nope, he's currently in jail waiting trial on a new charge of attempted murder. Some people don't learn, and can't change.

What's scary is these known criminals are on the streets and no one seems to know where they are.

The real tragedy here will be the next victim of a crime by a person who is not supposed to even be in the country.

Dear Minister of Transportation

SHERALYN ROMAN
TALK CALEDON

The carnage on our roads continues unabated. The visuals of helicopters landing on Highway 10 seemingly on the news at least once a week and the almost daily Facebook notifications: "avoid Highway 10 at Olde Base," or "Highway 10 closed at Charleston," and "looks like a bad accident, praying for all involved," are relentless. I get it, Mr. Sarkaria. No doubt you'll comment along the lines of, "We can't fix bad drivers," and you're right, we can't. You know what we CAN fix? Bad roads! And Highway 10, running from just north of Mayfield Road through to Orangeville and beyond is a very, very bad road. Dear Minister of Transportation, welcome to the Transportation portfolio. You've inherited a crisis and the time for talking is done, the time for action is now.

The residents who live, work and commute along Highway 10 include Caledon, Brampton, Orangeville, Shelburne and all points in between. We number in the hundreds of thousands. Taxpayers, who simply want to go about our lives, safely or at the very least, as safely as possible. I acknowledge many factors impact traffic volume, some of which you can't control, like soaring housing costs that push people further and further away from their workplaces, or both the existing, and proposed, quarries that result in significant, heavily loaded gravel trucks "sharing" space with commuters. Add to that an appalling lack of public transportation (GO Transit, I'm talking to you) and yet more people are forced into driving vehicles because there's no easy and reliable way for them to commute otherwise. But again, there is something you CAN control and that's the design of the road itself. Put the proposed Highway 413 on the backburner where it rightly belongs and focus instead on fixing the roads already in existence. Because the very existence of some residents is at risk daily and for far too many, has been snuffed out completely.

Minister Sarkaria, you grew up in Brampton and it appears you are quite familiar with Orangeville, too. No doubt you've frequently traveled Highway 10 and surely you must acknowledge the significant population and density growth of the area. As a result, collisions have escalated exponentially. Under former Transportation Minister Caroline Mulroney, our hard-working local Caledon Council member Lynn Kiernan fought long and hard for a review of the Highway 10 corridor to be undertaken, and Orangeville Council has also chimed in with their support. It has been promised and that's good news but I'm asking you today, to not only make sure this promise comes to fruition but that you ensure it happens pronto. As in yesterday. As in this should have been done five years ago, maybe even 10, so let's not delay it another moment.

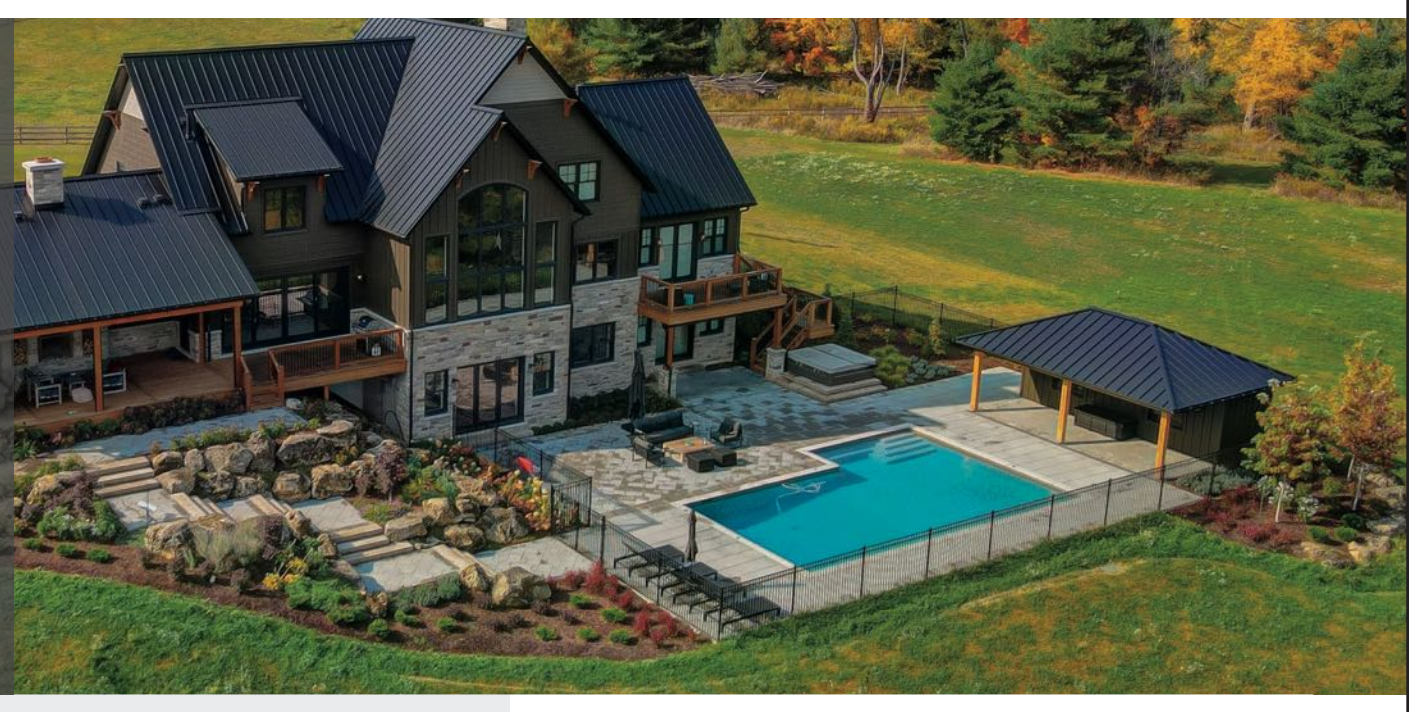

Finally, Minister Sarkaria, while we often (and rightly so) rely on experts to inform our decisions, let's not turn this into a massive, time-consuming undertaking. Let's learn from those who have already done the work both here and across the US. It has been proven over and over again that median barriers "significantly reduce the severity of cross-median crashes." It's been proven that median barrier systems "reduce collision severity." Median barrier options range from cable, to guard rails to concrete barriers, meaning there are options that are effective and affordable. Rumble strips are an even easier tool and did you know research suggests installing centre line rumble strips in some areas led to "a reduction of up to 64% of head-on, sideswipe and opposite direction crashes" the likes of which are what we often see on Highway 10. Seems like a pretty simple, affordable approach to traffic calming that could take place immediately, while your new team continues to investigate other measures.

No one likes a complainer. Minister Sarkaria, I'm complaining, yes, but I'm offering solutions for your consideration too. Much research already exists that points to a variety of mitigating factors to control traffic that won't cost billions of dollars. Consider high friction surface treatments on curves to slow vehicles down, or installing controlled-contrast backplates on all traffic signals. These are signal heads that have backplates equipped with "retroreflective borders" that enhance visibility under all weather conditions, both day and night. As an added bonus, "this countermeasure is also advantageous during periods of power outages when the signals would otherwise be dark, providing a visible cue for motorists." Still aiming to keep costs low? Make sure your traffic studies review yellow-light timing at all signaled intersections and review those findings regularly (and during actual peak traffic times.) I'm a realist, Minister Sarkaria and I know we can't fix bad drivers but surely you must agree we CAN fix bad roads. It is sadly too late for so many local residents but you sir, have the ability to make a difference and make Highway 10 safer for those of us who rely on it daily. On behalf of all residents, I urge you to do so - and the time is now!

International Plowing Match & Rural Expo gives preview of what's to come

BY BRIAN LOCKHART

It is going to be one great big party with lots of good competition and entertainment when the International Plowing Match & Rural Expo gets underway in Amaranth on Tuesday, September 19.

The event will run through to Saturday, September 23, and is expected to receive close to 80,000 visitors.

Some of those visitors will make it a day trip, while others will stay for the entire event and live in the RV park that is currently under construction.

Event organizers hosted a media day on Friday, September 8, to invite the media and dignitaries to preview the site and see all the work being done to make the event's several hundred-acre venue ready for all the people and plowing events to come.

The work being done is very impressive, with hundreds of utility poles erected through Tent City and the RV park to accommodate the electricity flowing into the park and a system designed to supply fresh water. The Tent City is just as it sounds, with tents of various sizes on the grounds. Some are very large and accommodate hundreds of people.

This is the 104th edition of the International Plowing Match and the first time it is being held in Dufferin County.

"This is the first time the Plowing Match & Rural Expo will be held in Dufferin County and we couldn't be prouder as a County and community," said Dufferin County Warden Wade Mills during opening remarks. "As a largely rural county with rich agricultural routes, we are excited to welcome the expected 70,000 attendees. I would like to thank everyone involved in the planning and execution of this beloved tradition. We look forward to celebrating agriculture and rural living at the IPM and connecting with our local residents and those that come to visit."

Held in Amaranth, local farmers donated the land for use during the Plowing Match.

Amaranth Mayor Chris Gerrits thanked town staff for their effort in helping with the event.

"The Township of Amaranth last published a history book in the early 80s and I have confidence that when we update that history book, there will be a whole chapter on this event," Mayor Gerrits said.

When it gets underway, the Plowing Match is expected to provide an economic boost to the region when the thousands of visitors arrive through spending at local establishments, restaurants, accommodations and other costs associated with staying out of town.

Tourism Tent to feature live music, art, food at upcoming plowing match

BY PAULA BROWN

Looking to learn more about the sites, sounds and flavours that can be found in the Dufferin County community?

The County of Dufferin has organized a Tourism Tent for the International Plowing Match (IPM), where eventgoers will be able to chat with 20 local ambassadors about the different tourism offerings in the communities of Dufferin and also participate in a survey regarding tourism services.

"Dufferin is a largely rural county with a rich agricultural history, and we are so excited to share it with event attendees during the International Plowing Match this fall," said Janet Horner, Chair of the Community Development and Tourism Committee. "We encourage everyone at the event to visit our tourism tent and take our Dufferin County tourism survey, and enjoy live music, art and sampling of our great local food and beverage options. Dufferin County offers something for everyone, and we look forward to showcasing that at the IPM."

The Tourism Tent will feature food, music, and art from local businesses and artists, including:

- Food from Lavender Blue, Black Birch, Ten of Tarts, Shine Bakery and Beyond the Gate, with special offerings from Chef Jason Reiner;
- Beverages from Mochaberry;
- Art displays from artists Ellen Cameron, Ricky Schaede and Hugh Russell;
- Live music from Campfire Poets on Sept. 20 and 21 at 2 p.m. and Ashley MacIsaac on Sept. 22 and 23 at 2 p.m.

"The International Plowing Match is expected to see more than 70,000 attendees, and we can't wait for them to experience all that Dufferin County has to offer," said Dufferin County Warden Wade Mills. "Whether you're a Dufferin resident or a visitor, be sure to take some time to check out our great local restaurants, shops, outdoor recreation and cultural opportunities over the course of the event."

The International Plowing Match will run from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily from September 19 to September 23 between the farmers' fields surrounding Bowling Green and Laurel.

Music feeds the mind, body and soul – particularly for people living with dementia: experts

World Alzheimer's Day to focus on benefits of music

BY BROCK WEIR

Music feeds the mind, body and soul; it's a universal truth, but for people living with Alzheimer's and other forms of dementia, and their families, it can be particularly vital to their journey.

That's why on Thursday, September 21, to mark World Alzheimer Day, the Alzheimer Society of York Region and Memory Lane Home Living will join forces for a special presentation by Dan Cohen, subject of the award-winning documentary, Alive Inside.

Founder and director of Right for Music, Cohen has devoted his work to raising awareness of the many benefits music has on dementia.

It's a philosophy close to the hearts of both the Alzheimer Society (ASYR) and Memory Lane and one they're eager to share with the community.

"Music itself is tied to memories, which are tied to emotions," says Jaime Cruz, Public Education Coordinator for ASYR. "With individuals who are living with a diagnosis, it is the long-term memory that individuals do hold onto more. When they hear a song, when they hear a tune, when they hear something, it brings back so much about who they are and what their experiences are. With music, it is really tied to the different emotions, the different experiences, that they have lived and we want to embrace that. Not all of those memories are going to be positive, but we want individuals to get in touch with who they are and bring them out to the people who are surrounding them.

"A diagnosis doesn't mean an end; it's just how we capture and share how their journey is going and where it has been."

Mona Lancaster, Founder and Managing Director for Memory Lane, knows first-hand how true this is.

Lancaster says she has "journeyed" with the ASYR and when she set out to establish Memory Lane, the power of music was already clear.

"I saw the power of music, so we…decided we needed something for World Alzheimer Day and we really wanted it to be about music because we're doing some work with caregivers and people with a diagnosis and we see the power of it," she says, noting these music programs have been successful enough to see clients living with dementia and their families come together to form a choir, where they perform for seniors.

Music, says Cruz, can unlock all sorts of memories and experiences, and is certainly a form of therapy.

"This is what Dan is doing," she says. "We see people actually come alive with their facial expressions, their body language that we see with this music… is phenomenal. People truly do come alive with this therapy and that's exactly what it is. We want people to reach out and have that communication with others, but as people progress, the deterioration with the ability to articulate starts to fade away. This opens up so much more and that's what we really want to see. Someone who receives a diagnosis, that is not the end of who they are. It's our jobs as care partners, as health care professionals, to find another way to support them as they are progressing and music is a phenomenal way to reach into somebody to find out more about who they are and what their needs are. Sometimes it depends on the type of music they want to listen to at that time will tell us their needs and wants."

Adds Lancaster: "Dan is trying to convince the medical community that we can look at other options besides medication. He is trying to really convince people there is another way to work with dementia because I think we've all experienced the, 'Let's just give them medication and put them in a corner.' The other thing he really emphasizes is personal music. Everybody has a personal journey. When I say one size doesn't fit all with dementia, you have to look at the person.

"Just because we get old and we're in a facility or an institution doesn't mean we have to lose our music. Everybody should have the right to music."

The World Alzheimer's Day event featuring keynote speaker Dan Cohen will take place from 9.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. at Memory Lane's base at 45 Crosby Avenue, near Yonge Street, in Richmond Hill.

In addition to Cohen's presentation, the partners will present a Dementia Wellness Fair featuring several vendors that provide supports.

"One of the biggest things that people with a diagnosis and their care partners will continually say is I don't know where to go, I don't know what's out there," says Lancaster. "There are so many things that are missing. We want to teach them to navigate the system so they can be a little more independent and confident."

Adds Cruz: "We want people to reach out to us. Through our support groups, our day programs, our education sessions, we will be able to guide each person from the moment of diagnosis to the moment where their family member passes….and they have someone on their side throughout the entire journey and they are absolutely not alone."

Morningview Foundation commits $3 million over three years for Headwaters Health Care

The Morningview Foundation has committed up to $1 million per year for three years to match community support for Smart Headwaters, the campaign to bring MRI (Magnetic Resonance Imaging) and more to Headwaters Health Care Centre (HHCC).

New donations and three-year pledges to the campaign started being matched on September 1.

Through this matching gift challenge, every community donation made will have more impact, matched dollar-for-dollar in support of better health care close to home for patients and families.

"We believe that Smart Headwaters will transform care for every patient at Headwaters Health Care Centre. The hospital is investing in MRI, advanced health information technology, vital new equipment, nursing education and more, to improve the patient experience at every step in their journey of care," said Morningview Foundation about the significance of their pledge.

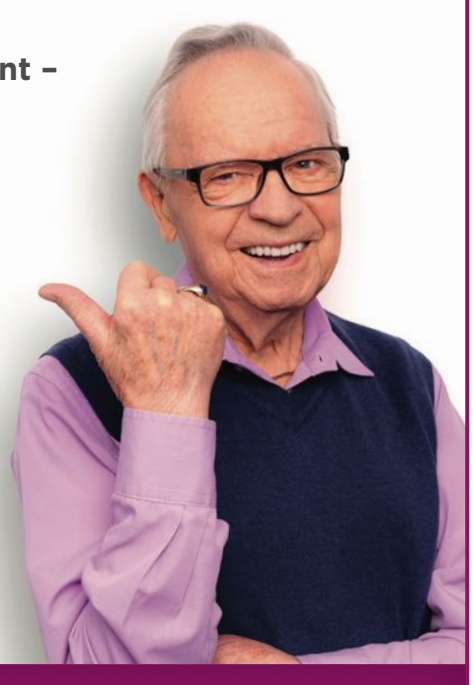

K.C. Carruthers, Headwaters Health Care Foundation CEO says, "I want to extend sincere thanks and appreciation to the Morningview Foundation for their continued support of Headwaters Health Care Centre. I am confident this incredibly generous gift will inspire the Dufferin-Caledon community to support Smart Headwaters, knowing their impacts will be doubled. Together, we can make a lasting difference in the lives of patients, families and medical staff close to home."

Donations can be made at www.hhcfoundation.com or call 519-941-2702 ext. 2303.

Bolton Brewers take New Lowell Knights 12-0 to even their North Dufferin Baseball League Final Series

BY JIM STEWART

The Bolton Brewers evened their North Dufferin Baseball League Final Series 1-1 with an emphatic 12-0 Game 2 victory over the Knights on Sunday afternoon at New Lowell Recreation Park.

The Brewers (18-2-2) and Knights (17-4-1) finished 1-2 in the standings after the regular season. The league rivals met in the NDBL Finals in 2022 with New Lowell prevailing four games to three to capture the Strother Cup in a bitterly-contested championship series.

The Knights drew first blood versus the 2023 pennant-winning Brewers in Game 1 of the series when they edged Bolton 4-3 on Saturday in extra innings at North Hill Park.

The Brewers got off to a sluggish start on Saturday afternoon, according to Head Coach Mike Wallace.

"The layoff between the semifinals and finals worked against us, based on how we started Game 1. It was good to refresh after our series wins [against Lisle and Ivy], but we lost some of our momentum and I thought our hitters definitely lost some timing and were guessing during their at-bats. It took us five innings to warm up the bats."

By the time the Brewers warmed up the bats in Game 1, they were trailing 3-0 after two innings.

However, the home side made a spirited comeback by getting on the scoreboard in the fifth and plated two more runs in the sixth and seventh innings to tie the game and send it to extras in the form of bonus baseball for the Bolton faithful assembled at North Hill.

The Brewers loaded the bases in the home half of the eighth in their final at-bats, but couldn't push the game into extras again.

Brandon Norrie and Sid Beelen led the New Lowell offence with two singles each.

Veteran Player-Coach Wallace had two singles for the Brewers while Brett Chater, Chris Fafalios, Stephen Warden, Amin Juarez, and John Hutchinson each delivered a hit for the Brewers to cue the comeback that came up one run short on Saturday afternoon.

Despite the loss to New Lowell in the opening game, Coach Wallace was pleased that the Brewers lineup made in-game adjustments and he gave credit to Knights' starter Nick Hodgson.

New Lowell's ace threw an eight-inning complete game, scattering seven hits and striking out four Brewers.

"Nick was throwing a great splitter and he was dominant. However, our approaches changed and we stopped lunging at his off-speed pitches. We put them on their heels and almost stole one in eight innings at home on Saturday."

Wallace noted that his team's change in approach and increased volume of hits not only fueled the comeback in Game 1, but carried over to Game 2 the next day in New Lowell.

"The momentum shifted with us to the second game on Sunday. We were confident and comfortable as hitters. All the good approaches from the late innings of Game 1 carried over. Brett Chater hit a lead-off home run then Drew Volkey hit another home run in the next at-bat and suddenly we're up 2-0 on the road after two batters. We set the tone after those two at-bats."

Sid Beelen of the New Lowell Knights slides back to second base before the tag from a pick-off attempt from Amin Juarez of the Bolton Brewers during game two of the NDBL senior championship in New Lowell on September, 10. PHOTO BY DAVID ANDERSON

In addition to Chater and Volkey leaving the yard to start the game, Stephen Warden joined the Bolton homer parade in the sixth. The Brewers pounded out 16 hits versus the Knights' pitching staff, including starter Steve Baldry who surrendered 10 hits and six runs in six-plus innings and relievers Nic Guthrie and Jake Nicholson who combined to complete the seventh inning—yielding six runs on six hits to the relentless Bolton attack.

Bolton built a 4-0 lead heading into the seventh, but the Brewers put up an eight-spot at the top of the inning to put the game out of reach. The Brewers' offence was led by Brett Chater who delivered a homer and two singles. Drew Volkey and Stephen Warden each chipped in with a home run and single. Logan Hart and Greg Keenan hit two singles. Chris Fafalios, John Hutchinson, Josh Hickey, Nathan Drury, and Mike Bonsignore added singles for the visitors in New Lowell.

In addition to the booming bats in Game 2, Wallace also credited the work of this two starting pitchers to kick off the championship series.

"Aaron and Vic did an amazing job in both games. Aaron threw all eight innings for us on Saturday and we should have supported him more offensively because he deserved to win. Victor threw a complete game for us in Game 2 in New Lowell. You can't expect any more than what we got from our starters over the weekend."

Brewers' starter Aaron Dzib struck out six Knights and went the distance in a losing cause on Saturday afternoon. He scattered five hits over eight innings. Victor Moguel's timely, complete game shutout of the 2022 champs on Sunday afternoon featured seven strikeouts. The crafty veteran yielded four hits over seven innings and issued three walks to the Knights, but the bats boomed in support of Moguel in New Lowell.

What Coach Wallace received from his ball club for most of Sunday was the potent offensive attack to which he was accustomed over much of the regular season and throughout the playoff series wins over the Lisle Astros and Ivy Rangers. The Brewers definitely packed their big bats when they drove to New Lowell on Sunday. Coach Wallace hopes the big bats are ready to boom in Game 3 on Saturday.

The NDBL Championship Series resumes on Saturday, September 16 at 1:00 at North Hill Park in Bolton at 1:00. Game 4 of the Series switches settings to New Lowell on Sunday, September 17. First pitch will be 1:00 at the New Lowell Recreation Park.

Notice of Public Information Centre for the Highway 413 Project

THE PROJECT

The Ontario Ministry of Transportation (MTO) is in Stage 2 of the Highway 413 Transportation Corridor Route Planning, Preliminary Design and Provincial Environmental Assessment (EA) Project, formerly known as the GTA West Study. Stage 1 of the EA concluded that even with significant investments in transit and other modes, and enhancing and expanding the existing highway network, a new highway and transitway would still be required to meet the travel demands of the projected population and economic growth in the Greater Golden Horseshoe. During Stage 2 of the EA, the preferred route and interchange locations were determined. The preliminary design for a new highway and high level planning for a new transitway are ongoing.

On May 3, 2021, the Federal Minister of Environment and Climate Change designated the Highway 413 Project under the federal Impact Assessment Act. Since designation, MTO has been preparing an Initial Project Description (IPD). Acceptance of the IPD by the Impact Assessment Agency of Canada (IAAC) will initiate the Planning Phase of the Impact Assessment which will include a public review period in early 2024.

PUBLIC INFORMATION CENTRE (PIC)

You are invited to attend an upcoming Public Information Centre (PIC) to learn about the latest design of the transportation corridor. The PIC will also provide an update on the content of the IPD and progress in key areas of federal interest, including studies underway on Species at Risk, Gender Based Analysis+, Cumulative Effects, Navigable Waters, Human Health, and the socio-economic contexts of communities in the study area. The PIC will be conducted as an online session hosted through the Zoom platform. Following a presentation, there will be a question and answer period. Each session will cover the same content, but some portions of the presentation will be specific to the regions identified for each meeting date. You are invited to register for any one of the sessions listed below.

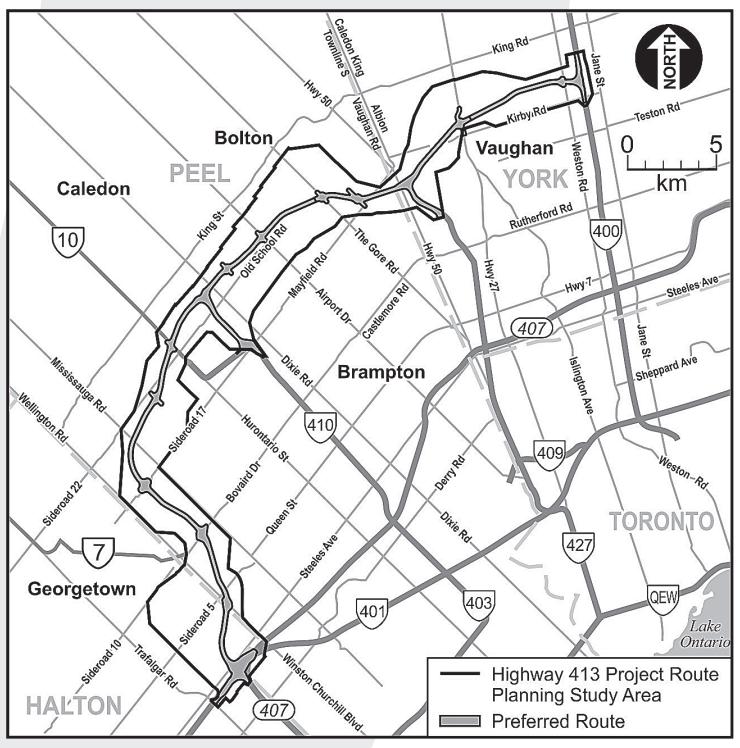

September 28, 2023 – York Region
6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

October 3, 2023 – Halton Region
6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

October 5, 2023 – Peel Region
6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

COMMENTS

To register for the PIC and send us your questions in advance, please visit www.highway413.ca and click on the PIC registration button. If you have any accessibility requirements in order to participate, please leave a message on the toll-free telephone line at 1-877-522-6916 or e-mail project_team@highway413.ca. For the best experience, we encourage you to join the PIC on Zoom through an electronic device. If you don't have access to an electronic device, you can listen to the PIC through your telephone. A recording of the event and new interactive resources to help you learn about the project and provide your feedback will be posted on the project website after the PICs.

Information will be collected in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act. All comments will be maintained on file for use during the study and, with the exception of personal information, may be included in study documentation and become part of the public record.

CALEDON TRAILWAYS
BY LORRAINE ROBERTS

From perennials to pastels: Palgrave artist enters new stage of career

Lorraine Roberts, a pastel artist, is seeing increasing success in the art world

BY ZACHARY ROMAN
LOCAL JOURNALISM
INITIATIVE REPORTER

A Caledon artist is following her dreams by choosing to pursue art full-time.

Lorraine Roberts, 62, and her husband, are selling their business, Plant Paradise Country Gardens. The pair have decided it's time to take a step back from their physically demanding job and focus on their artistic passions.

While her husband is a musician, Roberts is a visual artist who works primarily with pastels.

She's seen increasing success recently, having been juried into many art shows and sold art to private and corporate buyers.

Roberts and her husband have run Plant Paradise Country Gardens, which is located 10 minutes north of Bolton at 16258 Humber Station Road, for 17 years.

"We wanted to change direction… I studied art a long time ago, and I want to go back to my art… just concentrate on the art," said Roberts.

Roberts is currently featured in an exhibition in the Headwaters Arts gallery at the Alton Mill Arts Centre. She's also going to be featured in Headwaters Arts' 27th annual Fall Festival, Juried Art Show and Sale.

This summer, Roberts said she was juried into the Pastel Society of Canada's annual show, which was held at the Neilson Park Creative Centre in Toronto. Among other shows and exhibitions, Roberts will also have her own exhibition at the Millcroft Inn in Alton this fall. From October to December, she'll have over 20 works of art on display there.

As an artist, Roberts said it's important to get involved with different societies and groups. She said it provides a great chance to showcase your work, learn, and meet new people.

"I've been trying to paint every day," said Roberts. "The more you paint, the better you get. Practice makes you better — not perfect, but better."

Roberts said in the world of pastels, everyone has a unique way of making their mark on a canvas. She said that, and the immediacy of the medium, are some of the reasons it is so exciting and appealing.

"You can pick it up and put it down so easily," said Roberts. "The immediacy of pastels is very amusing and there's so many ways you can use them artistically."

Roberts has a large collection of pastels, and said most pastel artists usually have over 1000 pastels on hand. When she's working with pastels, Roberts said she gets lost in the moment and loses track of time.

"You're in the zone, just doing it," said Roberts.

Roberts added living in Caledon is amazing because there's inspiration everywhere.

"Surrounded by trees, ponds, rivers and gardens, I'm inspired by the ever-changing light and colour that nature provides," said Roberts. "My art is an expression of the world within and around me."

From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on September 23, Roberts is hosting an art show and sale at Plant Paradise Country Gardens. She said it's likely the last time people will be able to see the gardens before the business sells.

Q: My hearing isn't too bad. Why should I bother taking a hearing test?

A: Hearing loss can be like a quiet visitor – you might not notice it right away. A hearing test can help us catch any early signs of hearing loss. We recommend making it an annual tradition – just like checking in with an old friend.

Q: What can I do if I'm concerned about the expenses for hearing tests and hearing aids?

A: At HearingLife, we offer free hearing tests to help you start your journey to better hearing. Plus, with discounts of up to $1600 on select hearing aids,* you can get the best hearing aids that suit your lifestyle and budget with the guidance of our hearing care professionals.

Why Choose HearingLife?

OBITUARIES

ASHBEE, BARBARA JEAN
AUGUST 27, 1950 – AUGUST 30, 2023

It is with profound sadness that the family of Barbara Jean Ashbee (Maxwell) announces her passing in Thunder Bay hospital on Wednesday, August 30, 2023.
Born in Orangeville, Ontario, as the youngest of four daughters of Jessie and Leonard Maxwell, Barb attended public school in Orangeville and Erin, High School in Brampton and Credit Valley School of Nursing ('73) in Mississauga.
Barb married Dale in September of 1973 beginning a 50 year journey together first to Edmonton and then to Thunder Bay where she spent 48 years as a nurse in the Thunder Bay health care system and more than 25 years as a volunteer firefighter and medical 1st responder in Neebing.
Devoted to her life partner Dale, three children and four grandchildren, Barb is survived by her sisters Lois (Manitoulin) and Hilda (Orangeville) and was predeceased by sister Marylin and her parents.

Black Health & Social Services Hub expected to open next year following Provincial support

"One of Ontario Health's most important strategic priorities is reducing disparities in health care, so we are excited by the potential of this historic partnership to do that for Black populations within Peel Region. We are proud to partner with the health organizations and community partners who are bringing this initiative to life."

The Hub was designed by Peel residents, a Region where the Province says 20 per cent of Ontario's Black communities live. Its development was guided by A Black Health Plan for Ontario, with the goal of making it easier to connect with health services that "meet their unique needs."

The plan includes increased access to health screenings for "prevalent illness" such as breast cancer, diabetes and hypertension.

"We know that better access to culturally affirming and person-centred health and social care is pivotal to improving the health and well-being of Black communities throughout Ontario," said Paul Bailey, Executive Director of Black Health Alliance, in a statement. "Hubs such as this play a pivotal role in providing that care, meeting resident needs and building strong communities. This critical investment by the Government of Ontario will bring the care that people need closer to home, and will create a space that will serve as a community anchor for years to come. We look forward to continuing to work alongside Hub partners and Peel residents to ensure Black communities in Peel have the resources, care, and supports they need to be healthy and thrive."

Appreciation was also extended by Roots Community Services.

"With this investment in the Peel Black Health & Social Services Hub, we are well positioned to work with the community to build a comprehensive model of care that will provide primary care, mental health and addiction, and social supports that are culturally affirming and person-centred, to meet the needs of the growing and diverse Black population in Peel," said Executive Director Angela Carter. "We thank the Government of Ontario for this crucial and much needed investment in Peel, that will serve to build a more equitable health system for Black residents, while strengthening the local health system to serve the broader community."
